"Christianity is not stronger to do its work because, in the churches of its professors, there is being substituted for the incense of prayer the aroma of the bean supper and the oyster stew. It is not more beautiful and winning because the congregation of its competing sects are growing adept in meretricious arts. Far otherwise. The divided church is in humiliation and disgrace. Its importance is perceived; it is despised. This is because it is trying to live in violation of its constitution. The church is constituted in unity, not in division; in holiness, not in desecration, immodesty, vulgarity, and sensationalism; in catholicity, not in the spirit of sectarianism. The church will again wield its ancient sway over the hearts of men when, returning from its apostasy, absolved and regenerate, it again appears—one, holy, and catholic."

Yes, the church will be obliged to return from its apostasy from the very essence and foundation of all true religion, which is Spiritualism, with all that the term truly signifies. The church can no longer teach a future existence without demonstrating it as a scientific fact, and it cannot do this without recognizing and accepting the phenomena of Spiritualism. When the church confesses as Bishop Foster has done, that it does not know that death does not end all, the time has certainly arrived when it should welcome modern Spiritualism with wide open arms.

What is there to-day more catholic than Spiritualism? What other 'ism' draws with such magnetic force upon a common platform men and women of every race, color and religion as does Spiritualism? The very heterogeneous character of its adherents accounts for the difficulty in successful organization. While they are all one in regard to the truth of spirit-return, they are widely separated on many other subjects upon which they are yet ignorant and upon which they will require further time for evolution.

But if the church would substitute the better part of Spiritualism, its grand, elevating, sacred, soul-inspiring seances, for some of its "leg-shows" and other questionable entertainments as ennumerated by Rev. Dr. Hale, it would at once enter a glorious and permanent career.

The church is fearful, however, that some of the messages that might be received in the seances of the church might contradict or oppose its creed.

Suppose they do. What of it? Your particular creed contradicts and opposes several hundred other sects and creeds. If the spirits you are trying at these seances (as we are commanded by the Bible to try) be of false prophets you can easily detect the fact, but if they be of God, (good and true) you will be thus impressed with their character and be edified.

The fact as to whether or not spirits good or bad, can return and communicate with mortals, thus proving to a demonstration a future existence, is a duty of the church to illustrate, and by illustrating it properly within her pale, she will make a long stride for a most successful coming century.

H. V. SWERINGEN.

GONE TO SPIRIT LIFE.

THE DEVOTED WIFE OF J. FRANK BAXTER JOINS THE IMMORTALS.

Friday, Jan. 22, 1897.

To the Editor:—I hardly can see to write you, for blinding tears, for with all my knowledge of the fact that death is but an event in a continuous life, yet am I bowed in grief I cannot control, for no longer am I to enjoy the physical presence of my devoted and loved wife. A telegram reached me yesterday (Thursday evening from my faithful and heart-broken daughter that Mrs. Baxter had passed away at 2 o'clock, and that I must come home. Thus my engagement with St Louis, Mo., where I was, was summarily by necessity cut short.

I left St. Louis last evening for my home in Chelsea, Mass., but cannot possibly reach there till Saturday noon. And what anguish is mine, to think such a burden chances to fall so heavily upon my daughter who needs me and to whom I would hasten. It seems as though train never ran slower, and yet we are not much behind time.

Of course I know nothing of particulars relative to the death. My companion has been an invalid for years, but not confined to her bed. She endeavored to see but the brightest in life, and with all her pain was uncomplaining, was cheerful, was happy—in fact never happier than when surrounded by her friends enjoying themselves in her presence. Her will to live, her hopeful nature, and her cheerful disposition all conspired to lengthen her days.

But she has gone. I am bereaft. I have only a daughter to live for. And she is not my claim alone, yet my life is for her. How her heart is aching! How anxious is she that I shall reach her. And here am I, simply powerless, alone with my thoughts. I never realized before such anxious moments and restless spirit.

Neither she nor I have any near relatives to come to us; but her friends are hosts. And I've no doubt but that sympathy and aid are tendered in my absence. This is a mitigating consolation in my trying dilemma.

Mrs. Baxter's death was not wholly a surprise, for we have felt that when the messenger came it would be stealthily. But she was so full of life, so bound to be happy, and even was so useful—so lovable in the home, so entertaining and so devoted, in fact notwithstanding all her pains and ills, loved to live, and made her home and family ever the happier by her presence and her pleasing ways. Oh, what a void will be in my heart and life.

I know "death is but transition," I know that at lawful times the possibility of her nearness is assured; but after all, unless that near relationship is constantly realized its absence saddens. I know there are many who've welcomed her in spirit and many who will, and of them not a few to aid her. But will they fully satisfy? I can but think I'll be wanted—I nearly said needed. I think she'll desire her daughter. Oh, these tears of mine, will they cease to flow?

And after all it is these very bonds of love, these natural longings, reciprocated between bereft and arisen that afford the effective tie of attraction, which leads us of earth to aspire and rise and they of the spirit to inspire and return. Blessed thought! I pray; come, dear spirit, come and be happier!

But Brother Francis, I forget I may weary you. Excuse me. It is from my sorrowful, but welling spirit, that I write. Though I can but dimly see, yet I cannot refrain.

Now, her friends among your Eastern readers are so numerous—is it asking too much for you to formulate some notice of her departure? Later some one, possibly Mrs. Cassel, after plans, funeral, and disposition of body, may write an obituary in formal shape. Yours fraternally, though in sadness, and anxiety, J. FRANK BAXTER.
181 Walnut St., Chelsea, Mass.

THE BEST SPIRITUALIST PAPER.

To the Editor:—I have had all the numbers of The Progressive Thinker from its first, up to the present, and I agree with Brother J. W. Dennis when he says that he does not see how any one can be a good Spiritualist and not take a good spiritual paper; and The Progressive Thinker is the best one I have ever taken. Of course I do not agree with all the writers that talk through it, as some of these know-it-all writers would have us believe they did, but an old Spiritualist that has had the experience that I have, can see with Brother Dennis. When they fail to be up to time, tell Brother Dennis to hit them again, as I think him a level-headed Spiritualist—there are no wheels in his head, in my opinion. I should be pleased to get you subscribers for the paper and perhaps I shall be able to do so. Hoping that you and The Progressive Thinker will live long and prosper, is the wish of an old Spiritualist. GEO. Y. NICKERSON.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws. No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D.

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker, both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with conciseness and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton

"THE DREAM CHILD,"

A FASCINATING ROMANCE OF two worlds. By Florence Huntley. Price: paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00. Books like "The Dream Child" spur humanity on to make more and more demands of this nature, and will open up new heights and depths of spiritual knowledge.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Will, I believe, take its place beside Bulwer's "Zanoni" and the "Seraphita" of Balzac.—"Daily Capital," Topeka, Kansas. Although simple and unvarnished with any inflammable descriptions, enthralls the mind to the exclusion of other thoughts, until reluctantly the reader closes the last page.—Minneapolis "Sunday Times"

THOMAS PAINE

SOME OF HIS NOTED WORKS.

Life of Thomas Paine,

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

The Age of Reason;

Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents, cloth, 50 cents.

Common Sense;

A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

The Rights of Man.

Parts I and II. Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 279 pages. Paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Paine's Complete Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 432 pages. Cloth, $1.00

Paine's Political Works.

Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc. Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 650 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

SPIRITUAL HARP.

A Collection of Vocal Music for the Choir, Congregation and Social Circles.

By J. M. Peebles and J. O. Barrett; E. H. Bailey, Musical Editor. New edition. Culled from a wide field of literature with the most critical care, free from all theological bias, throbbing with the soul of inspiration, embodying the principles and virtues of the spiritual philosophy, set to the most cheerful and popular music, (nearly all original), and adapted to all occasions, it is doubtless the most attractive work of the kind ever published. Its beautiful songs, duets and quartets, with piano, organ or melodeon accompaniment, adapted both to public meetings and the social circles. Cloth, $2.00. Postage 14 cents.

ANGEL WHISPERINGS

For the Searcher After Truth.

BY HATTIE J. RAY.

All who love genuine poetry, of excellent moral and spiritual quality, should read this book. This work is handsomely bound and is clearly printed on good paper. For sale at this office. Price $1.

THE DEAD MAN'S MESSAGE.

By Florence Marryat, author of "A Scarlet Sin," "How Like a Woman," "The Risen Dead," "There is No Death" etc. Cloth, $100.

The Religion of Humanity;

A Philosophy of Life. By J. Leon Benwell. A beautiful paper-bound pamphlet, with likeness of author. A most valuable publication to circulate among Christian people. Price 15 cents.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe; and the Law of Control. New edition, enlarged and revised, by M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

MEDIUMISTIC EXPERIENCES OF JOHN BROWN,

The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

The Evolution of the Devil.

By Henry Frank, the independent preacher of New York City. The most learned, accurate, scientific and philosophical analysis of His Satanic Majesty ever published. The book contains 66 pages, and is beautifully bound, with likeness of author on title page. Price 25 cents.

IMMORTALITY.

A poem in five cantos "If a man die, shall he live?" is fully answered. By W. S. Barlow, author of Voices. Price 60 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist Attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents. For sale at this office.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.

The Candle From Under the Bushel; or Thirteen Hundred and Six Questions to the Clergy. By Wm. Hart. Price 40 cents.

HOW TO MESMERIZE.

By Prof. J. W. Cadwell, one of the most successful mesmerists in America. Ancient and modern miracles explained by mesmerism. An invaluable work. Price, paper, 50 cents.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing.

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

POEMS.

By Edith Willis Linn. A volume of sweet outpourings of a gentle nature, who has no thought of the bitter cruelty of earth-life. These are sweet, winsome and restful. Price $100.

Fifty Years in the Church of Rome

By Rev. Chas. Chiniquy, ex-priest. A remarkable book. Pages, 832. Price $2.25.

BEYOND THE GATES.

By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. A highly entertaining work. Price $1.00.

THOMAS PAINE.

Was He Junius?

By Wm. Henry Burr. Price 15 cents.

Paine's Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 432 pages. Cloth, $1.00

POEMS OF PROGRESS.

By Lizzie Doten. They are really valuable. Price $1.00.

PAINE'S POLITICAL WORKS.

Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 650 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

Studies in Spiritual Thought.

FOREGLEAMS—MEDITATIONS AT THE BEGINNING OF THE NEW YEAR, DEMONSTRATING THAT NEW FORCES ARE AT WORK—THOUGHTS WORTHY OF CAREFUL CONSIDERATION — THE HIGHER LIFE.

Very difficult would it be to find finer essays in spiritual thought than may be found in Lilian Whiting's letters contributed to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Her fine intuitive perception, depth of thought and beautiful diction render her contributions exceedingly interesting, and valuable for instruction and the cultivation of spirituality in thought and life. In her letter written on the last day of 1896, in the city of Chicago, she says:

To be domiciled in a beautiful and hospitable home, among congenial friends, is to become for the hour oblivious to the usual working demands of life that confront the average press correspondent. Life is full of enchanting allurements, and one longs to write by the new method of electricity on the air rather than through the old process of pens and paper. It may occur that all the news and discussions of the day should really be supplied to us all by mutual thought transference rather than through type and the printing press. At the exposition, in that wonderful White City, forever gone from all save memory, the one thing that seemed to most fascinate the imagination was Professor Gray's telautograph. To sit by it and see the slender glass needle reproducing the very penmanship that might be done at that instant a thousand miles away was to behold a modern miracle. No one interested in the great unfoldment of life at the present day but was drawn to linger over and study this mavelous invention. Since then has come—even within this year just closed—the epoch-making discovery of the Roentgen ray, a discovery that realizes on earth some of the conditions of the higher life just beyond. Since then has come the experimental theory—that is fast crystallizing into experimental discovery—that electricity may write upon the air, and thus, at sea, ships may interchange messages. It is a law of life, a truth of evolution, that every demand attracts its supply, every need and desire attracts its fulfillment. Now this has already become an overburdened age. We have all of us too much of everything. We are the victims of redundance and abundance. In some cases the conditions must be changed. One's private correspondence, for instance, assumes proportions that are colossal and that are hopeless. For my own part—and I am indebted to dozens if not hundreds of readers of the Inter Ocean for kind letters that I am unable to answer personally that I must venture this one word of explanation—for my own part, to reply adequately to my letters would not only take all the time but even more time than I have, if I devoted myself to this alone. All this vast work of general correspondence everywhere for which now busy people employ one or more private secretaries will come to be met in the future by thought transference.

Lady Henry Somerset employs two secretaries who are busy ten hours a day in replying to her correspondence, and who have to be diligent even then to keep it within bounds. Now many social conditions are curiously and very evidently changing. The horse is destined to become an extinct animal, as the electric motor will take his place everywhere. Dr. Edward Everett Hale says that writing will become a lost art; that psychical telegraphy, thought transference, will take its place. In this case it would lead to the abolishment of the entire postal service; for if there was not writing there could be no letters; and if, in some way, as yet only dimly revealed to us, the present newspapers will be transformed into a method of electric writing on the air, perhaps clerically recorded on some medium, corresponding to paper, why, it is evident that the present outlook in life will be transformed. The entire mechanism of living must inevitably assume finer and swifter and more subtile forms. We stand not only on the brink of a new year, but on the threshold of a new heaven and a new earth.

THE X RAY.

The scientists who have been experimenting on the X ray have discovered that the blind are enabled to see by this by this high potency of vibration. They They also discover that "all refined forms of force, such as light, heat, electricity, magnetism, chemical energy, nerve force, and the X ray, are forms of the same phenomenon, namely the vibration of the molecules of the ether. These vibrations are transmitted as waves, and the length, direction, and frequency of these waves determine whether the force be light, heat or motion.

"Now nerve force," continues this authority, "is a form of ether vibration of certain definite wave lengths and wave frequencies, and if we could transmit to the cells of the vortex of the brain (which are the seat of all sensations) vibrations similar to nerve force, through the air, we might be able to ultimately transfer ideas directly from mind to mind without the mediation of the nerve filaments, or the five senses."

Humanity is just entering on the practical comprehension of the truth that this world in which we live is so modified by the other world just beyond that the two—the material and the immaterial universe—are constantly acting and reacting on each other. "Matter is connected with formative power beyond the merely visible manifestations," said the great royal electrician and chemist, Michael Faraday. "This," continued Dr. Faraday, "is termed by some the unknown, and by others the unknowable, but may be called the relation of the invisible or spirit universe to the visible or material universe. The invisible condition of matter is exactly the same in its atomic condition as to its nature, as in the visible matter which we can analyze. But it has a higher degree of motion among its elements. It is not, therefore, unscientific to maintain the absolute certainty of a spirit, or invisible world, and also to demonstrate the intimate relationship that must exist between that world and the one in which we at present reside. Both are composed of matter; both partake of the same general characteristics as to elementary powers of matter, and both must interweave their elements so as to blend with each other if one is the complement of the other."

Dr. Hale has formulated a high truth that bears immediately on this subject when he says:

"Thoughts, being motions of the mind, assume specific and definite forms, and when distinct in the mind, can be clearly perceived and understood by any other mind which is in sympathy with the one in which they are generated."

PROGRESS OF CHICAGO.

Such a feat in civil engineering as filling in the lake on Lake Front and transforming that spot to a beautiful park in which the Art Institute and the Field Columbian Museum will be such attractions is one of the marvels of the age. With electric transit, with clean streets, Chicago would take on a new aspect. Even as it is, the city offers so much of intense interest, mechanically as well as socially, that it is nearly impossible to sit down and write while here. One can write anywhere, but how can one enjoy Chicago only while within its gates? Domiciled in one of the charming homes of the North Side, the inclination is strong to do nothing less attractive than to listen, enchanted, to the Thomas Orchestra concerts, to go to teas, receptions, dinners, musicals, and find our delights in the dream of fair women.

The threshold of a new year is a period of especial spiritual impressiveness. The new year resolutions may generate into turning a phrase for the annual jest, but the fact that one makes better resolutions is something; the fact that one pauses to look thoughtfully upon his life, and measure his conduct by ideal standards. The initial step to living ideally is to resolve to live ideally. The secret of broken and neglected and forgotten resolutions lies in regarding them too much in the light of human strength and too little in that receptivity to the divine aid. One prone to irritation, for instance, resolves that he will govern his temper; and, lo! before an hour has passed, he has lapsed into his old fault again, and he is perhaps ready to be discouraged with himself. But if he had—instead of making this specific resolution in his own strength—if he had prayed earnestly for the divine spirit that he might be filled with the heavenly love, there would then have been no room in his heart for irritation or anger. To resolve that one will not yield to a specific fault is negative at best; but to seek to be filled with that spirit which is joy and love and peace—in that lies the positive force which must prevail.

THE HIGHER LIFE.

For man is created for the higher, not for the lower, life. When he lives below his moral ideals he is out of his habitat—as a bird would be in the water, or a fish in the air. He was created for a spiritual atmosphere, and only in that does he realize his true being.

The new year of 1897 dawns in brilliancy of radiant promise. Psychical research and scientific experiment and demonstration are serving religious truth. Science is revealing powers of nature—higher forces hitherto unsuspected. The marvelous X ray, that is even promising to enable the blind to see, and what is perhaps more marvelous, is revealing those high vibrations of the luminiferant ether which convey thought, the force we call thought, from mind to mind, without the intervention of the cells of the brain—what a revelation is this! For it is nothing short of the absolute demonstration of spiritual communication. It explains how thought leaps from spirit to spirit, transcending the mental mechanism—showing a process more delicate, more subtile, than were the marvels of the mind that had heretofore been known.

The year of 1897 will mark a new and clearer consciousness of man's relation with the spiritual world. The seen and the unseen are coming into still clearer and nearer and more intimate union. The only true union is when the mortal lifts itself to the immortal; when the advancing perception of man discovers more of the higher forces of nature, and he learns to avail himself of them and adjust his life to the plane of larger development. The communion between the seen and the unseen is a part of the divine life which is the higher life. As the thought flashing from spirit to spirit, it is rational; as a truth in the divine order, it is to be held in reverence and trust.

Dead? Not to thee, thou keen watcher
—not silent, not viewless to thee,
Immortal, still wrapped in the mortal!
I, from the mortal set free,
Greet thee by many clear tokens thou smilest to hear and to see.

The clear recognition of this communion of spirit between the seen and the unseen is one of the great features of the immediate future in the bringing of the earthly life of man into harmony with heavenly principles. A vast combination of forces is working to this result. As Kant so well says: "The other world is not another place, but another view." To perceive it is the privilege of the spiritual vision.

It may be that not all of these suggestions will receive their material fulfillment in this life on earth; but that there will be an approximation in some vauable degree is clearly prophesied by what has already been actually accomplished. There is no reason to believe that the X ray can ever restore sight to one whose optic nerve has been destroyed or is dead; but where there is some proper vitality remaining therein, perhaps the X ray combined with other means yet to be discovered, may suffice to quicken and assist the living force within to a growth into the culmination of actual sight.

But, more than in material things, the foregleams of spiritual intuition will find their fulfillment in the realm of spirituality—spiritual light, life and being, by which this world and the world "over there"—so-called—will more and more be united and unified, and realized as one. J. C. UNDERHILL.

Hammond, Ind.

AN INFAMOUS MOVEMENT.

To the Editor:—I see by the San Francisco Call to-day that the ministers of that city are about to move upon the Legislature to have enacted a stringent Sunday law to compel people to observe that day according to their wishes. Now, if the ministers are to have the lawful control of the entire population of the State for one day in seven, what is to hinder the passage of a law giving to doctors and lawyers, also each the control of the people's privileges and purses one day each out of seven, and so on ad infinitum, until all the days in the year are devoted to some favored class?

Please call the attention of the people of this State to this fact and arouse them to immediate action in getting up petitions and checking at the outset this monstrous effort to assassinate liberty and roll back the progressive march of advancing Thought into the night of horrors that cursed the earth during the reign of Torquemada.

Spiritualists and Freethinkers of California, at once to the rescue!

Sacramento, Cal. D. P. KAYNER
D. P. KAYNER, M. D.
Sacramento, Cal.

The Bavarians appeared, as a separate people, in 630 A. D., when they are mentioned as having been conquered by the Franks.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a life-long study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York

MATERIALIZATION.

SOME VERY PERTINENT QUESTIONS SUBMITTED TO SOUTHWORTH WHICH WILL CAUSE HIM TO MEDITATE DEEPLY IN ORDER TO PREPARE A CORRECT ANSWER, AND MAY CAUSE HIM TO "SCRATCH" HIS HEAD.

To the Editor:—How long must the truth concerning materialization remain undiscovered to the great masses of casual observers, and even investigators who have witnessed the phenomena but still remain in doubt as to the reality?

Thousands have investigated and are perfectly satisfied that it is a veritable fact. Other thousands equally sincere, reject it as wholly unworthy of even serious thought. Why is this so? Have not other scientific problems, far more difficult of solution, been solved to the satisfaction of the scientific world?

The diameter, diurnal revolutions of, or the distance to, far off Neptune, is not disputed. Matter in all its forms is chemically separated into constituent parts and their atomic vibrations noted by the color of each. A stain of blood is analyzed and the court informed as to whether it is human, and if so, to what sex it belongs.

Now, if the scientific world so readily accepts these as philosophical facts, is it not also possible for the same students of science to agree as to whether or not an object the size of a man, standing before you in sufficient light to discern his features, as you clasp him by the hand, and he gives to you a verbal message—we ask—"Is it not possible for science to answer the simple question:

"Is this a physical human being?"

The end to be attained is certainly worthy the effort required, and every scientist and theologian should satisfy himself and take a bold stand for his conception of truth, and thus give a worthy and exceedingly important subject the weight of his influence, or stamp out a fraud from the field of investigation. Thus, in a short time, would materialization "arise and shine," the conviction of truth having risen upon her or be driven into obscurity never again to deceive the world.

If The Progressive Thinker will institute a court of inquiry by procuring the services of a number of the best materialization mediums to be obtained, and empannel a jury of ten of the most scientific men it can get, three days will settle the matter in the minds of tens of thousands, now in doubt; while a ten-cent pamphlet containing the jury's verdict in detail will cover the expense of the investigation.

In an article on Materialization in The Progressive Thinker of January 16, 1897, Southworth says:

"The vital force of the grabbed form belongs to the medium, and at all hazards this must be returned or the physical death of the medium is a certainty. The materialized form is fast in the grasp of personified ignorance, and if the materializing spirit allows the form to dissipate into its elements while in the grasp of the grabber, the vital force of the medium must also be dissipated at the same time. The physical life of the medium must not be sacrificed, and the invariable course of the guides in these cases is to call the body of the medium to the vital force. So through all time and under all circumstances the grabber will find the medium in his grasp, and each time the grabber will cry 'exposed,' and the ignorant public will say 'of course.'"

Such positive assertion coming from acknowledged ability and experience, awakens a lively line of thought in the minds of doubters; and a volley of interrogations is fired at the nearest defender of the assertions, such as:

First—Would it not be easier to return the vital force to the medium than to bring the medium to the vital force?

Second—If the vital force of the medium was in the grabbed form, what force would move the medium?

Third—If the vital force returned to the medium after a form has dematerialized, and no serious results follow to the medium, could not the vital force, by the same law withdraw from the grabbed form and return, as in other cases, to the medium, while the grabbers stand with empty hands as the form vanishes?

Fourth—Could the physical form of the medium, with or without the vital force, but under strict test conditions, be taken from the cabinet, pass through the curtain, advance to the middle of the room, and repossess the vital force, unobserved by the grabbers or others?

Fifth—Could the bony arms or strong garments of the medium be made to pass unobserved into the hands of the grabbers now preoccupied by the materialized form?

Sixth—As the materialized form must remain in the firm grasp of its captors until the physical form of the medium relieves it, have we not solved a problem that all the philosophers of the world have claimed never could be solved—viz.: to make two solids of equal density occupy the same space at one and the same time? But we must desist, for many of these things seem unphilosophical to us, yet they may be clear and comprehensive to others; and while I am a believer in materialization, I acknowledge myself unable to comprehend the philosophy by which it is produced, and I fear friend Southworth has not got the right whistle of it either. He is as far probably from the truth as Neptune is from earth.

Smithtown, Pa. JOSEPH SMITH.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I.. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

SOME VERY UNPLEASANT REMINDERS.

SENSATIONS OF THE DYING—TERRIBLE TORTURES UNDERGONE WHILE WAITING FOR THE UNDERTAKER—HOW A MAN FEELS WHEN DEAD—SUPPOSED CORPSE INSISTS THAT HE WAS DEAD AND RETURNED TO LIFE—HIS OWN STATEMENT.

William Gray, Washington County, Indiana, has just been snatched from the most horrible death the human mind can conceive. Within a few moments of the time fixed for his burial he sat up and quietly told the undertaker that his services would not be required. Had not the supposed corpse returned to life so suddenly he would have been buried.

Here is the first account of this remarkable experience, as written by himself:

"Before I begin to tell the details of how I came near being buried alive, only a few days ago, I would like to say that I am a plain man, without much education, so if you expect any fine description in my writing you will most likely be disappointed. I intend simply to describe as nearly as I can the horror of my feelings, and I have no doubt that the bare facts themselves will be sufficiently interesting without being dressed up by fine language. The frightful agony of mind I passed through will be enough, I am sure, to fit me for the task of describing it all. Not one detail has left my mind. In fact, I suppose they are implanted on my memory forever.

"When I died—for I was dead, according to the doctor—there were present at my bedside the following people, all of Washington County, Indiana: Mary F. Gray, Jennie Shields, Mary A. Shields, Robert Shields, William Bartle and James Bartle.

"All of these will swear to the truth of what I say, and so will Dr. Ellrod of Hennysville, Clark County, for I am sure that the mind of everyone present received a shock that will remain with them for a lifetime. Even now they all look at me as if wondering whether I am really alive or am just a walking spirit, and if it was not all so dreadful I could laugh when I look back at the whole affair.

PASSED THROUGH THE EXPERIENCE OF DEATH.

"I am a farmer and was born in Washington County forty-four years ago. I have been sickly for several years. You must excuse me if I keep saying I died, for I am firmly convinced that I passed through the experience of death.

"I was first taken ill last month, being seized with a kind of colic or cramps. At first I thought little of it, but after a day or two the pains grew so bad that I sent for Dr. Ellrod. He lives ten miles away. I explained to him how I felt and he gave me some medicine, but it did me no good, and soon my pain was terrible. I began to feel hot about the head, and could not remember things very well, and for two days I lay in some kind of a fever. The doctor came twice a day, but I grew worse, and one day toward the end of the month the family gathered round my bedside, and I could see by their grieved faces that they thought I was going to die.

"There was no shock in the news. It seemed as if I had known for years that I was going to die, and then I felt my limbs growing colder and colder, and realized that the end was at hand. First the chill struck my feet, and it extended up my limbs, and then from my finger tips to my body, until I felt as if an icy hand was just about to grip my heart, and that when that was done I should be dead. My pain was gone, but in its place was a haunting dread that seemed to swell my veins, until I thought that I should become a maniac before I died. So much agony of mind was crowded into that one short moment it seemed as if I could not contain it all. I felt the sweat rising on my brow. On the inside it felt as if every drop was of molten iron, and that as it reached the surface it was chilled by the cold hand of death.

IN THE SHADOW OF DEATH.

"Nearer and nearer the cold approached my heart, until it seemed as if I could measure the distance. I knew that in a second more all would be over, but in that second I lived a thousand lifetimes. My boyhood days all swept before me, and a thousand details of my daily life long since forgotten passed before my mind. My young days spent at the plow, and the many hours I ran about the fields, tugging at my mother's apron, as she led from the fold a sickly lamb, or went to pass a cheery word with the haymakers; all this passed through my brain at lightning speed, and when all was over and the last second of my long dream arrived I realized that I was just about to face my Creator. This was the only sense of relief I had. I had no fear, for the conviction of the goodness of the God on high was so firmly stamped on me that it was a reality.

"Throughout the long, strange scene I saw the people by my bedside. I watched their tears, and listened to their moans of grief with an acuteness that I had never felt before. It seemed as if I could not help hearing them, and my eyes were fixed with a rigidity that could not be described.

"Then the end came. With a clutch like that of a thousand cold steel vises my heart was grasped in the firm embrace of death, and all was over.

PRONOUNCED DEAD.

"I say all was over, because this was the first moment's respite I had had, and it was not until some time after that I realized my situation and the reaction set in. The first thing that then impressed me was that some one leaned over the bed, and, bursting into a fit of violent sobbing, said 'He's dead; my God, he's dead!'

"Then a thousand voices seemed to take up the words, 'He's dead, he's dead, he's dead,' until their echo throbbed on my brain like the beating of a triphammer. That was the beginning of my second horror. I realized that I was dead, or at least I thought so. Then I began to wonder if I really was dead. It had occurred to me as strange that I did not see heaven or the other place. These thoughts gave me a momentary shock, but nothing to the horrors that followed. My reason gradually returned, and just as if some one had struck me a violent blow came the full realization, 'I am not dead—I am in a trance.'

"Then the weeping of those about my bedside was heard with redoubled force. It seemed as if they stayed there for days, and every tear they shed was only binding me firmer in my living tomb. My eyes saw everything that went on. I tried to move, to speak, to blink my eyes, but I was fixed, held down, it seemed, by a thousand grinning devils.

"Then I was alone, that is the people left the room. I could hear the tick of the clock, and counted the seconds flying by. Soon I was to be buried, and I felt convinced that no power I could summon would ever break the spell. My imagination led me down a million lanes, each one leading to the very verge of the hereafter. I fancied that I was placed in a coffin and lowered into a tomb. There were half a dozen other coffins on shelves round the place. Suddenly the lid of my casket was raised and I realized that I could move.

"I rose from my coffin, and finding myself entombed began to shout for help. No help came, and after a long siege of torture I began to go almost insane. I remember with a clearness too horrible to dwell upon how I laughed and shrieked in my insanity.

"This frightful vision continued. The door of my room opening, several grave-looking men came in. I thought that they were the undertaker and his assistants. Almost as soon as they entered the room they began to measure me for a coffin. My blood seemed to be turned into boiling oil, and my brain—had I the power of a Dante I could not describe the feeling it contained. But the end was near. The people came into the room and talked for a few moments with the undertaker. In reality the undertaker had not yet arrived.

"Then, as if banished by a wizard's hand, all my torture fled. My life came back, and without the slightest feeling of pain or worry of mind I sat up, and inquired what all the trouble was about. The wild shriek that came from the lips of the women folk and their ghastly looks will remain with me forever. I realized the horror of the situation.

"The folks sent for Dr. Ellrod, and when he arrived I was sitting up, and have been for the past several days, though the memories of it all remain my constant companion.

"WILLIAM GRAY."

PARIS LETTER.

EXPOSURE OF SATANISM / A GIGANTIC HUMBUG—CATHOLIC CHURCH DIGNITARIES SADLY DUPED, IN OTHER WORDS THEY MADE FOOLS OF THEMSELVES.

To the Editor:—The Paris newspaper the Eclair of December 10th, says:

To have manufactured a complete worship of the Devil, describing its rituals and ceremonies, naming its priests and adepts: to have revivified the horned Lucifer in the 19th century is certainly no commonplace achievement. Still less so when the author has seen the whole Catholic world follow his lead and accept his gross fabrications as genuine facts. The author of such a success is certainly entitled to consider himself to rank as the King of charlatans.

This enterprise consisted in the publication of two books which appeared in serial form: "The Diable am XIX Siecle," followed by the "Memories d'unl ex-Palladists" at a franc a number. The speculation proved to be a big financial success, obtaining 20,000 subscribers. Ecclesiastics gave it their support, quoting the contents in lectures, sermons and books. It circulated in convents. Bishops wrote sympathetic and appreciative letters. A whole literature sprang up like fungii around the poisonous parent stems. Lucifer in modern evening dress came forth to conquer the world afresh in the 19th Century.

PRICKING THE BUBBLE.

The Paris correspondent of the London psychical journal Light, was one of the first to prick the slimy bubble. He learned from "Papus," the well known occultist, that the leading contributor to these works "Leo Taxil" had at one time been a freemason, when he had published some anti-clerical works, including a pornographic book on the "Secrets of the Confessional" which was followed by an erotic book on the "Mistresses of Pope Pius IX." Subsequently, however, he became "converted" and went over to the church, when he turned round against his previous colleagues and published the "Mysteries of Freemasonry," in which that institution is described as the work of the Devil and as being sustained by his special support.

Attacks on Masonry turned out, however to be a drug on the market. A more spicy and comprehensive venture was invented, in which Spiritualism, Occultism, Mesmerism, and all psychical research were to be condemned concidently with Masonry, thus affording opportunity of appealing to the public taste for sensational marvels, while tempting the clergy with ready-made weapons to use against masonry and all psychical phenomena which occur outside the pale of the church.

For this purpose Taxil engaged the assistance of a journalist of literal prejudices, who as doctor on a steamship line had visited India and China in his past days, and seen the usual fakir's tricks exhibited there. He had also witnessed a few spiritualistic table-turning seances in Germany.

This gentleman was a skillful romancer and worked up his own experience together with suggestions from Taxil, embroidered into a mass of second-hand traveler's imaginary tales, the whole being made to serve as works of devilry according to the publishers policy, which certainly proved to be a big financial success.

A leading English occultist stated that the claim attributed to Diana Vaughan in her supposed memoirs, of having been in his house and there copied a set of rituals, was a baseless fabrication. The rituals in question had been cribbed from a Scotch Masonic lodge. Mr. Waite, a well known writer on occultism, exposed the false pretences and ignorance of the subject matter exhibited by the writer in claiming descent for his supposititious heroine from Thomas Vaughan, while falsely identifying that writer with the alchemist Cirenoeus Philalethes. A similar claim of connection with Cardinal Vaughan was also subsequently exposed.

Mr. Jules Baissac, an author of historical works on sorcery, showed that much of the contents had been probably imitated from the "Confessions of Madeleine Bavent," written by an unfortunate nun while imprisoned on a charge of witchcraft, in Rouen, and published in 1652, as also from the "History of the Possession of the Nuns of St. Elizabeth of Louviers." Madeleine Bavent might evidently be considered to be the prototype of Diana Vaughan.

The Bishop of Charleston, consulted by a Paris vicar had replied that he could find no basis for the inferred existence of a center of Lucifer-worship there.

The correspondent managed to discover and interview the traveled Dr. Hacks who had contributed under the signature of Dr. Bataille. Dr. Hacks affirmed that he had been engaged as a journalist. He had only contributed to a part of the first volume and had resigned when he found that the public was taking his nonsensical tales seriously, and that personalities were being entered into. He had always been an out-and-out materialist and an absolute disbeliever in the supernatural. Spiritualism was foolery fit only for weak-minded old maids.

Mr. Gaston Mery, one of the writers on the Paris paper, the "Libre Parole" then took up the quest and exhibited Hacks and Jogand (the originals of Bataille and Taxil) in their true characters in a little pamphlet, "The Truth about Diana Vaughan," published at Blerlots, 35 Quai des Grands Augustins, Paris, in which a series of interviews with Hacks, by different journalists are quoted. Hacks therein callously confesses that the whole enterprise was got up to make money out of the "stupidity of the Catholics, whose silliness is such that they would not now believe that I had bamboozled them, were I to tell them so." He chaffingly referred to his readers as "few thousand imbeciles."

Dr. Hacks had flourished on the enterprise and purchased a restaurant, thus adding variety to his professional occupations, (concerning which a grotesque circular is republished from the "Univers").

The false pretences on which the alleged support of Cardinal Parrochi and Bishop Mc Donald of Edinburg, were based, is exposed.

Meanwhile another of the partners of the band "Margiotta" quarreled with the others and published an exposure in "La France Libre" of Lyons, in which he withdrew the statement he had made previously, that he had met Diana Vaughan at Naples, and affirmed that it is Taxil's wife who is the only Diana Vaughan, as Jogand is Taxil and Hacks was Bataille, Mrs. Jogand had continued to sell her husband's pornographic works all the time that he was mystifying the Catholic world by his "Diable" and "Vaughan" inventions.

The writer in the "Eclair," above referred to, affirms, however, that this is not correct; that he knows the real "Diana Vaughan" is a woman in the pay of Taxil, who acts as his secretary. The fact that the letters addressed to her at her publishers have been replied to from different parts of the world, was a part of the "plant." Taxil himself dictated them and handed them over to an agency in the Passage de l' Opera who make a business of performing that class of service for their patrons. A veiled threat is indeed conveyed to Taxil by the above writer, that it may be to his interest to come forward and expose his own colossal work of humbug as his crowning achievement, as otherwise it may be done for him.

Taxil, however, does not yet think that the time has come for exhibiting his own hand, to judge from an interview which appeared in the "Matin," he still relies on "bluff" and trusts that the public interest in his intrigue has not yet sufficiently collapsed to make exposure pay, as his last card.

CATHOLIC DUPES.

The Catholic authorities have, however, been driven at last by all this press exposure to sift the basis on which this huge monstrosity rests to which they have, alas, too easily and too willingly lent their support. The Catholic papers, the "Univers, reports that at an anti-masonic congress held recently at Trent, Taxil was forced to engage, after much urging, to submit proofs of the existence of Diana Vaughan to Bishop Lazzareschi, under the seal of the confessional, but failed to keep his appointment. A commission was then appointed at Rome, before which he was summoned, but again failed to appear.

He will, however, perhaps be driven, says the writer in the Eclair, to end by exhibiting with a final burst of laughter, the charming secretary, who has written at his dictation, the voluminous correspondence of the Passage de l' Opera, of which the originals addressed to Diana Vaughan are in his hands, however unpleasant that may be to the Abbe' de Bessouces, to Mr. Lautier, to the good Canon Mustel, Bishop Fava, Cardinal Rampolla, and many more, such as Cardinal Parrochi, his secretary Bishop Villars, who, as late as the 19th of October, says the Verite, addressed a fresh letter of encouragement and consolation to "Diana Vaughan."

Paris, France. QUAESTOR VITAE.

The Best. The Rest. The Test.

There are two kinds of sarsaparilla: The best—and the rest. The trouble is they look alike. And when the rest dress like the best who's to tell them apart? Well, "the tree is known by its fruit." That's an old test and a safe one. And the taller the tree the deeper the root. That's another test. What's the root,—the record of these sarsaparillas? The one with the deepest root is Ayer's. The one with the richest fruit: that, too, is Ayer's. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has a record of half a century of cures; a record of many medals and awards—culminating in the medal of the Chicago World's Fair, which, admitting Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best—shut its doors against the rest. That was greater honor than the medal, to be the only Sarsaparilla admitted as an exhibit at the World's Fair. If you want to get the best sarsaparilla of your druggist, here's an infallible rule: Ask for the best and you'll get Ayer's. Ask for Ayer's and you'll get the best.

Soul of Things; or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries.

BY WM. AND ELIZABETH M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text-book, it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this newly-discovered power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make Geology as plain as day, and throw light on all the grand subjects now obscured by time.

Soul of Things—Vol. I. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.
Soul of Things—Vol II. Illustrated. 450 pp. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.
Soul of Things—Vol. III. Illustrated. 362 pp. Cloth .... $1.50 Postage 10 cents.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA, According to Old Records.

BY DR. PAUL CARUS.

A translation from Japanese, made under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was lately published in Japan. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Joys Beyond the Threshold

A SEQUEL TO THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH was writen to develop the idea of the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its reincarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of etherial space. "BEYOND THE THRESHOLD" continues on the same lines, enlarging and expanding the idea by reasons and considerations drawn from science and philosophy; claiming that the certainty of a new birth beyond our earthly end is the best means of arming ourselves against all weakness in the presence of death, and that the help offered by science and philosophy to that end is far superior to that of any of the existing religions. From beginning to end it is interesting, entertaining, instructive and fascinating, and whether one accepts it all or not, much will have been learned and much pleasure enjoyed in its perusal. Price $1.25; For sale at this office.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN —AND— THE CONFESSIONAL.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

This is a most valuable book. It comes from an Ex-Priest, whose character is above reproach, and who knows what he is talking about. Everybody should read it. Price, $1.00. It contains the following chapters:

CHAPTER I. The Struggle before the Surrender of Womanly Self-respect in the Confessional.
CHAPTER II. Auricular Confession a Deep Pit of Perdition for the Priest.
CHAPTER III. The Confessional is the Modern Sodom.
CHAPTER IV. How the Vow of Celibacy of the Priests is made easy by Auricular Confession.
CHAPTER V. The highly-educated and refined Woman in the Confessional—What becomes of her after unconditional surrender—Her Irreparable Ruin.
CHAPTER VI. Auricular Confession destroys all the Sacred Ties of Marriage and Human Society.
CHAPTER VII. Should Auricular Confession be tolerated among Civilized Nations?
CHAPTER VIII. Does Auricular Confession bring Peace to the Soul?
CHAPTER IX. The Dogma of Auricular Confession a Sacrilegious Imposture.
CHAPTER X. God compels the Church of Rome to confess the Abominations of Auricular Confession.
CHAPTER XI. Auricular Confession in Australia, America, and France.
CHAPTER XII. A Chapter for the Consideration of Legislators, Husbands and Fathers—Some of the matters on which the Priest of Rome must Question his Penitent.

Sent Post-paid, Price, $1.00.

VOLNEY'S RUINS —AND— THE LAW OF NATURE,

TO WHICH IS ADDED

Volney's Answer to Dr. Priestly, a Biographical Notice by Count Daru, and the Zodiacal Signs and Constellations by the Editor;

Also, a Map of the Astrological Heavens of the Ancients.

Printed on heavy paper, from new plates, in large, clear type, with portrait and illustrations. One vol., post 8vo, 248 pages; paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

This is undoubtedly one of the best and most useful books ever published. It eloquently advocates the best interests of mankind, and clearly points out the sources of human ignorance and misery. The author is supposed to meet in the ruins of Palmyra an apparition or phantom, which explains the true principles of society, and the causes of both the prosperity and the ruin of ancient states. A general assembly of the nations is at length convened, a legislative body formed, the source and origin of religion, of government, and of laws discussed, and the Law of Nature—founded on justice and equity—is finally proclaimed to an expectant world.

THE EVERLASTING GOSPEL.

A COMPILATION OF THE LECTURES given by the Spirit Band through the mediumship of Mrs. Magdalena Kline. This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems, written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. Their tone is excellent and their spirit good; and even though one may find some ideas that differ from those he has held, yet he will find much to please, benefit and instruct. The reverence with which Jesus is mentioned will please many, although the ideas advanced concerning Jesus and Christianity are not after the orthodox standard. The book contains 488 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

THE VOICES.

By Warren Sumner Barlow. The Voices contain poems of remarkable beauty and force. They are most excellent. Price $1.00.

MARGUERITE HUNTER.

A Narrative Descriptive of Life in the Material and Spiritual Spheres,

Transcribed by a Co-operative Spirit Band, combined with chosen media of earth. It was given through independent slate-writing. The illustrations were given in oil paintings on porcelain plate by Spirit artists. It is not a fiction, but a narrative of real life, without a parallel in the literature of Spiritualism, being a clear and succinct exposition of the philosophy, religion and science of Spiritualism. The book contains 260 pages with six illustrations in half-tone, and twelve pages in original independent writing. It is beautifully bound in blue silk cloth, stamped in silver. Price, $1.25. For sale at this office.

IT IS INTERESTING.

LIFE AND LABOR IN THE SPIRIT-World: Being a description of Localities, Employments, Surroundings, and Conditions in the Spheres. By members of the Spirit-Band of Miss M. T. Shelhamer, medium of the Banner of Light Public Free Circle. Cloth $1.00. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ANTIQUITY UNVEILED.

The Most Important Revelations Concerning the True Origin of Christianity.

Reader, in bringing to your notice ANTIQUITY UNVEILED it is with the sincere hope that you are earnestly looking for the truth, regardless of any other consideration. If such is the case, this advertisement will deeply interest you, and after reading this brief description you will doubtless wish to give the work a careful perusal.

MISS JUDSON'S BOOKS.

WHY SHE BECAME A SPIRITUALIST. 264 pages. One copy, $1; six copies, $5.

FROM NIGHT TO MORN; Or, An Appeal to the Baptist Church. 32 pages. One copy, 15 cents; ten copies, $1.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN TWO WORLDS. 209 pages. One copy, bound in cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this Office, 40 Loomis Street.

HYPNOTISM UP TO DATE

BY SYDNEY FLOWER.

An entertaining manual of hypnotism, useful to students of the subject. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cts. Sold at this office.

WAYSIDE JOTTINGS.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

SOCIAL UPBUILDING,

Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity. By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15c. For sale at this office.

JOAN, THE MEDIUM.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)..... 7.50
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, FEB. 6, 1897.

ON THE LIBERAL PLATFORM.

News from New York represents that Col. Ingersoll has abandoned the practice of law, which was netting him $200,000 a year, and will hereafter devote his entire time to the Liberal platform. He has recovered his health.

IN SPITE OF THE CHURCH.

At a Congress of Religions in session at Aurora a few days ago, Rev. Mr. Gregory, of Chicago, read a paper on "The Working Church." He said the world's manhood had advanced, not on account of the church, but in spite of it. Rev. G. will find he has a large backing among thinkers who fully indorse his position.

WE ARE THE SAINTS.

"The earth is the Lord's, and the inhabitants thereof. The saints shall inherit the earth. We are the saints, therefore the earth is ours. They who are not saints are requested to get up and git." This is said to be the substance of a series of resolutions adopted by the Mormons a few years ago; but is not this the general position of Christians as regards unbelievers?

OPPOSES ARBITRATION.

A labor leader at Cleveland, O., Walter Gillette, has introduced a resolution into the Labor Union opposing the arbitration treaty. He is in favor of war for settling national disputes, because, he alleges, the population is increasing too rapidly, and it should be curtailed in the interest of the survivors. Probably no one will object to Mr. G. taking himself off, to relieve the overburdened population, if he has a desire to retire.

GONE INSANE.

Lewis Olson, of Webster City, Iowa, has been engaged for a long period on a translation of the Bible into English. He had completed 1,300 sheets of closely written manuscript, when he began to show signs of insanity, and was soon after taken to the insane asylum, at Independence, a raving maniac.

The religious microbes swarming in the old book got in their destructive work on the brain just as effectually as though Olson had been reading its bloody pages in pursuit of wisdom.

BELLOWING FOR BLOOD.

It is generally expected the clergy will exhibit more moderation and mercy in dealing with rebels, than will the military; but such is not practical life anywhere. In the war now raging in the Philippine Islands, news comes that "the clergy are for a wholesale massacre of the natives, but the military authorities believe extreme harshness will do more harm than good. The archbishop of Manila thinks rebels taken with arms in their hands should be shot without further ado."

WARNED.

The Pall Mall Gazette, in a long leading article, warns the Roman Catholic church in Canada, that unless it abandons its arrogant assumption of government powers and clerical interference in politics, it will endanger its existence.

The same advice might be extended to all the churches in America. They are largely in the minority, however closely they may combine, and they hold their present position by the sufferance of the people. Instead of trying to run governments, and make everything subordinate to their creeds, they would do well to take warning from the past, and attend strictly to church business.

CHARACTERISTIC.

At Cedar Rapids, Iowa, a union depot of the railroads for passengers, was completed a few days ago. Before opening it to the general public a large number of prominent ladies and gentlemen determined to dedicate it by proper exercises, closing them with a ball, the proceeds of the latter to go to the associated charities of the city. The ministers of sixteen local churches joined in a written protest, giving three astounding reasons why the dance should not go on, the animus appearing in the closing, in words following:

"We protest against the presumption of arranging for such an opening on the night generally conceded to the prayer-meeting without any consultation with those most nearly concerned."

The projected entertainment was abandoned, and the destitute were allowed to freeze and starve, rather than displease the heartless preachers. Had kissing-bees, grab-bags, and auctions of sisters' ankles been on the programme, and the proceeds had gone to liquidate the preachers' salaries, it is not probable any objections would have been made. O, the shameful frauds!

As soon as we have discovered the need for our joys or sorrow we are no longer its serfs, but its lords.—Lowell.

"WHAT GOOD DID THE CRUSADES?"

Noting the demise of Joel T. Headley, the well-known historian and biographer, on the 16th ult., we recalled his story of "The Crusades," published in his "Miscellanies," pages 157–184. Those who have not leisure for more extended reading on the subject will be greatly interested and instructed in its perusal. Mr. Headley was educated for the ministry, and for a period of years occupied a pulpit in Stockbridge, Mass. Whether he became liberalized by knowledge, like thousands of others, and abandoned theology for literature on that account, we do not know; but if he retained faith in the Christian dogmas he did not show it by grossly concealing the facts concerning which he wrote, as is the common practice of the craft when writing of the doings of Christianity. It seems impossible that a person acquainted with the excesses of the system as he presented them in the work mentioned, could have remained an ardent believer in the faith.

Passing many pages of horrors, possibly one paragraph, on pages 177–8, relating to the capture and sacking of Jerusalem, will be all our sensitive readers will care for in a single article. It is the condensation of very many pages of horrible recitals relating to the same event found in larger works. We quote:

"In the taking and sacking of Jerusalem was exhibited another feature in the character of the Crusaders. No mercy was shown, and the infuriated fanatical army fell on the inhabitants in indiscriminate slaughter. The streets of Jerusalem flowed in blood. Ten thousand fled to the Mosque of St. Omar, where they were all butchered. Mutilated carcasses actually floated on the crimson tide that swept the floor. A dismembered arm or leg would drift against a body to which it did not belong, while to render the spectacle still more ghastly, the soldiers waded about in this torrent of human gore, themselves besmeared and stained in every part. This cruelty seems strange to us, but they not only did what they considered their duty, but believed they would meet the displeasure of God if they spared those who had desecrated his city, cast dirt on the cross, butchered his children, and torn down his altars . . . The Christians did precisely what the Israelites had frequently been commanded to do, and the circumstances to them seemed precisely the same, and the will of God just as apparent. On that spot God had ordered his enemies to be slain, and they emulated the example."

A specimen of Jewish barbarity, approved by God, was given in these columns two weeks ago, which may be read as a specimen of the command referred to. On page 182 occurs the following:

"The human blood that single, silent sepulchre set flowing would well nigh have floated the navy of the world. . . . His deserted tomb alone has caused more blood to flow than has all other causes put together during a similar period of time."

Then the inquiry: "What good did the Crusades, to compensate for all this loss of life?" He begins the answer with:

"We know the sufferings they occasioned—we know the Christians in Palestine became by their vices more corrupt than the Saracens—what beneficial result, then, did they accomplish? It is hard to tell."

If called upon to reply in brief, The Progressive Thinker would say, it paved the way to the civilization of Europe; it introduced into the West the learning, the arts and the sciences of the East; it made the people acquainted with Arabian learning and literature, which led to the art of printing, the discovery of a new continent, incited to the Reformation, led up to the modern sciences, and when it shall crush the viper that paralyzed progress for centuries it will make the world fit for man to inhabit.

NOT SUSTAINED BY FACT OR LOGIC.

Rev. Kittredge Wheeler, of the Fourth Baptist Church, this city, discoursed the other evening on the treaty, still pending in the Senate, between the United States and Great Britain, agreeing to submit international disputes to arbitration. He said:

"This diplomatic agreement between the two great nations is an indication that the teachings of Jesus Christ are instilling into the minds of men a true Christian spirit and love of gentleness; that for centuries the nations at regular periods were drenched in blood, and millions of human lives were sacrificed on the field of battle to satisfy the greed and ambition of despots."

Rev. Wheeler should have added to that statement the fact, that the "despots" responsible, for those wars and such a terrible waste of life were Christians, practically carrying out the "teachings of Jesus" as they understood them.

The farther we get away from Christianity and discard the religion of hate, the greater the prospects of an era of perfect peace. The fly on the locomotive rejoicing at its ability to move the ponderous train that follows, is the position of the church and its pretended founder. It claims everything; it does nothing towards producing the grand result. It is advancing knowledge—true science—which is harnessed to the car of progress and is pulling it onward with such rapid advance. Christianity and its errors have been its principal burden, while its devotees have been deranging its machinery, and extremely active in digging pitfalls for its destruction.

The history of the world for the last fifteen hundred years is a sanguinary one. Its every page is black with crime, and is crimsoned with human gore. Trace the origin of all the wars which have desolated this fair earth during that period, and it will be found that every one of them had its root in Christians warring against Christians, else in Christians propagating their creeds against unbelievers. Jesus himself is reported to have said, Matt. x:34:

"Think not that I came to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace, but a sword."

Most faithfully has his mission been fulfilled, and it is an insult to human intelligence to intimate to the contrary. If all the bloody sayings of Jesus, frequently quoted in these columns, could be eliminated from the Bible, and the Christians of to-day would belie their action, cease to be oppressors and tyrants, abandon their attempts at usurpation of the rights of others, and their claims to superior goodness, then some credence may be given to Rev. Wheeler's claim that "ours is an era of peace and Christian love;" until then such baseless assumption must pass for bunkum, otherwise Christian rot, sustained by neither fact nor logic.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH OUTDONE.

In one of Rev. Vrooman's discourses some time ago he said: "It is the pulpit that is crying out 'What must I do to be saved.'" The pithy remark was called to mind as we read a few days ago an editorial from the pen of Rev. A. T. Pierson, in the "Missionary Review of the World," for January, 1897, which is under his management. The article is lengthy, else it would be transferred entire to our columns. As it is we are sure our readers will be glad to see extended extracts. He says:

"Without claiming any undue capacity for observation, sagacity in discernment, or accuracy in judgment and induction, the calm conclusion reached after thirty years of study of this theme, and of active participation in the actual machinery of missionary enterprise, is, that at no time during the half century now closing have missions to the heathens been at greater peril of utter collapse! Wide doors are open, immense fields invite, some soil calls for the sower, while harvests demand the reaper; we never knew so well how much territory there is to be possessed and how deep is the need of mankind; never had the church such opportunities and facilities; never such large numbers and wealth at her disposal; and yet, with doors open wider than ever, and candidates offering in unprecedented numbers, the giving of the people of God is so utterly inadequate and disgracefully disproportionate, that where every divine sign of the times is a call for rapid advance and expansion, our drums beat a retreat, and our missionary boards loudly call for retrenchment!

"And—what is, to our view, most fraught with risk—there is a growing apathy about the whole question of world's evangelization, which seems to argue a decay at the very root of missionary enterprise. The causes of this we cannot for ourselves either doubt or deny. On one hand there is a laxity of doctrine, which, at least, leads disciples to indulge a vague 'eternal hope,' like Dean Farrar, that the heathen are not really lost without Christ; and on the other hand, there is a laxity in practice which leads to a practical recognition of all religions as belonging to a universal brotherhood of faiths, and to the fellowships of their representatives as entitled to our 'Christian charity,' forgetful of the famous proverb quoted by Dr. John Ryland to Robert Hall, that 'charity is an angel while she rejoiceth in the truth, but a harlot when she rejoiceth in iniquity,' embracing those whom she should rather pity and weep over."

The Doctor was generous. He told his readers why things were thusly, and we must all drop a few sympathetic tears with him, for it is evident he told the truth. We quote him again:

"Look at the church pervaded by sectarianism, sacramentalism, ritualism, and Romanism, and an even more fatal secularism. Behold the awful lack of Gospel preaching, the reckless extravagance that reigns and practical denial of stewardship, the low level of piety, the prevalence of prayerlessness, and the encroachments of virtual infidelity. See the church confronting the world with its more than a thousand million unconverted souls, scattered over a wide unevangelized territory, with its unoccupied and neglected fields continental in breadth; yet unable to grapple with the awful problems of society, conscious of a widening gap of gulf, while the intemperance, licentiousness, and anarchy of society takes on a more and more revolutionary aspect."

Then the learned divine comes to the mournful conclusion that "vital godliness has been suffered to decay," causing all these evils, and he advises as a remedy:

"Restore the Word of God to its supreme place as the inspired, infallible testimony of God; urge with new energy the personality of the Holy Ghost, the indispensableness of Christ to human salvation, the universal priesthood of believers, the call to separation and self-denial, and the neglected hope of the Lord's coming."

Is it not a fact that the world has already had a surfeit of Dr. Pierson's remedies? And is not that the reason Christianity is experiencing an ebb tide at this time?

NOTICE TO OHIO SECRETARIES.

If the secretary of every Spiritualist society in the State of Ohio will send us the names of the officers of their society, together with the names of two or three of the most active and spiritual-minded members, they will receive in return some important information and good news. Please attend to this at once, and address "Committee," care of The Progressive Thinker, Chicago, Ill.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

"History of the Inquisition." Every citizen of our country should read this concise history of that Romish churchly institution known as the Inquisition. The animus of Romanism against all institutions, beliefs and parties not in conformity with the ruling powers of the Romish hierarchy is plainly shown in these statements of veritable history. The devilishness and murderous malignity of the "Holy Inquisition" is scarcely paralleled in all the world's records of inhuman atrocities. It is for sale at this office, and will be mailed postpaid for 25 cents.

"The Dead Man's Message," an occult romance by Florence Marryat. The author's wide experience in Spiritualism and her study of occult science have prepared her to write this romance, which will be found laden with gems picked up in the course of her investigation and studies. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

"Mahomet, the Illustrious." By Godfrey Higgins, Esq. (Library of Liberal Classics.) No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbons' work. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

A CRITICAL MIND.

Abstruse Questions Carefully Considered.

A SUBJECT THAT SHOULD BE THOUGHTFULLY STUDIED BY EVERY CRITICAL MIND—WHAT IS THE EXACT STATUS OF LIGHT, SOUND, HEAT, AND OTHER VIBRATORY FORCES.

In The Progressive Thinker of January 2, one of your able contributors, in reply to an inquirer, says:

"It has been a favorite pastime for philosophers who enjoy intellectual combat and acrobatic performance on a trapeze of words, by the hocus-pocus of stilted phrases and legerdemain of logic to rule the external universe out of existence and leave only consciousness. Hence the conclusion—no ear, no sound; no eye, no light. The absurdity of all this is apparent if nature is directly appealed to.

"For countless ages before man came on this earth; before even there were sentient beings, the light and heat of the sun bathed its surface. The remains of plants testify to this. It was because of light that the eye was created. Light was its creating force. When the light is withdrawn the visual organs disappear—as in cave fishes. It would be as pertinent to assert that the presence or absence of light depends on the fishes inhabiting such caves having eyes or being destitute of those organs as to say that the existence of light in the world depends on men having eyes. The same may be said of the ear and sound.

"If every form of life were dead and the earth turned as barren a sphere to the sun as the moon presents, yet would the sun shine and the air would pulsate with sound. Niagara would not cease its roar because there was no one to listen."

I am not among those who "rule the external universe out of existence and leave only consciousness," but I strongly concur in the conclusion of science—"no ear, no sound; no eye, no light."

Aerial vibrations communicated to the acoustic nerve give rise to the sensation known as sound. Without a nerve of hearing there can be no sound; for sound is a sensible phenomenon, and not something external to the ear. Of course the air vibrates whether there is present any living organism or not; the aerial vibrations "lash the ocean into fury," and blow down buildings as well as co-operate with the soil in causing the growth of vegetation; but sound is a sensation, which requires not only the objective factor, vibrations of air, but the subjective factor, also, consciousness, which is somehow affected by the vibrations through the nerve of hearing.

Just as there is no fragrance in the rose, the word standing only for the sensations produced in us through the sense of smell by an object the ultimate nature of which is inaccessible to us, so there is no sound in a ringing bell except as the waves of the air externally produced excite the auditory nerve and cause the sensation which we call sound. There is no musical quality in a violin, but one who feels "the concord of sweet sounds" can play on the violin in a way that, through the sense of hearing, will arouse "music in the soul."

So with light (or luminousness) which is psychical, not physical, which is a sensation produced by the action of waves of ether upon the retina and fibers of the optic nerve. This sensation may also be produced by a blow, or by electricity, which singularly enough, while it causes luminous phenomena through the eye, brought in contact with other parts, gives rise to quite different sensations—sounds in the ear, taste in the mouth, tickling in the tactile nerves.

We know that different colors depend upon the particular velocities of the waves of ether, gathered together by the optical apparatus of the eye, and which impinge upon the retina, affecting the optic nerve and giving rise to what appears objectively as colors—blue green, violet, etc.—but which are sensations or conscious states. In some persons, vibrations as different in velocity as those which commonly cause redness and greeness, awaken identical sensations.

As some animals are sensitive to motions of the air which to human ears produce no sound whatever, so do the eyes of some creatures respond to vibrations of ether which are below or above the luminous limits of the human eye. If a creature can see in the dark—where it is dark to the human eyes—the auditory nerve of that creature is affected by ethereal vibrations to which the human eye does not respond. It is luminous for that creature when it is dark for man, because luminousness is a sensation and not an objective thing.

Heat too is a sensation. The word heat indicates how our body or anything external to us feels—how it affects our consciousness. Conceived objectively it is not a sensation, but a mode of motion, which is only one of the factors necessary to produce heat, in fact.

Vibrations of air and ether existed millions of years before there was eye or ear on this globe, and they were external factors in developing these important organs, but only as the auditory nerve was evolved was there sound; only as the optical apparatus was evolved was there luminousness; only as the sense of smell was evolved was there fragrance. Pulsations of air do not constitute sound, undulations of ether do not constitute luminousness, emanation of particles from a flower do not constitute fragrance. The vibrations of air is one of the factors in producing sounds; the ethereal vibrations are essential to sight and in their absence the eye and optic nerve in time become functionless and disappear, as in the case of the cave fish; the presence of material particles in the air is necessary to excite the sense of smell; if all animals were destroyed the vibrations of air and ether would continue to affect vegetation; if all vegetal life were also extinct, these vibrations would continue to affect the earth, producing innumerable changes on sea and land; but without consciousness and the organs through which it is differentiated in feeling—there would be no sound and no hearing, no luminousness and no seeing, no fragrance and no smelling, etc.

So certain is it that light is a psychical and not a physical phenomenon that Professor Newcomb not long ago made the proposition to abolish the word light from the terminology of physical science.

The contributor alluded to, will, I am sure, pardon me for taking exceptions to his criticisms of a scientific position which I regard as impregnable and which I have held for many years.

B. F. UNDERWOOD.

2653 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

BEETHOVEN CASTLE.

THE HYDRA-HEADED MONSTER.

Time passed on; it was spent by us in visiting homes and institutions of wisdom and love erected by angels who were far wiser than we had yet become, knowing that we could thus spend an eternity. Whenever we obtained some priceless new jewel of truth we returned to the earth on which we had once lived, or to the spiritual spheres, to present it in all its beauty to those whom it would benefit most; and whenever we desired or were weary we rested quietly within some one of our angelic abodes—for now we had many instead of one—and by the conjoining of love and wisdom we were soon refreshed ready and eager for work—God's work, if thus you would like us to term it.

We worked together for wisdom and love, taking long journeys to find and gather new and priceless jewels of truth.

About this period of our existence, as we were continually visiting earth, we found among other things a great error springing up, that threatened to become a hydra-headed monster. It grew with the rapidity of a mushroom, and was as hollow, false, and worthless: its heart was black, and whoever touched it became soiled and hopeless, poisoned to the core by its bitter loathsomeness; and this great, hydra-headed monster was called reincarnation.

Now as we knew this huge beast to be a cruel error, not fit to live and breathe its loathsome breath over the earth, we desired to kill or eradicate it from off the face of the earth. There were also many within the spiritual spheres who still imbibed from the breath of the loathsome creature, and, instead of striving for angelhood, contented themselves by idly meandering about, waiting for their expected reincarnation, attaching themselves to some weakened intellect yet within a material form, mingling as much as possible with such persons and by their worthless and foolish influence trying to make them believe in the fearful error, reincarnation.

Mary and I had been within the heavens for a half century or more, and many of these years had been spent as spirits within the spiritual spheres. We had now been an angel very many years, had visited other angels who were far wiser than we were, had also visited angels who had dwelt within the heavens for thousands of years, and not one of all the angels whom we had seen or visited believed, or had ever known of such a thing as reincarnation; that is, they had not known of any spirit who had entered another human material body, or another animal material body; neither had they ever known of an angel or spirit entering the body of any creature, either human or animal, on any other earths, except as the spirits might for a time attach themselves to some weak one of earth, as a parasite, mingling with such other weak one for their own selfish gratification. But it should be remembered that even this error cannot continue a very great length of time, for one or the other must succumb; that is, the one in the earthly form must be drawn into the spiritual life or the ignorant spirit must become wiser and consequently withdraw from the weak one of earth.

As we have before stated, Mary and I desired to be one of many angels who wished to destroy this great error; but in order to do so we must make ourselves thoroughly acquainted with a great natural law, for, be sure, a law exists by which this horrible monster may be entirely destroyed; and this great law is eternal progression; forever upward and onward in a spiral circle, from the invisible spiritual germ to so far as archangels and God angels. Beyond this there are, probably, higher regions; of these we know not as yet, and countless ages must pass before we can know, but this we do affirm, that an arch or a God angel cannot by any possible means ever return and become an invisible spiritual germ. The error has crept into the world because people ignorantly suppose that their spirits existed as spiritual entities before entering the earthly form. This is true in one sense and not in another.

A soul does not exist as a germ of that which is to be, an invisible, undeveloped, germinal point, holding within itself the possibilities of growth, development and eternal progression. This is also true of all existing forms upon the earth, even to the minutest blade of grass, moss or fern. The earths can produce no more than the everlasting heavens need, and no spiritual form ever retrogrades; all germs are absolutely true to themselves; they can never become any but themselves; and as each germ develops it attracts to itself material clothing. No two germs are exactly alike.

Why should man think that the great germinal law differs with him? All things else spring forth from germs, and does not man know that he also positively springs from a germ? and has not the germ life before entering his form? Is man not aware that he breathes in the invisible spiritual germ from the air? if not, he had better consult a well-read physician, who, if he is disposed, will inform him of the well known fact, and he would also be able to show him the germ, after it had received its first material clothing, under the microscope: but the little wriggling, crawling, spermatozoa never in all the ages of the past has been an intelligent spiritual being; it never has been anything but the invisible, spiritual germ of that which it will be in future ages and after being developed or even partially so it can never return to its former condition; its very development would forever preclude it. All life commences from its own particular germ, which can never be any other than itself.

A perfect spiritual germ, previous to its separation into halves, is a pellucid globe, containing the male and female as one undivided whole or perfect germ. This condition, be it understood, is previous to its incarnation, for when these germs are breathed in, all excepting those which take root and develop are again expelled, either through the lungs or the pores of the skin. This applies to all breathing animals as well as man. All developed females, together with undeveloped males and females, have not the power of the positive male to retain and make use of any of these germs, but they are expelled with the breath or through the pores, uninjured, whole and perfect as at first, not finding the proper element in which to take on their first clothing; this, alone, is found within the adult male—it is the element which constitutes a male, the positive male element; this alone holds the germ or furnishes the proper pabulum in which it can take root; here, also, within the blood of the male or father is the perfect or whole germ separated into halves, the male half endeavoring to take root or clothe itself first.

This, if there were no failures, would be the true law; the female half now becoming an oblong globe instead of a perfectly rounded one, is expelled with the breath or through the pores of the body; but there are many, very many failures, even after the law has reached this point, consequently there are millions of oblong or half globes, these remaining nearer the earth, also more easily attracted, are immediately incarnated. If there were not a law by which these perfect globes were separated, propagation would be at an end so far as man is concerned, for the male and female principle must be separated that there may be fathers and mothers each doing their work toward the development of human beings, spirits and angels.

About this time many spirits and angels became aware that there was about to join their ranks within the spheres a woman who had nearly all her life on earth been fostering and promulgating this hideous monster, reincarnation. The woman had been sincere and exceedingly earnest, and held this horrible dogma somewhat as a mother holds a monstrously deformed child, trying to deceive herself into the belief that the child is in many respects beautiful. This woman being large and naturally strong, disappointed and deeply wronged by a fearfully unnatural and ignorant so-called marriage, which was as horrible and fearfully erroneous as her present belief, having been united to a man old enough to be her father or grandfather as for that matter, and whose intellect had been perverted in consequence, also having lived among a lower type of mankind and from thence imbibed much error—being naturally strong, as we before said, more than one unhappy, unprogressed spirit who had been formerly Buddhists born and bred had attached themselves to her for seasons at a time, until, at length, these parasites had sapped her vitality, and in consequence she was now about to enter the spiritual spheres.

Mary and I greatly desired to visit this woman shortly after she had entered the realm of spirits, and so, not many days thereafter, we did so: and now, dear reader, where do you think we found her? Out on a crocodile flat, among crocodiles and hippopotami!—because of the perversion of her mind, she had gravitated to this flat. She happened at this particular time, to be alone, and we will describe her as she then appeared. Her former parasites had dropped away one by one, for they could no longer conceal their distorted forms and features; thus she stood alone, out on a crocodile flat—a large, grand, wildly-sorrowful-eyed woman; her long, thick hair streaming about her nearly to her feet; her bare feet almost out of sight in the oozy mud. Her dress was dark and trailed around her in tattered ribbons; her large, bare, rounded arms, were stretched forth imploringly. Ah! how well we knew that here was the half of that which would, at length, be a glorious angel, and within one of those outstretched palms we should leave a few jewels of truth; perhaps lead her off these flats entirely.

As we approached we heard her say, in a loud voice and authoritative manner:

"Crocodile, or hippopotamus, if my spirit is destined to enter any one of your bodies, I pray it may be now; for I am tired of standing here waiting such an event. This mud is cold, and my feet are sinking deeper every moment—then let me be reincarnated now—now! I say! for I am convinced that by will-power alone it can be done, as I have been standing here two or three days, at least, and nothing resulting therefrom. O! Hippopotami! you seem to be contented and happy in your estate, while I am wretched and despairing beyond words. If I were to become like one of you, I too should be contented and happy as you are; therefore, may I be relieved of my sorrow and despair."

Then she turned slowly about, with her arms outstretched as though she would invite the right one to come to her.

Now the crocodile and the hippopotami, instead of approaching her, receded farther and farther away, not having much affinity with the spirits of human beings, and none approached her. As we drew nearer they all receded until nearly out of sight.

On perceiving us she looked ashamed and affrighted, and, with one hand essayed to gather her tattered robes about her; she tried to disengage her feet from the mud, but the task was more difficult than she thought.

"Pray, allow us to assist you," we said, going nearer to take her disengaged hand; but she refused our assistance, raising her hand aloft:

"No!" she said, "you shall not hold me from the fate which I know awaits me."

"Then madame," we said, "pray tell us what that fate may be, and, also, how you know that it awaits you."

"Have I not nearly all my life taught, reasoned and firmly believed in the truth of reincarnation? and has it not been revealed to me that I am to take on the body of a hippopotamus? Have I not thoroughly studied all the lore of India? and certainly the Buddhists are very nearly right: I must be reincarnated and reincarnated, again and again, before I am forever swallowed up within the great I Am. Ah! you may be some wicked astral shells for aught I know."

"Well," we replied, "if you can find a crocodile, or hippopotamus, within whose body you can incarnate yourself, you are at liberty to do so if you like. If you were still in the form, some one of them might, through hunger, take your material body in and digest it with much satisfaction, but your spirit would stand, as it stands now, disengaged therefrom; they have not the power to digest a spirit, and can in no way assimilate it; moreover, your form differs so materially from theirs that we fear you would be at a loss and could not adapt yourself to them."

"Pray, madame, get down on all fours and let us see if you can in any way imitate their movements or make yourself look in the least like them. If you are thus able to deceive us, so that we mistake you for a hippopotamus, perhaps we may be led to believe in reincarnation. You understand our meaning, madam. The hippopotamus, surely, cannot. We might talk to them for hours at a time, yet they would be no wiser. Madam, the distance between the hippopotamus and the human spirit is so great that they cannot even divine each other. Millions of ages range between the hippopotamus and the human spirit. A human spirit cannot retrograde, no, not so much as an inch. It will take the hippopotamus countless ages to reach the human altitude; therefore, madam, how is it possible for you to enter the body of one, or any other beast, bird or fish? how is it possible, may we ask, for you to become any other than yourself? Please take my hand and allow me to lead you to higher ground; this mud is not becoming to your beautiful feet; these rags do not look well on that grand, rounded form; those great, wild, sorrowful eyes, would be far more beautiful and attractive if they were lighted by hope and joy; yet, wild and sorrowful as they are, they could never become dull, brutal and stupid, like the hippopotamus, nor even shining and evil like the crocodile; that mouth and those teeth were never intended to gnaw coarse grasses and seaweed—and, surely, madam, you would find it hard to swallow a human being whole or even take one in halves—really, we do not know what you would do with your long, beautiful hair, for a spirit cannot divest itself of its hair. Perhaps, madam, if you succeed in entering the body of a crocodile or hippopotamus, you can keep your human head out of its mouth, and then we should behold the strange sight of a beautiful woman's head, with its long hair and sorrowful, intelligent eyes, protruding from the body of the hippopotamus, or the crocodile, as it may happen to be; this would affright their comrades, no doubt, and I greatly fear the unfortunate creature would immediately cast you forth, in its haste to join its mates."

For once the madam's eyes took on a laughing expression which changed her wonderfully.

"Am I not as large and ungainly as a hippopotamus?" she asked.

"Your form is large and grand," we replied: "would you have it otherwise?"

"Yes," she answered. "I have been ashamed of it all my life. Poor, ungainly wretch that I was! My chairs, even, were made to order!"

"Well, madam, there is plenty of room in this world which will offset your grand proportions wonderfully; and when that intelligent face is lighted by wisdom and love, no more beautiful spirit will be seen. Please, now, to follow us out of this swamp; for we can no longer stay."

Mary clasped one of her hands and I clasped the other; we then gently drew her out of the mire of reincarnation and carried her to higher ground where she was joined by a band of progressed spirits; her features had lost much of their wild, sorrowful expression; and we thus left her. We have often seen and heard from her since. When she becomes an angel, as she shortly must, her mission, for a time at least, will be to undo the wrong which she did to mankind through her teachings and writings.

We would here like to have it distinctly understood that man's spirit never came up through the brute creation: by the great law of evolution the form of his body did—that is, the material form—but the invisible, spiritual germs are always true to themselves, and the spiritual germ of a man never resided within a brute, and the germ of each person was never incarnated until it was evolved from the womb of the mother, and breathed in, with the atmosphere, by the father, and was the germ of precisely whatever was to be developed—that is to say, Mr. G. was the undeveloped germ of Mr. G. from forever, waiting as the undeveloped germ to at length be developed into Mr. G., and it never was anybody else, and never can be throughout eternity but Mr. G., developed into the spirit and angel; so of all things else whatsoever; nothing ever loses its identity. A drop of water may be swallowed in the ocean, but it forever remains the identical drop; of course we mean when it has been divided to the last division possible, or left as the primitive atom.

Spiritual germs admit of no division, except the dividing of the male and female principles, for the short period of earth-life, and sometimes a period of time within the spiritual world, until their wisdom is sufficient to enable them to recognize and be joined to each other, as they were joined in the beginning when the spiritual germ was round, perfect, and undivided.

(To be Continued.)

A MEDIUM IN NEED.

To the many readers of The Prgressive Thinker: Through the kindness of this widely circulated paper I wish to ask again for the aid from Spiritualists and friends of humanity. We are in sore need and distress, my Brother Chester, Sister Carrie and I. To those who so kindly aided us in the past in response to our call in The Progressive Thinker, we return our thanks. We feel grateful to them indeed. May blessings be showered upon them!

We have worked freely and faithfully in the field of Spiritualism the greater part of our lives; but how we are in our declining years, and ailing and in need, and we ask help from our kind sisters and brothers.

I will still do all I can as a medium. Those who may wish for a message or answers to questions through my psychic powers, will please send letter with one dollar enclosed to me, and I will sit and try for them.

MISS LUCY MYER.

Waynesville, Ohio.

LETTER FROM AN OLD WORKER.

To the Editor:—Your highly educational journal continues to present to its readers important facts and philosophy of Spiritualism. The republishing of the demonstrations and experiences of Dr. Robert Hare, revised by him, I consider a wise act of yours. I had the good fortune to meet the Doctor at a convention of reformers held in Rutland, Vt., August, 1856, and also Miss Helen Temple, now Mrs. Brigham, and many other pioneer reformers. I accompanied Dr. Hare to Boston and either the autumn following or 1857, I met Mrs. Gourley, one of the mediums with whom he made such successful experiments, she having one of his scientifically arranged tables, I received overwhelming testimony of the ability of spirits returning and communicating with mortals. I at that time resided at Grand Rapids and Ionia, Mich. May your journal continue to spread the glorious truth far and wide.

Our newly organized society and Children's Lyceum at Yonkers is progressing finely. Mrs Tillie U. Reynolds, of Troy, N. Y., and her friend Mrs. W. H. Brower, made us a very acceptable visit recently. Mrs. Reynold's lecture and psychometric readings were very satisfactory to all. The Children's Progressive Lyceum movement was commenced by A. J. Davis, the 25th of January, 1863.

To-day, January 24, 1897, our lyceum celebrates the 34th anniversary of this important event.

TITUS MERRITT,
Secretary Yonkers Spiritualist Society and Lyceum.

SPIRITUALISM SCIENTIFICALLY DEMONSTRATED.

BY PROF. ROBERT HARE.

His Remarkable Researches Made in the Early Years of Spiritualism.

Directly Edited and Revised by Him, Now in Spirit-Life.

CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE OF THE EXISTENCE OF SPIRITS.

The evidence of the manifestations adduced in the foregoing narrative does not rest upon myself only, since there have been persons present when they were observed, and they have in my presence been repeated essentially under various modifications, in many instances, not especially alluded to.

The evidence may be contemplated under various phases: First, those in which rappings or other noises have been made, which could not be traced to any mortal agency; secondly, those in which sounds were so made as to indicate letters forming grammatical, well-spelt sentences, affording proof that they were under the guidance of some rational being; thirdly, those in which the nature of the communication has been such as to prove that the being causing them must, agreeably to accompanying allegations, be some known acquaintance, friend, or relative of the inquirer.

Again, cases in which movements have been made of ponderable bodies, either without any human contact, or with such contact as could not be productive of the resulting motion.

Cases in which such movements of bodies have been of a nature to produce intellectual communications, resembling those obtained as above mentioned by sounds.

Although the apparatus by which these various proofs were attained, with the greatest possible precaution and precision, modified them as to the manner; essentially all the evidence which I have obtained, tending to the conclusions above mentioned, has likewise been substantially obtained by a great number of observers. Many who never sought any spiritual communication, and have not been induced to enroll themselves as Spiritualists, will nevertheless not only affirm the existence of the sounds and movements, but also admit their inscrutability.

But we have now, in a matter-of-fact, business-like publication, by E. W. Capron, a record of the original manifestations at Hydesville and Rochester, in New York; where, as it is well known, they produced intense interest, excitement, and controversy, which gave rise to successive town-meetings, and the appointment of committees by these meetings for the purpose of ascertaining whether any other cause could be discovered for the manifestations, except the spiritual beings who assumed them to be their doings. Some of the persons appointed to make the investigation, were prepossessed with the belief that the phenomena were due to some juggling contrivance. One alleged that he would throw himself over the Genesee Falls, or prove the knockings due to humbuggery. Another alleged that the media, aware of his prepossession, would not for one hundred dollars have him on the committee; yet both these persons being put on the committee, the latter came out in favor of the inscrutability of the noise; while the former neither accounted for it, "nor threw himself over the falls," as Mr. Capron pointedly alleges.

Subsequently, in the city of New York, the mystery was subjected to the ordeal of a public investigation by a number of distinguished citizens, whose reports confirmed those of the Rochester committees. Fenimore Cooper was among those appointed on the New York committee, and was the means himself of obtaining an unequivocal test. His sister's death, which had resulted from being thrown from a horse, was correctly stated by her spirit in every particular, in reply to mental inquiries by him made.

Again at Stratford, Connecticut, at a house of a minister of the gospel, manifestations were made fully as striking as those which had occurred at Hydesville and Rochester, so as to establish in the mind of this estimable clergyman, and in those of many others acquainted with the facts, a belief in spiritual agency (1667).

CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE BY THE REV. ALLEN PUTNAM, OF ROXBURY, MASS.

As affording support to the testimony which I have given, I deem it expedient to cite that of the Rev. Allen Putnam, formerly a Unitarian clergyman and preacher in Augusta, Maine, having been in the legislature of that State, and for some time editor of the New England Farmer. Mr. Putnam had the advantage of a theological and collegiate education at Havard. I heard an able and erudite lecture from this worthy Spiritualist, at Boston last October.

Mr. Putnam entered upon the investigation of the manifestations in July, 1852, nearly eighteen months before my investigation commenced. Like me, he began as an unbeliever, and was converted by communications received from the spirits of his wife and relatives, who had left this life. In a company ignorant of the fact that he had married twice, his first wife had made herself known to him, so as to create a conviction of her identity.

In the next place his ancestors communicated with Mr. Putnam, so as to satisfy his mind that they were the beings they professed to be. I do not enter into the detail of the facts which created conviction in the mind of this respectable observer; my object is to show that other minds have gone through the process which has influenced mine, in order that skeptics may not "lay the flattering unction to their souls" that 'tis my madness speaks in favor, not their prejudices that speak against, the conclusions in which investigators of sound understanding have concurred.

Mr. Putnam alleges: "Some uncommon movements have occurred in my presence. I have seen a table moved without any visible power applied to it."

The following narrative is taken from the pamphlet published by the author in question. It is quite characteristic of the variety of character found in the spheres. This juvenile spirit owed his education entirely to his schooling in the spirit world.

"Entering a medium's room one morning, I saw a gentlemanly, intelligent man, apparently about thirty, sitting at the table and putting questions. Soon a tiny rap was heard, and the name Natty was spelled out. 'Who are you?' said the man. 'I am your brother;' was the answer. 'No,' said the man, 'I had no such brother.' 'You had,' said the rapper. 'No,' said the man. 'Yes,' said the other. 'Well, let us see,' added the man. 'How old were you, Natty, when you died?' 'Five days,' was the answer. 'How long since you die?' 'Thirty-five years.' The gentleman here bit his lip in thought, and said—'I believe there was an infant brother who died before I was born, but I thought they called him Oliver.' 'No,' was the response, 'they called him Natty, and I am he.' 'Natty,' said the man, 'how do you know that I am your brother?' 'By love,' he answered. 'By love?' said the questioner; 'but don't you love others as well as relatives?' Ans. 'We like others, and love relatives!' 'What,' it was then asked—'what is the difference between love and like?' The word LOVE was immediately written in large letters, two or three inches long, and like was traced under it in very small letters. 'Natty,' continued the man, 'you are not my brother, but are some one else, attempting to impose upon me.' 'I am your brother,' was the earnest rejoinder. 'Then, will you tell me what sphere you are in?' 'The fourth,' he said. 'The fourth, ah? Now I've caught you—for as you died in infancy, you was fitted for the seventh sphere when you left the earth.' 'I have been there;' was the response. 'Have been there, and yet are now in the fourth! how is that? are you movingbackward? coming down?' 'No, I am an adviser in the fourth.' 'Adviser! what is that? a sort of superintendent?' 'Yes.' 'Oh! you are in office, then?' 'Yes.' 'Do you get any pay? We pay well for such things here.' 'Yes, I get pay.' 'What pay?' 'The pleasure of seeing those under me progress.'

"I then said to the gentleman stranger, 'Sir, you have found your match, if not your brother. I think I would own the relationship;' and in continuance I remarked, that this seemed to be a very bright, cheerful spirit; when there was written—'I am always laughing.'

"My next remark was—'Natty, I should like to make your acquaintance.' 'Hand out your card;' was the instant response. Finding no card in my pocket. I wrote, secretly, on a slip of paper—'Mr. Allen Putnam, Eustis St., Roxbury'—turned the paper over, placing the writing down upon the table, kept my hand over the paper, and asked Natty to make a copy. Instantly the medium's hand wrote—Mr. A. P., U. St. Rox. The writing on my paper had been seen by me alone, and I was looking for a copy in full, but received only abbreviations, and those of every word, Eustis being reduced to the letter U. This closed my first interview with him.

"Some weeks afterward, when he was forgotten, the medium's hand wrote, 'Mr. A. P., U. St Rox.—I have used your card.' 'Natty,' said I, 'as you left the earth when very young, I would like to know how you learned the English language.' He answered, 'My mother knew it, I think;' and asked, 'Will you let my mamma come?' 'Certainly, with pleasure.' And the following was written:

"'My friend, you must not be angry with my darling boy. It oftimes grieves me to have him, so pure, use such wild phrases. I am your friend, as a soldier in the cause.

'ELIZABETH Y——.'

"Very often this little bright spark comes out with something unexpected, amusing, or witty; but at all times he manifests a very marked disposition to be obliging and kind. Once, when his communication seemed to be closed, I said, 'You are not going, Natty?' 'Yes—gone—don't you see the dust fly?' 'Where,' I asked, 'do you pick up such phrases?' 'Hear 'um.'

"On another occasion he said, 'My friend, you must not put on a long face when you come to talk with supposed ghosts. You must not believe all they tell you to. You must not go to the end of the world and jump off, because they tell you to.'

"When once I said to him, 'How do you go to work, Natty, to use a medium's hand?' He said, 'Why, you see, we just passes a chain of light around the wrist, and that sets it to shaking. The next operation is to make it write, of course. Sometimes the words are allowed to pass through the brains. We now have such a power over this medium, that we can make her shake awfully.' 'Try my wrist, Natty,' said a lady who was present. 'Dear, beloved aunty, I've got a peck of love for you, but I can't make you trace my purified thoughts on the clean paper.'"

For those who endeavor to get rid of the evidence of respectable witnesses, such as Mr. Putnam, by representing them as dupes, and the media as imposters, it may be well to quote the following passage from the same publication:

"Within the last fourteen months I have seen twenty-two or three different mediums—all but four of them private ones—taking no pecuniary compensation; and more than half of them are our own citizens, several of whom are now present in this assembly. I have spent very many hours in their presence. Have seen them at their homes—at my own home—and in the parlors of neighbors and friends. I have met and watched them in the broadest sunlight and at evening. Every desirable opportunity has been furnished me for detecting machinery, jugglery, or imposture, and I have faithfully, but in vain, strove to find something mundane a sufficient cause for all these wonders. That trick or humbug is sometimes attempted by pretenders to uncommon susceptibilities, no one will have a wish to deny. But very many mediums, private ones, are as much above these things as are the very best persons among the witnesses.

"One medium, an active, energetic business man, of more than sixty years, has submitted himself to be used by me at any time, however suddenly called upon, whether in his counting-room or in mine—whether called in his shirt sleeves from the woodpile, or coalbin, or dressed up and ready for company; and I have used him and watched him daily almost, and that through several successive months. Many mediums have been watched for long periods, and under quite varied circumstances; and, though the power exerted through any of them is very far from being uniform, and though the mode of manifestation is in no two alike, yet I have seen no sign of its being anywhere applied by machinery; or of its being varied by any preparation or act of the mediums themselves.

"They deny, one and all, young or old, educated and ignorant alike—they all deny, and that, too, in the most private and friendly circles, where all the thoughts flow out—they all deny that they exercise their wills at all in the production of these wonders. And I cannot rate that fairness very high which, in the face of such a fact, will persist in saying that all of it is trick, imposture, humbug. More than one hundred thousand witnesses have looked on, and yet are unable to prove to any extent the cheats alleged. More than five thousand mediums in this country unitedly and pesistently declare that they use no machinery and practice no trick."

This charge is utterly futile when we see persons in affluence converted by their own mediumship, as in the case of two of my most esteemed friends.

My conversion was effected before I attended any public medium. To the ladies by whom it was effected my requisitions could only have been onerous, had not the desire for truth to oblige me been a strong motive for the pains which they were made to take.

It does not seem sufficiently understood by those who object to Spiritualism, upon the ground of the inconsistency of the opinions given by spirits, that our next state of existence is one of progression, and that we go there with all our imperfections, which are removed more or less slowly.

"Many men, many minds," is an old adage: it is equally true as respects the inhabitants of the spirit world, excepting that as their elevation in that world is higher, accordance in opinion is more prevalent. In the spirits of the fifth sphere, and those above that sphere, I find little diversity in important facts or doctrines.

Allusion is made to this discovery in some communications from Franklin, to Mr. Putnam, which are as follows:

(To be Continued.)

Passed to Spirit Life.

FUNERAL SERVICES AS CONDUCTED BY THE LYCEUM, OVER THE REMAINS OF LITTLE HARRY.

To the Editor:—It seems but a little while since I forwarded to the columns of your paper the announcement of the departure of my mother to the Spirit-world, and an account of the Spiritualistic services that were held at the time of the burial of the body, all of which occurred in the home of my sister, Mrs. Charles Leeds, Cleveland, Ohio.

Again the white angel has entered her family circle. Little Harry, who was ill but three days of membranous croup, passed away on the 8th inst. When the telegram reached us that the little boy had gone, it seemed like a thunder-clap from a clear sky. We had received no intimation of his illness (a message had been mailed but did not reach us until after the telegram), and I cannot realize that the healthy, happy, busy little fellow I kissed "good-by" a few weeks since, is no longer visible in the home circle.

Owing to the long distance, neither Mr. Hull nor myself could attend the funeral services. All we could do was to send them our expressions of sympathy, and strong, helpful thoughts.

The father and mother of the departed are Spiritualists, and while they know the little boy has entered a world where he will be tenderly cared for and taught in the understanding of the spirit, they sense a deep sorrow in his removal and a dark shadow rests over the home. Were it not for the comfort Spiritualism offers, they would sink beneath the waves of grief that surge over their souls.

My sister has for many years been identified with the Children's Progressive Lyceum. Her children have never known any other Sunday school. Harry was a lyceum scholar, and as the funeral services occurred on Sunday, it was but natural that they should be conducted under the auspices of the lyceum

Thomas Lees, of the C. P. L. officiated. He opened the services with Longfellow's poem, "Resignation;" This was followed by "Silver Chain Recitation." Responses were led by Miss Tillie Lees. Mr. Lees then delivered an impressive address, giving a brief exposition of the spiritual philosophy, in reference to the transition, and care and growth of children in spirit-life. His words to the bereaved family were full of spiritual comfort and tenderness, such as could only be inspired in the soul of a true Spiritualist. He supplemented the address by reading in an impressive manner, Lizzie Doten's beautiful poem, "Cradle and Coffin."

There was a large attendance of friends, including relatives and Fellow Workmen, who were for the greater part orthodox, but they were intensely interested in the services—many of them said they had never attended a spiritualistic funeral before.

Our son George acted as one of the pall-bearers. The remains were interred at Woodland Cemetery, by the side of our dear mother.

By special request, of the father and mother of the departed, I send with this the words that were spoken at the grave by Mr. Lees.

"Rest, little pilgrim, rest, beneath the sheltering sod
There is a lowly door, a narrow way
That leadeth to the Paradise of God,
There, little pilgrim, let thy wanderings stay."

"Let us be comforted to know
Only the body lies below
In the grave that haunts us so."

"Think not of the form we lay beneath the sod,
The body is nothing but clay,
But think of the land by the glad angels
trod,
That never can vanish away.
That bright glorious world, free from sorrow and pain,
Where spirits are chainless and free,
For while you are mourning his absence in vain,
He is waiting and watching o'er thee."

"Weep not; check the falling tear
When parting from the ones we love.
Death severs what is mortal here,
But joins the spirit forms above."

In concluding this communication I feel I would like to exhort the Spiritualists, whoever and wherever they are, to make their religion so practical, on occasions such as I have related here, that no one can have reason to say of them, "they are inconsistent when death enters their circle, and follow in the wake of their more orthodox believers."

My dear sister aimed on this occasion, as when our mother left us, to place object lessons before the people that would express the new ideas entertained in reference to death. The customary white cloth that undertakers hang on the door to denote that a child has departed this life was not hung on the door of her home, but in its stead a wreath of green leaves intertwined with flowers. The little body was not prepared for burial by strange hands. The father assisted in dressing it for the casket, and the mother curled the beautiful ringlets after the dear head was placed on the casket pillow which was nearly covered with flowers.

Thus another has gone from our midst, one full of promise, and it is with loving tenderness that I put these words upon paper—words that I know will be read by dear kindred with tear-dimmed eyes.

The items connected with the event were furnished me by a friend in Cleveland, one prominent in the lyceum work. I trust they will be no intrusion in the columns of your interesting journal.

Since the above was written, Mr. J. Frank Baxter's daughter called at our residence, and informed us that her mother had passed away yesterday. Mr. Baxter will reach home tomorrow night. He requested by telegram that Mr. Hull should be secured to deliver the funeral address, which will occur on Sunday. Her remains will be cremated. MATTIE E. HULL.

Stoneham, Mass., Jan. 22.

Items of Interest From the Pacific Coast.

A GRAND RECEPTION TO NOTED MEDIUMS AND SPEAKERS AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.—REMARKABLY IMPRESSIVE TESTS—CALIFORNIA NOT A HEAVEN OF REST FOR THE POOR.

To the Editor:—It gives me much pleasure to report for your columns something of the doings of the spiritualistic workers who are now in this beautiful city. Los Angeles is, indeed, a gem among cities. Its mild and balmy atmosphere, its blooming gardens and fruited trees are the admiration of all who come this way, while to those who have long dwelt within its limits it seems the garden spot of the world. And yet, while I speak only truth of this locality in the above words, and while all of that and perhaps more can be spoken of many of the lovely cities of Southern California, I would by no means give a false impression of the country to those who look towards it with longing eyes from their far-off homes, or to those others who contemplate coming this way to settle, with the idea that it is easy to gain a living here, and that everything in such a place as this savors of heavenly bliss.

Therefore, candor compels me to state that it is very difficult for one coming to California without a competency, to obtain the means of livelihood; that employment is scarce, and that there are thousands of individuals all through the State who are doing their best to live, but who find it an arduous and nerve-wearing task. But I will have something to say of this in a future letter.

The climate here is charming when the sun shines, which is nearly every day in the year; but in the morning and at night furs and overcoats make their wearers comfortable and fires are indispensable if one does not wish to get chilled, or is not unusually robust. The roses and calla lilies and thousands of flowers bloom out of doors the year round, and tourists wonder why they feel the cold so, when delicate flowers blossom all the time.

But I started this letter to tell your good readers, of the good fortune Los Angeles is having this winter in the presence and work of a number of noted mediums and speakers, and especially of the reception tendered to a group of them by the Harmonial Society and its Auxiliary, the Ladies' Aid.

During the month of December, Mrs. R. S. Lillie, so popularly known in the East, and her musical companion were with us and aroused the enthusiasm of those who admire lofty thought, eloquent speech and inspiring song. At this time Dr. Babbitt, author of "Principles of Light and Color," and his charming wife, are making their home among us; but of these good people and their work, and also others, including Professor Streight, the artist, and Carlyle Petersilea, the author and composer, I will have something to say in my next.

In this month of January, among other mediums who are in Los Angeles,—all of whom deserve special mention, particularly John Slater, the wonderful test medium, and Henry B. Allen, the noted physical medium—our city holds among its guests, Dr. and Mrs. N. F. Ravlin. Dr. Ravlin is one of the most profound and eloquent speakers in our ranks, a logical thinker and an orator who holds his audiences spell-bound when he pours his inspiration in a flood of eloquence upon them. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Evans, both of whom are mediums, the gentleman being one of the most noted slate-writers in the world, and the lady quite as marvelous a platform test medium; and Mr. E. K. Earle, also a public test medium of the first rank, and a slate-writer equal to any in our cause.

On Thursday evening, January 21st, a reception was tendered to this group of talented workers by the Harmonial and Ladies' Aid societies, at the spacious parlors of Mrs. Nettie Howell, at which more than one hundred ladies and gentlemen gathered to pay their respects to the honored guests. The exercises of the evening consisted of appropiate musical selections, instrumental and vocal; addresses, social exchange of thought, and a bountiful collation of ice cream and cake served by the Ladies' Harmonial Aid.

Mrs. M. T. Longley, president of this Aid Society, presided, introducing the guests of the evening, and making remarks in which she welcomed the honored recipients of the ovation in behalf of the assembled friends from both sides of life, and tenderly referred to the recent transition of Mrs. E. K. Earle, expressing the thought that the lady was present in angelic form and a participant in our festivities, and that she was included in the list of friends who had been tendered this reception.

After earnest, and thoughtful remarks by that deep thinker and grand speaker, Wm. Bowman, who is now a resident of Los Angeles, Dr. Ravlin was presented, and made one of his most happy and eloquent speeches, that was characterized as a splendid effort by all who listened to his words. Mr. Fred Evans followed with interesting remarks upon mediums and mediumship, as did also Mr. Earle. Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Ravlin responded to calls, in graceful words. The little daughter of Mr. Earle sang a charming song. Professor Bach, at the piano, and his gifted daughter, Miss Genevieve, with her violin enlivened the occasion with well executed selections. Professor Bowman sang and played for the company with charming effect, as, later in the evening, did the well known composer C. P. Longley.

The parlors were tastefully decorated with vines, ferns, calla lilies and other flowers, by the ladies. The affair was in every particular a most successful and pleasing one, and especial credit is due for this to Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Dye, Mrs. Sandford Johnson, Mrs. Gorham and several young ladies who served as aids.

Apropos to the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Evans and Mr. Earle in this city, allow me to state that since his arrival here Mr. Evans has given a public slate-writing exhibition in Music hall (which seats fourteen hundred) before a large and appreciative audience. On that occasion twenty-five spirit messages, signed with the full names of the communicants, were written upon slates that were examined and held in full view of the audience, by a chosen committee, and these messages were recognized and acknowledged genuine by persons present. On the following Sunday evening Mrs. Evans gave a public test seance at the same hall, in which she clearly described a number of spirits, gave their full names, with numerous facts to prove their identity, and messages, all of which were considered most wonderful by believers and skeptics alike.

On Sunday, January 17th, E. K. Earle held a marvelous seance in Music hall. Many convincing tests were given—the crowning one I will attempt to briefly relate: A gentleman in the audience acknowledged to being a stranger and a skeptic. Earle asked him what he said before he came into the hall. He replied that he would like to get a test. The medium said: "Yes, you said you would like to get a test, and also that you knew you wouldn't, for that fellow couldn't give you one." The man said it was true. Then Earle said: "I will give you a test. When you was a young man you wanted to go to sea. I am looking at the large and crowded city. It is across the water. I see the letter L. It is either London or Liverpool. Have you ever been in either of those cities?"

The stranger said: "In Liverpool."

The medium went on: "I stand on a wharf there A vessel is being loaded with merchandise. Its name is"—— (I did not catch that, though I heard the remainder of what was said). "You, a young man, went on that vessel. It was bound for Calcutta. It stopped at Port Said. Now the scene changes. I see the vessel at the port. Boats manned by negroes are all about. The young man is on the deck. A steamer is near by. It is landing its passengers. They must go ashore in a small boat. A lady about twenty-four, with light hair and blue eyes, is on the steamer. She holds by the hand a little girl of three. They descend into a boat which puts off. I see something black bobbing up and down in the water. Something happens. The child falls overboard something black comes up the child disappears, and only a stream of blood is seen. She has been siezed by a shark. The mother screams and springs into the water. Then I see the young man on the vessel, with a mess-knife between his teeth, jumps over after the lady. There is a struggle and but for the British officers in the boat both would have been drowned."

The skeptic acknowledged it all correct, and the medium went on: "I now see the lady in bed at a hotel ill. She is delirious. While alone a few minutes she rises and wanders out. She was never heard from. She threw herself into the water and was drowned. She is here tonight. A few months later her husband, a British officer, was killed. He is here. He says he was Charles Hamilton, your brother."

The man threw up his arms, exclaimed: "My God, it is true," and fell unconscious to the floor: After a while he revived, the exercises closed and the scoffers went home to wonder or pray.

With best wishes for your success, Mr. Editor, and for the happiness of your readers, cordially yours,

MRS. M. T. LONGLEY.

517 Olive St., Los Angeles, Cal.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

EXPLANATORY.

This lesson is written to call out thought, by suggestive lines of study. The lesson can be taken as a whole, or sections enlarged. It may be taken up in a conversational way, or the leaders may bring out the distinctive thoughts of members by questions.

The treatment of the subject, in two forms—one for the younger, and one for the older groups—will suggest to each leader the advisability of toning the lesson still farther to the understanding of their respective groups. It must be ever borne in mind that unlike the Sunday-school, that has a book of texts to commit to memory, and an absolute set of doctrines to inculcate, the work being the routine of parrot-learning, and from which departure would be reprehensible heresy, all this is the exact reverse in the lyceum, and hence the demand on the intelligence, zeal and adaptibility of the teachers is imperative, and it would be presumptious to attempt to supply lessons that are more than helps. It would be in antagonism to the fundamental principles of the lyceum, which is not to cram the mind with foreign matters, but to evolve its latent energies.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

But my mind—by I know not what secret impulse—was ever raising its views into future ages, strongly persuaded that I should then only begin to live when I ceased to exist in the present world.—Cicero.

SUBJECT—WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

For the older groups: Spiritualism is the belief or knowledge that man's existence as individualized, continues after death, and that spirits can and do return and communicate with us. In a broader sense it is the science of life, here and hereafter.

Modern Spiritualism is distinguished from that of the past by its acceptance of the doctrine of law: That the spiritual realm is governed by laws as fixed and determinable as those of the physical world. Spiritual manifestations in the past were regarded as fortuitous, or dependent on the wishes of irresponsible agents, and varied in degree of presentation from the inspiration of the Divine Spirit (God), to the lowest forms of witchcraft, divination and voodooism. Modern Spiritualism furnishes the key whereby all these varied and conflicting manifestations are explained, unitizing them all by demonstrating that man has a spirit, which continues to exist after the death of the body, and that this spirit can communicate with the friends it left on earth.

Spiritism is a word applied to those who believe especially in reincarnation, and also to those who are eager for phenomena. Spiritualism especially means the scientific aspect of the subject, and a Spiritualist is one who embodies this belief into the conduct of his life, and is truly spiritual; that is one whose spiritual nature controls the lower, selfish and animal.

It has during the brief period of fifty years that systematic communication with the spirit-world has been made possible, gathered millions as adherents, and without leaders or organizations, won its way against all opposition.

For the younger groups: The leaders ask the members if they have lost friends, and whom? Can you tell where they have gone? Then explain that all has been conjecture and doubt, until Spiritualism came. Would you not like to talk with your sister, brother, father, mother now on the other side? Spiritualism tells you they exist—the same—loving you as while in this life; that at death you, too, will become spirits, and meet them face to face. They watch over and guide us. If you believe that these dear ones are near, and see your actions and know your thoughts, how important that you are noble and true. If you are immortal spirits, how you should scorn to be mean, cruel, unmerciful, selfish. Would you converse with your spirit-friends? It is possible for you to do so. They are near you. You cannot see them with your eyes, nor can you see the air. If you cultivate your spiritual perceptions you can feel and see them.

PRESIDENT BARRETT.

HE DESIRES TO PROMOTE THE WELFARE OF THE VARIOUS LYCEUMS AND INCREASE THEIR NUMBER.

To the Editor:—Our recent National Convention voted to instruct the secretary to open correspondence with the various children's lyceums in America, in order that their leaders and teachers could become acquainted for the purpose of comparing notes, to the end that the combined wisdom of the many might evolve something to push the lyceum ahead as a distinctive movement in Spiritualism. For the past three years the officers of the N. S. A. have diligently sought to find the location of the lyceums, and the postoffice addresses of their leaders and teachers. Their success has not been general, and it would be hard to name the location of even a dozen lyceums, to say nothing of the addresses of the teachers.

I feel that it would aid us all very much if the lyceum secretaries would kindly send the N. S. A. the names of their respective lyceums, with a full list of all the officers and members, and their postoffice addresses. If the N. S. A. can obtain a full list, it can open a school of correspondence, through which the children, teachers and leaders can exchange letters, and then send them to a central office to be corrected and edited, and a symposium of them published each week in the lyceum departments in each of the Spiritualist papers. This will take an immense amount of work, yet the end in view is well worth the effort. Will not the lyceum readers of these lines kindly comply with my request, and send Secretary Woodbury the information we so much need in regard to lyceums?

The N. S. A. officers are anxious to have each lyceum join the National body, for four of the leading lyceums in the country already belong to it, and if the others come in also, it will enable all lyceum workers to become acquainted that much quicker. But the N. S. A. does not wish to deprive any lyceum of its funds; it seeks to add to rather than take from them, hence makes the conditions for the lyceum much lighter than for any other society. A charter from the N. S. A. for a lyceum costs only five dollars; then there is no further expense save one collection each year. In return for this the N. S. A. hopes to be able to send literature for free distribution, to be the means of introducing the members of the lyceums to each other in all sections of the land, and to bring in that spirit of brotherhood upon which Spiritualism largely rests. Membership in the N. S. A. on the part of our lyceums entitles them to one delegate to our National Conventions in Washington each year, where all measures for the advancement of our cause are brought forward and discussed in full. Such a course of action would soon lead to the establishment of a National Lyceum Union, such as is in existence in Great Britain to-day. The British National Union has rendered most efficient service to the lyceum movement in the United Kingdom, and we in America would receive the same benefits if we would but unite as they have there.

If a National Lyceum Bureau is established by the N. S. A., it will take the place of the National Union for a time, until the lyceums are strong and numerous enough to establish an independent organization. The N. S. A., however, can and will do the work, if it has the means with which to do that work. If it were properly endowed, it could place a lyceum organizer into the field, well equipped with material, and within five years there would be a lyceum in connection with every Spiritualist society in America. There has never been a time in the history of Spiritualism when the needs of the lyceum were so apparent as they are today. Now is the time for the liberal-minded, for the philanthropists in our ranks to do something for posterity and for themselves by endowing the N. S. A. with sufficient funds to enable it to do the great work of educating the children in the glorious truths of Spiritualism. Who will be the first to respond?

Yours for the truth,

H. D. BARRETT.

JESUIT SPIRITS.

Since the publication of the report of Mr. J. J. Morse, in which he alludes to the fear of Jesuit spirits existing among Spiritualists in this country, I have observed an amount of correspondence upon the subject in the columns of our press, but none of the writers have touched upon what appears to me to be the important point of the matter. Having had considerable experience with that class of spirits, both in and out of the body, as well as with others of kindred nature, I trust you will permit me through your pages to disseminate my views.

In the first place I would afford no entrance to fear, as that subjects us to the power of the enemy. I would, however, maintain a constant watchful guard, note every movement of the foe and make use of every means of protection.

It is here that I think we fail. The care we take in our defense is far from being too great, but it is directed towards one point too exclusively.

The Jesuits are one regiment in the army of the enemy. Well disciplined, splendidly officered and skilful in the use of their many weapons there can be no doubt, but they do not constitute the army. Not all obsessing spirits are followers of Loyola. Neither does the Society of Jesus on earth contain within its ranks all the foes to liberty, progress, humanity and truth.

The Jesuits ought to be watched because they are in the service of the Roman church. So are all the other orders in that church. So are the secular clergy and the laity. Some of these orders are the actual culprits in many cases attributed to Jesuits alone. Some of the most Jesuitical teaching, in the commonly accepted signification of the term, with which that society has been credited, originally proceeded from Alphonsus Liguori, the founder of the Redemptorists.

The Roman church is, of course, the main body of the opposing force on both sides of life, but she has a whole host of small allies and troops of camp followers. Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, all other divisions of organized Christianity, with their almost innumerable subdivisions, are marching under or trailing after the banner of ecclesiasticism, the flag of the enemy of truth wherever it is found. The hand of physical death strikes one who is a slave to any of these errors, and straightway he is in spirit-life ready and eager for the work of obsessing others, until he is himself relieved from his own obsession. That may be the work of years or perhaps of centuries. The safety of our people lies in the recognition of the fact that it is not this or that order, or this or that church alone, against the influence of which we have to protect ourselves, but against all who bend the knee to priest, book or savior. Most especially must we keep our own hands clean from touching the polluted thing, and watch lest the traitor gain entrance into our own ranks and into our own souls.

E. J. BOWTELL.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains a lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

Mrs. Emily P. Beebe, of Spring Arbor, Mich., will answer calls to lecture or officiate at funerals.

The Union City (Mich.) Register makes mention of Frank T. Ripley's lectures there during the past month. The meetings have been well attended, and on several occasions people have been turned away owing to lack of room.

T. R. Whitcher is in sympathy with Ida C. Hawkins' views, and does not see why some are "so bitter against Jesus, the most sublime medium the world has ever produced, and his controlling spirit Christ, the most sublime spirit that ever made itself manifest in the flesh." He fears such are like some "Christians" filled with hatred to Spiritualism but, being converted to a belief in Spiritualism they transfer their hatred to and become just as venomous against Christians. "To me, Spiritualism is the highest type of Christianity; true Christianity the highest type of Spiritualism. They both teach that we are all brothers and that we should treat each other as such."

Lyman C. Howe writes from Toronto, Canada: "I have engaged February in Cleveland, Ohio. Hence, the close of January will end my present work here. Of course, I shall not have been here long enough to know what I might do to build a permanent interest out of the elements that are yet in a chaotic state, but I believe a course of six to twelve months regular lectures would call into working order a fine society. Three-fourths of those who made the following while Mrs. Prior was here were wonder-seekers, and care not to learn anything of our glorious system of philosophy and religion."

M. H. Murphy writes from Dardanelle, Ark.: "A few days ago I sent you an extract from the Dardanelle Post-Dispatch about I. W. Robinson. I have since talked with a young man named J. Woodard, from the settlement where the boy lives. He says the doctors say the boy is crazy, etc. From what I gathered from Woodard, Robinson has done some healing, is clairvoyant, and able to do the same thing Mr. J. J. Morse and others have done, that is, put his arm in the fire, stir it up, take out a handful, and carry it outside the house, without his hand being hurt or singed in the least. Woodard says he has done this several times, to convince the people that he has power from Jesus, as he thinks, to do wonderful things. It is just a case of Spiritualism breaking out in the backwoods."

M. F. Hammond writes: "I am of the opinion, if many of our speakers would use a little more zeal for the cause, and less for the pocket, our cause would grow, and perhaps these same speakers would not have so many Sundays and months without engagements."

Chas. H. Pratt writes: "I will inform you of the use I make of The Progressive Thinker. After reading I paste together the numbers for two months—eight numbers as a book. I will soon have six books. Any one of these books I would not part with for the cost of a year's subscription. Besides these books, I have a large scrap-book containing poems cut out of your excellent paper. Brother Francis, go on with your good work. I pray you may continue in the field until there is confidence restored and a prosperity in our land that will give relief, furnishing the needs of our suffering poor. The prayer of the church seems to be: 'God bless the rich—the poor can beg—so mote it be.'"

Frank T. Ripley can be engaged for the Sundays of March and April, to speak and give tests. Address during February at Marcellus, Mich.; during March, at 242 Thirty-first street, Chicago, Ill.

The annual meeting of the First Spiritualist Church of Milwaukee, for the election of officers, was held January 17, with the following result: President, C. C. Nick; vice-president, Wm. A. Goehrs; secretary, L. H. Reinel; treasurer, Mrs. M. A. Porter; trustees, T. Kingham, Wm. Tuttle, Mrs. C. Pfeiffer, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Jacobi. It was shown by reports of different officers that the year just closed was the most successful socially, financially and spiritually, that the society has experienced in its history. The society passed resolutions of thanks and commendation to Mrs. Nick. Mrs. Nick has again been engaged for the next three months.

Nicholas Rooney writes from Wichita, Kansas: "On September 6, 1896, we organized a society known as the First Spiritualist and Liberal Society of Wichita, with Mr. Thos. A. Thompson as president, who is the right man in the right place. Our society, though small, is in a flourishing condition and its officers and members are practicing economy—that is, we have been using home talent since Mrs. Theresa Allen's engagement expired, and with increasing enthusiasm. This excellent speaker, Mrs. Allen, aroused our ambition to such an extent that we resolved to become one of the best societies in Kansas. We are chartered by the State and National Associations, and we have speakers engaged for the remainder of this month and all of February—a different speaker for each Sunday evening. What a wrong it was for us to remain inactive so long, when so much good material and such fine possibilities only waited an opportunity for expression. The Progressive Thinker has been a welcome visitor to my home for the last five years. There are many reading it here; and many more who should read it; for it should come to every thinking person's home. I intend, in the near future, to get up a club in accordance with your three months' offer, so that its usefulness may be extended in this place."

Mrs. S. C. Scovell writes from Kansas City, Mo.: "I am here in the employment of the Tacoma Hall Society of this city. I am welcome on all sides by old friends and familiar faces of years ago. The society is prospering and bids fair to give Kansas City a place in spiritual progress equal to any of our Eastern cities. Jennie B. Hagan-Jackson preceded myself, and all are warm in her praise. She has accomplished a good work and the warm wishes for the success of the speakers and mediums following her assists to make my work more pleasant, for thoughts are things and have a power as directed by the sender, for good or ill. I have had the pleasure of listening to Brother and Sister Noyes and Sister Dilla, of California. They are all earnest workers, and Sister Dilla can indeed claim inspiration in her poems given before the meeting, which is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Noyes—he as speaker, she as test medium. I shall remain here for two Sundays more, then south to Galena, Joplin and other points along the line, then back home for a work which will be given in The Progressive Thinker later on."

Mrs. Mary E. Van Horn, secretary, writes: "The annual election of officers of Unity Spiritual Society was held at the Ethical Building, 558 Jefferson street, Milwaukee, Wis., December 20, 1896, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Flora S. Jackson, president; Dr. A. E. Wheeler, first vice-president; Mrs. M. E. Tyler Moulton, second vice-president; Mrs. Mary E. Van Horn, secretary; Mrs. J. C. Bump, treasurer. Meetings are held at the above hall every Sunday evening. Geo H. Brooks serves the society for the months of January and February, and is doing well for the society as an able exponent of the truths of Spiritualism. Mrs. Steelman-Mitchell will be with us during March and April."

Adda C. Fleming writes from Hillsdale, Mich.: "January 16 and 17, the Spiritualists and friends had the pleasure of seeing and hearing Mrs. E. P. Beebe, of Spring Arbor, Mich., in her earnest work of sowing and reaping. She advanced and opened the field of great thought, and much good will follow."

A friend writes from Brooklyn, N.Y.: "The Woman's Progressive Union has been highly favored this month in having one of the finest platform test mediums in the field of spiritual reform—Mrs. J. W. Kenyon. She read psychometrically many articles placed on a table before her, giving full names both of mortals and spirits, with facts connected therewith, and always returning the article to the person placing it on the table, as well as pointing out other members of the family. She read and answered many questions written on paper and folded or sealed in envelopes. She made many converts to our noble cause. We hope to secure her for next season for at least a month's work."

M. F. C. writes from Manchester, N. H.: "We have been fortunate in our lecturers this season, all being of a high character and helpful to the cause. Prof. J. Edward Bartlett, of Boston, who was with us on the 18th inst., was no exception to the rule. After the lecture came an hour of tests. Some of them were very striking, and nearly all were recognized. That Prof. Bartlett practices what he enjoins upon others is shown by an incident occurring in connection with his visit to our city. At a neighboring town, a helpless invalid whose destination was Montreal, was put upon the train. He was without money, and is said to have received no food that morning. Prof. Bartlett chancing to be upon this train, became interested in the case, and secured a contribution from the passengers. At Manchester he induced the authorities to care for the man until Monday, assuring them that the Spiritualist society would complete the sum needed to take the man to Montreal. This pledge was redeemed and the poor invalid sent happily upon his way. Our society is very prosperous, and includes many active workers; prominent among these are President and Mrs. Thayer, whose sacrifices and labor in the cause seem almost without limit."

Jas. F. Raymond, secretary, writes from Minneapolis, Minn.: "At a late meeting of the officers and directors of the Minnesota State Spiritualists' Association, it was unanimously resolved to hold a convention in the city of Minneapolis, on the 19th, 20th and 21st days of February next. The object of this meeting—as stated by the president—'Is to confer together in a spirit of fraternal love, sinking meanwhile, all personal differences of opinion—should such exist— thereby striving to promote harmony, peace and good will.' It is believed the time has come for concerted action all along Spiritualistic lines, to which end all earnest workers in the Spiritualist field are cordially invited to be present, co-operating in one grand effort looking to the uplifting of humanity to higher spheres of usefulness. To the speakers and mediums throughout the State, and the leaders of societies wheresoever located, the hand of good-fellowship is extended, with an earnest solicitation to be with and assist us by taking active part in meetings which will be held continuously, from the first day to the last—19th to the 21st day of February."

Thos. Lees writes: "Mr. Thomas A. Black, one of the most active workers and supporters of public Spiritualistic meetings in Cleveland, Ohio, has again undertaken to cater to the public demand for a high class of lectures on the spiritual philosophy, and will resume Sunday evening meetings at Army and Navy Hall, commencing with that well-known veteran, Lyman C Howe, on the 7th inst., and during the month, following with other first-class exponents and demonstrators of Spiritualism. The Children's Progressive Lyceum now holds its meetings every Sunday at 10:30 a. m., in the Army and Navy Hall, second floor. Friends and the public generally are cordially invited, and earnestly requested to give these meetings their hearty support."

Prof. P. O. Hudson, the balladist, composer and violinist, can be engaged to direct or furnish music at the coming camp-meeting season. His methods and style are purely original. He has many new songs for "Good-Time Coming." Address 234 North Farragut street, Bay City, Mich.

T. D. Kayner writes: "We leave today for a week at Kirksville, Mo., and then for February at Keokuk, Iowa."

Lucinda B. Chandler will deliver a lecture on "Woman and the New Commonwealth," at the People's Institute, corner Van Buren and Leavitt streets, Tuesday evening, February 2. Mme. Bourgeois will furnish music.

G. W. Kates and wife had very successful meetings in Andover, Ohio, January 23, 24 and 25. The weather was cold and stormy, but the hall was well filled. The interest in Andover is reported to be very great. A good medium would find opportunities there for local work and regular meetings. Mr. and Mrs. Kates resume their labors in Rochester, N. Y., where they may be addressed at 97 Edinburgh street, until April 1.

Julia Steelman Mitchell, inspirational speaker and unexcelled platform test medium, has February and May as open dates. Address 109 Van Voast avenue, Newport, Ky.

J. F. McDevitt writes: "A. B. Coman, of Chicago, is stopping with me for a few days, and has been holding seances among a few of the progressive thinkers of our city. His talk is well received. He is here for his health, and to clear the way for the big turning-plow of Spiritualism in the by-and-by. He goes from here to Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. Smith writes from Detroit, Mich.: "There are many here who are developing slate-writing and materialization and other phases of mediumship. Mrs. Clark, of 600 Larned street East, is getting spirit pictures and messages on her slates. Her guides have promised her materialization in the near future."

J. R. Doyle writes from Evansville, Ind.: "Several weeks ago there appeared in The Progressive Thinker an editorial inquiry in reference to Dr. Thos. L. Nichols. Dr. T. L. Nichols, with his wife, Mrs. Mary S. Gove Nichols, resided in New York City some forty-five years and more ago. He was engaged in the practice of hydropathy and was a constant contributor to the columns of 'The Water-Cure Journal,' published by Fowler & Wells. He for a time conducted a school in which he professed to teach the various branches of a medical education in connection with hydropathy. Being at the time a medical student, I called upon him in 1851. In subsequent years I heard but little concerning him, until a lady acquaintance a number of years later gave me a brief history of some of his doings. According to her statement, it appears that he had drifted to Cincinnati, O., and was publishing a monthly devoted in part at least to Spiritualism. He and his wife placed implicit confidence in their alleged 'guides,' and were finally told by them that the Holy Roman Catholic church was the true and only church, and instructed to unite with it and place themselves under the direction of its teachers. This they did, whereupon their parish priest promptly interdicted the publication of their journal, and my informant being a subscriber, received the closing number reciting the above facts as an explanation of the demise of the paper. I have heard nothing from them since."

Isaac Perry writes from National Home, Kansas: "The book, 'Nature Cure,' has come to hand in due time. I think it is one of the best books ever published. Fifty dollars in gold would be no temptation for me to part with it, unless I could get another like it. It is a book which should be in every household. No mother armed with 'Nature Cure' need fear the ravages of disease in her family. I for one send my heartfelt gratitude and thanks in appreciation of the kind efforts of the authors, Mr. and Mrs. Conger, in putting such grand lessons within the reach of all who may have the wisdom to avail themselves of its divine teachings. No human being need suffer from disease while they can obtain this beautiful and life-giving book which turns on the light of reason so bright that a child can read and understand the laws of nature, and that ignorance of natural laws is the cause of all sickness and disease. I hope that every one who has read the advertisement will do as I have done—send $2 for 'Nature Cure;' I know they will not regret doing so."

Geo. Maddox writes from Hamilton, Ont.: "As the years go by I am more and more pleased with the efforts you make weekly to spread the light. We living in the Dominion are sadly in need of an illuminant, bold, fearless and truthful, and such a one we find in The Progressive Thinker and its fearless editor. In your issue of Jan. 16th I have read with much satisfaction amongst other grand letters, the one headed 'Materialization,' by Southworth. I must confess it is the most explicit and beautiful explanation of the mysteries of that, the grandest phase of mediumship known to mortals; and we have recently had a materializing medium here. The reading of that letter helped many to a correct understanding of the whys and wherefores. I may say with Southworth that I know materialization is a fact. The medium and spirit being seen at the same time, I have no more doubt. The medium was Mrs. Archer, of Detroit."

Lyman C. Howe writes from Buffalo, N. Y.: "My work in Toronto was peculiar all the way through, but the indications were that another month of continuous work would have established the society on a substantial basis of steady growing support. I have reason to be thankful for the appreciation and warm feeling of intense and sweet good will as manifested at the closing of my work. The expressions of regret at my going and the sweet spirit of fraternal sympathy, and the prophecy that I should soon be with them again, all brace and encourage me. I shall remember those intelligent friends who honored me with their support, and manifested a rational interest in the teachings of Spiritualism, unaccompanied by any tests, with a glad feeling always. Such are the pillars of our cause everywhere. Brother and Sister Menderson, of South Parkdale, were like father and mother to me. God bless them. I spent a pleasant and interesting evening at Brother Campbell's, with a select company, Sunday evening, where we discussed the facts and philosophy of Spiritualism until 11 p. m. Brother and Sister Nichols entertained me with spiritual and physical luxuries and Brother and Sister Denison added much to the spiritual light for my spirit. Brother Robbins was very kind and appreciative. Brother Compton was the financial pillar, and did nobly. I love them all."

B. F. Underwood will lecture at Wauseon, Ohio, before the Grand Army of the Republic, Tuesday evening, February 9—subject, "The Words of Grant, Keep the Church and State Forever Separate;" at Defiance, Ohio, Wednesday evening, February 10—subject, "Foregleams;" Toledo, in the Unitarian church, Thursday evening, February 11—subject, "Foregleams;" Boston, Mass., Paine Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 14—subject, "The Gospel of Emotion and Ignorance;" Manchester, N. H., before the Freethought Association, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, February 16 and 17; Boston, Paine Hall, Sunday afternoon, February 21; East Dennis, Mass., afternoon and evening Sunday, February 28; New York City, before the Manhattan Liberal Club, Friday evening, March 5; Brooklyn, N. Y., before the Philosophical Association, Sunday afternoon, March 7; Providence, R. I., in the Bell-Street Chapel, Sunday afternoon, March 14. For lectures between and after these dates, address Mr. Underwood at 2653 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

A correspondent writes from Philadelphia that Mrs. M. E. Cadwallader has for several weeks past been very ill, by reason of overwork in the field of Spiritualism, followed by nervous prostration, as well as severe illness in other directions. She has felt that the harvest was large and the laborers few, in view of the vast amount of work done. This has caused her to yield much to the demands made upon her time and energy for work in the interests of Spiritualism, which is the inspi-

(Continued on page 8)

From Light, London, Eng.

MAN'S HIGHEST MERIT

is to rule external circumstances as much as possible, and as little as possible to let himself be ruled by them. All things without us, nay, all things on us, are mere elements, while deep within us lies the creative spirit, which out of these can fashion what they were meant to be. Life lies before us as a huge quarry lies before the architect. He deserves not the name of architect except when, out of his fortuitous mass, he can combine with the greatest fitness and economy, and durability, some form, the pattern of which originated in his spirit.

THE EXERCISE OF WILL.

Emerson says: The exercise of the will, or the lesson of power, is taught in every event. From the child's successive possession of his several senses up to the hour when he saith "Thy will be done," man is learning the secret that he can reduce under his will, not only particular events, but great classes, nay, the whole series of events, and so conform all facts to his character. Nature offers all its kingdoms to man as the raw material which he may mould into what is useful. He is never weary of working it up. He forges the subtile and delicate air into wise and melodious words, and gives them wing as angels of persuasion and command. One after another his victorious thought comes up with and reduces all things, until the world becomes at last only a realized will, the double of man, (the kingdom of God).

IMAGINATION AS A FACTOR.

We shall now deal with another phase of the activity of the spirit. Perhaps no word is used in so many different ways as the word imagination. We say of this man, 'He only imagined it;' and of that man, 'He is a great artist, for he has a rich imagination.' Suppose we ask what is the faculty or power we denominate imagination? The answer is exceedingly simple—The power to form images or forms. If a cultivated mind has a well-balanced activity and a rich imagination, there results the artist, or the one who creates new forms—whether as poet, musician, painter, sculptor, writer, orator, or man of science. The late Professor Tyndall thought that imagination was one of the most powerful weapons in the hands of the scientific man, and administered a well-deserved rebuke to those dry-as-dusts who are such sticklers for what they call proved facts, and who always end by distorting their facts into untruths. Imagination, in its widest sense, is the same as what Swedenborg meant by understanding, and it was in this sense that Paracelsus used the word when he said that the wonders of all magic were contained in the triad, Will, Imagination, Faith.

INTELLECTUAL PROCESSES.

A man conversing in earnest, if he watch his intellectual processes, will find that a material image, more or less luminous, arises in his mind, contemporaneous with every thought, which furnishes the vestment of the thought. Hence good writing and brilliant discourse are perpetual allegories. This imagery is spontaneous. It is the blending of experience with the present action of mind. It is proper creation. It is the working of the original cause through the instruments he has already made. The poet, the orator, bred in the woods, whose senses have been nourished by the fair and appeasing changes of a country life, shall not lose their lesson altogether in the roar of cities or the broil of politics. At the call of a noble sentiment again the woods wave, the pines murmur, the river rolls and shines, and the cattle low upon the mountains, as he saw and heard them in his infancy. And with these forms, the spells of persuasion, the keys of power, are put in the orator's hands.

IMAGE MAKING.

Hegel puts down what is called 'thinking' by the mass of mankind as image-making pure and simple. Viewed from the standpoint of present-day science, thinking could be defined as etheric vibration proceeding to and from the brain as a center of motion. Imagination, therefore, would be the power of controlling these vibrations, by imposing a form upon them, or setting them in a mould. In one word, Imagination is Spirit's Creative Power, which is constantly exercised more or less by every individual, from the insane person on the one hand, to the poet and the man of genius on the other. Every person is surrounded by these thought-forms, which constitute the firmament, so to speak, of each microcosm, as distinguished from the firmament of the macrocosm or the Universe. Sensitive people can read the thoughts of others with more or less facility, and can actually see the corresponding images. A distinction is drawn by some between mind-reading and clairvoyance. In some respects this is convenient; but, of course, there is actually no difference between the two, as both consist in seeing a more subtile kind of matter than the physical world.

INTENSE CONCENTRATION.

We now come to a very essential factor in the consideration of the mode of working of spirit. Concentration is the secret of success in everything, without exception. If we want to attain a certain object, we must concentrate our attention upon it till that object has been attained. Many people would succeed better in life if they had more concentration. The term means working from or with a center, a nucleus which serves to husband and to collect force, thus preventing it from being scattered aimlessly and fruitlessly. This applies to business, art, science—in fact, every branch of human life. The essential condition of successful application is bringing the mind to a focus. Intense concentration has opened many a door that would otherwise have remained immovably fixed. "The value of concentration is so patent to the reflecting mind that it is unnecessary to refer to it more at length.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

THE GOD-CONSCIOUSNESS

in the Spiritual Being, our essential self, is pure, good, and undefiled, with possibilities capable of infinite expansion and manifestation in Power, Love, and Wisdom. The real Christ is within, not in one but all men! To know and love the Christ, and become attuned to the Divine Life, Love, and Purpose, implies self-knowledge and spiritual self-possession. Salvation "cometh not with observation," not lo here or lo there, but follows upon the rebirth, not of water or the flesh, but of the spirit. Paul said, "It hath pleased God to reveal his Son in me," in other words I have realized that I am a Son of God—a spirit—pure as He is pure—divine as He is divine—capable of discerning spiritual things, and expressing in the purposes and actions of my daily life more and more of his divine love, will, and wisdom.

GOD WITHIN THE SOUL.

Slowly the God-within-the-Soul is asserting its power. Surely the race is ascending to possess the promised land of spiritual liberty and beauty. Clearer and clearer the light shines, and the natural immortality of humanity—because man is a spirit—is being recognized and admitted. The armies of the Lord, the encompassing hosts of enfranchised ones, are making their power and presence felt and known with ever-increasing success.

HERALD OF ANGELS.

To-day the herald angels sing to welcome the returning prodigals who have wandered in the theological mazes (hemmed in between the hedges of creeds and dogmas, surrounded by the fogs of sectarian misconceptions and prejudices), or spent their substance in idle indulgences, and sepulchered their spiritual natures in the tomb of materialism. But truth is the light of the world, and the spirit of truth, the comforter, has come, is here, in the persons of the so-called dead, who, from their vantage ground of attainment, sing to us as the messenger-spirits of all ages have sung of hope, of life, of brotherhood.

VIBRATIONS OF SUPREME SPIRIT.

We claim that the divine life, love, and light, pervade the Universe, thrill through, quicken, and exalt all spirits that become attuned to the vibrations of the Supreme Spirit. Only our ignorance, our folly, our sectarianism, our materialism, or our egotism can prevent us from being moved upon, inspired by, and our life made sacred because of the consciousness of the ever-present love, the ever sustaining life, the ever-revealing beauty, the serene wisdom of the intelligence we call God.

MAN PURE AND PERFECT.

That man is pure and perfect in esse (as a spirit) is being recognized. So also is the other great fact that he fails to give full expression to his pure and perfect spirit-life through the agency of the imperfect instrumentality of the physical brain and body, of which he is at first ignorant, and through which he has to grow to self-consciousness, and acquire power to intelligently cultivate and display his mental, moral, and spiritual gifts, and exercise his potencies.

LIFE IS TOO SHORT FOR HATRED.

To those with whom we may have had to differ; to those who may perchance think we have done them wrong—though we are unaware of any such act on our part; to those who feel enmity or ill-will—if any such there be—we wish to speak words of cheer, good-will, and brotherliness. Life is too short and too sacred for hatred or wrong; we have none but kindly feelings and good wishes to all. Let the dead past bury its dead. Let love reign in the living present.

CHRISTMAS.

Christmas stands for Peace; and in a world of strife and unrest it is agreeable to have a respite. Still, we cannot glory in, or get much satisfaction from, such a brief and short-lived peace. To us it appears a mockery and a pretence. It is a sugar-coated pill to deceive or defraud the patient, for the bitterness comes afterwards. It is the flag of truce—but not the absolute suspension of hostility. The Christmas peace-maker may show his bounty and his benevolence to the poor and the needy; but he knows he will start the New Year with the purpose of money-making and wealth accumulation, and will not be very particular about "grinding the faces of the poor" during the remainder of the year. The pious sweater, exploiter, and trader may open his heart and his purse at this "festive season;" but he will close them both for the greater part of the following months in the calendar—that is, against the class who are unfortunately dependent upon him for work and wages.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

We cannot turn from the path of duty without entering the crooked lane of adversity.

Every form of money, whether in coin or paper, is negotiable property While originally it was only a certificate of property, it has come to be looked upon as real property.

Where the stomach is man's God, there will we find rich doctors.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness, and order is Heaven's first law. These "coats" will fit all and are intended for universal adoption.

Material men keep their minds on the dollar and lose sight of the principle that would bring the dollars without seeking them.

The "Virgin Mary" is but a symbol of the "Virgin Mother," Nature, from which every form of life comes. Nature is the mother of first parents in all forms.

He who prepares the longest ladder will climb the highest. This is occult law. Prepare a ladder long enough and you can enter the presence of your God.

A religion is only an opinion, which many people have accepted as a truth.

There can be no happiness except to the extent that we make others happy.

From young men we get news, from old men we get knowledge.

The myths interpolated into the Old and New Testaments are the stock-in-trade of the various kinds of religion.

The training of a child is of far greater importance than education.

Fools rush in where wise men have been.

"He has gone to that bourne from which no traveler returns" is obsolete. We know they can and do return in the flesh whenever the conditions are made right.

As tinsel outshines the pure gold, so does the bogus teacher outshine the one who lives the truth; hence ignorance is deceived and selects the tinsel and remains ignorant.

Some friends (?) who are given to gossiping take great delight in destroying their friends; hence a friend is often more dangerous than an enemy.

The wise man will not seek company. He knows too well that things will be said in company that were better left unsaid.

All religions are kept alive by ignorance worshiping a symbol instead of finding the spiritual significance of that symbol. In the finding, worship would cease.

I never wished harm to the wicked, for there is a power within the soul of every evil doer that will punish the wicked according to his wickedness.

Hard work and cheerfulness is the price of happy home life.

Queen Victoria is a teetotaler as well as a Spiritualist.

Among the Scandinavians Time was supposed to come from the Womb of Night, and therefore Night was called the Great Mother. Day was the son of Night. A passage in the Edda says that Night went first, mounted on her horse Rinfax, of the icy mane. Every morning, at the end of his race, the courser watered the earth with foam that fell from his bridle; this was the dew. Day followed, mounted on Sinfax, of the glowing mane, which lighted up the air and the earth.

Religion of the Future. By S. Weil. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

From The Spiritual Review, London, Eng.

MYRIAD LIFE FORMS.

Natural scientists have revealed unto us their discoveries of the myriad life forms existing in the water, and by the aid of microscopes are able to tabulate and describe minutely the forms, habits, length of life, and progeny of animalcula; and this so minutely that a whole world of them can be seen, the size of a pin's knob, through an ordinary school-boy's microscope, while to the ordinary sight unaided, nothing is visible but clear water; yet this same pin's knob, of apparently invisible matter, can, with superior microscopes, be enlarged till it appears as a little world, inhabited by living active intelligencies; by the application of yet more powerful lenses, these tiny beings have been examined, watched while performing their avocations, and classified into many different species.

THE ANGELIC BEINGS.

Theology has taught in an inconsequential manner that angelic beings have at sundry times, and in divers places, paid visits to mortals, but who, or what, or where they came from, no clear or definite knowledge has it taught them. There is a vague, supposition possessed by some, that they are men after God's own heart, who, by consecrating themselves to His service, or by deeds of valor, policy, stratagem, or the extermination of (those they consider) evil men, have won divine favor. They are now taught it has been proved that the air is inhabited by the Spiritual counterparts of the dead, who had gradually made this counterpart, or psychic body unconsciously, while in the act of performing the thousand and one activities and mental processes, which cause that atmospheric friction we call life; hence this soul, or counterpart, was ready for their occupation as soon as they laid aside their wornout bodies.

MOST ASTOUNDING STATEMENT.

It is revealed by the few daring ones who fear not to follow where God and Nature lead, that the oxygen is inhabited by spirits who diffuse warmth, the hydrogen by spirits who diffuse cleansing, the carbon by those who diffuse substance, and the nitrogen by functional spirits, and that teaching, controlling, guiding, and using these elemental spirits, are the departed ones of earth, who find themselves just as busy and active, in their more ethereal soul bodies, as when in their physical body. The ability to perform these new duties is gradually acquired, just as it is here. At first everything is strange, but there are loving friends and relations, always waiting, ready to waft the newly born soul to the home prepared for it.

THE SEER AND THE SPIRITUAL SCENES.

The accompanying plate illustrates a journey through space. The first thing the Seer who can behold the Unseen things of space is conscious of, is a blinding flash of light—that is, blinding as far as the people, furniture, and things around are concerned—the artist who painted the oil-painting from which this plate has been copied, is a painter in oils of family portraits, and often, while quietly employed in his studio, a flash of light similar to that represented, will throw everything into darkness he has been using; it then appears that this lower firmament is opened, and a peep allowed into that beyond, and this ray of intense light is seen as a path of glory, on which come the messengers divine; when he has been reproducing or restoring ancient portraits, he has seen the risen souls of the originals of the portraits he has been painting, and occasionally entered into conversation with them. In the same way he is visited by his own guardian, the old masters, the friends of his youth, and family connections, who have crossed the river of death.

PSYCHIC, AURIC, AND ASTRAL FORMS.

Out of the hundreds of Psychic, Auric, and Astral forms beheld by Seers, only one now and then is recognized. It is like taking a walk through a crowded thoroughfare; you pass by many you have no interest in, and feel no inclination to speak of them, unless the attention of the Seer is called to any particular one or group, by some guide or ministering spirit in attendance. On the occasion of such vision as this, the Seer is at all times aware of the near presence of his Guardian Angel, and his attendant ministering spirits. With some of the latter, he is as friendly and conversant as with people in the body, and consults with them as friends.

THE SEER'S TELESCOPE.

The Seer's telescope and microscope God hath devised! Each instrument is fitted to the soul who sees, and there are no depths, nor heights, too profound for Spiritual vision to pierce. The implements of human skill, while revealing wonders to all who choose to use them, are ever insignificant in comparison to the celestial ones, which, while revealing things far beyond mortal ken, imparts with the vision, comprehension, and information respecting things seen; which fact places the Seer at a great advantage over the scientist.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Barrett, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

A Remarkable Book.

This is a remarkable work by FATHER CHINIQUY. It exposes even to the minutest details the corruption that exists in the Church of Rome. It is a work of 832 pages, and should be read as a matter of history by every Spiritualist. The following is a partial list of the table of contents:

CHAPTER I. The Bible and the Priest of Rome.
CHAPTER II. My first School-days at St. Thomas—The Monk and Celibacy.
CHAPTER III. The Confession of Children.
CHAPTER IV. The Shepherd whipped by his Sheep.
CHAPTER V. The Priest, Purgatory, and the poor Widow's Cow.
CHAPTER VI. Festivities in a Parsonage.
CHAPTER VII. Preparation for the First Communion—Initiation to Idolatry.
CHAPTER VIII. The First Communion.
CHAPTER IX. Intellectual Education in the Roman Catholic College.
CHAPTER X. Moral and R[illegible] in the Roman Catholic Colleges.
CHAPTER XI. Protestant Children in the Convents and Nunneries of Rome.
CHAPTER XII. Rome and Education—Why does the Church of Rome hate the Common Schools of the United States, and want to destroy them?—Why does she object to the reading of the Bible in the Schools?
CHAPTER XIII. Theology of the Church of Rome: its Anti-Social and Anti-Christian Character.
CHAPTER XIV. The Vow of Celibacy.
CHAPTER XV. The Impurities of the Theology of Rome.
CHAPTER XVI. The Priest of Rome and the Holy Fathers; or, how I swore to give up the Word of God to follow the word of Men.
CHAPTER XVII. The Roman Catholic Priesthood, or Ancient and Modern Idolatry.
CHAPTER XVIII. Nine Consequences of the Dogma of Transubstantiation—The old Paganism under a Christian name.
CHAPTER XIX. Vicarage, and Life at St. Charles, Rivierre Boyer.
CHAPTER XX. Papineau and the Patriots in 1833—The burning of "Le Canadien" by the Curate of St. Charles.
CHAPTER XXI. Grand Dinner of the Priests—The Maniac Sister of Rev. Mr. Perras.
CHAPTER XXII. I am appointed Vicar of the Curate of Charlesbourgh—The Piety, Lives and Deaths of Fathers Bedard and Perras.
CHAPTER XXIII. The Cholera Morbus of 1834—Admirable courage and self-denial of the Priests of Rome during the epidemic.
CHAPTER XXIV. I am named a Vicar of St. Roch, Quebec City—The Rev. Mr. Tetu—Tertullian—General Cargo—The Seal Skins.
CHAPTER XXV. Simony—Strange and sacrilegious traffic in the so-called Body and Blood of Christ—Enormous sums of Money made by the sale of Masses—The Society of Three Masses abolished and the Society of one Mass established.
CHAPTER XXVI. Continuation of the trade in Masses.
CHAPTER XXVII. Quebec Marine Hospital—The first time I carried the "Bon Dieu" (the wafer god) in my vest pocket—The Grand Oyster Soiree at Mr. Buteau's—The Rev. L. Parent and the "Bon Dieu" at the Oyster Soiree.

☞ We have not space in this notice of Father Chiniquy's work to give the heads of all the Chapters. Those omitted are of especial value. The following, however, are of thrilling interest:

CHAPTER LIII. The Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary.
CHAPTER LIV. The Abomination of Auricular Confession.
CHAPTER LV. The Ecclesiastical Retreat—Conduct of the Priests—The Bishop Forbids Me to Distribute the Bible.
CHAPTER LVI. Public Acts of Simony—Thefts and Brigandage of Bishop O'Regan—General Cry of Indignation—I determine to resist him to his face—He employs Mr. Spink again to send me to Gaol, and he fails—Drags me as a Prisoner to Urbana in the Spring of 1856 and fails again—Abraham Lincoln defends me—My dear Bible becomes more than ever my Light and my Counselor.
CHAPTER LVII. Bishop O'Regan sells the Parsonage of the French Canadians of Chicago, pockets the money, and turns them out when they come to complain—He determines to turn me out of my Colony and send me to Kahokia—He forgets it next day and publishes that he has interdicted me—My People send a Deputation to the Bishop—His Answers—The Sham Excommunication by three drunken Priests.
CHAPTER LVIII. Address from my People, asking me to remain—I am again dragged as a prisoner by the Sheriff to Urbana—Abraham Lincoln's anxiety about the issue of the Prosecution—My Distress—The Rescue—Miss Philomena Moffat sent by God to save me—Lebelle's Confession and Distress—My Innocence acknowledged—Noble Words and Conduct of Abraham Lincoln—The Oath of Miss Philomena Moffat.
CHAPTER LIX. A moment of Interruption in the Thread of my "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," to see how my sad Previsions about my defender, Abraham Lincoln, were to be realized—Rome the Implacable Enemy of the United States.
CHAPTER LX. The Fundamental Principles of the Constitution of the United States drawn from the Gospel of Christ—My first visit to Abraham Lincoln to warn him of the Plots I knew against his Life—The Priests circulate the news that Lincoln was born in the Church of Rome—Letter of the Pope to Jeff Davis—My last visit to the President—His admirable reference to Moses—His willingness to die for his Nation's Sake.
CHAPTER LXI. Abraham Lincoln a true man of God, and a true Disciple of the Gospel—The Assassination by Booth—The tool of the Priests—John Surratt's house—The Rendezvous and Dwelling Place of the Priests—John Surratt Secreted by the Priests after the murder of Lincoln—The Assassination of Lincoln known and published in the town three hours before its occurrence.
CHAPTER LXII. Deputation of two Priests sent by the People and the Bishops of Canada to persuade us to submit to the will of the Bishop—The Deputies acknowledge publicly that the Bishop is wrong and that we are right—For peace sake, I consent to withdraw from the contest on certain conditions accepted by the Deputies—One of the Deputies turns false to his promise, and betrays us, to be put at the head of my Colony—My last Interview with him and Mr. Brassard.
CHAPTER LXIII. Mr. Desaulnier is named Vicar General of Chicago to crush us—Our People more united than ever to defend their rights—Letters of the Bishops of Montreal against me, and my answer—Mr. Brassard forced, against his conscience, to condemn us—My answer to Mr. Brassard—He writes to beg my pardon.
CHAPTER LXIV. I write to the Pope Pius IX, and to Napoleon, Emperor of France, and send them the Legal and Public Documents proving the bad conduct of Bishop O'Regan—Grand Vicar Dunn sent to tell me of my victory at Rome, and the end of our trouble—I go to Dubuque to offer my submission to the Bishop—The peace sealed and publicly proclaimed by Grand Vicar Dunn the 28th of March, 1858.
CHAPTER LXV. Excellent testimonial from my Bishop—My Retreat—Grand Vicar Saurin and his assistant, Rev. M Granger—Grand Vicar Dunn writes me about the new storm prepared by the Jesuits—Vision—Christ offers Himself as a Gift—I am forgiven, rich, happy and saved—Back to my people.
CHAPTER LXVI. The Solemn Responsibilities of my New Position—We give up the name of Roman Catholic to call ourselves Christian Catholics—Dismay of the Roman Catholic Bishops—My Lord Duggan, Coadjutor of St. Louis, hurried to Chicago—He comes to St. Anne to persuade the People to submit to his Authority—He is ignominiously turned out, and runs away in the midst of the Cries of the People.
CHAPTER LXVII. Bird's-eye View of the Principal Events from my Conversion to this day—My Narrow Escapes—The end of the Voyage through the Desert to the Promised Land.

Price, $2.25, Post-paid.

PRINCIPLES —OF— LIGHT AND COLOR.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D.

A truly great work in which the author exhibits the results of years of research, of a mind devoted to science and truth, highly gifted with keen intuitive insight and the psychic faculty of clairvoyance, enabling him to discover and elucidate facts and principles not observable to ordinary ken. The book is of very great interest and importance, bringing to light many important points concerning light and color in their mental and physical effects and their practical application in the conservation of health and the cure of disease and sickness. Its medical value is beyond estimation, and its teachings should be known by all.

Finely illustrated with cuts and colored plates.

PRICE, $5.00. POSTAGE, 36c.

For Sale at The Progressive Thinker Office.

STARNOS.

By Dr. Della E. Davis. A rosary of pearls, culled from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. Intended for the light and solace of every sorrowing and stricken heart. Price 50 cents.

OBSESSION.

How evil spirits influence mortals. By M. Faraday. P. 23. Price 10 cents.

GOSPEL OF NATURE.

By M. L. Sherman and Wm. F. Lyon. A book replete with Spiritual truths. Price $1.00.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll

On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1888. Price, 4 cents.

THE RIGHTS OF MAN.

By Thomas Paine. Parts I and II, Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 279 pages. Paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle,

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

L. L., DesMoines: Q. Who was Deucalion?

A. Deucalion occupied a prominent place in the Greek mythology and his poetical story is a version of the weaker and later myth of the Hebrew Noah and the ark. He is called in Greek mythology the father of Hellen, mother of the Greek or Hellenic people. Sometimes this is changed to her brother. In the remote time when history is replaced by tradition, Jupiter became so enraged by the impiety and profligacy of the brazen race of men, that he resolved to destroy them by a great deluge. Deucalion was advised by his father, Prometheus, to build an ark and thus escape the catastrophe. This he did, and with his wife, Pyrrha, sailed nine days over the raging waters. He had doves on board, which he let fly, and if they returned it was a sign to him that the flood continued; but when they did not, he received it with joy as indicating that the waters were subsiding. After nine days, the ark grounded on Mount Parnassus, and they came forth and offered sacrifice to Jupiter.

One form of the myth restricts the flood to Greece, or more especially Thessaly, but the more generally received myth made it universal, and swept away all mankind except Deucalion and his wife.

Theologians, of course, regard the myth as founded on the Bible account of the flood, as they refer all science and history to that source. They are opposed to the only explanation which has even plausibility, that all these myths entertained by different nations and races, date back to a remote time and common ancestry; or the close contact of races, by which the fancies and imagery of the childhood of mankind were mutually interchanged. From these beginnings the myths grew, diverging with the intellectual growth of the various peoples who entertained them. The poetic Greeks refined the dull story of the flood, when they elevated its meaning by the meaning of Deucalion, which is fire, and Pyrrha, which is water. It was the fire which dissipated the water, and Prometheus, father of Deucalion, the light which brought back to the earth the races of mankind. Among no people at all advanced were the myths held to be literal history. That absurdity was reserved for the Bible worshiper, who receives the account of the deluge, the ark, and Noah as a true narrative of events, which to doubt is heresy.

Simon Emery, Bangor, Me.: Q. All you suggested in your answer to a correspondent regarding a free circulating library, I have been practicing for the past four years. I have bought hundreds of The Progressive Thinkers and other papers and send them over the United States to those I thought would be interested.

(1). Six years ago I lost my dear companion, and now at 72 years, when I need her the most, I am alone and no one knows how much I miss her, who has not had the same experience. She died suddenly, and about a week afterwards she came and sat down by me and said to me: "I have not been dead, as you suppose—you have been dreaming." She appeared lifelike and unusually well. For a time I could communicate with her by rappings. Now I cannot, and I wish to know why she does not come and make herself known to me as she used to when she first passed on, and what I can do to again receive communications from her?

(2). What is the difference between mental and spiritual science? Is not spiritual science the only true science there is?

A. (1). Spiritual beings, immediately after leaving the physical body have more power to communicate than afterwards, as the numerous recorded "appearances," at the instant of death or soon afterwards prove.

We are not to suppose that the disposition of this loved companion has changed. She desires to make her presence known as much as at first, but finds the conditions so changed that she cannot do so. The advice so repeatedly stated in this department, to form circles, or at least have some sympathetic person join in the seances, is applicable in this instance.

(2). Mental science is an ambiguous term, but whatever it claims, is a part of Spiritualism—a small part. It has no revelation of truth that Spiritualism does not better make, because the latter presents the harmonious whole as a unit.

Science is demonstrated knowledge classified. Such knowledge of material things is called physical science, and of the psychic realm, spiritual science. Although, as spirit is the active energy which creates and moves the universe in its entirety, and consequently the science of spirit would be the all-embracing knowledge of the cosmos, both physical and spiritual, it is perhaps advisable to preserve this grand classification.

Herman Wettstein: Q. Have just read your "Mind and Matter" in The Progressive Thinker of November 21. Why cannot the atoms possess a psychic property, the same as the other properties conceded to them? The same reasons that are adduced for assuming physical properties in the constituents of atoms (or force-units) can be advanced for adding a psychic property to them, and I have in vain sought for a reason why they cannot possess such attribute. There is nothing more strange in their possessing an incipient mind-principle than in their capacity to attract and repel each other, or to vibrate at the rate of millions of times per second; nothing more strange in their physical attributes than in their psychical. Then why can the latter not as rationally be postulated as the former? With it the problem of the universe as well as of developed mind or spirit is solved; without it "the chasm that separates mind from matter can never be passed."

A. In a measure the teachings of the spiritual intelligences have anticipated the ideas of this correspondent, so far, at least, as to remove the point of contention to more profound depths. In the Arcana of Nature, published thirty-six years ago; they claimed matter to be itself living, and thereby called out sneers of scorn from the scientific critics, who now boast of the discovery that life resides in the atom. They said (page 5):

"When we say matter, we mean also its properties; for common sense, in opposition to theories, intuitively knows that there can be no separation. . . Life is born of motion. It is first traceable in the mutual attraction between atoms in solution, arranging them in definite forms; in affinity, the attraction and repulsion of particles. It may appear startling that the forces which create the crystal are living forces, but the data are many which support such conclusion. In the lower order of animals, where life nearest approaches the mineral, the form and skeleton of the animal conform to the laws of crystalline growth, as the plates of the sea urchins, rays of the asteria, and calcareous framework of the coral; even in the higher animals the bones are crystalline. . . If there is not life in matter, from whence is it derived? If this universal life is concentrated and unitized, a living organism is the result." Life, then, is the specialization of the living principles of matter.

In discussing this great problem, as it is carried forward into the psychic realm, the unity of reasoning is preserved. It is held that if there is a spirit, whether its duration be eternal or measured by time, as we cannot go beyond the realm of law, it must date its beginning with that of the body. Body and spirit start with the same germ and mature together.

Again: Force is the first revealment of an intelligent, ever-active, persistent energy, which pulsates throughout the universe. What lies back of it, from whence it springs, we may not know.

This cosmic energy having ascended through the long line of living beings to man, becomes through his evolution individualized, as the life of the world is individualized in the living being, the death of the physical body severing the bond of the spirit with the physical atom, and thus detaching it from the stream of living beings.

The point of divergence from Mr. Wettstein's conclusions is this: He claims all for the atom. Yet he nor the combined wisdom of all the scientists of earth can tell us what that atom is, or show conclusively that it even has an existence outside the fancy. No one ever has seen, tasted or felt an atom. No microscope has brought it to view. As to its nature, there is world-wide diversity of views. If there are primary atoms, either as adamantine points no longer divisible or vortices of energy, they are simply expressions of the energy which lies back of them. The atom is only a secondary manifestation. We must go by the appearances of matter and enter the realm of the forces which lies beyond. We shall then find that the "chasm between matter and spirit" has been passed and from that other shore, it has no existence.

Questioner, Beverly: Q. What is the material of the spiritual body; the body celestial of St. Paul?

A. If a spirit exists in the immortal land as an entity, of what is its body composed? We say body for the division into mind and body applies with the same pertinency to the spirit as to man.

Admitting the existence of spirits, we are forced either to believe that they exist as detached intelligences, or as entities. The first proposition is untenable. If the latter be accepted, it follows as sequence that that entity is derived from the mortal body, or is prepared for intelligence to enter. The last position presupposes miracle, the direct interposition of Deity; presupposes an interference we never see in this life, and have no reason to suppose exists in the hereafter. Mind cannot change from one body to another without a miracle; and as it is possible to account for all connected phenomena by referring them to an entity derived from the physical body, and in a strictly scientific manner, this conclusion must be at last accepted. As the senses cannot recognize the matter of which the spirit organism is composed, and as all ideas of matter are derived from them, we cannot form a correct conception of all its qualities. We know that it must be the most subtile form of matter. Electricity has been assumed, and that by intelligent Spiritualists, to be the constituent of spirit forms. It is supposed that spirits are intimately connected with electricity and magnetism. But it is not possible to build a body out of these, for, if material, their atoms have infinite repulsion; and if not, they are manifestations of force which cannot occur without matter.

The spiritual body, then, must be formed out of refined matter that has become so sublimated as to be so far removed from our ideas of materiality as to be better distinguished as substance.

RELIGION A NECESSITY.

Dr. Cleveland of Minneapolis has been sowing some good seeds in the Daily Times of that city. In a late article he said, taking the position that "Science is the hope of humanity and the handmaid of religion:"

Your editorial of the 6th, entitled "Is Religion a Necessity," is in my opinion a hit in the right direction and will tend to open the eyes of many thinking men and women. It is a part of humanity to be religious, but religion should be tempered with good sound judgment, and used for the benefit of all alike. Jesus taught. Love ye one another, the Christian religion teaches love a few and turn the rest of humanity over to the Devil. If there is a God in existence every child that was ever born on the earth is a part of this God, and can no more be condemned to an endless misery than can the God that gave them life.

"It is the fondest hope of all to live forever, and now the question arises it there any evidence in existence to prove that he does? We lay a direct claim that the very heavens are alive with abundant evidence that man is an immortal being, and that a direct communication is kept up between the two words as is demonstrated through natures laws at the present time and is confirmed through the teachings of Jesus and St Paul, while they lived on the earth. Modern science is in touch with the divine law of nature, and the hope of humanity will yet be fulfilled through scientific discoveries. Eternal progress, here and hereafter, is a divine law, laid down in nature, and must of necessity be fulfilled to the letter of the law. Jesus, Peter, James and John saw two men and Jesus conversed with them in presence of the others. These two men came from the other shore of eternity, and were known as Moses and Elias, who once occupied important positions in the earth life. There was no law in operation at that time to prevent these two men coming to earth to hold communion with their loved ones, as is proven by the Bible. Modern science proclaims that the same law is in operation at the present time; and the world is full of evidence that millions from the land of souls occupy their time conversing with their dear ones on this earth.

"He who claims that life ends at the grave is doing himself and others much harm. And he who teaches that all the apostle's communications ended with the other world is sadly behind the times and is surely to be pitied by the millions who know to the contrary.

"Science combined with religion will cause much more happiness on the earth than is enjoyed at the present time."

SENSIBLE REQUEST.

A SPIRIT RETURNS TO EARTH, AND NOT LIKING THE FUNERAL SERVICES HELD OVER HIS REMAINS, REQUESTS THAT OTHER EXERCISES IN HARMONY WITH PROGRESSIVE THOUGHT BE HELD.

Friends: The occasion for these remarks has been brought about by what we are led to believe has been the visit and message through one of our sensitives from the living spirit of him once known among us as Mr. Leroy, who passed to the higher life several months ago. He was for years our fellow citizen and a brother in the spiritual faith, a member of our society, and exemplary man and zealous for truth as he apprehended it. In his message he expressed his disapproval of the manner in which his funeral services were conducted at the time the wornout body was laid away in earth. He did not desire the services of any orthodox religious priest, but nevertheless such services were had, and such sentiments expressed as revolted him in spirit, and from which he still feels the unrest of mental and spiritual desires unsatisfied, hence he requests us to gather here and add some fitting services in our way and belief, and thus pay merited tribute and respect to his memory.

We gladly and lovingly comply with this request—not that we, or as we believe Mr. Leroy either, feel that it is of consequence what a priest says or what is done with the earth body after the spirit is out of it. It was the utterance of only one man's opinion based on no solid facts for its assumption of truth; but it is because he and we want to give free expression to the higher and better sentiment which each transition or so-called death should emphasize: that life is everlasting, and the spirit cannot be coffined or entombed, but is risen out of the earthly and corruptible body, and stands forth in the incorruptible spiritual body, unconfined, and lives, breathes and acts its own individual self, carrying with it the memories of all the former existence, whether in one or many forms it may have been in the past. As such being our brother Leroy does not feel to be humiliated by the farce that was enacted at the burial. He would have us say to you: "All hail, brothers and sisters." "Be of good cheer. It is I—be not afraid."

The life of the spirit is what he has made it, and he is satisfied it should be so. He could be no other than himself, and having been measurably cheerful and comfortable in his mind while in the earth body, he has less, perhaps, to regret or to undo than some may have who made greater pretensions to a righteous life. Still he has enough in himself to correct to keep him busy for some time.

Aside from this work which all may have a share in, there is sufficient time for rest, recreation and enjoyment to satisfy his soul, and when this little episode shall have passed by and what was omitted has been brought to pass, he will be able to turn his attention to other things of more importance. For years a few of us have walked along together with him in the familiar paths of social life, and at the meetings he has been a welcome and cheerful, helpful attendant.

Youthful in spirit long after the limbs, brain and hands became too feeble to express his buoyancy, so now in the fairer clime the new man, could he be seen by the spiritual vision, would scarcely be a counterpart of the old body, but is the real man as he always was.

A few short years and we shall all meet on that plane where he stands, and in the journey that remains for us it is well to bear this in mind, and so live that there shall be no restraining bands or shackles on our rising spirits when we leave the clay, and may it be ours to also come forth, young and strong, from our cruder states, with broader views of life, and ready for some higher work in the realm of spirit to which we are all hastening. We would her greet our invisible brother, Leroy, and bid him god speed, and many happy returns among us in future so long as the attraction of earth draws him here.

We here offer our oblation of kindly feelings and fraternal loves to be laid like a chaplet of flowers upon his tomb, and we would bring an ornamental pillow for his head woven of flowery thoughts and we would inscribe thereon the words "Sweet Rest in Heaven:"

Sweet Rest in heaven, on thy closing eyes
Death did ope' its portal, and the curtain fell,
Leaving us behind thee, guessing thy surprise,
As we linger waiting what thy lips may tell.

Sweet rest in heaven! Fancy may deceive us,
But we think we hear it—the rustle of a wing;
Think we hear a footfall, feel a gentle presence,
And if not mistaken, hear an angel sing.

Sweet rest in heaven! After weary years,
After stormy passage over life's dim sea,
After many sorrows, after many tears,
Life's eternal glories open unto thee.

Sweet rest in heaven! After evening time
When the sunset faded into shadowy night,
After toil and struggle in the changing clime,
Thou hast found the changeless and eternal light.

MRS. C. H. HINCKLEY.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

MATERIALIZATIONS.

PRAIRIE FLOWER AND HER PARTY—AN EVENING WITH MRS. ASPINWALL AND HER GUIDES.

To the Editor:—It was with great pleasure that my wife and myself received an invitation to the birthday party of the bright, witty, and much beloved Prairie Flower, one of the guides of Mrs. Dr. Aspinwall. After partaking of a most excellent and bounteous dinner at the beautiful and cozy home of the doctor and his wife, surrounded by plants, flowers, music and birds (everything to bring harmony and happiness, and all feel that influence when coming in rapport with them in their home), the party consisting of twelve adults and three children was invited at 8 p. m. into their seance-room—a room devoted exclusively to spiritual work—and seated in a semi-circle opposite a cloth closet 3x5 feet in size, where it is absolutely impossible for any one to enter unless they do so in full view of the sitters.

One of the medium's guides gave a short address followed by a prayer which touched the hearts of everyone present. Then Prairie Flower, the little Indian guide, appeared, saluted the circle and passed out of the room, reappearing in about two minutes with her tambourine, which she had gone down stairs after. She passed candy and nuts to each of the sitters, thereby coming in direct contact with each one. She then made a buttonhole bouquet for each, sang a little song in her own language, accompanying it with music on her tambourine, closed her hands together, made her little prayer, commending all to the care of the Great Spirit, and disappeared. (She is fully 18 inches shorter than the medium, coal black hair and eyes, and a dark copper color. Some skeptics say all children and small forms are the medium on her knees! Bosh! try going up and down stairs on your knees, friend; and she was as lively in the circle as any child I ever saw.)

The medium being then taken into the cabinet, a form appeared in white, closed the curtain again for a moment, and then came out, walked across the room and greeted Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt and held a conversation with them for at least five minutes, and was thoroughly recognized by them as a very dear friend and neighbor. Mr. Greaves was visited by his spirit wife and sister. Miss Burrough's father, who was a major in the army during the war came to her in the uniform of a live officer, walking across the room to her in full view of all the circle, was introduced by her to the circle. Mr. Blodgett was greeted by his two spirit wives—one of them being that celebrated spiritual worker, test and slate-writing medium, long identified with the Mississippi Valley Camp-meeting Association, and an officer in the N. S. A. at the time of her transition to the world of spirit. Mrs. Barkaloo received a visit from her spirit husband and her bright little guide, who materialized a large piece of lace in full view of the audience, then called her medium to her, also a gentleman, and covered the three with the lace she had woven, and held quite a conversation with them. Mr. O. J. Johnson was greeted by a very dear one of early days, his mother also came across the room to him, showing her size and height, being very large and fully six feet tall, and talked with him in the Norwegian language. Mrs. Welch and granddaughter were visited by her husband, and they both said he was as natural as he was in life. Miss Edith Jacobs' mother, who has been gone from her earth home but a short time, gave her full proof of her identity. Mr. Rathburn's dearest of all to him came and sang two verses of a favorite song with him. One of the strongest spirits who came visited with Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt in the hall entirely outside the seance-room.

All present received positive proof of the life immortal. Where complete harmony prevails and the sitters remain passive and quiet, Mrs. Aspinwall's demonstrations will prove without a doubt the continuity of life.

Give the medium a confederate-proof cabinet and then judge of the manifestations which appear; if children, persons one-half the medium's size, men larger and taller, old men and young men, coming out so that they can be seen and recognized, does not prove to any unprejudiced person the truth of materialization, all the test conditions on earth would not do so.

The day and evening of December 26, 1896, spent with Dr. and Mrs. Aspinwall, Prairie Flower and her other guides will be a green spot in our memory as long as life lasts. Anyone desiring to verify the above statement can do so by writing to any of those who were present viz.: Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Hoyt, 116 1st st. N.; Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Johnson, 822 16th avenue S.; Mrs. M. A. Barkaloo, 622 Wabash street; Mrs. Emma Fetch, 26th and Garfield avenue; Mr. Alonzo Rathburn, Soldiers' Home; Frank W. Greaves, 38 So. 4th; J. C. Blodgett, N. Y. Life Building; Miss Flo. Burrows, corner 6th and 7th avenues; Miss Edith Jacobs, 2433 5th avenue.

I certify that the above details and names are correct.

St Paul, Minn. S. N. ASPINWALL.

CHILDLESS.

What would I not give to see faces now gone,
And hear their dear voices, once mingled in song;
To feel the warm touch of their lips in a kiss
As they fondly caressed me? Ah, then life was bliss.

When spring with her flowers and singing birds gay
Comes, bidding the children in woodlands to play,
To search 'neath the leaves for the first blossoms peeping
For mine she calls vainly; alas, they are sleeping.

Then follows the summer, with hills clothed in green
And long, balmy evenings when children are seen
So happy in groups, as bright roses they twine
In silence I turn to these four graves of mine.

With autumn and winter my life's slowly dying
'Neath this burden of sorrow my poor heart is crying
For rest that comes only through death's golden gate.
Oh, God, in your mercy, how long must I wait?

A response comes like music from some distant shore:
"Dear heart, be not lonely, thou art loved as of yore;
We come from God's beautiful garden on high,
Your children of earth still are yours in the sky."

AGNES TUTTLE.

Berlin Heights, O.

"Angel Whisperings for the Searcher After Truth." By Hattie J. Ray. A volume of genuine poems, of such fine moral and spiritual tone that all will be pleased and benefited by it. For sale at this office. Price $1.

AN ENERGETIC WORKER.

SHE GIVES SOME INTERESTING EXPERIENCES, SUGGESTIONS AND ADVICE—SHE VISITS A LIBERAL SCHOOL AND HAS PLACED HER CHILDREN THERE.

To the Editor:—I visited Toronto last August, working there from the last of that month until the 23d of December, succeeding in organizing a society with seventy-eight members, and upon leaving I had the pleasure of knowing that one of our noble veterans for the cause of truth would take my place, Lyman C. Howe.

While in Canada I visited Hamilton, and found many true friends, delivered two lectures in a private home, and had the pleasure of collecting a sum of money for the benefit of the N. S. A.

Let me say in passing that I feel all who are interested in the promulgating of our beautiful truth, should do all they can to advance the interest of the N. S. A., for only by organized effort can we ever expect to demand the respect of the public at large.

I also visited Guelph while in Canada, and found there Mrs. Sarah Webber, Mr. Fred Ivay and Mr. Rowan doing all they could to keep the interest in Spiritualism alive. I was the guest of Mrs. Webber and met with a great many church people, who were oh, so anxious to gain a little knowledge of the truth.

From Toronto I journeyed to Belvidere, N. J., where I spent the holidays at Miss Bell Bush's school. I had placed my children there some months ago, and brought from Canada a little boy who will remain there for some months, perhaps years. I feel it is the duty of all Spiritualists to place their children where they can receive a spiritual education, and I am well satisfied with the discipline and home comforts, not forgetting the higher education that my little ones are receiving at the hands of "Bell" Bush. If any Spiritualists throughout the country can aid this worthy woman by sending to her pupils, I hope they will do so. We spent a week of rest there and met with the little ones one Sunday afternoon. It was very pleasing to note that they had a lyceum known as the "Sunbeam Lyceum." The president is only ten years old, and as his bright gray eyes looked over his school, I know that every inch of that little boy felt the importance of his position.

The secretary is only eight years old, a bright brown-eyed, curly-haired little darling, and as she stood up and read the minutes of their last Sunday's meeting, my eyes could not help but fill with tears and my heart whisper, "from the lips of children issueth wisdom." The subject of their lesson was "Work," and the sentiments expressed by each member were very quaint and even beautiful. I know that much credit is due Miss Bush for her untiring efforts in educating the children placed there under her charge, and her staunch true heartedness in fighting for the cause of Spiritualism against many adverse conditions.

Again, let me plead with the Spiritualists throughout the country who have children to whom they are anxious to give a spiritual education, send them to her.

We left Belvidere the last day of the old year, spent a few days in Philadelphia, thence to Washington, D. C., where we remained three days, attended the Sunday meetings morning and evening at the I. O. O. F. Temple; also visited the Secular League and listened to addresses delivered by Hon. L. V. Moulton, Dr. George Fuller and H. D. Barrett, in behalf of the news boys of Washington and against the discrimination of the taxation of church property. In the words of another, let me say, "It was good to be there," and we were very glad that we were on the "right side of the fence," for some of the ideas expressed were not highly complimentary to those who were on the wrong side.

We are now in the sunny south, and all our efforts are to assist in making the Mass Meeting at this junction in March a success. I hope to send you before long a good report from "Dixie." Oh, what a need of workers I find here, and feel at times much like a General who is anxious to face a battle which he knows must be fought, and yet before he can start out in martial array he must drill and call all his force around him, know the strength and ability of each one, before he can hope to face the fire, yet I know the work here will be carried out bravely to a successful issue by the workers who are at hand, and we shall send you a good report of our Mass Meetings from Atlanta, Ga., soon I hope.

I reached this city one week ago, found a society known as the "Society of Spiritual Science," which holds a charter under the N. S. A., conducting meetings every Sunday evening in the "K. of P." Hall. The worthy president, R. E. Webster, assisted by J. P. Bryant, does all he can to place Spiritualism upon an elevated plane and has been ably assisted by other members of the society whose names I have not at hand. He is anxious to build up a strong enough organization to not only own their own meeting place, but to be able to pay their minster, lecturer or medium a salary large enough each month, so the medium who is officiating for them need not give sittings to pay his or her expenses. This is on the road to the elevation of Spiritualism for in many cities that I have visited, I find a number of Spiritualists who think a medium should lecture and give tests free, their only remuneration: "The advertising they are doing for themselves so they can give sittings and in that way make money." I think we must do away with that old method, for truly a "laborer is worthy of his hire," therefore if a medium is a teacher and worker for the upbuilding of Spiritualism, they should be paid for that work.

I will now say a few words in behalf of Mrs. Gebauer, who has worked faithfully for the society here the past four months, lecturing and giving tests every Sunday night, also holding one circle a week for the "Ladies' Aid." She is a staunch true worker and deserves much praise for her work. By the way, she must live outside the city's limits, or she cannot do any private work, as there is a law in this city prohibiting any medium from giving sittings, all are classed under the head of "Fortune Telling." I hope to see such a bill rescinded in the near future.

I am afraid my letter is getting too long, so with my New Year greetings to your valuable paper, and to my many friends who are readers of it, I am, fraternally thine.

LOE F. PRIOR.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Talleyrand's Letter to the Pope" will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts he states, and his keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Sold at this office. Price 25 cents.

MOST WONDERFUL BOOKS.

The Warfare of Science With Theology.

A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom. By ANDREW D. WHITE, LL. D., late President and Professor of History at Cornell University. In Two Volumes. 8vo. Cloth, Five Dollars. For Sale at This Office.

In these two large volumes are combined information that the reader could not find in the libraries of the world in fifty years. It shows the constant and determined opposition of Theology to the advancement that has been made in every branch of Science. To the Student it is indispensible. Every Free Thought Speaker should have it. It should circulate in every community. It goes into minute details, citing in all cases the authority, showing the persistency of Theology in fighting new and advanced ideas in Science.

"The magnum opus of the eminent ex-President of Cornell plants a new and notable milestone along the highway of ever-advancing human thought. The work is the masterpiece of a mind as devoid of wanton iconoclasm as of moral cowardice. It is a definite statement of where the best thinkers of the world now stand in the religio-scientific conflict. It is clear, honest, brave, and must be given a place among the great books of the year."—Chicago Tribune.

"The most valuable contribution that has yet been made to the history of the conflict between the theologians and the scientists; struggles that have alarmed timid Christians, but, as Mr. White shows, there was no occasion for alarm. The several chapters are extremely interesting, and while President White never flinches in telling the whole truth, as he thinks science has ascertained it, he is nowhere irreverent. He confronts truth, takes its hand, and follows boldly wherever truth bids him come."—Buffalo Commercial.

"The book is written almost colloquially, and so interestingly as to enchain the attention at once, and keep it enchained. Concise as a history of the universe could be made, tabulated so that instant reference to a particular bit of history, theory, or biography may be had, it will be valuable as a lexicon relating to religious controversy. It is crammed with information, sorted, sifted, winnowed, and prepared for the consumer, as reading it is of an absorbing interest, and it will probably provoke answering arguments."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"Undoubtedly the most exhaustive treatise which has been written on this subject. It is able, scholarly, critical, and impartial in tone."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"A literary event of prime importance is the appearance of 'A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom.'"—Philadelphia Press.

These two large volumes, containing about 900 pages, will be sent to any address on the receipt of the price, Five Dollars.

A UNIQUE BIBLE PICTURE-BOOK.

OLD TESTAMENT STORIES

COMICALLY ILLUSTRATED.

By WATSON HESTON.

The Stories Humorously Told—And Hard Facts Given Concerning the Origin and Authenticity of the Old Testament—A Page of Text to Each Picture.

400 Pages. 200 Full-Page Pictures.

CONTENTS.

Sustaining a Theory,
Some Giants,
The Adventures and Work of Noah,
A Hunting Anecdote,
Abraham, Christ's Great Ancestor,
A Queer Family,
Isaac and His "Sister,"
One of Twins,
Jacob and Esau,
Joseph the Man of Dreams,
Holy Moses,
Balaam the Diviner,
Bloody Joshua,
The Campaign of Deborah and Barak Against Jabin and Sisera,
General Gideon,
Jephthah and His Human Sacrifice,
Samson the Strong,
Ruth and Boaz,
Unstable as Water, God Shall Not Excel,
David, God's Favorite,
Some Stories from the Book of Kings,
Adventures of the Prophets,
Jonah the Truthful Sailor.

Cloth, gilt side stamp, $1.50; Boards, illuminated covers, $1.

Address THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Barr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By Moses Hull. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. . . . Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and sense are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

BIBLE MARVEL WORKERS,

AND THE WONDROUS POWER which helped or made them perform mighty works and utter inspired words, together with some Personal Traits and Characteristics of Prophets, Apostles, and Jesus, or New Readings of "The Miracles," by Allen Putnam. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Occult Forces of Sex

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This admirable work consists of three pamphlets embodied in one volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

A SEX REVOLUTION,

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

Author of "Helen Harlow's Vow," "The Occult Forces of Sex," "Perfect Motherhood," and many other works. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

Have you promised yourself the rare pleasure of reading this beautiful work by the good, old-time writer, Hudson Tuttle? Price, 50 cents. Contains a fine portrait of the author. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.

IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual ailment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

WAS ABRAHAM LINCOLN A SPIRITUALIST?

—OR—

Curious Revelations from the Life of a Trance Medium.

—BY—

MRS. NETTIE COLBURN MAYNARD

Together with Portraits, Letters and Poems. Illustrated with Engravings and Frontispiece of Lincoln, from Carpenter's Portrait from Life.

This book will be found peculiar, curious, startling!—more so than any work issued since Uncle Tom's Cabin. It breathes forgotten whispers which the rust of time had almost covered, and which have been snatched from the very jaws of oblivion. It deals with high official private life during the most momentous period in American History, and is a secret page from the life of him whom time serves only to make greater, more appreciated, and more understood—"Abraham Lincoln."

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated, pp. 264, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this office.

THE ELIMINATOR

—OR—

Skeleton Keys to Sacerdotal Secrets.

BY DR. R. B. WESTBROOK.

Profoundly reverent, but thoroughly radical; exposing the fabulous claims of ancient Judaism and dogmatic Christianity, containing many startling conclusions never before published, showing clearly the mythical character of most of the Old and New Testament stories, and proving that Jesus was an impersonation and not a person. A genuine sensation.

Price $1.50. For Sale at this Office.

Ingersoll's Great Address

On Thomas Paine, at the late Paine celebration in New York City. Price, 5 cents; ten copies for 50 cents.

GOLDEN LAXATIVE COFFEE.

SOMETHING NEW, BUT OH, SO NICE!

CURES CONSTIPATION!

Ask your druggist for it, and if they don't have it, ask them to order some of us, and they will do it.

GOES AS FAR AS 4 POUNDS OF PURE COFFEE.

A Package by Mail, 50 Cents.

Golden Laxative Coffee Co., AYER, MASS.

SOLDIERS AT WORK.

THE OLD SOLDIERS ARE COMING TO THE FRONT TO FIGHT FOR SPIRITUALISM AND TRUTH—THE VETERANS OF THE NATIONAL MILITARY HOME, OHIO, ORGANIZE A SOCIETY.

The first meeting of this society was held Sunday, 17th inst., and pronounced a grand success with the brightest prospects. The old soldiers not only filled the hall, but many were unable to gain admittance. It is now an established fact that Spiritualism has already shed over this home of 5,000 veterans an influence of the best results. The exercises under the able management have met with the approval of all and hundreds are in thoughtful discussion and anxious to investigate the new religion now introduced among them. The address of the president, H. A. Pugh, was received with great praise. It was as follows:

Every pleasant evening last summer, with the golden rays of the setting sun, the soft zephyrs of the twilight hour, the millions of worlds sheding their lustre overhead, and the evidence of spirit friends around, a group of five or six congenial friends could be seen lounging under their favorite tree in the grove south of the officers' qaurters. Passers-by gazed in wonder. Here they met in social discussion of a subject which is engaging the attention of science and the leading minds of the world to-day—"occult forces and Spiritualism."

The great and yearning desire of that little band was to secure a better place of meeting in order to better their conditions; a little room, the old schoolhouse even. But the fear of criticism, ridicule and objections of the officers and members of the home prevented their advancement. One more bold than the rest grasped the idea that there was no fear of failure in a cause of truth and justice when properly presented. So that little germ of a thought planted in a grove of maples blossomed and bloomed, came to maturity, and has materialized like those beautiful flowers in what we see here to-day—an organization—the Veterans' Spiritual Society, National Military Home, Ohio. After liberal discussion and deliberate consideration the Governor of this home has kindly granted us the use of this cozy hall. Here with the soft strains of music, the sweet essence of flowers, our mingled voices in song, with spirit influences as our control and harmony as our guide, we may fraternally meet for a divine object.

The object of this society is to teach the spiritual lessons of the Bible, the spiritual teachings of Christ, the immortality of the soul, that there is no death and that the spirit does return. We propose to have able speakers to give you the elementary principles of occult forces and evolution in order that you may the better understand the phenomena of our scientific religion. We propose to show you that the same laws that govern the Universe and the millions of suns with their planetary systems in their orbits, as well as the fall of the snow flakes or the pearly dewdrops on the blade of grass, also govern the phenomena of Spiritualism. We propose to have genuine mediums who with the proper conditions will demonstrate to you that spirits do return; that departed friends and families can be again reunited in sweet communion. Again the father will greet his son as mine has frequently, with the loving words, "God bless you, my son." Brother and sister will again meet; again the innocent babe will rest on the bosom of its mother. The soldier will again hold in his arms his dying comrade and hear his pleading words. Should not such teachings and demonstrations improve morality, banish all selfishness and dispel all fear of death, so that we may hope for the time soon to come when we can say peace on earth, good will to man.

I see before me some whom I know are unbelievers; others skeptics, and a few investigators; yet I think I can safely say they all are looking for the light and knowledge to satisfy the craving whispers of that still small voice within. Should not our teachings shed over this home a calm and peaceful influence? Go ask and the unbeliever when his mind has been relieved by the kind words of an indulgent father. Go and ask the skeptic when his mind has been pacified by the loving words of an angel mother. Go and ask the investigator when the still small voice within has been satisfied with the light and truth of our belief. Then will true Spiritualists rejoice in singing praises with the angels in heaven.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

IMPORTANT!

DR. C. E. WATKINS, —THE— FAMOUS CHRONIST, OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

C. E. WATKINS, M. D., AYER, MASS.

FACTS

Of Interest to the Sick.

ARE THERE GENUINE HEALERS?

Just now the papers are full of the wonderful cures being made by this man, or that woman. Men of scientific turn of mind are trying to test these parties to ascertain if the cures are not made through hypnotic influence. We fail to see what difference this will make. If these cures are made by these healers it makes no difference how it is done. What the public wants to know is, do they cure? Those who are sick, perhaps, would prefer to be cured by irregular ways than to die in a regular way; or, in other words, they would prefer to be cured by a healer or psychical doctor than to die under the regular treatment. The sick of this city will, on Tuesday, the nineteenth of this month, have a chance to consult Doctor C. E. Watkins, the famous Boston Chronist. Though Doctor Watkins is a regular graduate, still he has a wonderful psychic gift of correctly diagnosing diseases and curing same. He boldly claims that if he did not have this psychic power, he would not practice medicine a single day.—From the Haverhill Evening Gazette, January 18, 1897.

COL. R. M. LITTLER PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

Sunday, January 24th, Colonel R. M. Littler, until recently secretary of the produce exchange, died at his home, No. 751 Walnut street. Colonel Littler has been confined to his bed since last April, and for the last two weeks had suffered greatly. His complaint was a complication of kidney and stomach trouble.

For two years Colonel Littler had been blind, caused by the decay of the optic nerve; but he retained his place as secretary of the produce exchange until last May, when his health obliged him to give it up. His son Percy succeeded him.

Colonel Littler was born in Winchester, Va., sixty-three years ago. He was twice married, and leaves a widow and four sons and a married daughter.

When he was twenty years old he moved to Cincinnati. He was then by trade a machinist. Before this he had served in the Mexican war, entering at the age of seventeen and retiring at the close of war. All his life, indeed, he was interested in military matters.

Through putting in steam engines for printing presses, Colonel Littler next became interested in newspapers. He worked as a reporter and then editorially for the Davenport Gazette, an abolitionist paper, until the outbreak of the civil war, when he raised Company B of the Second Iowa Regiment. Later he was promoted to Colonel. He lost his left arm at the battle of Shiloh, but when his wound had healed returned to the front to do what he could.

After the war he returned to Iowa, and was city editor of the Gazette, and also, for eight years, chief of the fire department. He was in newspaper work until he came to Chicago in 1884 to take the place of secretary of the produce exchange. At the time of the Paris Exposition he went abroad as the secretary of the National Butter and Egg Association, of which organization he remained secretary till his death.

Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, pastor of the Church of the Soul, of which Mrs. Littler is a member, officiated at the funeral services, to the great comfort and instruction of all present. There were beautiful floral tributes from the Produce Exchange, thirty members of which were in attendance to pay their respects to their late secretary.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

SPECIALISTS IN ALL CHRONIC DISEASES.

—Depend for their remarkable cures, not upon the old drastic drug system, but upon the knowledge of diseases and their proper remedies—upon science and the finer psychic forces.

Some of their cures, like Schlatter's, are INSTANTANEOUS; in other cases months are required

Having carefully studied all the therapeutic agencies in connection with their long medical experience, they use those best adapted to each case with unvarying success.

Hundreds are joyfully writing the Doctor: "I am better," or "I am cured." "God bless you."

THEY TREAT THE FOLLOWING: Dyspepsia, diarrhœa, dropsy, epilepsy, eczema, erysipelas, falling sickness, rheumatism, scrofula, nervous spasm, gravel, gout, headaches, heart disease, kidney complaint, female weakness, liver difficulty, neuralgia, paralysis, bleeding piles, bronchitis, asthma, bladder affection, cancer, catarrh, pimples upon the face, uterine diseases, weaknesses of men, barrenness, insanity, drunkenness, constipation, la grippe and all chronic diseases. And further, they furnish

FREE TO ALL PATIENTS

Hygenic and Physiological literature, enabling them when cured, to remain healthy.

Correct Diagnosis Free,

By enclosing name, age, sex, leading symptom and stamp for reply.

REMEMBER TO ADDRESS

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS, P. O. BOX 177, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. 353tf

IN THE SPIRIT LAND.

JOHN H. DISLER, A MODEL MAN, SEEMING TO POSSESS ALL THE CARDINAL VIRTUES, IS DOING A MOST EXCELLENT WORK FOR SPIRITUALISM.

I desire to make a few statements concerning a matter mentioned in the Daily Joplin Globe, of a few weeks ago, in the line of so-called new religion. It was said in the article referred to that Mr. John H. Disler, of Carthage, Mo., was having, to the uninitiated, very strange and weird phenomena in this presence in the small assemblies at residences in this city. I will give an account of but one which your correspondent had the pleasure of attending, by special invitation, at the house of J. C. Gaston on Third street. There were ten persons present besides the family. There was a telegraph key entirely detached from any battery, a horn and two bells and a mouth harp lying on the table. The room was fourteen feet square and the small table occupied the center.

During the most interesting part of the affair the company sat clear back to the walls from the table and Mr. D.'s hands were held by the persons sitting on each side of him. There was a lady present who was an operator, and also a gentleman, whose names anyone can hear by calling at Mr. Gaston's, who received the messages written on the key, purporting to be dictated by some particular one on the spirit side of life. The gentleman operator present received a message from a lady friend who passed out of the mortal several years ago. It was telegraphed plainly and distinctly as follows: "I am glad to return to you and be recognized." When asked her name she wrote "Sue," She continued saying, "I had a great many burdens to bear and life was hard in my earth home, but I am happy now in this beautiful world of peace. You are investigating the greatest truth the world ever heard of." There were other messages written out and frequent lights would rise and meander through the room above the sitters' heads, the bells on the table would keep time to the singing, perfectly, and everyone in the room was touched by supposed spirit hands, some of the company many times, and you would hear thankful expressions almost every few minutes from the ones who had received the strokes of love and recognition from their loved ones from the other side. The telegraph machine was carried and laid on the lap of one of the gentlemen and commenced to operate, but was interrupted.

One lady got a message from her sweetheart, saying he would have returned had he not passed over to the spirit land. The harp, supposed to be it, was carried up to the ceiling and bumped against it so that we could all hear the sounds. There were several short messages telegraphed on the table—called wood telegraphy.

Most of the time of the sitting there was conversation going on or singing and all seemed happy. The crowd were all educated and refined people and there was not the least suspicion with anyone present that there was any desire on the part of anyone to deceive or perpetrate fraud, and such a thing was impossible, had there been any design or attempt to do so. Science has failed to account for these phenomena and the world is fast accepting the inevitable—so say the great army of earnest students and adepts in the occult philosophy and phenomena. S.

Mr. John H. Disler, is a rare medium. His powers have never been exploited to the public. He has lived rather an humble domestic life, giving his friends the benefits of his beautiful gifts. The writer has known him for twelve years, but never set with him until recently. He has the credit of being temperate, not chewing, smoking, nor drinking liquor, tea nor coffee, which is a rather remarkable exception to physical mediums. His wife is a good clairvoyant, and they have a daughter thirteen years of age who is a fine automatic writer. They live in Carthage, this county. I have attended four of his seances in this city and at most of them have addressed the circle under spirit influence.

SAMUEL JOSEPH DAILY, M. D. Joplin, Mo.

"Mediumship and Its Development, and How to Mesmerize to Assist Development." By W. H. Bach. Especially useful to learners who seek to know and utilize the laws of mediumship and development, and avoid errors. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

A new edition of "Three Sevens," by the Phelons, is just issued. The May Arena says: "The gist of such books as Dr. Phelon's 'Three Sevens,' and other works descriptive of or alluding to the various occult societies, which seem to have existed for ages, has never, until recently, been said so openly and plainly that 'he who runs may read.'" Cloth $1.25, postpaid. For sale at this office.

"Hypnotism Up to Date." By Sidney Flower. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cents. Sold at this office.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker, AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL!

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S.

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly, REBECCA LEVY.

3331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

GENERAL SURVEY

(Continued from page 6.)

ration of her life. Her severe illness will explain to her many friends and correspondents, the reason why they have not heard from her of late. She is convalescent, however, and hopes to soon assume her place in the field.

The Chicago Esoteric Extension. On Tuesday evening, February 9th, the scientific phase of esotericism will be presented by W. Xavier Sudduth, A. M., M. D., and Dr. Colin Scott. The subject of Dr. Sudduth's address will be "Thought Transference," and Dr. Scott will speak upon "Some Aspects of Modern Psychology." These gentlemen are too well known to the scientific world to require any further notice, and an evening of rare intellectual enjoyment may be predicted. The meeting will be opened by Dr. C. C. Bonney, president of the World's Congress Extension. He will present the speaker of the evening. These meetings are held in Drill Hall, Masonic Temple.

Miss L. Lyngberg writes from Salt Lake City: "We have been favored for some months with the Brockway Family, who have been doing a grand work here. We feel sorry to have them leave and they carry with them our best wishes for their success in the work for the cause of truth. We have been reading The Progressive Thinker for a number of years, and think it the best paper of its kind."

By request, Georgina McIntyre, the mystic healer, will meet those who are aspiring to truth at Mrs. Dr. A. Lamon's, 115 S. Paulina street, Monday evening, February 8, at 8 o'clock. Subject: "What Are We Here For?" The object of these meetings, which are held every Friday evening at her own home, 1891 Washington Boulevard, is to organize such persons as are ready into a "Band of Love," to work not alone for self-improvement and development, but for the larger blessings which may radiate out from it, to all humanity. Recitations upon spiritual subjects, together with music, will add to the harmony of the meeting. All are welcome.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

Awakened to spirit-life, January 14, Ann Wilson, aged 50 years. Through this half a century she had been a true, faithful wife and mother, and for many years a true Spiritualist and medium, giving many loving messages of comfort and advice from the higher realms. The writer, with many loving friends, tenderly placed the body in mother earth, fully realizing that bright angels attended the triumphantly liberated spirit. JOHN W. RING.

An honored and esteemed citizen of Horton, Mich., Loring G. Huntly, passed peacefully into spirit-life, January 12, 1897, having traveled in the valley 69 years, 6 months and 8 days.

Deceased leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss, also a brother, three sisters, and several grand-children. Mrs. Emily P. Beebe, of Spring Arbor, officiated. Deceased was a consistent Spiritualist, leaving the vale in the full knowledge of the continuity of life. IRMA DEMING.

Passed to the higher life, after a lingering illness of nearly two years, of what the M. D's. had to call consumption, Mrs Rebecca Sackett, at her home, No. 4304 N. Main street, Findlay, O., on January 5, aged nearly 48 years. She, with her husband, was a lifelong Spiritualist, and her family, which consists of three sons and four daughters, who remain still on the earth-plane and weekly hold their spiritual circles to continue in conversation with her, have all been instructed in the truths of Spiritualism; so now while they miss her physical presence, they know for a certainty she is not dead—not even asleep—simply gone to prepare a place for them. It was the writer's pleasure as an instrument in the control of the spirits, to officiate at the funeral on January 7, at her late residence, it being the first spiritual funeral in Findlay. M. F. HAMMOND.

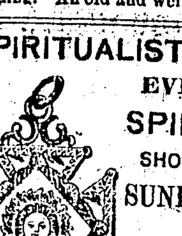
Passed to spirit-life, January 20, 1897, Mrs. Clara Beesing, wife of L. C. Beesing, the secretary of the First Spiritual Church, Buffalo, N. Y. The deceased was blessed with the knowledge that death is not the end. The writer officiated at the funeral service. T. GRIMSHAW.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

A Good Offer.

If you are sick and have failed to find relief, send your name and address to Dr. J. R. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a correct diagnosis. Stamps for reply. 378



Dr. E. J. Worst, of Ashland, Ohio, will mail any reader of The Progressive Thinker one of his new Aerial Catarrh Inhalers with medicine enough for one year free. He will allow you three days as a trial, then if perfectly satisfied, send him $1; if not, return it to him in the original package. Catarrh, asthma, colds in the head, bronchitis and tuberculosis immediately relieved and speedily cured. Don't pay big prices for worthless inhalers. Address above. 376

An able man shows his spirit by gentle words and resolute actions. He is neither hot nor timid.—Chesterfield.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

SPIRITUALIST BADGES.

EVERY.... SPIRITUALIST SHOULD WEAR THE SUNFLOWER JEWELRY.

As the Sunflower turns its face towards the sun, so Spiritualism turns the faces of humanity from darkness and superstition towards the Sunlight of Truth and Progression.

PRICES:

Rolled Plate Bar Pin	$2 25
Solid Gold Bar Pin	3 50
Electro-plate Badge	75
Rolled Plate Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 25
Solid Gold Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 75
Rolled Plate Maltese Watch Charm	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Watch Charm	5 00
Rolled Plate Maltese Pendant	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Pendant	5 00

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE, 40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO

MADAME ANNA ALPLANALB, THE CELEBRATED Gypsy Palmist and Psychometric Reader,

Is well known throughout America, having been before the public twenty years. Send date of birth, sex and complexion, with a glove lately worn, and receive a life reading. Fee $1. 3044 So. Fremont ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 376

"Revelations of a Spirit Medium."

324 pages illustrated. Former price $1.50; our price, 75 cents, prepaid. "Illusions and Mental Phenomena," two volumes, 25 cents each, prepaid. CLYDE PUBLISHING CO., Box 831, Chicago, Ill. 378

THOS. E. ADDY, 183 SOUTH BROADWAY, Aurora, Ill., trance, test and business medium. Sittings daily. Send 25 cents silver and 2-cent stamp for a recognized test from your spirit friends. 376

AFTER DEATH—I WILL TELL ANYONE SENDing me 25 cents and their name and date of birth, the life they have lived, and what their life will be after death. It is a wonderful thing to know. Do not miss this golden opportunity to all. Strictly private, with my prompt attention. Address C. D. Farmer, Petoskey, Mich., No. 39 West Mitchell street. 376

Past, Present and Future.

You know the past. All that concerns you is the NOW. You can make or mar your own future. It is something like a game of chess or cards. You have to make a few moves or make a big bluff yourself, or the other fellow will get the best of you. Wouldn't it be just as well if you would spend four cents and find out something of our methods, and what we are doing? Two 2-cent stamps—one for your letter and one for ours; see? And in the course of time it may mean, health, success and happiness for you. What more do you want? Address PROF. ROWLAND J BROWN, 5815 Randolph St., Austin, Cook Co., Ill. 376

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causes and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

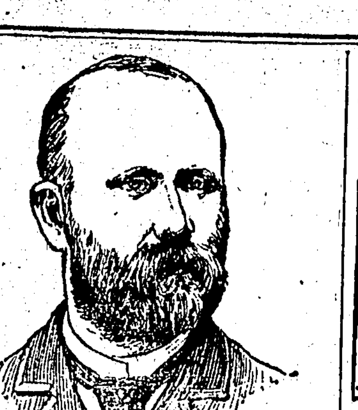
"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

An abridged edition of "Antiquity Unveiled" gives in condensed form its more important statements and references. It is in stiff board covers, and the price is 50 cents. For sale at this office.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.



Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments cannot do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.

Address EMMA ROOD TUTTLE, Berlin Heights, Ohio.

HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

FORSTER, DR. W. M, THE NOTED MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address, DR. W. M. FORSTER, 1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 333

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF, Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 384

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

PSYCHOMETRY, CONSULT WITH Prof. A. B. Severance in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit-friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address, 710 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis. 38tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 2-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL, Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 378

MRS. B. HASENCLEVER, 681 MADISON STREET. Test and trumpet circle every Tuesday at 3 and 8 o'clock. 25 cents. Materializing seance Wednesdays and Saturdays at 8. Independent slate-writing daily. 377

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily. 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 730 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 376

Seership—Guide to Soul-Light.

Its art and culture, with rules for its attainment. Lucidity is no gift, but a universal possibility common to the human family. Price $2.

EULIS. The Third Revelation of Soul and Sex. A work containing many secret and inner doctrines of the Rosicrucians. In it and by it both man and woman have not merely the road to enormous power, both mental and individual, but the grand energy of effecting wished-for changes in others; also prolongation of life. Price $2.50. Address KATE C. RANDOLPH, 23 Melrose avenue, Toledo, O. 379

FINE PORTRAITS.

I will paint any spirit or any other photo in crayon, on receipt of $1.35. Enclose stamp for particulars. MRS. LOU RUSSELL, Littleport, Iowa. 376

IF YOU ARE SICK

with any form of disease, send ten cents (silver or stamps) to Dr. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a trial treatment of a revealed vegetable tablet. They will positively cure any disease, including stomach, liver or kidney trouble; also rheumatism and diseases of the nervous system. Testimonials will be furnished from people who have been permanently cured with one trial treatment. 377

TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED.

A POWERFUL HEALER AND PSYCHOMETRIST.

Send address, lock of hair and two leading symptoms for diagnosis and remit two 2-cent stamps for return.

DR. M. E. SELLEN, Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 377

MRS. STARR—MEDIUM, ASTROLOGER, PALMist, gives sittings daily. Inspirational music developed; other phases. 800 Sixty-third Court, (not street) Englewood. Get off at Union avenue. 376

READ WHAT W. A. RHYNARD, STAINT PARIS, Ohio, says: "My reading Jan 20, 1896, has come true in every particular—lawsuit, sickness and business. Enclosed amount for another, December 30, 1896." MARGUERITE ST. OMER BRIGGS, Psychometrist, 738 Richmond St., Cincinnati, O. Readings, $1. Readings, diagnosis and business, $2. 376

MRS. S. F. DeWOLF—INDEPENDENT SLATE writing. 240 Winchester ave., near Van Buren. Madison street car; take transfer at Robey. Ladies' circle, Thursdays at 2:30. Chicago, Ill. 379

LADIES, If you have superfluous HAIR ON THE FACE send for new information how to remove it easily and effectually without chemicals or instruments. Correspondence confidential in plain sealed envelope. Mrs. M. N. PERRY, B-130, Oak Park, Ill.

HOROSCOPES ★ FREE For Men, Women, Young People and Children.

Send at once. PLANETS AND PEOPLE, Enclose Stamp. 169 Jackson St., Chicago.

Send 25 cents for MAGAZINE OF THE HEAVENS.

THE DIAKKA.

THE DIAKKA AND THEIR EARTHLY Victims, by the Seer, A. J. Davis, is a very interesting and suggestive work. It is an explanation of much that is false and repulsive in Spiritualism, embodying a most important recent interview with James Victor Wilson, a resident of the Summer-Land. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office

The Development of the Spirit After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

ASTROPATHY THE ART OF HEALING UNDER PLANETARY LAW.

Something new and startling. This knowledge is from a higher source and is fully explained in the "ASTRAL GUIDE," which will be sent FREE to any address upon receipt of a two cent stamp for postage. Astrological students, Physicians, Healers, Nurses, Everybody MUST have the "Guide."

L. J. SHAFER, Chemist, 31 Calkins Ave., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT, M. D. LL. D., Dean

A WONDERFUL OFFER ..BY... DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but were readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and band, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1821 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by FREDERICK WHITE, O. O.M., 502 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.

Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD. Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

DR. GARLAND'S VEGETABLE COUGH DROPS

Are put up in six-ounce tin boxes and are guaranteed to give satisfaction or money will be refunded by the proprietor, Dr. M. H. Garland. Send 25 cents in stamps and receive by return mail a box of this

HOUSEHOLD REMEDY

as you will find it a blood cleanser as well as a Throat and Lung Remedy. Over 200,000 boxes sold and all recommend them. Address all orders to DR. M. H. GARLAND, 332 Sixtieth Place, Station O., Chicago, Illinois. 322tf

ORDER OF THE MAGI.

A New Badge in solid gold with blue and black enamel, with the pyramids, obelisk and sun's rays in gold. Every Mystic should have one of these beautiful emblems. Price $2. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

DR. T. WILKINS, 67 33D STREET, CHICAGO, Treats Magnetically all Chronic Diseases, at office, or home of the patient.

CHRONIC DISEASES A SPECIALTY.

Send your age, name in full in your own handwriting, and I will diagnose your disease

FREE OF CHARGE!

Enclose three 2-cent stamps and address

J. S. COOPER, M. D. Chillicothe, Mo. 384

OCCULT FORCES!

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces. Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c, or sent free for addresses of friends likely to [illegible]

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3571 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair, 52 Adams avenue, Detroit, Mich. 378

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped and addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, Station P, Chicago, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in clairvoyance, psychometry, inspiration and healing. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Reduced terms. The inspirational teachings and experiments by correspondence are just what you need to insure success. Psychoscopes $2. Mr. Grumbine is endorsed by the Spiritualistic press and leading societies throughout the country. The only inspirational and scientific system of unfoldment extant. Catalogue of publications of White Rose free. 364tf

MANSILL'S ALMANAC —OF— PLANETARY METEOROLOGY,

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OCCULTISM TAUGHT BY MAIL. BOOKLET AND first lesson free. Enclose stamp. Uriel Buchanan, Ph. D., 34 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. 376

OLD MELODIES SPIRITUALIZED — A SONG Book (words only) for the home, circle, seance and lecture room. With each book is a practicable way of use for those who sing by note. 35 cents. Address H. W. BOOZER Grand Rapids, Mich 378

DR. JULIA A. YALE.

Twenty years practice of Medicine and Magnetics. Her band of spirit healers is unsurpassed. Cures when others fail. No case that cannot be relieved. Consultation free. 48 S. May street, Chicago, Ill. Letters inclosing stamps answered. 376

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1897. NO. 377.

THE OCCULT FACULTIES IN MAN.

A Lecture Delivered by Hon. Loren A. Sherman, Before the Anthropological Society, Cleveland, Ohio.

A LECTURE BEAMING WITH RARE GEMS OF THOUGHT—SCINTILLATING THROUGHOUT, AND WORTHY OF THE PERUSAL OF EVERY THOUGHTFUL MIND—WORTH MORE THAN THE ONE DOLLAR YOU PAY FOR THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER ONE YEAR; THE LEADING SPIRITUALIST PAPER.

(Concluded from last week.)

But there came a time when further investigation, casting aside preconceived ideas and prejudices, seemed forced upon me. The death of a young son by drowning was followed within a few weeks and months by various reports coming from personal friends who were investigators that he had manifested himself in various ways as a spirit and expressed regret that I would not investigate. I paid very little attention to these reports at first, and it was not until nine months after his death that I called upon a man who designated himself as a physiognomist, residing in a distant city from my own home. We were entire strangers to each other, and I gave him no information regarding myself. We sat down in full daylight, and for a few minutes the psychic gazed fixedly at a point in the room near myself. Then he began saying, "The boy, the boy," and proceeded to give a correct personal description of my boy who had been drowned, with the principal circumstances of the event, including a number unknown to me at the time, which I afterwards ascertained to be true. The theory of occult manifestations I then held enabled me to account for some of the things he told me as thought, transference and the perception of mental pictures formed in my own brain; but it would not account for many things that occurred. Among other things he said that certain events, absolutely unexpected by me, would occur at my own residence very soon, as he saw it, within a day or two; and they did occur as predicted, failing in but one minor point. In considering these facts afterward, I could understand fully the predictions and their fulfillment, assuming the Spiritual theory to be true. If my boy actually existed as a spirit, with power to go from place to place, observe facts and events and the thoughts of living persons, he could easily have perceived the probability of such occurrences and could have helped to bring them about. Otherwise it must have been absolute prophecy in the fact of the clairvoyant, or his perceptive consciousness must have been projected to observe a great variety of circumstances among people entirely assuming the spiritual theory to be true. If unknown to him. I asked this man how the boy he claimed to see appeared to him. He said that he first saw a misty form, which gradually developed into perfect form and features, and that the form disappeared as it came, ending in a mist which finally vanished like condensed steam. This physiognomist or clairvoyant subsequently predicted many events which actually occurred, some of them fully two months after the predictions were made. On one occasion he told me I would receive a letter from an eastern city which would bring about certain results. I had no expectation at the time of receiving such a letter, and no definite idea of who would send it, but formed a theory of it in my own mind. Subsequently the letter came, but not in accordance with the theory I had formed. For a time everything proceeded according to the prediction; but before the result which the writer of the letter sought to bring about had been reached I became opposed to it, and partly by my own effort, but mainly by occurrences not anticipated, it was prevented. In this case again the circumstances were such that if the clairvoyant could really communicate with spirits they might have given him his information regarding the intention of the person to write the letter and their expectation of its result. And as the matter was one that my boy would have been deeply interested in if alive, and would probably desired to have resulted according to the wish of one who wrote the letter, I can conceive it as entirely probable that his spirit was the one that gave the clairvoyant the information, if the spiritual theory be true.

Through other clairvoyants I have been told many things likely to occur, not often with absolute positiveness, but usually as the statement that, "Your friends," or some especially named deceased friend, "think so and so," or "they are trying to bring it about," or in some other form of expression similar to that a friend in physical life who might be trying to accomplish a certain end or regarded a certain result as probable would use.

REMARKABLE PROPHECY.

On one occasion a clairvoyant said to me: "Willie says you are going to have a chance to make an important change in your business very soon, one out of which he thinks you will make some money. When it comes he wants you to remember that he told you about it." Less than a week later, to my great surprise, I did have such a proposition. At first I considered it quite impracticable for me to accept it, the investment involved being quite beyond my immediate means, and the risk great. But with very little effort I obtained the money and made the investment, and it has proved the most profitable venture I have ever engaged in. Subsequently, through another clairvoyant, who told me my boy was present, I said: "Willie, how did you know I was going to have that business proposition?" The reply was: "Why, I heard the men (naming them) talking about it. Grandpa and I are doing all we can to help you. We hear men talking, know what they think and sometimes can influence them to think as we want them to, and so help you." I state facts as they have occurred. Different inferences and conclusions will be drawn by different persons. I have no desire to influence anyone's conclusions. But so far as prophecy is concerned, while I do not say that the soul of man, either incarnate or decarnate, cannot foresee future events, except as the results of causes in operation, I have not been able to obtain any very positive evidence that it can. Those who read Bible prophecies analytically, and without prejudice, will be impressed with these facts and characteristics: Such prophecies were nearly all given as communications from spirit intelligences. All those who did not speak for Yah-weh (commonly called in the English translation the Lord, sometimes the Lord of Hosts or leader of a host of spirits, and sometimes God), and some of those who claimed to represent Jehovah were regarded as false prophets. The language most commonly used is, "Thus saith the Lord." Very many of the prophecies made by the assumed mediums of Jehovah did not come true; and in such cases the representations of the prophets usually were, as they will be found recorded in the Bible, that the Lord had repented, if evil had been threatened, or that the sins of the people had brought about disaster, if evil came when good had been promised. The prophets of Israel were indeed, quite as fallible as those of the present day, and those alleged to be false were much more numerous, proportionately, than the alleged fraudulent mediums of modern times.

HIS BOY APPEARS.

In the early days of my systematic investigation of psychic and spirit phenomena I visited a clairvoyant, whom I had met but once before, and who could by no possibility have known anything about my family affairs. This lady reported the circumstances of the drowning of my boy, including facts which, up to that time, I had not known She also reported as present, giving their names and correct descriptions, all of my deceased near relatives. One of them she called by name unknown to me, but which I afterwards ascertained was hers. During this sitting the clairvoyant said: "Willie says he is coming to you in the night and will wake you up, so that you will know it is he." I said: "Willie will let me go to sleep again, will he not?" The reply was that he would try and help me to sleep. This was in the city of Detroit. That night I occupied a room on the front of the Russell house, facing the city hall. I went to bed shortly before 11 o'clock and slept almost immediately. My next realization of consciousness found me sitting up in bed, with the feeling that I had received a powerful electric shock in the head, while before me, as though standing in air, was a boy's form, distinct in outline, but not in feature. On that side of the bed the light shone through the transom of my room, and was as clearly shaded by the figure as though the apparition had been flesh and blood. Through the windows in front the street lights shone into the room, making every object in it plainly visible. As I gazed in astonishment the figure waved its hand and faded away. For an hour afterward I tried to sleep with my face toward the window, but time and again, almost involuntary, turned my eyes toward the point where I had seen the apparition, but it did not appear again. Soon after the city hall clock struck 2 I fell asleep, and did not awaken again until after it was on the stroke of 7. The shock I had received, however given, affected my heart so seriously that I had taken medical treatment. Perhaps this experience was not what it appeared to be, but as I have related it, the occurrences were as real to me as any I have ever observed.

Physical science has demonstrated that the physical senses, unaided, bring to man's perception but a part of the facts and phenomena of the material universe with which he is surrounded. The spiritual theory goes further, and asserts that there is all about us a spiritual universe, more real than the material, peopled with intelligences first individualized through the physical, and that these intelligences are the disembodied spirits of men. As to the possibility of communication with men still in the physical body it is asserted that some persons are born with the gift of spiritual perception, and that the faculty can be developed. It is also claimed that as the mind of soul of a person in physical life can influence and control the mentality of another in hypnosis, so a decarnate soul can influence and control one still incarnate, and the physical body it operates. This theory I have found to account perfectly for phenomena that have come under my observation, while all other theories applied to such phenomena as a whole prove illogical and frequently absurd.

A BELGIAN NUN.

A lady of my acquaintance is accompanied, as was Socrates, by an attendant spirit, who as a physical being, according her own statements, was a Belgian nun. Sometimes this spiritual woman stands beside the lady and holds converse with her. Sometimes she becomes her control, as the hypnotist controls the subject, and speaks through her lips. I know that in some way this lady can become aware of events occurring at a distance, the secrets of one's own home, or his very heart. Three times she has told me of private conversations occurring in my own home, two of them between my wife and myself, and once between my wife and my daughter. All of these conversations referred to herself, and were not entirely friendly in their character. How did she become aware of them? When I pressed her for an answer to this question she said her attendant spirit had been attracted by our thoughts and words regarding her, had listened to the conversations and had reported them to her. In my first psychic interview with this lady she also said to me that her attendant spirit had been at my home and had described it to her. She then proceeded to give details, telling me of articles occupying certain positions, some of which I knew nothing about myself, but subsequently found as she had described them. She had never been in my house, and did not know its location.

On one occasion, during the early part of my investigations of occult phenomena, a member of my family handed me a sealed envelope as I was leaving home for another city, where I expected to visit a psychic. This envelope, she said contained a paper upon which was written a sentence she desired to have reported, clairvoyantly. It happened that I did not see the person I expected to, but a few days later I had a sitting with this lady at the house of a friend, when several others were present. During this sitting the psychic gave me a sentence which she said my boy Willie had dictated to her. It was peculiar, and expressed no sense. I said there must be some mistake, but was told that Willie said it was all right, and that his mamma would understand it. I therefore wrote it down, word for word. At the same time I was told that Willie said I had something in my overcoat pocket for him. I searched, but found nothing. Upon my return home I reported the circumstances, reading the peculiar sentence. The member of my family who had given me the envelope, asked if I had it about me. I had forgotten it, but found the envelope in my pocket. She told me to open it and read the writing on the slip. I did so, and found that the psychic had given me the exact words and that the sentence involved the wrong use of a word that had caused a laugh in my family once when the mistake was made by Willie during his lifetime. In the pocket of my overcoat, on more careful search, I found a geranium blossom. Just before I left my home, two hours earlier, this blossom had been slipped into the pocket of my coat as it hung in the hall by a member of my family, who said in thought, "Willie, if you can, I want you to tell papa about this flower tonight."

On many occasions I have tested psychics by thinking a question addressed to some deceased friend, or by writing the question on a slip of paper and placing it in the psychic's hand. Once I wrote, having reference to certain family matters known only to my wife and myself: "Will my father give me his opinion regarding the matter I have in mind?" If the psychic had read the writing with her physical eyes it would have been meaningless to her. Almost immediately after she had passed under hypnotic control she reported my father present, and through her lips followed a discussion of the matter I had in mind, continuing for three-quarters of an hour. The intelligence which spoke through her knew all the details of the affair, and told me some things I did not know at the time which subsequently proved true. My own line of thought was not followed, but in many points was antagonized. Upon one point my father was reported to advise that I should not do a certain thing. At the time I had nearly concluded to do just that thing, and did do it within a week after. The next time I saw this psychic she said to me: "Your father says you did not take his advice in that matter." And I was forced to confess that I did not. And in the end it proved that my own judgment was quite as good as that of the intelligence which had advised me otherwise.

A STOLEN ARTICLE RETURNED.

I might continue for hours reports of tests which have been given me of similar character. In one case my wife and myself were told that in a city distant from my own home a piece of jewelry had been taken away from our house which would be returned in a very peculiar manner. Neither of us knew that anything had been stolen. A day or two after our return home a girl who had been employed as a domestic in my family for a short time some weeks before came to my house wearing a pearl cross pin belonging to my wife. Evidently the girl had forgotten that she had it on, and when accused of stealing it said she had found it on the floor and intended to return it. Shortly afterward another psychic, who could by no possibility have known anything about the circumstances, said to me: "Willie says, 'Papa, do you know I saw the girl take that pin and I didn't want mamma to lose it. I told Mrs. Stanley about.'" Mrs. Stanley was the psychic who had reported its loss to my wife and myself before either of us knew it had been stolen. "But Willie," I said, "how did you know she would bring it back?" The reply was: "I found she was a sensitive, and that I could influence her, so I made her put it on and come up to the house, and then made her forget all about it." It is quite within reason to suppose that my boy in spirit life, hovering about his home, would give attention to little matters like this. It is quite absurd to assume that the incarnate soul of the psychic who reported the loss of the jewelry had been wandering about in a city distant from his home looking up such trifles. And he could not have obtained knowledge of the theft from the minds of his sitters, as we did not even suspect it.

Much physical phenomena may be developed in occult investigations, but there is so great an opportunity for fraud, and such manifestations are so much inferior to mental tests, that I take much less interest in them. I will say, however, that I know so-called "materialization," both of parts of bodies and of full forms, to be actualities. Christ is reported to have appeared in materialized form after his death, but His disciples did not know Him until He told them who He was, when He vanished from their sight, though the doors were closed and locked. In my own residence, in my own bedchamber, under test conditions, I have seen the forms of men and women step out; I have heard them speak; I have taken their hands, and, while holding them, I have felt them melt away and have seen the forms dissolve "into air, into thin air." Perhaps these forms were not built up by spirits, but they certainly were not built up by physical hands; and if they had been living men and women they could not have melted away before the eyes of all present. There are many frauds in alleged materialization, without doubt, but they are not all frauds, that I know.

Shakspeare puts into the mouth of Prospero, the wonderful worker of the mysterious island, these words:

> These our actors,
> As I foretold you, were all spirits and
> Are melted into air, into thin air;
> And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
> The cloud-capped towers, the gorgeous palaces,
> The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
> Yea, all which it inherits, shall dissolve
> And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
> Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff
> As dreams are made on, and our little life
> Is rounded with a sleep.

It is my opinion that the greater reality rests upon the fabric which appears so baseless to the physical senses; with the great vibrating, pulsating universe of energy, of which material things give back but a faint reflection. The great globe itself may indeed dissolve; the arrested energy which we call matter may again assert its freedom; but beyond its narrow confines stretches a wondrous and limitless universe, invisible to the dim eye which conveys to the imprisoned consciousness perception of vibrations exceedingly limited, a universe insubstantial only in its ceaseless activity.

DISTINGUISHED UNION GENERAL

The most puzzling thing the honest investigator of occult science is called upon to meet is the intermingled psychic and spirit phenomena of which I have heretofore spoken. A marked illustration of this is partially reported in Thomas Jay Hudson's "Law of Psychic Phenomena." Mr. Hudson's report of this occurrence mentions the fact that "a distinguished Union general" accompanied him on a visit to a slate-writing medium in the city of Washington, but he does not tell the whole story. I will give it as told me by the "distinguished Union general" mentioned by Mr. Hudson, who was a more prominent actor in the affair than Mr. Hudson himself.

The two gentlemen went to see Mr. Keeler, with whom they were entirely unacquainted. Gen. Hartsuff first went into the medium's private room, Mr. Hudson remaining in the outer room. He then wrote six questions on separate slips of paper, four addressed to deceased persons and two to living persons, and folded them into pellets with the writing inside. These pellets he mixed together on the table so that he did not know one from the other. The medium then sat down near Gen. Hartsuff and said:

"Have you a deceased relative whose initials are A. H?"

Gen. Hartsuff had in mind a living relative whose initials were A. H. and replied that he had no deceased relative who bore them.

Mr. Keeler replied that he thought his sitter was mistaken, and taking a sheet of paper, wrote on it, "Adaline Hartsuff," the name of Gen. Hartsuff's deceased wife, who, he said, was present. He then said, "George is here, he knows Mr. Hudson and wants him to come into the room before he writes a communication." The George thus referred to by the medium was Gen. George Hartsuff, deceased some years previously, a brother of the sitter, and one of those to whom questions had been addressed. No hint had been given the medium that Mr. Hudson was in the outer room, and Gen. Hartsuff believed that he could not have known either his own name or that of Mr. Hudson.

Up to this point, therefore, everything indicated that Mr. Keeler was actually in communication with the conscious intelligences of deceased persons present. If not, how did he get information regarding Gen. Hartsuff's deceased wife, against his own thought that he had no deceased relative whose initials were A. H., or how did he ascertain that Gen. George Hartsuff, deceased years before, knew Mr. Hudson, and that Mr. Hudson was in the outer room. Granting that by the clairvoyant perception of his own soul he could and did read the concealed writings on the slips of paper and that he could perceive the presence of Mr. Hudson in the outer room and ascertain his name, is it not altogether improbable that his soul, in the absence of any direct impression to that effect, could have become cognizant of the fact that Gen. George Hartsuff, of whom he had never heard, had known Mr. Hudson in his lifetime; or that he could have written out the full name of Gen. William Hartsuff's deceased wife, in spite of his protest that he had no deceased relative whose initials were A. H.? Applied as an explanation of many phenomena that develop in psychic investigation, the theory that they are the result of the natural operation of man's dual self, his sub-consciousness, or whatever one may choose to designate man's primary perception, consciousness and individuality, becomes absurd. Or if not absurd then man's primary self is the most perfect impersonator and the most consummate liar it is possible to imagine. The perceptions of Mr. Keeler in this case were perfectly simple in the theory that Adaline Hartsuff and Gen. George Hartsuff, withdrawn from the physical bodies in which their spiritual individualities had been molded, were actually present. Any other attempted explanation of the facts as they occurred must assume that the human mind has most extraordinary and improbable powers, and that when exercising occult faculties it delights in falsehood and deceit.

After the incidents I have mentioned Mr. Hudson was called into the room. The medium handed him a pencil and told him to touch one of the pellets with it, and upon opening it he would find on the paper a question addressed to Gen. George Hartsuff. He touched one of them at random and found it to be as Mr. Keeler had told him. Twice more he was told to touch a pellet, and each time found that his hand had picked out the one designated by the medium, who had not seen the writing upon any of them, without any conscious guidance of his own will.

Subsequently messages were written on the inside of one slate held closely against another, answering all the questions asked in the pellets, including the two addressed to living persons. While these writings were in progress the slates were held by Gen. Hartsuff and Mr. Hudson, and they could distinctly hear the movement of the bit of pencil that had been placed between the slates. It was, therefore, demonstrated that Mr. Keeler, by his clairvoyant perception, could read the concealed writings. That by his hypnotic power he could influence Mr. Hudson to touch pellets containing specific concealed writings unknown to him, picking them out from a number having the same outward appearance. And that by his psychic physical power he could cause a bit of pencil to write messages on the closed slates. So far the facts were unquestioned.

But what were the intelligences which dictated the messages written on the slates? All those replying to questions addressed to deceased persons were such as might have been expected from them if actually still in conscious existence and present; while those replying to questions addressed to living persons were such as might have been suggested by any human intelligence having power to read the concealed questions. Mr. Keeler at the time was in a condition of hypnosis as any person is and must be while exercising the clairvoyant faculty. Every student of hypnotism knows that auto-suggestion is one of its most important phenomena, and that when a person is in certain phases of hypnosis every question will be logically answered, even when both the operator and the subject are ignorant of the true answer. And herein lies the explanation of the intermingled phenomena manifested in this case, and in many other cases of like character. Mr. Keeler's sub-consciousness, his subliminal or dual self, as some are pleased to designate the perceptive intelligence which acts in such cases—his primary individual consciousness, his real self, as I prefer to designate it—was the potent factor in the whole affair. With his primary consciousness the spirit individualities were able to communicate directly, and through him they were able to guide the pencil which wrote the replies to the questions addressed to them. And when the questions addressed to living persons were perceived, in the absence of direct impressions from spirit intelligences or the minds of his sitters, auto-suggestion stepped to the front, as in other forms of hypnosis, and dictated logical replies. There was no fraud about it, and the fact that auto-suggestion acts in some cases does not demonstrate that it does in all.

THE WOMAN OF ENDOR.

In my own investigations I have found that all psychics who are able to exercise their occult faculties without passing under so-called spirit control are subject to suggestion from the minds of their sitters or to auto-suggestion. Sometimes, also, trance mediums receive impressions from or of the soul of persons still in physical life, but usually they realize the fact, and say, "I cannot tell whether this person is in the earth life or in spirit life," and they are much less likely to be deceived or misled. The woman of Endor, to whom King Saul went to call up the spirit of Samuel, as reported in the twenty-eighth chapter of I Samuel, did not recognize Saul until she had passed under the control of her familiar spirit, when she said, "Why hast thou deceived me, for thou art Saul?" In hypnotic experiments with persons who are subject to spirit control I have found that while in hypnosis they are amenable to suggestion, and can be made to perceive or to do almost anything suggested by the operator. But let the spirit control take possession, as will frequently happen while such a person is still in hypnosis, and the hypnotist at once loses all control over the subject, and can no longer deceive or influence him.

AUTO-SUGGESTION.

A case illustrating very clearly the operation of auto-sugestion and spirit perception was reported to me by a banker and business man, who has made some investigations of psychic and spirit phenomena. He visited a clairvoyant, whose special work was reading closed writings. This man claimed to be able to perceive spirits and receive impressions from them, but did not pass into the trance condition. He told the gentleman not to address any questions to living persons, but his sitter disobeyed the injunction and addressed one to a living friend, saying, "Did you suffer much in your last hours?" The papers upon which the questions were written and folded and so mixed that the writer did not know one from the other as they lay upon the table. Taking up one and pressing it to his forehead the psychic began, "I did not suffer in my last hours." He then stopped, and turning to his sitter with some indignation, said, "You have addressed this question to a living person." "How do you know I have?" inquired his sitter, "and if I have, why did you begin to answer it?". "As I began," the psychic replied, "I heard the spirits around me laughing and saying, 'That man isn't dead.'" The slip he held in his hand, when opened, proved to be the one addressed to the sitter's living friend. In this case it was demonstrated most clearly that the soul of the living man could be deceived and would by auto-suggestion frame an answer to the question he was able to read clairvoyantly, but the decarnate men standing by were not so easily misled, and helped him to detect the fraud.

In all cases where a psychic is exercising occult faculties, either through suggested hypnosis, auto-hypnosis or spirit control, he is subject to impressions, especially from those physically present, and if they do not remain passive their own thoughts may be reflected back to them. Thoughts are things and to the primary consciousness may appear as mental pictures of the thing thought of. This fact is very clearly demonstrated in experimental telepathy, the thought it is sought to impress usually appearing to the percipient as such a picture, for example, if the object is a card, say the five of diamonds, five real diamonds may appear to the mental vision as floating in the air. If the spirit theory be true, it is most likely that the disembodied man may perceive all things clearly; but to make them appear as clearly to an incarnate soul is quite another matter; while it is still more difficult for the soul exercising its primary perceptive faculties to make exact reports through the physical senses, which are seemingly the machinery of the secondary consciousness.

The honest investigator of occult and spirit phenomena may sometimes meet with intended fraud, but more frequently he will find himself confronted and puzzled by the intermingled phenomena I have illustrated. In my own investigations I have never met a pretended psychic who could not produce real psychic phenomena; but I have found some who were not always honest. For example, a member of my family called upon a woman who assumed to tell "the past, present and future," and who demonstrated that she was either in communication with spirit intelligences or was able to obtain knowledge of facts from the mind of the sitter and to read the thoughts then in her mind. Some time later another relative called upon the same woman, and was told a lot of stuff that had neither truth nor significance. In the first case the woman exercised her real clairvoyant power, or passed under "control." In the second case she spoke whatever came into her mind while in the normal consciousness, or as some would express it, made up a story.

A man who has traveled for a quarter of a century giving alleged expositions of spiritism and performing tricks on the stage, and through whom in private, I have obtained remarkable demonstrations of occult power, said to me: "Ninety per cent. of the work I do on the stage is genuine; 10 per cent. is fraud. I would make it all trickery if I could; but the genuine is so much more remarkable and interesting than the fraudulent that I am obliged to give it to the people and make money."

No investigator who applies the test of philosophic analysis need be deceived by fraud. At its best it is bungling and ridiculous, if attempted in mental phenomena. In physical manifestations it is not so easily detected, and where there is doubt without opportunity for demonstration, judgment should not be suspended.

My subject calls for conclusions. I conclude, from all the facts of nature as I have been able to perceive them, and as I weigh the perceptions of others:

First—That philosophy declares rightly, in the words of Herbert Spencer, the most profound thinker of our age: "We are ever in the presence of an infinite and eternal energy, from which all things proceed." If this energy is not God Himself it is the only manifestation of the Infinite it is possible for man to perceive, in this life, certainly, and in the decarnate life, probably.

ENERGY THE GREAT REALITY OF THE UNIVERSE.

And here is an idea and a fact worthy of careful consideration. It is quite impossible for man to become conscious of material things, except through manifestations of energy. Shut off that subtile vibration in the imperceptible ether which we call light, and the eye brings no perception of material things. The ear responds only to vibrations of the atmosphere. Taste and smell are awakened only by subtile vibrations or excitations, never otherwise. And the complicated sense of feeling cannot be aroused except by energy differing in some form or quality from that manifested by the body or its organs when in normal condition. Any person may study and search for a lifetime without discovering one sensation that can be brought to the consciousness not aroused by energy in some form. Is it not manifest, therefore, that energy is the great reality of the universe, and that material things, which seem so real when perceived by the operations of energy, are the shadows?

My second conclusion is that every living creature is energy individualized; a part of the essence of God Himself. The body I recognize as but the mold in which the real man is cast; a machine operated by an independent ego, which ego has perceptive powers all its own and infinitely superior to the gross and imperfect physical senses.

Thirdly, I conclude that the material things shadowed into the consciousness through the physical senses are but a small and comparatively unimportant part of the actualities which surround us, mere eddies, perhaps, in the great pulsating universe of energy; points of reaction where individualities have their origin and are molded, to flow back into the purer realms of free energy.

Fourth, does the individuality of man consciously survive physical death? Is life continuous? I cannot assert positive knowledge upon this point. But one thing I can say; that I am just as certain of conscious individual existence after the physical body loses its animating spirit as I am that I live now, and that my body and all the objects exterior to myself which I think I perceive about me are actualities.

Should it be asked, what are the realities of the decarnate life? Where is the land of spirits? How are those mansions in the skies perceived by Christian faith builded? I should answer: Could the savage whose observation had been limited to the primeval forest form any conception of the marvelous works of civilized man, his great cities with their towering buildings, his ships, his rushing railway trains, the flash of his thoughts and spoken words over telegraph and telephone lines, and all the other wonders of the nineteenth century? Not the slightest, until he had seen them, and but little then. And if there is a spiritual universe all about us, is it to be expected that man's incarnate consciousness, which responds mainly to excitation of the physical senses, can realize in any considerable measure the realities of a state of existence and its perceptive environment in which material conditions and limitations have little or no place? Certainly not!

"The kingdom of God is within you." Thus said Jesus to his critical questioners. And so it is; for no living creature can realize anything external to itself except as the thought, the form of energy, the thing itself, is pictured within the consciousness.

What is time but the measure of a succession of events? And how much of time does any man possess? Only the now, the fraction of a breath. Is it not, then, every man's highest duty to perform to the best of his ability the work of the hour? To let "each morning see some task begin, each evening see its close?" To labor for the highest rational happiness in this life, both for himself and his fellowmen?

And, finally, my conclusion is that he who lives this life well, meeting all of its responsibilities bravely, and performing every duty as it is presented cheerfully and faithfully, will have nothing to fear in a future life.

Thought is the motive power of all intelligent action, and he who thinks rightly will do rightly. Think not evil, therefore, as you would avoid evil deeds and the lashings of an outraged conscience, which will certainly be aroused to action in the real life beyond, even if it lies dormant in this shadow of the great reality.

The true philosophy may be found in Longfellow's "Psalm of Life:"

> Life is real! Life is earnest!
> And the grave is not its goal;
> Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
> Was not spoken of the soul.
>
> Let us, then, be up and doing;
> With a heart for any fate;
> Still achieving, still pursuing,
> Learn to labor and to wait.

G. W. KATES AND THE CHURCH.

I am astonished to read that Brother Dennis asserts that I am trying to organize a "National Spiritualists' Church," to replace the N. S. A. at Washington. Who is his authority? I presume it must be only an effort upon his part to exaggerate the idea of a Spiritual Church; for, surely I have never thought of such a thing as a National Church.

I am well satisfied with the National Association, and shall do nothing whatever to conflict with it. The latter should not have enemies, nor should any one be in the least lacking in co-operation. I believe in thorough organization, therefore, want a National Association to be a guide and protector and not an authority. It may be an association of churches or of societies or of both. All localities should thus associate, irrespective of what their name is, so long as they are Spiritualists.

The one thing to be guarded by the Spiritualists, is, that no local or National Association shall be the authority to whom all must bow. To the contrary it should be their servant. Organization amongst Spiritualists should be executive more than constructive.

Spiritual culture and modes of development belong to the local work and to the individual—the protection of and help to accomplish these are the duties of a National Association. We can never have an association nor a church as a supreme moral and mental guide. With such an assumption, decay will ensue. Whilst we stand for spiritual, moral and mental culture, we are promulgating and building a religious force; hence, to quibble about the word "church" is to strain at gnats and swallow camels. Whatever will serve to enhance the cause of truth should be employed, and surely a church can be made to the present average person a greater moral and educational servitor than can a society.

Mrs. Kates and self have just held a series of meetings in Massillon and Andover, Ohio, where it was necessary to present the fundamentals of our philosophy in a plain manner. Curiosity and unwarranted expectations were prevalent—a crude idea of crude manifestations and a timid idea that ghosts would be seen was evident. A broad view of Spiritualism as a philosophy and religion did not exist. A disposition to be boisterous and frivolous is usually apparent in a first meeting, and indeed in every meeting of Spiritualists, where the general public shall attend.

We fail to impress the individual by a coarse and crude method of precedure. To open with song and invocation, tones the average auditor and then to say this is for this evening a meeting of "our church, and we as Spiritualists are seeking to develop a better church than ever known before," we obtain a better hearing and command better respect. We have had general good results in our labors thereby, and leave only good will behind us. The people are then more receptive to the truth.

We attract persons whom we otherwise repel. It is a common thing for us to hear: "We did not know what Spiritualism means;" and "If that is Spiritualism, we want to know more about it." If we can reform the church and develop humanity into broader channels of thought and action, we will then be able to care very little about the names we employ, whether "society," "church" or "guide." For the present we must lead humanity slowly. All growth is unconscious—hence force must be destructive.

Brother Dennis should argue the question, and not say that I espouse what I never have dreamed of. Instead of quibbling, let us make the N. S. A. and each of our local associations a useful servitor of all that is good, beautiful and true. Fraternally,

G. W. KATES.

Free will is not the liberty to do whatever one likes, but the power of doing whatever one sees ought to be done.—G. Macdonald.

Often the elements that move and mold society are the results of the sister's counsel and the mother's prayer.—E. H. Chapin.

It is an inevitable law that a man can not be happy unless he lives for something higher than his own happiness.—Bulwer.

The punishment suffered by the wise who refuse to take part in the government, is to live under the government of bad men.—Plato.

Thoughts Spiritualists Should Ponder Well.

THE EATING OF FLESH.

It Should Be Condemned by Spiritualists.

THOUGHTS THAT SHOULD BURN THEIR WAY TO EVERY FLESH-EATING SOUL—DHARMAPALA'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION — SLAUGHTER PENS — FLESH-EATING A FRUITFUL SOURCE OF DISEASE.

SLAVES OF THE SHAMBLES.

The Thanksgiving proclamation of our Buddhist brother Dharmapala, says the Chicago Record, sounded like a far-off echo over the long centuries of that sublime hymn of creation: "And God said, Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to everything that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat. And it was so. And God saw everything that He made, and behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day."

Isaiah saw again the Edenic vision in "the new heavens and the new earth," when "the wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the bullock; and dust shall be the serpents' meat. They shall not hurt or destroy in all My holy mountain, saith the Lord."

THE MOUTH OF THE CHRISTIAN.

Since those days when here and there among the olive groves of Palestine there were men who lived so simply and purely, innocent of the taste of blood or the fever of wine, that they sometimes thought again God's thought concerning this mystery we call creation and life, mankind and the animals over whom they were given dominion, and whom they have so long misruled, have become so degenerate that both forest and city is red with blood, and the mouth of the Christian is as gory as the throat of the lion. Only the lion is not so savage as the Christian. He kills only to satisfy his hunger. The Christian breeds animals by the million for the sole purpose of slaughter, and the stench of his stock yards smells to heaven, and the pitiful moans of animals packed in stock trains, dying of thirst and hunger, must blot out the Christian's prayers to the merciful God, without whom not a sparrow falleth.

THE MEANEST SAVAGE.

The slaughter pens of America and Europe are the plague spots of a new barbarism. Is it surprising that in our city, which prides itself in being known as the city of the most extensive slaughter houses in the world, we should have had recently the spectacle of men and women so far beneath even the savage as to find delight in shooting to pieces a dead or dying fox, dragged about to satisfy their wanton thirst for blood. The meanest savage in our western forests does not descend so low.

YELLOW-LEGGED CHICKENS.

The slaughter house is no more essential to the health and strength of the Christian than that of the Arab or Hindoo. The Arab conquered Asia, Africa and Spain on barley. More than two-thirds of the human race never eat flesh, but subsist solely on the grain and fruits of the earth. The porters at Constantinople, nourished on their simple diet of black bread and fruit, and who are said to be able to lift a burden of 800 pounds and carry it up a steep ascent with more ease than a pork-eating American or a beef-eating Englishman could carry 100 pounds, are living witnesses to the fact that flesh-eating is neither essential nor conducive to health and strength. It is the flesh-eating nations that support armies of physicians. It is well that we find physicians like Dr. B. W. Richardson, the eminent English specialist, who says that for the welfare of humanity he hopes that "before the end of this century there will not be a slaughter house on the planet." The realization of Dr. Richardson's wish seems to be very far off. Every church festival is marked by an increasingly large slaughter of innocent animals, evidently created for other purposes than butchery. The Christian minister who, like John Wesley, has not tasted flesh for fifty years, is so rarely found that the visit of the minister and the slaughter of yellow-legged chickens are considered necessary concomitants. Our Buddhist brother will be glad to learn that there are Christian ministers in this land and even in Chicago, who eat their own tables never ask God's blessing upon the devouring of the dead carcasses of their innocent fellow-creatures, but who have the sweet consciousness that no living thing has had to suffer that they might eat. There are said to be more than 2,000 men and women in Chicago who never taste flesh, upon whose tables are never found the roasted corpses of animals, and who have learned from experience that God's command to the Edenic pair was as sanitary and conducive to soundness of physical fiber as the ten commandments are to moral health. In physical or mental endurance they would not yield to their flesh-eating companions. They know that the eating of flesh is no more necessary to the physical economy than the drinking of whiskey.

CHRISTIANS AND BRUTALITY.

Wherefore, then, should a Christian civilization tolerate the bloody horrors of our slaughter-pens? Why, in order to gratify an unnatural appetite, should Christian men and women make it necessary to so brutalize a large class of their fellow-men, and so accustom them to the taking of life and the sight of blood gushing from palpitating bodies, that the portion of the city in which these men live is a hotbed of crime and murder, and a man's life seems to be held not more sacred than that of an ox? A civilization that so dehumanizes a portion of its people, according to an immutable law, is the victim of its own sin.

THE CHRISTIAN'S DINNER.

If we would realize the extent of our slavery to the shambles, we have only to glance over the menus of our leading hotels and restaurants. Often more than a dozen different kinds of animals are slaughtered to make a Christian's dinner. It is a perpetual disgrace to our gluttonous civilization. A Greek philosopher or a Roman senator would look upon them in disgust. There would be something ludicrous to an old Greek like Plato in hearing a Christian minister preach eloquently upon the great theme of "Peace on Earth" within ten miles of the Chicago stock yards. After that he would not be surprised to see the peripatetic menagerie upon the heads of our women, and the grinning heads of animals "ornamenting" their throats. Somehow, we suspect that the old Greek would prefer the religion of Pythagoras, who was such a tender-hearted heathen that he would go around and buy up the old and crippled animals condemned to slaughter, in order to let them live out their alloted years under his merciful care.

GOD OF LOVE AND MERCY.

It requires a great stretch of conscience to ask men and women to believe in God of love and mercy, and yet claim that this God has so created man in His own image that in order to sustain life he must make of himself "of half that lives the butcher and the tomb." Intelligent men and women instantly see that both propositions cannot be true. They have far more respect for the first proposition when they learn that anatomy says the second is not true; and when they learn that many of the best medical authorities of England, France and Germany not only claim that flesh-eating is a fruitful source of disease, but claim to have cured almost all diseases, even consumption and epilepsy, by abstention from what they claim to be slow poison of a flesh diet. When science and the experience of whole races of men thus prove the second proposition to be untrue, there is some logical reason for us to ask intelligent belief in the first proposition; but when we fill ourselves up with a portion of the remains of a dead hog or cow for breakfast, then listen to a sermon made out of similar remains, and go home only to gorge ourselves upon turkey cadavers, it is little wonder that the christianizing of heathen nations has come to mean to them mainly the extension of our commerce in canned meats and "fire water."

TRANSMIGRATION OF SOULS.

Is it any wonder that a great thinker of our age has exclaimed: "Transmigration of souls is no fable. I would it were, but men and women are only half human. Every animal in the barnyard, the field and the forest, of the earth, of the waters that are under the earth, has contrived to get a footing and leave the print of its features and form in some one or other of those upright, heaven-facing speakers. Ah, brother, stop the ebb of thy soul—ebbing downward into the forms into whose habits thou hast now for many years slid."

SLAUGHTER HOUSE AND SALOON.

If vital statistics be true, the flesh-eating Anglo-Saxons are not destined to be the ultimate dominating race, much as it hurts our pride to believe it. The slaughter house and saloon, called by an eminent English physician "natural concomitants," are not only enslaving and decimating the Anglo-Saxon race, but are the base means which the Anglo-Saxon is using to enslave other races. There is no use preaching Christ to a so-called heathen when we insult the Christian in his soul by the savage horrors of our slaughter pens and the swinishness of our grog-shops.

CHRISTIANITY AND CHRIST.

Men are not asking now so often the question: "Was Jesus really the Christ?" But they are asking, often sneeringly: "Does our Christian civilization represent Christ?" When, in a land teeming with the richest fruits and delicious herbs and nourishing grains, we uselessly slaughter and breed for slaughter millions of animals every year, we may well ask the question: How long will it be before a people so brutally fed and grossly materialistic will rise to any adequate conception or realization of that life lived so simply, purely and divinely on the quiet shores of Galilee?

RENA MICHAELS ATCHISON.

TRICKSTERS AT WORK.

To the Editor:—There are five or six investigators here and we have waited long and patiently for some medium to visit us. On January 17th, a notice was put in all of the houses in the place, promising wonderful spirit manifestations. I for one attended. Mr. Carpenter, my wife and I were elected a committee, and took our place on the stage, and of all the frauds I ever came across, Mr. Herman Slade was the worst. He could not lecture, and could not do sleight-of-hand; in fact, in every move he made you could detect him. The old rope trick that I have seen done and heard explained, was performed, but when the committee tied him they had to untie him; spirits could or would not do it.

I think if a good medium and lecturer would hold forth for a week here the hall would not hold the people; but as it is now we have to take it right and left.

I see a notice that the New York Herald has offered twenty-five thousand dollars for a genuine materialization. If that is the case, why is it that some one has not secured the money. I think that part is a humbug and shall continue to think so until I am convinced to the contrary.

Mr. R. E. Lloyd said he would give $10 a piece for every person in this town that could be converted to Spiritualism. I tried to have him write the promise out, but that he refused to do. I am anxious to see some one earn the money in both cases, and then we could believe. J. H. POLLEY.

Fair Haven, Vt.

HARMONY AMONG WORKERS.

To the Editor:—I believe with Brother G. W. Kates that we need more harmony among our workers and am heartily in sympathy with his plan for an association of speakers. We need to strow forth by our actions that we believe in the power of harmonious co-operation as well as to continually preach it. For spiritual mediums, whether speakers or otherwise, to be governed by the cruel and crude systems of competition rivalry which govern the industrial and commercial world is to reduce our grand philosophy to a theory instead of a practical benefit to the human family. It should be pleasure to old workers in our cause to see new ones coming out, but from actual experience we know such is not always the case. The more honest workers we have, the more popular will our cause become, whether it be in one phase of mediumship or another. Let us let our light shine by working in harmonious co-operation and thus set the world a better example than we can do when we work for our own selfish individual interests and reduce ourselves to the common level of the competitive age we live in. Any person interested in a plan whereby we can establish such a system for work in Kansas and adjoining States, without clashing with the work of the N. S. A. which is a grand and noble work, is earnestly invited to write to me enclosing stamp for reply. W. E. BONNEY.

720 East 12th st., Kansas City, Mo.

It is only a poor sort of happiness that could ever come by caring much about our own narrow pleasures.—George Eliot.

Noble women oft do great deeds in humbleness.—German motto.

SOMEWHAT CRITICAL.

Spiritualist speakers wonder why they are not oftener called to attend funerals of Spiritualist families, and I desire a little of your valuable space to give a bit of experience, and one reason why they are not employed.

In two instances near my home, loyal families, in not very good circumstances, have called speakers for their funerals. No questions were asked as to price when telephoning, but the speakers were told on arriving of the financial condition of the families. But lo! when the bereaved ones, with hearts breaking, inquired the price, the answer came: "Ten dollars." This, with telephone messages, hotel bill, etc., brought the bill up to about $13 for the hour's services. In both of the above cases the speakers really lost no time, as both were away on a lecturing tour, and neither were out more than $1 for railroad fare. In one case the bill was paid by the daughter, with earnings from several weeks' sewing; and the other by the son. Both had members of the family who opposed the employing of same, being unbelievers.

Now, had these parties done as many other Spiritualists do, hired a minister, how different would have been the result. There would have been no extra trouble of telephoning, or entertaining, and the price would not have been over $5, if that.

Here, ministers make no charges, leaving the matter wholly in the parties' hands, and they receive from nothing to $1, $2, $3 and $5.

Now I am not advocating hiring ministers (for I do not favor it), but simply show the difference between the ministers' and the speakers' charges, and call attention to a growing evil, as I look at it.

When Spiritualist speakers cease to worship the almighty dollar, forget self on occasions of this kind, and if at no other time, are reasonable in price, then will they be more generally called. As it is, only the rich can or ought to afford the luxury of a Spiritualist speaker. So long as speakers follow the example of the coffin-maker, the undertaker and the grave-digger, putting on a double price because they know these things must be forthcoming, just so long will ministers have the privilege of burying our dead—a service that above all others should be a spiritual one; the last rite of our own religion.

Not alone does this exorbitant price hurt in a financial way, but it leaves distrust and indignation behind, both in the minds of Spiritualists and the world's people. It is doubtful if the speakers in question will ever be employed here again. They cut their measure for $10, in the minds of the people.

Speakers also wonder why they are not more constantly employed by societies. So long as they bind themselves together by State and National organizations (which they ask the common people to help support) and persist in making one uniform price for lectures, good, bad or indifferent, regardless of hard times, and circumstances of the people, so long will societies run down and Spiritualism hang in the rear. I wish every society would make some worthy member its minister, and endow the same with the right to officiate at marriages and funerals, even though the service must be read, so that on occasions where people are unable to send away for a speaker, or prices are too high, they may still have their own religious service. Let us hear from others on this subject. Yours for Chesaning, Mich. THE RIGHT.

THE MISERABLE VILLAIN.

"Prof." Reese, who sold dirt at Clinton Camp Meeting at $25 per quart, for the purpose of development, has been swindling the good people of Cincinnati, Ohio. The Cincinnati Enquirer of January 30th, contains the following:

"The police were engaged yesterday in investigating a rather mysterious affair in which several persons play prominent parts. The central figure in the transaction is Mrs. Mary Louise Koehler, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

"The lady in question is the widow of the late Captain Val Koehler, one of Lawrenceburg's wealthiest citizens.

"Prof. Reese advertised his business extensively, and it was through one of these advertisements that Mrs. Koehler heard of him. The Lawrenceburg woman called on Prof. Reese on January 11, and after a short talk she asked Prof. Reese if he could foretell the future. The story is that Mrs. Koehler received a reply in the affirmative. Then the Lawrenceburg woman made inquiries about the stock market. Then the parties talked about speculating in pork. According to what the police learned Prof. Reese told Mrs. Koehler that she could make a lot of money by speculating in pork. Then he asked her how much money she could raise. Then Mrs. Koehler said she had $300 ready money.

"The above amount of money was turned over to Prof. Reese with the understanding that she was to realize $2,000 in a short time. Then Prof. Reese gave a promissory note to Mrs. Koehler.

"Of course, the note was never paid. In some way the details of the transaction leaked out. Colonel Deitsch heard of the affair and he detailed Detectives Crim and McDermott to make a thorough investigation.

The officers visited the Walnut-street house and learned that Prof. Reese and his wife had left the city.

There has been a perfect stream of people calling at the Walnut-street house to see Prof. Reese. One man claims that he gave the clairvoyant $900 to invest and that he never heard any more about the money. Other persons claim to have been victimized out of various amounts.

PRIESTLY PLOTTING.

The religious societies of Columbus, Ohio, have effected an organization whose object it is to abolish Sunday burials. Next they should make an arrangement with old Death by which he will stay his work, so as not to make burials necessary on that sacred day. All to please the priests.

Joy descends gently upon us like the evening dew, and does not patter down like a hail storm.—Richter.

I argue not against heaven's hand or will, nor bate a jot of heart or hope, but still bear up, and steer right onward.—Milton.

Give a boy address and accomplishments and you give him the mastery of palaces and fortunes where he goes.—Emerson.

CONSUMPTION

TO THE EDITOR: I have an absolute Cure for CONSUMPTION and all Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles, and all conditions of Wasting Away. By its timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured. So proof-positive am I of its power to cure, I will send FREE to anyone afflicted, THREE BOTTLES of my Newly Discovered Remedies, upon receipt of Express and Postoffice address.

Always sincerely yours,

T. A. SLOCUM, M.C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

When writing the Doctor, please mention this paper.

ANALYZED IN THE CRUCIBLE OF REASON

CONSCIENCE.

The Rationalist, the Christian, the Spiritualist.

The Attitude of the Christian Clergy.

The Christian asserts that the voice of conscience is the voice of God. He sees in this the most exalted manifestation of mind. He either says or implies that it is above and independent of reason or any other ordinary and understood process of mental action.

The rationalist denies this and tells us that is but an echo of reason's voice resounding back from the vacant caves of the brain, and deemed mysterious because an echo is deemed supernatural by children. According to his view we regard a thing right or wrong because reason forecasts from its appearance the probability of ensuing pain or joy. He says that the moral codes which religious people invest with a halo of supernaturalism but express through some gifted law-maker the composite deductions of a race as to what habits will further the happiness of that race on this earthly plane; for he has no knowledge of any other, and is proud enough to declare that if there be other conditions of existence, the dwellers therein are not so capable of advising us as we are of determining by the rational process what is best for us under earthly conditions, although they might know what is conducive to happiness where they live.

His attitude is that of independence and boldly standing up for our equality with any beings existent.

The orthodox preacher, in fact, confesses that we are so far below the condition of other beings that words cannot express nor imagination conceive the difference. According to his theology the blind fish that never come within a thousand leagues of the ocean's surface are as capable of comprehending the life of a bird as we the life of angels, and we are therefore naturally incapacitated from discovering by normal mental processes what is right or wrong.

Between these two extreme views lies the truth to which Paul gave utterance: "Thou hast made us a little lower than the angels."

The preacher says that God speaks to every soul in the mysterious voice of conscience, but I do things which my conscience approves or at least does not condemn, and he tells me in sepulchral tones that I am going to be damned for that, because it is evil, thus in practice abandoning his theory—for if God speaks directly to me, why does he interfere or object? He proceeds to reason with me about the wickedness of my habits, thereby admitting the dependence of conscience on reason.

But again the rationalist who has trained himself to be logical and consistent has arrived at a conclusion. He goes over the ground again and again, but, while unable to detect a flaw in his reasoning, is yet bothered and uncertain if he be not in error. He is like a sensitive person who feels a draught in a room and, unable to find where it comes from, cannot avoid feeling it. There is a flaw—a crack somewhere. There is an unexplained influence undermining his convictions.

We have an abiding faith that the truth shall make us free, else we should cease to look for it; but this needs no argument that, whether there be a higher faculty than reason, he cannot have discovered the truth of freedom whose reason does not approve of what conscience says. If there be a conflict here, he can only be free in the sense that a slave who fights for liberty is already free.

The preacher when hard pressed falls back on authority and locates God in the Bible, saying we must discard reason with all our individual impressions, however they have come to us, and take that book as our simple and single guide. This dethrones the god of personal conscience or makes us pantheistic. We find that their supreme authority, Jesus of Nazareth, couched his utterances in parables and symbolical language that we must not only exercise reason to its limit, but imagination also in trying to determine what he meant. He thus indirectly compels us to acknowledge the divinity of reason.

The clergyman himself in expounding Scripture becomes a rationalist, and his favorite text is, "Come, let us reason together," and he exhibits the same mental uncertainty at times as his opponent does. He construes a passage, but some inward monitor suggests that he has not perceived the highest meaning of it. He returns again and again, but cannot rest until a brighter light is turned upon it and he discerns a new meaning.

We may notice that the personal conscience so active in highly civilized people is dormant in the barbarian. He goes on authority solely, and will cut your throat and eat you with as easy a conscience as he has when handing you a cocoanut. This from another view establishes the fact that conscience and reason are inseparable. The lunatic has no conscience either.

Now, my theology, which recognizes that "God is love," recognizes the fact that both the preacher and the rationalist have heard his voice when they are moved by love to offer what knowledge they possess to one in need of knowledge. Here, though, is the province of reason to determine what suits my case.

This silent monitor is alike in the churchman and the layman. One is only more susceptible to the strange influence than another. The highly civilized man, no matter what his theories nor how positive and obstinate in his convictions, is at some unguarded moments susceptible to the sensation of spirit contact. He reasons up to a conclusion, and in this mental operation excites certain nerves to an unusual sensitiveness. After this little squall, there ensues a calm which allows his guardian angel to sensibly approach him and to console him in the right.

The explanation of that wave or glow of happiness which the sensitive feels and calls the approval of conscience, upon doing a kindly deed, even when the recipient of that favor is ungrateful and reason cannot assure him or her of its being productive of material good, is that loving spirits embrace the doer or giver. The savage knows little of this because he is not sensitive. The idea that this joy is generated in the isolated individual is not true. We are first, last and all the time social beings, not only incapable of solitary joy but incapable of solitude. If one go apart from earthly society he is only entering other social conditions. This is the end sought by forsaking father, mother, sister and brother; and who does this will understand, even if he does not yet see ghosts, what Byron meant by the line: "In solitude when we are least alone."

Now let us reason together about this good and evil. The preacher tells me I am vile. He preaches from the text: "Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean." But the first lesson he taught me was, "Who made you?" "God." Now, who can bring an unclean thing out of a clean? Answer by wicked agnostic, "The theologian." If I am the handiwork of God, I must be a noble piece of work. There is no avoiding the conclusion that in the ultimate sense there can be no evil. It is a temporary delusion incidental to mistaking the design of God, for I am not yet finished. He is still working upon me. "We are not here to work, but to be worked upon." But having come into the inheritance of reasoning power, it rests with me to assume favorable conditions for that work to be completed. If, though, I do not grasp the unchangeable design, it logically follows that I am prone to mistakes in the attitude I affect.

The design is to evolve the spiritual senses, and the materialist, perceiving no design, can not but err in judgment. The most important data for a true conclusion is not attainable by the coarse, material senses. Whatever tends to retard that evolution is temporarily evil. I use the word temporarily with care, because what was evil to me yesterday, on account of an advance may be good to-day. What is good for one man is evil for another, because they are in different stages of development. The religious world, instead of everlastingly accusing each other of evil, should encourage one another to listen to the inward monitor and exercise reason also. In time that mysterious, indefinable influence will be heard as "a still, small voice," for it is an angel endeavoring to be heard, seen and felt, and through that spirit intelligence will be given the hitherto undiscovered data essential to a true, reasonable conclusion, and the war between conscience and reason is ended. It is a conflict between our own reason and the reason of those who from a higher plane can discern clearly the causes which we cannot. These spirits are anxious to make the harmony discernible to us. They do not want to destroy reason, but to clarify it.

If one tells me that a certain conception is true, it is a great thing; but if he can teach me to understand how it is true, that is greater. If one tells me that the rose is beautiful, he is doing well; but if he can awaken my perception to a discernment of its beauty, he does better. Systems and codes such as that of Moses are but the scaffoldings on the outside of this spiritual temple which God is building. There the angels have worked. Since the days of Jesus they have worked mostly on the inside and the building is, I think, near completion with many of us. The veil is thin which separates us from the spiritual life. To finish the inside of the tower of reason is the last piece of work, and there is a great racket going on there throughout the land, indicating that the angels are very busy. These outside scaffoldings of forms and ceremonies are being pulled down. No dogmatist can stop it.

There was a lesson given to Peter, for our benefit as well as his, in the vision of animals. His conscience, falling back on authority, would not allow of eating of certain meats, and when told to arise, slay and eat, he refused until told "what God hath cleansed, that call not thou unclean." The progressive man will have to apply this lesson often, until all is cleansed, for it is evident that the knowledge of good and evil cannot be taken into heaven. If we must everlastingly pause to reflect: Is it good or bad? we cannot thoroughly enjoy. This fruit of Eden disqualifies for the enjoyment of the spiritual life a thousand times more than for the enjoyment of the physical one.

Conscience, then, existing in a discernment of good and evil, is the one quality which we must get rid of. "Unto the pure all things are pure." It will not do to try and smother it, nor will it do to take a dose of quack philosophical medicine in order to remove it. The way is to get the gentle angels to do this work—to perform this delicate operation.

The general law is "Evil to him that evil thinks," or as Paul expresses it, "To him that thinketh it sin, to him it is sin." The rationale of this is that in thinking it offensive to God one naturally assumes the turbulent, dark, distrustful mental attitude unfavorable to spirit manifestation. Paul, though, did not address this remark to the unregenerate, but to those who had enlisted in the spiritual cause. It does not apply to the fat, gross, lazy materialist. He must be born again. The words are: "Godliness with contentment is great gain"—not contentment without an idea even of what godliness means.

One may lead another who has no ear for music into musical circles in hopes that the atrophied or dormant sense may revive, but he must do this with discretion or he will defeat his own purpose so that music will by its continual assertiveness "stink in his nostrils" and become as one expressed it, "the most expensive and disagreeable of noises." This is what the unreasonable clergymen are making of the Bible by their superstitious presentation of it. The well-meaning but uninformed man is thus led to actually hate what he would at least tolerate—this sublime epitome of poem history and truth.

The student of theology to-day is like the scientist discovering new germs of disease in unsuspected places. We take up our newspaper at breakfast, and the first thing we notice is a revolting picture of the germs of all hideous diseases in such food as lies before us. Nothing we can eat, drink or even touch is free from these monsters seeking whom they may devour. The theologians one after another discover the germs of spiritual death in every thought and deed. The cry from one end to another is: "There is death in the pot." It "is evil and that continually." One cannot discard either theology or science, if he is wise, but he should endeavor to render his system impervious to disease. There is a spiritual health which ignores these germs, and it is the antithesis of that spiritual ignorance which says: "To hell with the scientist and preacher both!"

We may become so spiritual that the very sensual pleasures that bound us to earth may become stepping-stones to perfection. And in the clear understanding of that mysterious voice we find "all things lawful," and ask no question for conscience' sake. The voices of pleasure and duty unite in one song of spiritual aspiration and enjoyment.

Let us now consider in the light of that hope and dawning knowledge of our destined spiritual life, about this reasoning faculty that distinguishes man from the lower animals and fills us with pride. We observe a phenomenon that is interesting. It gives us pain or pleasure to be conscious of it. We then must reason and reason about the causes that produce it. This of course with the object of preventing its recurrence if it is disagreeable or of insuring its perpetuity if pleasant to our senses. But instead of reasoning, if we could go behind the scenes and view the hidden mechanism of the stage, would not that be greater than to be more logical than any man from Aristotle to Tom Paine?

Reason considered as a distinct faculty, and not as the indication of a harmonious relation and mutual agreement of the senses, is only a flickering lamp in this darkness. It will be useless when we come out of the catacomb into the broad light of day. It is serviceable only to those who must conjecture, and not to those who can see. It serves us well until we evolve perception.

The legal profession depends upon and cultivates this faculty more zealously than any other. It is the god of the lawyer, but there is not a judge renders judgment but knows right well that he is incapable of a thoroughly true and just decision, for he cannot know all the causes and circumstances that must be taken into consideration. He must conjecture about the reliability of witnesses, about the motives of the principal, about the effect on society—about everything—and then like Pilate, wash his hands.

As reason is applied to the elucidation of spiritual mysteries, we are like people lost in the catacombs of Rome or Paris. We have this lamp of reason, and until we see a glimmer of celestial light it prevents utter despair, but when a streak of that daylight that shines in the subliminal world comes to us, our manifest duty as people who seek joy and liberty and life is to direct our steps that way, using reason to save our feet from stumbling. It may be that the gleam of sunlight is weak and escapes our vision from time to time as we tread the tortuous path among the tombs of the dead, but if we persist it will appear again and again, more strong and clear, as we advance, "shining more and more unto the perfect day."

Religious people sometimes in excitement and frenzy drop their lamp or throw it away at the first gleam of light. Preachers say to their fellow-pilgrims: "Throw away that lamp and hang on to my coat-tails. I will lead you through." Many of them are "blind leaders of the blind," and lead us around and around the same unprogressive circle until we get weary and lay down in the last sleep. Now I claim to know something about the direction out of this labyrinth, but I advise every one to hold on to that lamp of reason not only until they see daylight gleaming afar off, but until they come into perfect day, and then they need no instructions. "Prove everything—hold fast to that which is good."

J. T. MACDONALD.

San Francisco, Cal.

BEQUESTS.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE—THE PRESIDENT OF THE N. S. A. POINTS OUT AN EXCELLENT WAY FOR EACH ONE TO DO SOME GOOD, BY LEAVING BEQUESTS TO AID IN THE CAUSE OF REFORM.

A brief notice recently appeared in the columns of your valuable paper to the effect that Mrs. A. Babe, of Washington, D. C., had left a portion of her estate to the National Spiritualists' Association. This bequest is not immediately available, and will not be for some months to come. It is, however, a precedent by which other Spiritualists of this and other lands may be guided. A complaint has been made for the past twenty years that the wealthy Spiritualists of America had no institutions to which they could make bequests. The statement was rendered obsolete by the incorporation of the National Spiritualists' Association some four years ago.

Recognizing this important fact Mrs. Babe, true to her Spiritualism that was a light to her feet through more than forty years of her earthly pilgrimage, bequeathed a portion of her little all to the religion of her soul. She has shown the world that an established institution with the scope and purposes of the N. S. A. is worthy of considerate support. In so doing she has set an example to the thousands of Spiritualists all over this fair land of America. It is without doubt the first step towards stemming the tide that has so steadily set against Spiritualism for more than forty years.

Our cash has gone into the coffers of the orthodox churches and to the support of sectarian institutions. Our wealthiest men and women have gone into the higher life without leaving one dollar to that which made them what they were and gave them their only knowledge of immortality. To those who have been bound by custom and tradition this example of Mrs. Babe's is one that will certainly bring them to a realization of their duties to their fellowmen.

Mrs. Babe made no pretences to ostentatious display and ever sought to have her good deeds done so that one hand would not know what acts the other one performed. In going into spirit life she has builded better than she knew, for she has not only benefited her own soul in its upward progress, but has led the way for others who are striving to find the light.

Out of the abundance that many of our Spiritualists have accumulated during their years of activity should be given, in some form or another, that which will make the religion that made it possible for them to secure their fortunes, a power for good in the land. Mrs. Babe has led as well as shown the way to this class and her name will go into the history of our movement as the benefactress of Modern Spiritualism in the truly practical sense in which she served it.

Unitarianism has only progressed by means of its organization through which the diffusion of its literature has been made possible and its missionary work so well accomplished. Organization will do the same for Spiritualism if other philanthropists, like Mrs. Babe, will but follow her praiseworthy example, and prove to the world that Spiritualism is their support at the time of transition, as well as in their palmy days of money-making and money-getting.

Each and every member of the Board of Trustees of the N. S. A., feels especially grateful to our arisen sister, and this letter is prompted by the honest desire to do simple justice to one who has built so wisely and so well as has she. In the meantime, let the readers of these columns remember that this bequest is not available for twelve or fifteen months, hence the N. S. A. is more than ever in need of their active support and interest now. Some twenty people have joined the writer in his $10.00 offering to the N. S. A. We want 980 others, or 80 others, or even twenty others to do the same thing. Now is the time to come forward, and do your duty, friends, and be worthy of the example that Sister Mary A. Babe has set you. Send all donations to Francis B. Woodbury, secretary of the N. S. A., 600 Pennsylvania avenue S. E. Washington, D. C. Yours for the truth,

H. D. BARRETT.
President N. S. A.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

ENCYCLOPEDIA
...OF...
BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM
...OR...
A CONCORDANCE

To the principal passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism;

Together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible.

BY MOSES HULL.

Much that is in this book appeared in an abridged form in a series of nine full pages of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER. These articles were prepared at the call of hundreds of Spiritualists who felt the need of some kind of document for ready reference. They only seemed to whet the appetite for more; hence the publication of this work.

The author, Moses Hull, has written many volumes on Spiritualistic and other themes and each one is full of careful study on the subject chosen. Mr. Hull, in his introduction of this work says:

"Hoping that this book will serve to lead the people out of the wilderness of doubt and despair; and that when Spiritualism shall have wrested the Bible from its 'sanctified' enemies, it will not 'spike' it, but will use it to batter down the walls of Christian superstition and ignorance, I send it out on its errand of enlightenment with the humble prayer that it will prove a divine benediction to every reader."

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM contains 885 pages, beautifully printed on good paper, contains a full-page portrait of the author and is handsomely bound in cloth. Every Spiritualist should have this work.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

"THE WATSEKA WONDER."

To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum, of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds, of Venango county, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

The Molecular Hypothesis
OF NATURE.

BY PROF. W. M. LOCKWOOD.

The only treatise ever offered the reading and thinking public in the interest of modern Spiritualism, that is absolutely free from the theories of superstition, and which

Demonstrates continuity of life and our environment of spiritual influences, from the data of modern physical and physiological science.

To the Spiritualist, an impregnable foundation of scientific data and verified facts.

To the materialist and skeptic, a revelation of the invisible energies operative in Nature's formula of evolution.

To the ecclesiastic, a new heaven and a new earth. A book to read, to study and think about. A condensed volume of scientific information for 25 cents. Address your orders to

The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis street,

THE COMING
AMERICAN CIVIL WAR.

BY BURTON AMES HUNTINGTON.

This excellent book is written in the interest of humanity, of liberty, and of patriotism—a book written for the purpose of calling attention to the deadly dangers that beset us on every side, and more especially to the hostile attitude and the insidious wiles of an ever-present, though secret, unscrupulous foe—the Catholics. Washington's words of warning; Lincoln's apprehension and the prophecy of General Grant are all included in the volume. Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, in a recent sermon said: "The church tolerates heretics where she is obliged to do so, but she hates them with a deadly hatred, and uses all her power to annihilate them. Our enemies know how she treated heretics in the Middle Ages, and how she treats them today where she has the power. We no more think of denying these historic facts than we do of blaming the Holy Ghost and the princes of the church for what they have thought fit to do." Every one should read this work. Paper, 300 pages. It will be sent, postpaid, for fifty cents. For sale at this office.

COSMIAN HYMN BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF
Original and Selected Hymns
For Liberal and Ethical Societies, for Schools and the Home.

COMPILED BY L. K. WASHBURN.

This volume meets a public want. It comprises 288 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. Sold at this office.

MAHOMET,
His Birth, Character and Doctrine.

BY EDWARD GIBBON.

This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. This work will be found intensely interesting. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

JUST PUBLISHED!
AUTOMATIC WRITING
[SO-CALLED] WITH OTHER PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES
—BY—
SARA A. UNDERWOOD,
With Half-tone Portrait and Specimen Pages of the Writing.

Handsomely bound in Cloth.
Price, $1.50. Postage 10c extra.

JESUS AND THE MEDIUMS,
—OR—
CHRIST AND MEDIUMSHIP.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument, proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 45 pages. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. You will not become weary while reading this excellent book. Price 75 cents.

WHAT WOULD FOLLOW

The Effacement of Christianity? By George Jacob Holyoake. This is a most valuable contribution to Freethought literature. Bound in paper with good likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

CHRISTIANITY A FICTION.

The astronomical and astrological origins of all religions. A poem by Dr. J. H. Mendenhall. Price 50 cents.

The Myth of the Great Deluge.

By James M. McCann. A complete and overwhelming refutation of the Bible story of the Deluge. Price 15 cents.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS

Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 12 pages, beautifully printed. Price 6 cents; ten copies, 50 cents.

APOLLONIUS OF TYANA.
Identified as the Christian Jesus.

A wonderful communication, explaining how his life and teachings were utilized to formulate Christianity. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF THE STARS

By O. H. RICHMOND,

G. M. of the Order of the Magi, Chicago.

BOUND IN CLOTH WITH GOLD side and containing 320 pages. This splendid book, just issued, contains nineteen full Temple lectures upon occult subjects, together with other articles from various newspapers, relating to the great work. It contains all the old Temple lectures issued in 1892, and three others on the HUMAN SOUL, which are alone worth the price of the book. This wonderful book is unique as an Evangelist of Science and Truth. Price $1.25, postpaid, to any address. For sale at this office.

A VALUABLE WORK.
Researches in Oriental History,

Embracing the Origin of the Jews, the Rise and Development of Zoroastrianism and the Derivation of Christianity; to which is added: Whence Our Aryan Ancestors? By G. W. Brown, M. D. One of the most valuable works ever published. Price $1.50.

CONSCIOUSNESS FULLY ANALYZED.

INSANE FREAKS OF CONSCIOUSNESS—METHODS OF FRENCH SCIENTISTS FOR THEIR CURE—NOTABLE PROGRESS BY THE AID OF HYPNOTISM—INCIDENTS OF THE SALTPETRIERE AND THE HAVRE LYCEE—A LOCAL CASE OF MANIA CURED BY THE USE OF THE FRENCH TREATMENT—TRAVELS IN SPIRIT LIFE—SHE TALKS WITH SPIRITS OF JUST MEN AND WOMEN MADE PERFECT.

"The problem of that other, or hidden, self," continued Dr. Grace, in the Cincinnati Enquirer, "is larger than a majority of inquiring people suppose; at the same time every intelligent person concedes that man has a dual nature. Hundreds of people have lived, and many are living to-day, who are practically three persons in one individual—almost capable of description as three individuals! Murderers, thieves, forgers—all classes of criminals—have developed in the hidden self of men and women normally kind, virtuous and of unstained character. Kleptomania is often classified as a disease, but it is not a disease of the normal man or woman. Rather is it the assertion of that other self, without which it could not exist. There would be deeper inquiry into this and cognate moral digressions if scientific men had not so stoutly resolved to treat with contempt everything which savors of mystery. Physiologists sneer at these things as fit for only the extra-credulous. Strait-laced psychologists pay them no attention whatever, and physicians refuse to discuss them in a serious mood.

"Your professional man must have practical things or nothing, forgetting that Galileo, Galvani, Fresnel, Darwin, Fulton, Whitney, Moore, Edison and hundreds of others have forced upon the world those things which their contemporaries denounced as impractical, but which to-day are recognized as prime factors in our intelligence and civilization. How many branches of knowledge have been reviewed and reconstructed upon lines which its astute professors at first condemned, then suffered, then embraced, until that which remained of the old system no longer stood as rules, but as mere exceptins? All the while there are phenomena in nature awaiting the inquirer which a high grade of intellect may assail with good results, but nothing less than serious, intelligent and painstaking study will yield their fruitful outcome.

"We must live down the fear of being called superstitious—a word grossly misapplied. No class of people is more superstitious than the learned class, made up of those who have much book knowledge without the ability to apply it beyond the suppositious cases used by the schools for familiar illustration.

"Facts come to those who possess a true mental affinity for them, and then they are exhaustively assimilated and the recipient is by them educated in their significance and application. It is impossible for one mind to absorb everything, just as it is impossible to make up oils or acids with a sponge already saturated with water—or, better stated, carrying all the water it can hold—for some points escape the most painstaking scientist, not because he is careless, but because his mental tentacles fall short of it. The mystical mind fights shy of the topioftical collegiate, and vice versa. When they once get together and compare notes, ascertain facts indisputably and subject them to critical analysis, the united effort frequently produces happy results, for both are in pursuit of the jewel truth, and each is well contented to shorten the search.

"We may theorize till doomsday without result. Everybody, even the theorist, demands facts, and the come forward with them in abundance, and are told that their data are unsystematic and in opposition to popular science, and they are dismissed with a sneer. Occasionally there is a man of brilliant ability, like Prof. Wallace or Hon. A. B. Richmond, who is attracted by well-attested phenomena and convinced by their verification; but still the scientists object, even to res adjudicata in their own guild, because they are out of the old theoretic rut. Scientists are in sore need of missionary effort, of enlightenment, in short, of education.

EXTRA-MYSTICAL PEOPLE

"I am glad to speak of another notable exception to those who are governed by mere theory, no matter what the facts may be, and thus bring to the notice of American thinkers the tireless researches of M. Pierre Janet, Professor of Philosophy in the Lycee of Havre, France. His recent book, 'De l'Automatisme Psychologique," which served as the author's thesis for the Doctorate of Science in Paris, has already occasioned quite a commotion among the scientists of Europe. The object of the work is to throw light upon the causes and eccentricities of insanity, and disclose such details of treatment as M. Janet has demonstrated as of value. The insane period he regards as one of distinct consciousness, as different from the normal as midnight from noonday; or, as he puts it, the field of consciousness is contracted and a medley of images is forced upon the brain. Insane mentality lacks strength to take in the normal number of sensations or ideas at once, and hence they are jumbled and incoherent. When a person of sound mentality can handle or think of ten things at a time a hysteric can manage only five—perhaps only two—and that awkwardly. The author claims that our minds are like vessels full of water, and taking in an additional drop forces another out; and it should not be overlooked that the hysteric mental vessel is preternaturally small. In unifying or synthetizing the innumerable facts which are constantly offered for its consideration, its power is insufficient to do the full sum of work thus presented, and an ingrained habit is formed of neglecting or overlooking certain determinate portions of the mass. Some ignore the senses of the eyes and see not, although their eyes are as fully open and in as healthy condition as ever. Others have, apparently, to their own comprehension, but one arm or leg, and perhaps but half a body; the other half seeming to them to have been cut away and removed; and according to these crippled sensations they move and act.

"Apart from this disability, termed anaesthesia in the books, hysterical persons are usually distrait and confused by trifles. They forget everything and live only at the present moment; and in their then immediate surroundings, no matter where they may be temporarily located. When one of M. Janet's patients, whom he calls Lucie, stopped talking directly with one she ceased to be able to hear any one else. A companion might stand behind her, call her by name, shout abuse into her ears, without inducing her to turn around; or, going before her face, showing her objects, tapping her on the cheek, without attracting from her the least notice. At length, after an interval of several minutes, she would become aware that she was addressed, and, as if the speaker had just entered the room, make her greetings accordingly. Such remarkable digression of consciousness often forces her to tell all her secrets aloud, unrestrained by the presence of unsuitable auditors.

"It was finally discovered that she knew a state of existence with which her companions and attendants were unacquainted, and very incoherently for a time she who performed in her behalf many kindly acts. She began to improve shortly after imparting this information, and in some two years from that time she brought a message from her terra incognita which M. Janet recognized as something intended for his guidance in the girl's treatment, from a psychologic view! He saw reason in the message and adopted its suggestions with caution, gradually, one at a time, till good results came. Hypnotism was largely employed as an awakener of sensibility, which M. Janet induced by the method of passes over the face and body.

SPOKE OF FRIENDS THERE

"In making these passes he stumbled upon one of the most curious facts he has reported. When Lucie was in the hypnotic state on one occasion the suggestion came to him to continue the passes over her, which he did for the space of half an hour. She was thus thrown into a sort of syncope, from which, after another half hour, she revived in a second somnambulistic condition entirely unlike any that had characterized her hitherto different sensibilities, a different memory, in short, another person. In the waking state the girl was anaesthetic all over, nearly deaf and with a terrible contracted field of vision. However bad it was, sight was her best sense, and she used it as a guide in all her movements. With her eyes bandaged she was utterly helpless, and like other persons of a similar class, she almost immediately fell asleep at the withdrawal of her sensorial stimulus. M. Janet calls this waking, or primary state, by the name of Lucie I. In Lucie II., her primary class of hypnotic trance, the anaesthesias were diminished, but not removed. In the deeper trance, LucieIII., brought about by the additional passes, no trace of them remained. Her sensibility became perfect, and, instead of being an extreme example of the visual type, she was transformed into what in the new terminology, is called 'a motor.'

"That is to say, that whereas when awake she had thought wholly according to the impression upon her organs of vision, and could imagine things only by remembering how they looked, now in this deeper trance her thoughts and memories seemed largely composed of images of movement and of touch, as appears by M. Janet's induction from a great and interesting mass of facts, which I do not sufficiently recall to summarize.

"This discovery of the form of deeper trance in Lucie made M. Janet naturally eager to find it in his other patients. He found it in those he designates as Rose, Marie and Leonie, and his brother, Dr. Jules Janet, interne at the Salpetriere Hospital, found it in the celebrated subject, Witt, whose trances had been studied for years by the various doctors of that institution without any of them having happened to awaken this very peculiar modification of the personality. It is stated that with the return of all the sensibilities in the deeper trance the subjects are transformed, as it were, into normal persons. In particular their memories improve, and at this point comes in M. Janet's first great theoretic generalization, which is this: 'When a certain kind of sensation is abolished in a hysteric person there is also abolished along with it all recollection of past sensations of that kind.' If hearing, for example, be the anaesthetic sense, the patient becomes unable even to imagine sounds and voices, and has to speak, when speech is still possible, by means of

MOTOR OR ARTICULATORY CURES.

If the motor sense be abolished, the patient must will the movement of his limbs by first defining them to his mind in visual terms, and must innervate his voice by premonitory idea of the way in which the words are going to sound.

"Upon the patient's recollection the practical effect of this law would necessarily be great. For example, take things touched and handled and bodily movements. Memories of such things, records of such experiences, being normally stored away in tactile terms, would have to be incontinently lost and forgotten as soon as the cutaneous and muscular sensibilities should come to be cut out in the course of disease. Memory of them, on the other hand, would be stored as soon as the sense of touch came back. Again, experiences undergone during the anaesthetic condition of touch—consequently stored up in visual or auditory terms exclusively—can have contracted no associations with tactile ideas, for such ideas are, in the time being, forgotten and practically nonexistent. However, if the sensibilities of touch are ever restored, and their ideas and memories with them, it may easily happen that they, with their clustered associations, may temporarily keep out of consciousness things like the visual and other experiences accumulated during the anaesthetic period which have no connection with them.

It is suggested by Mr. Janet that if touch be the dominant sense in childhood, it would thus be explained why hysterical anaesthetics whose tactile sensibilities and memories are brought back by trance so often assume a childlike deportment, and even call themselves by baby names. For instance, MM. Borru and Burot found in their extraordinary somnambulist, Louis V., that reviving by suggestion a certain condition of bodily feeling in him would invariably transport him back to the epoch of his life when that condition had prevailed. He forgot the later years and resumed the character and sort of intellect which had marked him at the earlier time.

"I may return to M. Janet's theory and practice on another occasion. My acquaintance with this work grew out of a mournful necessity—the mental aberration of a relative from disappointment in one of the tenderest relations of mortals. She had been a young lady of the most brilliant promise, intellectually alert, even witty, and with no just apprehension of grief. Her mania developed such features as made her parents loth to entrust her case to a stranger, and I undertook it with fear and trembling, having no experience to guide my course. Naturally I looked to the French authority for information upon a subject to which they have given such careful, studious and exhaustive investigation, and the result approved this method. At once I determined to employ hypnotism and found myself enabled to do so after a little study of the science.

"I shall designate the patient as Hattie. In the hypnotic state she returned to her sane condition and conversed as rationally as ever. My greatest surprise came in her recognition of the fact that there was another Hattie in the house—a silly girl who had gone daft because she was pursued by the mere phantom of love. 'If a shadow can do so much harm,' said she, 'the reality must be a perfect terror.'

"'Were you never in love?' I asked.

"'Indeed no,' she replied, with a light laugh; 'love of that sort is only for crazy heads.'

"After several months' treatment with fair apparent results I ventured upon a test of M. Janet's experiment in the deepest trance. It succeeded admirably, but the developments were different from anything in the reports of the French scientists. The girl seemed to have entered the pearly gates and caught a glimse of paradise, and she talked with the spirits of just men and women made perfect—with her grandfather, her former teacher and pastor, and with girl acquaintances who had passed away when quite young. They talked of the past, my patient in her natural, childish tone, and she repeated all the messages she received, apparently for my benefit. Of course I heard the answers, some of which were specially instructive.

"Following the fourth or fifth trance of this kind I was gratified beyond measure to discover that Hattie in her normal state recalled some of their features, and especially the remark her pastor had made that with patience and the good care she was receiving it would erelong be well with her. I needed this kind of encouragement, for our progress seemed very slow, sometimes not at all perceptible. Memory of everything was reluctant, and I charged this to the cause of the attack, to which we, of course, never referred. The months dragged along, but I was constantly cheered by the assurance from 'over there' that all would eventually be well. The deep trance had become the rule, for its improving influence was remarkably manifest. One day it continued beyond the usual limit, and Hattie was indeed laggard in returning to mundane things. Her eyes at last snapped open, and with a surprised look she gazed upon the objects about her, and said:

"'Home again at last. What a journey I have had in strange places, and many times I was lost. I'm glad to get home again, but, oh, how tired and hungry!'

"She had returned to herself. The unhappy episode of the past was completely dead and deeply buried by the aid of those good angels who know best how to administer to a mind diseased. The way to their help has been made plain by such progressive gentlemen as Janet and Charcot. May God bless the efforts of everyone who is devoting his abilities to the discovery of means for the cure of insanity." T. P.

JAY GOULD MAKES PROGRESS IN SPIRIT LIFE.

To the Editor:—In your issue of the 9th, I find an article of merit entitled "A Needed Lesson," from the pen of Sarah L. Hard, M. D. I heartily concur in all the sister has written, with the exception of these words: "Alex Stewart, Jay Gould, are pictured as starved skeletons, feebly crying as infants in a cold attic or celler, groping in darkness, begging for light, food, raiment."

I cannot answer for Mr. Stewart, but I do know that for Mr. Gould the condition mentioned does not exist. One who understood his need brought him to me soon after he passed the "Border Land." He was unhappy, 'tis true, but not for long. I gave into his keeping the beautiful wand of Hope, and taught him how to "work out his own salvation." I counseled with him as I would with one in the form. He displayed the same characteristic energy that governed his earth existence, and worked unceasingly to cancel the "debt to humanity," and with this result. One evening in a circle he spoke to one through one of our well known mediums. With joy unspeakable he said: "My soul is free! O, this night my soul is free! now I can go onward and upward."

His is a bright progressive spirit. In all the spirit-realm I have not a more valued friend. Do you wonder that I take up my pen in his behalf? Would that each soul in spirit-life was a Jay Gould in desire to progress. Would that each soul in earth-life was spiritually unfolded before crossing o'er the threshold, and I would that there were more "silent workers" in this beautiful vineyard of truth.

Those on the other side of life need us just as much as we need them. In serving them we are serving humanity. Only the undeveloped are a detriment to earth's sensitives.

And now I would clasp hands with the dear co-workers and whisper a word to them. Be happy that you have been considered worthy to look beyond the veil that conceals the spiritual from the material world. Be true to those who have chosen you to aid in the grand work of giving light to them who sit in darkness. Come up higher in your lives; reach heavenward in your hearts; let all your thoughts be pure. To those who have fallen on life's battle field, extend a helping hand. You cannot see with the eyes of the soul, and should judge not. You did not see the conflict. You do not know the scars.

"Faults and failings let us cover
With that mantle, shining white,
Angel drop from heaven over
Every soul that dwells in light."

Send out into the thought-realm, kindly thought to those out as well as in the form. Draw from the great fountain of knowledge and love that flows from the silent and beautiful land of the soul, and learn to say in all sincerity: God bless each soul in human expression—excepting none.

MARY E PARK.

San Francisco, Cal.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

TENDENCIES

Toward Fossil Conservatism.

VARIOUS INSTANCES SPECIFIED—DANGERS PLAINLY DESIGNATED—WORDS OF WARNING AND APPEAL—FROM AN OLD-TIME SPIRITUALIST.

To the Editor:—We are approaching the Semi-Centennial of modern Spiritualism. Already a celebration is contemplated; a retrospective view may not be out of order. The writer can well remember the agitation the first raps produced, as well as the position taken by the first spiritual newspapers, teachers, and leaders, nearly fifty years ago; they were thorough reformers, and all reformers were given a helping hand.

Politics, medicine, law, theology, women's rights, marriage, and every question that related to the unfoldment and uplifting of humanity was considered germane, and recognized during the first three decades.

No Spiritualist questioned the policy of "The Banner of Light," of Boston, in its agitation for the freedom of the slave, the rights of the Indian upon the western plains, the absurd and dangerous vaccination schemes of unscrupulous M. Ds., or the rights of women, single or married, to the absolute control of their physical bodies—these and all similar subjects connected with the welfare of the great brotherhood and sisterhood of the human race. Yes! and the rights of our fellow creatures the domestic animals, were considered proper subjects for discussion in the first years of modern Spiritualism.

Who will contend that the spiritual press, the spiritual rostrum or the rank and file of our leaders have kept pace with the demand of the times, or are to-day leaders in the great issues of the day?

Who has muzzled the press? and the object, is the question. Why are the subjects of politics—National, State and municipal—tabooed by the spiritual press? Is good government unimportant? Isn't our first duty due to home and country? Are Spiritualists to degenerate to the plane of the followers of Catholicism, and be led by the nose by some spiritual priest, or will they arise and assert their manhood, and demand that all muzzles be removed, and the searchlight of truth and freedom be turned on?

Is it a good move to discard our simple society organizations, adopt the worn-out, out-grown orthodox name of church, and ordain John Crookshanks and Sally Ann Snyde to preach in the pulpit of a spiritual church? How do such spiritual schemes sound? Do they sound progressive and aggressive, or do they have the ring of a fossil and the smell of having gone to seed?

What are the real tendencies of Spiritualists at this date? Are they not towards church organizations with all their sham attachments? What about our great camps and National organization—have they moved to lead the people into bondage or out? Has the National organization sounded any rallying cry except the God-in-the-Constitution movement?

How about the God in humanity that is at this moment being starved and frozen out of the bodies of fifty thousand of God's children in the great City of Chicago? Have Spiritualists no especial interest in such conditions in free America? Is politics to be ignored under such circumstances by Spiritualists?

How do such facts and conditions look to our Rev. Church Spiritualists? Why change the label from society to church unless there is some object; what can be the object of any intelligent Spiritualist in advocating such a move? What do history and observation teach in this matter of society or church organizations? The Unitarians and Universalists are fair examples of results under consideration.

Forty and fifty years ago they were the objective points of orthodox persecution; they were organized in small societies similar to those adopted by Spiritualists! they were unpopular agitators for better religion, better government and better morals; their purses were light, but their faith strong, because they believed in works as surely as faith, also used reason with their strong wills and persistent energy; they were a power for good everywhere, because it was humanity they were pleading and working for.

Spiritualism (modern) was born during this period, and the most bitter and relentless persecution that was doing much for them, giving them free advertising, was transferred to the new-born babe in the spiritual manger; the results were obvious; the Us. grew into popularity and have fossilized as rapidly as the orthodox churches.

The Spiritualists soon received the shot and shell of orthodoxy, also of the then liberal religionists, Infidels and Deists, consequently the agitation became notorious, the secular press took sides, and the truth underlying the modern movement got a hearing; it looked to some of us, as if the world would soon be converted to a religion founded on demonstration sustained by reason and sound philosophy; Spiritualists of those early days were progressive, aggressive, and thorough agitators; nearly every one an inspired proselyter; societies multiplied rapidly, until millions became interested and were glad to exchange the bondage of the church for the freedom of the Spiritualist's organizations, glad to have demonstration of continued life, in place of theory, tradition and faith; glad to learn from the spirits that the cruel, unreasonable, unjust dogmas of a materialistic organization labeled Christian, were a farce, untrue from the base to the pinnacle.

What can we say of the churches of to-day? The first and one of the most important points is a fine, costly structure, in a popular locality; the house must be in the finest style of architecture, finely finished and gorgeously furnished, or else it will not draw; the draw being the important consideration; the most noted and notorious clergyman in the society will listen to a call from the "Lord" if the society is large; the house very fine, and the congregation rich; only a half dozen Carnegies and Rockefellers are necessary to make such a church a success. Jesus their God was a grand success, and his example is always referred to by those popular ten-thousand-dollar preachers; of course their God was hung as a criminal, but he was a good young man, and a thorough reformer, and was not especially interested in the forms, ceremonies and traditions of the then ruling church; he is reported to have preached a very plain common sense religion, that did not harmonize with his neighbor's views, therefore he was a dangerous God, and must be disposed of.

I give the readers of The Progressive Thinker the above plain facts in order to show the tendency of church organizations, and to ask: Is it wise for Spiritualists to surrender their strong position as organized reformers, by adopting church in place of society methods? The name church is extremely objectionable because of its use and associations. The modern church is a home for materialists and invalid Spiritualists; it will never answer the purpose of healthy, growing Spiritualists.

The spirit-world inaugurated the modern movement, and I have no doubt regarding their wisdom to run and not ruin it.

Spiritualism is a humanitarian religion, and is not yet in the care of carnated spirits; carnated spirits may strive to control the movement, they may sidetrack it for a time, but the first they will know, some new avenue will be opened and accepted for a more perfect spiritual expression.

Spiritualism plain and simple as it is and has been handed to us from decarnated spirits, is, and always has been the greatest of all blessings; no influence for right-living, for justice for enlightening and uplifting humanity can compare with it. No faith, or theoretical traditional religion can take the place of a demonstrated, philosophical, reasonable one. There can be no more attractive presentation of spiritual truth than the truth itself; it does not require the shadows of an external church to make it inviting; the less of the show and sham—shame—of the church the better for plain clear-cut Spiritualism.

The everliving subjects of life in all its varied human expressions "the rights of man," non-partisan politics as related to good government, should not be tabooed by wide-awake Spiritualists. The Gods, saviors, hells, heavens, prayers and saints, with all the theories and speculations that attend them, are not up-to-date subjects for progressive Spiritualists. A revival of plain Spiritualism is the demand of the hour.

DR. M. E. CONGER.

945 Trumbull Ave., Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT FROM TURKEY.

Sir Ellis Ashmead Bartlett has just returned to England from Constantinople, which city he visited in the interest of the Triple Alliance, to bring about a better understanding among the contracting powers. The New York Herald of a late date, in its European edition, prints the report of a lengthy interview held in Paris with its own correspondent, while the embassador was on his return journey to London. It was cabled to New York, from which city it was mailed to The Progressive Thinker.

It is a source of gratification to know that our journal took a correct view of this Turkish imbroglio from the beginning, and that our well-read readers have been with us.

"It is simply damnable," said a pious churchman to whom we handed this news slip for his eye, as he closed its reading, "how shamefully the Christian public has been deceived by the false and wholly partisan reports sent to this country from Armenia. Every battle between the constituted authorities and the insurgents has been represented as a massacre. My eyes have been gradually opening for some time, and this report fully confirms my suspicions."

But to the report, which we follow verbatim: Asked what was the object of his journey, Sir Bartlett replied:

"My main object was to ascertain the real state of affairs in Constantinople; also to do anything in my power to help promoting the good understanding between England and the Triple Alliance. The concert of Europe is a delicate matter. We might co-operate with France in the East, as England did so successfully in the Crimean war, but Russia now entirely directs French policy in Turkey, and Russian policy is hopelessly antagonistic to British interests.

"Russia's great ambition is Constantinople, and let Russia get Constantinople and the Straits, this would be fatal to English supremacy in the Mediterranean, and ultimately the English Empire in India."

Referring to the interview with the Sultan, Mr. Ellis said: "His majesty gave me a long audience and explained his position and views very fully. My impression of his majesty was that of all who converse with him in a reasonable and friendly spirit—a most favorable one. I do not believe the Sultan ordered the massacres or cruel deeds whatsoever. He is essentially a kind-hearted man, but he is in a position of the most desperate kind.

"As for the deplorable massacres that took place in Asia during October, November and December, 1895, they were the result of Mussulman indignation and fanaticism, which had been aroused by the sham atrocity agitation of England, by the reckless abuse of the Sultan and the Turks, and by the provocation of the Armenian revolutionists, especially by the emeute at Constantinople, on September 30, 1895."

"What do you mean by the sham atrocity agitation in England?"

"I mean that for ten months—from December, 1894, to September, 1895—all England was deluged with the most monstrous, shameless exaggerations and falsehoods regarding the suppression of the Gassun revolt in August, 1894. This bogus atrocity-mongering produced a bitter feeling between England and Turkey, and that was greatly intensified by Mr. Currie's scheme of reforms for Armenian districts only, issued in July, 1895.

"This produced, as a distinguished American told me previously, the same effect upon the dominant Mussulman caste as the negroes produced upon the Southern whites in 1866-7. The Ku Klux Klan in reprisal maltreated hundreds of negroes. On the top of all this exaggeration there were many deliberate outrages committed by Armenian huntchakist societies in order to provoke Mussulmans to deeds of blood. There were most deplorable massacres in the last three months of 1895.

"All good Mussulmans in Constantinople regret and condemn these, but the Sassun atrocities were a fraud. At the worst five hundred men were killed in suppressing the revolt. Reckless Christian fanatics and the political gobe mouches of England had a large responsibility in all the troubles."

Sir Ellis went on to speak of the reforms inaugurated by the Sultan and prophesied a speedy improvement if the Turkish administration is given breathing time, and if tranquility is maintained.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

OLD BOTTLES.

Protest Against Putting New Wine into Them.

CHURCH NAMES, FORMS, CEREMONIES, ETC.—A BACKWARD MOVEMENT.

To the Editor:—I did not think to again so soon ask space in your columns, but I have read with interest the articles pro and con upon Spiritualism and church, and I desire to say a few words bearing upon this subject. To me it is disheartening, (to use no stronger term) to note the tendency of Spiritualists and of spiritualistic societies to cater to popularity by using the words and prayers, (when others will serve as well) and adopting the forms and ceremonies and rituals of an institution that Spiritualism has been battling for half a century. To me it is a sad and lamentable fact that an effort is being made to fit this grand philosophy of life to the stunted, dwarfed body of orthodox churchianity: to groove it into the rut, and mould it to shape and conform to a system of false theology, and if it be true that there is no protection under the law to Spiritualists as an organized body—if there are no methods through which we may claim and gain respectability except through this time-serving process, then our case is a pitiable one indeed. Is it not possible for Spiritualism to establish a religion that shall command the respect of the world, and demand the protection of our laws without conforming to the senseless usages of fast-decaying ecclesiasticism? If not, where our boasted strength and power? In the name of reason and good sense, can there be no religion only as related to the mummery and mimicry of the Dark Ages? Why should Spiritualism trail its shining garments through the musty tombs of antiquity to pick up the rubbish of medieval times?

That good worker Mrs. R. S. Lillie, referring recently through another paper to the fact that some of our ablest speakers were out of engagements, and inferior talent taking their places, and this was driving the more advanced Spiritualists into the liberal churches, queried: "What are we coming to? What does it mean?" Now, the above stated fact is too ofttimes apparent, and yet I would sooner attend a liberal church where they have good talent, speakers abreast of the times, and where they are fast laying aside the forms and ceremonies of old, than to go to a Spiritualist "church" where they are just taking them up; and especially so, if, as Mrs. Lillie and some others advocate, we are to exclude the test work from the "pulpit;" and while I am not a "test" hunter nor a "sign" seeker, having long since passed that stage of inquiry, still I cannot see that there is anything immoral or irreligious in receiving a message of love and helpfulness from a spirit friend through a platform test medium on the "Sabbath" day! I cannot see how any "religion" can be better upheld by knocking out its foundation, or by refusing people an opportunity to know regarding the phenomenal side of the subject. The fact of tests following lectures, (Oh, I beg pardon, "sermons"), I do not believe destroys the effect of the good words of the speaker, but on the contrary many hear the good words and are benefited thereby, who would never hear them if the test work were carried on separately. Many a one has said to me, as to other speakers: "Your words are good, but are they true. Can you give us the proof?" A man past 80 years, whose lovable daughter had just left him through the door of death, called at our home recently in search of light that should penetrate the gloom and darkness (to him) of death. He said, with tears in his eyes: "I have heard you speak, and O, if you had backed your words with proof!" And how I wished that the wondrous gift of "test" mediumship was mine.

The whole aim of spiritual societies should not merely be to edify advanced Spiritualists, but certainly, if we are to imitate orthodoxy, we should seek to reach those in darkness, as the church strives to bring the "sinners" into the fold. But societies should be careful and judicious in the selection of both speaker and medium, and if possible give the people the very best.

What are we coming to, and what does it mean? The signs of the time portend that Spiritualism as a distinctive movement is destined to pass away; with one class of Spiritualists establishing churches and discarding the name Spiritualism; another class accepting Theosophy and working against Spiritualism; with others leaving our ranks to enter Unitarian churches, and still others studying and fitting themselves for Unitarian preachers—with all this going on it looks very much as though Spiritualism was to be "swamped." The principles underlying it and the spiritual virtues within it will live, but as isms, it appears as if the beginning of the end was in view.

This is what I read recently as the report of a Spiritualist meeting: "Ordination, installation and baptismal services were held." This is just what we read about orthodox meetings.

Again I read: "The Church of the Soul meets at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Cora Richmond, pastor. Sunday-School at 12:30. Opening service, repeating the Lord's Prayer in concert by the children." Now I ask, what is there in those notices to distinguish Spiritualism from the Protestant or the Catholic churches? Nothing whatever: both Protestantism and Catholicism have their "All Souls" churches, their "All Saints" churches, their "Churches of the Spirit," etc.

But then, it is said that we can accustom ourselves to anything, and when we get used to the "new deal," we will be better prepared to appreciate other "innovations" that will no doubt soon follow—such as the "Lord's Supper," "High Mass," the "Rosary" for the children, etc. And thus there must needs be, beside reverends and pastors, "Mothers Superior," and "Priests," and maybe a nice, saintly old Pope to bless us. How nice it will all be!

But, is it not disgusting to contemplate such a state of things? But, with the tide turned in this direction, who shall say where it will end. "What are we going to do about it?" Some of us are at least going to enter our protest against having Spiritualism buried beneath the leached-out ash-heap of creedal Christianity. No doubt, however, individuals and societies will continue to do just about as they have a mind to in this direction; but it does seem that our foremost speakers, who have been made, many of them, what they are through Spiritualism, would discountenance the effort to put the new wine of this grand movement into the old bottles of churchianity.

CLARA WATSON.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

LIFE WORK —OF— CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY HARRISON D. BARRETT.

With portraits representing Mrs. Richmond in 1857, in 1876, and in 1894.

OUTLINE OF CONTENTS:

INTRODUCTION.

CHAPTER I. Parentage—Place of Birth—Childhood—School Experiences—First Mediumistic Work, etc.

CHAPTER II. Hopedale—Mr. Scott in Massachusetts—Removal to Wisconsin—The Ballou Family—Adin Ballou's Work—Work of Spirit Adin Augustus Ballou.

CHAPTER III. Ouina—Her Earthly Life and Tragic Death—Her Mission in Spirit-Life.

CHAPTER IV. Other Controls—The Guides.

CHAPTER V. Work in Cuba, N. Y.—Buffalo Pastorate—Workers in Buffalo—Thomas Gales Forster—Sarah Brooks—Horace H. Day—Removal to New York City, 1856—Philadelphia—Boston—Baltimore.

CHAPTER VI. Work in New York City.

CHAPTER VII. New York City (continued). Prof. J. J. Mapes—Hon. J. W. Edmonds—Dr. Gray—New York Editors and Clergy—Other Places in the East—Meadville, Pa., 1864—Hon. A. B. Richmond.

CHAPTER VIII. Washington, D. C.—Reconstruction—Senator J. M. Howard—George J. W. Julien—Gen. N. P. Banks—Nettie Colbern Maynard—Statement of Geo. A. Bacon.

CHAPTER IX. England—Robert Dale Owen—George Thompson—Countess of Caithness—Mrs. Strawbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Tebb—Mrs. Nosworthy—J. C. Ward—Mrs. Slater—Andrew Cross.

CHAPTER X. Work in England (Continued in Three Subsequent Visits).

CHAPTER XI. California Work, 1875—Other Visits—Letter of C. M. Plumb—Letter of Mrs. John A. Wilson.

CHAPTER XII. Chicago Work, 1876 to 1895—First Society Chartered, 1869—Complete Account of Work in Letters and Statements of Members of the Society.

CHAPTER XIII. Camp Meeting Work—Cassadaga—Lake Pleasant—Onset Bay—Lake Brady—Lookout Mountain, etc.

CHAPTER XIV. Literary Work—Hesperia—Volumes of Discourses and Lectures—Psychopathy; Soul Teachings—Poems—Other Literary Work.

CHAPTER XV. Literary Work (continued)—Lecture on Gyroscope, 1858—"The Shadow of a Great Rock in a Weary Land," 1887—Poems—Choice Selections in Prose and Verse—Work of William Richmond.

CHAPTER XVI. Letters from Personal Friends; from Orpha E. Tousey; from Lady Caithness, and others—Appreciation of the Work from Those Best Qualified to Judge—Frederick F. Cook—Wendell C. Warner—Drs. Emmett and Helen Dinsmore.

CHAPTER XVII. Mrs Richmond's Experiences While in the Trance State, Written by Herself.

Price $2, Postpaid. For Sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

— BY —

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—THOMAS STARR KING.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Staff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

HUMAN CULTURE AND CURE

MARRIAGE, SEXUAL DEVELOPMENT, AND SOCIAL UPBUILDING.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D.

A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc.

Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF "The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a careful comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

IMMORTALITY,

. . . OR . . .

FUTURE HOMES AND DWELLING PLACES.

BY DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

AN INVALUABLE WORK!

This admirable work contains what a hundred spirits, good and evil, say of their dwelling-places. Give us details—details and accurate delineations of life in the Spirit-world!—is the constant appeal of thoughtful minds. Death is approaching. Whither—oh, whither! Shall I know my friends beyond the tomb? Will they know me? What is their present condition, and what their occupations? In this volume the spirits, differing as they may, are allowed to speak for themselves. No man is better qualified than Dr. Peebles to place a work of this kind before the people. He treats of the Mysteries of Life; Doubts and Hopes; The Bridging of the River; Foregleams of the Future; Testimony of Saints; The Growth and Perfection of the Spiritual Body; Is it the Soul or Body that Sins?; Clothing in the Spirit-world; Our Little Ones in Heaven; The Personal Experiences of Aaron Knight; The Red Man's Testimony; Evil Spirits; Testimony of Physicians in Spirit-Life; The Homes of Apostles and Divines; The Friends and Shakers in Spirit-Life; Spirit Homes of Bruno and Others; Many Voices from the Spirit-Land. Many other matters are treated, too numerous to mention. Price $1.50; postage, 12 cents. For sale at this office.

POEMS FROM THE INNER LIFE

By Lizzie Doten. These poems are as staple as sugar. Price $1.00.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club) 7.50
Thirteen weeks ..... 25 cts
Single copy ..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, FEB. 13, 1897.

CROMWELL, THE PURITANS AND SLAVERY.

The Puritans had their rise during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, about 1564. They were rigid adherents of Calvinism, and were first distinguished because of their hostility to the ornaments worn by the English clergy when officiating in their pulpits, and by their imitation of the rites and ceremonies of the Catholics. They very generally adopted the teachings of the Pietists:

"No man is able to attain that perfection the divine law requires: Good works are not necessary to salvation: In the act of justification on the part of man, faith alone is concerned, without good works."—Buck's Theological Dictionary.

The persecutions directed against the Puritans during the last part of Elizabeth's reign, and continued through later administrations, induced the emigration of large numbers of them to America in 1620, followed through successive years with others, mostly locating in New England, and thence in later years to the more westerly States, whose population became very generally imbued with their teachings.

Oliver Cromwell, who was made Lord Protector of England in 1653, was one of the most distinguished Puritan leaders of his time. To say he was a man of blood would arouse the hostility of his friends, so we are content to narrate the facts, make a quotation from a letter of his, published over his own signature, and leave the reader to make his own deductions, as to the Protector's religious character.

In 1649, two months after the execution of Charles I., Cromwell was made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. As such, with a large army, he marched against Drogheda, the ancient capital. The people were not in sympathy with the Commonwealth, and the fortress was garrisoned by 3,000 soldiers. On the 12th of September Cromwell ordered a surrender. This demand was not complied with, so he made a successful assault and "delivered the city up to the license of the soldiery." Cromwell's own report to the government is the best account of the affair. After telling how he carried the entrenchments, he continues:

"Being thus entered, we refused them quarter, having the day before summoned the town. I believe we put to the sword the whole number of the defendants. I do not think thirty of the number escaped with their lives. Those that did, are in safe custody for the Barbadoes."

And then he closes this story of carnage and slaughter with:

"I wish that all honest men may give the glory of this to God alone, to whom indeed, the praise of this mercy belongs."

That is the hypocritical cant of the assassin. We next find these Christian barbarians marching on Wexford, where these outrages and massacres were repeated. But, good reader, don't overlook that important statement: Those who were not massacred "are in safe custody for Barbadoes." And what does that mean? Simply that those Irish who were not slaughtered at Drogheda and Wexford were transported to the West India Island of Barbadoes, and were sold into Christian slavery, by this Puritan whose religion the descendants of New England inherit!

Don't let us be too severe in our condemnation of these enslavers of white Christians, but turn to page 473 of Hallam's Middle Ages, and read:

"It is a humiliating proof of the degradation of Christendom, that the Venetians were reduced to the purchase of the luxuries of Asia by supplying the slave markets of the Saracens * * * This trade was not peculiar to Venice. In England it was very common, even after the conquest, to export slaves to Ireland."

In a foot note the learned historian says: "William of Malmesburg accuses the Anglo-Saxon nobility of selling their female servants, even when pregnant by themselves, as slaves to foreigners." Then Hallam cites authority to prove the charge was true, and even a common practice after the conquest to export slaves to Ireland; but Cromwell, it seems, exported their Christian masters, to sell them in a Christian market, to become slaves to other Christians. That was pioneer Christianity. These same Puritans inaugurated their career in America by whipping and banishing Baptists, hanging Quakers, and drowning or burning witches. As this pastime was virtually prohibited by the organic law of the Nation, possibly their struggle to put God, Jesus Christ, and the Bible in that instrument has an eye singled to a revival of those good old times, though it is probable since hell has lost its efficacy, Spiritualists and Agnostics are the targets at which they propose to direct their venom.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfils the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

JONAH STORY A FICTION.

There would be hope for the ultimate triumph of truth if all the clergy would exhibit as much good sense as did Rev. Lyman Abbott, in a recent Sunday evening lecture at Plymouth church, wherein he expressed his honest conviction that the story of Jonah and the whale is a fiction. Says the press report:

"There was as much laughter and amusement over his remarks as if a variety performance was in progress. He started off by saying that the story of Jonah and the whale was a fiction, and there was no obligation on anyone to believe it. It was a parable on the same line as that of the 'Prodigal Son.'

"Dr. Abbott had no doubt a person named Jonah once existed, but his adventures after being thrown from the ship had come to be regarded as the 'Pickwick Paper' of the Bible.

"Unrestrained laughter followed this and some humorous references."

PERSONAL OBSERVATION.

Away back many years ago an acquaintance of the writer "experienced religion" at a protracted meeting held in the neighborhood where he resided. The convert was a farmer in vigorous health, but the strain on his brain and nervous system was such he broke down, and became a religious maniac. He walked the streets of the country town, constantly proclaiming in a loud voice, "There are lions in the way." Then he would pick up great rocks, of such weight in ordinary condition he could not have raised them from the ground, then with both hands lifted them above his shoulder, and hurled them with great force at the imaginary foe. He is seen in our mind's eye as we write, hatless and coatless, with disheveled hair, and the picture of fright, as he fought the beasts that barred his passage to his fancied heaven. From that day to this an eye has been watchful to observe these wrecks of a false religion. If we do seem, at times, to write harshly against a creed which has filled the world with mental and moral imbeciles, it will be remembered that for some fifteen hundred years—for we find no historical evidence of an earlier origin—this insanity-producing work has been going on. Then we pray the reader to picture before him the good George Nelson, so feebly described, with the innumerable multitudes of others who have been alike frenzied from the same cause, when it is hoped he will join hands with The Progressive Thinker, and aid in ridding the world of a false system of morals ever boasting of its charitable work in erecting insane asylums, the very first of which was built as a resort for lunatic monks, made such by their own wicked teaching, into which its projector became the first victim.

AMUSING.

It will be recollected Evangelist Moody insisted on a thirty days' effort in all the churches of America, to commence immediately after the beginning of the new year, "for the spread of the Gospel." All else were lesser matters, the emergency was great. News from Shelbyville, Ind., gives an account of one of these efforts to "spread the Gospel." C. Fenwick Reed, an evangelist from Terre Haute, set the ball rolling, and the press dispatches report him quite fully. We need an amusement column for the special benefit of such ranters. In its absence a paragraph is here quoted:

"I come here, thinking this was a spiritual church. Shelbyville is a bad town, one of the worst towns out of hell. It is not in the hands of men, but of automatons. There must be in the 1,200 who are members of the church some stinking carcasses. There are churches in Shelbyville which are walking hand in hand with the Devil, and encouraging or permitting their young people to dance and play cards. If they don't face about, and that soon, they will march hand in hand with Satan into hell. The residents of this community are blessed with the luxury of natural gas for fuel, but I would advise the gas company in digging new wells not to go too deep, as hell is less than fifty miles away, and the drill would only give Satan an opportunity to swallow the city."

This is only a brief report of the first night's entertainment. Imagine that kind of service extended to thirty days, with like scenes enacted in all the churches. It would seem even the deacons would get a surfeit of hell and the Devil before the term would expire.

CALLED OF GOD.

J. W. Going, of Solomon, has given up a good, steady job as a railroad section foreman and adopted the uncertain avocation of an evangelist. He says the Lord "called" him.—Kansas City Star.

Many years ago a young man by the name of Jones—no way related to Rev. Sam—arose in his place in a backwoods church, said he had a call of God to preach, and wished a license to enter on the holy ministry. A brother wished to know when, where and in what manner God called him to enter his service? The aspirant for a heavenly mission responded:

"I had gone over to Brother Smith's brush pasture to pray. As I dropped on my knees I heard a voice which seemed to come from the clouds, saying: 'Go preach, go preach, preach, preach, eh! I looked about, but neither man nor beast was in sight. I have no doubt it was the voice of the Lord."

Then the inquiring member:

"Deacon Smith keeps his donkey in the field the brother mentions. Doubtless he sniffed the odor of our brother and brayed. In his peculiar mood our brother mistook the bray for the voice of the Lord."

The moderator had such difficulty in preserving the decorum of the occasion he declared the body adjourned, omitting a formal vote. There may have been other "calls" of a like character.

GOSPEL SHOP ON WHEELS.

A gospel wagon, run by a gasoline engine, is the newest device for spreading the gospel in New York City. It will be in the charge of two Baptist clergymen and their wives, and will patrol every portion of the city. The vehicle will contain a regular pulpit, an organ and a choir. During the cold weather a large tank of coffee will be placed in the wagon, and when it is too cold to preach, the clergymen will distribute coffee and tracts to those around the wagon.—News Item.

Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him two-fold more the child of hell than yourselves.—Jesus.

RELIGION AND MURDER.

Wayne, Neb., Jan. 28, 1897.—C. K. Rash returned home last night from a revival meeting and murdered his wife and three children. The deed was done with three pieces of soapstone. It is supposed Rash's mind had become unbalanced as the result of excitement at the revival meeting.

THE PLAGUE.

The governments are moving in an attempt to hold the terrible bubonic plague from transportation from Asia. The Secretary of the Treasury has sent out instructions to all officers at our ports regarding merchandize coming from infected ports. If it is stayed it will not be by quarantine regulations, however rigidly enforced, but because of the higher standard of health, which prevents the inception of the germs.

The Bubonic plague is engendered by the filthy habits of the crowded population, living in utter disregard of every sanitary law. Its name comes from bubose, the lymphatic gland becoming swollen and ulcerating. It is identical with the black plague that devastated Europe during the 15th, 16th and 17th centuries, and was suppressed when cleanlier habits began to prevail. It seems to have a permanent home on the Eastern shores of the Mediterranean Sea.

The disease begins with a sense of great fatigue, shivering and depression, followed by delirium, stupor, a flushed face, severe pains in the groins, armpits and breast, swelling of the lymphatic glands, a dark, coated tongue, dark patches and ulcers over the whole body, relaxed bowels with bloody discharges, clammy sweat, sinking pulse, and death. Medical skill as yet has opposed no check to the disease. There is no doubt that it is caused by germs of a distinct, specific character. In the horrible hygenic conditions prevailing in the cities of Asia, and the shores of the Mediterranean, the corrupt blood of the pariahs furnishes a soil nourishing the germs and developing their most malignant form.

The imminent danger now threatening shows how intimately the most distant nations are related, and that the most civilized are necessarily "keepers" of the lowest races, or must suffer from neglecting their obligations. As long as the present conditions prevail in the Oriental cities, will Europe and the Western world be constantly menaced by cholera and various forms of plague.

It is now time for the doctors to send a bottle of pus and blood from a plague-stricken sufferer, to "culture," and thereby evolve an anti-bubo-toxine, and then have it made legally compulsory that every man, woman and child be vaccinated. It would be just as reasonable as vaccinating against smallpox or cholera.

The people of this country have nothing to expect or hope for from the doctors, or the efficacy of drugs in staying the disease, should it be brought to our shores. Only by bringing the standard of health up to that point where it can successfully resist the development of the germs, is there safety.

FAITH A FIXTURE BY LAW.

The great mass of readers have not turned aside to trace the origin of their religious beliefs, or to consider the methods by which they became fixtures in the public mind. Take transubstantiation—the transference of the bread and wine of the eucharist into the absolute blood and body of Christ. It is exceedingly difficult to conceive it possible for a sane person, with ordinary intelligence, to believe such a mystic doctrine, so obnoxious to all his senses. And yet, so late as about 1539, the king of England decreed punishment of death against all who refused to acknowledge the truth of this physical impossibility. See Encyclopedia Britannica, Vol. 8, p. 376.

By like penalties through the centuries, the religious opinions of Christendom were formed. Some ignorant priest projected a silly tale; others added to it. The years passed on; finally a king, to gain favor with priestcraft, compels its acceptance by the populace. It was so with the absurd doctrine of the trinity; so came Sunday observance; so the sacredness of the cross and the "Holy Bible." Creatures of law in barbarous ages, we are the inheritors of its ferocious requirements.

FOLLY OF THE TREATING HABIT.

"The practice of buying drinks for companions at bars as a mark of friendship or hospitality," says the Philadelphia Bulletin, "is one of the peculiar customs of the American people, which most of the men who participate in it freely acknowledge has become an abuse. It would be a good thing to do away with the practice altogether, but this will not be brought about by a legislative enactment which interferes with personal rights. We have too much legislation of this kind already. The 'treating' habit can be broken up only by a voluntary recognition of its tomfoolery and viciousness."

THE FOSTER PARENT.

Two women and a man went insane at a revival in Chicago. The religion of Chicago will do anything.—Country Paper.

It makes no difference whether in city or country, the same result always follows revival meetings. Asylums are erected for the reception and care of such mental wrecks, then the church boasts that it was the inventor of insane asylums. Let them have the glory, but don't fail to keep the world advised that Christianity is the foster parent of insanity.

THE DIFFERENCE.

"An opinion, right or wrong, can never constitute an offense, nor be in itself a moral obligation. It is a truth; or it may be an error; it can never be a crime or a virtue."

The church does not indorse such wholesome postulates as the above; on the contrary it insists that faith is the base of all goodness, and the parent of every virtue; while disbelief is not only the source of all crime, but is a crime of itself.

THE LYCEUM.

Hudson Tuttle commenced a series of articles, or "Lyceum Lessons," in our issue of last week. They will no doubt prove very suggestive and interesting to teachers as well as to the children under their instruction. They will continue for three months. Twenty copies of the paper containing them will be sent each week to any lyceum for 10cts.

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

The address delivered before the last National Association by Prof. Barrett is being read by thousands of Spiritualists who would never have seen it, had not The Progressive Thinker had the enterprise to publish it—an enterprise not followed by any other Spiritualist paper in the United States. We are now sending out hundreds of them weekly. The paper containing Prof. Barrett's address also contains five other highly interesting lectures and articles. In fact the paper is chockful of valuable information. See announcement on 5th page.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

A VOICE FROM ENGLAND.

AND IT COMES WITH NO UNCERTAIN SOUND.

Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten, the Gifted Speaker and Author, Gives Her Views on Important Questions.

AN URGENT AND WORLD-WIDE APPEAL FOR REFORM IN THE CONDUCT OF SPIRITUALISTIC MEETINGS—STIRRING WORDS FROM AN AUTHOR, LECTURER AND SEER, FAVORABLY KNOWN THE WORLD OVER—THOUGHTS WORTHY OF THE ATTENTION OF EVERY SPIRITUALIST.

To the Editor:—Realizing alike the fearless, candid, and truthful tone of your publication, I call your attention to a point, the republication of which I purpose to distribute from your columns to many other organs, claiming to represent Spiritualism.

In a recent article in one of the American Spiritual papers, I find the following notice which I use as the text of the remarks I have to offer. They are written by Mrs. R. S. Lillie, one of the finest speakers and expounders of true Spiritual Philosophy of the age; a whole-hearted woman, and a true Spiritualist to boot. She says:

In Light of Truth, Dec. 5th, Lyman C. Howe says he has no engagements for the winter and spring, and if none call him he shall conclude that he is not in demand on the Spiritual rostrum, and must turn his efforts in some other direction. What does it mean—that one of the best instruments for voicing the truth from spirits to mortals is unprovided for? His lectures are known to be among the most profound and instructive. It means that the present method of running Spiritual meetings by nearly all societies is ruinous to the welfare of the cause, and is driving from it into the liberal churches, by tens of thousands, those who have been attracted to Spiritualism—have learned its central truth, and going to the meetings find that they are not supplied intellectually, and withdraw, having a circle at home to meet their requirements. And while such men as Lyman C. Howe are left idle, the platforms of hundreds of meeting-places over the land are supplied with an inferior order of intellectuality because, as some of the managers say, "It doesn't matter as long as we are going to have tests, for that's the main thing," which in many instances means that there is to be an exhibit, presumably, to prove that spirits are present, but which too often is of such a questionable character as to leave doubt and distrust of the truth of such things, always doing untold injury to the true Spiritual test medium.

And while many officers of societies admit these facts and lament the conditions, they will conclude by saying: "But it draws." Here is the great error most societies are run on—the principle that sensation of some kind must be kept up to bring in the fee at the door, instead of supporting and sustaining the truth, that it may go forth to mankind a blessing.

Spiritualists should contribute to the upbuilding of Spiritualism and what it represents, as they used to do when they were in the churches. They should look upon it as a duty to put it before the world. Instead of which it is too often the case that the mountebank and pretender, with information obtained from any source, coupled with flimsy tricks, transparent to the majority, occupies the platform and blinds enough of the audience to insure success. These are facts acknowledged by thousands of Spiritualists who are anxiously asking what will be the result, and wherein lies the remedy?

There is, as it appears to me, but one remedy. It is to establish a place of meeting and procure means to carry it forward, and whether presenting the philosophy or phenomena, have each in its proper time and place, and the best that can be procured; and it is my belief that to be just to both classes of mediums they should be held at separate times, as neither one can be at their best with a restless audience—one portion of which has come for one thing and another for another.

MRS. R. S. LILLIE.

To supplement Mrs. Lillie's wise remarks given as above, let me add a few words of my own spiritual experiences.

From earliest childhood, I saw spirits or what the servants and others around me called "ghosts," and heard voices, often proved to be prophetic of coming events. Brought up in the tenets of the Church of England, it was not until I went to America about my 19th year that I heard any tidings of the newly found wonder of Spiritualism, then only known for about twelve years. For the sake of finding amusing items for certain English musical papers, I wrote for, I began to investigate the new wonder, and the inimitable Ada Foye being the medium, I was happily taken to, I found, as all who know her still may expect to find, every friend and relative I had ever known, and deemed "dead," alive again, living, and loving me; in a word, that mortal death was only the entrance to a new and higher life, and that there was only change, but no death. After a long and searching investigation with Mrs. Foye, the Fox sisters and hosts of other now unparalleled mediums, I became myself a strong and enthusiastic test medium.

I sat in New York from morning till night for thousands of visitors, and that under strictly enjoined directions from good and wise spirits, occupying fine quiet rooms allotted to me by Horace H. Day of New York, the famous India rubber merchant, at his hired premises, 553 Broadway. In the same building, Kate Fox, paid by Mr. Day, sat free for the public as an infallible test medium, by the means of raps; and he also published the New York Christian Spiritualist, a paper of which I was editor. I draw these particulars, in brief from my own as yet unpublished autobiography, to give a circumstantial weight and authority to that with which I desire to follow up these details. After devoting myself to the above named and other kindred employments for nearly two years, and making, I may venture to assert, thousands of converts to the belief in spiritual existence and communion, the spirits themselves, by a series of maneuvers too strange and unique to be dealt with in this article, compelled me, in despite of all my English prejudices to the contrary, to devote myself wholly to the duty of lecturing to Sunday or other public audiences, and to give up entirely sittings or even attempting to act in either public or private as a test medium again.

They explained the test of real identity proving the presence of departed spirits should only be accepted when names, ages, and tokens of personality were given, that these could only be rendered, when certain organs of the mediums brain could be influenced by the communicating spirits so as to give unmistakable proofs of the communicants identity.

The ideas desired to be impressed upon the brain organs of inspired public speakers, were, as my teachers all insisted, of a totally different nature to those which recalled names, ages, dates etc., under the influence of communicating spirit friends, and the attempt to act upon the two different brain exercises would not only be impossible but ruinous to the integrity of the medium's capacity.

Many more stringent pleas of a similar kind were advanced between the attempt to give spirit friends the opportunity of rendering by merely personal tests, the proof that life still subsisted beyond the death of the body, and the splendid religious teachings which can be communicated under specially prepared and favorable influences, of the stupendous facts of spiritual revelations of a scientific religion and a religious science.

I have much more to say of the varied and differential lines between mere personal tests of identity between spirits of departed friends and the inspirational appeals which point to the significant and mighty fact that mortal death is only the successive change from one phase of existence to another, urging—nay, compelling—us to live better and purer lives than those of our general earthly career, for the sake of preparing for the mighty change called death. Let it be clearly understood, however, by my readers, that I insist now, as I have done for the last thirty years, that no one has ever absolutely known of spiritual existence beyond the grave, or the fact that death is of the body alone, and does not touch—much less quench the spirit—until the proofs are given, in the phenomena of modern, no less than in ancient Spiritualism.

I am a Spiritualist simply upon the proofs of spirit return afforded solely by spiritual phenomena—but when I come to question what we shall do with our Spiritualism, I find there are two distinct and wholly inseparable phases of our glorious revelation which ought to be carefully and religiously guarded. The first of these phases is, that the phenomena which prove the return of the spirits to their friends should be given—as they first were in small harmonious circles gathered together on the Christ principle that "Where two or three are gathered together in my name am I in their midst."

Next if it is deemed wise or advisable to hold public meetings for tests, let it be understood, first, that alleged test mediums have been thoroughly proved to be such and are to be relied upon for their capacity as well as honesty. They may not be inspired to give the religious phases of the movement, any more than mechanics and inventors are found to be poets or painters, or different organs of the brain merge into the entity of its special powers.

The result of the total disregard of brain potencies in spiritual mediumship, however, amongst the conductors of spiritualistic societies, has been, and still is, fatal to the welfare and progress of the movement.

I could say even far more than good Mrs. Lillie, in the paragraphs I have quoted from her, has complained of. I insist that Spiritualism is the only now prevailing religion of the world which proves the soul's immortality and offers the results of happiness or misery hereafter, for good or evil done on earth. I insist it is the only religion now prevailing on earth that teaches the glorious doctrines of progress and reform as a sure and only means of eternal progress.

For all this and countless doctrines inciting to good warring against evil, and comforting the mourners for the departure from earth of the heart's best beloved, Spiritualism is the religion of all religions, and it is a shame and a scandal that the seventh day of the week so universally devoted by all other religionists, of custom in centuries should be desecrated amongst Spiritualists to making their meetings a sort of fortune-teller show, and that most commonly through the presence of ignorant, and unqualified speakers or mediums, simply for the sake of "drawing an audience."

Even if the pretenders could show something, the quiet circle-room of the home gathering, or the stranger's visit to the qualified test medium, are the only fitting scenes for attempts to enter upon the sacred science of communion between the two worlds.

But this is not all. Even if some medium is positively gifted enough to describe half a dozen spirits correctly in a public audience, the one or two hundred come away disgusted and discontented. Scores of people call on me not alone complaining of the "desecration of the Sabbath," but, protesting the whole thing between "medium" and audience, is "collusion," "a got-up-show, and a disgrace to the cause."

Whilst I have studiously avoided, of late, giving attendance at the Sunday shops where something was expected to be shown, on a recent occasion, being urged to be present at the farewell of some of my esteemed American friends, after my own words of final compliment had been spoken, a young woman arose who professed to give some delineations of spirit friends in an audience that never recognized one single description she professed to give—not a name, date, or life incident was recited. The old men and old women were all attired as such people should be—the young people ditto.

When this farce ended, and I felt ready to drop into the ground for shame, my kind American friends consoled me by telling me that similar, if not quite such insane stuff, was going on in some of the Spiritualistic centers of the United States, almost extracting from me the fierce resolve that, earnestly as I had believed in and unceasingly as I had labored during the past thirty years, for the diffusion of spiritual light and truth. I was about sick of Spiritualists' mismanagement, and would only consent in the future to lecture on the Religion of Science, and Reform of the grand spiritual outpouring, leaving all the show vendors to shift for themselves—infinitely preferring, if I must live by my labors, to take a banjo in hand, or a pair of bones to snap, to desecrating the holy and immortal evidences of Spiritualism by making them a paltry show or consulting the names of the decaying forms recorded on the tombstones, to attempting to prove that they still loved and lived in another and better world.

I write the above in the name of the Almighty Spirit of the Universe—the First, the Last, and Evermore; and in the interests of this great revelation of life here and hereafter, immortality and eternal progress intrusted to us poor mortals, to give to humanity in the wonderful and all-convincing facts of true and honest revelations of Spiritualism.

EMMA HARDINGE BRITTEN.
Manchester, Eng.

In nature there's no blemish but the mind; none can be called deformed but the unkind.—Shakspeare.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER V.

FIRE CANNOT INJURE A SPIRIT.

Fire has no power to injure the spirit of man or beast.

A spirit may pass through and through fire again, without being harmed in the least.

This must be a self-evident truth to all. Spirit in and of itself is fire or fine magnetic flame, so fine, indeed, that combustion of material things merely liberates or sets free the spiritual elements within all things over which fire, as the word is commonly understood by man, has power; consequently, we appeal to the reason of all sensible beings, by asking: How, then, is it possible for any soul or spirit to be forever lost in hell?

There are thousands of preachers all over your fair land to-day who are sounding this fearful dogma; in fact, all of the evangelical church creeds are constructed upon hellfire as the base; the moment this fundamental doctrine is taken away, the whole huge structure topples to the ground in ruins.

Catholics, Episcopalians, Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalists, all start out with hellfire, and being hopelessly burned forever and forever within it, as the stronghold on which to rear their belief.

Now fire disintegrates almost any known substance sooner than any other element. It is impossible for fire of any kind to be kept up for any great length of time without being fed with fresh material, and if fire had the least power over the spirit of man, would be destroyed or disintegrated in a very short time; therefore it would be impossible for a spirit to burn forever and forever.

Now, with such a self-evident truth before the world—a world of beings who should use the reason which they are blessed with—how is it possible for even one sentient soul to believe such a monstrous statement as that the spirits of mankind will burn forever and forever in hell? How is it possible for any priest or minister, if he have the reason or observation, to believe or make such an assertion to his hearers? And yet, contrary to all reason and observation, this foolish fable is preached to the world, Sunday after Sunday, within the churches all over your land.

Put a man's body into fire and it is soon consumed or disintegrated; his spirit, thus liberated, fire has no further power over—it is above and beyond earthly combustion. If fire has no further power over it, how is it possible for it to be consumed forever in hell? for they tell you hell is a lake of fire and brimstone. Brimstone is an exceedingly material, earthly substance, and it is immediately consumed if ignited. Put a little brimstone or sulphur in a pan and set fire to it, if any doubt my word.

Now there are those who will tell you that hell is merely a condition; that a man's conscience will be in torment forever, and he will never be able to escape from the pangs of his conscience, which is hell. Some preachers sensible of the absurdity of a hell of fire and brimstone have substituted the man's conscience instead—and this hell will endure forever and forever, so they say—and our object is to show that this, also, is impossible.

We will ask you first: What is that within one, called conscience? for it is necessary that we understand what we are talking about. A man's conscience is that within him which rebukes him for his sins or errors which he has been guilty of committing; it is the higher rebuking the lower, and if the higher, which is man's conscience, continues to rebuke the lower, the lower must yield, sooner or later, to the higher, and when error or sin is thus overcome, joy and gladness is the natural result; the higher, or conscience, has become victorious, and he who has gained a victory must sing for joy, and joy or happiness is not hell but heaven; therefore, how can a man's conscience remain forever in hell or unhappiness? As soon as conscience gains the victory hell disappears.

My friends, so long as a man continues in error, just so long he is in hell or unhappiness, but when he puts from him his errors, becomes wise, reasons, and accepts truths and understands them—for he can in no other way than by the use of reason, which is wisdom—therefore, it is impossible that any should remain in hell forever.

A man who is so low in the scale as not to have reason, has no conscience and is very nearly allied to the brute creation. Beasts, having but very little reason, have no conscience; the higher does not rebuke the lower. A beast may kill its comrade, but its conscience rebukes it not, the higher law does not obtain within it. Who would ever dream of saying that the brute sinned and would be everlastingly punished? But if the brute had reason or conscience, the higher would at length obtain, and the beast would sin no more in that direction; and when reason or conscience obtains with man or the spirit of man, then is he liberated from hell, for that in and of itself liberates him.

Would not one think that God's conscience would trouble him very much if he were capable of creating sentient beings and then casting them into hell, forever to burn in torment, because in their ignorance they committed errors? Would not one think, if God were all-wise, all-powerful and all-loving, that his conscience would greatly trouble him? that the higher would obtain within him, and that such revengeful wrath would at length succumb to wisdom and love? For, if God were capable of wrath and spiteful revenge, and the burning of his ignorant children in fires of torment forever, he would not be possessed of reason or conscience, and therefore could not be above a beast.

But hell and everlasting torment are cruel fables, not fit, even, for the mind of a reasonable being to dwell upon, and we should consider it not a fit subject to write or talk about if it were not that millions of human beings, who ought to use their reason, listen to and even think they believe such horrible, monstrous doctrines; and they are the base on which all evangelical church creeds are formulated.

Again, these same creeds tell you that Jesus of Nazareth is the mediator between God and man; that but for him all souls, however wise and good they may naturally be, would be cast into hell; that, through the intercession or pleading of Jesus a few will be saved if they believe that Jesus is God's own son. Now if God created all mankind, are they not also his children? How is it possible that God should have but one child if he created all mankind? and why, in the name of reason, should he be so partial to one child whilst consigning all the others to perdition, merely saving a few for the love he bears to one? O, what a God the Christians hold up for mankind to fall down and worship! a wrathful, revengeful, jealous, and partial God, who, himself, lives within a heaven whose streets are paved with gold, while the most of the children whom he has created are cast into hell where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched! Surely, such a God must be exceedingly selfish, a very monster of iniquity; moreover, he must be worshiped and praised forevermore, for all this, by those who are fortunate enough to get into heaven, while their fathers, mothers, sisters, and brothers are being tormented in hell.

Friends, we would rather go to hell, and help the sufferers there, than to live in heaven and be obliged to worship and approve of such a foul fiend as God is thus represented to be. But it is all a cruel fable. There is no such heaven; there is no such hell; and we can praise God, and worship Him too, for he has not been guilty of any of these faults attributed to Him by man, when man himself had little reason, was wrathful, revengeful, jealous and partial, loving his eldest son better than his other children, making him alone his successor and heir. He constructed his God like himself; but at this late day, when man's reason is supposed to predominate, it is time he used his reason and put such childish things away.

And now let me here say that all churchmembers who subscribe to such follies are necessarily like the God which they believe in; if not, it would not be possible for them to believe in such a God: these same churchmembers must necessarily be wrathful, revengeful, jealous, and partial; they must necessarily want all the good things of life, regardless of their brother's welfare; the golden heaven must be theirs—their brothers and their sisters may go to hell—for in their selfishness and wrath thus they consign them, for all who do not believe as they think they ought are banished in their thoughts to that region. These same churchmembers are necessarily tyrants; they would blind the reason of their brothers and sisters and insist that they shall not use it, for if such use their reason this fearful God, heaven and hell, all disappear, for they will not stand the test of reason.

Where, we would ask, are the countless millions of souls who lived and died before Jesus of Nazareth was born? Think, for one moment, of the wisdom, refinement, and love that existed thousands—aye millions of years before Jesus lived in this world. Let the pyramids of Egypt hold up their granite arms, in amazement, at such folly. Let ancient Greece, with all its arts and sciences, outrivaling anything known at the present day, laugh at such nonsense. Thousands—aye millions of the grandest souls ever created—lived and died, thousands of years before Jesus of Nazareth was born. Where are all these souls, think you? Shut up in hell? for some of them never heard of Jesus. Think of the countless millions that have lived and died since Jesus was born, who never believed, nor heard of him; think of the nations upon nations which have risen and fallen, who never knew anything about Jesus, and then think of Jesus being the only begotten son of God whose blood was shed for sinners. He was crucified, for opinion's sake, it is true, and thousands of others have been crucified, burned at the stake, hanged, beheaded, drawn apart by horses, cast into the dens of wild beasts, walled up alive, languished in dungeons as long as they lived, shot, and every conceivable torture inflicted, for opinion's sake.

Has not the Holy Church, so-called, been the greatest tyrant that man has ever known? and why? All for opinion's sake. Man must not reason or think for himself, so the church has always said, thereby becoming the most monstrous tyrant that man has ever had to deal with. And is it not the same to-day with the churches? If a man or woman is brave enough to use his or her reason, more especially if they express their thoughts, are they not ostracised by the churches, laughed and sneered at, condemned to everlasting torment by these self-righteous ones? To be sure they may not, at the present day, inflict bodily torture as formally, but they torture the reason and the souls of men to-day just the same as ever. You must think as they think they do, or you are forever lost in hell, while they, forsooth! are going to the golden heaven to live with, and worship that wrathful, revengeful, selfish God which they have set up within their minds.

They grow rich, stiff-necked and tyrannical, because they believe in that kind of God. Jesus, whom they profess to follow, said: "If thy brother take thy coat, give him thy cloak also." Is there a Christian, in the world to-day who would follow this explicit teaching of Jesus? Not one. If one were to take a coat, they would, to a man, have that one arrested immediately and lodged in jail, and the Christian judge would sentence him to a term of years in prison.

Jesus said: "If a man strike you on one cheek, turn to him the other also." Is there a follower of Jesus to-day, who, if a man assaulted him, would not cry for the police, and that policeman would march that man at once to the stationhouse, and very likely club him beforehand? Jesus said: "Give to him who asketh of thee, and turn not thou away." How many Christians to-day will give to all who ask of them, in other words, to beggars? Are not beggars arrested as vagrants, and sentenced to the House of Correction? and this is oftener done by those who profess to follow Jesus' teachings than by others, and yet they will tell you that only by obeying those same teachings and believing in him, and what he taught, can you be saved from the fearful burning of hell, either of brimstone, or conscience.

(To be Continued.)

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

Heaven must be in me before I can be in heaven.—Stanford.

SPIRITUALISM SCIENTIFICALLY DEMONSTRATED.

BY PROF. ROBERT HARE.

His Remarkable Researches Made in the Early Years of Spiritualism.

Directly Edited and Revised by Him, Now in Spirit-Life.

"The mortals of earth expect truth from the spirit land; they think that it is perfect, and that the angels are omnipotent. Oh, how far do they wander in the darkness of their own minds! The spirit home is progressive, like unto this: the canting hypocrite passes into the heavens with the same thoughts; the simple babe too passes into this new-born life with all its childlike innocence. Each one has to mount the ladder of progression."

"There are millions in the spirit world that know not of the existence of this planet, even as the children of this earth know not of the starry world above But on beholding angels descend to this hidden planet, they follow, and in wonderment behold a new world, and that world inhabited. Then do they find whence they originated.

MESSAGE FROM JOHN C. CALHOUN.

I was present, by Calhoun's appointment, with the Misses Fox and their mother. We were sitted at the table as heretofore, our hands and arms resting upon it. I was directed to put paper and pencil on the drawer. I placed several sheets of unruled letter-paper, together with a wood pencil, on it. I soon heard the sound of the pencil on the paper. It was then rapped out, "Get the pencil and sharpen it." I looked under the table, but did not see the pencil. At length I found it lying diagonally from me, three or four feet from the table. The lead was broken off within the wood. I sharpened it, and again put it on the drawer. Again I heard the sound of the pencil on the paper. On being directed to look at the paper, I discovered pencil marks on each side of the outer sheet, but no writing. Then was received the following communication:

"The power is not enough to write a sentence. This will show you that I can write. If you meet on Friday, precisely at seven, I will write a short sentence. JOHN C. CALHOUN."

We met, pursuant to appointment, ok our seats at the table, our hands arms resting on it as usual. I d the paper with my silver-cased on the drawer, and said:

friend, I wish the sentence to be own handwriting, so that your rill recognize it." He replied, know the writing." He then ave your minds on the spirit of . Calhoun."

I soon heard a rapid movement of the pencil on the paper, and a rustling of the paper, together with a movement of the drawer. I was then directed to look under the drawer. I looked, and found my pencil outside of the drawer, near my feet, but found no paper on the drawer where I placed it. On raising up the drawer, I discovered the paper all under it. The sheets were a little deranged, and on examining, I found on the outside sheet these words: "I'm with you still."

I afterward showed the "sentence" to General James Hamilton, former Govenor of South Carolina, General Waddy Thompson, former minister to Mexico, General Robert B. Campbell, late Consul at Havana, together with other intimate friends of Calhoun, and also to one of his sons, all of whom are as well acquainted with his handwriting as their own; and they all pronounced it to be a perfect fac simile of the handwriting of John C. Calhoun.

General Hamilton stated a fact, in connection with this writing, of great significance. He says that Calhoun was in the habit of writing "I'm" for "I am," and that he has numerous letters from him where the abbreviation is used.

Mrs. General Macomb has stated the same fact to me. She says that her husband, the late General Macomb, has shown to her Calhoun's letters to him, where this abbreviation "I'm" was used for "I am," and spoke of it as a peculiarity of Calhoun.

How significant, then, does this fact become! We have not only the most unequivocal testimony to the hadwriting itself, but, lest any skeptic should suggest the possibility of an imitation or a counterfeit, this abbreviation, pecular to himself, and known only to his most intimate friends, and which no imitator or counterfeiter could know, is produced by way of putting such a suggestion to flight forever.

This "sentence" is perfectly characteristic of Calhoun. It contains his terseness of style, and his condensation of thought. It is a text from which volumes might be written. It proves—1. The immortality of the soul; 2. The power of spirits to revisit the earth; 3. Their ability to communicate with relatives and friends; and, 4. The identity of the spirit to all eternity.

How one's soul expands with these sublime connections! How resistless is this testimony of their truth! How surprising that men can doubt, when this flood of living light is poured upon them by spirits who, in the language of Webster, "revel in the glory of the eternal light of God." Very truly yours,

N. P. TALLMADGE.

Mrs. Sarah Helen Whitman, Providence, R. I.

THE CORROBORATIVE EVIDENCE FROM FOREIGN SOURCES—JAMES C. DE MIRVILLE'S MANIFESTATIONS OCCURRED IN FRANCE IN 1851.

With the flood of manifestations which has swept once all civilized coutries, the evidence from this source as furnished forty years ago now seemed inadequate and meagre. Its value is in the light it throws on the early years of the movement, and the wonderful similarity in the phenomena and the communications.

Although spirits have manifested in all ages not until modern times was a code of signals by sound established. At Cideville, in France the signals were employed, independently of their use three years before in Hydesville, N. Y. The signs employed, however, differed. At Rochester one rap was taken for no, two for doubtful, three for yes. At Cideville one rap was received for yes, and two for no. At the former place, the alphabet was directly referred to; at the latter, reference was made by figures indicating the the place of the selected letter in the alphabetic card.

Of this character is the admission of the Roman Church of the spiritual origin of the manifestations; ascribed, however, to diabolic agency. To this allusion has been already made; but I subjoin some letters and expositions, translated from a French work lately published on Mesmerism, Clairvoyance, and Spiritual Manifestations.

The following letters, taken from the work in question, will require no farther introduction.

If the Roman clergy thus advance the inference that the manifestations and intellectual communications come from spiritual agency, it will be easy for Spiritualism to show that it is vastly more devoid of diabolic malevolence and inhumanity than the institutions sanctioned by that priesthood.

LETTER OF M. F. DE SAULCY.

"Sir:—You desire me to report to you my opinion in writing which I have formed as to the strange phenomena, to say the least of them, which have been conventionally called table turning and table talking. I am not the man to recoil from what I regard as a truth, whatever sarcasm may be reserved for such profession of faith, and therefore proceed to satisfy your inquiry.

"It is about eight or ten months since when the public of Paris was agitated by the late arrival of the fact from America and Germany; a fact which pure physics was not able to explain a priori. I did as many always do, and have no doubt done for a long time—received this account with the most determined incredulity, and, I confess, with ridicule. I considered its adepts as charlatans or as simpletons, and refused for a long time to bestow on it the least attention. I became tired of the war, however, and after hearing many affirm, to whom I could not apply these epithets, the reality of these facts, I determined to try for myself.

"My son and a friend were my two companions: we had the patience for forty-five minutes, seated at the table, to form what is called the chain, and were not a little surprised, I assure you, to see at the end of that time the table on which we were operating, and which was merely the parlor dinner-table, begin to move, and after some hesitation to contract a rotary movement, which, accelerating, soon became very rapid. We endeavored by pressing to make it strike against the bar and arrest its motion, but could not succeed.

"After repeating the experiment two or three times, I sought to find some cause in physics for the movement, and battled the whole theory of Electro-Dynamics with the aid of an electroscope, compass, iron-fillings, iron, etc. As I could not detect the least trace of electricity, I thought then of impulses due to the volition of the operators, and of which a sort of integration might cause the motion of the table. On that I stopped, and for several weeks did not give the smallest attention to a phenomenon which did not seem to merit any further notice.

"Finally was commenced the faculty of talking, and I assure you my incredulity was considerably greater than when its moving power was announced. I was sparing, however, in my epithets, for I soon found myself an investigator. I watched the rogues, as I suspected, for two hours, but left the room a full believer of its reality, without any further examination, confirmed too by all subsequent experiments. (1.)

"What could be said of the fact witnessed together, that a crayon, which was fastened to the leg of a table, wrote legible words, while we were pressing it down with our hands?

"I believe in the existence of facts which often volition is unable to produce, and over which I declare that volition sometimes appears to have a manifest influence. I believe in the intervention of intelligence different from our own, and which puts in action means almost ridiculous.

"I believe that the Christian religion should not encourage the practice of these experiments. I believe there is danger in allowing them to become a habit, and at least we may lose the little reason which has been granted man by the Giver of all things. I believe, finally, that it is the duty of an honest man to dissuade others from occupying themselves with it, in preaching, by example, and not allowing it in the least to occupy himself. Please accept, etc.,

F. DE SAULCY,
Member of the Institute."

SPIRITUALISM IN PARIS.

(See New York Reformer, Sept., 1853.)

"We find the following article in the London Illustrated News of July 23; it is an extract from the News' Paris correspondence:—

"'An immense sensation was caused here, a few days since, by a revelation given on the authority of some of the most respected and influential members of the clergy, headed by the Archbishop of Paris, on the subject of table movements. The archbishop, being questioned as to his opinion of the legitimacy, in a religious point of view, of attempting to communicate with spirits through the medium of the tables, alleged that he had not sufficiently studied the question to reply definitely; that he imagined that the effects produced were wholly of the nature of physical science, and in that case harmless; but that, in order to form a judgment, he would attend a meeting composed of certain members of the clergy, at a place appointed to make the usual experiments.

"'The table being put in motion, one of the party demanded it in reply, by a certain number of raps, if there were a spirit present. The response was in the affirmative; and in answer to a second question, the spirit represented herself, by raps indicating certain letters of the alphabet, to be that of Soeur Francoise, deceased a week previously at the convent of——, Paris. The Abbe B—— stated that he had confessed the Soeur Francoise, who had, in fact, died at the time and place named. General consternation, as may be supposed, ensued when the Abbe L——, rising, commanded the spirit in the name of the Savior to appear.

"'The report declares that the spirit hereupon actually became visible, and replied to a variety of questions put to it, but of what import we are not informed. On the above details we do not pretend to give either explanation or opinion.

"'Such is the story as related by the members of the Seance, two of whom were so affected by the events related as to be some days seriously indisposed, one of them even confined to bed.

"'Various narratives mention that, through the medium of the tables, communications are held with spirits of all nations. The spirits, happily, being excellent linguists, find no difficulty in expressing themselves in any language chosen by the questioner, and reveal the secrets of the prison-house with a frankness, not to say indiscretion, that would shock the more reserved ghost in Hamlet, in no way confirming his statement of horrors of their temporary abode. Many of them describe in glowing terms the beauties and delights of their celestial abodes.'"

(To be Continued.)

"The Fountain of Life, or The Threefold Power of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. One of the author's most useful books. It should be read by every man and woman. Price 50 cents.

ANIMALS IN SPIRIT-LIFE.

To the Editor:—As this question seems of late to have taken a new growth, permit me to add my mite. It does not seem to have occurred to the disputants that there might be a possible continuation of life among the inferior animals, and that this new condition might not interfere with human spirits. I have asked this question of those who seemed to be intelligent inhabitants of the spirit-sphere, with varying replies.

But upon one occasion I recall a very satisfactory reply. I cannot recall the exact language, but the substance of it was that animals were thought to exist in spirit-life, but in a sphere peculiarly adapted to themselves. This struck me as most probable. To say that the intelligence of the inferior animals (for man is an animal) serves the purpose of advance and then goes out—to reach a higher plane of earthly habitation until the mental status of humanity is reached, is giving expression to meaningless words. That all species of such will co-inhabit with man is equally absurd. I lean towards the theory of a separate plane of life as the only logical one.

SUICIDES.

If there is any other subject, however, on which our brethren talk more silly nonsense, I shall vote that it is the subject of suicide.

What sense is there in ascribing the unfortunate condition of the suicide to premature destruction? If that is good philosophy, it follows that all who die a natural death at an age younger than that of the suicide, are in a more deplorable condition than he. This must be self-evident, for they went at still younger ages, and if age is the criterion, that settles it. Suppose one of two twin brothers to enter his room and commit suicide by destroying himself with dynamite; at the moment of the explosion the other brother happens to enter the room and is also slain. Here the deaths are at the same moment. Does this suicide suffer because he has not had sufficient earth experience, while the brother is free from such misfortune?

Should anyone assume the role of teacher on this matter, I hope he may not pass out of the limits of the topic. I am simply fighting the much worn and absurd proposition that the punishment arises from premature taking off. The murderer, who passes away as such, must surely suffer the penalty of his crime. I cannot think the suicide is subject to any different laws.

B. R. ANDERSON.

CHILDREN IN SPIRIT LIFE.

In re Esmeralda's query to Hudson Tuttle concerning the continued childlike manner of speaking, for a long period of years by certain spirits:

In response, the charming spirit Winona who has controlled Mrs. H. T. Horn for many years, informs me that in coming to earth she cannot do otherwise than assume her earth-sphere character and manner, and it is the same with every spirit. This does not in any way imply a want of progression, as is shown by intelligent replies to profound questions that are occasionally put to Winona. After leaving the earth-sphere, and entering her spirit home she is no longer a child in manner, but her veritable individualized self.

Perhaps this will throw a little light upon the subject. H. T. HORN.

Washington, D. C.

COMMUNICATION FROM WINONA.

The spirits who personate children through media are very wise spirits. They belong to the child-sphere, for they almost invariably have passed from earth in early childhood and are used by wise spirits as messengers from spirit-life. They belong to the type such as Christ spoke of when he said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Though we grow up in spiritual wisdom, yet on earthly matters we are as little children and enter that sphere when we return to earth. My name is Janie (Winona). I am a little French Indian girl.

A TERRIBLE PROPHECY.

To the Editor:—Permit me to occupy a little space in your valuable paper by way of explanation regarding those Prophecies. Many persons seem to think that the little earthquake which occurred in England Dec. 17, 1896, was all there is to be of the prophecy. Not so; the odylic forces, employed by the Chief Messenger to precipitate the earthquake, were impinged on those special places, in the northern hemisphere, where the solidity was greatest.

Those forces were put in motion last summer. Their first effect was to be in December, 1896. After this slight earthquakes were to occur at different places around the northern hemisphere. As I have stated above, where the solidity of the earth was greatest, there was most force applied, and hence at a few places small earthquakes occurred where such phenomena were almost unknown. Result:

Dec. 17, 1896, was but the beginning; a puff of wind to the awful hurricane that is approaching. By the time you get this fully before your thousands of readers you and they will more fully realize that what I have here written is true. During the month of February, 1897, the Peninsula of Europe, that is Spain, Portugal and the adjacent islands in the Mediterranean will go down, and their millions of people be swallowed up.

Bear this in mind, Spiritualists and readers of The Progressive Thinker, and forget not "By their works shall ye know them."

In order that your readers may be made more fully acquainted with the future, I have arranged with the Cash Publishing Co. of Grand Rapids, Mich., to publish all of my prophecies and other valuable matter in a small book called the "Book of Prophecy."

Yours for the Science and Philosophy of Spiritualism. G. H. MILLER, M. D.

537 Monroe St., Springfield, Mo.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Barrett, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper price 25c.

A WONDERFUL PSYCHIC.

ETHEL GILLIAM,

The Greatest of All Psychics.

SHE SEEMS TO HAVE EYES IN HER FINGER TIPS—THOUGH BLIND SHE READS HANDWRITING AND COMMON PRINT BY TOUCH ALONE—SHE HOLDS SWEET CONVERSE WITH THE ANGELS—A MOST REMARKABLE CASE.

To the Editor:—I send this clipping from the "Examiner" of San Francisco, January 24th. The case of little Ethel Gilliam seems likely to far excel in interest and incitement to psychic study and investigation, the remarkable well known one of Mollie Fancher, Brooklyn. I think if you have not already seen it, you will be sufficiently interested to publish it.

I am surrounded by winter brightness; butterflies on the strawberry blossoms, honey bees sipping sweetness from the hearts of fragrant violets, and larks, linnets, robins, blue-birds, wrens and song sparrows all about the garden and the green fields of grain, gushing out, each in its own inimitable way, thanksgiving for the sunshine which floods us with its golden benediction. Surely these are quite different factors from those the almanacs write down as belonging to the month of January! Walking in the garden this morning among geraniums and nasturtums, I counted one hundred and thirty-five calla lily buds and blossoms in the hedges of these wonderful plants, which is the garden's boundary line upon two sides. To breathe upon this coast, the strong sea air warmed by so much sun, is in itself such happiness as makes life one exhilarating pleasure. I was warned before I came here that "Santa Cruz coast would be too foggy for health." We have not had ten hours of fog all put together, in the three months since I came; on the contrary we are constantly congratulated by correspondents in various inland cities in this State, that we have escaped the heavy fogs to which they have been subjected. OLIVIA F. SHEPARD.

Santa Cruz, Cal.

HAS EYES IN HER FINGER TIPS—BLIND GIRL WHO READS HANDWRITING AND COMMON PRINT BY THE TOUCH ALONE.

More than wonderful is the plain, unadorned story of little Ethel Gilliam's hourly existence, at Palouse, Cal., the simplest incidents of which transcend even the marvels of the age of miracles.

Death, the grim reaper, to all external appearances, gathered her into his dark harvest, while grief-stricken parents and sorrowing friends wept at her bier. In snowy robes symbolical of her childish purity she was prepared for that last, long, eternal sleep, that ends only in the resurrection, and the cold damp grave that was to be her last resting place was opened to receive her. Over the white rigid little body the solemn services of the dead were spoken and the casket cover set in place. Friends took a last parting look at the dear face and then turned away as a heart-broken mother sobbed out her grief. Heavy indeed was the pall that cruel death laid upon the Gilliam household long months ago.

But the coffin was never sealed and the yawning grave still awaits the youthful occupant for which it was opened. Little Ethel Gilliam, mourned as dead, still lives and talks and breathes, a merry being of the world and the wonder of Palouse, Wash., where she was born and reared. Hundreds have learned of her marvelous resuscitation and flocked to see her until her fame has spread far beyond the confines of her little native town.

But she is blind now, totally blind, as scientists define optical sightlessness, and where once the sun shone bright and clear before that fatal illness fell upon her, her eyes now see only blackness. Over them the lids are drawn smooth and fast. They are fixed and paralyzed and as rigid as her poor little body when it was placed in the casket for burial.

Blind she says she is, blind the doctors have declared her to be, but her vision is keener than ever before, and though her eyes are sightless and useless, she sees everything that goes on around her, reads and writes with ease, speed and accuracy, in daylight or in darkness, enjoys the beauty of pictures, all through her marvelous finger-tips alone, and when weary of reading popular magazines, she lies back among the pillows of her sick couch and watches the games of her happy playmates at school, far removed from the view of even those solicitous attendants who ever hover near her. Startlingly vivid are the descriptions she gives of occurrences miles away from her which investigation has never failed to show were transpiring at the very moment she beheld them, and in just the manner in which she described them. Nightly she says she crosses the river of life into the realms of eternity, there to dwell till dawn, a companion of the angels.

And thus it is while sage old doctors and learned scientists study her remarkable case in perplexity, this little Palouse girl, though her eyes can see not, watches the world roll on even better than she did before this remarkable change came over her.

Last summer little Ethel Gilliam was a strong, robust, healthy girl, with the same propensity to play, the same brisk appetite and the same ability to sleep long and late that was the heritage of her well-read, well-kept companions. Her parents are not rich, neither are they poor, but have sufficient means to live comfortably and well. Both are strong and well, due, no doubt, to the fact that they have always led quiet, sober lives, being of a religious turn of mind and members of long standing of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Palouse. They have steadily shunned notoriety and for that reason the wonderful development of their child has been kept as quiet as possible.

Ethel came home from school one afternoon complaining of pain above her eyes, which became so serious before evening that her mother was greatly alarmed. The little sufferer was put to bed and from that couch she has never risen since. Her illness was long and severe, the more so because its exact nature baffled the best physicians. In the uncertainty she was treated for various ailments of the head and body, though to none did she yield, but grew steadily worse. No food would remain upon her stomach and the little figure, once so plump and strong, soon became withered and pinched. These were anxious days in the Gilliam household, for even the most sanguine hope was overshadowed by the cold fact that death, speedy and relentless, was inevitable.

And what the parents had long feared seemingly came to pass. Ethel died after days of unconsciousness. The attending physicians, still perplexed at her strange illness, signed a certificate stating life was extinct, and the legal document still stands on the records of the Health Office of Palouse as evidence that Miss Ethel Gilliam is no more, notwithstanding the fact that she still lives.

But dead she certainly seemed to be. None of the fatal signs were lacking. The body became cold and clammy and of marble-like rigidity during the three days that it lay in state. Over the sweet young face, once piquant and rosy with health and spirits, Death had spread its pallor.

Friends had gathered to witness the last earthly rites and slowly passed by the bier, looking sadly down upon the pinched face mirrored beneath the glass cover of the casket. And last of all, convulsed with sorrow, came the despairing mother. She bent over the cold form of the girl who had been so dear to her, her tears splashing upon the polished glass surface, when suddenly she started back with an exclamation of surprise. The eyes of the dead girl had opened with a slow, pained expression, and as soon as the casket cover was removed she sat bolt upright and after gazing about for a few moments closed her eyes again and wearily exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, why did you wake me? I wanted to sleep longer. It's so dark. Why do you not light the lamp?"

In a delirium of delight her mother told her that it was broad daylight, and begged her to open her eyes and look on the loving faces of those who had gathered about her. But her eyes never opened again. She was blind.

As soon as the story of the miraculous resuscitation became known the house was overrun with callers. The Rev. A. Y. Skee and wife, with Rev. J. G. Garrick were among the first to visit the strangely afflicted girl. Both clergymen set about at once to test her remarkable power of vision and speak in wonder of what they saw.

Though her eyes are fixed and immovable by any act of her will, little Ethel let her hands wander over the persons of her visitors and described them perfectly, though at first she was diffident about herself.

Her descriptions of Heaven were remarkable for their poetical brilliancy, and at night when she refused to let any one sit up with her she told of the visits of the angels.

Other people called, among them H. A. Gray and wife and Thomas Cox of Palouse, and J. B. Cawthorn, a photographer of Walla Walla. They gave the girl an unopened magazine after dark, when complete blackness enshrouded the room. Carelessly she slipped her hand between the pages and told all the contents of the one her fingers rested upon. Though her previous revelations had prepared them for wonders, this last test amazed them. Taking the magazine from her and marking the page, they bore it to the light and lo! and behold, she had read it word for word. Numerous other tests developed the same astonishing results.

Mr. Gray handed her a magnifying-glass which none present knew was possessed of the power of reversing the objects that came under it. Ethel had no sooner received it than she passed over its surface and laughingly exclaimed that she could see every one in the room, but that they were turned upside down. Such, indeed, was the predilection of the glass when held at a certain angle. The glass was a source of special delight to her. She could turn it toward the object she desired to see, pass her hands over its surface and look at anything she wanted.

A few days later she surprised her visitors and her parents as well by telling them of a great flock of sheep which she was looking at grazing on a hillside. She noted carefully their movements and described them in detail. Investigation revealed the fact that the same flock of sheep she had described were being pastured a mile and a half away from her home, just as she had seen them. She told as well of watching a threshing machine at work on a farm an equal distance from the house, which was also true, and every afternoon she laughingly depicted the games that were being played by her companions at school, many rods away, and entirely hidden from every eye in the room but her own keen vision. The games were always found to have been identically as she described them, and now her little schoolmates, undisturbed by the issue her curious case takes with science, and accepting her peculiarly weird power as a matter of course, daily enact her favorite sports that she may enjoy them in her far-distant home, while they make merry at school. Through daylight or dark, her mysterious vision penetrates, and she revels in their pleasures. And always the weary lids are drawn taut and immovable over sightless eyeballs, and this wonderful little girl reads, writes and happily views the world through her finger-tips while the hosts of science and medicine ponder learnedly, but futilely. From the grave little Ethel Gilliam has come back to dwell half on earth, half in Heaven, the wonder of all who see or hear of her.

A CLERGYMAN VISITS ETHEL.

Palouse (Wash.), January 19.—Last summer Ethel Gilliam, a little girl twelve years of age, living about ten miles from Palouse, Wash., became ill in a peculiar manner, complaining of heavy weights above her eyes. The Rev. J. G. Garrick of La Grande, Ore., my wife and myself visited her. We found Ethel in a half conscious condition, absolutely without feeling. She would not flinch from any test. The eyes were fixed, the lids paralyzed and drawn tight over the eyeball. A smile of inexpressible sweetness illuminated her countenance.

It was some time before she would talk to us. I handed her a photograph. She passed her fingers over it and described it perfectly. Some others were given her, some single and some groups. She described all as well as if she could have seen them. Then she described our watches and told the difference in the time of each, all with her eyes closed, and most of the time her arm over her eyes and her face covered with the sleeve of her dress so that if she had the best of eyes she could not have seen. She told the date of coins by taking them in her fingers when the light was so poor I could not see the date myself.

J. B. Cawthorn and Thomas Cox gave her an unopened magazine after dark. None present knew its contents. She would slip her hand between the leaves and describe a picture. The others would put their hands on the same leaf, take it to the light and find it just as described. She could write or read just as well after dark as in daylight.

About this time H. A. Gray gave her a magnifying glass. She took it in her fingers and began to laugh. She said she could see with it, but it stood the people on their heads. Mr. Gray took the glass and found it was so that everything looked upside down. The glass was a great comfort to her, as by it she could see all over the room, always running her fingers over the glass and turning it towards what she wanted to see. The glass, she said, always magnified the object looked at. Her hearing was so acute that she could tell the number of persons in the room by hearing them breathe.

A few weeks after that the soul seemed to be separated from the body to such a degree that she could describe anything for miles around that seemed to strike her fancy. She described a band of sheep in the mountains one mile and a half away from the house, and told the time that a threshing machine started on a neighboring farm. She would laugh and on being questioned would say: "I am watching the children at school," and would describe their games.

All this time she would only call for a drink and a little to eat, once a day, in the evening. She did not retain anything on her stomach, throwing up everything that she ate or drank. A doctor forced some water into the stomach, but it was at once rejected. She would not permit any one to sit up with her, claiming the angels visited her every night, and that she visited heaven in their company. She talked of the brightness such as mortal eye could not look upon, the Tree of Life and River of Life. Altogether her description tallies with the great book. At present she is gaining strength.

H. Y. SKEE.
H. A. GRAY.

AS FUNERALS SHOULD BE

MRS. J. FRANK BAXTER PASSED TO THE HIGHER LIFE—A TYPICAL SPIRITUAL FUNERAL.

To the Editor:—The last issue of your interesting paper has just come to hand. I notice an impressive communication from the pen of our esteemed co-laborer, J. Frank Baxter, written en route home from St. Louis, from which place he had been summoned on account of the departure of his beloved companion to the higher life. Thinking his many friends may be interested to know something of the details connected with the funeral services I feel moved to send them to you for publication.

Mr. Baxter informed his daughter per telegram, that he wished her to secure Mr. Hull, if possible, to officiate at the funeral. Mr. Hull's engagement on that day was so near home it enabled him to do so. However, it compelled the friends to appoint the hour for the funeral in the morning, which was not so convenient a time as an hour later in the day would have been. I accompanied Mr. Hull to Mr. Baxter's home and according to his request, assisted in the services.

The exercises were opened with an invocation from the writer, followed by an impromtu which seemed to embody a spirit message to husband, daughter and friends. Mr. Hull chose for his text, Romans, 12:15: "Weep with them that weep and rejoice with them that do rejoice." The discourse was replete from the first to last with the Spiritualists ideas of "Death and its To-morrow." We did not feel that Mr. Baxter or daughter needed any words from us to comfort them in the hour of their bereavement; we did feel they needed the sympathy of congenial friends, and we realized the fact on that occasion as on all similar opes that a proper funeral service assists the newly arisen spirit to realize more fully its condition in the spirit-realm.

In all of the funeral arragements, Mr. Baxter ignored every custom that adheres to the old orthodoxy in connection with the event called death. There was no badge of mourning about the house; in place of the customary black crape at the door, was hung a garland of flowers.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful; not only were flowers placed on and near the casket, the rooms were decorated with them, and with foliage and vines. Instead of having made an effort to have the home sombre "in the gloom of death," it seemed as though the place had been made as inviting as possible for the friends in and out of the body. Sweet as the fragrance of of the blossoms distributed in the rooms was the influence that rested from first to last upon those assembled.

The Ladies' Aid of Boston was largely represented. Before Mrs. Baxter's health failed, she was an active member of that organization. On the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Baxter, The Ladies' Aid presented Mrs. Baxter with a lovely easy chair. It was constantly occupied by Mrs. Baxter during the several years she was an invalid when she was not on her bed. Her accustomed place was in the bay window in the parlor; in that place she had received her friends in all those months when too feeble to leave the house. The chair was left in its accustomed place (she passed away while sitting in the chair), and the offering from the members of The Ladies' Aid, consisting of a garland of rare carnations, fifty-eight in all—one for each year of her earthly pilgrimage,—was hung upon the chair. It was draped in front with smilax. How eloquently that apparently vacant chair preached to her friends during the service; not one but that felt it had been "reserved for the arisen wife and mother."

The remains were not taken from the home until evening. The family took their final leave of the body at the crematory the following morning.

I cannot close this communication without a word concerning Mrs. Baxter. Though not as extensively known as her husband, she was no less interested and devoted to the cause of Spiritualism than he. She even made as much of a sacrifice. Though so ill for a long time she was uncomplaining, and often urged him to accept engagements when he hesitated to do so because of her precarious physical condition. She cheerfully sacrificed the companionship of her husband whom she loved so dearly that he might labor "for humanity's sake" in the field of reform.

She was cared for most tenderly by a devoted daughter and son-in-law; the son-in-law performed the part of a true son under all circumstances.

Mr. Baxter will continue in the work he espoused so many years ago. The sweet voice that welcomed him so many years from his wanderings and the dear smile that never failed him even in her days of suffering, will no more be realized by physical sense in the home, but who shall say that welcomes will not be as sweet and smiles as radiant as in the old time, when our dear brother enters the "inner room,"—that room where the dear faces will look from beyond the shadows upon him, and where spirit voices shall unite with his in the melodies of song. Who can know these things better than our brother, J. Frank Baxter?

MATTIE E. HULL.

Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, founder of the Church of the Soul, left this morning for Lansing, Mich., to participate in the Mass Convention of Spiritualists to be held there February 5, 6 and 7th, under the auspices of the National Spiritualists' Association and the Michigan State Spiritual Association. She will return to Chicago in time to be in her usual place Sunday evening.

W. RICHMOND.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains helecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

C. F. and E. W. Rugg write from Phillips, Wyoming: "We are in hopes that some missionary sent out by the N. S. A. will give Wyoming a call, and that it will result in a real live State Association. There are some earnest, true souls here, that only need the subject put in the right light and the result would be a thriving society. There has been excellent work done in the city of Cheyenne by different mediums, and the seed has not fallen on stony ground, and a true worker will receive a warm welcome."

S. C. Burland writes from Ludington, Mich.: "The grand experiences of two Sundays ago, at our meeting, though the number present was small on account of the snowstorm, bids me say to all mediums: Supply music of the best kind you can, for the searchers are after truth, but more—much more—for the help it is to the spirit friends in assisting their more perfect work. We had, and have five pieces: organ, bass viol, and first and second violins, with singing."

Wm. Chiquet writes from Fort Dodge, Iowa: "For some reason no spiritual speaker or medium ever comes this way any more; therefore we are in a state of innocuous desuetude."

Moses Hull speaks at Cadet Hall, Lynn, Mass., the four Sundays, of February. His permanent address is Stoneham, Mass.

A letter from Union City, Mich., speaks well of the work done there by Frank T. Ripley.

Charles Howells writes from Grand Rapids, Mich.: "The Alpha Philosophical Society is the name of a society recently organized here for the purpose of teaching the law of being, both in the material, the psychic and the spiritual, and to demonstrate the continuity of life after the change called death. The society is officered and well-equipped for the duties of the hour. We have had two meetings, and they were a pronounced success in point of numbers and interest. Thus far I have done the speaking. At the close of the speaking, which lasts for about fifty minutes, we have fine clairvoyant and psychometric readings from the platform by Mrs. M. E. Henderson, of this city, and they are as good as we have ever had here. She gives full names of those she describes, what their occupation is, usually, and to whom they come if for any one in the audience. Mrs. Henderson is a young worker as a platform test medium, but she does herself proud, and is highly appreciated by those who hear her."

F. S. M. writes: "Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kates lectured in Andover, O., January 23, 24 and 25, to large and appreciative audiences, and their lectures will do much to help the cause of Spiritualism in our midst."

Will C. Hodge has just closed a two months' engagement at Rochester, Ind., and is now located at No. 3 Elizabeth street, Chicago. Is open for engagement in any locality, and will arange compensation in accordance with the times. Parties desiring the services of an inspirational speaker, will do well to correspond with him. Will attend funerals. Is open for engagement for the camping season of 1897.

Irena Ernest writes from Newberg, Oregon, that she has seen spirits from time to time since she was ten years old. She thinks that church members who deny spirit return, deny Jesus Christ. Jesus manifested to his disciples, so the spirits can manifest to us.

Mrs. L. D. Shorey writes from Belfast, Me.: "I believe in going ahead, and not going back to please church or creed."

Carl Dreyer writes from New Chicago, Santa Clara county, Cali.: "I look upon Spiritualism as the first and oldest religion in the world's history. We have scientific proof of it. It is God's principle, therefore indestructible."

Daniel Camomile writes from Salt Lake City: "The Brockways have been with us some two months, and they drew good meetings, with lectures and tests, besides their slate-writing and other gifts with which they are endowed. They leave this week for the East. We are sorry. We shall miss them, and wherever they go, we in Salt Lake City say, God bless them. They have done good work here."

D. S. Maynard writes: "Thanks to Brother C. J. Johnson for his thoughts expressed in The Progressive Thinker of January 30, 1897, on the subject of the soul germ theory. I have often wondered why some of the many able writers who advance theories to account for man's origin—as a part of Pope's 'stupendous whole, whose body nature is, and God the soul,' never thought to consider the overruling good as a unit of intelligent life, and all expressions of the same, fractional parts of that ever-living unit of power. We know there is one unit in numbers, and but one; that fractional parts of that one are innumerable; but from the least to the greatest, are capable of being increased in significance and power indefinitely. Fractions of life, or numbers, must of necessity be co-existent with the unit; and who can conceive of a time when an intelligent unit of life and numbers did not exist?"

J. M. White writes from Walker, Mo.: "This week I shall put in in Nevada, Mo., and Fort Scott, Kans. From the latter place I go to Rich Hill, Mo., about February 8: from Rich Hill I go north and east to the cities of Holden, Macon City and Kirksville, Mo. Parties desiring parlor seances for tests or lectures at intermediate points along this line can secure my services at reasonable rates. I carry references with me and those desiring to look up my record can do so if they will write me at such points as I announce that I will be at."

R. A. D. writes from Washington, D. C.: "I have been attending the circles of one of our prominent mediums, and on the 9th of December developed in the dark circle. I was taken very ill, and my life was dispaired of for many weeks, but now I am improving and I shall soon shall be well and ready for the work which God's holy angel force spared me for. Strange to say, I have been a Baptist from my earliest childhood, and now I have come out for the truth and the light."

Mrs. A. C. Priest writes from Spokane, Wash.: "I am a young convert to Spiritualism—that is to say, in the light that our beautiful philosophy presents it. But this light is just what my soul has always longed for. I tried the churches for thirty-five years and never found in any place I considered sufficiently good for my religion—my intuitive soul perception— until I investigated our beautiful philosophy about two years since. I at once with the aid of my spirit friends commenced to develop my mediumistic powers, and words cannot express what happiness, joy, peace of mind and pleasure I have enjoyed in the past two years, more so than in all my previous life before I saw the light in Seattle, Wash. My husband and I began to hold sittings by ourselves, and then invited others to sit with us, and in a short time we could not accommodate all who came, and between twenty and thirty mediums developed and they began to hold circles in their homes. We then came to Spokane, July last, but did not hold circles until September. We then occupied a suite of rooms and only held four or five circles, when our room became too small, and I was gratified, for I was anxious to be where we are at present. We have a reading-room, free to all who wish to study our spiritual literature. We have also organized a society and named it the First Spiritual Society of Spokane, and although the people are slow in joining, we intend persevering and remaining here until we do a work for the cause."

Charles Myers writes from Porcupine, Wis.: "My wife and myself are almost alone as regards the knowledge of Spiritualism, but last October we succeeded in having Mrs. S. M. Lowell, of Anoka, come to our valley and give us three lectures, which so aroused the people that they wanted to hear more, and now she has just closed a week's engagement with us and I know that good work has been done for the cause. Mrs. S. M. Lowell is one of the best platform speakers that we have, and all the work she does will most assuredly advance the cause of Spiritualism."

Flora McDonald Denison writes from Toronto, Ontario: "We in Toronto are as an organized body of Spiritualists very young, owing our existence to Mrs. Loe F. Prior, who came here a few months ago as a missionary and did noble work for the cause, bringing as she did, many old Spiritualists from all parts of the city in touch with each other and converting many new ones. The next worker who came was Mr. Lyman C. Howe, and I think I voice the sentiment of most Spiritualists here when I say what he has done for Spiritualism can hardly be overestimated. I was born a Spiritualist, if you will accept such a statement, and have been familiar more or less with phenomena all my life, but I had only realized the scum and foam on the great ocean of truth, beauty and grandeur of Spiritualism. Mr. Howe's lectures were a revelation to me, as to many others. He entranced us and carried us beyond and above all phenomena, opening for us a grand, great and beautiful philosophy, with avenues broad and wide, inviting and satisfying."

Thos. S. Kizer writes from Decatur, Ill.: "For the past two weeks we have had Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield Pettibone with us giving materializing seances in full gaslight, the manifestations consisting of materialized hands being thrust out from the cabinet and shaking hands with the person, at the same time taking slates, and in some instances holding the slate (resting on the head of the medium Pettibone), with one hand and with the other materializing a pencil and writing the message in full view of the audience and hand it to the person taken from, properly signed by the name of the spirit writing, showing materialized lace on the wrists, the same being recognized by the friend at the cabinet; others showing deformed hands, some of the fingers being missing or having nusually long finger nails which were at once recognized. In all cases the messages were signed by a relative or friend of the person receiving the same. From eighteen to twenty-seven were in attendance at each seance, some of whom are prominent in church circles, and each one received a message and shook hands with friends."

Virginie Barrett has returned from her labors in the East, and is now ready for active work as organizer and seances; also open for societies. She desires camp engagements for 1897. She would like to hear from societies and persons in the State of Indiana. Her terms are easy. Address her at 499 16th street (old 7th street) East, Indianapolis, Ind.

H. W. R. writes from Palmyra, Wis.: "The Congregational society here has had quite a break-up. They had twenty-seven members, but a quarrel took place and ten of the most influential and working members have pulled out. They are now in a poor condition. Their minister got his back up and gave them a severe tongue-lashing which has made matters still worse. We have also another old Methodist crank who claims to be a divine healer. He has delivered six lectures on the matter, but has not done any healing as yet."

The National Home Society, late Father Williams', will meet in National Hall, Sundays at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.; also Wednesday evenings. Mrs. De Wolf, Dr. Randall and others will assist. The Continental Singers will sing.

M. J. H., of Breedsville, Ohio, writes: "The Breedsville (Ohio) Spiritualist Association are holding meetings every Sunday. Good speaking by Mrs. N. L. Williams. She was developed right in our midst; also a first-class psychometric reader, Mr. Ira Howard. We have an organized society here of about forty members, of which I am president."

May C. Sherwood writes: "Our grand cause is growing stronger each day in our banner State of Michigan. Your grand paper is hailed with joy as each week's issue brings us beautiful truths and advanced thoughts. May it live long to enlighten the world and banish forever superstition and ignorance. Dr. H. C. Andrews is still at Coloma, giving to us grand lectures and tests. He is one of Michigan's earnest workers. He will lecture in Union City, Mich., the 14th inst., and we predict a rich spiritual feast with our worthy brother. He will answer calls for week evenings, near that place, for spiritual work. Address at that city, Box 328."

A subscriber writes: "Mrs. Hamilton Gill, the well-known test medium, will hold weekly meetings at Ramenstein's Hall, 9232 Erie avenue, South Chicago, every Sunday evening at 7:30. The friends will please note that the usual Sunday circle held at 15 Bishop Court, has been discontinued. During the absence of their pastor, Mrs. Claman, Mrs. Gill spoke twice for the Spiritualist Society at Kensington, Ill. The meetings there were well attended, and some excellent tests were given at the close of the last meeting. Mrs. Gill was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet of flowers. She holds a test seance every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at her residence, 15 Bishop Court."

Moses Hull occupied the platform for the Spiritualist Society in Salem, Mass., the last three Sundays of January. His audiences increased from the first. Mrs. Hull assisted in the meetings the last Sunday. J. Frank Baxter was present in the afternoon and favored the audience with two beautiful vocal selections. The audiences were larger that day than on any previous occasion. At night the hall was packed and the adjoining rooms well filled. He occupies the platform for the Lynn Society during February, and Berkley Hall Society during March.

Mrs. Mattie E. Hull is engaged to lecture in Worcester, Mass., two last Sundays of the present month. In Philadelphia, March 6th and 14th. In Haverhill, Mass., 21, and 28. She has open dates in April; will spend the month of Mrs. S. T. Sears writes: "The First Society of Spiritual Unity will give a benefit at Lakewood-Park, corner Lake and Wood streets, February 11th, 1897, for Mrs. Mary C. Lyman, pastor of said society, consisting of an entertainment and hop, musical selections and fancy dancing under the supervision of Mrs. McDonald. All who are interested in the furtherance of the spiritual philosophy should lend a helping hand, as Mrs. Lyman has laid her all on the altar of progression to help uplift the fallen and send abroad the resplendent light of truth given her by ministering angels."

LOOKING FOR JOBS.

The Chronicle of the 29th ult., said: "One hundred and one Presbyterian clergymen are looking for jobs." That number of applications were made to supply the place of a preacher who has just resigned his pulpit, to accept one at Lincoln, Neb. Is God "calling" too many to the ministry? or are the people getting too intelligent to pay for pious cant?

NOTICE TO OHIO SECRETARIES.

If the secretary of every Spiritualist society in the State of Ohio will send us the names of the officers of their society, together with the names of two or three of the most active and spiritual-minded members, they will receive in return some important information and good news. Please attend to this at once, and address "Committeee," care of The Progressive Thinker, Chicago, Ill.

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER.

"In 1568, by a sentence of the 'holy office,' all the inhabitants of the Netherlands were condemned to death as heretics. From this universal doom only a few persons, specially named, were excepted. A proclamation of the king, dated ten days later, confirmed this decree, and ordered its instant execution. Three millions of people—men, women and children—were sentenced to the scaffold in three lines."—Motley's Rise of the Dutch Republic, Vol. 2, p. 155.

No comments are needed.

To have health and happiness, use "Garland" Stoves and Ranges.

MASS CONVENTION.

To the Editor:—Though a heavy mantle of snow covered the ground, the skies were bright and the temperature agreeable for a large attendance upon the first Mass Convention of the N. S. A., held in the Back Bay Temple in Boston, February 2, under the direction of J. Brown Hatch, who is Massachusetts State Agent. The platform was decorated with beautiful flowers, and President Barrett, who was to preside, was apparently at his best, and in his happiest mood. Upon the platform, before the grand organ, were seated J. B. Hatch, Sr., J. C. F. Grumbine, Moses Hull, Mattie Hull, Mrs. Sarah A. Byrnes, Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, Mrs. Kate Stiles and many others, all well-known platform workers who contributed to the intellectual feast of the occasion, while Mr. Fred Watson, Mr. C. Wesley Sullivan, Miss Amanda Bailey, furnished soul-inspiring music for the three sessions. The large audiences that attended the morning and afternoon sessions were augmented in the evening by large delegations from the suburban cities within twenty miles of Boston, severely taxing the capacity of the large auditorium.

The day's programme was remarkably well arranged and reflected great credit upon the management. Moses Hull made the leading address of the forenoon, Dr. Geo Fuller in the afternoon, and President Barrett in the evening. President Barrett was reluctantly obliged to take an early departure because of his engagement at a similar gathering to be held at Brooklyn, N. Y., the 3rd and 4th—Wednesday and Thursday of this week. It is understood that a series of mass meetings are to be held in different large cities of our land which are expected to result in great good for the cause, and especially in sustaining a public sentiment in the interest of organization. Great credit is due to the talent who so kindly and generously contributed their services, and also to Mr. Marcelus S. Ayer, who is doing as much or more than any one individual in helping the spiritual light to shine in dark places, in contributing free the use of his Temple upon this occasion. DR. G. W. FOWLER.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col, Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

From Light, London, Eng.

TEMPLE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

We are delighted to note that our friends in Washington (U. S.) are moving for the erection of a 'Temple' in that city. At a late Convention, the matter was discussed and well started by Mr. Theodore J. Mayer, who offered the first ten thousand dollars. Whereupon Mr. B. B. Hill rose and offered another ten thousand; and when the stir amongst the rank and file began in real earnest.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?

London—the first city in the world, with no permanent home, however humble, for Spiritualism? We venture to say there is no place on this planet where such a rallying place and work is more needed. We have repeatedly said it, and we shall go on saying it—that we want a building of our own; not a church but a place of business, including offices for The Alliance, seance and conversation rooms, library and reading room, a publishing office, and a good useful lecture hall. When one thinks of the stubborn opposition to our cause, of the dense spiritual darkness of these thousands who throng our streets, and of the pathetic need of the multitudes who are sorely needing light and consolation, is not the duty plain as the need? Who will help to give this storm-tossed London a spiritual lighthouse, in the very center of it?

AN ELECTRICAL EYE.

An enterprising writer in 'Pearson's Magazine' gets a little too excited over certain experiments by Dr. Bose, but, when all the sensational nonsense is wrung out of it, the Article on 'An Electric Eye' is worthy of some attention. The writer of the article seems to be ignorant of much that is familiar to all who have paid attention to the scientific developments of the past few years, and credits the Doctor with much that is neither novel nor his; and this, we know, has vexed him not a little; for Dr. Bose is a modest and fair-minded man, and there is good ground for believing that he is annoyed both at the article and the advertisements announcing it. But, as we have said, there is something which demands attention.

THE INTERESTING FACT

for us is that every step in this direction tends to justify or even to suggest the genuineness of every one of our 'delusions' or 'frauds;' and it is truly funny to see these magazine writers rush in, with their hair on end or all hanging down, as they tell us of these amazing 'discoveries.' Here, for instance, is this 'Pearson's Magazine' writer actually assuring us, on Dr. Bose's authority, that 'if the string of a violin be struck, the quivering wire gives up its motion to the air, which carries it to the ear, and the motion communicated to the brain produces the sensation of sound.' Really!

LIGHT AND SOUND.

After that, the writer makes the profound remark "Then, Professor, light and sound are both vibrations?' 'Yes,' is the thrilling reply, 'Sound is produced by the vibration of matter, and light is due to the vibration of ether. Just as there are sounds that may be inaudible' (but that is nonsense! There may be vibrations that are not translated into sounds)' 'so there may be lights, i.e., ether-vibrations, which are invisible.'

FLOATING IN ETHER.

After a column or so of this food for babes, the Professor asks, "Do you understand?" and the magazine writer makes this memorable reply: 'O yes, but I almost wished science had left us happy in our ignorance. It is not particularly comfortable to know that we are floating about in oceans of ether, with many things round us that we cannot see, all kinds of noises that we cannot hear, and substances in contact with us that we cannot feel." That is hopeful, any way; and it suggests that an elementary science mission to newspaper and magazine writers might pay well. We should, perhaps, hear less about the "silly delusion" that spirits are about us whom we can neither see, nor touch, nor hear.

ELECTRIC WAVES.

Professor Bose, says this writer, has found out how to so deal with electric waves as to direct them through so-called solids, and utilize them on the other side, making possible the ringing of bells beyond granite walls, without wires or any other connecting substances. So far good. But now suppose, instead of a battery and unconscious ether waves, we had a specially sensitive brain and intensely conscious thinking, is it not conceivable that the same or greater effects might follow? If there were a thinking being existing on the ethereal plane, why should it not be able to do all that a battery can do—and more? But a being existing on the ethereal plane would be a spirit. Think what follows!

THE SOUL AND FUTURE LIFE.

In the "English Mechanic" for December we notice a rather curious discussion on "The Soul and a Future Life." There is something painful in this militancy against the loveliest hope that ever blest this world. We can never understand why anyone should wish to fight it. He who loses it might well be content to mourn in silence. And yet there is a comic side to it as well. What a spectacle—to see the little thing we call man, proving, with the help of a few books on elementary science and a microscope, that the presumption is against anything which does not demonstrate itself in his small groove!

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

Christianity has entirely failed to regenerate humanity. And why? The primitive Christianity of the Man of Sorrows was a living reality; the Christianity of the churches is a corpse-like counterfeit. The motive principle, the animating spirit, the sustaining force of Jesus of Nazareth was a divine love—pure, simple-minded, self-less, intense, and profoundly sympathetic, for the whole human race.

ITS OWN SHIBBOLETH.

Each ecclesiastical organization has had its own shibboleth; each has proclaimed that all other believers—even if nominally Christians—were not merely wrong, but heretics; and as such, they were—it was held—justly exposed to persecution and punishment. There was no greater crime in the eyes of the dominant Church than to disbelieve what the rulers of that Church pronounced to be orthodox truth. The history of religious intolerance, bigatry and persecution constitutes one of the most appalling chapters in the annals of the human race.

PITILESS, CRUEL OR FEROCIOUS.

For man has never shown himself more pitiless, cruel, or ferocious, than when devising ingenious forms of torture, malignant methods of inflicting physical suffering, and protracted and agonzing agencies for destroying life, as often as heresy had to be hunted down and schismatics visited with the wrath of men, so intoxicated by the possession and exercise of despotic authority, so boundless in their audacity, and so arrogant in their pretensions to tyrannize over the conscience of the human family, that they dared to assert themselves to be the custodians of the keys of "heaven" and "hell!"

THE INQUISITION.

If it were possible to marshal on one vast plain the spirits of the millions of men, women, and children, who were put to death by the Inquisition; who were burnt at the stake by other ecclesiastical tribunals; who were butchered by the Roman Catholic invaders of Mexico and Peru; who have been slain in religious wars; and who perished in connection with those miserable Crusades;—the spectacle would be so awful, and so overwhelming in the horror it would excite, that no man could look upon it and escape madness.

IN THE NAME OF RELIGION.

And this vast holocaust of human life was offered up in the name of religion! These monstrous massacres were perpetrated by pontiffs, priests, inquisitors, monarchs and military captains, proclaiming themselves to be the servants, or soldiers, or ministers, of the Prince of Peace!

THE MAN OF SORROWS.

Surely it would be impossible to imagine a more awful insult to the memory of the Man of Sorrows, a more malignant outrage upon the name these persecutors have prostituted and profaned, than are involved in the commision, by so-called Christians, of crimes like the Massacre of St. Bartholomew; or the slaughter of the Indians of Mexico and Peru, by those "good" Catholics, their Spanish conquerors.

From The Spiritual Review, London, Eng.

THE ANGEL GABRIEL.

France has been specially favored of late, by so-called supernatural manifestations. Sometime ago, the angel "Gabriel" was supposed to have made his appearance to a young girl, and predicted to her many remarkable things, including a forthcoming terrible European war.

WORSHIPERS OF LUCIFER.

Then the worshipers of Lucifer, who regard that personage as an angel of light, rather than a devil of darkness, have recently been practising their diabolical arts in secret, and declare that the reign of His Satanic Majesty is near at hand. We are not in the least alarmed. The God of the Bible is far more to be feared, on account of his bloodthirsty motives, than the poor devil, who, after all, is simply a "bogey man" invented by theological tyrants to keep the superstitious of mankind in fear and subjection.

BLACK OR WHITE MAGIC

But in reality the practice of Black Magic is no more dangerous than the exercise of any other art that serves a useful purpose for individual protection. We are, all of us, consciously or unconsciously, practicing Black and White Magic. We send out thoughts of evil to our enemies, and good wishes to those who are our friends. It is only when we have a fixed evil purpose in view without any real cause for its justification, that the exercise of Black Magic becomes a source of destruction to ourselves.

GABRIEL AND LUCIFER.

The selfish propensities of man, and the faculties of so-called evil, serve equally an important and necessary purpose in life, as those which we regard as belonging to the domains of virtue or benevolence. It is rather remarkable that the angel "Gabriel" should be making his appearance in a city where Luciferianism is rampant. But such seems to be the case; though much of this supernatural visitation may be the offspring of imaginary fanatics; for we can hardly believe that such a being as "Gabriel" has an actual spiritual existence, seeing that his history is based upon Biblical fiction rather than fact. However that may be, the manifestations of Lucifer and the famous angel, who guarded the gates of Eden with a flaming sword, leads us to a consideration of the haunted house at Valenceen-Brie. It appears that mysterious voices and knockings are there heard in broad daylight, and that other manifestations of a remarkable character continue to disturb and astonish all who come within reach of their influence.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

Those who mind other people's business will have no time to mind their own. The worst busybody will read this and think it is meant for someone else.

Whatever is obtained without a just compensation will again pass away without an equivalent being received therefor.

Man is given his earth probation to study the will of God for this he cannot do when he has passed out of the body; neither can he return to earth to finish the neglected task.

Many ask me, "Why does not God make his laws plainer so that we all may be good?" God's laws are as plain as the sunlight, but man's perverse ignorance obscures his own vision of God's mercy.

To the pure in heart all things are pure, all things are good. The pure in heart are strengthened by an omnipotent, invisible, incomprehensible power that never fails the pure in heart.

The man who faithfully lives Natural Law, stands on the highest pinnacle that mortal man can reach. The most favored high priest can do no more.

He who keeps from another that which should be his, whether it be money or knowledge, is a thief, though he never possessed the article kept from him.

The reward of him who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow day by day is the greatest, while he who consumes that which he does not earn never tastes the sweetness of life.

Judge no one, but try to understand everyone. He who judges another does but judge himself.

He who fails in business lives on the earnings of others, without their knowledge or consent.

The many desire knowledge, but few will give the labor necessary to attain knowledge. All will take the proceeds of labor, but few want the labor.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

THE SPIRIT WORLD.

The spirit-world is a natural world; the reality of life is there experienced; this is the shadow land, that the world of reality; this the winter land, that the summer land. If these truths are recognized, if it be conceived that outside the range of conscious physical experience here, there is a real world, there are real people, then it follows of necessity that in the living of that real life, there must be abundant occupation for willing hands, for earnest minds, for those living people, who, having gone through the change of death, have doffed the "form" of physical life to don the garb of spiritual existence and stand forth in the reality of deeper and truer consciousness.

"WHAT KIND OF LIFE IS IT?"

"What kind of occupations are there? How is the time filled?" So the questions are often put. "When here, we sometimes find the time hang heavy on our hands, here sometimes it is difficult to fill it to the full; what are the occupations over there? Bear in mind that the life is real, that the spirit-world is a natural world, that there man goes on living, himself, not somebody else; himself with similar hopes and aspirations, similar desires, carrying with him into the larger conditions of that grander world beyond all that went to make the totality of his experience here.

SPIRIT LIFE REAL.

It is so difficult for the majority to think of themselves as apart from the physical "to-day," so difficult to hold the thought that what seems to be unreal here, that what they think of as "intangible and shadowy," that what only those specially gifted can gain a passing glimpse of, should be real and substantial; it is so difficult to think of oneself as really living after having left the physical form, but yet it is necessary to try to recognize that the spirit body is more real to the touch, to the consciousness of the spirit, than the physical body is to your touch or your present consciousness. The reality of spiritual life is so real that over and over again the risen spirits have actually been brought into earthly conditions to view their old-time bodies that they might, in very truth, know they had passed through the death change.

"TELL HIM THAT HE IS DEAD."

Think for a moment, after passing through that change in a state of unconsciousness, what it must be for an individual who had little or no thought concerning the spirit-life, to awaken and to find himself possessed of a real body, and then for someone, real, like himeself, to tell him that he is dead! Can you imagine such an experience? To be yourself, real, intelligent; yourself with limbs, with senses, and yet to see your poor old bodily self cold and still in death! Perhaps to have—as some have had—the feeling of pity for the tired hands, pity for the poor lined brow, pity for the wearied eyes, pity for the poor worn body, which having done its work, is no longer necessary, because the spirit possesses the spiritual body—better suited to the requirements of spirit-life than that earth body was to its physical surroundings.

WEAVING THREADS OF CONSCIOUS EXISTENCE.

So then, one of the first occupations of some spirit people is to visit the earth, and in such manner recognize that they are really denizens of the spirit side of life, that world of wider experience. It is necessary to bear in mind that the experience there is sequential; in the generality of instances, there is no sudden change, no great transformation, but simply the taking up of threads of conscious existence to weave them into the more beautiful garments of the spirit.

POSSESSED OF REAL POWER.

And, think, what is in your mind when, after a night's sleep, you open your eyes to the consciousness of the duties of the present, of the things you have to do, of the plans you are going to fulfill. You look forward to the work of the week, perhaps to more than one, and maybe you are impatient for the days to pass. Think, then, what it will be to those who pass hence—the continuing of what they commenced here. All this is the taking up in that new morning of the duties laid down before passing through the night of death; the finding oneself possessed of real powers with the real opportunities for action, to fulfil there more perfectly many of the plans that were barely formulated here?

ETERNAL PUNISHMENT.

Think what this means! Does it not sweep on one side the old teaching of eternal punishment? Does it not mean that it puts out of court the idea of an angry or vindictive God? Does it not mean that it sweeps out of the realm of consciousness all conception of a personal Devil? Does it not mean that life is real and earnest, that in the future you are going to do better than you have done in the past, and make good use of your experiences in taking up these wider opportunities of the spirit? This is the prophecy, and the hope of clearer and fuller consciousness, that you are going on living with grander desires, nobler aspirations, and more spiritual powers for the fulfilment of what, in the light of present thoughts, seems to be highest, truest, and best.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

NEW BOOKS.

An American Idyll. By Countess di Brazza (Cora Slocomb). Boston: The Arena Publishing Company. Price, cloth, $1.50.

The Countess di Brazza will be remembered as the lady who had charge of the exhibition of Italian laces, at the World's Fair in Chicago. In "An American Idyll" she has produced a very interesting and instructive, as well as suggestive and touching story. It is also a book of scientific value, affording much information in matters of anthropology, zoology, botany, etc., relating to the Pima Indians in northern Mexico, and their habitat. There are numerous illustrations, drawn from original specimens, which add to the interest and value of the book.

"Talleyrand's Letter to the Pope" will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts he states, and his keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Sold at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

A new edition of "Three Sevens," by the Phelons, is just issued. The May Arena says: "The gist of such books as Dr. Phelon's 'Three Sevens,' and other works descriptive of or alluding to the various occult societies, which seem to have existed for ages, has never, until recently, been said so openly and plainly that 'he who runs may read.'" Cloth $1.25, postpaid. For sale at this office.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the Home, the Lyceum and Societies.

A Manual of Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual Culture.

COMPILED BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC AND Songs, Golden Chain Recitations, Memory Gems, Choral Responses, Funeral Services, Programs for sessions, Parliamentary Rules. Instructions for Organizing and conducting Lyceums, Instructions for Physical Culture, Calisthenics and Marching; Banners, Standards, the Band of Mercy, etc.; a book by the aid of which a Progressive Lyceum, a Spiritual or Liberal Society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. It supplies the wants of Spiritual Societies for fresh Spiritual songs, with music free from the dismal tone of the old hymnology. It furnishes a unique selection of choice readings and responses such as no other selection contains. It gives a practical system of graceful calisthenics, every step of which is made plain by engravings. It gives instructions how to make the badges and banners and instructs in marching. It shows how to establish a Band of Mercy as auxiliary to the Lyceum, and has all the most beautiful songs which have been gathered up by that movement.

The author and compiler of this Guide is eminently prepared for the task by years of devoted labor in the Lyceum. The book is the result of practical work and tested by the interest awakened in the actual session of the Lyceum.

While intended for the working Lyceum, the guide is admirably adapted to the needs of the family, supplying 76 pages of new spiritual music and words found nowhere else, except in sheet form at many times the cost. The book has been placed at the remarkably low price of 50 cents, sent postpaid.

For Sale by The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis St., Chicago. Also by Hudson Tuttle, Berlin Heights, Ohio.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ROSTRUM.

BY A. B. FRENCH.

This work is one that every one should read. It beams throughout with rare gems of thought, practical as well as profound. There is sunshine and beauty in every sentence uttered. The work is dedicated to the author's favorite sister, Sarah French Farr, now passed to Spirit-life. Hudson Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio, gives an interesting sketch of the author's life.

CONTENTS:

Dedication.
Sketch of the Life of A. B. French.
William Denton.
Legends of the Buddha.
Mohammed, or the Faith and Wars of Islam.
Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon
Conflicts of Life.
The Power and Permanency of Ideas.
The Unknown.
Probability of a Future Life.
Anniversary Address.
The Egotism of Our Age.
What Is Truth?
Decoration Address.

PRICE, $1.00, POSTPAID.

THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS

Not Adapted to Modern Civilization, with the True Character of Mary Magdalene. By Geo. W. Brown, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This little book will be read with intense interest by thousands. Price 25 cents.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.

This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. Price 10 cents.

THE SOUL,

Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

Outside the Gates, and Other Tales

and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price $1.25.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents.

HISTORY OF THE INQUISITION

Just the book for those seeking information concerning that most damnable institution known in history—the Roman Catholic Inquisition. Every American citizen should become acquainted with the facts so succinctly stated in this valuable record. It shows the methods used by the Romish Church to exterminate those who reject its beliefs and claims. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE.

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

STANDING UP FOR JESUS,

Or what the editor of the Freethinker's Magazine thinks of him. Price, 4 cents; twenty-five copies for 50 cents.

SEERS OF THE AGES.

Embracing Spiritualism, past and present. By J. M. Peebles, M. D. An encyclopædia of interesting and instructive facts. Price $2.00.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

LIFE, A NOVEL.

It beams with advanced thought, and is fascinating. Price, 50 cents.

WHITE MAGIC

Taught in "Three Sevens," a book of 271 pages. It is really a very interesting and suggestive work. Price $1.25. For sale at this office.

Echoes From the World of Song.

A collection of new and beautiful songs, with music and chorus, in book form. By C. P. Longley. Price $1.25. Postage 15 cents.

Woman, Church and State.

A Historical Account of the Status of Woman Through the Christian Ages, with Reminiscences of the Matriarchate.

BY MATILDA JOSLYN GAGE.

THE AMOUNT OF VALUABLE INformation succinctly and clearly stated in this volume of 554 pages is amazing. The title, as above given, fails to convey an idea of the fulness and completeness with which the subjects are treated. The Matriarchate, or Mother-rule, is the theme of the first chapter, in which much lore, quaint, queer and curious, is brought to view in elucidation of the subject. This is followed by chapters on Celibacy, Canon Law, Marquette, Witchcraft, Wives, Polygamy, Woman and Work, The Church of To-day, Past, Present, Future; and there is not a chapter in the book that is not handled in a masterly manner, and that for quantity and quality of information, is not worth the full price of the volume. It is packed with knowledge well-arranged, and intensely interesting from beginning to end. No one can possibly regret buying it; it is a valuable addition to the library of any free and truth-loving mind.

Price, $2.00. For sale at this office.

ROMANISM AND THE REPUBLIC.

A WORK THAT EVERY LOVER OF his country should have at hand for consultation. By Rev. Isaac J. Lansing, M. A. This is a most able work, consisting of a Discussion of the Purposes, Assumptions, Principles and Methods of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy. The work contains 447 pages, and may be considered a mine of valuable information for every patriot in the land. Price $1. For sale at this office.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

D. L. Hawkins; Q. An individual receives a blow on the cranium, injures an organ or faculty of the brain, and becomes a raving maniac. A month or year afterward, he has a surgical operation performed on the affected organ, and immediately he is in possession of all his former characteristics, but the intervening time is a blank. Now, if this physical organism is only an instrument through which the spirit acts, as a musician plays on a musical instrument, why is it the spirit or ego knows nothing of what transpired during the time its instrument or body was undergoing repairs?

A. The problem presented by the above question has in various forms been the most perplexing that has met the Spiritualist. The instances have furnished specious arguments for materialists. They say triumphantly, when the strong intellect succumbs to the ravages of disease, or appears to decrease and expire with old age, that the mind is a product of the physical body, and perishes with it. The song of the bird might as well be listened for after the bird is dead, as manifestations of mind after the body has perished!

And yet this only shows the mutual dependance of mind and body while connected in this earthly life. The clairvoyant entering the superior state, on returning to the normal, may or may not remember anything occurring therein. Often the clairvoyant and normal states are distinct, and what is known in one is not known in the other. Yet clairvoyance is a state approaching more or less nearly the independent spiritual, and may become one with it. While confined to the physical body, the spirit does not use it as a machine, or tool to do its bidding, standing above and independent of it. For the time it is a part of it, and the condition of the body is reflected on the spirit. These conditions, and even the thoughts, may make no impression on the memory, and be forgotten on recovery. The ravings of the fever-stricken, the hallucinations produced by opium, alcohol or hashish, and dreams that cannot be recalled are all examples of thinking, without memory making a record. An injury to the brain that disturbs this power of preserving thought-impressions is no more extraordinary than that a dream cannot be recalled, and the cause back of both is nearly identical.

J. S. Waters: Q. (1) I have given much thought to your answer to a question as to the inhabitability of the planets. The answer was that none other are inhabited by man. In accordance with the law of evolution, will not each planet evolve some species, according to its conditions?

(2) Why is it that eternal life is repuguant to me; it seems quite too long?

A. There is not a single planet belonging to the solar system presenting conditions similar to those on the earth. In fact, the conditions are so dissimilar that they preclude the possibility of having any form of living beings sufficiently like those of this earth, to be comparable, or comprehensible. It is common to regard everything as relative to human beings, and a world unpeopled as a waste. There may be many unknown uses for a world other than as a home for man, or the lower forms of living beings.

(2) Such feelings as to immortal life, arise from a depleted vital force, and malaria, which is another name for inactivity of liver and related organs. Get yourself onto the firm basis of health, and you will not hate existence, though prolonged into infinitude.

H. Y. Bosworth: Q. What is aluminum made of, and what would a board of it be worth; ten feet long, one foot wide and one-fourth of an inch thick?

A. Aluminum is one of the most abundant elements, being a constituent of almost all rocks, forming some of the most precious gems, and the basis of all clay banks. Clay is an exhaustless ore of this beautiful metal. The minerals beauzite, cryolite and corundum have hitherto been the sources from which the metal has been obtained, on account of their purity, but the purer clays can be used when the attendant iron and silex is not objectionable. This difficulty will be overcome, and clay alone used as the cheapest and most abundant ore.

Before the dynamo made possible the almost limitless heat of electricity, aluminum was a costly metal. In 1856 the market price was $90 a pound. It is now worth 35 or 40 cents, according to purity, and is destined to reach a much lower value. Its lightness adds to its cheapness, as it is only one-fourth the weight of silver, and less than aneighth the weight of gold.

Roughly stated, the metal in a board of the size mentioned, would be worth about twenty dollars, the cost of manufacture to be added to this price.

A. C. Doane, Summerland: Q. Does not every human being possess the qualities of both male and female, and does not this constitute the mysterious double consciousness?

A. Man being a spirit confined by and made almost identical with his physical body, faces two worlds, the spiritual and the physical, and hence has a double consciousness, which at times is perplexing. It is true that every germ at the beginning is bi-sexual, having the capabilities of being developed into either a male or female. The differentiation is made at an early date, and growth rapidly proceeds along the line chosen. This difference of organic function is not associated with distinctive difference in mental qualities; in other words the mind is not female or male, and differs only by the greater or less activity of its various faculties, according to the changing requirements made upon it by the body to which it belongs. The distinction of sex, impressed on the mind by the necessities growing out of its physical relations, are retained after its separation therefrom; but as mind is sexless, there must come a time when they will disappear. As was stated in a preceding answer, sex is a condition of earth-life outgrown by the evolution of the spirit. All the speculation about the spirit being double, or the union of male and female principles, starts from mistaken premises. The spirit is a unity, and there is no distinctive male and female beyond the especial conformation of living forms which by distinctive direction give the same principles different causes.

This leads to the question asked by a veteran Spiritualist and profound thinker, Simon Emery, who writes: "I want to call your attention to an article in The Progressive Thinker of December 26, by Laura J. Valliers, where she says: 'The writer of this is permitted many times to visit, in clairvoyant visions, the bright future home, and has many times conversed with her departed friends, and the great source of regret with many of those who die young and unmarried is, that they have left no posterity.'

"I read this with a good deal of distrust. Do such visions come by hallucination of a diseased mind, or from idiotic spirits?"

The honesty and earnestness of the writer quoted cannot be doubted for a moment. That in the sphere immediately touching the earth, with spirits still chained by their longings to its material conditions, such regrets may be experienced, but to draw such a conclusion from emancipated spirits would be entirely erroneous. The narrowness of paternal love is a part of the earth-life, a necessity by which offspring receive care and parentage, of itself is not an experience which is essential to the perfection of the spirit.

All the old religions were founded on the worship of the generative principle, and the erotic element dominates, even to the Virgin Mother and her child Jesus. Spiritualism should be freed from phallic superstitions, and a spirit perfected, not libeled with the statement that it is unhappy because it did not have more animal experience in its rudimentary life.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

These lessons are not given as catechisms to be learned, or literally followed. They are intended as suggestive helps to the leaders, showing the various ways instruction may be given without dry forms. There are passages which may be exemplified into lessons, or the whole subject may be generally discussed. The Golden Thought which expresses the central idea of the lesson, may be committed and spoken in unison by the lyceum. The Memory Gems are for commitment to memory by individual members. The widest latitude is given to the leaders of the younger groups, who should treat the subject according to the varying capacities of their respective groups.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

If any man love acorns since corn is invented, let him eat acorns; but it is very unreasonable that he should forbid others the use of wheat.

SUBJECT: THE PROGRESS OF RELIGIOUS IDEAS.

Fetichism is the lowest form of religious faith. It is the worship of any material object, as a stone, a tree, or animal that attracts attention by its strangeness or mystery.

All savage races are fetich worshipers. The superstition still lingers in the faith attached to church edifices, the altar, relics of saints and the Bible as a holy book; in Thanksgiving, fast days and prayer.

It is a religion of fear, fear of the irresponsible and vindictive powers.

Polytheism was evolved out of fetichism. As the human mind advanced, there was a classification and instead of a god for every tree, there was one god for all trees, one for all waters; instead of every individual having a god, there was one for the tribe. Still further: There was one god for darkness and all evil, and one for light and all good.

Then necessarily came a mediator or savior. The expanding reason recognizes the necessity of unity, and slowly the one god takes his place, and monotheism is the belief of the more civilized peoples. This progress has taken a vast duration of time. It has been attended by bloodshed, wars, torture, martyrdom—more fiendish cruelty than all other causes combined. Example: The Crusades—burning witches—The Inquisition—Terrible sacrifices by the thousand, by the Aztecs. Its latest examples, burning Servetus and Guiordano Bruno; at present the sneer and scoff of public opinion.

What have the gods or the god ever been? Reflections of the mind of the believer; an image of the devotee.

For the younger groups: Leader—If you should have a garden, where you planted some choice bulbs and seeds, some lilies, and tulips, snowdrops, and sweet violets, with asters and poppies and mignonette, what would you do to make them grow and bloom?

Leader—Yes, and the clouds would bring showers, the dews would fall, and the warm sunshine come to help you. Now, when your flowers were starting vigorously, should there spring up ugly weeds, what would you do?

Leader—If you did not, what would become of the flowers? You all have a garden, a beautiful garden of the mind; it has wonderful flowers. What are they?

Leader—Yes, thoughts, and what do we call the weeds that grow there?

Leader—Evil thoughts, if we have them, what happens to us? How are we to deal with them?

Leader—Uproot them, and leave only the good to fill our minds. How can we become beautiful? Good thoughts make us beautiful, and ugly thoughts make us ugly.

Leader—If you are beautiful, because of pure and noble thoughts, to whom will you be like? Like unto the angels which are in heaven.

MEMORY GEMS.

The savage worships every thing because he fears—rocks, trees, streams, mountains, sun and stars.

Terrified by the life he cannot comprehend, he personifies that life; and coming to a belief that personalities stand behind visible effects, a sense of helplessness intensifies his fear.

He believes these personalities may be appeased by sacrifices and prayer.

Here is the cradle of theology. The savage by deifying all objects dwells constantly in the presence of his gods and illustrates a state theologians never weary of applauding, wherein faith is all in all, and reason creates no doubts.

We have not outgrown fetichism yet. Miracles are held as the groundwork of faith; God is to be turned aside by prayer; he delights in a national thanksgiving, and there is an effort by a belated church party to set him and his son on the throne of the Constitution of the United States, and compel all to worship them as fetiches.

The result of the evolution of religious ideas: Man, not god the divine center; nobility of life; highest ideal aspiration for perfection; calm reliance in the presence of the forces of Nature; all-embracing charity and philanthropy; earnest endeavor to actualize the ideal perfect life rendered possible by his organization in this world, as the best preparation for the next; and for the Religion of Pain, the substitution of the Religion of Joy.

"The Prophets of Israel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

STUDYING THE BOOK OF NATURE.

O, SPIRIT OF NEWTON,

Why Don't You Return to Earth?

HE IS WANTED TO EXPLAIN CERTAIN THINGS—STEPHEN H. EMMENS' DECLARES NEWTON'S LAW RADICALLY WRONG—HE ADDRESSES THREE GREAT SCIENTIFIC BODIES ON THE INCORCORECTNESS OF THE THEORY OF GRAVITATION AND ADVANCES A NEW ONE BASED ON CENTRIFUGAL FORCE — BELIEVES THE EARTH A HOLLOW SPHERE FILLED WITH FLYING FRAGMENTS.

An assault, says the Chicago Tribune, backed by seemingly strong arguments and deductions, has been made upon what has come to be regarded as one of the most axiomatic of scientific truths. Newton's law of gravitation, deduced from the historical apple, has been declared wrong, wholly or at least in part, and an attempt has been made to overthrow the foundation upon which is based a large share of the science of astronomy.

The originator of the attack is Dr. Stephen H. Emmens, an English scientist and the author of several works of repute, and copies of a memoir promulgating his new and astonishing theory of natural law were mailed on the first day of 1897 to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, the Academy of Sciences at Paris, and the Royal Society at London. What the memoir contains has been made known in general terms by a writer in the New York Herald. It boldly assails the universally recognized Newtonian law of gravitation and calls upon scientists to revise their beliefs and square accepted theory with existing fact. It is the most revolutionary doctrine advanced in many years.

Dr. Emmens endeavors to show that the famous Newtonian law is mathematically incorrect. He claims that the earth is a hollow shell whose polar walls are greatly thicker than those of the equatorial regions. In support of this he advances what he terms the "centrifugal force theory" to replace in part Newton's law, and applies it to the solar system and the universe with startling results.

Newton's law, familiar to most persons since their school days, states the accepted theory as follows:

"Every particle of matter in the universe attracts every other particle with a force varying directly as the masses concerned and inversely as the distance between the centers of gravity of the masses."

The law is universally and scientifically accepted as a fact, but Dr. Emmens takes exception to it.

LAW AND THEORIES DISAGREE.

"The geologists and the geodetic gentlemen," he said, in speaking of the nature of his theory, "make common cause with the astronomers and physicists, so far as the acceptance of the Newtonian system is concerned. And yet some of their most cherished theories are in glaring defiance of Newton's doctrine of gravitation.

"Take, for example, their views as to the interior of the earth. They say it is composed of matter which grows denser and heavier the deeper it is situated from the surface. They talk of enormous pressure and the most intense heat as characterizing the matter forming the central portion of the earth's mass. Yet Newton himself proved with practical, if not absolute, validity that gravity, and therefore weight, grows less and less as we descend from the earth's surface, until at the center of the world no substance weighs anything at all.

"A discussion of this subject forms part of my paper, and I show that the earth is in all probability a hollow shell, having polar walls greatly thicker and denser than those of the equatorial regions.

"In the center of the earth, where bodies have no weight, they are free to move in accordance with the centrifugal force. A great mass of matter, therefore, accumulates along the line of the internal equator. It grows thicker and thicker, and the inner part consequently approaches more and more closely to the center. It thus becomes more fully acted upon by the centrifugal force, and at the same time is nearer to the great north and south polar masses. This goes on until the attraction of these masses becomes superior to the outward tendency.

"Then the innermost particles and bodies detach themselves from the equatorial ring and fly across the great cavity, to dash forcibly against the north and south walls, where they spread out in a cloud of shattered fragments and gradually creep and glide outward once more. Try to imagine what I have called in my paper the 'clash and whirl' that is perpetually occurring. Picture to yourself the electric storms and the heat thus generated!

"Does not this fully and satisfactorily account for the elevated temperatures of the earth's interior and for the magnetic and electric condition of the globe?

APPLIED TO HEAVENLY BODIES.

"And suppose that we apply this centrifugal theory to the case of the heavenly bodies as well.

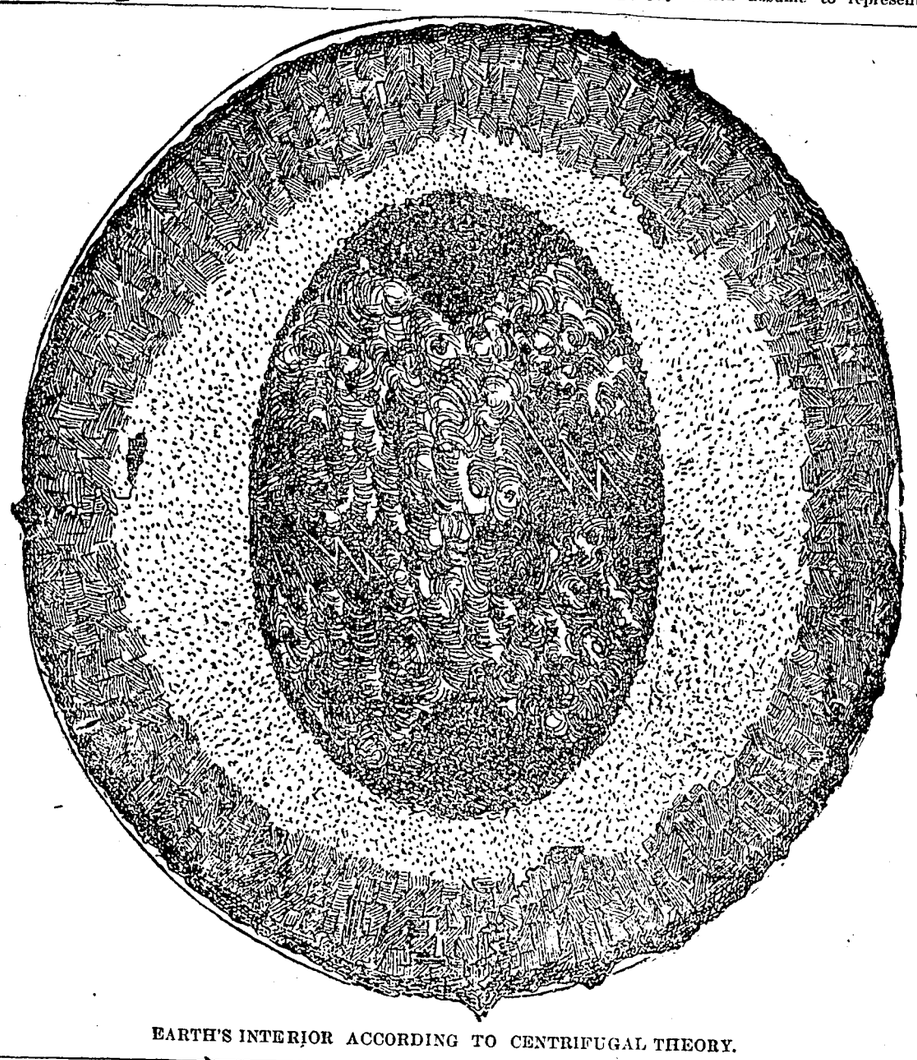
"Take the sun, for example. Astronomers and physicists have long sought hopelessly for some acceptable explanation of the source of the sun's heat. They have always acknowledged the problem to be one that baffles them. Yet the very law of gravitation they have sworn by should have pointed the way to a solution. The clash and whirl in the sun's vortical cavity must transcend to a well-nigh inconceivable extent the internal hubbub that is forever heating the earth and producing the earthquakes and volcanoes that perpetually startle and frequently terrify us.

"The doctrine I advance is a legitimate conclusion from observed facts.

"For example, you are probably aware that most nations have expended large sums in scientific work relating to the determination of the figure of the earth. Arcs of the meridian have been measured in many parts of the world, and thousands upon thousands of pendulum and weight observations have been made for ascertaining the varying force of terrestrial gravity in various localities. The general result of all this work has been to demonstrate that the figure of the earth as determined by gravity differs considerably from the figure as measured.

"This discrepancy is inexplicable on strictly Newtonian principles and has led to grave doubts respecting the accuracy of the costly observations. But it is exactly what ought to be observed, if my conclusions be correct.

"I am, therefore, justified in claiming it as a striking proof of the soundness of the views advocated in my paper.



"Now, as astronomical calculations are largely dependent upon these measurements, I am justified in believing that when the scientific world finds that wrong figures have been adopted for the form and density of the earth there will be, or at least, there ought to be, a decidedly lively commotion. A new series of observations will have to take place. The principal governments of the world will have to make large grants of money and fit out many a scientific expedition in order to arrive at exact data for use in the astronomy of the future.

"All this I have pointed out, and I have even ventured to suggest that here is an opportunity for the richly endowed University of Chicago to step forward and do yeoman's service to the cause of science.

SUSTAINED BY OTHER FACTS.

"There are innumerable facts tending to show the strength of my position. Here is just one, for example. It is the fact that all the parts of the sun do not rotate at the same speed. The equatorial portion makes a complete rotation round the axis in about twenty-five days whereas the portions near the solar poles take twenty-seven (some astronomers say thirty-five) days to effect a complete revolution. I need hardly say what an astounding fact this is. If you turn a ball round in your hand you see and know that all parts of it turn together. The length of a complete day, from sunrise to sunrise, is the same in the West Indies as in Labrador. Yet when we carefully watch the sun we notice that the various parts do not all rotate in unison. This is the standing puzzle in astronomy and the greatest astronomers have acknowledged their utter inability to understand it. Turn to the last edition of Prof. C. A. Young's noted book, 'The Sun,' and you will find him admitting the inscrutability of the phenomenon. Yet if the trammels of the Newtonian system be loosened, and if my centrifugal theory be considered, a plain and simple explanation of the amazing fact at once becomes apparent.

"Now, I by no means show that the Newtonian doctrine is altogether wrong," said Dr. Emmens in conclusion. "I do not, for instance, contest the existence of gravitation, either here in this world of ours or in the solar system and starry universe beyond. My contention is that the precise law of gravitation as formulated by Newton is erroneous and needs modification. I show in what way it should be modified, and how, if such modification be acknowledged as correct, corresponding changes must be made in many of the fundamental doctrines now adopted in all branches of physical science.

EARTH'S INTERIOR ACCORDING TO CENTRIFUGAL THEORY.

Hypocrisy is the necessary burden of villainy, affectation, a part of the chosen trappings of folly.—Johnson.

THE SEYBERT WILL.

It Was Loosely Drawn and Unwisely Constructed.

Mr. T. Fitch inquires: "I notice that the N. S. A. intends to take up the Seybert will, and President Barrett wants Spiritualists to send in money to have the action of the Pennsylvania University thoroughly aired in court. As this seems to be one of the chief labors the N. S. A. has set itself at, I am anxious to know if such a lawsuit will be successful? If it should prove otherwise, Spiritualism would suffer more than to let the matter remain as it is."

Ans. The commissioners appointed by the Pennsylvania University to investigate spiritual phenomena, showed themselves prejudiced and wholly incompetent. They, however, reported, and thus fulfilled the requirements made on them. Their report was a disgrace to men claiming ordinary intelligence, for it was in the style of a burlesque, rather than in the calm and judicial spirit the subject merited. Yet no one has the right to prescribe the form of investigation, for the will by which it takes place does not give even an allusion to methods of investigation, or rules. This will is one of the loosest drawn instruments for its purpose ever written. As it has now come so prominently before the public, it is of sufficient interest to be fully quoted. It is as follows:

"To the Board of Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania, Gentlemen:—Being mindful of the uncertainty of life at my advanced age, and feeling the importance of making permanent provisions for certain interests that seem to me of the highest moment, I hereby offer to your honorable board fifty first mortgage bonds, Raleigh and Gaston Railroad, ($1,000 each) being equal to the sum of $60,000, to be devoted to the maintenance of a chair in the University of Pennsylvania that shall be known as the 'Adam Seybert Chair of Moral and Intellectual Philosophy,' upon the condition that the incumbent of said chair, either individually or in conjunction with a commission of the University faculty, shall make a thorough and impartial investigation of all systems of morals, religion or philosophy which assume to represent the truth, and particularly of Modern Spiritualism.

"I further empower your board to invest the said sum of money in such securities, strictly legal, or otherwise as may be deemed best, provided at all times the interest alone shall be expended for the purpose of maintaining the said Adam Seybert chair.

"I further empower your board if there may be any income arising from said sum of money over and above the amount required for the salary of the incumbent of said chair, to dispose of such excess of income in such way as may be deemed best to promote the views I have expressed. I have the honor to remain

"Your obedient servant,

"HENRY SEYBERT."

It will be observed that:

Spiritualism is only one among the many systems of morals religion and philosophy that are to be investigated.

No date is fixed when this shall begin, and it is to be presumed that the "Seybert Chair is to continue the investigation as long as the donation draws interest.

No rules of regulations are prescribed for the procedure of the investigation. Everything is left at the discretion of the board, even the investment of the fund they may make "strictly legal or otherwise"—a most remarkable provision for a sane man to make!

There is only one restriction—that is that the investigation be "thorough and impartial." The reader, I feel sure, will agree with the statement that a more elastic, inadequate and incompetent document never was written.

The commissioners, in their report, claim to have only begun the work. They assert that they are absolutely impartial. They pause awaiting the coming of mediums for investigation. They urge them to come. Those they did investigate, were not satisfactory, but others may be. Prof. Furness wrote to me at the time, urging me to recommend at least one clairvoyant, whom the Spiritualists would be willing to accept as representative. The investigation was yet incomplete, in fact, only begun.

Now it is easy to begin a suit at law with the University, to compel its trustees to show cause why they do not comply with the will, which intrusts to the University the $60,000. If carried along up through the courts to the Supreme, as President Barrett threatens to do, it will take all the money the N. S. A. will be able to collect from donations, sale of charters and membership fees for the coming year.

But how will he be able to carry his tremendous suit up? Will not the trustees claim that they have and are carrying out the provisions of the will; that they have a broad field, no less than all the religious, moral and philosophical systems of the world, as well as Spiritualism, and having begun on that with a quite lengthy report, they have been unable to go on, because, though urgently appealed to Spiritualists do not come promptly forward with material? And what is equally important, will not every court, from the Circuit to the Supreme, sustain them?

Spiritualism can have no greater misfortune than to have this commission go on making investigations and reports. Spiritualists could not put their money to worse use than in sustaining a suit at law to enforce the University to set such a commission at work. Mr. Seybert was honest and enthusiastic and had the ambition to have a Seybert monument in shape of a chair in the University, but he was unwise, and had he intended to arm the enemies of the cause he desired to aid, he could not have been more successful.

HUDSON TUTTLE.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH

—OR—

DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means or developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

HERESY,

...OR...

LED TO THE LIGHT.

A Thrilling, Psychological Story of Evangelization and Free Thought. It is to Protestantism what the "Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

The distinguished author, Hudson Tuttle, requires no introduction to the readers of The Progressive Thinker, but the following headings of chapters will show them what they may expect from the book:

Contents:—An Idyl—Fordham—Building the Church—The Evangelist—Blood—The Saloon—The Lost Daughter—Law—The Harvest of Souls—Jane Grey—The Mother of Cain Evolution—Stella—The Cell—Death—A Step Forward—The Home Circle—The Double Role—Heresy—Annette The Bank Robbery—Liberty—All is Well That Ends Well—The New Church—The New Way, Led to the Light.

Every chapter is devoted to one idea, and the whole presents so many tableaux moving onward to the climax. The fiendish career of the revivalist is contrasted with the character of the honest minister and the thinking agnostic. The steps by which a preacher emerges from the church, and the difficulties he meets are graphically presented. The new church and progressive lyceum evolved out of the old, form an interesting study to those seeking new methods.

It is a beautiful volume of 223 pages, and the price in accordance with our new departure, is 50 cents, postpaid, or five copies for $1.25. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

THE MEDIUMISTIC

Experiences of John Brown,

The Medium of the Rockies, with an Introduction by

PROF. J. S. LOVELAND.

This book should be in the hands of every one interested in Spiritualism.

Chapter 1, Notoriety; Early Mediumship. Chapter 2, The Heavenly Mansion. Chapter 3, Removal to California; Return of His Guides. Chapter 4, Remarkable Tests. Chapter 5, His Work as a Healer. Chapter 6, Leaves the Body. Chapter 7, Visit to the Spirit Land. Chapter 8, Methods Used by Spirits to Communicate; How to Conduct a Circle. Chapter 9, Miscellaneous Articles. Chapter 10, A Strange Experience. Chapter 11, Remarkable Manifestation of Spirit Power. Chapter 12, New Experiences—Illustrative of Prophetic Visions. Chapter 13, The First Break in the Atlantic Cable Shown to John Brown. Chapter 14, Unseen Opposition. Chapter 14, Ole-podrida.

For sale at this office. Heavy paper cover, price 50 cents.

THE UNKNOWN LIFE

—OF—

Jesus Christ

—BY—

NICOLAS NOTOVITCH.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

Since the writing of the New Testament no book has appeared of as great importance to Christianity as the Unknown Life of Jesus Christ.

This volume, written by the discoverer of the manuscript, contains a thrilling account of the privations and perils encountered in his search for it, a literal translation of the original manuscript, and lastly a critical analysis of what it contains.

This work contains 185 neatly printed pages, and is published on the basis of combining cheapness and excellence. Price, neatly bound, one dollar. Paper cover, price 25 cents, postage 5 cents.

Address this office, 40 Loomis St., Chicago, Ill.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

A Fascinating Work.

The readers of The Progressive Thinker will remember the story under the above title, by Hudson Tuttle, which was published in its columns. At the time, constant inquiries were made as to its appearing in book form. This wish has now been gratified. It makes a volume of 248 pages, in style and form like the "Convent of the Sacred Heart," with a finely-engraved likeness of the author on the cover. The scenes of the story alternately shift from earth to the spirit spheres, and the philosophy of Spiritualism, the occupation and modes of life of spiritual beings, are presented in the pleasing form of narrative.

The following are the chapter-titles: Introduction; The House of the Sage; Home of the Miser; The Low Societies; Hades; Christmastide in the Spheres of Light; Christmastide and the Golden Gate; The Unhappy Marriage; Easter Day in Heaven; A Visit to the Earth; The Change Called Death; Coming to the Knowledge of the Light; The Society Again Visits Earth; The Forsaken and Despised; Discussion; A Visit to a Distant Globe; Reunion in the Spirit-world; Contentedness Not Goodness; Address of the Sage.

It is a book the Spiritualist will be delighted with; a book in which the investigator will find answers to ever-recurring questions; a book which will interest the church member, nor repel the most prejudiced. The price in paper is 50 cents; muslin $1; postpaid.

THE GODS.

By Col. R. G. Ingersoll. A pamphlet of 40 pages. Worth its weight in gold. Price 10 cents.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though to escape the observation of the vulgar."—Voltaire.

Contents: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate;" an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 32 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE.

By Andrew Jaskson Davis. Something you should read. Price 75 cents.

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS.

A List of His Noted Works.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Gottings.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By Mattie E. Hull. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By Moses Hull. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents.

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By Moses Hull. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By Moses Hull. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By Moses Hull. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By Moses Hull. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By Moses Hull. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—Interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

Spiritual Songster.

By Mattie E. Hull. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $6 per hundred.

The Mediumistic Experience of John Brown.

The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. Price, 50 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By Moses Hull. Price, 5 cents.

Was John Calvin a Murderer?

Price, 5 cents.

NEW THOUGHT.

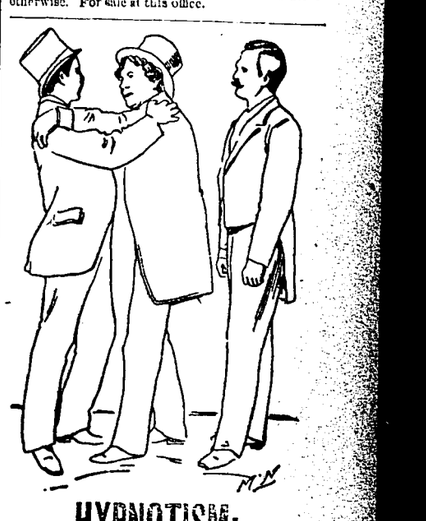
Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. By Moses Hull. Price only $1.50. For sale at this office.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office.

Researches in Oriental History.

BY G. W. BROWN, M. D.

One Vol. 12mo, 407 Pages, Cloth, $1.50.



GENERAL DIVISION.

1. RESEARCHES IN JEWISH HISTORY.
2. RESEARCHES IN ZOROASTRIANISM.
3. DERIVATION OF CHRISTIANITY.
4. WHENCE OUR ARYAN ANCESTORS?

The whole comprises an earnest but fruitless search for a Historical Jesus.

In this volume the Jews are clearly shown not to have been the holy and favored people they claim to have been. The Messianic idea is traced to the Bactrian Philosopher, 2350 years B. C., and its history is outlined, following the waves of emigration, until it is fully developed into Christianity, with a mythical hero, at Alexandria, in Egypt, soon after the commencement of the Christian era.

The book demonstrates that Christianity and its central hero are mythical; that the whole system is based on fraud, falsehood, forgery, fear and force; and that its rites, ceremonials, dogmas and superstitions are but survivals of so-called paganism. It shows vast research among the records of the past; its facts are mostly gleaned from Christian authority; and no person can read it without instruction and profit, whether he reaches the same conclusions with the author or otherwise. For sale at this office.

HYPNOTISM;

Its Facts, Theories and Related Phenomena, with Explanatory Anecdotes, Descriptions and Reminiscences.

BY CARL SEXTUS. THE BOOK IS largely a record of the facts and demonstrations which the author has seen, heard of or presented in his own experiments. The history of the various phases of the science is succinctly presented, and the various theories clearly stated. Many of the experiments described occurred in Chicago. The pictorial illustrations add much to the interest and value of the book, which will be found very interesting to the general reader, as well as helpful and instructive to the student. The work is a handsome volume of 326 pages, bound in cloth. Price, $2.00. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By Moses Hull. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

GOLDEN LAXATIVE COFFEE.

SOMETHING NEW, BUT OH, SO NICE!

CURES CONSTIPATION!

Ask your druggist for it, and if they don't have it, ask them to order some of us, and they will do it.

GOES AS FAR AS 4 POUNDS OF PURE COFFEE.

A Package by Mail, 50 Cents.

Golden Laxative Coffee Co.,
AYER, MASS.

NO INGERSOLL "ADS." FOR THEM—INFIDEL "BOB'S" POSTERS TORN DOWN WHILE A CROWD WAITED IN HARLEM OPERA HOUSE — A ROMISH PRIEST COULD NOT BEAR THE SIGHT OF THE COLONEL'S SMILING FACE—THE INQUISITION WOULD BE INSTITUTED IF THIS PRIEST HAD THE POWER, AND EVERY FREETHINKER BURNED AT THE STAKE.

"Bob" Ingersoll with all his philosophy, would not heave been in a very pleasant frame of mind had he been in the neighborhood of the Harlem Opera House at half-past seven o'clock January 31.

He would have seen a crowd of nearly two hundred well dressed ladies and gentlemen congregated in the lobby of the theatre and on the sidewalk, watching, with smiling faces, a force of men tearing down the placards announcing that Ingersoll was to lecture in the theatre next Sunday night. Where the posters, showing the lecturer's smiling face, could not be hauled down, sheets announcing other shows were pasted over them, and not until every reminder of Ingersoll and his lecture on "The Bible" had been effaced did the well dressed assemblage turn away, satisfied, and enter the theatre, when they remained all evening, enjoying an excellent entertainment.

What led up to this emphatic disapproval of the lecturer and his views follows:

The most representatives of Harlem Catholics are members of St. Thomas's Church, in One Hundred and Eighteenth street, near St. Nicholas avenue. The old church was torn down some time ago, and in its place is being constructed a handsome structure, the congregation worshiping, meanwhile, in the little chapel which was allowed to stand when the rest of the old church was leveled. The rector, the Rev. J. J. Keogan, who is on the best of terms with his wealthy parishioners, announced some time ago that, to swell the fund to pay for the new church, an entertainment would be given in the Harlem Opera House, at which he expected to see every one who had a pew in his church.

Had he gone to the Opera House yesterday, however, he would have learned that others had done something which would have provoked his strongest objection. But he wasn't in that neighborhood, and it was not until last night, when he arrived at the theatre with some of his congregation, that he knew what that something was. When he saw he became righteously indignant.

Outside the door of the theatre were several big billboards, placed so that they could not fail to attract attention. On them were posted big sheets, on which "Bob" Ingersoll's features were limned in colors, with the announcement, in letters a foot high, that he was to lecture on "The Bible" next Sunday night. As the priest looked and wondered, carriages were drawing up at the curb, and members of his church were alighting, only to be mortified by the billposter's exhibition.

Pushing his way into the lobby of the theatre, the rector found the walls similarly placarded. Not an available spot was overlooked, and even on the stairs leading to the balcony were the boards and their objectionable colors and announcements.

They asked him who was responsible for the posters.

"I don't know," replied the priest. "But I do know that I will not allow them to be flaunted in the faces of the members of my church. They must be taken down, or we will not hold our entertainment here tonight. I will not countenance such advertising."

None of the theatre attendants could say who had posted the placards, nor had they any power to order their removal. So the priest appointed a committee consisting of himself, ex-Mayor Gilroy and Mr. White to find Manager George Blumenthal and have an understanding. As he was not in the theatre a messenger was sent to his home, but he did not reach the theatre until hundreds of the ticket holders had arrived and had blocked the lobby and the sidewalk. The unusual gathering drew a crowd of the curious and the street was impassable.

The manager was profuse in his apologies and readily consented to the priest's demand that the posters be torn down. But would not the ticket-holders find their way into the theatre while the work was being done? Not a bit of it, they one and all declared; not until the Ingersoll pictures and announcements were cleared away.

"It looks to me," said one, "as if this were a despicable trick on some one's part."

Manager Blumenthal deprecated this idea; the advertisements had been put in place Saturday night, the church entertainment having slipped his memory. Had he thought of it there would have been no cause for complaint. Then he summoned a force of men; they carried away the bill boards, they tore away the placards from which Ingersoll's face smiled down on them; with paste brushes they covered others of the posters with big blank sheets, and soon there was not a reminder of "Infidel Bob" in sight.

The above is from the New York Journal, and illustrates the fact that the Romish Octopus is not dead but is still alive, and that the inquisition would still be in force if Father Keogan had the power, and every Spiritualist be burned. Just think of it, this priest's subservient followers could not stand the sight of Col. Ingersoll's portrait announcing that he would lecture on the Bible. Alas! LUCRETIUS.

New York.

IMPORTANT!

DR. C. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

C. E. WATKINS, M. D.,
AYER, MASS.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

SPECIALISTS IN ALL CHRONIC DISEASES.

—Depend for their remarkable cures, not upon the old drastic drug system, but upon the knowledge of diseases and their proper remedies—upon science and the finer psychic forces.

Some of their cures, like Schlatter's, are INSTANTANEOUS; in other cases months are required.

Having carefully studied all the therapeutic agencies in connection with their long medical experience, they use those best adapted to each case with unvarying success.

Hundreds are joyfully writing the Doctor: "I am better," or "I am cured." "God bless you."

THEY TREAT THE FOLLOWING:

Dyspepsia, diarrhœa, dropsy, epilepsy, eczema, erysipelas, falling sickness, rheumatism, scrofula, nervous spasm, gravel, gout, headache, heart disease, kidney complaint, female weakness, liver difficulty, neuralgia, paralysis, bleeding piles, bronchitis, asthma, bladder affection, cancer, catarrh, pimples upon the face, uterine diseases, weaknesses of men, barrenness, insanity, drunkenness, constipation, la grippe and all chronic diseases. And further, they furnish

FREE TO ALL PATIENTS

Hygeiic and Physiological literature, enabling them when cured, to remain healthy.

Correct Diagnosis Free,
By enclosing name, age, sex, leading symptom and stamp for reply.

REMEMBER TO ADDRESS

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,
P. O. BOX 177,
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
855tf

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL! . . . . .

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,
REBECCA LEVY.

3331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

The Church of the Soul, at Room 412, Masonic Temple, at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, pastor.

The First Spiritual Society of the South Side, New Masonic Temple, 3120 Forest avenue. Services at 2:30 and 7:30. Mrs. Ada Foye lectures and gives tests.

Beacon Light Church, 617 North Clark street, near Burton Place. Services at 2:30 and 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Perkins.

German Spiritualist Society, Gartelman's Hall, 13th street and Ashland avenue. Services at 3 and 8 p. m.

The Spiritual Endeavor Society meets at 1 South Hoyne avenue, 7:45 p. m. Mrs. Sarah E. Bromwell, pastor.

Spiritual Gospel Temple, Hygeia Hall, Washington boulevard and Paulina street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Home Spiritualist Society, 11 Ada street, at 3 and 8 p. m.

The Church of the Spirit, Willis Edwards, pastor, meets at 620 N. Clark street, at 3 and 8 p. m. Lyceum at 2 p. m.

People's Home Association, Bricklayer's Hall, 93 South Peoria street. Services at 7:30 p. m.

The Spiritualists' Church of the Students of Nature meets every Sunday evening at 7 p. m., at Monsen's Hall, 1052 Milwaukee avenue, corner Lincoln street. Mrs. M. Summers, pastor.

Spiritual Advancement Society, 684 West Madison street. Services at 7:45 p. m. Dr. Hasenclever will lecture and give spirit messages, assisted by other prominent mediums. Admission 25 cents.

Brown's Hall, Forty-seventh and State streets. Services at 8 p. m. Lecture and tests by Dr. Harry Abbott, of California.

Society of Spiritual Truth, 887 West Monroe street. Services at 8 p. m.

The First Society of Spiritual Unity will meet Sundays at 11 a. m., 3 and 7:30 p. m., in Washington Hall, 490 Washington boulevard, corner of Ogden avenue. Mrs. Mary C. Lyman, speaker.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, Lakeside Hall, southeast corner Indiana avenue and Thirty-first street, G. V. Cordingley, pastor. Services at 3 and 7:30 p. m. Harry W. Miller, soloist. Children's lyceum at 1:30; Bible class at 2:30.

German Spiritual Society, Hanshman's Hall, 384 W. Division street. Services at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Caroline Drews, medium.

The Church of the Star of Truth meets every Sunday evening, at Wicker Park Building, in the large lodge hall, on North avenue, near corner Milwaukee avenue, North avenue and Robey street. Services at 7:30 p. m. Easily reached from all parts of the city. Max Hoffman, pastor.

Spiritual Church of Love, Faskin's Hall, 3012 Archer avenue. Mrs. E. J. Hanson. Children's lyceum, 2 p. m., followed by developing circle. Spiritual science at 7:30 p. m. Tests at all meetings.

Spiritual meeting every Sunday evening at 7:30, at 2970 Indiana avenue. Conducted by Mrs. Edith E. R. Nickless.

The First Spiritual Society of Kensington holds meetings every Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Lee Norle Claman, pastor.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

Passed to spirit-life, January 11, 1897, Lydia A. Patterson, widow of the late John Patterson, of Baldwinsville, Mass., aged 66 years and 9 months.

MRS. C. N. NICHOLS.

Collingdale, Pa.

James E. Burt passed to spirit-life from his late residence, Detroit, Mich., January 30, 1897, aged 59 years. He was a kind husband and loving father, and left many friends to mourn his loss. Nellie S. Baade officiated.

Departed to a higher life, from her home in Norwalk, Ohio, Mrs. Alice (Hough) Greene, January 19, 1897, aged 77 years, 6 months and 10 days. She was born in Cheshire, Eng., and came with her family to this country when ten years of age. In 1848 she married Carlos Greene, and has lived in Milan or Norwalk since that time. They had eight children, only two of whom remain. Mr. Greene was for many years connected with the Costa Rica railroad, first as builder for the Costa Rica government, and then as manager. She was called to bear his loss, he having been stricken with fever on his return from a home visit, and buried in the Caribbean Sea. The funeral was held on January 21, Hudson Tuttle giving the address, and Mrs. Emma Tuttle a song service.

* * * * *

Passed to the home of the soul, Grandma Esmond, mother of E. V. and Clark Esmond, of Hale Lake, Iosco county, Mich. She passed quietly to her home of rest, Sunday, January 24, 1897. She was one who was beloved by all, and her earthly presence will be missed by many. A veteran Spiritualist, just and benevolent to all classes, free to instruct those seeking the spiritual truth, she has passed unscathed and pure through many trials and vicissitudes of life, and has now gone to join a throng of welcoming ones on the other shore, where just award awaits all patient souls. She was about 80 years of age.

EMMA M. HITCHCOCK.

Siloam, Iosco Co., Mich.

Nathaniel Whitaker, of Sheridan, Chautauqua county, N. Y., passed from his earth-home to spirit-life, January 11, 1897, in his 86th year. He was born in Henniker, N. H., but for many years had resided in the place where he passed away. He commenced his investigation of Spiritualism almost at its inception, and becoming convinced of its truthfulness he was ever ready to uphold and defend its cause. No doubts or misgivings harassed his mind, but firm in his convictions, Spiritualism was a source of help and strength and comfort. In life he was an upright, honest man; not only honest in his dealings with his fellow-men as regards business transactions, but he was honest with himself and the world in thought and sentiment, never catering to public opinion at the sacrifice of principle. He was one of the pioneers at Cassadaga Camp, and his cottage there was the second one to be erected on the grounds, at which place he was a yearly attendant until failing health and old age deprived him of that highly-prized privilege. In his declining years he ofttimes said: "I am waiting for the boatman. My earth-work is done. My race here is nearly run. My spirit friends wait to give me welcome to that other home."

A wife and six children survive him, cheered and sustained by the philosophy that was his.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer, and many friends and neighbors of the departed one heard for the first time the truths of Spiritualism presented. CLARA WATSON.

Mr. Edwin Leach passed to the higher life from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Maggie Morrison (for many years the organist for the First Society of Spiritualists of New York City), at Bayonne, N. J., January 25, 1897, in the 78th year of his age.

He was a worthy member for thirty-three years of the Corinthian Lodge 488, F. & A. M. Soon after this he also became a convert to the truths of Modern Spiritualism, and an active, earnest member of the First Society of Spiritualists of New York City. He said to me that the spiritual philosophy enabled him to more fully comprehend the esoteric significance of the signs and emblems of the Masonic fraternity. He was keenly alive to all steps in reform, or human progress. He was an expert artisan and connected for many years with the Singer Sewing Machine Co., of Elizabeth, N. J. What a consolation the spiritual philosophy affords. His illness lingered many months. I met him quite frequently. He was resigned to the situation, and anxious that the inevitable transition should not be postponed too long, as he was anxious to meet his dear companion that made her departure three and a half years in advance. Mr. Leach formerly resided at Norwalk, Ct., where the interment occurred, he having many relatives and friends in that city. The whole funeral and burial service was attended to by the Fraternity in a satisfactory manner and commendable to the order. TITUS MERRITT.

Better a human clod that aches with the load of life than a calm Olympian god who hath never suffered strife.—Henry Austin.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

SPIRITUALIST BADGES.

EVERY . . . . SPIRITUALIST SHOULD WEAR THE SUNFLOWER JEWELRY.

As the Sunflower turns its face towards the sun, so Spiritualism turns the faces of humanity from darkness and superstition towards the Sunlight of Truth and Progression.

PRICES:

Rolled Plate Bar Pin	$2 25
Solid Gold Bar Pin	3 50
Electro-plate Badge	75
Rolled Plate Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 25
Solid Gold Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 75
Rolled Plate Maltese Watch Charm	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Watch Charm	5 00
Rolled Plate Maltese Pendant	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Pendant	5 00

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE,
40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO

MADAME ANNA ALPLANALB,

THE CELEBRATED

Gypsy Palmist and Psychometric Reader,

Is well known throughout America, having been before the public twenty years. Send date of birth, sex and complexion, with a glove lately worn, and receive a life reading. Fee $1. 3044 So. Fremont ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 376

"Revelations of a Spirit Medium."

824 pages illustrated. Former price $1.50; our price, 75 cents, prepaid. "Illusions and Mental Phenomena," two volumes, 25 cents each, prepaid. CLYDE PUBLISHING CO., Box 851, Chicago, Ill. 378

THOS. E. ADDY, 183 SOUTH BROADWAY, Aurora, Ill., trance, test and business medium. Sittings daily. Send 25 cents silver and 2-cent stamp for a recognized test from your spirit friends. 376

AFTER DEATH—I WILL TELL ANYONE SENDing me 25 cents and their name and date of birth, the life they have lived, and what their life will be after death. It is a wonderful thing to know. Do not miss this golden opportunity to all. Strictly private, with my prompt attention. Address C. D. Farmer, Petoskey, Mich., No. 39 West Mitchell street. 376

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Cause and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

An abridged edition of "Antiquity Unveiled" gives in condensed form its more important statements and references. It is in stiff board covers, and the price is 50 cents. For sale at this office.

NEW OCCASIONS

A Magazine of Social Progress.

EDITED BY FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

The world is on the threshold of vast social changes. Progress is about to sunder the chains which have bound it. The next forward step will be just that which the average intelligence of a nation makes possible. Revolutions are the pulse beats of progress. The coming revolution should be one of intelligence; it should be one of peace. In that hope and in that belief NEW OCCASIONS opens its pages to a discussion of live questions. It is bound by no creed, and desires only to reach nearer to the truth. MONTHLY, 64 PAGES with handsome cover.

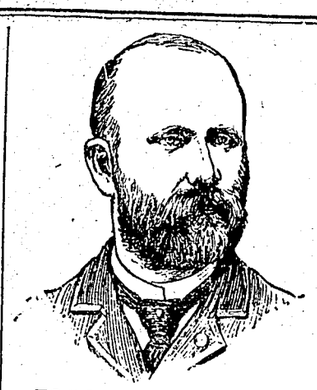
ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION $1.00: SINGLE COPIES 10 CENTS.

Sold by all Progressive Newsdealers.

WANTED the address of every active reformer. We have thousands of pamphlets on free silver, direct legislation, government banks, etc., for distribution. Sample package mailed for six cents.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO., Pubs., 56 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

HEALTH AND POWER.



A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

Have you promised yourself the rare pleasure of reading this beautiful work by the good, old-time writer, Hudson Tuttle? Price, 50 cents. Contains a fine portrait of the author. For sale at this office.

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

FORSTER, DR. W. M.

THE NOTED

MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT

OF THE PACIFIC COAST.

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,
1059 Market Street, - San Francisco, Cal.
333

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,
Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich.
358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,
SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 384

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

PSYCHOMETRY, CONSULT WITH Prof. A. B. Severance in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit-friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address, 710 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis. 376f

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1030 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 3-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,
Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill.
378

MRS. B. HASENCLEVER, 681 MADISON STREET. Test and trumpet circle every Tuesday at 3 and 8 o'clock. 25 cents. Materializing seance Wednesdays and Saturdays at 8. Independent slate-writing daily. 377

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily, 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street, Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN, Clairvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 380

Seership—Guide to Soul-Light.

Its art and culture, with rules for its attainment. Lucidity is no gift, but a universal possibility common to the human family. Price $2.

EULIS. The Third Revelation of Soul and Sex. A work containing many secret and inner doctrines of the Rosicrucians. In it and by it both man and woman have not merely the road to enormous power, both mental and individual, but the grand energy of effecting wished for changes in others; also prolongation of life. Price $2.50. Address KATE C. RANDOLPH, 23 Melrose avenue, Toledo, O. 379

IF YOU ARE SICK

with any form of disease, send ten cents (silver or stamps) to Dr Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a trial treatment of a revealed vegetable tablet. They will positively cure any disease, including stomach, liver or kidney trouble; also rheumatism and di-eases of the nervous system. Testimonials will be furnished from people who have been permanently cured with one trial treatment. 377

TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED.

A POWERFUL HEALER AND PSYCHOMETRIST.

Send address, lock of hair and two leading symptoms for diagnosis and remit two 2-cent stamps for return.

DR. M. E. SELLEN,
Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 377

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 67 Thirty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, Ill. 377tf

MRS. S. F. DEWOLF—INDEPENDENT SLATE writing. 240 Winchester ave., near Van Buren. Madison street car; take transfer at Roboy. Ladies' circle, Thursdays at 2:30. Chicago, Ill. 379

A GENEROUS OFFER.

Chronic Diseases a Specialty. Send five 2-cent stamps, age, sex, lock of hair, full name, State and county. You will get a correct diagnosis FREE, with advice and low terms for treatment. Thirty years in practice; nearly every patient cured. Also as a seer of marvelous power, he will answer six questions for 50 cents. Life reading one dollar.

DR. S. W. FISKE,
53 Oak Street. - - Norwich Conn. 380

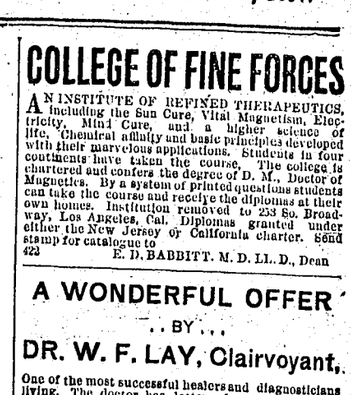
HOROSCOPES

★ FREE For Men, Women, Young People and Children.

Send at once. PLANETS AND PEOPLE, Enclose Stamp. 169 Jackson St., Chicago.

Send 25 cents for MAGAZINE OF THE HEAVENS.

THE DRUM IN POSITION



DEAFNESS

and Head Noises relieved by using Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drums. New scientific invention; different from all other devices. The only safe, simple, comfortable and invisible Ear Drum in the world. Helps where medical skill fails. No wire or string attachment. Write for pamphlet.

WILSON EAR DRUM CO.,
234 Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky.
1122 Broadway, Room 256, New York.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life, Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

E. D. BABBITT. M. D. LL. D., Dean
422

A WONDERFUL OFFER

. . BY . . .

DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and hand, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

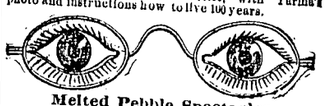
Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,
502 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.



Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

DR. GARLAND'S VEGETABLE COUGH DROPS

Are put up in six-ounce tin boxes and are guaranteed to give satisfaction or money will be refunded by the proprietor, Dr. M. H. Garland. Send 25 cents in stamps and receive by return mail a box of this

HOUSEHOLD REMEDY

as you will find it a blood cleanser as well as a Throat and Lung Remedy. Over 200,000 boxes sold and all recommend them. Address all orders to DR. M. H. GARLAND, 332 Sixtieth Place, Station O., Chicago, Illinois. 342tf

ORDER OF THE MAGI.

A New Badge in solid gold with blue and black enamel, with the pyramids, obelisk and sun's rays in gold. Every Mystic should have one of these beautiful emblems. Price $2. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

CHRONIC DISEASES

A SPECIALTY.

Send your age, name in full in your own handwriting, and I will diagnose your disease

FREE OF CHARGE!

Enclose three 2-cent stamps and address

J. S. COOPER, M. D
Chillicothe, Mo. 384

MRS. EMMA D. BUSH,

PSYCHIC READER, CLAIRVOYANT AND CLAIRAUDIENT. Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. Room 408 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill. 380

OCCULT FORCES.

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to be interested in it and 10c. in stamps. Circulars free. OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair, 82 Adams avenue, Detroit, Mich. 378

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped and addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, Station P, Chicago, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in clairvoyance, psychometry, inspiration and healing. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Reduced terms. The inspirational teachings and experiments by correspondence are just what you need to insure success. Psychiscopes $2. Mr. Grumbine is endorsed by the Spiritualistic press and leading societies throughout the country. The only inspirational and scientific system of unfoldment extant. Catalogue of publications of White Rose free. 364tf

MANSILL'S ALMANAC

— OF —

PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OLD MELODIES SPIRITUALIZED — A SONG Book (words only) for the home, circle, seance and lecture room. With each book is a practicable way of use for those who sing by note. 35 cents. Address H. W. BOOZER Grand Rapids, Mich 378

DR. JULIA A. YALE.

Twenty years practice of Medicine and Magnetics. Her band of spirit healers is unsurpassed. Cures when others fail. No case that cannot be relieved. Consultation free. 48 S. May street, Chicago, Ill. Letters inclosing stamps answered. 376

A HOROSCOPE OF YOUR BIRTH AND ASTRAL reading of your life, with numerous suggestions pointing the way to success through the development of soul force; also a copy of "Sparks from the Infinite," and one private lesson in occultism. Send date of birth and 25 cents to URIEL BUCHANAN, PH. D., 31 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. 377

ARE YOU A SLAVE?

Are you a slave to tobacco, whisky, opium, or any person or thing? If you are, "you don't have to be." You had better write to us to-day and find out our methods, and what we are doing. It only costs you four cents to get particulars, and our fees are only $2 per month. In the course of time this may mean health, success and happiness for you and yours. Mothers, wives and daughters can write in behalf of their loved ones. Address PROF. ROWLAND J. BROWN, Austin, Cook Co., Ill. 377

RUPTURE SURE CURE at home; book free. Dr. W. S. Rice, box 55, Smithville, N. Y. 367 18t6ow

THOMAS PAINE'S

Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1897, NO. 378.

TRIPLE CONSCIOUSNESS.

TRINITIES IN THE HUMAN ORGANISM—INSTANCES OF THREE SELFHOODS IN ONE PERSON, EACH ACTING INDEPENDENTLY OF THE OTHERS—INNER VOICE OF THE HIDDEN SELF—ITS MOST HELPFUL DISPOSITION—INCIDENTS.

"Science is still far in the rear of natural phenomena," said Dr. Grace in the Cincinnati Enquirer, at a subsequent meeting of investigators. "I have briefly discussed a few phases of consciousness as involving deeper mysteries than the human mind has yet comprehended, and it seems probable that we may safely conclude that they will remain inexplicable for all time, beyond human understanding, and not to be read till the veil between the finite is finally lifted. I have not yet attempted to go into the minute details of any case quoted, and most of the wonderful phenomena in the experience of M. Janet were omitted in my description for the reason that I feared them too unaccountable to elicit belief. But the French scientist is one of the most eminent specialists of his day, and it is certain that he publishes nothing in which he lacks faith.

PROTOPLASM.

"In all discussions of this kind it must be remembered that the human animal knows next to nothing about himself. There is no subject upon which he is more densely ignorant. What is really his origin? It cannot be explained, for we cannot go back to original causes. We find a little mass of living matter and call it protoplasm. It it is tremulous with self-endowed motion. It is practically structureless, containing only some little shapeless granules. When analyzed in the chemist's laboratory it is found to be composed of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen. Then we say we know something about it, but how are these elements grouped together that out of their dead atoms should spring molecules endowed with the greatest power of all—the power of knowing? Do we know? Really, do we know, when none of us can explain his beginning or end?

"We can go back far enough to find that which we suppose to be the beginning of a man—a formless speck of protoplasm. One such little mess is to us indistinguishable from its fellows, yet within each are the records of generations yet to come. Out of one shall be developed an idiot, out of another a man shall fill the world with fame of his intellectual greatness, or possibly with the noise and carnage and misery of war; out of one shall come forth a monster of wickedness, out of another a savior of mankind.

"To our limited intelligence, however, all these beginnings are precisely alike. If with the rude and blundering tools we call the microscope and the retort we cannot make out any difference in these simple little masses of protoplasm, which are yet so different, how can we ever tell the story of the waves of ruin, distress and change which sweep to and fro through the human brain? If we cannot fathom the mere speck of germinal protoplasm, how can we ever hope to translate back to sanity the changes of the most complicated nervous protoplasm gone mad? How shall we gain the ability to ever understand the cause of its mournful eccentricities? Heartily do I hope and pray that this understanding may come through some source, and I have faith that hypnotism

WILL SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

"Please understand that all the statements I make here are intended to be in the interest of truth—not to provoke controversy, but rather to stimulate investigation. M. Janet does not present his discoveries in an ultra-theoretical sense, although generally they had their origin in theory. He has proved most of his positions conclusively, and he does not assume as a fact anything not proved to be the truth beyond the least question. Great physicians question one of M. Janet's conclusions, to wit: That anesthesias invariably carry amnesias—total lapses of memory—with them, holding that the intricacy of the associative processes and the fact comparatively few experiences are stored up in one form of sensibility alone would be sufficient to defeat such a result. Complete illustrations of this law are found in the privileged subjects of Janet's experiments, and yet he seems to have found no exceptions to it, but other physicians shake their heads in doubt.

"M. Janet declares that if he were to awake some morning with no muscular or tactile feeling; if, like one of his patients, he should suddenly lose his sense of color and distinguish nothing in the universe but black and white, he would be terrified, and instantly appeal for help. On the contrary, the patients find their state so natural that they never even complain. After several trials, when he proved to one that she could perceive no color, she was found to be ignorant of the fact. When he showed another that she could feel neither pain nor contact, she answered, 'All the better.' When made conscious that she never knew where her arms were till she saw them, and that she lost her legs when in bed, she replied: 'That is natural, as long as I don't see them; every one is like that.' The scientist concludes that, being incapable of comparing their present state of sensibility with a former one of which all memory is lost, they suffer no more than normal individuals by missing a better harmonized life.

ANESTHESIA.

"Their tactile sense was restored temporarily by means of electric currents and magnetic passes, and then they were made to handle various objects, such as keys, knives and pencils, and make particular movements like the sign of the cross. When the anesthesia returned they found it impossible to recollect the objects or the acts. They said they had nothing in their hands and had done nothing. Next day, however, sensibility being again restored by similar processes, they remembered perfectly the circumstance, and told what they had handled and what done.

"THE NEARLY UNIVERSAL LAW

that persons forget in the waking state that which happens to them in a trance or dream is thus experienced. There are differences of sensibility and consequently breaches in the association of ideas. Certain of M. Janet's hysterics regained complete sensibility in their deeper trance, as stated at our previous conference. The result was such an enlargement of their power of recollecting that they could then go back and explain the origin of many of their peculiarities which would else remain inexplicable. For instance, when the tactile sensibilities came back to Lucie III., as described in our former conversation, she explained the origin of her hysteric cries in a great fright which she had when a child on a day when certain men, hidden behind the curtains, had jumped out upon her. She told how she went through this scene again in all her cries of her sleep-walking fits through the house when a child, and how for several months she had been shut in a dark room because of sore eys. All these were things of which she recollects nothing when awake because they are records of experiences mainly of motion and of touch, and when awake her feelings of touch and movement disappeared—forgotten like any phantasmagoria of a dream.

NATURAL SOMNAMBULISM.

"Really the most interesting case reported by M. Janet is that of the patient designated as Leonie, which furnishes an intensely interesting illustration of how the memories and character will change with the sensibilities and motor impulses. This woman has had attacks of natural somnambulism since the age of 3 years, and her life record reads more like an extravagant romance than genuine history. From the age of 10 she has been almost constantly hypnotized by all sorts of persons, and now she is more than 50. While her normal life developed in one way, in the midst of her poor country surroundings, her second life was passed in drawing rooms and doctors' offices, and naturally took an entirely different direction. When in her normal state this woman is a serious and rather sad person, calm and slow, very mild with everyone and extremely timid. To look at her, says our author, one would never suspect the personage which she contains. Hardly is she put to sleep hypnotically, however, than a metamorphosis occurs. Her face is no longer the same. It is true that she keeps her eyes closed, but the acuteness of her other senses supplies their place.

SHE IS GAY, NOISY, RESTLESS,

sometimes insupportably so. Good-natured she remains, but has acquired a singular tendency to irony and sharp jesting. Nothing is more curious than to hear her after a sitting, when she has received a visit from strangers who wished to see her asleep. She gives a verbal portrait of them, apes their manners, pretends to know their little ridiculous aspects and passions, and for each invents a romance greatly resembling prophecy, for many of their little stories eventuate with more or less exactitude in the after life of their subjects. To this character must be added the possession of an enormous number of recollections whose existence she does not even suspect when awake, for then her amnesia is complete.

TOO STUPID.

"In her secondary state she refuses to answer to the name of Leonie, and takes that of Leontine (Leonie II.), to which her first magnetizers had accustomed her.

"'That good woman is not myself,' she says; 'she is too stupid.'

LEONTINE AND LEONIE.

"To herself, Leontine, she attributes all the sensations and all the actions; in a word, all the conscious experiences she has undergone in somnambulism, and knits them together to make the history of her already long life. On the other hand, to Leonie I. she exclusively ascribes the events lived through in waking hours. M. Janet was at first surprised by an important exception to this rule, and was disposed to think there might be something arbitrary in this partition of recollections. In the normal state Leonie has a husband and children, but Leonie II., the somnambulist, while acknowledging the children as her own, attributes the husband to 'the other.'

HER FIRST ACCOUCHEMENTS.

"This choice followed no rule, but, perhaps it was explicable. It was not until later that M. Janet learned that Leonie's magnetizers in early days—as audacious as certain hypnotizers of recent date—had somnambulized her for her first accouchements, and that she had lapsed into that state spontaneously in her later ones! Leonie II. was, therefore, quite right in ascribing to herself the children, since it was she who had given them birth, and the rule that her first trance state forms a different personality was not broken. But it is the same with her second state of trance. After the renewed passes, syncope and other requisities to reach the condition of Leonie III., she is another person still—a third, individuality. Serious and grave, instead of being like a restless child, she speaks slowly and moves but little. Again she separates herself from the awaking Leonie I.

"'A good and rather stupid woman,' she says, 'but not me.' And she also separates herself from Leonie II, 'How can you see anything of me in that crazy creature?' she asks. 'Fortunately I am nothing for her.'

"Leonie I. knows only of herself; Leonie II. of herself and Leonie I.; Leonie III. knows of herself and both the others. Leonie I. has a visual consciousness; Leonie II. has one both visual and auditory; in Leonie III. it is at once visual, auditory and tactile. M. Janet at first thought that he was Leonie III.'s discoverer, but she told him that she had frequently been in that condition before. Dr. Perrier, a former magnetizer, had hit upon her just as had M. Janet, in seeking by means of passes to deepen the sleep of Leonie II. Says Janet:

SURPRISES IN THE TRANCE STATE.

"This resurrection of a somnambulic personage who had been extinct for twenty years is curious enough, and in speaking to Leonie III. I naturally now adopt the name of Leonore, which was given her by her first master.' It is readily seen what surprises the trance state may prepare for not only the subject, but for the operator as well.

SOME CURIOUS PERPLEXITIES.

"For the subject the surprises are often inconvenient enough, especially when the trance comes and goes spontaneously. Thus Leonie I. is overwhelmed with embarrassment when on the street Leonie II.'s gentlemen friends—who are not hers—accost her. Leonie II. spontaneously writes letters which Leonie I., not understanding, destroys when she finds them. Leonie II. proceeds to thereupon hide them in a photograph album, into which she knows Leonie I. will never look because it contains the portrait of her former magnetizer, the sight of whom may put her to sleep again, which she dislikes. Leonie I. finds herself in places known only to Leonie II., to which the latter has led her and then taken flight. These different personalities are proved by M. Janet to not only exist in the successive forms in which he has already disclosed them, but to coexist or exist simultaneously—in such wise that while Lucie I., for example, is apparently the only Lucie, anesthetic, helpless, yet absorbed in conversation, that other Lucie, identified as Lucie III., is all the time inside of the same woman, fully sensible and wide awake, occupied by her own quite different concerns. This coexistence of the different personages into which one human being may be split is the greatest thesis of M. Janet's book. Edmund Gurney, Birnheim, Binet and three or four others have had the same idea and proved it for certain cases, but M. Janet has emphasized and generalized it and shown it to be true universally. He has been enabled to do this by tapping the submerged consciousness and making it respond in certain peculiar ways. He found in several subjects that when the ordinary or primary consciousness was fully absorbed in conversation with a visitor—and I need not recall how absolutely these hysterics then lapse into oblivion of surrounding things—that the submerged self would hear his voice if he came up and addressed the subject in a whisper, and would respond either by obeying such orders as he gave, or by gestures, or by pencil writing on a sheet of paper placed under the hand. The ostensible consciousness meanwhile would go on with the conversation, entirely unaware of the gestures, acts or writing. These latter, in turn, appeared quite as little disturbed by the upper consciousness' concerns. This proof by automatic writing of the secondary consciousness' existence is the most cogent and striking one, but a crowd of other facts brought forward by M. Janet prove the same thing. These I must defer mentioning for the time being, while I turn to a local illustration bearing on the subject.

ALIVE AND KICKING

A VOICE FROM WITHIN.

"A few years ago a manufacturer of artificial limbs in Cincinnati had a customer who came frequently to the city to have a leg fitted, repaired or readjusted, and on the earlier occasions of this sort he notified the manufacturer and requested that he might be met at the train. On one occasion, however, he came unexpectedly and without notice. The fabricator of limbs was sitting at his desk at about 10 o'clock that morning, when he heard a voice which seemed to proceed from within himself, saying: 'Jacob's train will be at the station as soon as you can get there.'

"'Although greatly startled, he managed to reply: 'Jacobs is not coming today, for I received no letter.'

"'He is coming,' responded the inner voice, 'but left home in haste and neglected to notify you. Don't fail to meet him.'

"The gentleman, sorely affrighted, hastened to the station, scarcely believing the strange message he had received in such an unusual way, and was just in time to assist his customer in alighting from the train. The disabled man had sickened by the way, and was in immediate need of help.

"'You were told to come?' he remarked, interrogatively.

"'Yes, but I cannot understand how,' replied the manufacturer.

"'I'll tell you. When I took sick I didn't know what to do. I thought aloud and wished I had notified you as usual of my intended visit. Then something inside of me—a curious thing that has done me a favor on odd occasions—told me not to worry, for you should have due notice. I knew you would be here to meet me on my arrival when I heard the promise from that voice.'

"Don't you know what it is that speaks?'

"'Not really, but a ghost-raiser told me a while ago that it was a spirit.'

"'And you believed him?'

"'And what harm's in it? I may have believed him. Better that way than go crazy by pestering over the subject. If it's a spirit he's all right, I'm sure.'

"I believe that Jacobs had a tractable hidden self, which, when normal man became practically helpless, lent him a helping hand to the extent of its powers and that these powers were materially strengthened by use. M. Janet cites a similar case, to which I may refer hereafter.

"Another incident relates to the conveyance of a material object by some mysterious power. At a sitting in the parlors of a well known Cincinnatian a few years since one of the company, afflicted by the grippe, stated that he would be compelled to excuse himself as he had left his medicine at home, and according to the doctor's directions it must be taken every half hour. He was persuaded, however, to remain for a while. The dark seance soon came on and it was only fairly under way when the sick man asked:

"'Who has put something into my hand? Why, what is it? I believe it is my medicine. How fortunate. But who brought it?'

"Nobody could answer. Not a person had left the room, and the invisible messenger is still hidden from mortal sight. But he, she or it brought the desired medicine, and it must have proved effective, for he who desired and took it may be seen daily upon our streets in robust health." T. P.

MISSIONARIES FOR THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor:—Our recent National Convention directed the Trustees to put some active missionaries into the field at the earliest possible moment. This has not been done because of the lack of funds.

The necessity for missionary work in every section has grown stronger since October, and the Executive Committee of the N. S. A. decided to act immediately in the matter; therefore, the services of Mr. E. W. Sprague of Jamestown, New York, have been secured for a brief period for this important work.

During the month of March he will labor exclusively in the State of New York in the interest of the State Association to be organized there in early April. He will visit all the societies now in existence in that State and will organize as many new ones as possible.

Parties residing along the several railroads in the Empire State are requested to correspond with Mr. Sprague, 520 Chatham street, Philadelphia, or with Mr. Frank Walker, State Agent of the N. S. A., Hamburg, New York.

The friends in New York State will be asked to entertain Mr. Sprague while in their respective communities, giving him the privilege of soliciting donations, and of receiving the proceeds of the collections taken at the meetings, and the payment of his traveling expenses, one way, from the place where he last spoke. His railway expenses will be light because he will arrange dates in places as close together as possible in order to do the work required.

He will be expected to speak twice every Sunday, and once every night each week during the entire month, and wishes dates made accordingly. Friends in other States, especially Ohio and Wisconsin, wishing Mr. Sprague's services after the month of March, will please correspond with Secretary Woodbury in Washington.

In this connection it is well to have it understood that other missionaries will be employed as soon as funds will warrant the N. S. A. in doing so. In the present case the expenses will be met by one or two individuals who recognize the necessity for prompt action in the case of organization, feeling that Mr. Sprague's well known ability will rally the people around him, and that he will be able to secure from generous and appreciative audiences money enough to pay his salary in full and return a revenue to the N. S. A. under whose auspices he is sent out.

If one hundred persons will kindly unite in giving $10.00 each to the N. S. A., this missionary work can be provided for, and each community desiring spiritual food, thereby supplied. The president of the National Association offers to be one of the hundred, but up to date less than twenty have joined in this contribution to the good cause. The responses should be many and prompt.

In closing do not forget Mr. Sprague's address. Nor that of Mr. Walker. See to it that Mr. Sprague is kept busy throughout the month of March among our people in the State of New York.

Contributions are respectfully solicited for missionary work. All donations should be sent to Francis B. Woodbury, 600 Pennsylvania avenue, S. E, Washington, D. C. H. D. BARRETT.

CAN'T STOP HIS PAPER!

To the Editor:—I received a card saying that my subscription was up and threatening to stop my paper, or your paper rather, if I did not come to time. "Thou cutst my head off with a golden ax, and smilst upon the stroke that murders me." Better stop my breath than my paper! I have stopped tea, coffee and tobacco all at once; and now you would stop my paper! You send a mighty interesting No. and a notice to "pay up or get out" in the same mail: is or is not this cruelty to animals? Stop "The Progressive Thinker" from coming to or from reaching my house; the most palpable evidence of respectability and sanity that enters it in the guise of journalism; and there are not a few.

Stop my paper, forsooth! Now! on the very eve of our celebration of emancipation from heterodoxy, orthodoxy and doxology. Just at the time of our ratification in this sombre city of churches; this Brooklyn, the boarding house of New York City.

Suppose some one should say to me, "What spiritual paper do you take? and do you take The Progressive Thinker?" And I should reply, "No, they cut me off because I was too mean to renew!" My questioner would say, "You are an acephalous pollywog!" "Had I as many mouths as Hydra, such an answer would stop them all."

I can't stop life by leaving it; nor love by grieving it. Nor hope by deceiving it. nor would I if I could. Nor your paper by-the-way.

The earth will turn when I'm no more; time's waves will leave the sand life's shore does gird, when I am dust, Dust? Before this body's dust, my eager spirit free, shall pass the bounds of blue immensity, and revel in the sweet infinity.

My soul, as hard as any clinker,
Would downward drop like leaded sinker,
Not worth as much as prayer of tinker,
If I should let you stop my "Thinker."

As I said, or meant to say: "I am glad that no one, two or three persons can shut off the "Thinker's" wind by withdrawing their subscriptions, any more than the march of Truth can be stayed by one, two or three lies; for the Thinker is one of Truth's exponents.

Stop my paper! Never! Yours Fraternally, CHAS. NEVINS.

Different minds incline to different objects; one pursues the vast alone, the wonderful, the wild; another sighs for harmony and grace, and gentlest beauty.—Arkanside.

LIFE AFTER DEATH.

STRANGE BELIEFS HELD BY THE ANCIENT EGYPTIANS — ORIGIN OF THE FAITH IN THE FUTURE OF THE SOUL—GODS AND DEMONS INNUMERABLE DISTRIBUTE REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS HEREAFTER.

Gods and demons of the ancient Egyptians and the influence they had on the popular belief in a hereafter formed the subject of an interesting lecture recently by Dr. James H. Breasted, says the Inter Ocean. After maintaining that "Westward Ho!" has its counterpart in veneration for the East, "even to the present cult of reviving Oriental religions in our midst," the speaker added in part:

"We must have historical sympathy, conceiving of the time when to every tree and stone was assigned uncanny power, when the whole universe was one vast chamber of mystery, and people believed the physical world to be subject to the caprice of innumerable gods and demons, all abjectly obedient to the proper magical charm. The bodies of the Egyptian dead, from the earliest recorded time, were laboriously embalmed, in order that the unseen but surviving other self might possess still that tangible link which connected it with the material world, and by means of which it alone could exist. This double of the body, with which it is indissolubly connected, must now possess an imperishable dwelling place, and hence the construction of indestructible rock tombs, and the greatest buildings of the world, the pyramids. One hundred feet down, at the bottom of a shaft, is placed the mummy, and above ground is the chapel of solid masonry, perhaps hewn out of rock, and here, in the house of the double, said double dwells, coming forth at morning and night to greet the sun and the cool north wind.

COSTLY EGYPTIAN TOMBS.

"Since with the destruction of the mummy the personality of the dead is extinguished, there is provided a substitute, a statue of stone, and this is walled up with the masonry of the tomb. And thus have been preserved to us the noble portrait statues of ancient Egypt. The rich left endowments of land to support these chapels, but changing times have diverted the incomes. On the tomb of the great Prince Rahuf is still seen the richly sculptured prayer: 'Oh, ye who love life and hate death, repeat a thousand loaves of bread and jars of drink, a thousand oxen and a thousand geese,' and then follows the name of the person buried. In the case of a soldier a pictured platoon of his favorite troop is placed on the tomb, that he may review them whenever he pleases. Herodotus tells how the Scythians at funerals of the great slew a victim or two, that the deceased might have companions. Utensils of all kinds and pictures of the most obscene kind were deposited by Rahut's funeral couch. It was this method that has preserved for us so many examples of the Egyptian industrial arts. The walls of Rahut's chapel from cornice to base are covered with scenes depicting his life, especially the outdoor employments in which the noblemen of Egypt took especial delight. Thus is preserved the most authentic delineation of antique Egyptian life.

"The opinion of the hereafter thus far considered confines the future life of the deceased to the tomb and its immediate vicinity. We shall now discuss a second view of the hereafter. The friends of Rahut would have said that he was not to abide there forever. One would say that in the form of a human bird he had gone far into the west into a twilight existence; another would say that in flowery meads he was plowing and reaping; another, that he had gone to take his place among the stars, with Osiris and Isis; but a priest would say that Rahut had gone to sail the heavens with the sun god, crossing the zenith daily, himself one of the sun gods.

IDEAS OF AFTER LIFE.

"Underlying this series of views regarding departure to some distant place, there was recognized among an early and native people no contradiction, and are there not among ourselves as varying views regarding the post-resurrection life? Local in origin, the different opinions gradually spread all over Egypt and circulated side by side, regardless of their contrarieties, which never troubled the ordinary Egyptian, who would pray for all these destinies at the same time on the same tombstone. Thus, on the Egyptian lady's tomb in the Field Museum there are prayers for two of these estates, while on the tombstone of the priest in the Field Museum there are prayers for all four destinies in the hereafter which have been mentioned, and had he several doubles he could not have received all of the benefits. Magic chants written on the pyramid tomb walls, and hence called pyramid texts, were uncovered in 1881, cut into stone 2,000 years before the decalogue of Moses was written. The buried priest is represented as receiving the homage due to Osiris.

"In the race of the great military empire in the sixteenth century before Christ there is observed a series of dangers encountered by the passing soul. To reach the happy fields of Yarrow in the West there are hideous regions to be passed, inhabited by frightful monsters. A potent charm is afforded to meet each peril. In the eleventh dynasty, 2,300 years before Christ, these charms were written on the coffin, but in the eighteenth dynasty the incantations had become so numerous that a large roll of papyrus—the book of the dead—was needed to receive them. Finally a canonical collection was reached—some 165 in number. In the beautiful papyrus of the Lady Istey in the Field Museum is a very perfect specimen. The book of the dead is simply a collection of mythical incantations and the like. It is a misconception to call it the bible of the Egyptians. At entombments there was an elaborate ceremony of opening the eyes and the mouth of the dead, as the Egyptians called it. Thus all the future depended on purely mechanical means. Any man, irrespective of good or bad qualities of character, could command the best in the hereafter if he commanded the mechanical means.

GROTESQUE MESSENGERS OF DEATH.

"But 3,000 years before Christ there are traces of demands on character in the deceased for the highest futurity. This suggestion is first found in an address to the ferryman crossing the river of death, and but for its appearance in a magical text would carry a great deal with it. The mummy is given a new heart, cut out of stone, in the shape of a scarabeus, and there is the apostrophe: 'Oh, my heart, rise not up against me as a witness.' An evil life was considered to be a bad passport on the eternal journey. The dead is led into the place of judgment, in the presence of Osiris, with grotesque creatures about him, animals of impossible shapes and terrifying serpents, while ranged about are forty-two demons in all, to each of whom he addresses a plea of not guilty of a certain sin, as of not plundering grave stores, not slaying sacred cattle, not committing adultery with the wife of another man, etc. There is, in short, in some instances, a standard of morality as high as that of the Decalogue. These are the best expressions of a purely moral life which have survived from so ancient a people. The knowledge that a man would be expected at death to enter such a plea as this must have had a great restraining force during life. Each plea was preceded by a magical address to each particular god. In the sixteenth century before Christ there is generally evinced a high moral ideal, and the destroyer at the last, composed in part of a crocodile and hippopotamus, is terrific indeed. However, certificates of moral rectitude were freely sold, to accompany the mummies, and were greatly depended on.

"Holders of a certain view of the atonement, based all on belief, whatever the character, and also the church of Rome in the sale of her indulgences, as based on her mechanical power of forgiving sin, might have been equally instructed had they learned the final outcome of the ancient Egyptian machinery for escaping the practical consequences of sin.

MORALITY IN THEIR BELIEFS.

"We might show by numerous examples in ancient Egyptian writings that there are ethical and literay excellences which entitle them to an honorable place alongside our own Scriptures; but as regards the motive of life hereafter the influence of this motive was counteracted upon mundane existence by the great power of magic. Little figures—respondents—were put in the tombs of nobles, and these were expected to plow in the future in place of their lords. I have just received at Haskell Museum no less than 196 respondents intended for one person. In the case of a passing soul, with much to conceal, this simple device of a respondent suggests the pure mechanics of the Roman confessional. Very eloquent are the addresses on some of these ancient Theban tombs, the dominant note a miserere. Joy for us, that the shadow has fled away forever before the brightness of the Easter morning."

The "machinery for escaping the practical consequences of sin," it may be noted, is far from being the exclusive possession of the ancient Egyptians; it is also the main part of the stock-in-trade of the modern church—Protestant and Catholic alike—with varied modifications. The evangelical atonement idea—whereby an innocent person suffers as a substitute to cancel the penalty for another's sins, is but machinery for escaping the practical consequences of sin.

"Jesus paid it all—all the debt I owe," is the song of the "believer," who is taught to believe that by casting all his sins on Jesus, he shall escape the natural consequences of his sins and iniquities—his transgressions of moral law.

The moral (immoral) result of such teachings and beliefs can hardly be other than evil—as affording the transgressor encouragement to hope that though he continue in the paths of sin all his life, he may at the last moment "repent," take refuge in the "atoning blood" and be forever "saved" in a heaven of immortal joy and never-ending bliss—escaping the just consequences of his vicious and sinful mortal life.

Whether this escape is (believed to be) accomplished according to the Catholic formula, or by the evangelical Protestant method, the effect of such teachings can but be to encourage the evil-disposed with the hope and expectation of final escape from the proper individual consequences of transgressions of moral law.

Modern Christians have no proper right to cast critical reflections upon the ancient Egyptians' views, for they themselves embody the same machinery—in modified form—in their own teachings and creeds, to-day.

X-RAY.

TRUTH TRIUMPHANT.

There are trials and troubles in this world of wrong,
But the heart that is patient and true,
Like iron annealed grows firmer and strong,
And bides its day though the time seems long,
For the good that is surely due.

If you dare defend the cause that is right,
In spite of the popular way,
Dark as may seem the struggle and fight,
God gives to the arm a power and might
And vict'ry in coming day.

This world means well, though it go astray
From the golden rule of duty;
All great truths that come in our way,
Have had their trials and work-a-day,
To bring us its wealth of beauty.

BISHOP A. BEALS.

Summerland, Cal.

CELEBRATION IN 1898.

SUGGESTIONS CONCERNING CELEBRATION IN 1898—HINTS THROWN OUT FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF SPIRITUALISTS.

To the Editor:—I cannot fully express all my impulses to present some of my many views relating to our life and times, to the readers of your incomparable paper. One movement which seems to be looming up to the front, claiming attention of liberals, is the proposed semi-centennial memorial meeting at Rochester, N. Y., about the 31st of March, 1898, in connection with suitable action relative to some special and permanent memorial of the advent of so-called modern Spiritualism to be fixed and maintained at the Hydesville home of the Fox sisters. These objects, if attained seem to demand prompt and energetic action on the part of all those interested in order to insure commendable and satisfactory results. Space here does not allow of any discussion of matters, or of measures, and modes in detail, and suggestions in relation to them seem now to be in order.

It is notable to say, the writer was recently in Rochester and at a meeting of the First Spiritual Society, leading members expressed much interest, and they will co-operate with zeal in the work. They refer to the shortness of the time as demanding that immediate and vigorous efforts be made.

Do Spiritualists need anything more than a mention of such movements to incite them to action? Need they to be reminded of their emancipation from the thrall of ignorance and the chains of religious despotism in order to enthuse them in a local rally of forces which is of vital importance, and which promises a rich fruitage of spiritual illumination for all futurity? It has been said of the elder Napoleon that he, more than any other man, "Comprehended his Epoch" and took advantage of the situations, and shall not the illuminated minds of to-day awake and arise, and comprehending humanity's true situation, put forth efforts that will comport with our marvelous era.

In regard to ability and resources, the situation favors. There is no absolute necessity for any great outlay for display calling for large financial outlays, and all outlays should be graduated according to means—either in the building accommodations, or in publishing and speaking departments. In the latter named lines, no fear of failure need be felt, for our speaking talents, prosaic and poetic, trance, inspirational and even normal, outvie the world's greatest scholars—are unapproachable in power and excellence, by the most tutored of secular and religious graduates—this is beyond all question. Were it necessary the liberal writers of to-day could show a library of publications, more attractive, truthful, and more profoundly scientific in facts, than all the moss-covered collections, of History, Theology, Governmental and Cosmological platitudes of all the schools of the past, now stored in antiquated halls—and destined to be fit relics of the past.

The nucleus of a living library of Truth is yet to made. (Some of) The published productions of so-called "spirit mediums" have stood the crucial tests of the masters of science, archeology, philosophy and metaphysics, of both continents—and the wisest of them are appalled by each new unfoldment.

As a memorial of mediumship let but a tithe of our hosts meet for such work and the scribe who aims to record the "acts" would be unable to do justice to the occasion by any of the arts of Edison or modern Photographers. It would be an unreported Pentecost. It is not practicable to here name the sixty or seventy well defined phases of mediumship besides still others now occult to us, which would no doubt be in exercise on such an occasion, for the powers of earth and air would be assembled there.

Germane to a memorial convocation, would be a fair exhibit, and record of books, literature, works of spirit art, pictures produced by spirit agency, landscape and portraiture, and the medium's mode of production, sketch of locality of scenes or life of the subject of all portrait photogravures of spirit-photography, with evidence of their verity and unquestionable, verified proofs, etc. A very large collection of these could be gathered from the wide world; also fac-similes of psychographic messages, with proof of authorship and exactness in signatures and tests, proving claims, etc. The special life size of portraits of the "Ancient Band" of G. W. P. Anderson would be a great attraction.

And further to gratify a laudable curiosity and instruct the people on the occasion, a collection or samples of each mechanical device used by spirits in giving communications—such as Planchettes, dials, typewriters, and musical instruments used, by spirits—could be easily collected, and accounts of their uses, and manner of invention.

In this connection, also, brief accounts of some such of the hundreds of useful inventions of the time as were given by spirits in various ways might be presented.

Such collection of pictures, works of spirit art, publications and books for a library would need some commodious building or structure for examination by visitors—needing, liberal contributions in case the management signify their acquiescence in such action. Such or similar collection, if effected, might also need a permanent institution or place of resort and preservation. Doubtless, Rochester or other locality, perhaps Hydesville, would afford desirable location. It is hoped that all friends of truth will look favorably on these matters and besides giving expression of their sentiments, give also liberally in purse and person in aid of such a much needed demonstration.

Freesville, N. Y. FRANCIS RICE.

Every man has his chain and clog, only it is looser and lighter to one than to another; and he is more at ease who takes it up and carries it than he who drags it.—Seneca.

TRYING TO DEFEAT AN ODIOUS MEASURE.

THE FIGHT IS ON IN MICHIGAN, AND EVERY SPIRITUALIST SHOULD BE ON THE ALERT, OR A MEDICAL MONOPOLY WILL BE INSTITUTED AND THE RIGHTS OF THE PEOPLE GREATLY ABRIDGED.

Spiritualists must rally to aid those who are fighting for your liberties. Money must be sent to the secretary of State society, to get out petitions and circulate the same. The liberties and rights of Spiritualists, never in all the history of the past, were ever menaced as they are now. If success crowns the efforts of these combined forces it will extend to other states until every Spiritualist medium, clairvoyant, and magnetic healer, will be arrested, fined or imprisoned, or both. To rout this combination of forces a committee has prepared a bill which was read and discussed before the medical committee of the House and Senate in the Capitol last night, and will be introduced into the Senate to-day. The bill protects the liberties of all; purifies our own ranks of frauds, dishonest men and women. It also protects the Doctors in their rights and the people from imposition. It gives equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

1.—This bill protects the people from ignorant, disreputable and dishonest doctors, nurses, electricians, givers of baths, massauguers, magnetic healers, clairvoyants, spiritual mediums, mental and Christian scientists.

2.—This bill gives people their liberties to choose who and such means as they may desire to aid them and cure them when sick unless said persons are criminals or insane.

3.—This bill protects the local physicians and the people from strangers and traveling men and women whose methods are dishonorable and dangerous to both; and have been driven out of other States. Below you will find a copy of the Bill.

Send your funds to Mrs. Mary Ayres, 129 River street, Lansing, Mich., secretary of State Society of Spiritualists', or to M. A. Root, 1209 5th street, Bay City, Mich., who is chairman of medical committee.

Friends of liberty and progress, rally and act. So far as I am concerned personally, no monopoly bill can hurt me or mine, but would be a blessing to all of my household. But I or you have no right to live for our own selves and our selfish interests. Progress alone comes through the right to investigate and apply all means that can aid or bless humanity. The spirit-world cries out for progress, liberty, honesty and down with monopoly and class legislation.

A. B. SPINNEY, M. D.
Proprietor, Reed City Sanitarium, Reed City, Mich.

THE BILL INTRODUCED INTO THE SENATE.

An act to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery in the State of Michigan and to provide for the registration of all persons engaged in the practice thereof or the profession or art of healing the sick by any means, and to repeal an act entiled "an act to promote public health," approved June 6th, 1883, and the act approved June 27th, 1887, amendatory thereof, being chapter 72 B of the 3rd volume of Howell's Annotated Statutes.

Sec I.—The people of the State of Michigan enact, that from and after this act shall take effect, every man or woman who shall prefix or affix to his or her name, "Dr., M. D. or M. B.," or who shall under any circumstances make examinations of persons for medical treatment, or give medical opinion or advice, or shall give medical opinion medicine of any kind to any person, or shall advertise so to do, or in any way hold himself or herself out to the public as a physician or surgeon, shall register as hereinafter prescribed.

Sec. II.—Every man or woman who in any way or by any methods shall hold himself or herself out to the public as qualified to treat sick persons, or shall by any method attempt to relieve the sick, either as nurse, magnetic healer, spirit medium, clairvoyant, christian scientists, mental scientist, divine healer, massauguer, or medical electrician, or give medicated Turkish or vapor baths, shall be registered as hereinafter prescribed.

Sec. III.—Within thirty days after this act shall take effect, every man or woman engaged in the practice of medicine and surgery in any of its branches in this State and all who wish to begin the same in this State, and all persons mentioned in Section I. and II. of this act shall prepare a careful statement of his or her history, and shall therein state when and where he or she was born, when or where he or she began the study of medicine and surgery or the healing art which he or she professes, also what preparatory studies he or she pursued, also the place or places, institutions or colleges where he or she has pursued his or her studies in medicine or surgery, or in what other manner he or she became qualified to practice medicine and surgery or the profession or art of healing; also when or where he or she began the practice of medicine and surgery or the healing art or profession; also all places where he or she has practiced medicine and surgery or any healing art or profession prior thereto, also the colleges or college or institutions of learning of any and all kinds from which he or she has received a diploma or certificate of graduation; also at what age he or she commenced the study of medicine and surgery or the profession and art of healing in any of its branches, and also any and all other occupations and business which he or she has followed other than the practice of medicine and surgery or the profession or art of healing; also all medical societies or associations to which he or she belongs or at any time belonged. The person making such a statement or history, shall also give the names of three reputable citizen residing in each place, town, village or city in which he or she has resided and practiced medicine and surgery in any of its branches or the healing art or profession for six months. Such statement or history shall always contain a statement of the school or system of medicine and surgery or the healing art or profession which the person making the same professes to practice at the time of the making thereof, and also what means and agencies he or she employed in the healing of the sick. Such statement or history shall be subscribed by the person making the same in the presence of two reputable citizens who shall be free-holders and who shall also sign their names to said statement or history as attesting witnesses. The person making such statement, shall prepare as many of them as the exigencies of this act may require, in the manner aforesaid provided, and he or she shall deliver to the Clerk of the township, village or city, where he or she resides, such statement, together with twenty-five cents, and thereupon such Clerk shall file and preserve the same in his office. He or she shall also file such statement with the county clerk of the county where he or she resides together with twenty-five cents, and thereupon the county clerk shall file the same and preserve the same in his office. He or she shall also file with the county clerk of each county where he or she maintains an office or place of business for the practice of his or her profession.

Sec. IV.—Any person who shall knowingly misstate or falsely state, any matter or thing required by this act to be incorporated in such statement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than ninety days, or both such fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Any person may be tried and convicted in every county where such false statements shall be filled. The filing of such false statement in more than one county shall be deemed a separate offense. It shall be the duty of the respective prosecuting attornies of the counties in this State to prosecute all violations of the provisions of this act upon being informed thereof.

Sec. V.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state immediately upon the passage of this act, to prepare and have suitable blanks for the personal statement or history provided for in Section III. of this act, and to furnish the same to all persons desiring such blanks at a cost of ten cents each.

Sec. VI.—Any person who shall desire to enter upon the practice of any of the professions, arts or callings mentioned in this act, more than thirty days after the same has taken effect, shall before entering upon the practice thereof, make and file the statement required by Section III. of this act and as provided in this act.

Sec. VII.—All persons who do not reside in this State, but who come within the State for the purpose of practicing the profession of a physician or surgeon in any of its branches, or holds himself or herself out to the public as qualified to treat sick persons in the capacity of a nurse, magnetic healer, spirit medium, clairvoyant, christian scientist, mental scientist, divine healer, massauguer, medical electrician, or by giving medicated Turkish or vapor baths, shall file the statement and history required of this act with the county clerk of each county where he or she shall practice their profession.

Sec. VIII.—This act shall not apply to the commisioned surgeons of the United States army, navy or marine hospital service in actual consultation with physicians in this State, nor the interns studying in regularly incorporated hospitals, nor the temporary assistants in case of emergency, nor to the domestic administrations of family remedies.

Sec. IX.—An act entitled, "An act to promote the public health" approved June 6th, 1883, and an act approved June 27th, 1887, amendatory thereof, being Chapter 72 B of the 3rd volume of Howell's Annotated Statutes, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, are hereby repealed, except as to the penalties which have accrued thereunder.

THE OTHER WORLD.

It lies around us like a cloud,
The world we do not see;
Yet the sweet closing of an eye
May bring us there to be.

Its gentle breezes fan our cheek
Amid our worldly cares;
Its gentle voices whisper love,
And mingle with our prayers.

Sweet hearts around us throb and beat,
Sweet helping hands are stirred,
And palpitates the veil between,
With breathings almost heard.

The silence, awful, sweet, and calm,
They have no power to break;
For mortal words are not for them
To utter or partake.

So thin, so soft, so sweet they glide,
So near to press they seem,
They lull us gently to our rest,
They melt into our dream.

And, in the hush of rest they bring,
'Tis easy now to see,
How lovely and how sweet a pass
The hour of death may be—

To close the eye and close the ear,
Wrapped in a trance of bliss,
And, gently drawn in loving arms,
To swoon from that to this—

Scarce knowing if we wake or sleep,
Scarce asking where we are,
To feel all evil sink away,
All sorrow and all care!

Sweet souls around us, watch us still,
Press nearer to our side;
Into our thoughts, into our prayers,
With gentle helping glide.

Let death between us be as naught,
A dried and vanished stream;
Your joy be the reality,
Our suffering life the dream.

—HARRIET BEECHER STOWE.

SUNSETS NEVER COLD.

I go the common way of all;
The sunset fires will burn,
The flowers will blow, the river flow,
When I no more return.
No whisper from the mountain pine,
Nor lapsing stream shall tell
The stranger, treading where I tread,
Of him who loved them well.

But beauty seen is never lost,
God's colors are all fast;
The glory of this sunset heaven
Into my soul has passed—
A sense of gladness unconfined
To mortal date or clime;
As the soul liveth, it shall live
Beyond the years of time.
Beside the mystic asphodels
Shall bloom the home-born flowers,
And new horizons flush and glow
With sunset hues of ours.

Farewell! These smiling hills must wear
Too soon their wintry frown,
And snow-cold winds from off them shake
The maple's red leaves down,
But I shall see a summer sun
Still setting broad and low;
The mountain slopes shall blush and blow,
The golden water flow.
A lover's claim is mine and all
I see to have and hold—
The rose-light of perpetual hills,
And sunsets never cold!

—J. G. WHITTIER.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Voltaire's Romances," translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PEN-FLASHES FROM OHIO.

BY C. H. MATHEWS.

COLOSSAL HUMBUG.

"The world is governed too much." This was the motto of a great newspaper at Washington, D. C., half a century ago. It is as true now as then. Tangier, in the empire of Morocco, is now pronounced "The wickedest city in the whole world. Cutthroats from all over Christendom, renegade Moors, and Soudanese slaves; slavery and polygamy exist under the rule of a council of the Christian Powers." Under the benign rule of the Sultan and the sanitary council whereof the British Minister Nicholson is president, all these "first class nuisances exist in this wicked and picturesque city," we are told. Of course this state of affairs is the incentive to our goody-good people to send missionaries and money to "save their souls alive." What a colossal humbug!

WHAT A PITY.

Mr. Morse, M. C., of Mass., in paying a tribute of respect to the memory of a fellow-member of the House, closed with the words: "Fare you well, Charles F. Crisp. We shall see you no more on the shores of time. We say to you a last and sad farewell." Nearly all the speakers, we are told, referred to the Christian Religion as affording the only substantial hope of a blessed immortality. "What that country is, or whether any," said Mr. Dalzell, "to which we are all bound, no man shall know save the emigrant thereto. From him no answer comes, and philosophy and speculation are in vain." If these congressmen would read but a tithe of the spiritualistic literature extant, and easily attainable, they would not exhibit such dense ignorance on a vital question when they approach the mournful duty of passing euology upon a deceased member. But, as long as the government is administered upon so-called Christian(!) principles, we need not look for any reform. "'Tis true, and pity 'tis, 'tis true."

LACK OF SENSE.

At Birmingham (Christian) England, January 28, a prize fight for $5,000 between two bruisers, was declared a draw on the 11th round. The account says the fight was of the most terrific character. One of the men became apparently insane as the result of the fight. One had his head terribly battered by the sledge-hammer blows on his head and face; yet he was able to remark that he hoped his Boston, Mass., friends will understand that it was a "great battle." It was the lookers-on that finally became ashamed and stopped the fight. America is not the only country that is disgraced by the P. R. The lion and the lamb do not lie down together as the result of much Christian teaching, even in "the mother country."

It is not the result of "false philosophy"
And false Theology combined—
Philosophy that knew not what it did;
Theology that did not what it knew?
And yet they were all "honorable men"
Who taught this doctrine—honorable men!
Whose failing was a lack of common sense."

STRAIGHT TO HEAVEN.

James B. Inks was executed by hanging on the scaffold, at Oregon, Holt Co., Missouri, on the 30th January. He walked to the gallows with a firm step: "Gentlemen, I am going straight to heaven!" Then the drop fell and his neck was broken by the fall. He must have been a good Christian man, or he would not have believed that there is a heaven. He murdered John Patterson, shooting him down on the street without a word of warning, on account of a fancied insult. "Salvation is free to all," from the orthodox stand-point. So James will get there.

CHRISTIAN SPAIN.

Adolfo Rodriguez, a Cuban insurgent, who was fighting for the freedom of the island, and was the only son of a Cuban farmer, was taken prisoner about the 1st of December, 1896, and was tried by a drum-head court martial and condemned to be shot on the next day, January 19. Two Catholic priests were present to let the young man kiss the crucifix, before his death. He died like a hero. Spain is not a notable Christian (!) country; but the fiendish outrages that have been perpetrated on helpless women and children, who were innocent of any wrong, except of being born under Spanish rule, have been so flagrant as to justify, long ago, interference by the rest of Christendom to end the war and stop the further shedding of innocent blood. The Spanish outrages leave Turkey entirely in the shade. How long will the Christians look on with composure?

SUCH IS LIFE.

Suicides have been very numerous of late: Two prominent bankers of Chicago; Mr. Hammond, vice-president of a private bank; also Mr. Geo. B. Wilkins, vice-president of the Commercial bank of Salma, Alabama, who shot himself at the altar rail in the St. Paul's Episcopal church. Other suicides from Baltimore, etc. These suicides are mostly rich men, who have been stealing the bank's money, and are found in high standing in Sunday-school and church circles. Such is life.

THE DRINK HABIT.

Episcopal Bishop Doane, of Albany, N. Y., addressing the ministers of his diocese recently, said that the use of stimulants (intoxicants) "cannot be universally condemned or forbidden without reflecting upon both the creation and the revelation of God, and upon the character and teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ." The world may thank Bishop Doane for nothing, for the drink habit will spread fast enough among believers without the sanction of God, the Bible, Jesus Christ, or the Episcopal church.—Truth Seeker.

VERY RELIGIOUS.

The New York Sun says of the Spanish people: "They are a high-minded, spirited, valorous, generous, thoughtful, and very religious people." To which "The Truth Seeker" responds: "But for their genius in this direction, stimulated by their religion, the world might have been without such a thing in its history as the Spanish Inquisition." Ah, there!

GOSPEL AND COFFEE.

The gospel wagon on wheels, pro- Baptist Church of the Redeemer, will be the driver. When the weather is too cold to preach, 200 or 300 cups of hot coffee will be dispensed to the anxious followers of the Lord. An organ and a choir will also add to the allurements for sinners. Seven cents' worth of gasoline per mile will be used to propel this movable church.

MYSTERIOUS DISPENSATION.

At the close of Thanksgiving services at the First Baptist church, Chattanooga, Tenn., by Rev. R. B. Mitchell, Mr. G. W. Nelson, an officer of the church and member of the choir, fell forward on his face and died before he pelled by a gasoline motor, is to be one of the religious novelties of New York City. The Rev. E. E. Knapp, of the could be removed from the church.—A dispensation of Divine Providence.

BEGGING LETTERS.

Mr. Labouchere, editor of the London "Truth," exposes the "King of Begging Letter Writers," an industry that flourishes in England. The "King" was formerly a Methodist parson who, becoming discontented with his small stipend, took to the more lucrative profession of begging. He studied the weaknesses of public men, going into their political and religious views. His prey consisted of peers, bishops, cabinet ministers, generals, admirals, and at least one American millionaire, Waldorf Astor. It is alleged that he actually got $1,000 from Queen Victoria. The newspaper exposed the rogue and shut off his traffic. He brought suit against the newspaper for libel, but lost the suit and had the costs to pay. Served him right.

THE SOLID TRUTH.

I have often uttered strictures more or less severe on the Christian religion and its pompous expounders, of the present day; but I find my views voiced so truthfully by Rev. George D. Herron, D. D., that I cannot refrain from quoting them: "Much of what we call Christianity is no less than an aristocratic and shameless pauperism, thriving on the wealth of sacrifice inherited from the past, resting in high-priced pews and fashionable residences, cunningly squeezing a luxurious living out of humanity, and superciliously labeling as charity the appeals made to serve the humanity that supports it." That is a very clear statement of the frozen truth.

SUPERSTITION.

Chambers' Journal truthfully says: "All the teaching of Christian ministers and school-masters for fifty years has not been able to destroy the dark superstitions brought over with the cargoes of slaves from the African coast during the previous two centuries." And yet the Christianized African is a controlling factor in American politics. Curious, isn't it?

MUSCULAR RELIGION

The colored brother seems to be imbued with muscular religion of the early days: There is a bitter fight between the trustees and members of the Second Baptist colored church, of Monongahela, Pa. Both sets of trustees got possession of the church on December 4, and held the fort, day and night. Prayer service was held Sunday morning, December 6th, but it passed off quietly and there was nobody hurt. Several arrests were expected. The black sheep are in dead earnest.

RUNS A RISK.

When a Catholic leaves the church and tells tales out of school, he runs a risk of losing his life. A few months ago, says a dispatch from Laporte, Indiana, to the Pittsburg, Pa., Post, Rev. Father Sovelski delivered a number of lectures in this country in alleged exposure of the Catholic church. A dispatch from Crown Point says that Sovelski has been mysteriously missing for several weeks, and it is feared has been foully dealt with. He was a priest in the coal regions of Pennsylvania. He had the effrontery to get married after he renounced the Catholic religion. What impudence! Or, imprudence!

TERRIBLE INFLICTION.

The Rev. A. Robbins, the chaplain-in-ordinary of Queen Victoria at Windsor, has just preached his 5000th sermon. So says a news item. If her gracious majesty had to listen to all these sermons, she will indeed deserve the sympathy of all her subjects.

HOLY FILCHING.

The court of appeals, Albany, N. Y., has decided against Archbishop Corrigan, of N. Y., in a suit by Maria T. Upplington, whereby she gets possession of thirty-two lots in New York City, valued at over $60,000. The property was deeded to the late Archbishop Hughes in 1861, with the proviso that the land should be consecrated and a Catholic church built on it within a reasonable time. No church was built until 1891; so Catholicism will be sixty thousand dollars short. But they are a thrifty people, and managed to get many thousand of dollars' worth of property from the city 25 or 30 years ago that never cost them a cent; was simply filched from the tax-payers.

NOT PEACE, BUT A SWORD.

In the French chamber of deputies, December 7, 1896, a little bit of hatred for England was manifest. M. Guisse remarked that M. Mickelin had spoken of British gold, and pointed out that the English missionaries had been the first victims of the disorders. M. De Mahy maintained that M. Laroche had obeyed "the Bible societies who had protected him." "These societies," he added, "are working the ruin of our influence and stealing our possessions." He claimed it was time to stop the "occult influences of the English Methodists." M. Rounet moved that the government expel the Jesuits, Marists, Methodists, etc., from Madagascar—a sentiment that elicited cheers. Thus it will be seen that the English as well as the American missionaries are getting in their work; and "raising Cain," so to speak. The spread of the Christian religion in foreign lands seems to be attended with a great deal of expense and trouble. "I come not to bring peace, but a sword."

C. H. MATHEWS.
New Philadelphia, Ohio.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

A new edition of "Three Sevens," by the Phelons, is just issued. The May Arena says: "The gist of such books as Dr. Phelon's 'Three Sevens,' and other works descriptive of or alluding to the various occult societies, which seem to have existed for ages, has never, until recently, been said so openly and plainly that 'he who runs may read.'" Cloth $1.25, postpaid. For sale at this office.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

CHILDRENS CORNER.

THE PETTED AND SPOILED PLAYMATE, AND HIS SAD END.

Before we shall proceed, I will try and answer the questions put in the many letters written by so many of the parents of the dear children whom I am trying to interest.

Question. Why are you so interested in the children, while so many send them to Sunday-School, or simply leave them out of the subject altogether? Reply. First feel for the heartstrings of the parents, with the slender baby-fingers everytime, if you wish to reach them, but most of all, if we wish a more progressive future, teach the children progressive ideas, and coax them into larger temples of thoughts, year by year, and the future will take care of itself. Then, again, I love the work among the little ones, for as yet their little minds are unbiased. The seed planted in the heart of a child will not only bud in youth, but blossom in riper years and bear fruit. I take an interest in children because I can't help it—it's my creed.

I first opened my eyes in old New York State, with its beautiful landscapes, and beautiful hills that rear their lofty heads, tier after tier above the surrounding country, till they fairly pierce the blue heavens and are lost among the drifting, fleeting clouds.

A few days earlier, there was ushered into this expression of life, and into the home of our esteemed neighbor, a tiny baby-boy. With pardonable pride, our fond mothers often magnified our good qualities (as all fond mothers will So as we grew older, Jimmie, the baby-boy, and I, became fast friends, for we had played together, ever since the day we had come out of the cradle. My mother showed no partiality, but treated each new addition to the family group alike; but not so with my little friend Jimmie's mother, for he was a king, her only boy, and no wish of his was ever denied. He was petted until spoiled.

But as I look back upon his golden locks that clustered in soft ringlets above his broad, white brow, and see again those great luminous, soulful, blue eyes, my own mother heart finds a ready excuse for her over-indulgence.

The scarlet fever was raging in the neighborhood. It had visited almost every home and plucked from the family bouquet a bud or a blossom—sometimes selected the choicest of all. In our own family circle two had been taken, the one six hours later than the other. Both had been carried out, in a double coffin, and lain away in a double grave. As I had been the first to come down with the dreaded disease, I felt that I in some way was responsible for the calamity that had befallen the people. So when I got better, so I could go out, I often visited those that were sick and dying; and I often went over and visited my little friend and playfellow Jimmie. One day as I neared the house I heard piteous sobs and wails, and as I entered the house, there prone upon the floor lay his poor mother writhing in agony, wringing her hands, pleading with God to spare the life of her only boy—for the doctors had told here there was no longer hope, for he had only a few more hours to live.

Kindly hands of neighbors tried to assuage her grief, but she only beat them all wildly back, and more frantically than ever, tossed herself to and fro, tearing her hair and vowing she would wreak her vengeance upon Almighty God if he took from her her darling and pride—her only boy. If He must take one of the family, take a girl, but spare her boy.

Somehow, through some miraculous change, the boy recovered, but only to be petted and spoiled all the more, for the poor mother did not soon forget how near she had come to losing her precious, only boy. So as he grew older, and more exacting, he went from bad to worse, until at the time I was married and left home, although but a stripling youth of fifteen, he was a poor drunken sot.

Years flew by, and I had nearly forgotten my little playfellow, until, one fall I went home to visit my parents and the scenes of my childhood, and roam once more through the sweet-scented flower garden, and live over again the pleasant scenes of childhood days. But almost the first news that was told me was, "Jimmie Russel hangs tomorrow." He, to satisfy his over indulged desires, had robbed a wealthy neighbor; the man had awoke, recognized him, and he thrust a dagger to his heart.

A few years ago, while in New York City, I visited the Chamber of Horrors. Here all the figures in the scenes, were done in wax, life size, and they looked almost as if they could speak, as their eyes rolled in their sockets, while their breasts would rise and fall with false respiration. A familiar face attracted my attention and I stepped across the hall, and to my amazement, I stood face to face with what represented my childhood companion and his mother, for here, done in wax, were the scenes I have just related.

First came the robbery and murder scene; following this the capture, then the felon's cell, then came the trial, and the poor mother pleading for the life of her boy, while the tears trickled down her cheeks and dripped at her feet. This was the scene that had attracted my attention, for the woman's face had changed very little indeed, save to have grown a degree older and a shade sadder; but the boy I never would have recognized as the playfellow and companion of my childhood.

Then followed the execution, and I turned away sick, for it brought vividly back to my recollection how only a few short years ago, I had seen this same woman prone upon the floor, tearing her hair, and vowing to wreak her vengeance upon Almighty God, if he took from her this same boy—the joy and hope of her future, this boy of whom she had expected so much comfort—but this was her reward.

She had forgotten (or never learned) that true happiness is a perfect blending of our finite wills, with the great infinite will Divine. She forgot that even though that infinite intelligence should see fit to visit our homes and pluck our fondest and dearest, this intelligence is far wiser than we, and knows best what is for our good. Then an intelligence that is able to swing into stellar space, planet after planet, world upon world, constellations and systems, is able to care for a few of us—a handful of his children that inhabit this small planet earth, for we are only a small part of the great systems of worlds, that are inhabited like ours.

Think of it, dear children; in the Milky Way alone there are eighteen millions of suns, with their systems of inhabited worlds, and by looking through instruments we may see eighteen billions of suns with their systems of worlds, all revolving around these suns, their common centers; and the end is not yet, for when we have scaled the highest pinnacle of the furtherest sun and leveled our instruments, we may behold even a greater number studding the fathomless depths of the stellar space.

Think you a God (or better still, intelligence) that is able to keep all these in harmony and poetry of motion, is not wise enough to know "whom to spare and when to strike?"

The trouble with us all is, we like our own way too well, forgetting those who are older and wiser than we, and know infinitely better than we.

But I feel sure none of our little readers belong to the "know-it-alls," but will listen to older and wiser councll.

But now I must say good-by for a time, when I will tell you some more of my eventful life, for I promised our stories should not be fiction, but extracts from my own life. Yours with love.

MADAME PARCELLS.

THE HIGHER FORCES.

HOW BEAUTIFUL IS THIS WORLD.

How beautiful is this world when we realize that we are in the morning of an age of higher forces—the dawning of the active, the more potent, the more vivid. The world just beyond this is reflecting its rays of light to lead us to the heights beyond. We feel the importance of more, greater, wider activities, and it is of these that we catch certain reflections and suggestions, as the great movements of inventions are projected from that plane to this. The center of real life in its far-reaching, active forces, is indeed the real life; this present age feels the deeper realities as it treads across the stage.

Now the capacity to receive impressions is of itself a more than valuable quality. To be acted upon by a higher exalted something, is to be very near the world of advancement. So the age advances, its capacity becomes more keen, and intimations of a more extended order are caught by the active brain of man and utilized to advance a larger scale of being. The transformation of thought to a higher plane will not take place except through active growth in many lives, through incarnation and progression. Some advanced transformations have already taken place, and have been acted upon—telegraph, telephone, thought-transference, etc. The highest on the scale is thought-transference, for that is on the upward grade of communication with the world beyond our mortal sight. Thought-transference is psychic telegraphy, and the more rapidly it is extended the more satisfactory the interchange.

Every progression that man has availed himself of, is in the lines that lie within the possibilities of a direct path to and communication with those across the boundary line called death. The unseen world is advancing light that cannot be gainsaid—cannot be turned aside for the older theories of the cruder age. The wide range of topics, and the ability with which they can be presented to the man (ignorant of these growths) lie in the great significance and value of the practical united with spiritual and occult forces. All members of organizations which council together for the benefit of humanity should invoke the higher, the divine afflatus for aid, it matters not in what branch they find their interest to mankind, for it is in grand works that developments lead to perfection and the light of all life, when evolution and experience will make us fit for the Father's mansion, to there be one with Him.

"And when the stream which overflowed the soul was passed away, a consciousness remained that it had left deposited upon the silent shore of memory, images and precious thoughts that shall not die, and cannot be destroyed."

ROSE L. BUSHNELL.

LIGHT ANALYZED.

LIGHT IS A SENSATION—SO SAYS PROFESSOR DOLBEAR.

From a magazine article by Professor Dolbear of Tufft college, the following is taken:

To one who has not paid any attention to what has been done in molecular science within the past fifteen or twenty years, the phenomena of light may and probably do seem to be due to a unique agency, as much as heat or electricity; therefore he looks upon light as he looks upon the others in the hierarchy of the physical sciences, and expects that in its absence a potent agency or kind of energy is lacking. That this idea and conclusion are all wrong will be apparent when it is recognized that what we call "light" is a particular sensation in the eye, and that to produce the sensation there is no one antecedent that is essential. Press the eye with the finger in the darkest night, and one will see a ring of light with great distinctness. An electric shock, a bump upon the head, will also give one the sensation of light, and in the absence of other aids to a judgment, no one could tell what was the antecedent of given light sensation.

Radiations from a luminous body, and reflections from a non-luminous one, were not long ago thought to consist of three different kinds of rays—heat, light and actinic rays. It has been discovered that there is no such distinction in fact. What a ray will do depends upon what it falls upon. The same ray that falls upon the eye and produces the sensation of light would heat another body or do photographic work. The only difference in rays is in their longer or shorter wave lengths, and the energy of a wave does not depend upon its length. From this follows, that there is no such thing as light as distinguished among forces or forms of energy. Light is a sensation, and in the absence of eyes no such distinction could possibly be discovered. Light, then, as a particular kind of agency, takes no part in phenomena outside of the eye. The eye of man is adapted to respond to certain wave-lengths, and the eyes of other animals are adapted to respond to other wave-lengths. If our eyes were adapted to perceive all wave-lengths, the whole universe would be always light about us, and every object, whatever its temperature, could always be seen as easily as we now see objects when the sun shines.

X.

TWO POINTERS.

A "society" has just been organized in Boston for the purpose of distinguishing mushrooms from toadstools. And many Spiritualists continue to desire a "society."

It also might be said in apropos, that if you survive from the use, it was a mushroom (usually our societies grow that way awhile); but if it kills the participators organically it was a toadstool.

A church can provide better food and more palatably. Witness that the ladies of the "Chancel Society" of St. John's Episcopal church, Cleveland, Ohio, will have a bakery in the chapel and will bake home-made pies, cakes, bread, doughnuts, and other delicacies. It seems we can have both a "church" and a "society" all in one institution—and thereby we can form a useful society. Is any further argument needed? Fraternally,

G. W. KATES.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

LIFE WORK —OF— CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY HARRISON D. BARRETT.

With portraits representing Mrs. Richmond in 1857, in 1876, and in 1894.

OUTLINE OF CONTENTS:

INTRODUCTION.

CHAPTER I. Parentage—Place of Birth—Childhood—School Experiences—First Mediumistic Work, etc.

CHAPTER II. Hopedale—Mr. Scott in Massachusetts—Removal to Wisconsin—The Ballou Family—Adin Ballou's Work—Work of Spirit Adin Augustus Ballou.

CHAPTER III. Ouina—Her Earthly Life and Tragic Death—Her Mission in Spirit-Life.

CHAPTER IV. Other Controls—The Guides.

CHAPTER V. Work in Cuba, N. Y.—Buffalo Pastorate—Workers in Buffalo—Thomas Gales Forster—Sarah Brooks—Horace H. Day—Removal to New York City, 1856—Philadelphia—Boston—Baltimore.

CHAPTER VI. Work in New York City.

CHAPTER VII. New York City (continued). Prof. J. J. Mapes—Hon. J. W. Edmonds—Dr. Gray—New York Editors and Clergy—Other Places in the East—Meadville, Pa., 1861—Hon. A. B. Richmond.

CHAPTER VIII. Washington, D. C.—Reconstruction—Senator J. M. Howard—George J. W. Julien—Gen. N. P. Banks—Nettie Colbern Maynard—Statement of Geo. A. Bacon.

CHAPTER IX. England—Robert Dale Owen—George Thompson—Countess of Caithness—Mrs. Strawbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Tebb—Mrs. Nosworthy—J. C. Ward—Mrs. Slater—Andrew Cross.

CHAPTER X. Work in England (Continued in Three Subsequent Visits.)

CHAPTER XI. California Work, 1875—Other Visits—Letter of C. M. Plumb—Letter of Mrs. John A. Wilson.

CHAPTER XII. Chicago Work, 1876 to 1895—First Society Chartered. 1869—Complete Account of Work in Letters and Statements of Members of the Society.

CHAPTER XIII. Camp Meeting Work—Cassadaga—Lake Pleasant—Onset Bay—Lake Brady—Lookout Mountain, etc.

CHAPTER XIV. Literary Work—Hesperia—Volumes of Discourses and Lectures—Psychopathy; Soul Teachings—Poems—Other Literary Work.

CHAPTER XV. Literary Work (continued)—Lecture on Gyroscope, 1858—"The Shadow of a Great Rock in a Weary Land," 1857—Poems—Choice Selections in Prose and Verse—Work of William Richmond.

CHAPTER XVI. Letters from Personal Friends; from Orpha E. Tousey; from Lady Caithness, and others—Appreciation of the Work from Those Best Qualified to Judge—Frederick F. Cook—Wendell C. Warner—Drs. Emmett and Helen Dinsmore.

CHAPTER XVII. Mrs Richmond's Experiences While in the Trance State, Written by Herself.

Price $2, Postpaid. For Sale at this office.

AN EXCELLENT WORK

DEATH AND THE AFTER-LIFE. The "Stellar Key" is the philosophical introduction to the revelations contained in this book. Some idea of this little volume may be gained from the following table of contents: 1—Death and the After Life; 2—Scenes in the Summer-Land; 3—Society in the Summer-Land; 4—Social Centres in the Summer-Land; 5—Winter-Land and Summer Land; 6—Language and Life in Summer-Land; 7—Material Work for Spiritual Workers; 8—Ultimates in the Summer-Land; 9—Voice from James Victor Wilson. This enlarged edition contains more than double the amount of matter in former editions, and is enriched by a beautiful frontispiece, illustrating the "formation of the Spiritual Body." Cloth 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

THE HISTORICAL JESUS

And Mythical Christ. By Gerald Massey. 130 pages 12mo. Price 50 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

E. V. WILSON'S BOOK.

The Truths of Spiritualism

E. V. Wilson was one of the pioneers of Spiritualism, and was noted as a speaker and test medium. He did a grand work for the cause, and this book narrates many of his striking experiences during his labors.

Purchasers will find it intensely interesting, and will render kindly service to his widow who was left in straitened circumstances.

The book contains 400 pages, and is sold for $1. Address MRS. E. V. WILSON, 91 South Locust street, Valparaiso, Ind.

◊◊◊ THE ◊◊◊ World's Sixteen Saviors, —OR— CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.

BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter-heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go, like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 380 pages. New edition, revised and corrected, with portrait of author. Price $1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Soul of Things; or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries.

BY WM. AND ELIZABETH M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text-book, it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this newly-discovered power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make Geology as plain as day, and throw light on all the grand subjects now obscured by time.

Soul or Things—Vol. I.
Cloth..........$1.50
Postage 10 cents.

Soul of Things—Vol II.
Illustrated. 450 pp. Cloth..........$1.50
Postage 10 cents.

Soul of Things—Vol. III.
Illustrated. 362 pp. Cloth..........$1.50
Postage 10 cents.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA, According to Old Records.

BY DR. PAUL CARUS.

A translation from Japanese, made under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was lately published in Japan. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE DIAKKA.

THE DIAKKA AND THEIR EARTHLY Victims, by the Seer, A. J. Davis, is a very interesting and suggestive work. It is an explanation of much that is false and repulsive in Spiritualism, embodying a most important recent interview with James Victor Wilson, a resident of the Summer-Land. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Barr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

THE KORAN.

Commonly called the "Alkoran of Mohammed." Translated into English from the original Arabic, with explanatory notes taken from the most approved commentators. With a preliminary discourse by Geo. Sale. Price, cloth, $1.00. For sale at this office.

TREE AND SERPENT WORSHIP

By A. S. Hudson, M.D. Price, 15 cents.

PULPIT, PEW AND CRADLE.

By Helen H. Gardener. One of her brightest, wittiest and strongest lectures against the Bible. Every woman should read it and know her friends and enemies. Price 10 cents.

CALIFORNIA SCISSORS USED JUDICIOUSLY.

RELIGIOUS FANATICISM AND CHICANERY — QUEER CLIPPINGS FROM CALIFORNIA COLUMNS.

Omaha, Neb.:—A startling theological ditions, Rev. Charles Savage was It demands that worshiping must be done only in the nude.

Rev. John Morrow has started a religious creed of his own which is said to have a very extensive following among the women of Omaha. He is the only man who takes part. Once he was a Presbyterian in good standing. Outsiders becoming aware of the conditions, Rec. Charles Savage was sent to call on Morrow and demand an explanation. Morrow admitted that he preached that it was lawful to worship perfectly nude, and said that he practiced it. He said that he found authority for it all through the Bible, and referred especially to John xiii. He said this doctrine would prove that shame and fear and passion were dead, and there were other benefits that God alone knew. He didn't. Rev. Savage later stated to a lady who attended Morrow's meetings the questions and replies. She said she had believed the doctrine and had practiced it.

The latest dispatches record a big church row in Tacoma, Wash. Many families are broken up by a religious craze. A preacher almost insane. Result of the preaching of a California missionary en route to China, Rev. Peter Robinson, who advocates the doctrine of personal sanctification.

Ten days ago this missionary began preaching this doctrine of "bodily sanctification in the First Baptist church of Tacoma. Those who have accepted this doctrine style themselves the "Comeouters," and number over a score. Half of them are women who have left their husbands because of this belief.

Two weeks ago Rev. Harriman, the pastor, concluded that the Holy spirit had left him and to regain it he has fasted and prayed for two weeks; then he joined the "comeouters" and decared he would not preach there again until the "demon" was driven out of the church members. The trustees tried to get him to go away and rest. They fear that brain fever will result.

These "comeouters" have become so worked up that both men and women have given way to hysteria. Social circles are deeply stirred over the split in the church, owing to the prominence of the persons and the strong objections of the husbands of the "sanctified" women. One of these women became so hysterical that she had to be taken home and locked up in her room under a physician's care. Verily the works of the howling dervishes in the January revivals are bearing fruit.

Joseph C. Rodriques has liberally provided for his soul. By the terms of the decree of distribution of the estate of the above deceased he pald out $900 for masses as follows: Rev. Gloria $500; Rev. J. J. Pimentel $50; Rev. E. F. Fernandez $150; Rev. A. M. Santos $50; Rev. Gabriel Soares $150. Thus you see that this devout Catholic was determined to escape purgatory.

In the face of the hard times the churches collected a larger sum for missions than in any former year, being $434,868.00. In addition to the sales of the American Bible Society it needs $250,000 a year to maintain its work and it is surpassed by seven other missionary societies of the United States. Great appeals are rising everywhere for all Christendom to contribute liberally to its support.

An orthodox war is waxing warm in San Francisco over a series of sermons given by Rev. Wm. Rader, pastor of the Third Congregational Church and a leader of the Christian Endeavor Society of that city. The wrath of the local Presbyterian organ, the Occident falls upon Rader's head. It charges Mr. Rader with direct antagonism to the great body of his own church, to the Baptist, the Methodist, and Presbyterian churches and declares that he should resign from the Christian Endeavor leadership. In reply to the Occident's criticism, Mr. Rader gives a pointed criticism of the Westminster Confession of faith, which states that "Elect infants dying in infancy are saved by Christ through the spirit, etc." Then he submits the question, "What become of the infants who are not of the elect?" The answer of course must be the damnation of them. He further states that there isn't power enough in the Presbyterian Church of America to change their confession of faith which has been preserved in the alcohol of orthodoxy for 200 years. The Presbyterian divines claim that a "proved error in Scripture contradicts not only their doctrine but the Scripture's claim." Then it is no wonder they oppose Biblical criticism.

A champion for Rader appears in the person of Seymour W. Condon, president of Alameda Co., Christian Endeavor Union, whose article is so full of beliefs startling to the clergy that I send the full clipping:

The demand made by the Occident, the local Presbyterian organ, that Rev. Dr. Rader take no part in the 1897 Christian Endeavor Convention on account of his alleged unorthodox views, has brought forth this reply:

Editor "Chronicle:" Since the Occident has arrogated to itself the right to read Dr. Rader out of the Endeavor movement and more especially out of the '97 convention, as reported in the columns of the "Chronicle," it becomes entirely appropriate for Endeavorers to decide for themselves whether their members and leaders are to be tested by the standard of any denominational creed or dogma.

If the editor of the Occident, who has put so much spleen into his criticism of Dr. Rader, hopes to stay the tendency among intelligent young men and women to think for themselves, it will not be accomplished by vindictive criticism or un-Christian and unbrotherly treatment of a man generally admired and loved by Endeavorers for his moral courage and high Christian character. The tendency of Christian young men and women to do their thinking and refuse to follow in the spiritual calf paths made by the wanderings of their forefathers is not measured by the relative numerical strength of the more liberal denominations.

Any one in touch with the young people of any denomination may, if he will, find that its young people do not get out of their church when they differ theologically with their pastors. We venture the assertion that if any strictly orthodox Protestant pastor in the city of San Francisco or Oakland knew the real convictions of his flock upon matters of belief he would be surprised and startled. The younger element in the churches is fired with a more practical zeal than that which centers about the preservation of the story of Jonah and the whale or Noah's disembarkation on Ararat.

Humanity is calling for a practical Christianity manifesting its presence in deeds of mercy. It is interested in the spiritual culture of men and women along the lines of human need. It is tired of mud-slinging indulged in by those who profess to be followers of Jesus Christ, whose life was one of service to men. The Christian minister or editor who reaches for a handful of mud whenever a brother pastor's head appears too prominently across the sectarian fence is a public infliction.

Dr. Rader is honored by Endeavorers. He will be deservedly honored at the 1897 convention. He a is courageous, practical, devoted friend of all that the Endeavor movement means to the church and to human society. We venture the assertion that no vituperation directed at him by those who have a right to differ with his individual beliefs can in any way lessen the esteem in which he is held by the Christian Endeavorers and others who honor moral courage and Christian character, and who believe that a man's character and usefulness in the presence of suffering and need does not depend upon his estimate of the capacity of a whale or the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch.

The Endeavorers are not going to be induced to follow the Occident in its un-Christian attack upon Dr. Rader. We shall be proud of his co-operation at the 1897 convention. We are not going to bend ourselves to the religious persecution that has been so long a blot upon denominationalism. We recognize in Dr. Rader a man of true Christian spirit, whose faith and loyalty to Jesus Christ as the Divine Redeemer and whose passion for true service to his fellowman no man has questioned. The so-called heretic is to-day doing less to subvert faith and repel intelligent young men and women than those few who rebel at free inquiry and seek to stifle investigation. These are turning young men and women away from the Church and the Bible by thousands. The Occident will hardly be able to dictate the policy of the 1897 convention, and Dr. Rader will be one of its stirring spirits by virtue of his worth, ability and Christian character.

SEYMOUR W. CONDON,
President Alameda County Christian Endeavor Union.

There is no truth truer than this: "The mills of the Gods grind slow but sure." Liberalism which is developed through the mighty public schools is undermining the church as slowly and surely as the earth follows its orbit around the sun. "Truth must come uppermost."

The Presbyterian Occident is evidently in about the same position as the parrot. Polly happened to be an occupant of a room in which an explosion took place. It blew her through the bars of her cage and she was found divested of the most of her plumage, clinging to a broken frame on the wall, wildly asking, "What next?"

"Oh, would some power the gift gie them,
To see themselves as others see them."

MARY E. VAN LUVEN.
Oakland, Cal., Jan. 7, 1897.

ATTENTION ALL!

THE MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS TRYING TO ESTABLISH A MEDICAL MONOPOLY IN MICHIGAN, AND THEY WILL DO IT UNLESS THE SPIRITUALISTS IN THAT STATE GO TO WORK AT ONCE, HON. L. V. MOULTON SOUNDS THE ALARM.

To all whom it may concern: A bill is now pending in the Michigan Legislature designed to establish medical monopoly in this State. It provides for a board of examiners composed of the four "pathies" specified and appointed by the Governor; and all persons not licensed by this board will be prohibited under pains and penalties from practicing.

This excludes of course, all mediums, scientists, healers, and every form of practice except such as may be permitted by the board. The M. D.s are pushing the matter vigorously, and will leave nothing undone to further the bill. They have the money and means to make their full showing, and will circulate petitions carefully worded, and endeavor to induce the committees to believe that the people want some such bill passed. It behooves the friends of freedom and progress to better themselves. Michigan State Spiritual Association at its recent mass-meeting at Lansing appointed a committee to take this matter in charge, with M. A. Root, of Bay City, as chairman. This committee will need, and must have funds, to do the printing and circulating remonstrances, and other legitimate expenses, to offset the efforts being made in favor of the bill.

The committee has also drafted a substitute bill which will be introduced and urged by it, providing for equal rights for all kinds of practice, and guarding against fraud or false pretense on the part of any.

We hereby call upon, and urge all who are interested in this work, to send in funds. They will be judiciously and legitimately used and fully accounted for by the committee. This matter is urgent, and need be responded to promptly, to enable the committee to do its work.

All remittances should be sent to May F. Ayres, secretary, 129 River street, Lansing, Mich., or to M. A. Root, 1209 5th avenue, Bay City, Mich.

L. V. MOULTON,
President, M. S. S. A.

THE NEXT WORLD INTERVIEWED

I have just finished reading for the second time that grand work entitled "The Next World Interviewed," just issued from the press by that enterprising journal, The Progressive Thinker, always foremost in every noble enterprise calculated to advance that glorious cause we all so dearly love. I have derived much pleasure and great profit in perusing its interesting pages all glowing with rich thoughts from such refined and cultured spirits, as Lincoln, Greeley, Judge Edmunds, Seward, Longfellow, Dickens, Emerson, Robert Bruce, Lord Beaconsfield, Thomas Carlyle, Peter Cooper, Benjamin Franklin, Dr. Livingstone, Bulwer, and a host of others. They give us their experience in the other life, tell us of their lovely homes over there, their varied occupations and employments, so full of pleasure and profit. If you have any desire, my dear friends, to learn something of your future home, procure without delay a copy of that wonderful gift of the angels to mortals here below, whereby you will soon acquire a thorough knowledge of that beautiful home beyond the grave.

In conclusion I would say that these wonderful communications contained in the book come through the superior mediumship of Mrs. Horn, one of the queens of earth, whose gentle and loving nature attracts spirits of a like character. She is entirely destitute of every mercenary motive, and never holds a seance for money but only for the pleasure and gratification of her friends.

The price of this valuable book is only 35 cents when accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. The book, and the paper for a year for only $1.35. Just think of it.

Towanda, Pa. J. G. PATTON.

N. S. ASSOCIATION.

REPORT BY SECRETARY WOODBURY—ENTHUSIASTIC MASS-MEETINGS HELD, ATTENDED WITH GREAT SUCCESS—LIBERAL DONATIONS MADE AND AN IMPETUS GIVEN TO THE CAUSE OF TRUTH.

The past three months the business at this office has been such as to demand the almost constant attention of three persons.

Balance in treasury N. S. A. January 1st, $1, 328.77. Membership, 163 societies.

Purchased recently library of Prof. Worthen, formerly State Geologist of Illinois; also list of books now out of print from Colby & Rich. One thousand Annual Reports printed, same edited by President Barrett. State Agents appointed and certificates issued. Missionaries 1897 appointed and certificates issued. Correspondence opened with all camp-meetings in this country applying for a day for the N. S. A. during the camp season.

Sunday law measures opposed in Congress. Public meetings held in Washington, D. C., addressed by President Barrett, Secretary Woodbury, Hon. L. V. Moulton, Dr. G. A. Fuller, on "God in the Constitution, Taxation of church property and Sunday laws.

January 7th, mass-meeting at Baltimore, Md. Addresses by President Barrett, Mrs. C. L. V. Richmond, Hon. L. V. Moulton, Dr. Geo. A. Fuller, Rev. Mrs. Walcott, Secretary Woodbury, Mr. F. A. Wiggin and Mrs. Powers. Tests by Mr. Wiggin and Mr. H. Altimus. Music, Mrs. M. Wheeler Brown and Mr. Altimus.

February 2nd, mass-meeting in Boston, Mass., Spiritual Temple, addressed by President Barrett and a host of talent as reported already in papers.

February 3rd and 4th, mass-meetings in Brooklyn, N. Y., Historical Hall. This meeting was up to date the most successful yet held by the N. S. A. A committee from the Brooklyn Societies with Hon. A. H. Daily as president, W. Wines Sargent, secretary, completed and carried out a magnificent program. Audiences large, representative and enthusiastic.

$800 in cash and pledges were raised to back New York State Association about to be organized under the supervision of Frank Walker, Esq., State Representative of the N. S. A. He will be assisted in this work by E. W. Sprague, Esq., Missionary of the N. S. A., who will devote the month of March to reviving the work in New York State. Messrs, Walker, Sprague and Woodbury, after the eloquence of President Barrett, Mrs. Russeque and Mrs. Carrie Twing, created much enthusiasm by their appeals with the result above mentioned. During the meetings learned and able addresses were delivered by Hon. A. H. Daily, of Brooklyn, on "Why am I a Spiritualist," Clark Bell, Esq. and Albert Bach, Esq. of the New York Bar. Mr. Bell's subject was "Psychological Studies;" Mr. Bach's, "Spiritualism and Insanity." Rev. Frank E. Mason, an independent preacher also delivered an eloquent speech on "The Possibilities of Man." Able addresses were also given by Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, Mrs. Lizzie Harlow, Mrs. E. A. Cutting, Thos. Grimshaw, Esq., and W. J. Colville (the latter speaking on "Liberal Spiritualism and Spiritual Liberalism"), W. Wines Sargent, Dr. J. C. Wyman, Mrs. B. R. Plum, J. W. Kenyon, and Mrs. F. M. Holmes. Spirit communications, Mrs. May Pepper, Mrs. T. U. Reynolds, Mrs. E. W. Sprague, all were good and recognized. The musical program was of the finest and the committee deserves especial praise for their selection. Miss M. Mott, Miss K. Corbitt, Mrs. F. K. Sieber and Miss Lillie Chapman were the artists selected for this important part of the program, and won for themselves storms of applause.

Judge Daily, W. Wines Sargent, Mrs. E. F. Kurth, Mr. Barber, Dr. Wyman, and all the committee of the arrangements can well feel proud of the result of their work.

The officers of the N. S. A., are thankful that now the work in New York State will no longer languish for need of funds. A successful State Association can now be organized and the plans for the jubilee go on.

Thousand of pages of literature have been distributed during the past three months. The demands now being made upon us for this kind of literature are many. Will you not, reader, assist us in this great work by becoming a contributing member of the N. S. A. at one dollar a year? The publishing of the annual report is always expensive. These reports are now ready. All who will send 25 cents cash to this office for one will be presented with the printed History of the N. S. A., containg pictures of its officers and outline of the work accomplished.

President Barrett has delivered a large number of addresses, edited report and history, dictated hundreds of letters and attended all the mass-meetings, etc. Will you not back up this Lincoln of the Spiritual Army with kind words and cash?

The grand campaign which opened the next morning after the close of the last convention will be kept up during the entire year. Able and prominent men and women are daily joining the army of progression. Come with us and aid in the battle for the right.

"Hear the cry of reason ringing, like a resurrection call,
Up and Help the cause of freedom,
men and women one and all,
Till superstition's phantoms, like withered branches fall,
As truth goes marching on.

"Let the 'summer soldier' falter, and the 'sunshine patriot' die;
They who stand it now deserve the thanks' of millions by and by,
As the golden sun of science lifts her holy light on high,
And truth goes marching on.

"'Tis the business of the little minds to shrink' at custom's frown.
The heart that feels not now, is dead'
to truth's divine renown
The times hath found us' asking for humanity's fair crown,
And truth goes marching on."

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY.
Secretary.

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY, Sec.

LEGISLATION NEEDED.

It ought to be made a penitentiary offense to point a gun, loaded or unloaded, at another. The number of deaths following such pastime is simply appalling, the defense always, "I didn't know the gun was loaded," when the victim is killed.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a lifelong study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F.D., 4 Cedar St., New York

THE INDIAN FAMINE. RELIEVING STARVING NATIVES AT A RESIDENCY.
[From the Illustrated London News.]

A SAD PICTURE OF THE PRESENT DISTRESS IN INDIA—ITS PEOPLE STARVING AND DYING FROM AN EPIDEMIC DISEASE—LIFE ON THIS EARTH HAS NOT YET REACHED THE ANGELIC STAGE.

Prince Bogidar Karageorgevitch, a great traveler, hunter and linguist, is now in India studying the ravages of the famine and plague. In a letter from Bombay to the Paris Figaro the Prince writes:

"In the Hindoo quarter, among the little shops, the natives are burning sandalwood and incense, and the air is heavy with the pungent odor of phenol. Before a stricken house from which a body is being borne away are large plaques of a roseate hue. All around the soil seems stained with a yellowish liquid.

"In the native quarter, along the sea, the plague seems to flourish unrestrained, and the houses, odorous with chlorine and phenol, become more and more frequent. Colaba, a semi-English quarter, is almost deserted.

"The Bourse and most of the manufactories are closed. It is estimated that 250,000 workmen have fled from the city.

"Every evening there is a crowd of excited people at the station who have successively missed all the trains during the day. A mob of white and red coolies hustle each other around the ticket office, as they expend their money and murmur their prayers. The poor cry aloud, push frantically, are thrown down and back, but return to the charge again and again. In the center of the station groups of women and children await the welcome ticket which will permit them to flee. Then the last train goes, and the huge crowd throws itself upon the ground, to sleep and to await the morning train.

"Here they call the plague 'the tchouma.' People attributed it at first to the dates brought from Syria to the grain from the interior; they destroyed the dates, threw the grain into the sea, but the scourge remained and grew from day to day. One morning the people found a lot of dead rats, then some pigeons and chickens; then a dead man, then others.

"In the hospitals, thanks to inoculation, more than two thirds of those stricken recover. But the idea of mixing the castes, of personal contact with inferiors drives the Hindoos away from the hospitals; they prefer to remain at home, trusting to their native doctors and sorcerers, lost beyond recall—and they die there clinging to their laws of social life and to their superstitions until the last.

"The religion of the Parsees, who form a very large part of the population of Bombay, requires all sorts of practices before and after death which are impossible in a hospital, which is why the Parsees cling to their houses.

"At the home of an ill Parsee whom I went to see a woman was washing a white robe in which they will dress the dead tomorrow for his last toilet. This robe must be washed by some member of the family; and the woman, who knew that her husband had the plague and was lost, and who was preparing the shroud, betrayed a mute, tearless resignation that touched me deeply.

FUNERALS FILL THE STREETS.

"In the narrow streets funerals are constantly passing. A Hindoo is borne on litters, the body painted red, the face hideous, grinning with a livid smile under the scarlet pigment of his cheeks. The body is covered with garlands of jasmine and Bengal roses. Before the bier a man walks bearing a vase in which are live coals, with which the pyre will be lighted. Behind march scores of people shaking rattles and beating upon a long drum.

"Then follow the friends, each carrying a piece of wood, which they will add to the funeral-pile in honor of the dead.

"And here are others—Mussulmans. The dead is carried on a bier covered with a maroon-colored cloth, embroidered in gold. The bearers and those who follow sing a peculiar melody that is almost gay as they march slowly towards the Moslem cemetery, on the shores of the sea, where the dead will sleep under the great banyans and the jasmine flowers.

"Upon a litter covered with white draperies, the dead, clothed in white, is borne along by eight men also in white, and gloved in white. The Parsee custom demands that the dead shall be shrouded and carried to the tower of Silence by the same men, who form a separate caste. They cannot take part in the public ceremonies without nine days' purification, and dwell in a house especially built for them.

"Now because of the epidemic the authorities have obliged them to wear gloves, which they throw into the fire with their other clothing after having stripped the dead, 'all naked as he came into the world, so he should return to dust.'

"And in the evening the vultures will gather at the Tower of Silence and pick the skeleton, leaving nothing but bones, which the devouring sun will soon reduce to dust—to be scattered abroad by the first monsoon.

"Very slowly the bearers and others walk in two long white files, each couple bearing between them a white handkerchief, carrying the bier to the tower, where the vultures of late grown sluggish with much feeding, await, as they sleep in the sun, the feast that has been brought them.

SCENES IN THE HOSPITALS.

"One day I went with Mr. Snow, the Municipal Commissioner of Bombay, to visit the hospital at Parel, a suburb, where patients stricken with the 'tchouma' are treated. It is a large framework of iron, roofed and walled with matting, which is burned when it becomes impregnated with microbes.

"Upon low slatted beds, covered with reed mats, the unfortunates lie groaning. The doctor who treats them took us from one to another. They were uncovered for us and at first sight nothing unusual was discerned upon their brouze bodies, all naked under the sheets. Then it was noticed that there were swellings under the arms and at the groins.

"In one of the wards are the convalescents and light cases. At the very end there seemed to be a skeleton covered with brown leather, lying upon one of the beds. He was a refugee from the famine district and came here only to fall a victim to another pest. The attendants awaken him and he opens his great superb eyes and smiles like a happy street urchin and then goes to sleep again. He is improving and, after having braved the famine and the 'tchouma' will probably live to tell of an experience that few have passed through.

"In bamboo cottages covered with matting are isolated the Hindoos who will only allow themselves to be treated with simple remedies by Hindoo physicians. An old man is there. The doctor is applying a white paste to his neck. He is delirious and regards us with a vacant stare.

"Another case is that of a Hindoo woman who was brought here with her husband yesterday; he died this morning. She is very beautiful, for the disease which came yesterday has not yet emaciated her features and she sleeps peacfully, seeming rather a character in a strange play than a poor, stricken creature which the ineffective remedies of a Hindoo doctor will allow to die tomorrow.

"We returned to the city by another road, which led by the field of pyres. In the blue air of the night that was rapidly falling, under the giant figures of the banyans, huge columns of smoke were rising that slowly spread themselves over the heavens.

"I stopped at the Parsee's house I had visited three days ago. He had died, and where his bed had stood incense was burning in a copper vase, and another vase of copper flowers had just been arranged, which will be replenished for fourteen days, while over there in the full blaze of the sun at the Tower of Silence his bones are bleaching, soon to be blown away in dust."

The above illustration represents a most pitiful scene in India. In this country, with its freedom from epidemic diseases and with an abundance of food, the people can hardly realize the sad condition of the starving, dying millions of that far-off land. It is terrible to contemplate. And while the prosperous inhabitants of the United States are gazing on this scene of misery, it will come their turn, sometime to suffer as in some manner the people of India are suffering to-day. The angelic stage of life has not been reached in this civilized nation. When that has been attained, every home will be an asylum to succor some one less fortunate.

LUCRETIUS.
New York.

"The Woman's Bible. Part I. The Pentateuch. Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy." The contrast between the thoughts of these brave women and the thoughts of the orthodox world during all time past, is very striking. Keen analysis, ripe scholarship and fearless adherence to the right, characterize this very interesting effort of some of the brightest minds of to-day. For sale at this office. Price 50 cents.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical bodies and their physical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the Spirit-World. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

"History of the Inquisition." Every citizen of our country should read this concise history of that Romish churchly institution known as the Inquisition. The animus of Romanism against all institutions, beliefs and parties not in conformity with the ruling powers of the Romish hierarchy is plainly shown in these statements of veritable history. The devilishness and murderous malignity of the "Holy Inquisition" is scarcely paralleled in all the world's records of inhuman atrocities. It is for sale at this office, and will be mailed postpaid for 25 cents.

INDIA.

THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE THERE—A VALUABLE CONTRIBUTION BY AN OFFICER IN THE INDIAN SERVICE.

To the Editor:—May I be allowed to offer a few remarks about the condition and prospects of the people of India, regarding whoh Hudson Tuttle replies to a correspondent in The Progressive Thinker of January 30. No doubt the great principles governing the solution and progress of races and peoples are being clearly and lucidly stated by him, but it is not the case that the people of India are "in conflict with a superior race—the English."

White races cannot settle in the Indian climate, and therefore no colonizing of India by the English or any other race is in progress. The English hold and rule India in the best interests of the Indian people, who under our government have increased very greatly in numbers and in prosperity, well-being and intelligence.

Left to themselves, the Indian people are entirely non-progressive and had remained stationary until our advent into the country. Also, not possessing the power of self-government which the Anglo-Saxon race has developed, the Indian population were at the mercy of any tyrannical chief who could raise himself to power. A great number of such chiefs and princes dominated the land and perpetually fought among themselves; there was no peace, law, or order; the roads (such as they were—mere tracks) were infested with gangs of thugs and robbers so that travelers had to join together in armed parties for self-protection and the farmer ploughing his field had no security that he would ever reap his crop unmolested.

Under British rule things are very different. Absolute peace, law, order and prosperity everywhere prevail. The whole country is intersected with good roads and railways, and a vast and increasing trade has developed. A complete system of education has been established, ranging from the little village school where every peasant's child can get teaching free, up to the great central colleges where highly intelligent natives complete their education and qualify for entering the learned professions or for passing the examinations which lead to official employment under the government. Immense numbers of native are so employed in the various departments, in fact the whole policy is "India for the Indians."

We have been trying for years past to get them to learn something of self-government by forming municipal and local committees and councils, but it does not come natural to Orientals who always prefer a "one man rule," and there is a great difficulty owing to the constant jealousy between Hindoos and Mohammedans, of whom the population is everywhere a mixture. Still these matters keep improving with increased prosperity and education, and we may hope that some day India may take her place among the nations.

I hope you may find room for these lines, because a great deal of error is prevalent regarding the condition of India, and attention is now especially turned that way, owing to this terrible famine.

Our wonderfully organized system of government, aided by the railways, enable us to do all that human effort can do to meet this great scarcity; but try to imagine the results of a similar failure of the rains a hundred years ago, when no such means were at hand and when there was no Government in the country. Old native histories contain vague records of such visitations in former times, when the population of entire provinces disappeared and the remains of the depopulated cities, temples and palaces may be seen to this day amidst dense jungles.

No such wholesale loss of life can now occur—where a thousand may perish in this famine, a million would have perished under the old state of things.

G. M. BELLASIS.
Major Bengal Staff Corps.

NEW YORK STATE ASSOCIATION OF SPIRITUALISTS.

A convention will be held in a short time for the organization of a State Association in New York State. Mr. Frank Walker, State Agent for the National Association in now perfecting arrangements. Mr. E. W. Sprague will soon begin work under the auspices of the N. S. A. to thoroughly organize the Spiritualists of New York State. Mr. Sprague will visit every city and town and hamlet in the State that will guarantee his expenses which will not be heavy. All societies and persons desiring his services, please send address to this office at once. Spiritualists of New York City and Brooklyn already contributed $800 at the recent Mass Meeting in Brooklyn and the new State Association will be a success.

Hurrah for National Spiritualists Jubilee under auspices N. S. A.!

Hurrah for New York State Association under auspices of the N. S. A.!

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY.
Secretary.

It is not until we have passed through the furnace that we are made to know how much dross there is in our composition.—Colton.

Drs. Maybe and..... Mustbe.

You choose the old doctor before the young one. Why? Because you don't want to entrust your life in inexperienced hands. True, the young doctor may be experienced. But the old doctor must be. You take no chances with Dr. Maybe, when Dr. Mustbe is in reach. Same with medicines as with medicine makers—the long-tried remedy has your confidence. You prefer experience to experiment—when you are concerned. The new remedy may be good—but let somebody else prove it. The old remedy must be good—judged on its record of cures. Just one more reason for choosing AYER'S Sarsaparilla in preference to any other. It has been the standard household Sarsaparilla for half a century. Its record inspires confidence — fifty years of cures. If others may be good, Ayer's Sarsaparilla must be. You take no chances when you take AYER'S Sarsaparilla.

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.

BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the averge understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days which each sign governs, and the gems and astral colors associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the faults of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B. N.

Bound in Special Cloth, - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

HELEN HARLOW'S VOW;
Or Self-Justice.

By Lois Waisbrooker. Many have read this book; many have re-read it, and many others out to read it. It should be read by every man and woman in the land. It shows the falsities rampant in society in matters of moral and social import, and the wrongs that flow therefrom to innocent victims of social ostracism. It contains a fine likeness of the author. Fine cloth, 280 pages. Price $1.00

THE QUARANTINE RAISED.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. By Moses Hull. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ATLANTIS.
The Antediluvian World. Illustrated.

BY IGNATIUS DONNELLY.

THE QUESTION OF A ONCE-INHABITED but now submerged part of this globe known as Atlantis, is one of much interest. The data gathered from ancient and modern sources—from classical authors—from traditions, legends and mythologies; from the deep sea investigations of modern scientists and antiquarian researches in the mounds and the ruins of ancient cities found on the American continent—are here arranged in compact, literary form, in this very interesting volume. The book possesses especial interest to Spiritualists because of its affording corroborative evidence of the genuineness and truth of the statements purporting to be given by spirits of ancient Atlantians concerning the fact of an Atlantis and a great people of the name, once existing on this earth. For sale at this office. Price 2.00.

EDITH BRAMLEY'S VISION.

A thrilling appeal to all who are interested in learning how the great forces of the Roman Catholic Church are seeking to control all movements pertaining to human progress that are in opposition to their dogmatic religious teachings, Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

COMMON SENSE.

By Thomas Paine. A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,
— OR —
THREE-FOLD POWER OF SEX.

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This is one of the author's most useful and instructive books. This work should be read by every man and woman. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

AN EXCELLENT WORK.
The Rationale of Mesmerism
BY A. P. SINNETT.

This excellent work treats of the following subjects:

I. Old and New Theories.
II. The Mesmeric Force.
III. The Real Literature of Mesmerism.
IV. Side-Lights of Mesmeric Phenomena.
V. Curative Mesmerism.
VI. Anæsthetic Effects and Rigidity.
VII. The Nature of Sensitiveness
VIII. Clairvoyance.
IX. Mesmeric Practice.

The price of this admirable work is $1.25. All books advertised in The Progressive Thinker are

For sale at this office.

Origin, Development and Destiny of Man.

A Scientific and Philosophical Treatise, by Thos. P. Fletcher.

CONTENTS: The Beginnings; Fundamental Principles; Formation of Constellations, Systems, Suns Planets and Satellites. The Origin of Meteors and Comets; The Organic Kingdom; The Origin of Man; Man—His Attributes and Powers; The Soul—How it Receives and Imparts Knowledge; How the Soul Receives its Highest Impressions; The Record Book, or The Heavenly Ether; How to Cultivate the Sixth Sense; The Finer or Spiritual Body; Growth and Degeneration; Morality, Spiritualism Proved by the Bible; The Bible and Christ; The Summary; "What Must We Do to Be Saved." For sale at this office.

Price, Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50c.

HISTORY OF ATHAREL.

LIFE IN THE STONE AGE. THE history of Atharael, Chief Priest of a Band of Aryans. This pamphlet, containing 91 pages, was written through the mediumship of U. G. Figley, and is intensely interesting. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

Why She Became a Spiritualist.

Twelve lectures. By Abby A. Judson. This book should be read by every Spiritualist. Price $1.00; postage 10 cents.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)	7.50
Thirteen weeks	25 cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, FEB. 20, 1897.

FAITHFUL TO ITS RECORD.

Catholicism is exhibiting its tyrannical hand at this time quite in keeping with its established character. It has been shown how it is dictating legislation in the Dominion of Canada. No week passes without some attempt of aggression on the rights of others, growing more oppressive from year to year as its organization is strengthened and its numbers are augmented by foreign importations. The police force in all our principal cities are servile slaves of that church, ready to rise in revolt at any time, or to do any dirty work at the bidding of their priestly masters. The latest demonstration of the peculiarities of this church coming to our knowledge, occurred in New York on the evening of the 31st ult. The facts are gleaned from a full report appearing the next morning in the New York Herald, kindly sent us by a friend resident in that city, to whom thanks.

Col. Ingersoll had contracted for the Harlem Opera House, where he was to deliver an address on the Bible, on Sunday, the 7th inst. He had placarded the advertising boards with his posters, and displayed his lithographs on the wall.

The Catholics engaged the opera house for a church entertainment on the preceding Sunday evening. Arriving at the entrance and seeing the Colonel's posters, they refused to enter until these were removed. The more aggressive of these marplots commenced tearing down the bills. Ex-Mayor Gilroy headed a committee to wait on the manager of the theater who consented to the removal of the obnoxious matter. This done, the representatives of the religion of hate entered upon their highly artistic entertainment, first removing Col. Ingersoll's lithographs from the walls, his silent shadow being sufficiently potent to rob them of all pleasure.

NOW THE THUMBSCREW.

It is very apparent that Catholicism is making rapid strides in this country. Continued at the same rate for the next fifty years as in the last fifty, and they will dominate all other sects. The proposed religious amendments to the Constitution are just what they will need to enable them to establish the "Holy Office," otherwise the Inquisition, in America.

News comes from London that the Catholic bishops of Canada have prepared a joint pasteral on the school question, at the same time announcing that the sacraments will be refused to all Catholics who accept the terms of the government for the settlement of the controversy in Manitoba. Its formal issuance is contingent on the action of the Pope.

That is the way that church has ruled through all the ages. A denial of the sacraments, which consist of marriage, of christening of children, of baptism, of confirmation, the eucharist, penance and extreme unction, are terrible weapons in the hands of a tyrannical priesthood, and right vigorously are they resorted to, to compel their dupes to obey their behests.

TRUTH AND ERROR GRAPPLING.

The orthodox press is in great distress over the position of Dr. Lyman Abbott, of Plymouth Church, in regard to the Bible. The New York Observer, as might be expected, is the most bitter in its denunciations of the learned divine. It inquires, substantially: "What sort of a verdict would be rendered were the case submitted to an intelligent jury?" The conclusion is: "The Bible would hardly amount to more than Homer, something better than Shakspeare, and about as much inspired as Milton." It says: "It is not so much a question as to how much Bible may be left, as it is a struggle to decide whether we shall have any Bible at all."

The Progressive Thinker rejoices that able thinkers and scholars in the church have come to the rescue of Truth, and are disposed to fight its battles, agreeing with Milton: "Let Truth and Error grapple. Who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"

A FOOLISH LIE.

Some liar started a lie a long time ago, representing that Miss Maud Ingersoll had joined the Presbyterian church, as a protest against her father's godlessness. It has been denied time and time again, but the original lie is foot-loose and will go on forever. Rev. W. W. Landrum, of Atlanta, Ga., lately repeated the falsehood in his Baptist pulpit, but, unlike the generality of his craft, he retracted his statement on receipt of Miss Maud's letter, from which we make the following extract:

"Neither my sister nor myself has ever been associated with any church, although our father [Col. Ingersoll] has always wished us to study and think for ourselves. We agree with him most heartily in his religious belief, and think he is doing the greatest possible good."

THAT SAD AFFAIR.

THE GIRARD POISONING CASE.

As our readers well remember, we gave them a full account of the proceedings connected with the Nellis poisoning case at Girard, Pa. At the time it created a decided sensation among Spiritualists. A few held up their hands in "horror," that The Progressive Thinker should be bold enough to unveil to the public gaze such a lamentable affair. A few Spiritualists said that the proper thing to do was to veil the whole thing, as its publicity would hurt our cause. Then again a few wrote us abusive letters, actuated and inspired by the Cincinnati gang who were engineering the Light of Truth, and whose corrupt practices we had repeatedly shown up.

Let me here say that no paper on this green earth, whether political, a police gazette, or what not, had more rotten or corrupt hangers-on than that paper, and yet a few prominent Spiritualists cordially endorsed them, and wrote for the paper until it gradually died, to be resurrected again at Columbus, Ohio.

Now comes the beginning of the end of the celebrated Nellis poisoning case. The following is a special dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer from Erie, Pa., February 9th:

MRS. NELLIS POISONED HER HUSBAND—SUCH THE VERDICT IN A NOTED CASE—CINCINNATI WOMAN INDICTED.

Erie, Pa., February 9.—Mrs. Kate M. Nellis, the handsome landlady of the Avenue Hotel, in Girard, was convicted this evening under an indictment for administering poison to her husband. Her accomplice, Edward Gardner, will be tried on a similar charge, and his mother, Mrs. C. C. Stowell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a Spiritualistic medium, who is under indictment, has thus far evaded arrest.

This case has been pending for two years, and at the time of the expose created intense excitement in this county. Mrs. Nellis fell under the spell at Lily Dale, where she met Mrs. Stowell and her son, Edward Gardner, a handsome young man several years Mrs. Nellis's junior. Mrs. Stowell and her son became at Girard. After Mrs. Stowell left Girard, Nellis was frequently taken suddenly ill with violent attacks of vomiting.

GUESTS OF MRS. NELLIS

Mrs. Dr. J. C. Rogers, of Conneaut, Ohio, became suspicious of her mother and Gardner, and, taking Maggie Holbrook, the dining-room girl, into her confidence, set a watch upon the suspects. Miss Holbrook testified that she saw Mrs. Nellis and Gardner place powders in Nellis's coffee cup, and when she (the witness) could not intercept the poisoned cups that Nellis's illness followed.

The contents of several cups which she (Miss Holbrook) secured were analyzed by Prof. J. C. Hobbs, of the Western Reserve College, who testified that they contained antimony, tartar emetic and potassium. He also testified that the contents of Nellis's stomach contained large corresponding to that found in the cups secured by the dining-room girl.

QUANTITIES OF POISON,

Several letters written by Mrs. Stowell to Mrs. Nellis contained directions how to use the powders, and these same letters contain sinister references to Nellis. Captain Sullivan, who arrested Mrs. Nellis, found in her possession powders corresponding in their contents to those found in the coffee cups which Mrs. Nellis had placed for her husband.

Prior to this arrest Nellis and his wife had not been on good terms, but after the arrest they became reconciled, and Nellis did his best to shield his wife in the trial. An effort will be made at once to get Mrs. Nellis a new trial on a writ of error.

This Nellis case, so far as it has proceeded, apparently approaches the nearest to diabolism of anything that has ever occurred in Spiritualism, and it is well that Spiritualists should understand the case throughout. Mrs. Stowell, the wife of the former editor of the Light of Truth, was the chief corner-stone and "spiritual" adviser of that paper, and is it any wonder that it sunk thousands of dollars in its efforts to supersede all other Spiritualist papers—especially The Progressive Thinker. Mrs. Stowell has been under indictment, and has been hiding—probably in Canada—in order to avoid arrest—waiting to have the affair blow over. We pity this woman and pity those who under her inspiration wrote abusive letters to us, expecting to intimidate us, and prevent our doing our duty.

The Progressive Thinker is usually right in its estimation of persons and things, and particularly was it right in its estimation of the Light of Truth and some of its depraved hangers-on.

The probability is, however, that this case will be continued in court, until some of the witnesses die, or by some legal quibble or technicality, the prosecution will fall to the ground.

JONAH AND THE WHALE.

Rev. Dr. Lloyd, of the Central Congregational church, of New York, interviewed in regard to Rev. Abbott's discourse on Jonah, is reported in the New York Herald to have said:

"In a hundred years from now he who looks on that story as a fact may be called a first cousin to an Egyptian mummy."

Rev. Dr. Remensnyder, of St. James' Lutheran church, while severely animadverting against Dr. Abbott's position, incidentally remarked:

"If these teachings and histories are false and fraudulent, then they are the most impudent, colossal and sacrilegious forgeries ever penned, and the Bible is the most demoralizing agency, especially if it be placed in the hands of youthful readers."

As The Progressive Thinker is compelled to believe these pretended histories are spurious, of course the alternative is ours to reject them as improper literature "to be placed in the hands of youthful readers."

DENOUNCES REVIVALS.

A late news dispatch from San Francisco says:

"David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University, in a sermon says religious revivals are a species of drunkenness, no more worthy of respect than the drunkenness of the gutters."

We go the learned gentleman one better. It is a species of insanity, communicable, like any other contagion, by contact. He who is familiar with the dancing mania of the Middle Ages will find its counterpart in the modern revivals, both affections of the mind. There can be no question that hypnotic influence is the primal cause for these abnormal conditions.

HERESY IN A HIGH PLACE.

It will be remembered that the Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of the Church of England, Most Rev. Edward White Benson, was "taken by the Lord" a few weeks ago, while kneeling in prayer. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Temple has been lately elected and installed his successor. Now the critical clerics of other denominations are claiming the Rev. Dr. Temple is a heretic, and they are proving it by numerous extracts from his published books. A quotation from his "Essays and Reviews" is given, that smacks strongly of heterodoxy. Here is an excerpt from p. 53:

"The Bible is hindered by its form from exercising a despotism over the human spirit. . . . It does this by the principle of private judgment which puts conscience between us and the Bible, making conscience the supreme interpreter, whom it may be a duty to enlighten, but whom it can never be a duty to disobey." And again: "When conscience and the Bible appear to differ, the pious Christian immediately concludes he has not really understood the Bible."

No wonder the Bible-worshiper is distressed when "conscience" is given a supremacy above the inculcations of the "Holy Scriptures." Of the miracles of the Old Testament the Reverend Doctor says on p. 206:

"The times are remote; the date and authorship of the books are not established with certainty; the mixture of poetry with history is no longer capable of any sure separation into parts." On p. 195: "The miraculous healing of the sick may be no miracle in the strictest sense at all. It may be but an instance of the power of mind over body, a power which is undeniably not yet brought within the range of science, and which nevertheless may be really within its domain. Our Lord's miracles of healing may have been simply the result of this power possessed by other men. Men seem to possess this power over their own bodies, and over the bodies of others in different degrees." On p. 196 is found the following: "It is quite possible our Lord's resurrection may be found hereafter to be no miracle at all in a scientific sense. . . . When the general resurrection comes we may find it is, after all, the natural issue of physical laws always at work."

When the Church of England places at its head a gentleman with such advanced and correct views, there is hope for the ultimate triumph of truth among the subordinate clergy, as among the members. The time is sure to come, and cannot be far distant, when the churches generally of all sects will occupy the advanced position of The Progressive Thinker on all the great questions pertaining to the past and man's future. The primal error was the borrowing from heathen mythology the idea of a God incarnate in the flesh, born of a virgin. On this falsehood was built the whole superstructure of the Christian system, and from it has sprung the crimes of the church so destructive to human happiness.

Every intelligent thinker hails with real delight all evidence of progress, come from what source it may. It prognosticates an era when the false teachings of the church, with its book, shall give place to the truths of science, and the race shall be released from the incubus of a barbarian priesthood whose narrow conceptions of the infinite have been projected down the centuries even to our own time.

THERE IS SENSE.

A Kansas newspaper seems to take a common sense view of things when it discourses as follows:

"Religion becomes ridiculous when a congregation of only thirteen people, with only six in condition to pay, takes upon itself the support of a church and a minister. The instance in Atchison has a parallel in almost every town in the United States. There are too many churches and too many ministers to support. Hard times have resulted in cutting down the number of amusement halls, the cost of clothes, food, etc., but have had no effect in cutting down the number of churches to be supported. There are a great many people who imagine they can't go to heaven unless their path is paved with debts incurred in keeping up a church."

A PRIEST THE VICTIM.

A Catholic priest's vestments took fire in Patterson, N. J., on the 4th inst., while he was moving through the audience, a lighted torch in hand, conferring blessings on the kneeling worshipers. Says the news dispatch, in substance: Women screamed in horror as the flames crept quickly about him, whilst Father Hangley made frantic efforts to rid himself of his burning garments. His altar boys succeeded in tearing the surplice and cassock from the victim, who came near experiencing in a small way, at the hand of fate, what innumerable multitudes suffered at priestly hands a little while ago for a slight difference of opinion.

PLYMOUTH PULPIT THE TARGET.

Rev. Lyman Abbott is now coming in for his full share of abuse from the churches, because of his late declaration that certain books of the Bible may be properly regarded as fiction. Might he not have declared the book of Jonah a Munchausen, out-Heroding that magnificent liar; that Ruth and Esther were vulgar love stories; that the songs of Solomon were too obscene for a place in a modern brothel; that the historical books are wholly mythological; and the prophetical were written long after the events transpired which they pretend to predict? Many men, as learned and honest as the assailants of Rev. Abbott, so believe and do not hesitate to so express themselves. Some of these may be found ministering in good orthodox pulpits.

A RIGHTEOUS JUDGE.

Judge Ritchie, of the Putnam county, Ohio, court, in addressing the grand jury recently, is reported to have said:

"The grand jurors should disabuse their minds of the idea that Sunday has any connection with the Christian Sabbath, because nothing is farther from the truth. Our Sunday was first adopted A. D. 321 by Constantine, who borrowed it from Paganism, and not from Christianity. There is nothing sacred about the observance of the day. It is a police regulation merely, and its non-observance incurs no theological penalty."

PRAY IN SECRET.

Judge Baxter, of Minnesota, has just issued an order restraining the teacher of Avon school, in Stearns county, from saying prayers at the opening and closing of school. The subject is to be further considered at St. Cloud, on the 22d inst.

If teachers have anything to say to God it should be done in private as it is reported Jesus instructed.

CLEVELAND CHIPS.

AS THEY FLY FROM THE VIGOROUS PEN OF LYMAN C. HOWE AS HE HUSTLES SERENELY AROUND IN THE FOREST CITY—SOME OF THE CHIPS SPEAK PLAINLY OF THE ADVANCE OF OUR CAUSE.

In this city are many psychic centers. It's an old fortress for Spiritualism. Here the early battles with dogmatic superstition were vigorously fought and victory won for liberty and light. Here resided Father Lawrence, who first suggested the anniversary celebrations of the birth of modern Spiritualism. He has been among the shining hosts for many years. Here, as in very few if any other cities, the Children' Progressive Lyceum has been kept up, and through it much valuable work has been done for the cause of liberty and truth.

Thomas and Tillie Lees have been most conspicuously active and persistent in keeping this interest alive. Radiations from the soul-centers at Berlin Heights, in the intellectual flashes and spiritual wisdom, the poetry and science disseminated by Hudson and Emma Tuttle, have made a deep impression on the soul of the city.

Conflicts educate.

The battles for bigotry waged in the pulpit fiercely denouncing Spiritualism as the enemy of souls and the poison of civilization, have worked out many problems that are turning the tide favorably towards Spiritualism.

Whatever is, is necessary.

The world cannot grow without struggles.

Old ruts are not filled and new ways opened without bruises and bleeding wounds. Pain is promise.

It is the fire that evolves the energy to propel the engine of progress.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," and it is also nature's opportunity, the fulcrum of her leverage.

Enslaved souls are stirred to conflict in defense of their chains, and the chains melt in the fires of passion and prejudice lighted by the friction of will with the inertia of mental stupor. Hence the pulpit-pounding to exorcise the Devil evoked the slumbering truth to thunder for the right.

Some eight years ago, Rev. Dr. Spreecher, a prominent Presbyterian divine, preached a series of sermons while I was in the city against Spiritualism, stoutly contending that all mediums were either self-deceived or mendacious impostors. He could not rest with the live issues of two worlds challenging him on every hand, and he vigorously charged upon the young intruder into the time-honored sanctity of dogmatic authority, and seemed confident of his ability to slay the young giant with his theological pebble in his Presbyterian sling. But negations did not answer the positive testimony of millions who had seen, felt, and heard, and knew that the Rev. challenger was ignorant and was battling against High Heaven.

Evidently he could not satisfy himself, for he could not let the subject alone.

Meanwhile, many noted scholars, divines, and disciples of science, have added their testimony to the genuineness of spiritual phenomena. Not that all that has passed for genuine among Spiritualists was endorsed, but enough to demonstrate the reality of the various phases of phenomena. Still the preacher preached and prayed, and "wrestled with the Lord," and could not let his own work rest as the settlement of the problem of life.

Now he shows signs of fruit that has grown from this tree he planted seven or eight years ago. He now declares that whoever denies these facts, such as visions at the door of death, automatic-writing, and even independent slate-writing, is ignorant of what is going on in the world.

And now, it is said that he and another divine have organized a class for the study and development of occult phenomena.

Verily, the "World do move."

For years the public platform work of Spiritualism in this city has slumbered. The cause of this coma I need not report. It is well understood here. Seldom has there been so sudden a death as that which silenced the voice of Spiritualism as a public educator in the Forest City, some seven years ago.

But there have been live men and women here, who never turn their backs to the foe, nor lose faith in the truth and its power to conquer. Among them here are Thomas A. Black, H. S. Powell, Mrs. Henderson, I. W. Pope, and many more who have awaited the time for the sun to again rise on the world and reveal the immortal bloom of this flower of the sky which no storm can destroy, no winter chill its sweet and healing breath.

Now, under the generous and vigorous auspices of Thomas A. Black, a series of meetings have been inaugurated, and are to continue for four consecutive months, closing with Mrs. A. E. Sheets for May. Hon. O. P. Kellogg is to inspire them next month, and I am not able to say who is on the boards for April.

"It thunders all around the sky."

The Plain Dealer, is liberal towards Spiritualism and publishes many helpful reports of phenomena. The Sunday Voice has commenced a series of articles on Spiritism and the occult, and invites correspondence from reliable sources, with accounts of experiences and phenomena of trustworthy character, and that is not a small "straw," nor an indifferent means of educating the public. The air is alive with echoes from the unseen world and the cause is advancing all along the line.

LYMAN C. HOWE.

SAVED BY MURDER.

It is reported that Will Foley, the accused murderer of his mother and sister, and who is now confined in the Liberty jail, has been converted and is now a strong professor of religion.—Kansas City Star.

Of course the murderer was converted after sending his mother and sister, probably unconverted, to hell. The most sure place to win souls to God is the county jail, on the eve of trial, to make a favorable impression on a pious jury, else after conviction, while standing on the threshold of the gallows.

AN ELDER TURNED ROBBER.

A Baptist preacher down in South Carolina, failing to make both ends meet, turned highwayman, and robbed Mark Griffin, a well-to-do farmer who was returning home from Spartanburg. It is a very unfortunate affair, for Rev. Mr. Nesbitt had an engagement to preach at Cowpens on the following Sunday, and many souls may be lost for want of his ministration. The poor fellow only got $35, and that he had to divide with his two pals who are supposed to be members of his church.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER V. Continued.

FIRE CANNOT INJURE A SPIRIT.

Thus you perceive, my friends, that the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth do not always work well; if they did, why do not all the Christians follow them. Again, Jesus said: "Sell all that thou hast, and follow me." Is there a Christian to-day who would sell all that he had and follow in the footsteps of Jesus? make himself a mendicant and pauper? clothe himself in sackcloth and ashes? Think, for one moment, O, ye elegantly clothed Christians! what that means. Imagine yourself clothed in coarse, rough bagging, your hair filled with ashes, roaming about by the seashore, or through other men's cornfields, plucking and eating, the farmer's corn and giving to all those who might follow you. That farmer would have you at once arrested for trespass and theft, yet he might be as good a Christian as yourself. No, my friends; reason and higher laws must take the place of the Christian faith.

But there are really no Christians at all; and there could not be, for if there were any who would really follow Jesus' example and teaching they would at once be locked up in jail and sent to prison afterwards. If a man went roaming through the streets to-day, with a mob or multitude at his heels, as Jesus did, overturning the banks and all the money-changers of State street, the militia would at once be called out, that mob would receive a volley, that ringleader would be captured, tried and, perhaps, hanged, or strapped in the electric chair—in other words, crucified, as Jesus was. The reigning authorities to-day would do precisely what the reigning authorities did in Jesus' time.

Although each and all may think they are Christians or true followers of Jesus and his teachings, they most emphatically ought not to be.

Man will use his reason, whatever he may pretend to believe. The truth is he does not believe or practice what he thinks he does, and it is high time that he analyzed himself, to find out what he really does think and believe; it is high time he analyzed that fearful God he thinks he believes in; it is high time he analyzed hell and the Devil, to find out precisely what their constituents are; and, when once he commences his analysis, he will be greatly surprised at the results of his labors in this direction: His hell fire will disappear; his wrathful, jealous God will vanish; Jesus will become an enthusiastic fanatic, and he will find himself a far more reasonable being; and, really on a higher plane than he supposed.

CHAPTER VI.

SOLON AND MARY VISIT ABRAHAM LINCOLN WITHIN THE HEAVENLY SPHERES.

FATHER ABRAHAM.

Slavery of the black man had now, long since been abolished. Father Abraham, as he was often called on earth, had been within the spiritual sphere for many years and, as all must be as time goes on, was now an angel.

We greatly desired to pay a visit to this great, grand, beautiful, tender-hearted soul—this one who had been a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief in all its various forms—this man who had suffered martyrdom because he believed that all men should be free and as nearly equal as possible; not only did he believe it, but with all the power of his granite strength had swayed the whole earth in the right direction.

Thousand of soldiers had been slain in the great struggle for truth and liberty, to be sure, but not one of them now regretted the loss of his earthly life, for each one found, on coming here, a great reward, such as he had never dreamed of, awaiting him.

We cannot now stop to tell of these rewards, for our business is with the great father of liberty.

About midway of the United States of America, just above the dense atmosphere, perhaps five miles upwards from the earth, we espied an immense dome or crystalline half-sphere, and from its center a towering, golden flagstaff, from which floated a great white flag bordered with gold, and on it in large golden letters the word Liberty!

The shining rays from this great, crystalline half-sphere, appeared to extend from one part of the universe to the other, piercing every city, village, town and hamlet; aye, the rays seemed to enter the heart of each man, woman and child within this vast area, mingling with and animating their very life-blood, until each and every soul felt the desire strong within for liberty—not only liberty of body, but liberty of soul and spirit; they desired to be free from servitude of all kinds; they desired freedom of thought, freedom of action.

Ah, but how were they to do this? The black man was free, to be sure, that is, so far as his mortal body was concerned, but how now was it with the white man?

Sorrowful indeed was the outlook, for we had entered this great crystalline dome and were soon near to where the angel, Abraham Lincoln, was standing, which was directly under the golden staff and flag. Here a singular sight was presented to our view; every ray from the electric sphere, as we now discovered it to be, was revolving like an endless chain, through the hearts of all the people; and as these rays revolved, they brought hither and deposited the groans, sighs and tears of all those who were suffering from bondage of any kind.

Abraham Lincoln had been the father of liberty to the United States; his mission and work had not ended with the assassination of his body, but his sphere of action was enlarged a thousand fold; he, himself, was set free from all bondage, and nothing could thwart or hinder him.

We approached him. Dear reader, please to remember he was an angel; united to his own other self, or female half; otherwise he would not have been an angel; but, of course, the union constituted the perfect whole or oneness, therefore, we shall speak of the angel as him, for earth has no other word which we can use.

He stood, sublimely grand, sublimely tender, a supreme storehouse of love and wisdom, loving all mankind, desiring all wisdom that he might best know how to benefit them.

He clasped our hand, and his smile was joyous and benign as that of a God.

"Sol my Solon," he said, "you are come to rob us? Welcome—most welcome!"

"Yes, Father Abraham," we replied, with an answering smile, "we wish to rob you of a large portion of your wealth, well knowing that the more we take, the more there will be to give."

"I greatly fear," he said, "that your treasures are already greater and of far more value than mine. You have been in this world much longer than I have."

"Yes; but there are those who have been here hundreds of years that might sit at your feet and catch the crumbs which fall from your table—the table of your wisdom and love—Father Abraham."

Thereupon the angel, Abraham, stretched forth their four hands, and from each finger-tip fell pellucid drops, like tears, and as the tears fell, they became jewels of untold value, and lay in four glittering heaps beneath their outstretched hands.

"Solon," he said, "will you accept a few of our tears? for the bondage and grief of many souls come up to us in sighs, groans and tears; wherefore, we are often surcharged, and must rid ourselves in this way. How many of these jewels will you take?" he asked, "for each one of these tears represents some wrong which must be righted; and each jewel a talisman to lead you to one who shed it in grief and bondage of some kind."

"But first, Father Abraham, we must have wisdom enough to know just how best to help the sufferer."

"Certainly!" he answered. "I have so many jewels—such heaps of them—I wish I had armies of soldiers to gather them up and go forth with them to the four quarters of the earth, until every tear was traced to its owner. These tears, as you see, have been transformed, by a natural law of wisdom, into bright jewels of truth, and can, in this form, be dropped back into the souls of those who shed them. But this work can only be done by a bright angel of love and wisdom. Solon, knowing that thou art one of these angels, we greatly desire that you shall join our army, and work with us in the cause of freedom and liberty. Take as many of these jewels as thou canst carry, load yourselves well with them, and return for more when thou hast expended these."

Thereupon we obeyed and took as many as we could carry, and then bade farewell to the angel, Abraham Lincoln. We now returned, to one of our angelic abodes, to rest and examine our treasures, and after we had refreshed and strengthened ourselves by the interchanging of love and wisdom, we commenced our task; for the jewels must be assorted. We found, as we assorted and laid them in heaps, that by far the greater number were from women, or the females of the earth; therefore females were under greater bondage than males, and until a strict balance is struck, justice, truth and liberty, cannot appear. The black may be free, but woman is not, and while she is in bondage, her tears, sighs and groans must arise, as did the black man's, to heaven for deliverance from her slavery. Man is her master at present, and the master and his slave cannot stand on equal ground. Of course, this applies to the mass, and not to particular cases.

Many masters were exceedingly kind to their slaves, but this did not alter the fact that slavery was a horrible crime and stain on the nation or nations wherein it existed or still exists; but the slavery of woman exists in all lands and countries on the face of the earth. Why?

Because the spiritual, or spirituality, is trodden under foot. Love and wisdom do not meet on earth and clasp hands. Woman is a slave so long as she is compelled to obey laws made entirely by man—laws in which she had no voice whatever—therefore, is she not a slave to man by the laws which he alone has enacted? Has she had an equal voice in making the laws by which she is bound? The slave had no voice in the law which made him a slave, but now the black man may have a voice in making the laws by which the most intelligent, refined and gifted white lady, shall be bound; the most drunken, degraded and vicious of men may have a voice in constructing laws whereby the most pure, intelligent and bautiful woman must be governed. Truly it is horrible to contemplate.

Man, as the earth stands to-day, first makes woman his slave, and naturally thereafter his lawful prey. The laws which he makes he does not himself obey; they are really made for her, not himself. She must be strictly pure; he is not expected to be. Woe—woe unutterable to her, if she sins against the laws which he has made for her; while himself drags her down into those very sins, because, otherwise, she must starve, thus becoming his prey, to be thrown aside as worthless, the most wretched of wretched beings, when he tires of her. She had no voice in the making of the laws whereby she is thus hounded to her destruction and death.

Was ever black man half so miserable as an equal number of white women? But the men who cause all this sorrow and misery, where are they? Sitting in chairs of state, my lords and gentlemen, administering the laws which they have made.

Say you: O! no! It is only low, bad men who do these things?

Is there a man in the United States who can look a pure woman in the face and tell her truly, that he is as pure as she is? If you can find him, put him in the presidential chair.

Now who should make the laws by which the world is governed—the pure or the impure? If woman's goodness and purity naturally predominate over man's, why should she not have an equal voice in making the laws by which the world is governed?

Your answer may be, that she represents love and not wisdom.

Our answer is; that love and wisdom must go hand in hand, equally balanced; love must not predominate, wisdom must not predominate, one must not weigh a jot more than the other, or truth and justice are lost.

Do you think there are any outcasts among the angels? No; not one! And why? Because, none can be an angel until the male half is as pure and spotless as the female half. If this were the case on earth, there would be no wretched, weeping, outcast women, bound in awful bondage to man-made laws: man himself would be a thousand times happier if woman had an equal voice in making the laws whereby he and she are governed.

In woman's bondage man is degraded. He allows himself greater license and liberty, which her voice would at once expunge. How many wives and mothers who have suffered from the degrading drunkenness of their husbands, fathers and brothers, would vote for the sale of intoxicating liquors by license? We believe not one. And thus of many other laws too numerous to mention here.

(To be Continued.)

FROM THE SUNNY SOUTH.

To the Editor:—Greeting from "The Sunny South." After one month's labor under the direction of the First Spiritual Church of Louisville, Ky., we bade adieu with regret to the land of the Bluegrass, and thoroughbred racers, and entered last week upon a new campaign in the "Bluff City."

In the former city, we left many pleasant friends, and gave a farewell benefit for the sturdy little society, which has struggled through various ups and downs until recognized foothold has finally been maintained. Memphis is a charming old Southern City, with its picturesque situation and hospitable residents. Like other midway places, it has suffered the invasion of more or less of the "Spiritual trickster" element, the wiles of whom, as Moses Hull declares in a recent article in your paper, are made possible by none so much as the sensation-fiend, not uncommon among Spiritualists, so-called, who, not content with reasonable exhibitions of genuine mediumship, must needs noise incessantly a lusty bawl for all sorts of useless exhibitions of coarse phenomena.

We are seeking to organize during our stay in this city—which will be brief—a chartered society, and have met with gratifying success, having completed measures, before the close of a business meeting held in the parlors of the Cochrane Hotel last night, to obtain a charter, elect officers, etc. This movement will afford a protection to honest mediums, who are under the present state of affairs unable to give sittings, heal or in any way practice their mediumship for livelihood, as they stand liable to the penalty of the law.

In this city as well as Louisville, it is impossible to obtain recognition with the press, or get the notice of Sunday services published, save the meeting be dubbed with the name of church, etc. Not that I believe in opposing the word of the church—much is good in the lessons perpetrated by their practical systematization. So much in illustration of what organization can do. Let us adopt suggestion, though we may enlarge on precept. Yours for activity.

ELLA GIBSON MAGOON.

No. 42 Exchange st., Memphis, Tenn.

SUFFERERS AND HELPERS.

To the Editor:—I beg a brief space in your crowded columns to give a few words of explanation to many of your readers who are in the first class named above, who have not heard from me. The scores of letters which came pouring in from the "sufferers," were so unexpected, and the stories they told so painfully sad, that weeks were required to answer a part of them. They proved that The Progressive Thinker circulates in every State in the Union nearly. Those that were not answered either contained no stamp to pay return postage, or the cases were such that I could not assuage.

The "Helpers" were few—barely one who could remove the troublesome spirits, and she was called to Texas to release a spirit from a young lady who was first possessed by this spirit when six years old. The hopes which were awakened among this army of sufferers, I grieve to think, are sorely crushed. But let me say, dear friends, do not be downcast, or discouraged. Love and justice live, and they are all powerful for good. Perhaps heaven has given to us, who are afflicted, the inmate power to dispel this gloom. I have asked these questions: "Where are we? Are we trespassing on the spheres of darkened spirits? Who can tell what a life, devoted to doing good, with minds free from everything but noble aspiring thoughts, hearts free from passion and with a firm, living faith in the progressive teachings of our philosophy, may do to lift us out of this troublesome sphere? Are we to become our own saviors?

Let us put on the bright armor and try it, friends. Surely it will be better than to depend upon someone else to do this work for us, for in that case we would get no credit marks, nor make any spiritual advancement. Be ever hopeful and courageous.

Some writers on spiritual themes have an easy way of accounting for spirit possession, by referring all cases to what they call "a great law of life—like attracts like." Mrs. Cate says she has found that those persons who are annoyed by evil spirits are "vibrating in negation"—whatever that means—and that knowledge will remove the evils complained of and make all things right. This information has been given her by intuition. I suspect the source of such information, and respectfully advise everyone to test the origin of their "intuition." There is nothing more unreliable than such supposed knowledge.

Now, I want to know when and where this great "law," so glibly talked about, was given to the world? Where is it laid down, and by whom? In the transmission of individual and race qualities, we have a well-established law that "like begets like," but nowhere, either in morals or physics, do we find this oft-repeated phrase laid down as a law, that "like attracts like;" and to declare in a public journal, that the thousands of persons who are tormented by darkened spirits, have, by life or conduct attracted such beings to themselves is a gross insult, and the assertion is made by those who are ignorant of the first principles of natural law. The wonderful, mystic platitudes laid down by some writers of long-winded articles, are truly astounding, and they usually come to the wondering world through "intuition."

I rather prefer facts, however, and the facts I have in my possession, given as the experience of persons of high, pure, Christian character, who are annoyed by demoniacal spirits, themselves, with other cases of innocent children possessed, prove that this "law" of "like attracts like" is a deception, a delusion. CHAS. BETTS.

Burr Oak, Mich.

THE MINNESOTA SPIRITUALISTS' STATE CONVENTION.

A State Convention of Spiritualists will be held in Minneapolis, February 19, 20, and 21st. Professor Barrett, president of the National Association, Washington, D. C., and other prominent speakers and mediums will be present. All State and local organizations are cordially invited to join and make the meeting a united and harmonious one. S. N. Aspinwall, president; J. F. Raymond, secretary.

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

SPIRITUALISM SCIENTIFICALLY DEMONSTRATED.

BY PROF. ROBERT HARE.

His Remarkable Researches Made in the Early Years of Spiritualism.

Directly Edited and Revised by Him, Now in Spirit-Life.

SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS IN FRANCE AND GERMANY.

The following contribution, under the preceding head, is translated by my much esteemed friend, Dr. Gelb, from the work of De Mirville, whence the articles under the designation of Foreign Corroborative Evidence have been obtained through the same able translator:

"Toward the end of the year 1852 the epidemic had been imported into the North Scotland by some American mediums; thence it got to London, where, according to the latest accounts, it must have reached, by the present time, a pretty extensive development. Seeing its progress in this way, we were led to say, if it ever reaches Germany, that whole country will be on fire.

"The Religious Gazette of Augsburg of June 18, 1853, contained an article from which we make some extracts:

"'Again the world is presented with various marvelous appearances, which, coming from elevated sources, force themselves on public notice, and which, in every case, throw a very marked shadow on our own epoch of civilization. It may be appropriate to communicate some of those found in the Gazette Generale; and leaving reflection to the reader, we will give some of the most striking.

"'The Morgen Blatt (Morning Sheet) announces among its novelties from Palatinat Rheenan, the phenomenon of a young girl not yet pubescent, who, they say, is able at will to command a rapping specter, (Klopferle.) The spectre raps as often as the little girl orders him, being obedient in the extreme. What is remarkable is, that the spectres of the Old World, as well as the New, have a strong family likeness, being as much alike as two drops of water. And the Tribune of New York, printed in the German language, has lately contained various communications on this subject. But whence come these rapping spectres, and why make their appearance all at once?'

"The Gazette of Augsburg then refers to several other facts of the same nature, which, at all times, have caused much embarrassment to the German authorities, either in giving rise to lengthy inquests, or in causing the condemnation of persons proved afterward to be entirely innocent; but as for those of the present time, it fully understands, proclaims and demonstrates them to be of the American affiliation.

"The Journal du Magnetisme of the 10th of March, 1853, had already furnished us with the reported account given in the course of last January to the tribunal of London, by the rapping spirit of the house of Sanger; the same phenomena, the same stupefaction, the same impossibility to discover the jugglers. However, the subject appeared to rest at this point in Germany, when, in the month of April, the first phenomenon of table moving reached Bremen, and then the Augsburg Gazette insisted on its true origin.

"'For eight days previous,' it said, 'our good town has been in an agitation difficult to describe; it is completely absorbed by a miracle which was not thought of before the arrival of the steamer from New York—the Washington. The new phenomenon is imported from America.'

"Now a certain Doctor Andre was the first to describe this first exhibition of table turning; therefore they called it his discovery. What a discovery!

"'Having formed a chain,' he says, 'of seven or eight persons, the right little finger of each touching the left one of his neighbor, the table they surround will commence turning, and continue as long as the chain remains unbroken, and stop when an individual leaves it.'

"A general burst of pleasantry and incredulity first accompanied the revelation of the doctor. But soon experiment begins, and laughter gives place to a sort of dejection. Certain savans, professors of the University of Heidelberg, MM. Mittermouner and Zoepfl, M. Mohl, brother of the member of the Institute, Eschenmajer, Ennemoser, and Kerner, attest the same facts; and Doctor Loewe of Vienna undertakes to give the theory of it: 'This theory consists, according to him, in the opposite polarity of the right and left sides of the human body; hence, having formed a chain of human beings, the contrary poles of which, viz. the right and left, touch each other, and this chain, exerting upon any body whatever a prolonged action, conveys to it an electric current, and converts it into a magnet, and thus polarization is established in that body; and in virtue of its tendency to magnetic orientation, the south pole of the table impressing it with a movement to the north, the latter commences a continued rotation, and turns on its axis as long as the indispensable conditions are continued.'

"Unfortunately, the spirits are very soon seen to dispense with these indispensable conditions. Thus, then, at Bremen, Vienna and Berlin, there was not a table at rest on its legs, and still the French press observed a uniform inexplicable silence!

"We ask, however, what would have been said, had we foretold what began to appear unavoidable, that in less than a month, table and hat turning would reach Paris. The announcement was scarcely known when it appears that such a thing has always existed; that it is a law of nature; and that tables never had any other destiny!

"Again we inquire of all serious minds, What is the faculty by which we predict, among other coming events, the turning of tables, which, nevertheless, do not turn till after the arrival of a vessel and a medium? However, since becoming impossible, the French press has thought proper to speak. On the 4th of May, the Journal of the Empire, Le Pays, happened to inform us that 'from the Baltic to the banks of the Danube, all Germany was in a fever.' It became then plainer and plainer that we were going to be infected, and from that time we hastened to prepare our batteries.

"It was high time, for about the end of April, the grand mysterious army had this time decidedly crossed the Rhine, and in all the large cities of France—Strasburg, Marseilles, Bordeaux, Toulouse, etc.—the turning epidemic broke out like a discharge of musketry; and better to impress the mind, it only at first attacked stands, tables, hats, seats, etc., for all these participated in the demonstration.

"At Paris especially, in repeating the experiments, they were made a pastime for a soiree. Children were introduced into the circles, without considering whether correlative evil might not be coupled with these mysterious amusements.

"It is true they would not allow the smallest Léyden jar to come near them; but what troubles might have resulted from the action of an electricity that could raise tables of eighteen dishes like a feather?

"It is true, too, that M. Rouilly, maitre de pension at Orleans, undertook to give an answer. In the Moniteur due Loiret, he informs us that 'at his house, even in the middle of the process, a large young man of twenty-six was seized with a violent trembling in all his limbs, and that his left forearm began to oscillate in a frightful manner, making as many as a thousand movements in a minute; being able, he said, to utter only in broken syllables; staggered like an intoxicated man; it was necessary to carry him to bed, and the next day he still felt some nervous trembling.' M. Rouilly ended in saying 'that he felt it his duty to report this fact for the benefit of those who may enter into these experiments without knowing their possible serious inconveniences.' Little attention was paid to this, so much had fashion asserted empire, so much was this pleasure worth its cost.

"However, knowing long since all the particulars, we are disposed to ask ourselves, What is going to result from all this? what will the savans say? Will they allow themselves to be carried away by electric appearances? will their philosophy allow them to seek independently of the fluids, which may be imagined to operate, the real agent of such a variety of effects? No; they well know, however, that in the sciences—medicine, for example—every investigation that stops short of phenomena, is of very secondary value; we may be satisfied, for want of better, still we do not feel ourselves in possession of the truth; we still seek it. Why in this case should we do otherwise? These suppositions were just, but we say without hesitation our fantastic experimenters committed from the first an unpardonable fault, philosophically speaking; that is, not to have taken the least notice of those facts from America which were beginning to sound in their ears from all sides. When we are visited by the plague, yellow fever, or cholera, the first care of the faculty is to have it studied in Egypt, Spain, and Poland. These scourges are investigated even at the place of their birth; we notice their origin, development, and termination. Well! in doing the same in this case, these gentlemen would have seen as clear as day that the Augsburg Gazette was right in telling them that this animal magnetizing was received direct from America. But what shall we do? we take no pleasure in looking at what we do not want to see.

"This morning, in a journal of Lorraine, there is a notice of a circle formed in a first story, round a massive table; as long as the circle continued nothing was done; but getting tired they all leave for the street, and a few moments afterward the rebellious table begins to waltz, as if to bid defiance to the party. What a law of physics, what electricity! Behold, on the other hand, cities and countries disinherited! Behold the City of Valence, who labored all in her power, who followed with angelic patience all the prescriptions of the new science; nothing could produce the phenomena. Is it that at Valence, perchance, the human species has no electricity? Mon Dieu! it has electricity, but it is not of that accidental and local kind, the real kind for the occasion, and which may be therefore denominated erratic; as the ancients called those gods that moved about from place to place.

"No, Science is not to be so deceived; she is not satisfied with the explanation of the little fingers, but soon perceives that these little fingers supply here precisely the part of the famous mesmeric trough, and the chain that was formed entirely round it. Then, also, the chain was said to be very important; and the trough, magnet, steel, glass pile all necessary agents. Very well, what has now become of all these necessities? The magnetic effects exceed all those of that time, and notwithstanding they are not made any use of. Much more! since the passes have ceased to be the fashion, the phenomena have doubled. In Germany, where people go to the bottom of things, they have desired to look into the heart of it. Each master of the magnet—and they are pretty plenty there—has constructed his own trough. That of Walford consists of an iron box, furnished with bottles, iron wire, ground glass, etc. That of Keiser was made of beech without bottles, and filled with water, which did not prevent the effects from being precisely the same in the two cases. Thus it was said: It is magnetism alone which gives them this power, and they magnetized their best. But one lucky day it was thought proper not to magnetize, and the trough lost none of its power! 'Ah! ah!' they say, 'the trough is magnetized by the magnetized patients themselves, and they put a stout man into it, free from all magnetic influence, and besides in excellent health. Well, this time! the magnetic effects exceeded in intensity all the previous experiments, and never had the phenomena exhibited themselves so brilliantly.'

"This is the precise account of the famous report of Baily, of which M. Arago spoke so highly in his last memoir; and in one respect he was right; for these great experimenters did not allow themselves to be caught by any of these electric seductions, and proclaimed physics to be entirely innocent of all the effects they witnessed. But at the same time they thought proper to refer to the imagination these same prodigious effects, which no one could understand even after having seen them; and there was their great mistake; they were right as savans, as philosophers inexcusable.

"Moreover, this absurd explanation by imagination he renewed under these circumstances; and that of jugglery is not more fortunate. What prejudice! These two words rendered much service, and covered many retreats! That is, however, passed; it will be necessary hereafter, not only to admit them, but to redeem all analogous precedents, for these are about to be, at last, explained. Again, what is to be done? It will be necessary to proclaim that these electric phenomena which are real as an effect, are not in fact real in their cause; that they lie when they wish the contrary to be believed, that they joke when they act by turns with and without a chain in a particular town, and not in some other, etc.

"But on the other hand to perceive a capricious and lying cause, is almost to perceive * * * a mind. A mind, grands dieux! You represent yourself before the whole Academy Arago as recognizing spirits, hobgoblins! grand experiment! But that itself is horrid to contemplate! Not a face at the Institute can remain uncovered, and that day will forever be regarded as unlucky for science, as it robs it of a victory which was thought to have been gained centuries before.

"In a letter of May 24th from M. Seguin, one of our most distinguished engineers, to the Abbe Moigno, who had very ably opposed these experiments in Le Pays, M. Seguin says, 'When I reason dispassionately on the real and very positive results which I have obtained, and seen obtained by others before my eyes, I think myself under the control of an hallucination which causes me to see things differently to what they are, so much does my reason refuse to admit them; but when I repeat my experiments, I find it impossible any longer to resist the force of evidence; when indeed it confounds and upsets all my opinions.

"'How can you expect me to accept your explanation, when a table touched very lightly by the ends of the fingers, presses against my hand and against my legs to such a degree as to repel me and almost break itself? How believe that the person whose hands touch it could impart to it a force equal to such efforts, and especially when that person is myself? Accept, then, freely and with courage, the facts as they are, the facts well seen and satisfactorily produced by myself, in whom you have, I think, as much confidence as in yourself. The explanation will come hereafter, rest assured. Believe firmly that in these phenomena of turning tables there is something more than you see—a physical reality outside of the imagination and of the faith of those who appear to make them move.'

"M. Agenor De Gasparin, one of our most sedate philosophers, writes in La Gazette de France:—'I will not insist on this point. The phenomena of rotation, if alone, would not appear to me entirely satisfactory. I am mistrustful, though not an academician, and, I admit, that it may be possible (at a pinch) that a mechanical impulsion might be communicated. But the rotation only serves to present other phenomena, the explanation of which it is impossible to refer to any kind of muscular action.

"'Each of us, in his turn, gave orders to the table, which it promptly obeyed; and I should succeed with difficulty in explaining to you the strange character of these movements, of blows struck with an exactness, with a solemnity that fairly frightened us. "Strike three blows; strike ten blows. Strike with your left foot; with your right foot; with your middle foot. Rise on two of your feet; on only one foot; remain up; prevent those on the side raised from returning the table to the floor." After each command the table obeyed. It produced movements that no complicity, involuntary or voluntary, could have induced; for we should have afterward tried in vain to place it on one foot, and keep it there by the pressure of the hands, resisting incontestably the efforts to press it down.

(To be Continued.)

DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

A MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL ARBITRATION LEAGUE—ORGANIZING FOR THE RED CROSS MOVEMENT—EN ROUTE AROUND THE WORLD.

A tour round the world even in these days of rapid steam transit, would be to most people a rather awesome undertaking, but to Dr. J. M. Peebles, A. M., M. D., a gentleman now in his 75th year, it seems but a trival matter. Twice already has Dr. Peebles circled the globe, and he is now in Sydney, having completed a big section of his third round trip. Leaving San Francisco on December 4, he visited Hawaii, the Fiji Islands, and New Zealand, arriving here from the latter colony on Monday by the R. M. S. Alameda. Hence he will proceed to Ceylon, the East Indies, Siam, Malacca, India, Persia, Thibet, Egypt, Palestine, Southern Europe, Rome, Paris, and London. He expects to arrive back at his home at San Diego, California, before the close of the year.

Dr. Peebles' present mission is partly in connection with the Medical Red Cross Commission, a movement with which the name of Clara Barton, now in Armenia, is intimately associated. He is also authorized to solicit memberships in the International Congress of Physicians and Surgeons which will be convened at Paris in 1900. Dr Peebles is also interesting himself in theosophy. While in Thibet he will strive to interview a Mahatma. Should he succeed, his experience will make more interesting reading than interviews do as a rule.

Dr. Peebles is a ubiquitous person. He is president of the College of Science, California, and is responsible for the publication of a number of bulky volumes. The wide range that his works cover can be gathered from the titles: "How to Live a Century," "Witch Poison and its Antidote," "Around the World," and "Jesus: Myth, Man, or God?" Among multifarious other matters in which Dr. Peebles has interested himself is the international arbitration question. He was appointed in 1881 by the National Arbitration League of the United States "representative abroad" to meet the International Peace Congress of Europe. Amongst other things that he disapproves most strongly of are capital punishment, compulsory vaccination, class medical legislation, and intemperance. He supports the movement having for its object womanhood suffrage and full equality with man for the other sex.—The Telegraph, Sydney, New South Wales.

GONE TO THE LAND OF FLOWERS.

Written in Memory of Mrs. Anna Orvis, by Stephen H. Barnsdale.

So thou, dear friend, art gone!
Thou of superb grace,
And voice with love's rich tone—
Ah! who shall fill thy place?
Gone to the land of flowers,
Of sunlight and of peace!
Where sweetly glide the hours,
And pleasures never cease!

Glad are we for thee,
That thou hast won thy home
Above the sod and dew
In yon blue, starry dome;
A home with beauty bright,
Adorned with jewels rare—
Results of living right—
Of an earth-life grand and fair.

Gone to the land of flowers—
For thee our tears will fall—
Gone to thy queenly bowers,
Revered and loved by all.
O, sister! mother! wife!
With work well done on earth;
Farewell to all thy pain and strife—
Thou hast won a heavenly birth.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

There is a remarkable difference between master and mind, that he that doubts the existence of mind, by doubting proves it.—Colton.

MATERIALIZATIONS.

SOUTHWORTH COMES FORTH FROM HIS QUIET HOME NOOK WITH ANSWERS TO NUMEROUS QUESTIONS PROPOUNDED BY JOSEPH SMITH—THE ANSWERS WERE FURNISHED HIM BY A SPIRIT, WHO SEEMS TO THEORIZE PRETTY WELL.

To the Editor:—In your issue of The Progressive Thinker of the February 4th, under the caption of "Some Very Pertinent Questions Submitted to Southworth," Mr. Joseph Smith quotes and asks questions as follows:

In an article on Materialization in The Progressive Thinker of January 16, 1897, Southworth says:

"The vital force of the grabbed form belongs to the medium, and at all hazards this must be returned or the physical death of the medium is a certainty. The materialized form is fast in the grasp of personified ignorance, and if the materializing spirit allows the form to dissipate into its elements while in the grasp of the grabber, the vital force of the medium must also be dissipated at the same time. The physical life of the medium must not be sacrificed, and the invariable course of the guides in these cases is to call the body of the medium to the vital force. So through all time and under all circumstances the grabber will find the medium in his grasp, and each time the grabber will cry 'exposed,' and the ignorant public will say 'of course.'"

Such positive assertion coming from acknowledged ability and experience, awakens a lively line of thought in the minds of doubters; and a volley of interrogations is fired at the nearest defender of the assertions, such as:

First—Would it not be easier to return the vital force to the medium than to bring the medium to the vital force?

Second—If the vital force of the medium was in the grabbed form, what force would move the medium?

Third—If the vital force returned to the medium after a form has dematerialized, and no serious results follow to the medium, could not the vital force, by the same law withdraw from the grabbed form and return, as in other cases, to the medium, while the grabbers stand with empty hands as the form vanishes?

Fourth—Could the physical form of the medium, with or without the vital force, but under strict test conditions, be taken from the cabinet, pass through the curtain, advance to the middle of the room, and repossess the vital force, unobserved by the grabbers or others?

Fifth—Could the bony arms or strong garments of the medium be made to pass unobserved into the hands of the grabbers now preoccupied by the materialized form?

Sixth—As the materialized form must remain in the firm grasp of its captors until the physical form of the medium relieves it, have we not solved a problem that all the philosophers of the world have claimed never could be solved—viz.: to make two solids of equal density occupy the same space at one and the same time? But we must desist, for many of these things seem unphilosophical to us, yet they may be clear and comprehensive to others; and while I am a believer in materialization, I acknowledge myself unable to comprehend the philosophy by which it is produced, and I fear friend Southworth has not got the right whistle of it either. He is as far probably from the truth as Neptune is from earth.

Before I had seen that issue of the paper or knew anything of Mr. Smith's article, the materialized form I knew so well, told me while materialized that questions would be asked, and she asked me to hold a pair of slates with her at that time, as she wished to write replies to the queries.

The slates, clean and fastened together, were at hand, and she held them with me for, probably, one minute. I give the replies as they are on the slates without comment:

"In the coming Progressive Thinker, you will find questions directed to yourself, and may I suggest a few thoughts to assist you to answer them? To the first question I reply: No! because the antagonistic force of the grabber is in action against the passive force of the materialized form, holding it stationary until the active force of the spirit cabinet control can bring the physical of the medium."

"Second—The spirit force of the cabinet control takes charge of the physical body of the medium, and can and does move it at will; can also render the physical body of the medium invisible, if a body has materialized and taken the vital force properly belonging to the medium. The physical (by the control) is brought in connection with the vital and immediately assimilates or takes it over; then returns the material forces, gathered from the circle, to it again. Material can be so atomized as to become invisible to the human eye."

"Third—The vital force does not return to the medium after the form has dematerialized, but before, thus rendering the materialization inert, or lifeless as a body, and easily disintegrated."

"Fourth—Yes, many instances have been related and authenticated, that the physical body of a medium has been taken from a room, when doors and windows were sealed, and found afterward in an adjoining room, by the circle hunting, the medium still being under control, or in charge of the guiding spirit."

"Sixth—As the transformation is so subtile and imperceptible to the human eye, the grabber cannot be cognizant of one particle and substitution of another instantaneous, and the displacement of one article and substitution of another precludes the idea of two solids occupying the same space at the same time."

Let me add that in my article I gave only my experiences and the deductions that seemed true to me. The deductions were approved by the guides. I have here given their thoughts and words. It is "the right whistle" Brother Smith, for these guides have never given me a hint of an untruth. You may rely on the correctness of the answer.

Chicago, Ill. SOUTHWORTH.

HUMAN RESPECT.

Don't care what people say, acknowledge that which you know to be right; stand up publicly if necessary, and proclaim the truth. Use your own senses, and abound in it. Don't try to get anybody to agree with you. No two noses are alike, much less souls. I can name a Methodist minister right here in Pittsburgh, who on Sunday will preach to his congregation and tell them what they should do to be saved; and through the week he will go contrary to his sermon on Sunday, such as smoking, social card-playing and, if in a fit of anger, which is occasionally the case with him, he will swear!

Think for yourself, and go according to your own conscience; you then will be on the right road—push on. Our maxim is: "Be sure you are right, and then go ahead." How much that is good and noble in the soul is smothered by unwise restraint! The whole object of restraint is to correct that preference given to a lower good instead of to a higher one. As for the rest—freedom, liberty! J. C. EDWARDS MARKER.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

ON THE VERGE OF DEATH.

THE GREAT JOURNEY.

Vividly Portrayed by a Returned Traveler.

SHE RELATES HER EXPERIENCE —FOR THE BENEFIT OF OTHERS —"O DEATH, WHERE IS THY STING?" — "DEATH IS SWALLOWED UP IN VICTORY."

In The Progressive Thinker for February 6, "William Gray" gives his terrible experience. Such narrations must always be of interest, as explaining what those unfortunate persons who are buried in the trance state must suffer, before death relieves them.

That a great many are buried alive we know; and it is high time that science and law take up the matter and make it impossible that such things can occur. But I think "William Gray" is mistaken in his idea that he was really dead. I think he was in a state of suspended animation; and that he suffered its agonies. But he was not dead.

I take up this subject because I feel strongly on what I consider false teachings regarding death. I do not believe that death is physical suffering, or mental torture. I believe death, of itself, is as sweet as sleep. There may be physical agony up to the point of death, and from our false beliefs there may be mental torture, but when death comes, it is our friend, not a great black terror to be feared.

I believe this because I have given the subject a great deal of thought, have consulted with many thoughtful physicians, and also because of an experience of my own. This I will give you just as it occurred. To those who do not know me, I think our editor will be willing to vouch for my veracity. I will not enter into details further than to say that I was very low, although suffering from no disease. My baby had been buried during the day, and about ten o'clock at night I told the weary nurse to lie down, as I needed no attention. I fell asleep, and was aroused by a sudden lurch of my head forward on the pillows. I tried to move back, but seemed to have no power. I thought how extremely weak I must be.

My left arm lay extended outside the bed. With an effort I drew it up and pushed my head back onto the pillow. As I did so I noticed that my fingers were stiff, and that my forehead was icy cold and very wet. I wondered a little at this, and noticed that my hand fell back and I could no longer move it; also that the perspiration dripped off my chin and struck the pillow with a steady pat, pat, pat. This aroused me to a sense that it was what is called the "death sweat," and I thought I would call the nurse. But I found that I could not speak, or move the slightest particle.

I now noticed the intense cold, although it was one of the hottest of July nights. I also felt the perspiration run down my arm and heard it drop on the carpet. Then I thought: "So this is death." I was a little anxious to watch the phenomenon, to note it all, and not let any phase of it pass unnoticed. I felt the terrible cold of my feet and limbs. The death chill was nearly to the knees and elbows at this time. I thought: "When the chill reaches the vitals, I shall become unconscious." I noticed that it came in waves. It washed up, as it were, and I said to myself: "This is why people say the 'river of death,' because the chill washes up like the rising of an icy tide."

I thought then of my family. I was sorry that to the loss of the little babe, they must also suffer the loss of wife and mother. "I would have been glad to say 'good-by,'" I thought and then: "No, it is better as it is. Let them sleep sweetly. It will be bad enough for them to know when it is all over."

Then I thought of myself. I realized that I was going out into the unknown. Was I afraid? I asked myself. And I felt not the shadow of fear. What of my faith? I next thought. I was raised in the most cast-iron straight-jacket of religion, and from extensive Bible, and history study, had become a broad-minded Spiritualist. I believed simply in the "Fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, the progression of the human soul, and the communication between spirits out of the body and in."

This was what I had lived by. I thought it over. "It was the best I knew, and am not afraid to die by it," I decided, and mind you, I felt no uncertainty, no fear, just perfect rest, and content. All this time the cold waves were washing higher.

Then I thought of my life. I saw no review of it, at all, but I realized that I had often failed to do as well as I wished to. But as I looked back at myself I saw that my intentions had always been good, and for the little failings I said: "I know I should fail in lots of ways if I had it all to live over again," and somehow I did not blame the woman just dead, for her many little failures. Do you see how gently death was dealing with me?

My mind was perfectly clear, and very quick and comprehensive. I thought "what have I left undone?" and I remembered that I had not answered a late letter from a little nephew, and though "I am sorry I did not answer it while I was living, but he will never know that now."

Again I thought of the family, and pitied them; and then—then I was walking alone by the side of a wide sea. Away to the right were beautiful meadows; over there was sunlight and flowers and bird-songs, all the things that I so love, but here where I walked was the icy sea. The waves washed about me, the tide was coming in, and every wave was higher than the preceding. I was cold—deathly cold, but still I knew that I must pass this way, and I was content to do so. I felt no mental sensations except that of observation. I saw the gray mist all about me, saw the water—it was not like the sea, except as it is at night, very dark; and no white foam capped the waves, no pretty little ripples splashed back down the wet sand. It was more solemn and perfectly silent. But still, to the right lay the beautiful meadows. I did not fear the water—did not long to be in the sunlight. I knew this was my way, and I walked perfectly content.

Then, I passed the water. I was warm, and light, and gloriously happy, and coming down the sunny slope a few steps in front of me was my little boy, with the baby in his arms. I sprang forward crying: "Oh, this is heaven! and I have come to my little boys." I caught them both up in my arms, and as I kissed the baby's face—he was only five days old—the moist little baby mouth caught at my cheek. I saw a look in my oldest boy's eyes that I did not understand—a look as though he wished, intensely, that I would stay with him, but that he did not think I would. I was so rejoiced, and I said: "Oh, Evie! mamma came soon enough to be able to carry both her babies, did she not?"

I had worried so much in the years that followed his death—he was only four years old when taken out of my arms, and I feared he would be a young man before I went to him. He did not answer, and the look of sadness deepened in his eyes.

Then there was a blank. The next I knew I thought there was a sack full of broken bottles that some one was rolling.

A little later I realized that the sack of bottles was myself, and at every roll and slap the ragged glass cut into my tortured nerves. This was not death, but the nurse shaking the stagnent blood into my chilled veins. This occurred at midnight. Several doctors and steady attendance put me in condition that permits me to-day to relate my experience.

This was fifteen years ago. But I have had no fear of death since.

The physicians did not consider this a trance state, but a sinking into death. For days after, every stimulant was used, and it was only a question of vitality whether I recovered or not.

One little experience I recall vividly. After the physician arrived the strongest stimulants possible had been administered; I had been wrapped in mustard to restore the circulation and every thing possible was done; one physician took my wrist, placed his fingers on my pulse and said: "Now you must sleep."

I looked my inquiry. His answer was plain: "No. I don't know that you will ever wake again, but you must sleep. You cannot live over fifteen minutes if you do not. If you sleep there is one chance in a thousand that you may live. Now go to sleep. I will hold your hand, and go to the border with you."

I shut my eyes. Was I afraid? Not a particle. Did my past haunt me? Not a thought of it came up. I had a queer, quizzical little feeling—a desire to smile because the situation was so sort-of-queer.

I wished that I could save my friends their tears, but I knew that I was helpless. For myself? Well, there was heaven and my boys over on the other side.

And very obediently I slept.

Since the next waking, I have felt that I ought to go out and preach down the dread of death. I have never done so, but I want to say to "William Gray" that when death comes I don't believe he will feel any molten lead in his brain. Pain will be past forever.

ROSE EVANGELINE ANGEL.

REFLECTIONS ON THE SOUL AND LIFE.

During one short instant when the soul is preparing to desert the temple of clay, and while pausing upon the threshold of a future existence, the personality becomes one with the individual and all-knowing Ego; and looking down into the arena of life it is leaving, beholds the picture gallery of the soul's progress through all the past. But certain conditions may be evolved, by deep meditation and introspection, whereby the soul, while incarnated in the earthly form, may draw near to the center of its own being, and catch glimpses of a glory that appears to be not of this brief life only, but of vanished years innumerable. Through the gateway of the center, inward, lies the kingdom of the soul; and secluded in the stores of its mystic memory are treasures of knowledge that has been molded from the lessons of ages—an epitome of generations that have passed away. Does the possession of this knowledge necessitate the pre-existence of the soul and its former incarnations? While it is known that there are certain fixed laws governing the reincarnation of the soul, yet those who are classed with these laws and special conditions are comparatively few to those who come under the more general conditions of that law of human evolution which is eternally progressive through successive spheres, grade above grade, and of which the earth plane is only the first round in the cycle of unfoldment.

The acorn is an epitome of all the trees of its kind that have preceded it; and with proper conditions of soil, and rain and wind, will come forth and manifest upon the objective plane the full measure of its possibility, which is not reached until it has expressed all the attributes of the most perfect tree of its predecessors, plus the added advantages of its own environment. The acorn has existed in the past in essence but not in individuality. The soul of man has always existed in essence, and that essence is now expressed in individuality, endowed with the possibility of manifesting all the knowledge and powers of its progenitors, plus the education it has gained by self-contact during its earthly existence.

Behold the seed of the plant as it falls from the parent stem and is buried in the soil of Earth. It has become a new center in the organic sea, with the attributes of its predecessors concentrated in its tiny hull. Feebly at first it responds to the impulse of Nature; and bursting from its narrow confines, pushes forward with its tiny rootlets in search of the food essential for its growth. The silent and unseen forces of nature arouse in the seed an expansive energy that draws it upward from the somberness and density of its home within the soil, and it sends forth its tender shoots into the favorable conditions of light and heat. From certain inherent attributes of force or chemical affinity it combines the elements of matter and forms them into a marvelous expression of beauty. The energy that was once imprisoned and concentrated in the seed now trembles in the luxuriant foliage of the full grown plant, and sends forth its essence through the fragrant, sun-kissed blossoms.

As the impulse of nature causes the seed of the plant to grow and expand until it has expressed the inherent attributes of its nature, so the breath of life is breathed into the human germ at conception and it becomes a living soul. So, too, may the soul be compared to the plant in its development. Awakening from its dormant beginning, it gropes for a time in darkness, and feels about in an indefinite way. Gradually it becomes rooted in the basic principles of human existence and is nourished by the soil of earth conditions; then obeying the higher law of aspiration it grows and expands into the atmosphere of education, until its branches are multiplied and perfected by a knowledge that ages of time alone have accumulated and placed within its reach. And now the astral vibrations stir into being the higher attributes of the soul; its leaves respond to a prophetic instinct of the dawning of a higher life; its branches are swayed by the wooing breezes of universal truth; and basking in the radiant sunlight of love, it is thrilled with a spiritual inspiration that buds and blossoms into the glorious reality of its eternal day.

URIEL BUCHANAN.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains he lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

TO CONTRIBUTORS:—It is impossible to publish everything that comes to this office, however meritorious it may be, and no one should feel in the least offended because his (or her) article does not appear. Our space is limited, and we often deeply regret that certain articles are crowded out.

One of the largest and most harmonious conventions ever held by the Spiritualists in Boston, occurred in the Spiritual Temple, on the 2nd inst, under the auspices of the N. S. A. Many prominent workers in the Spiritualistic field were present, among them the president of the Association, H. D. Barrett; Dr. Geo. Fuller, president of the Massachusetts State Association; Moses and Mattie E. Hull. Oscar Edgerly, Sarah A. Byrnes, Mrs. N. J. Willis, Mrs. Carrie Loring, Dr. T. A. Bland, Mrs. Holcomb, Nellie Holt Harding, Kate R. Styles, J. C. F. Grumbine, Dr. Smith of Brandon, Vt., Mrs. Tillie Reynolds, and A. E. Tisdale. Excellent music was furnished at each of three sessions. The leading Boston papers gave good notices of the same.

Mrs. Mattie E. Hull is engaged to lecture in Worcester, Mass., two last Sundays of the present month. In Philadelphia, March 6th and 14th. In Haverhill, Mass., 21, and 28. She has open dates in April; will spend the month of May in Grand Rapids, Mich. She will make engagements if so desired, for week-nights in places adjacent to those points where she delivers Sunday lectures. Address, Stoneham, Mass., Lock Box 3.

W. T. Greene writes from Unionville, Mo., praising the work of Isa Wilson Kayner in that place. Her lectures and tests afforded great satisfaction to Spiritualists, and convinced many of the reality of spirit-life and spirit return.

At the mass convention in Brooklyn, $800 was raised. Pretty good results from that city of churches.

J. F. Snider writes: "There has been organized in Muncie another society of Spiritualists known as the Church of the Spirit. Officers elected on January 31, 1897, for the ensuing year were: President, W. A. McDonald; vice-president, A. A. Barker; secretary, J. F. Snider; treasurer, Lucy J. Thompson; trustees, W. J. Thompson, Harry Griffin and Josephine Griffin. The new organization bids fair to be one of the strongest in the State. It starts out with about thirty-five members who are active and who will push the cause of Spiritualism in every way for its betterment. At present we are meeting in a neat little hall, but expect in the near future to start a fund for the purpose of buying a lot and building us a home of our own."

Frank T. Ripley writes: "I have just read the brave words of Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten and Mrs. Clara Watson, in answer to the letter of Mrs. R. S. Lillie. Now, without the phenomena there is no actual proof of the immortality of the soul, and for one I am very thankful to these ladies for their brave words. There was a plot on foot to put all phenomenal mediumship (several years ago) off the public platform, and the parties who tried to do this, are now reaping their reward for attempting to shut the mouths of test mediums. I am very glad that there are two in our ranks who dare to defend true mediumship through good and evil report."

H. J. Anderson, 50 E. Third street, Station A, Portland, Oregon, desires the addresses of Mrs. E. Keeler and M. A. Armstrong.

Charles Howell, 58 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: "We have concluded to have an old-fashioned celebration in this city on the Forty-ninth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism, to be held the 27th and 28th of March next, and we would be pleased to correspond with some good speaker as well as platform test medium for that occasion, or at least for the Sunday service, and would be pleased to have you give space to this communication that we may get in line with such speaker and medium, and for the further reason of giving publicity to the occasion that all may come and partake of the good and bountiful things that is in store for all seekers after truth. Arrangements will be made for caring for all who may come from outside the city, and all are cordially invited. Those corresponding with me as speaker or medium, state terms, experience and reference, remembering that 'prosperity' has not been this way in very large chunks yet."

Mrs. Nagell, the Spiritualist medium, who last Thursday evening delivered an address and gave platform tests before the Society for Practical Progress, which meets every Thursday evening in Burton's Hall, acquitted herself very creditably on the occasion. The subjects for her address were given by the audience and she spoke impromptu. The lady claims to speak under inspiration. Her address was, in the main, of a high order, showing a familiarity with the subjects handled. At times, however, the speaker appeared to lose her alleged invisible prompters, when her remarks and language dropped to the level of the commonplace. To the question, "Is death an endless sleep?" the lady replied with promptness, "No; death is an endless awakening." Mrs. Nagell will entertain the society one week from to-night, in the same hall.—Snohomish (Wash) Eye.

The Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal announces Spiritualist services at Cochran Hall, by Doctor and Mrs. Magoon, and says: "Steps have already been taken to incorporate the Memphis society under the laws of the State, and also to secure a legal charter from the National organization at Washington, D. C. It is the design and resolute purpose of the local officers to conduct and maintain their society on the lines of high order of conduct, and to have regular Sunday services, introducing from time to time lecturers and mediums from the North and East, and only those that bear credentials and the stamp of approval of the National society. By this means the Memphis branch will be able to present and protect worthy representatives of Spiritualism and save their members from being deluded and imposed upon by traveling fakirs and fortune-tellers who ply their vocation under the guise of Spiritualism."

J. C. F. Grumbine's address for February and March is 309 Green avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

E. J. Bowtell has removed to 900 Marion street, corner of Cedar, Canton, Ohio, where spiritual meetings are held at which he lectures on Sunday afternoons, and on Saturday evenings answers questions concerning the spiritual philosophy and kindred subjects. The association at Massillon, O., for which he has been speaking on Sunday evenings for the past four months, has suspended those meetings for the present, pending arrangements which they hope to conclude for the exclusive use of a hall. Is engaged by the Central New York Camp-meeting Association, July 24, 25 and 26. Would be glad to hear from other camps and societies. Address as above.

Wm. Oehlstrom, secretary, writes: "Mrs. Dr. Nellie Mosier, of North Lindale, Ohio, has just closed an engagement as test medium before the Cleveland Progressive Thought Society, where she has given public tests since November 1. The number of tests are 107, and every one of them was recognized, all of them are on record in a book by me."

Daniel Fay writes from Bridgeport, Conn.: "I think Spiritualism is progressing here this winter. We have some of the best speakers every Sunday morning and evening. We have had Mr. Hull, Dr. Harding, Mrs. Whitlock, Mrs. Reynolds, Tisdale and others. We are going to have Lizzie Harlow and Oscar Edgerly. Our managers of this society are some of the best workers in the cause. We have very good attendance evenings. We are working under the collection plan and not admittance fee, and I think the advantage is on collection. We are being more recognized by the press."

Levi Wood writes from South Haven, Mich.: "I have not seen any report from our society in a long time, but will say we are meeting every Sunday at 10:30 a. m., and our meetings are nominally conducted by the people in the form of a conference, with much interest. There is a growing interest here to learn more of our philosophy, among all shades of thinkers and isms of belief, but Mother Grundy stands in front of all and keeps many away."

"Committee" writes: "The Society of Spiritual Unity of Cincinnati, Ohio.—Rev. Marguerite St. Omer Briggs, pastor; Chas. W. Brown, president; Dr. J. W. Briggs, secretary; Board of Trustees, Mrs. Eva Glen Keck, Caroline Richter and Henry Thorn; vice-presidents, Mrs. Amelia Eiche and Mrs. E. G. Keck; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Dee."

In the death of Mrs. Louisa Harris, the late Police Matron, of the Central District St. Louis, Mo., the world has lost a splendid exemplification of that true spirit of that charity, that prompts one to go about the world doing good unboastingly. Mrs. Harris has been connected with the police department, as matron at the Four Courts, for thirteen years, and hundreds of fallen women owe their elevation to a life of usefulness and purity to her motherly interposition and protection, to say nothing of the many young girls that have been rescued at the threshold of ruin and restored to their parents and friends. The experience of her official position opened the gate-way for many needed reforms and was the means of bringing into existence several charitable institutions for the caring for women and children, all of which were promoted and controlled under the guidance of this master spirit. Mrs. Harris was taken sick on December 20th, with pneumonia and heart failure and died one month later. It being her wish that the body be cremated, that wish was fulfilled. Mrs. Harris was a member of a great many societies, none of which however received more of her enthusiasm and attention than did the spiritualistic circle, to which she had attached herself.

Mrs. Carrie Bean writes from Lincoln, Neb.: "We have with us that matchless medium for physical demonstrations, Mr. Amae Wheeler. I have attended his seances, both dark and light, also his trumpet seances, in which I have heard five distinct spirit voices at one time. I have received communications from my spirit friends, that I know were genuine, and I have seen marvelous manifestations in the presence of this medium under strict test conditions. His tests have been grand. His materializations and independent slate-writings have given good satisfaction. He can be addressed Lincoln, Neb., Gen. Del., for engagements and camp-meetings this coming season."

E. B. Chamness writes: "I was a statement in one of your papers that the courts of Illinois had decided the Sunday Laws unconstitutional. Please state if this is correct." This decision had reference to the law closing barber shops on Sunday, which was declared unconstitutional.

Mrs. Dr. A. F. Clark writes from Metropolis, Ill.: "I desire to say that on account of sickness I will be unable to have a term of the College in New Orleans, La., this season. We would advise our psychic friends all over the world to live within the circle of congenial spirits, guard against antagonistic associations all in spiritual distress. Write to me at Metropolis, Ill. I will give my time this year to those in the spirit, free of charge. I will be in Chattanooga, Tenn., this summer; also at Jackson, Tenn., this spring, and Psychic Park, Magnolia, Mississippi."

Marie Trimble writes from Baltimore, Md.: "Reading the article in The Progressive Thinker, of February 6, on 'Animal Immortality,' permit me to relate what came under my observation some years ago when I was associated officially with the Children's Progressive Lyceum in the large and beautiful City of B. On entering Lyceum Hall one bright Sabbath morning, observing Miss Maria Ochard there, I went forward to speak to her. I noticed a beautiful canary bird on her head. After greeting, I remarked: 'Maria, I see a canary bird on your forehead.' Miss Orchard replied: 'I had a pet canary bird; it died nine years ago.' Miss Orchard being a new acquaintance, I knew nothing whatever of her past life's history. I simply give the fact, as clearly and truly presented on that occasion."

Mrs. M. A. Reed, who has resided in Chicago during the past year, writes that she has been suddenly called to Boston on account of sickness in her family. She praises Chicago, "because of the humanitarianism in the hearts and souls of the intellectual and spiritual classes, whose tendency is to unitize, to build up one great center of thought, to help the world to something better than it has ever had." She says: "I was loth to leave the many beautiful souls in this higher thought, but we will meet again. There is no separation to the spirit. In the meantime, let us keep this one end in view: to harmonize, to unitize, and come into a oneness with all that is good, noble and uplifting in life, with always a desire to do good and help suffering humanity."

"A Convert" writes from Port Huron, Mich., that "Mr. B. Renwick, is a young worker in the field but is to be ranked with the first. Morally above reproach, a man who works hard every day, a model father and husband, all this tends to win for him in his new work the trust and esteem of all. His circles for materialization are filled with the best people of our city, and attendance is sought weeks ahead. He has been able under strict test conditions to demonstrate his power fully. With Mrs. Anna L. Robinson to fill the large hall to overflowing every Sunday, and Mr. Renwick to build up the work during the week, we know no such word as fail."

B. F. Hayden writes from Indianapolis, Ind.: "Our cause is growing in strength and numbers in Indianapolis, with two societies with good attendance at each. The friends of the South Side feeling they could sustain meetings of their own, have secured a beautiful hall at 184 and 186 Shelby street, and thus the third meeting has been started with bright prospects of success. The initial meetings were held Sunday morning and evening, February 7, with good attendance. Everyone is made welcome, as well as made to feel at home."

Carlos Wright, 242 E. 55th street, Chicago, writes: "My work as inspirational lecturer and developing medium, has been mostly in Michigan and Indiana, favorable mention of which has several times appeared in your paper. Having recently located in Chicago, and being a stranger to the Spiritualists of this section, I will for a short time, answer calls to lecture, once, for my expences only, at any point within 100 miles of Chicago."

H. H. S., a prominent freethinker, writes: "Will you kindly allow space in your paper to call the attention of the readers of The Progressive Thinker to the meetings in Hygiea Hall, corner of Paulina and Washington Boulevard, Chicago, every Sunday afternoon and evening, by Miss Thomas, the colored medium of Chicago. She is a very interesting speaker and among Spiritualists is known as a pronounced Christian, basing all spiritual gift on the teachings of the Bible. The writer has been a frequent attendant at her meetings and heard her explain passages of scripture that he has often heard ministers preach from, in an entirely different way, and always bringing out the spiritual Ego underlying all scripture. Sunday night last her discourse was from II. Kings; 2d chapter, on the translation of Elijah, and was handled in a masterly way, the burden of which was that Elijah was a medium, as were all the prophets, and that all the witnesses to his ascension, 50 prophets, besides Elisha, who inherited his mantle, simply beheld a materialization, and incineration, both of Elijah and chariot, and horses of fire she scouted the idea of his bodily ascension as taught and generally believed by the Christian churches for centuries. After the lecture Miss Thomas gave many tests, some of them very remarkable."

J. C. Patterson writes from New Orleans: "We have been very fortunate in having with us this past month, Mrs. Dr. Hilligoss, of Anderson, Indiana. The society is highly pleased, and considering the very bad weather our audiences have been large and attentive. Mrs. Hilligross has organized anew a Ladies' Aid in connection with the society. Tickets are already out for a dance and oyster supper to be given on the 24th of this month; the proceeds of this little gathering will go to start a fund for the purpose of building a church or temple. In a communication from H. D. Barrett of the N. S. A., we are informed there will be a spiritual mass meeting held here on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of March. Mrs. Loe F. Prior has promised to help us in the matter, and we are also promised other talented speakers and mediums for the occasion. Sister Hilligoss will remain with us as our Spiritual Advisor and lecturer during February, March, April, and May, when she will leave for the Tennessee Mountains. We have a few local mediums who are giving manifestations and seem to awaken an interest in those that visit the seances to the fact of spirit return and communication."

"The Peoples' Home Spiritual Society's (services, held at 7:30 p. m., February 7, at Bricklayers' Hall, 93 Peoria street) were attended by an interested audience. Dr. D. S. White delivered a lecture on "The Decay of Ecclesiasticism." Herbert M. French being called upon by President Jenifer, gave many spirit tests, followed by Mrs. M. Rogers in a poem. Miss A. D. Jacobi gave some very fine tests. The meetings closed by Mrs. Peters giving tests."

Clyde Goodrich writes from Marcellus, Mich.: "Your liberal terms ought to double your list, and would too, if your present subscribers would call the attention of their friends to the importance of keeping posted on the events that pertain to our philosophy. Mr. Frank T. Ripley commenced his month's engagement for our society on Sunday, February 7. He lectured in the afternoon and evening to audiences a little larger than we usually have here. His tests were very good. This is the first time our society has tried the experiment of employing a speaker for a month at a time. We are well pleased with the first meeting, and hope to see crowds that will tax the capacity of the hall before the meetings are over."

Ella Gibson Magoon writes from Memphis, Tenn.: "We have been here but a fortnight, but have succeeded during our brief stay, in bringing Spiritualism to a more substantial basis in this town, in reawakening a germ of interest planted by Brother Barrett in his brief sojourn in the town, during his tour through the States; and we have been bringing the plant to fruition, in the organizing and completing of a promising young society, with much good material among its members, and every augury for the future success and growth. Officers elected were as follows: President, Mr. Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. Talbot; vice-president, Mrs. Wolfe; secretary, Mrs. M. Payne, No. 7 Randolph Park. Everywhere we go, we see the need of the universal patronage of an all around liberal Spiritualist paper, like The Progressive Thinker, for one thing; also—next apparent point to observation—comes the horrible result of the knavery of humbug mediums, traveling through the country. A volume should be poured out upon the subject—verily we have learned to know that the name of medium, unless coupled with honesty, is a curse."

C. H. Pfindle writes from Humboldt, Iowa: "J. W. S. Lindley was treasurer of this county, but was found to be a defaulter in the sum of $20,000 and is now in jail in consequence. He is a member, in good standing of the Baptist church, and spends a good share of his time in reading the Bible and praying; and says he never could have stood the trials he has been called upon to endure, if it was not for the love of God he has in his heart; and that his sins have all been forgiven him, and he is perfectly happy. But somehow this feeling of content and happiness does not reach to his bondsmen who have had to pay the amount he stole. The other day, several females, including a minister's wife, held what they called religious services in his cell in the jail. Another prisoner was in the cell with Lindley, but the good Christian ladies paid no attention whatever to him, as he only stole an overcoat valued at $10."

Mrs. Allie Lindsay Lynch writes: "The evening of January 23, Mrs. Dr. A. Lamon held in remembrance the anniversary of her marriage; for though Dr. James Lamon is in spirit-life he remains to her a guardian and companion. The evening was stormy outdoors, but very cheery in her home where were a dozen brave hearts who had breasted wind and snow. The hours from 6 to 12 were filled with songs, recitations, discussion on the marriage question, the reincarnation theory, etc., and with elegant refreshments served twice—as strength aids for so weighty topics. The hostess, costumed as Queen Esther, gave us an inspirational song, and followed this with words of greeting from spirit friends to several present. Mrs. Prof. W. M. Lockwood gave voice to a very beautiful thought she caught from the spirit side of life—from the husband."

G. W. Eichelberger writes: "The First Spiritualist Society of Chicago, No. 3120 Forest avenue, have despite the hard times and many opposing factors and elements, succeeded in breasting the storm and have been doing a great and successful work for the great cause of Spiritualism. Mrs. Ada Foye, the veteran medium, and one of the ablest representative of the spirit phenomena the world has yet produced, has become a fixture with us. We find in her the embodiment of all that is truthful, sincere and genuine. The phenomena given upon our rostrum each Sunday to the thinking public is of such a thorough and convincing nature that even the most skeptical person must pause, study and wonder: names in full, dates, personal characteristics and loving messages from friends and relatives long since departed to spirit-life, carry conviction to the hearts of those that receive them. We say to all of our friends, investigate. Believers and skeptics come and see, hear for yourselves, and our word for it the last vestige of doubt will be swept away. We have also arranged with Mrs. Jackman who has been giving under the auspices of this society some wonderful and genuine independent slate writing. Mrs. Ada Foye will speak and give her test seance only Sunday evenings for the present. Remember the meeting hours 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. sharp.

Farmer Riley passed through this city last week on his way to Monroe, Wis., where he will hold a series of seances.

Mrs. Amanda A. Cate favors, as a memorial of the Fox Sisters, the building of a home for the needy, rather than the building of costly temples—a home whose portals shall every day be open to all who need uplifting, and where a constant memorial service shall be conducted, through loving helpfulness towards humanity.

Elmer E. Dunton sends to this office twenty-one subscribers from South Boston, Mass. Clubs are coming in from all sections of the country.

L. L. Strouse sends the following, clipped from the St. Louis Republic: "Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 9.—Henry Weaver, of McGrawsville, reports that recently Eliza Webb, the fortune-teller, revealed to him that a treasure was hidden on his farm. A few days ago while hauling fodder, his wagon struck a gate-post and broke it down. While replacing the post he uncovered a tea kettle containing $1,710 in coin, of which $1,000 was in gold. The fortune-teller demanded $150 for her service. He gave her $50."

Virgo writes: "Why is it that Liberalists and Spiritualists will sit idly by and not even protest against the unjust and infamous 'medical' bills now before the legislatures of Michigan, Kansas and Indiana? Where are your thousands of healers and mediums; what are they doing? Buckle on the power of will! Stand firm for the freedom of humanity, and petition every representative, in well-chosen language, to vote against any change, or at least to prevent a worse condition than now exists. Let a quiet but determined 'thought-wave' be constantly sent out that shall and will conquer the foe, and raise the flag of freedom for humanity."

Orvin Merritt writes: "I wish every person now taking The Progressive Thinker would try to get others to subscribe for it. I think everybody on earth should read The Progressive Thinker. I am astonished to see how little people understand the teachings of Spiritualism. The Methodist minister here in Genoa preaches Spiritualism every Sunday, and at the close of his sermon, he tells his audience that he don't want them to think that he is a Spiritualist."

Ella Dare, whose excellent poems appear occasionally in The Progressive Thinker, writes: "The Progressive Thinker is certainly fulfilling a grand mission in serving the soul-needs of awakening multitudes."

Thomas Wallace writes: "Perhaps your many readers would be pleased to hear from Englewood, that hot-bed of churches, and of the spiritual revival now in progress at the Spiritual Progressive Society, which is being conducted by the genial Dr. W. T. Parker every Sunday at Sigler's Hall, 526 W. Sixty-third street. His rostrum is open to all new mediums who are desirous of public work, but especially has the manifestation of spirit presence been satisfactorily demonstrated through some of his pupils. It is beginning to be generally understood that mediumship, like any other profession, cannot be very well 'picked up' by one's own natural ability, especially the higher phases, but for certain and sure success one requires a teacher for which purpose Dr. Parker appears to be peculiarly suited."

Dr. J. C. Phillips, the healer and psychometrist, writes from Clinton, Iowa: "Ever since your acquaintance I have been more than pleased at the careful manner you always do business, and thereby is the secret of your slow but sure success. Slow, did I say? And yet not slow, when we take into consideration the times have been steadily moving to their present condition for the past six or seven years. Again let me congratulate you on the steady improvement of your grand and noble paper, and by the way the article in last number by Dr. M. E. Conger has the right ring to it. Hit 'em again, Brother Conger, and please don't lay away that pen, but keep it moving. When looking backward thirty years, I sometimes am led to think we are not making so much headway in the reconstruction of the world as some seem to think."

Mrs. R. Endres writes from Philadelphia: "Sunday evening, February 7, 1897, was a gala night here in Philadelphia to the Spiritualists who met in Girard hall, 608 Girard avenue—a night to be proud of, and one to be long remembered. Another society has been added to our ranks which will hereafter be known as the Spiritual Fraternity Association of Philadelphia. The meeting opened with an address by Dr. C.

(Continued on page 8.)

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

A HORRIBLE BUTCHERY.

It is stated on no less an authority than that of Las Casas, Bishop of Chiapa, in a memoir which he addressed to the Emperor Charles the Fifth, that in forty years, the Spaniards butchered between twelve and fifteen millions of American "infidels," after robbing them of their treasure, and inflicting unspeakable indignities upon their wives and daughters. They not merely murdered, but they mutilated the miserable victims of their fanatical ferocity. They cut off their noses and their ears, their hands and their feet; they gouged out their eyes and tore out their tongues. Blood-hounds were trained for the express purpose of hunting down the poor creatures who fled from such miscreants. Sometimes as many as thirteen heretics were strung up on a single gallows, and, if they happened to be so tall that their feet touched the ground, a fire was kindled under them and they were burnt alive. All these things, writes the Bishop, were done "in honor and reverence of our Redeemer and of his two Apostles;" Peter being presumably one of them; as he was the alleged founder of the Church which sanctioned and approved of these abominable atrocities.

GOING STRAIGHT TO HELL.

Let it not be forgotten that these twelve or fifteen million human beings, dying as heretics in a condition of impenitence, were believed to proceed straight to a place of eternal torment called hell; so that they were not merely deprived of their earthly lives, under circumstances of hideous cruelty, but they were—as their assassins joyfully concluded—consigned to a vast furnace where they would be everlastingly roasted by unquenchable fires, without the faintest hope of ultimate annihilation, even after the lapse of millions of centuries.

THE INQUISITION ESTABLISHED

by Pope Innocent the Third, in 1204, and consolidated by a monk, afterwards canonized by the Church of Rome as Saint Dominic, became a permanent tribunal in 1220, and received almost plenary powers from Pope Gregory the Ninth in 1233. France, Spain and Italy were successively submitted to its infamous authority and bloody prerogative; but England and Germany escaped the pollution of its murderous presence.

A DARK SHADOW.

Wherever its sinister influence was felt, a shadow, as of a black pall, fell over the land. Fear went before it; the prison, the torture chamber, the axe, the gibbet and the stake, followed behind it. The extirpation of heresy was commenced in the South of France, where there was a large Protestant community, against whom, Pope Innocent the Third preached a crusade of extermination.

A POWERFUL ARMY INVESTED

the flourishing town of Beziers, sacked it, and put to death 60,000 of its inhabitants. Some of these were Catholics, and before the assault, Arnold Amalric, the Pope's Legate, was reminded of the fact. "Never mind," said this high functionary, "Kill the whole lot, God will distinguish His own."

HERETICS BURNED.

At the small town of Albi, in the adjoining department, 400 heretics were burnt at the same time.

THE INQUISITION ESTABLISHED

a veritable reign of terror. It was only necessary for a man or woman to be denounced as heretical, upon some point of doctrine, or as having been guilty of disrespect to the host, or the crucifix, or some religious symbol, in order to be laid by the heels in a dungeon, convicted on false testimony, placed upon the rack, so that a confession of guilt might be extorted from him, and then marched to the stake, and burnt alive. Thus perished 31,000 persons in Spain alone, besides 290,000 condemned to minor, though cruel, punishments. At least 75,000 were put to death for their religion in the Netherlands; and the entire property of every heretic was invariably confiscated; unless, indeed, he was betrayed by his children; for, in that event, they preserved their inheritance! So that a premium was offered by the Church to filial treachery and falsehood.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

Ignorance always kicks at and condemns what it does not understand, while wisdom seeks to know.

Those who seek the wise man with flattery with a view of obtaining his money, make a grievous mistake. The wise man can only be enticed with greater wisdom.

The learned man who has great power hateth knowledge, and the fool mocketh the wise. The ignorant careth not to be burdened with knowledge and wisdom.

Modern friendship is a game played for money, usually between an innocent fool and an ignorant rogue. The game waxes strong or weak as the stake increases or decreases.

While thy passions are thy master, woman will enslave thee. When master of thy passion thou wilt also be master of woman.

As we would criticise the life of another we mean that we would not have the world think that we would lead the same kind of life.

Occult knowledge flees before a crowd as birds do before a fowler. Knowledge dwells in solitude, in silence, and in patience.

I find intensely intellectual persons far more unreasonable than lunatics. They, believing that they can reach heaven through the intellect, find a restless pleasure in the hallucination.

"Respectability" is the outward covering of a deceptive life.

I accept no man as my advisor, for I "believe" no man, I believe nothing. I listen to no one but the God within me, and I am never led astray.

Man-made laws are in the plural, they are legion; while Natural Law is in the singular. Natural Law is God, and there is but one God.

In the race for life, never turn to see where your competitors are. The moments wasted in turning may prove fatal.

A necessary defense to one may be an offense to another.

All the feasts and fasts taught by the church are ungodly, hence they are gradually working the destruction of the church.

If all the armies of the world were enlisted in rebuilding the church, they would fail. Its mission is ending.

Some people are never happy unless they are miserable; hence they get a great deal of comfort out of a very little misery.

"Angel Whisperings for the Searcher After Truth." By Hattie J. Ray. A volume of genuine poems, of such fine moral and spiritual tone that all will be pleased and benefited by it. For sale at this office. Price $1.

From The Spiritual Review, London, Eng.

AT A MATERIALIZING SEANCE.

On leaving, the spirits scattered flowers over us, and "Rosetta" sang a beautiful hymn, after which the spirit of "Cardinal Newman" addressed us from the cabinet, and then requested us to sing "Lead, Kindly Light." This had the effect of spiritualizing the conditions of the circle, and raising the tone of the manifestations.

SEVERAL BRIGHT LIGHTS

now appeared in different parts of the room, and, suddenly a very large and brilliant star, almost the size of a human head, floated immediately above the cabinet, and then remained stationary for several minutes. This was the light of "Cardinal Newman," for again the spirit addressed us, and the voice proceeded from the brilliant star above the cabinet.

NO SEANCE SEEMS COMPLETE

without an Indian control. It seems strange that such spirits form the companionship of men who have been credited with vastly superior abilities. It is so, however, and Mr. Craddock's band of guides are no exception to the rule. "Rederow," a jocular and interesting Indian spirit, now came springing from the cabinet, and gave us a regular Indian war-dance and song. Captain Molison, a gentleman who had lived among the Indians, was particularly favored by this spirit, with whom he held a conversation for some time.

EXQUISITE DRAPERY.

It was during the time that this spirit was speaking that "Rosetta" was walking from one end of the circle to the other, completely enveloping some of the sitters in her exquisite drapery. Meanwhile, phenomena of various kinds were occurring in different parts of the room. It is utterly impossible to enumerate all the manifestations that take place at these seances. The sitters have their own individual experiences, and all could, no doubt, tell a different tale.

MATERIALIZATION,

however much it may be poohpoohed, by those who are supposed to have "passed through all that sort of thing" is nevertheless the most convincing of all phenomena that spirits have produced through human agencies. It is the foundation of the phenomenal aspects of Spiritualism; it is the gateway leading to a knowledge of the great truths of the New Dispensation; it is the physical evidence of spiritual facts that point the way to life eternal. We cannot do without physical mediums. They should be protected rather than abused; encouraged rather than cast down.

DARK CIRCLES.

By some it may be said that "dark circles" are not at all satisfactory, and admit of the possibility of fraud. Away with such nonsense! Spirits require the necessary conditions of darkness, just as much as a photographer requires a darkened laboratory for the development of his photographs. The arguments of these decriers against "dark circles," are just as rational or rather irrational, as if a man were to expect the sun to stand still at his command.

WE CANNOT DICTATE

what spirits shall do or what they shall not do. They know what they are about. When they have completed a certain development in connection with these phenomena then we may expect more clear and satisfactory results. What we want is not so much physical light, but the light of the Spirit.

From Light, London, Eng.

CHRISTMAS

is the one universal festival of the year, and perhaps no festival was ever kept in such a variety of ways, and with such startling contrasts—all the way from the tenderest adoration of a divine child to the grossest gluttony and intemperance; truly a marvelous commemoration!

LEADING FEATURES OF THE DAY.

And yet, strange to say, notwithstanding the startling diversity of modes of commemorating this festival, one of the leading features of the fact commemorated will be borne in mind only as part of a mere spectacle—as that which, though real once, has never been repeated, and cannot be. We refer, of course, to the spiritual appearances which occupy so prominent and so vital a place in the story of the advent of the child in whose recorded manner of appearing the vast majority seem to so strenuously believe, but by whom it is really so little grasped.

THE ANGEL-APPEARANCES.

The solid fact which cannot be got rid of is that from beginning to end, and at every stage, the Gospel story is saturated with the spiritual. The birth is heralded by the victory over it as vitally connected with the angel-appearances to the disciples; and there never seemed to be a time when the angels did not ascend and descend upon this "Son of Man." At present we do not discuss the question whether these records are strictly historical, and whether everything happened as set down. All we are concerned with, at this stage, is the question—How far is the actual fact grasped by the very people who profess to believe it most? If the fact, as a fact, were thoroughly grasped, would it be possible to scout every suggestion that angels of God sometimes appear now? This is what we meant when we asserted just now that this prominent fact of the spirit-appearances at the birth of Christ will, after all, be borne in mind only as part of a mere spectacle; for the vast majority of those who will sing their carols, telling of the angel-appearances, would laugh amusedly or scoff disagreeably if one said, "Yes, what you say is true: and I know it, because, in our own days, angels have appeared.

THE REALLY THOUGHTFUL

among those who, while believing in spirit-appearances, say about 1,900 years ago, refuse to believe in them today, would explain that the occasion was exceptional, and so exceptional as to warrant and even compel a supernatural influx of spirit-power. We do not think this entirely nonsensical and arbitrary. It is quite likely there is something in it. All we ask is that any such exceptional influx of spirit-power shall be connected with the law of cause and effect.

GAL ELEVEN

THE ADVENT OF A CHRIST

may have been an event of such intense spiritual significance as to bring the unseen and the seen into equally intense contact—just as the crucifixion may have been, or the appearance of the spirit-Christ, misleadingly called "The resurrection." But surely we diminish the significance of these manifestations of spirit-power—these incursions of angel-presences—if we think of them as arbitrary, just as the pageantry of a royal show is: and surely we put these spirit-powers and angel-presences in their true place when we consider them as inevitable and natural, in the circumstances. But, if we do that, we leave an open way between and we are even able to draw the inference that these spirit-powers and angel-presences may be always on or near that open way, ministering according to the need, and felt even when not seen. And we venture to repeat that if our friends who will most loudly sing their carols really believed that angel-story as a great world-fact and not as only part of a mere spectacle, they would be much more ready to believe in spirit-activities and angel-appearances now.

THE SEEN AND THE UNSEEN,

We go further. Is it not at least conceivable that one of the reasons why is that we have ceased to believe in them? We do not mean that seeing and not seeing may depend upon faith or no faith in the individual—though there may be something in that;—what we mean is that an age of unbelief, or an age in which the merely physical senses are supremely developed, may be an age in which the more spiritual perceptions may naturally dwindle.

WE DO NOT SEE THE ANGELS

From Two Worlds, London, England.

SINS OF PHYSICAL LIFE.

Perhaps some may say: "We hold strongly to the thought that punishment awaits some of those who pass through the change of death?" but we ask you calmly and steadily face the facts of life, and be ready to admit that the great majority of men, and women, and children are more sinned against than sinning; that the so-called sins of physical life are more often than not the result of earthly circumstances; that in the deepest consciousness of most people there is a living desire to be better and truer, and overcome these difficulties of earthly experience. If you dare to draw the veil aside which hangs between you and your inner consciousness, you know that you would be better, that you would show more good and find more good.

BE CAREFUL IN JUDGING.

Then estimate your neighbor by yourself; do not judge those who fall where perhaps you only stumble; those who yield while perhaps you are able to gain the victory! "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone." Love is the mighty force exercised on the other side, and there no stones are cast against the poor, the poor in spirit. What does this mean? "Poor in spirit!" Rich in worldly goods, it may happen; rich in store of mind and golden thoughts gathered from those who are rich in conscious power which comes from intellect well applied; but poor in spirit, poor in the store of love, poor in the power of sympathy, poor in those experiences which prove the power of spiritual wealth.

WEAR SPIRITUAL RAGS.

Passing on to that condition where, under the white light of truth, all is revealed, passing on to that other life, would you not pity those who wear the spiritual rags? Would you not pity those who shroud themselves in the gloom of their own conditions? Would you not pity them, because, if you were wiser than they, you would know they must face the facts of life, must bear the responsibility, must go down, perhaps, into the very depths, where their hearts are tortured with anguish? You would know there comes the bitter weariness concerning "what might have been" if only they had followed the truth, if only they had dared to hear the voice which bade them act in accordance with what they felt to be true.

CONDEMNATION.

There is no need for man's condemnation, there is no need for spirit's condemnation. The condemnation is registered in the bitter consciousness of living experience, which makes some, as we have seen them, strive to go to the utmost verge, not to escape the vengeance of an angry God, but to get away from themselves, and they never succeed; they carry with them their own judge, their own consciences; they are compelled to bear this bitterness of suffering, until—remember, there is always the "until!"—until they are aroused with the desire for something true, until the thought is awakened in their consciousness that they abhor evil, that they would escape from their bonds, which they themselves have forged—none other can break those fetters—the good within must grow and burst its bonds, and then the spirit goes on to the life of wider experience.

PERFECTION AND IMPERFECTION

But even that cannot erase what has been, cannot entirely blot out the past, for the education will, in its reactive consequences, have been helpful to the spirit. We tell you there is no need to picture to yourselves an angry or offended God, who wreaks his vengeance on the sinner, nor a personal Devil who seeks to lead men astray, for, in the living experience of spirit consciousness, it is revealed to what depths men can go, and, thank God, to what heights they can raise themselves: for this is the grand secret of the mighty purpose and the sacred issue of life, to leave behind all imperfections and go on towards perfection, towards that grand fulfilment which can be experienced by those who tread in the path of the right, the good, and the true.

DEATH A DELIVERING ANGEL.

But though we speak of those who go to the very depths, though we regonize all their sufferings and sorrow, we want you to remember that to the vast majority of those who pass through the change, Death is a delivering angel, who with soft hand touches their brow, smoothes the lines there, rekindles the light in their eyes, who teaches them the meaning of life's lessons they could not see before, and shows them what they can do, what abundant opportunities there are for the exercise of their powers, teaches them that there is no necessity to scheme and contrive to gather the wealth which perishes sooner or later; that there is no longer the stern necessity to work in uncongenial fashion for food. They learn that many of the thoughts that actuate men's minds here have there no hold because the conditions are changed, and the great Divine law holds that man can only have what is his by right, or can onl to stay where he is fit to enter.

"Talleyrand's Letter to the Pope" will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts he states, and his keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Sold at this office. Price 25 cents.

"The Dead Man's Message," an occult romance by Florence Marryat. The author's wide experience in Spiritualism and her study of occult science have prepared her to write this romance, which will be found laden with gems picked up in the course of her investigation and studies. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"Mediumship and Its Development, and How to Mesmerize to Assist Development." By W. H. Bach. Especially useful to learners who seek to know and utilize the laws of mediumship and development, and avoid errors. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

Edwin P. Woodward: Q. Some six months ago I began sitting, and soon had table-tipping in answer to my questions. I stopped for awhile, and when I sat, I had the life almost taken out of my body, I was so violently treated. How shall I avoid this, and is it best to go on?

A. There would appear to be physical conditions, difficult to overcome, and unless the advantages of a well-arranged circle are at hand, it would be better for the time to discontinue your seances.

Jno. W. Hawkins: Q. What is good?

A. Jouffroy says that "the particular good of each creature is but an element of universal order," wherein he strangely blends physical laws with moral insight, and does not account for the idea of good. Reason may, and often does, regard the "universal order" very differently, and ages before such order was recognized, concrete conceptions of good were entertained. If to the idea of universal order be supplemented that of activity for uses related to mind, then would arise the conception of good.

Another school says: "The highest good, the summum bonum, is worthiness of spiritual approbation." (Dr. Hickok, Moral Science, p. 43). Shall we choose, as an ultimate end, that which we must be to make the choice? Equally absurd to suppose the highest good to consist of personal introspection. It would not be a good to stop short on barren approbation, even of the most spiritual, for activity is put forth for a purpose, else it is objectless, and the purpose of right activity oversteps approbation to its results.

Dr. Fairchild (Moral Philosophy p. 21) says, good "consists in the satisfaction of that sensibility—satisfaction in every form in which it can exist." This definition places the desires on a level with the highest spiritual perception, and makes the satisfaction of the passions in their lowest estate, a good. This is the position of the optimist, who, affirming all things right, would allow the fire of desires to consume themselves, forgetting that ashes only remain after the conflagration.

Happiness as the supreme good belongs to Paley's Mechanical scheme of Creation, based on a personal God and the selfishness of his adherents. In the scheme of Nature, as happiness is always in great excess of pain, whatever is best must produce the greatest happiness. To say that the conscience decides in favor of happiness is an inversion; for its decision is for the right, which necessarily yields the supreme happiness.

It will be thus seen that the question is not one to be lightly answered, and has engaged the profoundest thought of moral philosophers; yet viewed in the light of psycho-philosophy, it is simplified and made understandable.

Obedience to law is productive of the greatest pleasure, but most rarely is it practical or possible for the mind to know that such will be the result of a determined action. The martyrs and heroes of the world felt that expectation of happiness had no part in their determination to right and duty. Not for happiness stood Leonidas with his three hundred in the pass of Thermopylae, nor Joan of Arc at the head of the French army, nor Washington with his bleeding soldiers at Valley Forge. The love of country, the hatred of wrong and oppression, the generous emotions of liberty, blotted out every vestige of happiness as a motive, and it is sacrilege to brand them with such ignoble motives.

Man being endowed with various sensibilities, both on the physical and spiritual side, their perfect satisfaction according to the laws of each, co-ordinated with all the others, is the highest good. This result presupposes harmony and perfection of functions, separate and collective, and brings into view the comparative good, with its many-sided consequences. This perfect satisfaction is the absolute good, about which there can be no difference of opinion. When we speak of objects as good, the word has a relative and distinct meaning. Absolute good is only realized by thinking beings. The answering of every desire and motive, legitimately, results in happiness. It is the state of virtue. It is pronounced good by all, because the most desirable state.

The opposite condition is wrong, so pronounced universally, for its result is pain and unhappiness.

L. J. B: Q. Over two years ago we organized a home circle for investigating Spiritualism, and very shortly received what is known as table rappings and by observing certain established rules we received the names of many that we are thoroughly familiar with, and a great many that we did not know. Among those that we did not know was one that gave the name of F. Osborn, and said he was manager of the circle. These raps continued two or three months and all at once vanished as strangely as they came. But after the rappings stopped the sitters saw a white cloud-like vapor that would rise at different parts of the circle and float off, repeating itself ofttimes over and over again, and at the same time the sitters would feel something like the touch of fingers on different parts of the body. One of the members discontinued sitting on account of an ill influence taken on at circle. Can this be explained? and would it be advisable to continue circles?

A. This statement shows what may be accomplished by the home circle. Such a beginning prophesies wonderful results if continued with earnestness; conditions that have been found most advantageous should be complied with, and the places of members that cannot attend supplied, and the circles held in one place at the appointed times. Continue by all means, with assurance that you have surprising manifestations in store for you.

R. R. P., Baldwin, Mo.: Q. Can a medium become so depleted as to lose the power of clairvoyance?

A. Most assuredly, and not only that, but all other forms of mediumship. It is the common experience to lose the capability, and have days and weeks go by without the least perception of spiritual influence.

S. H., Gainsville: Q. What can be said in opposition to the assertion that spiritual manifestations are works of evil spirits, or the Devil?

A. There was a time when this explanation was relevant, but now that the once powerful Satan has passed with the darkness of ignorance, it is a waste of time to answer the question. It is the old custom repeated in weary round, and considered ample reply to advancement in the realm of thought. When Luther lighted the fires of reformation, and Catholicism saw the fierce flames rise high, the priests mounted the summits of their grim towers and shrieked in wild refrain: "The Devil!" When England threw off the Catholic yoke and became spiritually free, then came across the wide sea and echoed along the shores of the channel that portentous growl: "The Devil." When a comet flashed on the evening's sky, and shook out its fiery train, the church sent up prayers to be saved from the arch-fiend, the Devil.

When a rap manifesting intelligence is heard, and a table moved by invisible power; when there are those who fall into unconscious trance and have the secrets of the future state revealed to them, the clergy from their pulpits shriek: "The Devil!" Ah, Satan, you are much abused! You have been the scapegoat for the follies and ignorance of the world.

If evil spirits can communicate, why not the good? Ah, here is an unfortunate dilemma: Can a benevolent God let loose on mankind an innumerable host of demons and allow them to delude the children of men, and forbid the good and loving ones to hold communion? Dives was an evil spirit, but he could not return to earth, and hence requested Lazarus to bear a message to his brethren. The Bible proves thus that while the evil spirits could not, the good could do so and communicate.

"The tree is known by its fruit. The good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, nor the evil tree good fruit."

Spiritualism makes men better. It teaches a sublime code of morality. It inculcates virtue, goodness and purity. It holds forth the most exalted motives for right doing. It destroys oppression. It gives assurance of an after life, and the presence of loved ones gone before. Can such pure waters flow from a corrupt fountain?

R. Yemey, Marcellus: Q. I read the the Questions and Answers with deepest interest, and am pleased with the clearness and directness with which the subjects are treated. I would like to know what the intelligences who write think of the awful prophecy in The Progressive Thinker for February 13, by Dr. Miller. He says that the British earthquake was only a beginning; that there are high spirits who have decided to shake the earth from Europe to Australia, and millions of people will be swallowed up during February?

A. An inquiring brother may retire to his couch in peace of mind, for February will pass and many a year and there will be no such shaking up. The days when wild-eyed madmen could frighten nations by howling destruction like a Jeremiah, happily have passed. Spiritualism is the science of the universe, and has no place for a "high order of messengers" whose business is world-tinkering. To be messengers, there must be somebody to send them, and there is no such God on a throne to dictate; to admit that these messengers have power over planetary laws, is to go back to the night of ignorance, and confess ourselves helpless slaves in their hands.

It is little short of a crime to utter such dismal prophecies. There are always a few at least, who believe there may be something in them. The idea that spirits engage in world-building, or world-destruction is very ancient, and opposed to the government of the universe by law.

It is quite consonant to the ideas formed of an Asiatic despot, seated on a throne and sending out "messengers" to this and that world, to tinker, but it is repugnant to modern thought, and opposed to every line of spiritual science.

England had a slight earthquake, local, and undoubtedly attributable to the disturbance of crust pressure by excavations in mines. The yielding of the crust usually is imperceptibly slow, but at times the resistance is so great there is accumulation of force, which at last suddenly gains equilibrium. There is no need of calling in "odylic force"—by the way, who knows anything about such a force?—or "high messengers." If such have come with the determination to murder "millions of people," they ought to be arrested as the most atrocious wretches left unhung, and it is a miserable circumstance that by their invisibility they are scot-free from the police! Oh, let us have a prophet of good, standing up and crying out that the sun will gladden the earth, health redden the cheeks of beauty and of strength; the harvest be abundant, and joy reign!

The world has been scared with the wailings of the false prophets of evil, since the old Hebrew wanted his eyes turned to waterspouts to give vent to his tears of anguish over coming misfortune: War in the clouds, comets like flaming swords of destruction; pestilence, famine, plague, volcanic throes and earthquakes opening earth's yawning abysses to swallow up the marts of men—what a wail to frighten the slaves of superstition; for the pitying laughter and scorn of the wise!

Prophecy is possible, for predictions can be made along the well-known lines of law, and have the certainty of mathematics. These pretended prophecies, however, are nightmare dreams, and reflect on the sanity of those who utter them.

THOSE VACANT PLACES.

Oh, whither the friends that departed—
Those bright, happy faces so dear—
Who bowed to this world as they started
In silence? Do they linger near?

Where are our mothers' dear faces,
That always brought peace and good cheer?
That filled here so fully their places,
Now vacant? Do they linger near?

Those fathers whose lives were a gladness,
That brushed back full many a tear
From eyes of the loved ones in sadness,
Now absent? Do they linger near?

That brother who stayed but an hour,
To bud and again disappear;
That passed as a blighted wee flower
Through earth-mold: Does he linger near?

That sister whose life was a prayer;
Whose voice was so tender and clear;
Whose touch was of love and sweet care
To others: Does she linger near?

Those faces seem present and brighter;
Those voices we oft seem to hear,
And somehow our burdens are lighter
To shoulder—when they linger near.

We know the departed still linger
In memory's domicile here;
And we feel the soft touch of a finger
That comes from that mystical sphere.

But still, there are those vacant places—
Like haunts we can scarcely endure—
Where once were the dear forms and faces,
That nothing can parry or cure.

DR. T. WILKINS.

ESTABMISH THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN WITHIN.

THE ABUSE OF WEALTH.

AN INSPIRATIONAL LECTURE BY MRS. LEE NORIE CLAMAN, PASTOR FIRST SPIRITUAL SOCIETY, CHICAGO.

I trust that I may have the best thoughts extended at this time, for the instrument that I have to use is very much out of tune, and I fear that the music will not be as sweet as it might be.

"In the last day," saith the Lord of Hosts, "I shall pour out my spirit upon all flesh." As long as time itself, the greatest master minds that have ever lived have striven to know of this great power divine, from whence comes life eternal. This great philosophy which from time to time we proclaim unto you is for your betterment—is for the elevation of conditions, materially speaking. And, if it is to be the truth, which it is, it undoubtedly embraces spiritually, parts the curtains of the great beyond and lifts you into its arms of truth.

We behold old Mother Earth as a molten mass of lava, with no life at all upon it, cast off into space as far as she could go. Then it began cool, and life began to show itself. We behold a later period when mankind was in a far higher condition than at the present time. The theologian of to-day will rise in remonstrance, and say to me this is not true, the world is unfolding, is developing to-day as never before. Let us see. We turn over the pages of life in that day and the age of the world when life became prevalent upon this old planet. We find that there was a similarity of character, of nature, but likes and dislikes had not been abused as they are at the present time. Men were not at war with each other as they are to-day. And, behold, a light appears. The spirit of truth has been poured over this great family of human souls, and because of that, truth is brought to the front.

All that man can possibly conceive of, everything that man needs from the time of his creation until the dissolution of the body, has been put upon earth for man's use. We go to yonder forest and we find great, huge trees. The smallest limbs of that tree will help to keep mankind warm, The great straight trunk of the tree can be hewed and sawed to build man a house. Down deep in the earth are all the different minerals for man's use. And I fear, as I behold the great multitude, that because of all these things given to mankind alike, man has made a shameful abuse of the gift, and hence comes that despair that wrings his heart. Individual ownership of property was instituted by man. The infinite law of life, the law of attraction, or, in other words, God, had nothing whatever to do with it, but man in his avariciousness has assumed equality with God and sought to pen in all he can get for himself of worldly goods, and let his soul starve.

Here are millions of souls who only as yesterday were clothed with matter as you are at the present time, going backward and forward on cars to places of business, thinking of but one, single, solitary thing—thinking of how to make a dollar; thinking of how to draw to yourselves great possessions, and of how to keep A, B and C from getting them. "I want what I make," say you. "I made it, and I thank neither God nor man for it." How often you hear these expressions. In a great city only a few ages ago lived a man in a palace. Servants, houses and lands had he, all that he could want, enjoying the luxuries of life—so he thought. But there was a voice that spoke from within. It is said unto that rich man, "Come unto me." Would it give him rest? Let us see. The time comes when that man is called out of the mortal body. Gaudy plumage decks the hearse. The body is given a sumptuous burial that costs much money. He passes through a great din of spirit voices to the other shore. He beholds, as he looks just beyond, the man to whom he had not allowed even his crumbs to be fed, safe in the harbor of Rest. "Poor as he was," cried the man, "I wish I had been he. Oh, let me go back to earth again, to tell my brethren not to do as I have done. I took the reins in my own hands and was selfish. Alas, and alas, it is now too late. Won't you give me one drop of cold water to cool my parching tongue. This hell of consciousness I cannot stand."

The blessed teacher of immortal life turns, his face with heavenly light all aglow, and says to the man in torture beneath, "You must work out for yourself that place of rest. You will have to begin over, as it were. Ages will come and go, and you in darkness will have to plod along here below."

That man comes back. He finds a man in a negative state, a man who would just as lief steal as look at you, and would just as lief take the bread out of the mouths of the poor and eat it himself, as not. He finds a victim like that, and says: "I like this. This is good enough for me. I enjoyed this when I was on earth; this was my business." He takes hold of that poor victim. He loses for the time being his own individual entity, warped, as it were, by the spirit. He seeks to see how many men he can knock the foundation from under, and how much money he can draw to himself, and hoard up for his own use, regardless of the needs and misery of his brothers. It was easy for him to make money. It came to him from every hand, just as it did to Vanderbilt. He has often said, "I could not help making money. It was just as easy for me to make money as it was to eat. But here was the trouble, and here is the trouble—it is the abuse I gave to my fellowmen. Oh, show to me the light, and I will go with you anywhere. Just give to me one word of encouragement that I may rid myself of this hell within."

Spirits who have a desire to overcome their desires for wrong are helped into that love and light which brings rest of mind and quiet, because they are doing that which they know will give to them rest hereafter, and also peace of mind here below.

So with that man who went out few days ago into that old lake out there. He thought, perhaps, to hide his shame. He thought, perhaps, that if he was swallowed up in the bosom of the lake, houses and lands might be saved for those whom he had left upon earth.

Have you ever thought, dear friends, that, let you own millions, you could eat but one meal at a time, you can sleep but one sleep at a time, can wear but one suit of clothes at a time? Then what is the need of all this wealth? The infinite Being of life and light has the power to change in the twinkling of an eye the whole course of all that is, and leave you in blank astonishment. Where am I; whence came I; and whither do I go?

Listen to the voices pleading with you from the spirit side of life, saying unto you: "Cling not to that which will destroy both life and body." Cling not to that which will make you cry out in the anguish of the rich man, for I say unto you, it is by far easier for a camel to go through the eye of the needle than for such a one to find a resting place in spirit life. Where a man's entire desire, his propensities, his entire life is set upon gaining possessions, it would most undoubtedly not be a heaven of rest were he to open his eyes and find himself where all was calm and peaceful and serene.

The day is coming, is now, when you must come as one of the recruits in this great warfare, this great reform for justice and right. Your friends whom you call dead are here. They are pleading with you as never before: "Be one of us in truth. Take hold of the banner. Unfurl it to the breeze. Take up the sweet refrain of truth. Breathe it back to those on the mortal plane, and help them to understand how to come into life eternal. Awaken, then, while it is day; for tomorrow you die and pass away."

The man who loves his neighbor as himself, the man who goes hungry that some one else may be fed, has the spirit that you want to cultivate. If a man has been upon yonder shore, far away, and perhaps has spent weeks and months in pursuit of happiness in foreign lands, having turned unto himself a great deal of what is called riches here, he should say to his poorer neighbor, "Take my trip for me. You go across this time, and I will stay at home." This is the spirit you want to get hold of. This is the declaration of truth that I bring unto you. Let the spirit so long penned-up within you shine forth, and those of you who have houses and lands, those of you who are in a position to do great work, see well to it that you wait not until the morning's sun, but that you give unto your brother. Help him along that he may have some of the luxuries in truth. Thus will you prepare the great way of truth. Fling open the doors of selfishness. Say unto those who have misled you, Get behind me, Satan. I want to show you the true and living way, and put into practice the God-laws within my breast.

Dear friends, if you would only listen to the truth which I bring from time to time, and help me through the divine order of things to put into practice the laws of truth, it will bring relief to mankind, will establish freedom everywhere. May the angel world in glorgy, light and life and liberty institute anew in your souls the desire to do unto your fellowmen as you would that they should do unto you. No greater words could I declare—no other sentence could I offer would bring such peace of mind as this if put into practice by you. Do not try to swallow yonder great library at one gulp and then go round and talk about your neighbor, but listen to God within you. Establish the kingdom of heaven within. Allow God to come within your mind, and do not shut Him out and put him on a great throne away up there, but let God within speak without. So let the spirit which was promised to be poured over you, come to the front. May you come into the vibrations of truth and love, into an understanding of love, until you dare to be a Daniel, firm and true everlastingly. May the spirit world make you to understand the great necessity of loving your fellowmen.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

The entrance to the Temple of Knowledge is through the Portals of Doubt.

SUBJECT: IS MAN A FALLEN BEING?

The leaders of the younger groups request the members to relate some personal incident, wherein they have fed a hungry animal, assisted some sick, aged or helpless person, or deprived themselves of pleasures, that they might bestow the same on others. Then the leaders relate some illustrative stories, as of the pirate, a cruel, bloodthirsty man, who reposed under a tree at noontide and saw two doves in the branches feeding their young. Their affection so touched him that he left his comrades and returned to his home, and became almost saintly in his character.

Why do you do good to others; why are you merciful, and benevolent?

Because you are good, and hence you cannot be altogether bad. Really you have so much goodness, mercy, benevolence and gentleness that if you do your best, you can become good and pure as the angels.

For the older groups: Is man a fallen being? No. If originally created perfect, he could not have fallen, for perfection does not admit of temptation. If he had fallen and thus became totally depraved from a state of perfection, total depravity would not admit of reform; for the totally depraved could not comprehend moral principles any more than an ox can comprehend mathematics, not possessing mathematical faculties.

The moral faculties are always moral and hence the term "moral depravity" is a misnomer. Immorality is the result of the propensities, passions and appetites overcoming the restraint of the moral faculties.

Robbers, assassins, murderers and the criminal class are examples of the control of the animal faculties and abeyance of the spiritual.

The sages, saviors, martyrs and all who give self for the welfare of others, are examples of the dominance of the spiritual.

Because man should be governed by spiritual laws, to which his animal nature should be subject, when this is reversed we may call it depravity, although never total.

The revelations of geology show that man existed on the earth before the great Ice Age, or at least 2,000,000 years ago, and even then had reached a degree of civilization. He lived on the earth with the mammoth, and was one of the means of its destruction. The pyramids, according to Lepsius, date to within 112 years of the Biblical Creation, and Egypt had been inhabited as recorded in the Nile deposits twelve hundred centuries before that time.

When first known, man was a savage. History is a record of his advancement. He is a being of evolution, not retrogression. The Garden of Eden, the Golden Age, is in the Future, not the Past.

MEMORY GEMS.

Man has been evolved from the lowest form of being, through intermediate stages, to his present attainments, by fixed and immutable laws of growth.

Man has never fallen from a state of perfection—never has been, nor can be estranged from God.

Ah! Garden of Eden, state of blissful perfection, you are myths—aspirations of the human heart looking backward to the past.

A BUSINESS ADJUNCT.

A PROPOSITION FOR THE INAUGURATION OF A FINANCIAL COMMISSION TO THE N. S. A.—RESOLUTIONS ENDORSED BY THE MICHIGAN MID-WINTER CONVENTION OF SPIRITUALISTS—A PLAN LONG NEEDED INAUGURATED, AND WHICH WILL REDOUND TO THE INTEREST OF SPIRITUALISM.

The rapid strides of modern Spiritualism in the field of psychic research, has brought with it a demand for something that shall sustain the work without encroaching upon the spiritual field in which its greatest fruition is expected.

Spiritualism has grown from the inherent soil in the hearts of humanity, fanned by the zephyrs of the spirit-world, and ripened, a manna the sweetest known to the human soul.

This has been done with meager cultivation, and until the last four years, without the systematic co-operation of its friends upon this side of the vale of life. Its cultivation and development is as boundless as the spirit-realm, while its possibilities are only limited by the needs of humanity.

At its annual convention the National Association laid out a great work for 1897, but finds itself confronted with an empty treasury, no available resources, and no systematic method of raising any. The needs are many, but with the exception of a strong spirituality and a store of boundless self-sacrifice on the part of the National officers, the association is practically powerless to meet the requirements. The great work of carrying the blessed knowledge of immortality into the sterile fields of infidelity and materialism, now strewn with the tares of theology, the immunity from persecution without, and imposition from within, the protection of our magnetic healers, the care of our superannuated workers, the building of a home for the society and the preservation of its literature; aye, the very perpetuation of the beautiful doctrine of Spiritualism seems now dependent upon sustaining our National organization in the wonderful work it has undertaken.

It was with a hope of meeting these requirements so earnestly urged by Brother Barrett at our recent mid-winter convention, that the writer introduced the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the President of the National Association of Spiritualists be requested to immediately appoint a commission of five members subject to the confirmation of the National Association at its next annual meeting. This commission shall take immediate steps to incorporate, and devise ways and means for the furtherance of the work of home missions. Said commission shall have the care and responsibility under the direction of the National Association in convention assembled, of securing and protecting endowments and other funds for the furtherance of this branch of the work, make annual and detailed reports of the annual convention of said society, with such recommendation as in their judgment shall best conserve the interests of Spiritualism.

While the resolution within itself but faintly hints of the possibilities of such a commission, it lays the necessary foundation for a business adjunct almost unlimited in its field of usefulness. It practically provides for a commission to raise funds for the purpose of sustaining the National organization in its broader and more spiritual labor, while it constantly accumulates and perpetuates, through endowment and otherwise, a means for the furtherance of the great work of the association.

Among the several avenues open to such a commission, when legally incorporated, is the application to endowment of the principle of perpetuating our labor for the cause of humanity after we have crossed to the higher life. While everyone may not be able to leave an endowment for the furtherance of the cause of Spiritualism, few would decline the opportunity to make the commission their beneficiary for a few hundred dollars, if they could be assured that such a fund would be judiciously used for the furtherance of the noble work, practically carrying forward their life work after they had entered the great futurity.

While this is but one of many avenues open to such a commission, it is confidently urged that this application of the fundamental principles of Spiritualism would soon furnish an endowment that would place the National organization in position to carry out the great work outlined by the convention, and form a bulwark that would insure the future of the association.

With adequate stability, and a fund for the protection of our mediums, persecution will cease, and they will be accorded the recognition to which their positions entitle them; our healers will no longer be the subject of adverse legislation, our auxiliaries will take their positions with other religious societies, and the unpopularity with which all reforms are at first surrounded will give way to that indorsement comanded by all staple institutions builded upon a great moral principle. With the bane of ostracism removed, Spiritualism will take firm hold of the enlightened minds of the present age, demonstrative religion will take the place of mouldy theology, and an era of religious tolerance and material progress will have been inaugurated.

D. A. REYNOLDS.

Lansing Mich., February 8.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col. Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Book of Lectures on the Laws and Wonders of Evolution. A Sequel to the "Religion of the Stars."

BY O. H. RICHMOND,

Chief of the Order of the Magi for the Jurisdiction of the United States.

Illustrated with many full-page charts, such as are used in the Grand Temple.

This work contains, within a small compass, the knowledge gained from reading many large books, together with much not to be found elsewhere.

It is a book for busy people. A book which gives you a real understanding of the great problems of Nature.

It leads the reader by easy gradations from a universe of ultimate atoms up to the peopled earth, and beyond to the infinite heights of glory.

Ten miles of rocky strata, with many hundreds of fossils, in place, are shown on fifteen charts and lectured upon. Other charts illustrate the surface of our globe from an evolutionary standpoint.

All thinkers should read this book. Illustrated by the author. Bound in cloth.

Price, $1.25 per Copy. For Sale at this Office.

A REMARKABLE DOCTOR BOOK

HAS JUST BEEN ISSUED, ENTITLED

THE NATURE CURE

BY PHYSICAL AND MENTAL METHODS.

A BRIDGE FROM THE OLD TO THE NEW; THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY IN MEDICAL PRACTICE. A CLEAR, SHORT-CUT TREATISE ON THE CAUSE AND CURE OF DISEASE.

By MARVIN E. CONGER, M. D.
Assisted by ROSA C. CONGER, M. D.

The title page is suggestive of important changes in the methods of curing the sick and maintaining health.

THE NATURE CURE is divided into twelve chapters, as follows:

First—Introductory.
Second—Cause of Disease.
Third—Food and Drink.
Fourth—Exercise.
Fifth—Fevers; Cause and Treatment.
Sixth—Disease Inflammatory.
Seventh—Epidemic and Chronic Disease.
Eighth—Baths.
Ninth—Women and Children. (By Rosa C. Conger, M. D.)
Tenth—Useful Recipes.
Eleventh—Object Lessons and Tables.
Twelfth—Miscellaneous Health Suggestions.

Read their definition of medicine: "Any method or remedy that will remove or modify pain without injury, and restore the sick to a normal condition is practical medicine."

The new and better methods of curing the sick and preventing disease, have never been so clearly stated in plain English, for the plain people, as in NATURE CURE.

It is claimed for this book that it is the most complete doctor book ever published, and sold at the lowest price. It is claimed that disease is not a technical, mysterious, theoretical condition or subject, but only a fact that all may understand. More experience, study and time have been expended to evade and pervert the truth, and deceive the people for obtaining money, than to teach the truth and save life and health. THE NATURE CURE reaches the case of this important subject.

The book has 370 pages, is strongly and handsomely bound in cloth for $2.00, and will be mailed upon receipt of price.

ADDRESS THIS OFFICE, 40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

"THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS."

A Primary Course of Lessons in Celestial Dynamics.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT."

This important primary work is the first practical exposition of the Astro-Magnetic forces of Nature—in their relation to man—that has yet been issued by the American press. It contains fourteen special lessons, embracing each department of human life, in such plain, simple language that a child can understand the elementary principles laid down. And in addition to these lessons is an Appendix, containing a full explanation of all technical, and scientific terms in general use upon the subject, thus forming a brief, yet practical Astro Dictionary. This work is illustrated with special plates.

For Sale at This Office. Price. Fifty Cents.

CELESTIAL DYNAMICS,

Being a Normal Course of Study in the Astro-Magnetic Forces of Nature.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT," "THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS," ETC.

A magnificent and complete course of Astro-metaphysical study, embodying Vital Principles of Life, Mental Force, Sickness and Disease. With the only true and really Scientific method of treating the sick successfully.

Mental Healers, Meta-physicians, and all who practice the Healing Art Divine should give "Celestial Dynamics" a thorough and impartial study, and thus learn the real cause of their frequent failures.

No Astro-Student can afford to be without this work, if he would understand the Meta-physics of Astrology.

This work was specially prepared for publication to meet the demands of a large and very earnest class of people who cannot afford to pay for a regular course of instruction under a qualified teacher. And those who can afford this privilege will find the work an invaluable text-book to their studies.

The Price is One Dollar Only, and is within reach of all who seek light. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE,

IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual aliment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

Ingersoll's Great Address

On Thomas Paine, at the late Paine celebration in New York City. Price, 5 cents; ten copies for 50 cents.

WAS

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

A SPIRITUALIST?

—OR—

Curious Revelations from the Life of a Trance Medium.

—BY—

MRS. NETTIE COLBURN MAYNARD

Together with Portraits, Letters and Poems. Illustrated with Engravings and Frontispiece of Lincoln, from Carpenter's Portrait from Life.

This book will be found peculiar, curious, startling!—more so than any work issued since Uncle Tom's Cabin. It breathes forgotten whispers which the rust of time had almost covered, and which have been snatched from the very jaws of oblivion. It deals with high official private life during the most momentous period in American History, and is a secret page from the life of him whom time serves only to make greater, more appreciated, and more understood—"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

Cloth, 12mo, illustrated, pp. 264, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this office.

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 6.)

A. Bates, a noble veteran Spiritualist. He presented to the society a charter from the National Spiritualists' Association. Mrs. Sadie Faust in a neat speech accepted the charter on behalf of the society. She stated that the Spiritual Fraternity Association is the outgrowth of the test circles that she has been the medium of for the past eight years."

A grand musical and literary entertainment, under the auspices of Banner Lodge Good Templars, will be given by Madame Bourgeois, assisted by her pupils and Prof. J. Singer, violinist; Prof. W. Singer, harpist; Prof. H. P. Roundtree, principal of Chicago School of Oratory, at Hygeia Hall, Washington Boulevard and Paulina street, Thursday evening, February 18, 1897. Admission 25 cents.

Dr. Geo. Dutton's latest contribution to medical science—In a late pamphlet of 44 pages, Dr. Dutton has two suggestive articles on Cancer and Vaccination. He aims to show that cancer is rendered more malignant and fatal by use of the knife; that it is propagated by vaccination, and it is curable only by correct living and cleansing measures. As to vaccination, he sets forth that it not only propagates smallpox, which it is supposed to prevent, but propagates syphilis, cancer, consumption, and other forms of disease; that it increases the frequency and malignancy of epidemics, and that its enforcement is a direct attack upon the personal rights, health and lives of the people. Every family and every person will be benefited by reading this pamphlet.

J. C. F. Grumbine opened his ministrations Sunday, February 6, at 3 and 8 p. m., before the Woman's Progressive Union, Brooklyn, N. Y., under auspicious circumstances. Nearly every seat in the pretty hall on Franklin street was taken. He will continue through the months of February and March, and hold classes in psychometry, clairvoyance and inspiration at his rooms, 309 Greene avenue, Brooklyn. He will also answer calls for lectures Sunday mornings or week evenings in and around New York City. At Syracuse, N. Y., Mr. Grumbine delivered a lecture on "Spiritualism," at the home of Mrs. Flint.

Meetings of the Spiritual Temple of New York, at Adelphia Hall, corner 7th avenue and 52 street, every Sunday at 3 o'clock p. m. By order of Committee.

Geo. H. Brooks's meetings at Milwaukee, Wis., have been well attended, and his lectures appreciated. February 15, 16 and 17 he lectured at Leon, Wis. He will take a trip westward soon.

Mrs. J. A. Chapman of Norwich, Conn., writes: "If a line from the 'Nutmeg State' will be in order, we submit the following brief notice of the good work the several speakers are doing this season in Norwich. President H. D. Barrett opened our lecture course, giving two brilliant discourses in the interest of the N. S. A. Dr. George A. Fuller followed with his grand and logical presentation of the spiritual philosophy. Miss Lizzie Harlan, of Haydenville, Mass., one of our youngest and most promising speakers served the society during January, speaking Sundays and Thursday evenings. Her work was heartily appreciated, the audiences increasing from the first to last. Mrs. May S. Pepper, the popular test medium, served us two Sundays, giving many remarkable tests, with names, messages, etc. Our present speaker is Mr. Oscar A. Edgerly, of Newburyport, Mass., this being his first appearance before a Norwich audience. His lectures have the genuine ring of solid metal. His steel, although well polished, cuts bigotry and superstition like a two-edged sword. We hope to hear more of him another season. Thursday evening, 11th inst, we had an evening with one of Mr. Edgerly's guides) John Mc Carthy, and the assembled friends were sumptuously entertained with a spicy address, followed with tests. Mrs. Carrie Loring, of East Braintree, Mass., will be our next speaker, and in March we have that grand scientist and philosopher, Professor W. M. Lockwood, of Chicago."

WORKED BOTH WAYS.

The police of San Francisco have recently been enforcing the law prohibiting work on Sunday, especially against Chinese laundrymen. Last Sunday, as a large load of these offenders was being carted to jail in the police ambulance, a resident of the western addition asked the reason, and was informed by a policeman. "Yep," grunted a disgusted Chinese, who stood near, "man workee Sunday, he go jail—'gainst law workee Sunday. Man no workee, he go jail—wag. America heap hell of, counUy."

RETURNED TO CHICAGO.

We are pleased to note that Wm. M. Salter, formerly lecturer for the Chicago Ethical Culture Society, has returned to this city to again take charge of its interests. Mr. Salter is a graduate of Harvard University, a native of Iowa, and the son of a Congregational clergyman. He has been located for a year or two in Philadelphia. The Progressive Thinker welcomes his return to the city, and hopes to give place to some of his good utterances in its columns.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Poems of Progress." By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1.

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D.,

AYER, MASS.

CHANGED PERSONALITY.

To the Editor:—As a parallel to the recent remarkable instances of changed personality for prolonged periods, published in The Progressive Thinker, I submit the following Hindoo story of Panch Phul Ranee.

The Rajah having set out upon a journey leaving his wife and infant son at home, one day fell in with a traveling company of nautch dancers, and being a very handsome man they became enamored of him and agreed among themselves that their attractions would be increased by having him for their drummer. The Rajah being in need of food supped with them and one of the women took the opportunity to throw a secret powder into the dish of curry. Having partaken of this he forgot his wife, child and station, the object of his journey and all his past life and very willingly remained with his new-found acquaintances, wandering about the country with them and beating the drum for the dancing, for fully eighteen years. His son, the Prince now being grown up, could no longer restrain his anxiety regarding his father, and at last must set out in search of him. After much wandering on false clews, over weary miles and for many months, he at last discovered his beloved father among the nautch company, now a ragged, wild looking outcast, whose only ambition was to mechanically beat the drum for the low dancers.

The overjoyed son tried to assure the old drummer that he was by right a mighty Rajah, and should remember his former wealth and splendor; but the old man replied that he remembered nothing, having beaten the tom tom all his life as he was then doing, and displayed his skill with taps and rolls to prove it. The son however persuaded him to return with him and summoned the wisest doctors of the realm to restore him to his former consciousness, but they were not successful for a long time; finally a faint remembrance of former scenes and places returned to him, and gradually as his recollections increased, he admitted that he had a wife and babe; later he recognized his former servants and friends, and his original mental state having fully returned he resumed his throne and government, and his reign progressed as if nothing had ever happened to interrupt it. H. RICE.

Arcadia, Florida.

PRIESTLY PLOTTING.

The religious societies of Columbus, Ohio, have effected an organization whose object it is to abolish Sunday burials. Next they should make an arrangement with old Death by which he will stay his work, so as not to make burials necessary on that sacred day. All to please the priests.

A TORPID LIVER.

"A little business transaction we had with a prominent church member the other day, convinces us that somemen's religion is nothing less than a torpid liver."—Seneca (Neb.) Democrat.

A Good Offer.

If you are sick and have failed to find relief, send your name and address to Dr. J. R. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a correct diagnosis. Stamps for reply. 378

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

..SPECIALISTS..

In All Chronic Diseases.

Special attention to all Diseases peculiar to either sex. Advanced methods; best results.

CURE GUARANTEED IN ALL CASES TAKEN.

Correct Diagnosis Free

By enclosing name, age, sex, leading symptom, and stamp for reply.

Remember to addd ress

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

P. O. Box 177.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL! . . . . .

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,

REBECCA LEVY.

3331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

From our family circle, within the last week, passed on to the higher life Mrs. Amelia A. Connor, a true and noble woman, possessed of rare mind and virtues—a generous, grand soul.

Mrs. Connor passed her girlhood days in Bangor, Me., coming to California in the early sixties, where she met Capt. Francis Connor, to whom she was subsequently married, and in whose loving companionship she passed many years of her useful life, unfolding in the higher philosophy, as a beautiful flower to the magnetic sun rays.

Captain Connor's funeral services, conducted by Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten, were a revelation of spirit possibilities, and helped to point the way to many a questioning mind.

On Monday, the 25th of January, 1897, amid choice flowers and sorrowing friends, a similar service was rendered over the beautiful remains of Mrs. Connor, by Mrs. Addie L. Ballou, who with swelling heart and tear-dimmed eye, paid just tribute to the many and rare virtues of our dear departed, vividly picturing the reuniting of two such exalted souls on the immortal shore. W.

At the home of her parents in Easton, Ionia county, Mich., Miss Matilda Bell passed to spirit-life after an illness of one day, the cause, congestive chills. She leaves father and mother and two sisters to mourn her loss. Eight years ago the writer was called to the same family to officiate over the remains of a sister, and as Matilda was nearing the other shore, she saw the angels beckoning her to come. The parents for many years have been believers in this beautiful religion. Her father, being very feeble at the present time, not expecting to stay many years longer, has two lovely daughters awaiting his coming. MRS. J. H. DUNHAM.

Ionia, Mich.

Passed to spirit-life, January 28, 1897, Percival Burbank, aged 65 years. He leaves a wife and one child. For the past eight years he has been an invalid, tenderly cared for by his patient and loving wife, who has long been a Spiritualist, and now has the comfort and knowledge that this sublime truth brings to console and support her. The funeral services were conducted by Mrs. Hattie Webber, assisted by the writer. MRS. AMANDA A. CATE.

Haverhill, Mass.

Fanny Frost departed this life December 10, 1896. On the 7th of January, in reply to the question: "Shall I take your body to England—as you always wished to be buried there?" I received this answer: "My Dear Husband—You little know the great good you do me by granting me this interview this morning. Never mind my old body; it is but the old and tattered garment that has served its purpose. Let it rest with old Mother Earth, from whence it came. My spirit goes happily onward and longs for your transition to this life. It will not be long now when we shall be united again. I am your dearest wife, Fanny Frost. GEO. FROST.

Arisen into spirit-life, November 17, 1896, aged 21 years and 3 months, Dell A. Gifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gifford, Watertown, N. Y. Early in childhood he became interested in spirit return, often seeing beautiful visions, one instance at the time of a transition of a younger brother, he beheld the spirit of his brother in company with two beautiful angel presences, floating away into the bright ether blue sky, and related the comforting assurance to his parents and friends of the reality of the scene to his clairvoyant vision.

One of the largest attended funerals that has ever been in the city of Watertown, occurred in testimony of the high estem of this worthy young man's life. His moral and spiritual nature drew around him as friends, not only those younger and of his own age, but the aged ever held a kind feeling of respect, for he delighted in little acts that ever leave an impression not to be easily forgotten.

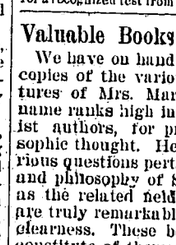
MRS. MARY C. LYMAN.

William H. Reed, who passed to spirit-life from his home in Lebanon, Ore., January 23, 1897, was born in Des Moines county, Iowa, December 23, 1836. He came with his parents to Oregon in 1852, and settled in Linn county, near Albany, and has made this country his home. He was an Indian war veteran, had been in active service in suppressing the Indian hostilities in Yakima county, Washington Territory, in the fall and winter of 1855 and 1856, and endured all the hardships of frontier warfare. He was convinced of the truth of Spiritualism about fifteen years ago, by Mrs. Amanda Kelso Bruce, an independent slate-writing medium, who passed to a higher life about two years ago. Brother Reed's spiritual sight was opened in his last illness, and he saw and described many spirit friends. He was a charter member of the A. O. U. W., of this city, and was a prominent and worthy citizen.

MRS. J. G. REED.

On Thursday, January 28, 1897, after three years of patient suffering with Bright's disease, Almon Stoddard, in Newark, Vt., passed to spirit-life, in his 80th year. For over forty years he was a true believer in the spiritual philosophy. Believing his mortal career was drawing to its close, he engaged an old veteran in the cause he loved so well, Mrs. A. P. Brown, of St. Johnsbury Center, Vt., to officiate at his funeral, and selected the subject for the foundation of her remarks—"What Is Truth."

E. B. C.



FREE! FREE!—

To all Scandinavians: A copy of "Den Skandinaviske Spiritualisten." Address, 248 Cedar Ave. Minneapolis, Minn. 378

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

SPIRITUALIST BADGES.

EVERY .... SPIRITUALIST SHOULD WEAR THE SUNFLOWER JEWELRY.

As the Sunflower turns its face towards the sun, so Spiritualism turns the faces of humanity from darkness and superstition towards the Sunlight of Truth and Progression.

PRICES:

Rolled Plate Bar Pin	$2 25
Solid Gold Bar Pin	3 50
Electro-plate Badge	75
Rolled Plate Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 25
Solid Gold Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 75
Rolled Plate Maltese Watch Charm	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Watch Charm	5 00
Rolled Plate Maltese Pendant	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Pendant	5 00

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE,

40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO

MADAME ANNA ALPLANALB,

THE CELEBRATED

Gypsy Palmist and Psychometric Reader,

Is well known throughout America, having been before the public twenty years. Send date of birth, sex and complexion, with a glove lately worn, and receive a life reading. Fee $1. 3014 So. Fremont ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 379

"Revelations of a Spirit Medium."

324 pages illustrated. Former price $1.50; our price, 75 cents, prepaid. "Illusions and Mental Phenomena," two volumes, 25 cents each, prepaid. CLYDE PUBLISHING CO., Box 851, Chicago, Ill. 378

THOS. E. ADDY, 183 SOUTH BROADWAY, Aurora, Ill., trance, test and business medium. Sittings daily. Send 25 cents silver and 2-cent stamp for a recognized test from your spirit friends. 376tf

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Cause and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

"The Occult Forces of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. Three pamphlets are embodied in this volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents.

"From Night to Morn, or An Appeal to the Baptist Church." By Abby A. Judson. Gives an account of her experience in passing from the old faith of her parents to the light and knowledge of Spiritualism. It is written in a sweet spirit, and is well adapted to place in the hands of Christian people. Price 15 cents.

"Mahomet, His Birth, Character and Doctrine." By Edward Gibbons. This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. Price, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

An abridged edition of "Antiquity Unveiled" gives in condensed form its more important statements and references. It is in stiff board covers, and the price is 50 cents. For sale at this office.

NEW OCCASIONS

A Magazine of Social Progress.

EDITED BY FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

The world is on the threshold of vast social changes. Progress is about to sunder the chains which have bound it. The next forward step will be just that which the average intelligence of a nation makes possible. Revolutions are the pulse beats of progress. The coming revolution should be one of intelligence; it should be one of peace. In that hope and in that belief NEW OCCASIONS opens its pages to a discussion of live questions. It is bound by no creed, and desires only to reach nearer to the truth. MONTHLY, 64 PAGES with handsome cover.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION $1.00; SINGLE COPIES 10 CENTS.

Sold by all Progressive Newsdealers.

WANTED the address of every active reformer. We have thousands of pamphlets on free silver, direct legislation, government banks, etc., for distribution. Sample package mailed for six cents.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO., Pubs., 56 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

Have you promised yourself the rare pleasure of reading this beautiful work by the good, old-time writer, Hudson Tuttle? Price, 50 cents. Contains a fine portrait of the author. For sale at this office.

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By The late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

FORSTER, DR. W. M.,

THE NOTED

MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT

OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 333

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR,

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,

SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

$1 Pays You a Big $50 Doctor Bill.

Dr. C. D. Farmer, clairvoyant healer through the power of Jesus and our God. Send $1, your name and date of birth for five weeks' treatment. For this small sum, can you afford to pass it by? Write and send a 2-cent stamp. Will also tell your life after death. Send your birth and and 25 cents. Address Dr. C. D. Farmer, Petoskey, Mich. No. 39 West Mitchell street. 378

"CANCER AND VACCINATION."

The best articles ever written on these subjects are contained in a pamphlet of 44 pages, just issued by Dr. George Dutton, 72 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill. Sent by mail for 25 cents. The article on Cancer explains its cause and cure in language plain to understand. It will prove a revelation to many and save many a valuable life. Send for it at once. 378

HOW TO DRAW YOUR SPIRIT FRIENDS around you with talisman, ten cents silver and stamp. Prof. James Hilling, 1 Essex street, Somerville, Mass. 379

DIAGNOSES FREE. READINGS 25 CENTS. DR. S. Barney, 465 Jefferson ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. 379

YOUR FUTURE WELFARE BY THE STARS. Horoscopes, questions, opinions, advice, etc. Send date of birth to T. ARCHIBALD, Westside, Santa Clara, Cal. 380

READ WHAT MR. ARROWSMITH, OF LOUISville, Ky., says: "I had readings from all noted mediums, but St. Omer Briggs' readings surpasses them all. All her predictions came true." Consult the celebrated psychometrist and seer, MARGUERITE ST. OMER BRIGGS, 739 Richmond St., Cincinnati, O. Readings $1 and $2, with stamps. 381

BLUE BIRD, ENGINEER OF NIGHT EXPRESS running between darkness and dawn, will teach wisdom not found in books, give names and poems of soul mate and guide, ring the bell by each blighted pine when storms are due, place signal lights in trails of business and pleasure that your soul may the sooner slow up to stations of health, wealth and prosperity. Enclose one dollar, name, age and address. Dr. Marion H. Bassette, Box 323, Henderson's Harbor, N.Y. 379

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 384

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

PSYCHOMETRY, CONSULT WITH Prof. A. B. Severance in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit-friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address, 710 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis. 368tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading paths, and two 3-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 378

MRS. B. HASENCLEVER, 684 MADISON STREET. Test and trumpet circle every Tuesday at 3 and 8 o'clock. 25 cents. Materializing seance Wednesdays and Saturdays at 8. Independent slate-writing daily. 381

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily, 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street, Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 380

Seership—Guide to Soul-Light.

Its art and culture, with rules for its attainment. Lucidity is no gift, but a universal possibility common to the human family. Price $2.

EULIS. The Third Revelation of Soul and Sex. A work containing many secret and inner doctrines of the Rosicrucians. In it and by it both man and woman have not merely the road to enormous power, both mental and individual, but the grand energy of effecting wished for changes in others; also prolongation of life. Price $2.50. Address KATE C. RANDOLPH, 23 Melrose avenue, Toledo, O. 379

IF YOU ARE SICK

with any form of disease, send ten cents (silver or stamps) to Dr. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a trial treatment of a revealed vegetable tablet. They will positively cure any disease, including stomach, liver or kidney trouble; also rheumatism and diseases of the nervous system. Testimonials will be furnished from people who have been permanently cured with one trial treatment. 377

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 67 Thirty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, Ill. 377tf

MRS. S. F. DEWOLF—INDEPENDENT SLATE writing. 240 Winchester ave., near Van Buren. Madison street car; take transfer at Robey. Ladies' circle, Thursdays at 2:30. Chicago, Ill. 379

A GENEROUS OFFER.

Chronic Diseases a Specialty. Send five 2-cent stamps, age, sex, lock of hair, full name, State and county. You will get a correct diagnosis FREE, with advice and low terms for treatment. Thirty years in practice; nearly every patient cured. Also as a seer of marvelous power, he will answer six questions for 50 cents. Life reading one dollar,

DR. S. W. FISKE,

53 Oak Street. - Norwich Conn. 380

ASTROPATHY

THE ART OF HEALING UNDER PLANETARY LAW.

Something new and startling. This knowledge is from a higher source and is fully explained in the "ASTRAL GUIDE," which will be sent FREE to any address upon receipt of a two cent stamp for postage. Astrological students, Physicians, Healers, Nurses, Everybody must have the "Guide."

L. J. SHAFER, Chemist,

31 Calkins Ave., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in foreign countries have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 238 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

E. D. BABBITT, M. D. LL. D., Dean 422

A WONDERFUL OFFER

..BY...

DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and hand, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,

502 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.

Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

ORDER OF THE MAGI.

A New Badge in solid gold with blue and black enamel, with the pyramids, obelisk and sun's rays in gold. Every Mystic should have one of these beautiful emblems. Price $2. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

CHRONIC DISEASES

A SPECIALTY.

Send your age, name in full in your own handwriting, and I will diagnose your disease

FREE OF CHARGE!

Enclose three 2-cent stamps and address

J. S. COOPER, M. D.

Chillicothe, Mo. 384

MRS. EMMA D. BUSH,

PSYCHIC READER, CLAIRVOYANT AND CLAIRAUDIENT. Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. Room 408 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill. 380

OCCULT FORCES.

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtle forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to be interested in it and 2c in stamps. Circulars free. OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof H. W. Sinclair. 82 Adams avenue, Detroit, Mich. 378

Permanent Medial Development

Send a stamped and addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, Station P, Chicago, for terms, reading, circulars, for development in clairvoyance, psychometry inspiration and healing. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Reduced terms. The inspirational teachings and experiments by correspondence are just what you need to insure success. Psychiscopes $2. Mr. Grumbine is endorsed by the Spiritualistic press and leading societies throughout the country. The only inspirational and scientific system of unfoldment extant. Catalogue of publications of White Rose free. 364tf

MANSILL'S ALMANAC

—OF—

PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

OLD MELODIES SPIRITUALIZED—A SONG Book (words only) for the home, circle, seance and lecture room. With each book is a practicable way of use for those who sing by note. 35 cents. Address H. V. BOOZER Grand Rapids, Mich 378

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST

RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments can not do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.

Address

EMMA ROOD TUTTLE,

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

The Progressive Thinker

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1897, NO. 379.

LIFE AND ITS DEMONSTRATIONS.

A LECTURE DELIVERED TO THE READERS OF THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, BY HON. A. B. RICHMOND, THE SAGE OF CASSADAGA.

For man to tell how human life began
Is hard, for who himself beginning knew?

How familiar to all, and yet how incomprehensible is Life. When did it begin on earth, and what were its first manifestations? By what power was it created, and what will be its end? These are the all-important questions of the thoughtful mind.

TRUTH IN TRADITION.

The revered tradition of our ancestors but states a scientific fact when it says: "And the Lord formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of Life, and man became a living soul." And whether the sentence was an inspiration from the Infinite mind or a conception of an ancient philosopher, matters not, in a general sense it is a demonstrated scientific fact. There was a time when the earthly elements of our physical bodies existed only in the disintegrated form of primordial atoms of senseless or lifeless matter; incapable of self control, purposeless and without power within themselves to form the simplest protoplasm; or even to move without the application of an intelligent force external to them, and that now as then guides and directs all material formations by immutable law.

There was a time in the far distant past millions of ages ago, when all the matter of our globe and its kindred planets existed in attenuated heated vapor or "fire mist" thrown off by an intensely heated sun. For unnumbered eons this flaming cloud of vaporized elements of unformed worlds revolved through the heavens around a common center, yet gradually cooling, dividing, subdividing, and condensing into worlds and their accompanying moons. Our earth rolled through space an incandescent globe, with all its water and other vaporizable matter in a gaseous state for millions of ages before it was sufficiently cooled to permit the existence of even the lowest forms of life on its surface. The oceans, seas, and lakes of our period, then floated around the earth in the form of superheated steam or vapor. As time passed on with the tread of Eons, our globe radiated its heat into immeasurable space, until it reached a temperature below the vaporizing or boiling point of water, when this vapor condensed and settled upon the earth, forming the oceans and seas of that distant period. But they were yet too hot to permit life to exist among their seething waters, or upon their heated, wave-beaten shores.

THE DAWN OF LIFE.

Time is not to be taken into account in the processes of evolving creation; for insignificant indeed are its passing, measured periods, with

"Him from out whose hands,
The centuries fall like grains of sand," and with whom all eternity past and all eternity to come is but one eternal now. Again ages rolled on in countless numbers until the first geological period impressed its footprint on the rocky pages of the young earth's formation. This is called the Eozoic, or period of the dawn of life. In this formation does the paleontologist find the first form of animate existence—the "Eozoon Canadense," a gigantic reptile representative of the lowest animal life, a type of which is still extant in the ocean. Before and cotemporary with this animal there lived many forms of zoophytic life; but before them was no life on our globe. Then, whence did it come? Did an Infinite power then breathe into the inanimate dust the breath of life in accordance with immutable law, and in furtherance of a Divine plan? Or do we exist through the agency of innate properties of apparently senseless matter? Do we live through the power of some intelligent energy in the Universe, or by reason of the action of the affinities of elementary atoms of matter that are inherent in themselves alone?

These are questions that are differently answered by savants of the two schools of biology of the present time, and the solution of the problem involves the mysteries of life, both here and hereafter. It seems to be a logical deduction, that if our life here is because of a combination of the fourteen elements that compose our physical body, when that body is disintegrated by death and decay and its elements dispersed into other forms, the active principle of life would also follow the atoms of matter whose combination caused it to exist, and could not live in our personalities beyond the grave.

IS MATTER INERT?

An able author and interesting writer upon this subject says: "We are to divest ourselves at once of the old idea of the inertness of matter. It has within itself the forces by which it acts, without which it could not exist." (?)

How do we know this statement so positively asserted is true? Who has ever discovered these forces, either by analysis or synthesis? Neither crucible, spectroscope nor microscope has ever revealed them; they exist only in the mind of those who advocate the theory. It is true that we know that all the atoms of matter, either in solid, fluid or the gases, are in motion; but whether from an energy within or without their substance no one can tell; they may move as do the leaves of a forest by a force external to them; or as the vapor of a summer morning is driven before the wind, and as none can see the cause of their movement we are left to the conclusions of logical reasoning in our attempts to solve the problem.

EVIDENCES OF DESIGN.

In all the broad Universe we see so many evidences of a design in every formation of matter, from plants to planets, from a simple combination of atoms to systems of revolving worlds, that there must be a designer, who directs by immutable law all phenomena in accordance with some intelligent plan. If the properties of matter alone cause all this, why in the development of our globe was the pasture made before the flocks that feed upon it? why the flower before the bee? or why in all nature's broad domain is the coming want preceded by the means of its gratification? Wise indeed must have been the atom to have foreseen the needs of its future combinations, and provided for them before those combinations existed.

PRE-EXISTING DESIGN.

If a desired effect is to take place in the future, and we find two separate and distinct formations created absolutely necessary to cause that effect, must we not logically conclude that there was a pre-existing design to accomplish a purpose, and a development of that design in the means provided for its accomplishment? Now the male and female forms in all animate nature are constructed of the same material elements; yet are they so differently formed in organism that the desired effect of procreation is alone secured by their differentiation. Great indeed was the wisdom and ingenuity of the inherent energy of the atom that made the dust of the tassel of corn necessary to fall upon the silken ear to fructify the growing grain; or that moved the pollen of one flower to fall upon another's painted lips. It would be far less wonderful for the inherent latent affinities of steel and iron to construct an engine or an ocean steamer, than for the material elements of our body to build a human form without the direction of a designer, and when built to invest it with a human soul.

Scientists have never discovered the faintest evidence of life either in primordial atoms or a chemical combination thereof. Sages may assert and logicians postulate in vain, long ere they convince mankind that our life is the result of a combination of atoms, and our memories, loves and aspirations but the result of an aggregation of lifeless, senseless matter. The fact that life only can beget life is to-day a demonstrated scientific fact; if it were not true then would our mentality end with the death of our bodies, and man's hope of immortality be like the baseless fabric of a dream, without foundation save in his imagination.

ABIO-GENESIS.

The theory of spontaneous generation or "Abio-genesis," as it is scientifically termed, once so ably advocated by Redi, Spellenzi and their cotemporaries, is now denied by the ablest scientists of the present time. And this cardinal doctrine of evolution is lately controverted by Huxley, who says that "for the present, the doctrine of evolution is to be held in expectancy."

Now while the theory of evolution is true in a general sense, yet it is not true in its details to the extent claimed for it by some of its advocates. For a while it is true that there was a time when no life could have existed in the intense heat of a slowly condensing world from fire mist; yet there was a time when life first appeared on this planet, and from that time until the advent of man there has been a continued advancement of the life principle from a source outside of matter, and not inherent in it, and that source is the Infinite Mind of the Universe.

SPECIES REMAIN THE SAME.

There is one insuperable obstacle in the way of the theory that all life proceeded from one primordial germ, and that man is the last link in a chain that commenced with zoophytic life, and it is this:

In all the various forms of both animal and vegetable existence, evolution has never changed one species into another. They may be modified by external influences and environments into different races and varieties, but not changed from one species into another. For instance, the difference between the herbivorous and carnivorous animals is the same now that it was in the era of early life. No change of environments could convert the descendants of a deer into a tiger, a lamb into a wolf, or a bird into a mamal. And it is equally true in the vegetable kindom; no long continued cultivation could change a grape vine into a fruit tree, or a nettle into a stock of grain. And even when by long-continued care and training a variety of domestic animals has been developed from their wild parent stock, let them be returned to the wilderness homes of their ancestors, away from the controlling influence of man, and they soon return to their early savage condition. It is a striking fact, too, that every species, no matter what its race may be, always recognizes its fellows although the varieties may be very different in size, form and habits. Thus a little lap-dog, led with a ribbon by its lady owner along a street, if it meets a noble English mastiff or a St. Bernard, will immediately recognize a distant relation and member of its family, and by a friendly wag of its caudal appendix will exclaim in a dogmatic manner, yet as plainly as if uttered by human voice and tongue: "Hello cousin! how are you? Where are you from, and where are you going?" But, if it meets a pet kitten of some little girl, there is an immediate declaration of war, and a biss on one side, with a growl on the other, demonstrates the fact that there is here no recognition of even a distant relationship or a descent from a common ancestry. And through all historic period, and all record of fossiliferous rocks, these differences of species are observed, negativing the theory of a common origin for all animal life; or that this life is the result of primordial affinities of elementary matter.

Then, too, in different portions of the globe there exists different forms of animal life, that apparently could not have sprung from a common ancestry, as the kangaroo and "ornithorhynchus paradoxus" of Australia, which are found there to-day, but nowhere else. So in the fossiliferous record of the past; the different continents and islands have buried remains of animals, reptiles and birds peculiar to their localities alone, and which cannot scientifically be attributed to a common source of ancestry.

RECORD OF THE ROCKS.

How truthfully from age to age do the organic remains of the rocks record the progress of life on the earth from its early dawn to the present time. The history of the earliest and later epochs of animate existence, with the evident design of a Divine mind in the creation of the world and advent of man, is written on the rocky pages of geological history by God's own hand; and blind indeed is he who cannot read them. In perusing the diversified contents of this wonderful volume, we cannot but be convinced of the infinite power of the Author, and of His ultimate design in the evolution of our race—a design that develops our life here, and by immutable law promises immortality hereafter.

The materialist looks abroad on the vast domain of human ingenuity and creative industry, and he finds a design of the human mind in every device constructed by man. Every object of human mechanism he sees is but an embodied thought of the artisans of our race, wrought in wood, metal or stone; and he knows that before these constructions of man's handiwork, there must have been a design and a designer; then he turns to the daisy that blooms at his feet, and attributes its growth and formation to the inherent attributes of senseless matter, when science has revealed the fact that that little flower is more artistic in design, and more complicated in structure than all the works of man's ingenuity that have civilized and enlightened the earth; and yet the materialist, before the contemplation of the stupendous creation of the celestial orrery, smiles complacently at his discovery that all this is the result of chemical affinity of material atoms that knows no design or designer. Verily, verily, is it true that it is "the fool alone that hath said in his heart, 'There is no God.'"

The very laws that govern and control the vaporization and congelation of water afford demonstrable evidence of a design for its future use, even while it surrounded a newborn earth in the attenuated form of superheated vapor. Observe that it is a general law that all the combinations of matter expand by heat and contract by cold, to an almost infinite degree, except the combination of oxygen and hydrogen, the component parts of water. If water followed the general law of all other substances, the world would become uninhabitable to animal life. Let me illustrate this proposition by a few familiar facts. Now fluid, solid, and gas are but relative conditions of heat; water and oil in the polar regions become solid rocks, almost as indurate as granite; while mercury becomes a metal that can be drawn out under the hammer like lead. But while all other substances save water, continue to condense with cold, water does not follow this general law. Its freezing point is 32 degrees above zero, and it contracts until it reaches 29½ degrees when it begins to expand, and continues to expand until it reaches the freezing point, "when it becomes lighter than water and floats upon its surface, thus covering our lakes and rivers with a porous crystal blanket that protects the waters beneath with their thousands forms of piscatorial life from the intense cold above the ice. But for this deviation from the general law of contraction and expansion by the different degrees of heat, the lakes and rivers of the temperate zones would become solid beds of ice in one winter's night, when as water is a non-conductor of heat, a summers sun would only melt the surface a few inches in depth leaving their bottoms a dense crystal rock; a sarcophagus of the dead forms of all that live in water.

How is it possible that this stupendous fact can be attributed to the inherent properties of matter alone? Is it not rather the design of the "Infinite mind" formulated when the earth was without form and void, and the Spirit of God moved all the atoms in accordance with His immutable law and Divine will? Is this and all other phenomena that so evidently exist for the benefit of the earth's inhabitants, the result of accidental grouping of atoms impelled alone by their innate affinities? Or is all we see and feel and know, in accordance with the design of an immutable, omnipotent, and Infinite designer?

"Who never did begin, who ne'er can end,
On whom all beings, as their source depend.
That changed through all is yet in all the same,
Great in the earth as in the ethereal frame;
Warms in the sun, refreshes in the breeze,
Glows in the stars, and blossoms in the trees,
Lives through all life, extends through all extent,
Spreads undivided, and operates unspent."

Some of the most unaccountable phenomena of the prehistoric life on our globe, are the annihilation of many species of animals and reptiles that once roamed through the forests of the carboniferous era; or thronged the storm-beaten waters of the primordial seas and oceans of our earth millions of years before it was fitted for the habitation of man. The petrified remains of the monsters of the past pages fill the rocky pages of geological history, showing a long continued preparation of the earth's surface, and life conditions for the advent and evolution of the human race. But what caused the destruction of whole species of animal life, while others, through their descendants, yet live? This fact is the unsolved problem of science to-day, and has even inspired the poetic muse of learning and philosophy to tell the wonderful legend of the rocks in measured rhyme and cadence.

NAUTILUS AND AMMONITE.

Let me tell you a beautiful story of the past and present: Millions of ages ago there lived in the troubled waters of the seas and oceans of our infant earth, two "shell fish," the "Nautilus and Ammonite." They were very similar in construction, being spiral chambered shells; were alike in their habits of life, and lived on the same food; their remains are found in great numbers side by side in the cretaceous and oolitic groups of fossiliferous rocks. But there came a time in the long past, when from some unknown cause the Ammonites all died and their race became extinct, while the Nautilus lives to-day, and is frequently seen by navigators, in shoals sailing over the waters of the southern oceans. This singular fact has been recorded by G. F. Richardson, an eminent English zoologist and geologist, in the following beautiful lines, with a spiritualistic moral attached thereto by Prof. Wm. Denton:

THE NAUTILUS AND AMMONITE.

"The nautilus and the ammonite
Where launched in storm and strife;
Each sent to float in its tiny boat,
On the wide, wild sea of life.

And each could swim on the ocean's brim,
And when wearied their sails could furl,
And sink to sleep in the great sea deep,
In their palace all of pearl.

And theirs was a bliss more pure than this
That we feel in our colder time;
For they were rife in a tropic life,
In a brighter, better clime.

They swam 'mid isles whose summer smiles
Were dimmed by no alloy;
Whose groves were palm, whose air was balm,
And life one only joy.

They roamed all day through sea and bay
And traversed the ocean deep;
And at night they sank on a coral bank,
In their fairy bowers to sleep.

And the monsters vast of ages past
They saw in their ocean caves;
They saw them ride in their power and pride,
And sink in their deep sea graves.

Thus hand in hand, from strand to strand,
They sailed in mirth and glee—
Those fairy shells, with their crystal cells,
Twin-sisters of the sea.

But they came at last to a sea long past;
And, as they reached its shore,
The Almighty's breath spoke out in death,
And the ammonite lived no more.

And the nautilus now, in its shelly prow,
As o'er the deep it strays,
Still seems to seek in bay and creek
It's companion of other days.

[Added by Denton.]

And thus do we, on life's stormy sea,
As we roam from shore to shore,
While tempest-tost, seek the loved, the lost
But find them on earth no more.

Yet the hope how sweet—again to meet,
As we look to a distant strand,
Where heart meets heart, no more to part,
Who meet in that better land."

WHAT HISTORY PROVES.

The history of life on our planet, as it is written by God's own hand upon the rocky pages of the earth's formation, demonstrates certain facts as clearly as the demonstrations of the problems in Euclid; and no educated mind will deny them. And what does that history prove?

1.—It proves that our globe has existed and revolved on its tireless pathway around our sun for unnumbered millions of ages, all the time progressing towards a more perfect condition, in accordance with the design of the Infinite Mind or Soul of the Universe.

2.—That it has been inhabited by living beings for millions of years, rising higher and higher in the scale of sentient life, until the present time; and that while death has swept away individuals and races, it was only that their places might be supplied with more perfect and advanced species.

3.—Science has proven beyond the possibility of contradiction that the story of the Garden of Eden is pure fiction of the early literature of the Hebrews. That there never was an Adam and Eve in a beautiful garden in which was planted a tree of life, and also a tree of knowledge of good and evil.

4.—There never was a first temptation of man in the Garden of Eden; and that a serpent never said to the unsuspecting mother of the human race: "If ye eat of the tree, ye shall not surely die, but your eyes shall be opened and ye shall be as Gods knowing good and evil."

5.—That there never was, and never could have been a fall of man through temptation by a "fallen angel;" that there never was a necessity of a redemption of our race, because of the sin of an original pair; and therefore never a redeemer.

6.—That there never was a flood that covered the earth fifteen cubits above the highest mountains, and that destroyed all life on earth save Noah, his family and menagerie; and that God never set his bow in the heavens as a "token of a covenant" with Noah, and between him and the earth, that he would never again cause a flood to destroy all flesh; for science proves that there never was a mist from a waterfall on which fell the light of the sun, or a dewdrop that sparkled with its refracted rays, but that nature's laws recorded the fact in a painted rainbow.

7.—That the Lord never did cause the sun to stand still upon Gibeon and the moon in the valley of Ajalon to lengthen a day for the murder of men, women and children by a ruthless cruel monster; whose memory should make his very name detestable for all time to come. The accurate calculations of astronomy, of the past, present, and future movements of the planet in the celestial orrery, contradict this silly story, which if true ought to render the very name of the Jehovah of the Jews more despicable than that of Nero or of "Satanas Diabolus" himself.

8.—But the most absurd story of all so-called inspiration is the account in the first chapter of Genesis of the creation of the sun and moon and stars. Science proves that our sun existed a flaming orb millions of ages before our earth, and the primary planets of our system were thrown off from its surface in an intensely heated fire mist, to be condensed into their present forms by the radiations of their heat into space, and therefore that the story of Genesis that "God made two great lights on the fourth day of creation; the one to rule the day, and the other the night, and that he then made the stars also," is an ancient fiction, as false and fabulous in its narration as are the fables of heathen mythology.

All these and kindred traditions of an ignorant past are unworthy of the serious consideration of the intelligence of today. They are ignored by science as unfounded legends of primitive man; while the student of nature can never believe them so long as he is a "Slave to no sect, who takes no private road,

But looks through nature up to nature's God."

The theologicans of to-day assert the "plenary inspiration" of the Bible as if it was an undisputed or undeniable fact, which excluded all mixture of error; when science demonstrated that all of its narratives as to the formation of the earth and its inhabitants are untrue in every particular. Where, then, are we to look for inspiration? Shall it be in the pages of traditions written by ignorant and unknown authors of an uncertain time, or from the record of the rocks written by the immutable laws of nature in the great geological history of the earth's formation? For as plainly and truthfully as did ever a spirit hand write the prophecy on the wall at Belshazzar's feast; has the same unseen power inscribed upon tablets of stone deep buried in the earth, the true story of the creation; and no intelligent mind can doubt its narrations. Men may either designedly or ignorantly err either in writing or reading a manuscript page, but what nature's laws inscribe on the formations of the material world are without error, for they are written by the Infinite mind and power that designed and constructed the Universe.

But suppose that what we have narrated of the history of the rocks is all true, suppose that history is undeniably accurate in its description of both the earlier and later life on our planet, what then? What about a life hereafter? Geology commences with inanimate matter and primordial life on our globe and after tracing its evolutions through millions of years, it stops on the brink of the grave. It can go no farther. It finds no proof of life beyond the waters of the mystic river that crosses the pathway of all that have lived, and that engulfs all in its dark and mysterious flow. What evidence have we then of a future life? It is in vain that Hope may promise and Faith believe. There must be something more, some stronger evidence, or eternity may be a dream, and immortality an unsubstantial vision begotten of the longings of love and desires of the human mind.

The so-called Holy books and inspirational traditions of the past are no proof, for they were written, related, and believed only by men as we are, who knew not the scientific facts that now deny and disprove them. Where, then, shall the human mind turn from the darkened path of agnosticism and find that consolation which a positive knowledge of immortality alone can give? Nowhere within the realm of science or the boundaries of human knowledge, save in the phenomena of Spiritualism, and the cheering deductions of its philosophy, founded on facts as well established as is the history of primordial life.

PROOFS OF MAN'S IMMORTALITY.

We know that the Ichthyosaurus, the Plesiosaurus, the Pterodactylus and their monster companions of the Hassic period once lived in multitudinous numbers in the early marshes and waters of a newly formed earth; we know their habits, their food and conditions of life, because their remains are now made obvious to our senses. If then the mental characteristics of our friends and acquaintances, who have long since passed away, make themselves apparent to us by any spiritual phenomena; if they manifest a knowledge of mutual secrets and incidents of the past, with the loves and friendships that once endeared them to us; are we not as certain that they yet live in the spirit-world as we are that, if the narrations of the rocks of primordial life are true, saurians and mammals once lived on our earth before it was fitted for the habitation of man?

Here we require not the assistance of hope and faith to confirm our belief. Here we need no command from God "to believe or be damned;" for the human mind must believe a demonstrated truth, even if an eternity of future woe was the penalty therefor. How absurdly unjust is it to command all mankind to believe under a prescribed penalty, without proof, when if sufficient proof is produced we must believe nolens volens. For the convictions of our mentality are beyond the influence of command or penal statutes. The human mind thinks, reasons, and postulates as unconsciously as are the movements of the heart or lungs, and neither command nor threat can aid our mental conceptions or change our logical conclusions. Our whole system of legal jurisprudence is based upon this self-evident fact. A jury is impanneled in our courts; the issue to be tried involves the life or death of the accused; witnesses are called, and the experienced lawyer well knows that the minds of the twelve men before him, will be convinced by the evidence alone, and that if honest their verdict will be in accordance with their convictions "uninfluenced by fear, favor, affection, reward or any hope thereof." A violation of this legal maxim would be a subversion of all justice, and an abrogation of all the rights of the citizens. Why is it then that orthodoxy requires of men when sitting as jurors in their own cases, where their own eternal life and welfare are pending in the issue, to ignore their reason and convictions, and do that which it is impossible for them to do—that is, to believe without proof, because the penalty for disbelief, is eternal damnation? And that this is so decreed by an allwise creator and a loving father who, if Christian tradition be true "takes no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but would rather that all would come unto Him and live." One would think that absurdity in human reasoning could go no farther.

PRIMORDIAL DESIGN.

Human knowledge and experience proves that life on our earth now is, while science proves that once it was not. And the logic of reason also proves that in the past as now it exists because of a primordial design that preceded it, and that contemplated a desired end. And our beautiful religion teaches that that end is continued development of our race here for ages to come, and a demonstrated immortality in a future world beyond the ordeal of death and the grave.

Prof. William Denton, whose memory we Spiritualists cherish as the Catholic devotee does his patron saint, says in his work on "Our Planet, It's Past and Future:"

"Strange, there are men who dream that the course of this planet is nearly run, though it is yet so far from the goal—not strange either, when we think how we have neglected Nature's great volume of instructions, and listened for ages to fables. There has not been a year for the last eighteen hundred that many have not looked forward to as the last of the expiring world. Not a meteor's glare, nor an earthquake tremor, but is hailed as a herald of coming chaos: and yet the grand old earth spins round and round, carrying these people along with it to their destiny; and so it will do for all their brethren yet to be born. Ask them what they think the world was made for, and they reply, of course for the production and development of men; yet, just as it commences to answer this end, they anticipate its destruction.

"A gentleman selects a town as a place where to build a factory for making locomotives; digs deep; lays solid foundations, and rears a suitable superstructure. Within it he places an engine, and shafts through various rooms connected with it; on the shafts are drums and belts connecting them with various machines, some for turning, some for boring, and others for planing. After spending years of time, hundreds of thousands of dollars, and much labor, at length it produces tolerable locomotives. It takes time for the wheels to run smoothly, time for the workmen to execute their parts with accuracy. But, just as this is in a fair way to be accomplished, its proprietor burns it to the ground. What should we think of him?"

"We should charitably conclude that he was deranged."

The earth's foundations were laid deep and enduring in the eternity of the past; and, after unceasing preparations for untold ages, the grand factory for making men commences to produce tolerable specimens of the race, with the promise of vastly better in the future; but, just as it does so, these people believe it will be burnt up, swept with universal destruction, that it may be refitted for a handful of "saints," certainly no better than the average of their neighbors, who are to occupy it forever. No danger of this, that the earth will cease to exist, there is no doubt; but its end lies far away in the ages to come, when its fruit is ripe and its work done."

No! No! as Prof. Denton has said: "The end is not yet. That it will come in the vastly distant future, is as certain as the inevitable decrees of fate; but not until the great design of an Infinite mind, the God of the Universe, has been fully accomplished, and men shall spiritually develop until inter-communion with the spirit world will be an ordinary occurrence of life here. When the unseen intelligences that surround us and strive so earnestly to communicate with us in our crude and somewhat unsatisfactory phenomena, shall no longer need the dark seance room for their visitations but may come in the light of day. And when earnest searchers after truth, who now "see as through a glass darkly, shall then see face to face, and shall be known even as we are known." Then and not until then shall the true millennium come; then all tears shall be wiped away from all faces, and there shall be no more sorrow and grief by the side of the casket or grave, for immortality will be a demonstrated fact, beyond the cavil of the materialist or doubt of the agnostic.

The condition of spirit-life in the future world is most graphically and beautifully portrayed in a poem by Lord Byron written a short time before his death, and is but another evidence that the belief in immortality is not confined to the commonplace intellects of the world, but is a favorite theme of thought of many great minds of those whose names and opinions will live in the history of the illustrious dead, and on the pages of our literature as imperishable as the record of primeval life written on the rocks in the early dawn of creation.

WHEN COLDNESS WRAPS THIS SUFFERING CLAY.

"When coldness wraps this suffering clay,
Ah whither strays the immortal mind?
It cannot die, it cannot stay,
But leaves its darken'd dust behind.
Then, unembodied, doth it trace
By steps each planet's heavenly way?
Or fill at once the realms of space,
A thing of eyes, that all survey?

"Eternal, boundless, undecay'd,
A thought unseen, but seeing all,
All, all in earth, or skies display'd,
Shall it survey, shall it recall:
Each fainter trace that memory holds
So darkly of departed years,
In one broad glance the soul beholds,
And all, that was, at once appears.

"Before Creation peopled earth,
Its eye shall roll through chaos black;
And where the furthest heaven had birth,
The spirit trace its rising track.
And where the future mars or makes,
Its glance dilate o'er all to be,
While sun is quenched or system breaks,
Fix'd in its own eternity.

"Above all hope, or hate, or fear,
It lives all passionless and pure:
An age shall fleet like earthly year;
Its years as moments shall endure.
Away, away, without a wing,
O'er all, through all, its thought shall fly;
A nameless and eternal thing,
Forgetting what it was to die."

CREATION?

WAS ANYTHING EVER CREATED?—FROM NOTHING, NOTHING COMES—THE MOTHER-SOUL OF THE UNIVERSE.

To the Editor:—Through The Progressive Thinker the writer would like to hear some learned lawyer or doctor, preacher or priest, Spiritualist or scientist—one and all—tell us what was created "In the Beginning." The writer asks for new thought instead of stale quotations from the Bible.

We all admit the subject is on the rim of the agnostic's don't-know; still every human being wants to know, to a certainty, whether anything was ever created. If matter was created, what was it prior to its creation? Was it simply Nothing? If God is eternal, He can neither be created nor annihilated; consequently the orthodox nothing—the origin of matter—must have been coeternal with God, else God was compelled to annihilate a part of himself in order to creat an absolute nothing, or vacuum, as the womb of the universe. Thus far God has not created the universe.

If this vacuous view is not correct, then let us take an outside look. Grant that God is infinite. What follows? Why, infinity is boundless, and the idea of a realm of nothingness beyond the unlimited is absurd—it takes all the ruffles out of the human brain.

Let us suppose that the orthodox God is surrounded by nothing as the sun is by space, then their God becomes a finite, limited, personal being, i.e. a manmade god, no larger than the man that made him—a pagan god. What the writer wants to know is, whether the act of creating originated within this manmade god! Again there can be no act until an actor exists, and then whatever follows is but an evolution or a manifestation of what is in existence from eternity.

The act implies a change of conditions, relations and states, physically, chemically, socially and mentally; or the manifestation demonstrates transformation, transposition or the conversion of one thing into another by the eternal Law of Nature. For instance, there is no resemblance between sunshine and hard coal, and yet coal is the stored-up heat of sun-shine. Electricity is transformed into heat, light, color, and conserved as magnetism, and vice versa; also see the changes and combinations the elements undergo. All depends on conditions. All this Mother Nature or the Soul of the Universe demonstrates, and this is what creation means.

Again, the Mother-Soul is the environment of axiomatic knowing which guides every living thing floating in the boundless ocean of Mother-Life. She is composed of an infinite number of life cells or human soul cells which separate from Her in colonies, or constellations to construct a solar system or universe of their own. Like protoplasm, the life cells multiply, differentiate or divide; each division becoming weaker and smaller, according to the conditions imposed upon them by others prior to and after its birth. On the start some soul cells may appear as atoms dancing in the luminiferous ether, others as microbes, etc., tearing down and rebuilding the human body. Others may long for a rest and retire into the mineral to be resurrected into the vegetable and animal. Finally the lower life entities, that were thrown off by you, will center, as properties or living functions in the human soul, to be crowned with the light of reason.

In the future man will receive the crown of axiomatic knowing. The X ray and clairvoyance are but the shadow of the all-seeing Eye. No one should ignore the monkey, for he is a child of the human soul—degraded of course—but remember that all things are graded, from the highest to the lowest. The product of any being can never transcend its origin. Whatever you have done will return to you, and this bundle of experience you must shoulder and trudge on to higher life. Jesus is done carrying burdens; he might advise you to come in when it rains—knock and it shall be opened unto you.

Seemingly matter is the only thing sensed, and the least understood by man. By the spiritual eye it can be traced back to an ethereal substance which is a product partly derived from the acts of constellation spirits and partly from an eternal principle stored-up in the All-Mother of the Universe.

This principle, or law, controls every substance, and its nature is similar to the law of attraction of gravitation. This principle also pervades boundless space and is static in its nature. It serves for knowledge as a fulcrum to move the universe of matter first by vibration, then by molecular motion and is kept in motion by automatic life. Positive and negative principles control all things in Nature.

The writer is conscious that the thoughts here advanced in regard to creation and evolution differ from Christian and materialistic ideas. But nothingness is not the origin of the contents of space; nor is matter the origin of life, soul, love, spirit, and intellingence.

In conclusion we might add that the all-being is everything existing under different conditions—one of rest and one of motion—which pre-existed from eternity. The finite parts not realizing the oneness of brotherhood, oppose each other in war and strife. But a better time is coming; progression will lead them from darkness into spiritual light and brotherhood.

Let us hear from the wise ones of earth through The Progressive Thinker.

Hannibal, Mo. F. R. LOCKLING.

A life of pleasure makes even the strongest mind frivolous at last.—Bulwer.

They who have light in themselves will not revolve as satellites.—Anon.

CURIOUS INCIDENTS IN OBSESSION.

OBSESSED BY AN INIMICAL SPIRIT—THE MOTIVE BROUGHT TO LIGHT BY HYPNOTISM — REMARKABLE INCIDENTS OF A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE —THE VICTIM OF WHICH WAS IN COMPLETE POWER OF A DEMON—HIS FINAL DESPERATE STRUGGLE FOR RELEASE AND HOW IT WAS EFFECTED.

"With us this kind of talk can lead up to but one conclusion," resumed Dr. Grace, in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Necessarily we attribute these various trances to a variety of obsessions, or, as the mass of people call them 'possessions.' Possessed by a devil or an angel perhaps by an intermediate influence, is the condition of all men and women, some of whom are controlled by one class for good, others by another class for evil, and a third division by alternations of good and evil, whence their diverse natures. Mr. A. is invariably amiable; Mr. B. invariably morose; Mr. C. pleasant to-day and unutterably cross to-morrow; Mr. D. good-natured by an effort only too apparent—each exhibiting a disposition not wholly natural. How are we to account logically for this great diversity in beings of the same species? Only through their spiritual environment, I reply, and hypnotic progress is daily confirming this view.

"Science has its own theory on the subject, a straight-laced idea that nothing is to be accounted for outside of those rules which it has demonstrated. To this idea science has held through all history, suffering a score of defeats with stolid indifference so long as it could register a single triumph in accord with its own dictum. It has done less to cure insanity than to aggravate its paroxysms, as I am prepared to prove on the demand of any reputable practitioner in the art of healing.

"An incident relating to double consciousness was related to me since our last conference. A gentleman I will call Mr. Amelee—that being very near his name—awoke one morning within the past year and found himself in a strange bed in an unfamiliar room, the furniture and fixtures of which were quite elegant, but the gentleman was sure he had never seen any of them before. Where was he? He hadn't the remotest idea, feeling sure he had gone to bed overnight in his accustomed sleeping apartment at home. But now he headr the hum and roar of city traffic and hundreds of strange voices, whereas his residence was in a quiet suburb, far removed from the maddening crowd, and there were many puzzling circumstances attendant.

"He arose and looked out upon the street, finding everything as strange as if he had been suddenly transported to another planet. He saw nothing to remind him of any place with which he was acquainted. His clothing and valise were there, and he dressed, scanned the premises, concluded he was in a hotel, and descended to the office.

NOTHING FAMILIAR,

"'Good morning, Mr. Garland,' said the clerk. 'I hope you are well.'

"'Good morning,' replied Amelee. 'But you have mistaken the person. My name is not Garland.'

"'Indeed! What is it then? You are registered as John G. Garland, and have been more than two weeks under that name. Is it an alias?'

"The question was embarrassing, for Amelee is a gentleman and despises subterfuge. He showed his confusion painfully, and this put no better phase upon the matter.

"'I do not know how to explain,' he answered, 'for I am completely at sea. I have been here more than two weeks, you say? Please let me see if there is a mistake in the register, for I think I spent the day yesterday at my business at home.'

"The original entry was found, and there it was, plainly written, 'John G. Garland, Pittsburg, Room 47,' with the date against it.

"'Where am I? In what city?' asked Amelee.

"'In New Orleans, at the St. A—— Hotel. You came here sick, but our doctor soon had you all right, and during the past 10 days you have seemed to enjoy life with the best of them. Have you been doing this unconsciously?'

"'To the best of my knowledge and belief I have, if at all, but can realize nothing you say. Let me think.'

"He sat apart in deep study for an hour, yet nothing came to him but a faint recollection of the man whose name he had assumed, who was an old man when Amelee was a boy, and appeared to him as a very disagreeable person. Finally he asked the clerk:

"'How have I deported myself while here?'

"'Very well, sir; in a gentlemanly style constantly, but, if you will excuse the word, I may add that sometimes you have been a trifle autocratic, insisting upon trifles as if they were matters of tremendous moment.'

"This announcement let a ray of light into the puzzled brain of Amelee. 'Autocratic' was the word he had heard his father apply to Garland more than thirty years ago, but why was he, Amelee, now seeking to impersonate the man he and his family once almost hated on account of his over-bearing ways? And what interest could be newly awakened in him for this man, who for a quarter of a century had slumbered in death, forgotten by all but his most intimate relatives, and by them never really loved? Many questions arose in the man's mind, all equally unsolvable and embarrassing, and he discovered himself in a painful quandary. He found the current date nearly a month ahead of his calculations—an interim of which he had no remembrance—and he must have incurred a fearful bill at the hotel. This was an impression he did not like, but he acted immediately upon its suggestion. Stepping up to the desk he asked:

"'What is the amount of my bill?'

"'Nothing, sir, unless you wish to pay, as usually you have, a day or two in advance. Your breakfast and dinner for today were covered by yesterday's payment.'

"Puzzle upon puzzle! He, James Amelee, had never been in the habit of paying hotel bills in that way. Going back to his room, he counted his cash and found it abundant. Then his mind recurred to his family, his wife and children. Of course, they had no idea as to his whereabouts, and he lost no time in wiring them a message, well repaid by a joyful response. For many days the man had been referred to as another and his friends had become convinced that he had been foully dealt with. He was 1,500 miles from home, without the shadow of an excuse for the distance that intervened between himself and his loved ones. How was he to explain the situation to them? He lost no time in starting for home, where he arrived in good health and met a cordial welcome.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE,

"The matter of his aberration troubled his mind, and in a few days after his return he called upon his family physician and told him all the story of which he was cognizant. The man of medicine was also a man of sense, and he felt very promptly that psychic points of unusual interest were involved in the case. The personation of Garland by Amelee was a curious feature to the physician, he having known the former very intimately; and there were peculiarities in such of Amelee's acts as were reported from his aberrated condition that were prominent characteristics of Garland, deceased although the two men were as unlike as winter and summer. It was a subject worthy of study. Luckily the physician had become much interested in hypnotism, and he resolved to use this agent in the investigation of the case. He found Amelee an easy sugject, but several trances became necessary before the man was immersed in a slumber productive of the hoped-for result. At length Amelee became Garland to all intents and purposes, and then he told of his recent journey to New Orleans, prefacing it with an account of how easily he (Garland) took possession of Amelee's body, having driven out the mortal's spirit and substituted his own. Then cash was drawn from the bank on Amelee's check, under the impulse of the obsessing spirit, and the trip made via Atlanta and Mobile, at each of which points a gay time was enjoyed with wine and its poet accompaniments. The same kind of orgies were continued at New Orleans till Garland tired of the sport, whereupon he deserted the body he had possessed temporarily and allowed the proper spirit to re-enter. Such is the account in brief, but many details were given of vices practiced, of a kind for which John G. Garland was notorious when in earth life, but to James Amelee they were specially repulsive. Yet the man in his secondary condition used words like these:

"'It was a capital joke on that Puritan, Jim Amelee, to get him drunk, make him familiar with that thing he calls vice, bring him in actual contact with gay women, and witness his antics after a season of tony refreshment. He was always a fool, like his father before him, imagining everything as vicious that gave pleasure to men and women, and everything virtuous that forced self-denial. Old Amelee wouldn't take even a dose of pills on Sunday for fear his internal state would impel them to 'work,' but I worked the son through all the days, nights and Sundays he was in my care, and we had a good time, like highbred, reasonable gentlemen. It did him a world of good.'

"The physician was astounded to hear such words from him, who apparently was none other than the man so mercilessly derided, and it occurred to him to propound some questions. He asked:

"'Who are you?'

"'John G. Garland, of course. Why, Doc B., you know me well. Once I was Young Jack Garland, before you were born, but I knew your father then and well remembered when he married Nancy Filmore, one of the nicest and prettiest girls in the place. In your day the boys made a play with my name and called me Old Jack Around-My-Hat —for short, I suppose—but you were never guilty of such rudeness. Your father was a gentleman, but I couldn't help hating old Jim Amelee, and knew I could get even with him by playing a joke on his dear prim boy.'

"'You come here as a spirit of John Garland, then?'

"'I suppose that is the truth, but I feel just as real as ever.'

"'Why do you occupy Mr. Amelee's body?'

"'So that I may have the use of lungs and a talking machine that will make my words understood by you. The speaking arrangement they gave me in the other place is not equal to this service, and there is no trouble in using Jim Amelee at any time. He's a milksop, and cannot resist me.'

"'What do you mean when you say 'the other place'?'

"'I scarcely know. Saints and sinners are altogether in a country which seems boundless, where they do about as they please in most things, some having larger liberties and a better light than others for reasons I do not understand.'

"'Referring to your own situation, do you have all the light and liberties you want?'

"'No!' in a loud sharp tone; 'by no means, and not half what I'm entitled to My light is poor and my freedom hampered in many ways, while old Eb Blake, a low cuss who had to be buried by the city, goes strutting about in a perfect blaze of glory, and has everything just to his notion.'

"'I remember Blake. He was an honest man, too true to his principles to become rich at anything within limit of his capacity, and he ought to be rewarded for patient endurance and all its cognate virtues. But you have met others in our circle of acquaintance, and among them, I presume, the elder Amelee. How is he situated?'

"'Oh, he's in clover too, reaping the reward of a righteous man, as the saying is. The same sneaking Puritan all the time, but carrying a headlight that would dazzle your eyes.

HE NEVER SEES ME.'

"'Don't you see! How is that! He wouldn't snub an old friend. You see him readily.'

"'Too much so; but I must explain. Old Jim, as I am told, can see only those who have a light as fine, or finer, as his. He can see none below his rank, but everybody above him, and the same is true of us poor devils in the gloaming. I see more than I enjoy, but the fellows in old Amelee's rank have a jolly time every moment. The best sport I can get is from mortals.'

"'Can you visit the earth whenever you please?'

"'Visit! I cannot swear that I've ever left the earth at all, for most of the time I'm in the same places and see the same people as of old, and I'm compelled to do over-and over the same d—d disagreeable things I did when a mortal. The main difference in my case is this: I cannot command any genuine sport unless I am able to surprise some mortal, drive his spirit away and take possession of his organism, and young Amelee is the first I have found who would succumb to my approaches. I've got him sure enough.'

"'You think so? Perhaps he will not always yield so readily.'

"'Will you try to prevent him?' in an angry tone.

"'I will think of it.'

"'Let that beall. It will be to your advantage to hold out of such a game. If you do not I will ruin you!'

"This was sufficient for one deep trance, and Amelee was recalled to his normal state. When told what had occurred he was astounded, and needed many assurances to challenge his belief. At length he saw the reasonableness of the claim, and promised to be guided in additional investigation through similar means. Many times Garland tried to take him captive in the good doctor's absence, but, having been warned against these attempts, he successfully repelled them. False impressions and unworthy suggestions were smuggled into his mind, but he suspected their source in time to escape ensnaring influences. Meanwhile trances were frequent under the physician's charge, and it was always Garland who controlled the secondary condition. He became decidedly unamiable when he learned that he could not approach his alter ego without Dr. B.'s permission, and even threatened personal chastisement of the healer unless the interdiction were annulled.

"'Why do you seek to make a hell for me?' he asked on one occasion. 'Really this man is mine as much as any invention is the patentee's, for I discovered his uses; and when after years of toil I have found a way to my favorite pastimes, you step in and cause

A RUCTION.

I will not submit without a desperate fight, and it may as well begin now. Here's for you.'

"He stepped forward with fists poised for assault and defense, but only two steps were taken. By a tremendous exercise of will the doctor held him rigid for a moment, then by the same power threw him upon the floor and there and held him captive, howling with rage, till he was exhausted. He begged piteously for release. It was offered him in return for a solemn pledge that never again would he approach Amelee unless the physician was present. No, he would give no such pledge, and the howlings were resumed. Directly the doctor fancied two voices instead of one from the prostrate man, and this phenomenon was immediately reduced to a certainty. He heard Amelee's natural voice, faint and weak, requesting the release of the power that was giving him intense pain, apparently tearing him in pieces. Then the gruff tones of Garland answered:

"'Not on any terms till you're dead and in hell with me.'

"'A horrible wail came from Amelee. 'He's surely killing me—oh! oh!' was its final clause. The physician saw but one course—to awaken his subject, and this he did, none too soon. The man was in a pitiable state, and complained of agonizing sensations in the head. He was sick for several days, and after recovery was strongly averse to more trances. They were induced, however, as the only apparent means of benefit to him, but never again did the spirit of Garland visit him. Many beneficent spirits occupied his organism from time to time, and they brought healing and peace.

"It is scarcely necessary to enlarge upon this incident. Its lesson, however, is too important to dismiss without a word of comment, and the first thought assumes the form of admonition. Resist the approach of evil spirits by keeping the mind clean and the intentions honest. Criminal suggestion comes unheraded. It must be rejected as we would discard a material snare for the feet; otherwise it may lead to ruin. How many enormities have been committed that were motiveless in the minds of their perpetrators—which their most active agents could not account for afterward? Naturally the plea of insanity is set up, and doubtless it is true in more cases than the law takes cognizance of. Often it happens that the murderer is not the man who commits the act of blood, but rather the devilish spirit which possesses him and will afford no release till the damning deed is consummated! The penalty is visited upon the agent of the demon spirit who drove his victim to the crime. Every Spiritualist knows this to be true, and he, above all others, ought to have a sharp appreciation of the fact that if the devil is stoutly resisted he will flee from you. Watch the mind and the heart, and entertain none but elevated purposes. These are a sure guard against the approach of ulterior suggestion." T. P.

ANOTHER OUTRAGE.

To the Editor:—In the town of Bisbee, Arizona, Mrs. Jennie Darrell, an ordained Spiritual minister, was arrested and fined to the amount of $50, for holding a spiritual meeting in the only available hall in the place.

The cause for complaint was based on the fact that she charged an admission at the door. Inasmuch as religious rights are not respected by the officials of Bisbee, Mrs. Darrell was compelled to pay her fine or go to the county jail.

She had just paid her fine when another warrant was issued against her for being a clairvoyant. Terrible laws exist in Arizona against clairvoyance and mediums.

Being timely warned by a friend that there were papers out against her, and wanting no more of Bisbee injustice, Mrs. Darrell started, at night, for Tombstone, the county seat, a distance of 35 miles, walking the whole distance in the dead of night, and arriving there footsore and weary, she took the train for Tuscan, thereby avoiding the officers. Arizona is a land of deserts, and to describe her night trip over these arid wastes would be heartrending.

The officer who arrested Mrs. Darrell is a man of very bad reputation. Under the cloak of his office he throttles the truth and persecutes a lone woman who is trying to elevate mankind. Such is law and justice in Arizona.

Mrs. Darrell is on her way to San Bernardino, Cal., where she hopes to regain her religious rights to worship God as she deems fit. CORRESPONDENT.

Tuscan, Ariz.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

"Science of the Soul." By L. A. Sherman. The price of the cloth-bound edition of this very interesting book has been reduced to $1. Paper-bound, 60 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Fountain of Life, or The Threefold Power of Sex." By Lois Waisbrooker. One of the author's most useful books. It should be read by every man and woman. Price 50 cents.

"The Relation of the Spiritual to the Material Universe. The Law of Spirit Control." By Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

THE HOLY GHOST CONSIDERED.

MIRROR OF LOGIC.

PROF. LOCKWOOD, THE SPIRITUALIST PHYSICIST OF CHICAGO, HOLDS UP THE MIRROR OF LOGIC, ABOUT THE HOLY GHOST, TO A PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER.

Prof. Lockwood, the widely known lecturer upon the spiritual forces of Nature, recently had for a seat companion, on a trip from Buffalo to Boston, a Presbyterian minister of the old school faith. The two rode along several miles in silence, when the clergyman, taking a casual survey of Professor Lockwood, said:

"I judge that you are a Christian clergyman, from your general appearance."

"Your judgment leads you astray, my friend; I am glad to say that I am not a Christian clergyman," replied the professor.

"Glad to say that you are not a Christian clergyman!" exclaimed the minister. "Why, my dear sir, you certainly must believe in Christianity."

"I believe," replied Prof. Lockwood, "Christianity, as expressed in the four evangels or gospels of the New Testament, to be the conflicting statements of several individuals about a personality that never existed in reality, but his supposed virtues were borrowed without acknowledgement, from an Oriental myth, or more accurately stated, from a principle of ethical philosophy, that antedates the so-called Christian Era several thousand years. This principle of human progression, this Hindu tradition, represents a beatiful ideal of ethical evolution, in which every individual who voluntarily suppresses his appetites, his lusts, his intemperance and vices, in quest of right doing and moral unfoldment, suffers within himself the pangs of crucifixion, and makes vicarious atonement—he bears his own cross through earth life to the grave.

"The confusion of Pagan philosophical ideas obtaining prior to the councll of Nice, culminated in transforming this ideal of human unfoldment, which in its ancient Oriental significance was applicable to all mankind, into a schism of personality; and the 'Messiah of the Orient'—the principle of culture that lighted up the ancient civilization of India, was forged into and clothed with the individuality of Jesus Christ—a character, that never had a real existence.

"Hence I believe that Christianity as taught or indoctrinated in the pulpit of to-day, is a miserable forgery of the gravest character—a cheap certificate of atonement, sensual in its inception, demoralizing in its tendency, entirely at variance with the philosophy and science of man's mental evolution, and a perpetual menace to our civilization."

"Well! Well!" replied the clergyman; "I see that I am mistaken in you. I had taken you to be an intelligent man; but I see that you are an infidel of the Bob Ingersoll type."

"Terms of opprobium," said Prof. Lockwood, "have for ages marked the character of human weakness; and a resort to their use, I sometimes think, indicates the mental pitch of individuals. And may I suggest that, from my plane of observation, the thinker or believer in any doctrine, who is willing to accept a logical premise as a basis to his belief, and who is able to trace natural sequence to his premise, is not only an intelligent person and thinker, but in the defense of what to him seems to be truth, has no occasion for cheap invectives or terms of opprobrium. Hence we have a right to conclude that it is a lack of logic or scholarship, and correct methods of reasoning on the part of the schismatist, that induces him to resort to undignified argumentation. The followers of Zoroasters, of Buddha, of Brahm, of Mohammed, and the various systems and creeds of Christianity, have used the term 'infidel,' without stint, in speaking of each other. The term means 'unfaithful,' not to be trusted; and I can't help thinking that he is the real infidel, who is unfaithful to the demonstrations of truth. And so, between what is taught in your Christian schools and colleges, and what is preached in your pulpits, it will eventually appear that the dual teaching of "Eternal principle," as demonstrated in natural physics, and then supplementing this truth with sermons and instruction upon "The First Great Cause?" to these eternal principles, is a careless and pernicious formula of instruction; it certainly is not educative."

"Can a person be instructed and not educated?" asked the clergyman.

"The term instruct means to teach, to direct, and in a religious sense to indoctrinate. Hence a person may be directed or indoctrinated into error, as in the story of a universal flood, and the ark, and two of a kind seeking refuge in it by omnipotent fiat. The story of God's making Noah a present of a rainbow, etc. These ideals are instructed and indoctrinated into the minds of old and young alike. None of them are true, therefore, they are not educative. And the extent to which these low and primitive ideals shroud and chain the intellect of man, to that extent, are they pernicious in any civilization."

"Then you assume that this world came by chance and not by law?" said the clergyman.

"Nature seems to me to be an infinite equation of cosmic possibilities; hence did not come either by chance or by law."

"How is that? I do not understand you," said his reverence.

"When I nicely balance this cane," said the professor, "it retains its equipoise, because there are as many molecules of energy on one side of the fulcrum as on the other. This exact balance represents in a crude way an equation or an equilibrium; and is a representation of an eternal principle—the principle of action and re-action as is manifest in polarity. This equipoise as a principle of nature, has always existed—it is not an expression of either law or chance."

"Well, I shall continue to think that what you call nature is under the control of law, for behind it all there stands God who is supreme and all-wise," said the clergyman.

"How does he stand behind it?" asked the Professor.

"As an over-ruling over-soul or power," said the clergyman.

"Then, if there be an overruling power, the principle of action and reaction as taught in your treatise on chemistry in your Christian schools and colleges, is not true," said the Professor. "And that is just the point I made against your dual system of instruction a moment ago. If the formula of action and reaction be true, as the basis of organization, God, as an overruling power is a misconception since an overruling power behind matter would nullify the principle of polarity. Both hypotheses cannot be true. The former can be demonstrated, the latter cannot. To which of these, my friend, are you infidel? Are you infidel to a truth capable of demonstration? If so, you are the 'unfaithful,' you are the one not to be trusted A person's belief and adherence to error in the presence of the proof of his error, indicates that he is lacking in true fidelity, or intelligence, or both. Every college of natural physics in civilization, where principles of action and reaction, dependent upon the inherent polarity of what we call matter, is taught and demonstrated, is a living witness of your error of thought, and furnishes constant testimony of the automatic character of nature; and to the thinker this testimony is suggestive of the pernicious infidelity of all religious creeds, predicated upon faith. Truth can only be established upon the principles of nature—never upon the supernatural."

"I think I see," said the clergyman, perceptibly coloring, "the point you raise against me and Christianity in general. You affirm that the principle, as you call it, of action and reaction is expressed in the inherent polarity of all types of matter, and that this polarity is an indication of the equational automatic character of Nature's elements and forces, and is in reality the basis of the chemical balance discovered by Lavoisier."

"That is my position," replied Prof. Lockwood.

"Well," continued the clergyman, "your position presents a new phase of the point under discussion, and I will confess that I am not sufficiently posted in natural or chemical physics, to enter into any discussion involving such information. I was taught to believe in God as the Creator of all things—as the overruling, all-wise, ever-present intelligence of the universe; that He made the world out of his spirit, and by the power of His omnipotence, and created man in his own image. This has been my belief, and this is what I preach and teach."

"May I ask you a question or two," asked Prof. Lockwood.

"Certainly," replied the clergyman.

"Do you believe in logic in its application of religious tenets" queried Prof. Lockwood.

"Why, y-e-s, I suppose I do."

"Well, just now you said that God made the world out of his spirit."

"Yes, I did say so."

"Well then, all that we see of visible nature is the result of God's spirit, or in other words, it is God manifest in the expression of the material world!"

"Exactly; that is what I believe," replied the clergyman.

"Then why," continued Prof. Lockwood, "do all Christian ministers persist in saying that matter, which you all affirm is made of God's spirit, is dead, and crude, and inert? When did this part of God die or lose it spirituality?"

"W-e-ll, you know man fell from his high estate—he sinned against God by partaking of the forbidden fruit in the garden."

"No, I don't know anything about it, and I can't comprehend how anyone can know anything about it," said Mr. Lockwood.

"Well, those of us who accept the Bible as testimony, believe this statement."

"Then God was so displeased with Adam that he not only cursed him, but he cursed and killed the spirituality of his own spirit that was manifest in matter, did he?" asked the Professor.

"The statement is that God cursed the ground also; so I presume it might be construed as you indicate," said the clegyman.

"But what other construction can you put upon it?" asked Mr. Lockwood.

"The language may be symbolical, you know," said the clergyman.

"Oh! I see, I see," said Prof. Lockwood, "God did not get mad at a real Adam, a real man in the flesh; he did not in reality 'curse the ground also,' he simply talked metaphorically to the man that he made in symbol, of his own image; the man who did not know good from evil, and who symbolically sinned and fell from his high estate—from the estate of God-like-ness—from the estate of an anthropomorphic brute, he only fell in symbol, not in reality, and when you preach about Adam's fall, you preach about an event that only has a symbolic significance. Is that it?" asked Prof. Lockwood.

"I will confess there is much ambiguity surrounding the Bible record of creation, much that from the point of syllogistic reasoning is open to criticism; but it is the only record we have, and I have been instructed, as you say indoctrinated, into accepting it. Hence to me it is my religion, my faith."

"You are mistaken in supposing it to be the only record, or in thinking it to be any record at all of cosmic causation," said Prof. Lockwood, "The only true record of Nature's evolutionary processes, is to be found in the analysis of the structure of nature per se, in tracing her co-relations and affinities, and in noting with subjective vision the invisible forms which she rears, and the phenomenal side of all that is expressed in the visible. If you will renounce your creed and faith, I will prove to you within 30 minutes after we reach Boston, that no curse rests, or ever rested on matter, or on the ground. I will demonstrate to you that human thought has its affinity for matter, by sending through a solid copper wire 1,200 miles long a telephone message to The Progressive Thinker of Chicago. And let me say here that the ground forming one half of the electro circuit, without a battery to quicken it, without a God to raise its molecular or spiritual tension from a state of inertness, will automatically become an important factor in the service.

"This phenomenon of telephonic art could not be demonstrated if matter was dead, and crude or inert; or if any power save that of inherent polarity was operative. Hence the traditional superstition about a God's getting angry and cursing the products of his (supposed) wisdom and omnipotence, is a silly, a weak as well as a dangerous platitude. It is untenable in the light of the reciprocal processes of electro affinity everywhere prevailing, and is antipodal to the science of organization and structure. It is a gross barbarism, un-American in its nature, and opposed to all formulas of civilization, and by and by, the intelligence in the pew will frown down the imbecility and infidelity that represents it in the pulpit."

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

"Edith Bramley's Vision." Vivid description of a Jesuit spirit conclave, together with interesting corroborative testimony. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of Humanity, a Philosophy of Life." By J. Leon Benwell. An interesting and thoughtful pamphlet. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

ROSTRUM WORK.

MRS. MATTIE E. HULL GIVES HER VIEWS IN REFERENCE TO A QUESTION NOT YET SEEMINGLY SETTLED, AND ON WHICH LEADING MINDS DIFFFER.

To the Editor:—I was deeply impressed with the stirring words that appeared in a recent issue of your interesting journal under the heading, "A Voice from England." Those words ought to awaken earnest thought among your readers, especially, the old-time Spiritualists.

I have so frequently expressed myself upon the subject upon which Mrs. Hardinge and Mrs. Lillie have so ably written, that I may have nothing new to offer, but as an old worker in the field of Spiritualism, one who has held the cause near and dear at heart for more than a third of a century, I can do no less than to endorse the position taken by these able workers. I may not make the matter any more impressive by aught that I can say, nevertheless, "the spirit moves me," and I add a few hastily written lines.

There is not a worker in the field but that knows that the statements of Mrs. Hardinge and Mrs. Lillie are true.

Who is to blame for the position taken by a majority of the society managers to-day? If, as stated in the communications to which I refer, "tens of thousands who have been attracted to Spiritualism, have learned its central truth, and find they are not supplied intellectually and withdraw from the meetings, having circles at home to meet their requirements," does it not seem that the leaders of the movement in towns and cities where such conditions are apparent, (and where are they not?) ought to pause and see if something cannot be done to place the cause before the people in such a manner that the meetings will not only attract the old Spiritualists, but the candid investigators along the lines?

When a radical change is suggested to those who have the matter of meetings in charge the answer is usually, "we know what you say is true, but we cannot get out a corporal's guard to listen to lectures; we must have something that will 'draw' in order to pay the expenses of the meetings. We must have phenomena of some kind in order to raise means to pay for the lectures." Although this is not very complimentary to a lecturer, I pass this saying by, and refer to another statement that is common among those who have meetings in charge: "We know there are pretenders among us, but what are we to do? Some of our people are satisfied with what they call 'tests,' while many of us know there is nothing genuine in many of them." I wonder how long it will take us to learn that just as long as such things are sought for in the public halls, just so long there will be a premium offered for fraud.

I admit that all we know of Spiritualism has come to us directly or indirectly through phenomena. It always must be so, but the point I desire to press in this communication, is, that our public halls do not, cannot, offer the most desirable conditions for the presentation of that phenomena which is calculated to do the greatest amount of good. If no successful Spiritualistic meetings had ever been held independent of such phenomena, there might be a good reason to believe meetings could be run in no other way successfully. Not an old Spiritualist whose eyes will fall upon these lines, but that remembers the grand meetings of other days; meetings where not only the words of the speakers seemed filled with the Divine Spirit, but the influence on those occasions fell upon the people like a holy benediction.

As I glance from my paper to the shelves of our library, I note an array of volumes treating on Spiritualism. The title pages of these volumes bear the names of authors who are familiar to the Spiritualists the world over. Most of the writers were identified with platform work, and what magnificent services they rendered. How bravely they stood for Spiritualism through good and evil report; how loyal they were when the enemy attacked; how their ringing words pressed home the grand truths they were impressed to utter. Who among the old Spiritualists forgets them? Most of those untiring workers have answered the call, "Come up Higher," and what of them at the present time? Do we suppose when the voice was hushed in our halls their last discourse had been delivered? Did they close the volume of their life-book when the hand grew palsied and they could no longer wield the pen? Did their love for humanity die when they passed from mortal sight? If Spiritualism is true, they opened their books on the other side of life when they closed them here. If Spiritualism is true, their voices ring as melodiously for humanity and reform as when they preached among us. If Spiritualism is true, they have had experiences in the other life that it would do us good to know, and again if Spiritualism is true, they are interested to make themselves and their work known. Can they do it? Yes, when "conditions obtain." What are "the conditions?" Simply a demand for their presence and such as they have to bring. Under the present regime, supposing Prof. Denton, Achsah Sprague, Rosa T. Amedy, A. B. Whiting, Thomas Gales Forster, Clara Banks, Henry Kiddle, or any other one among the many of our ascended workers, were to announce that they had something of importance to give the world relative to their explorations in spirit-life, their experiments on the scientific world, or something relative to the schools over there, the influence of the spirit over the material world—something that would require a series of philosophical, scientific or religious discourses—I fancy the first question that would be asked would be this, "Will it draw?" And others might think, if they were not bold enough to say: "We do not doubt but that your motives are good, and you have matter that would be of interest to some, but we want tests."

I cannot conclude this communication without saying once more that I admit the utility of the phenomena, but my observation and experience are convincing me more and more that while the public presentation of it may invite crowds to the halls, it does not call out a class that builds up a society, or that are willing to subscribe to the support of the meetings. Those who go to the meetings for the purpose of getting a test and nothing more have no conception of the magnitude of the work of Spiritualism. If, as we are repeatedly told, "the crowd come out to get tests," it is presumable that a few only want to hear the lecture that precedes such manifestations; so in many instances the lecturers are a secondary consideration.

I know what is said of the lecturer who is opposed to the present management of meetings, but that is nothing here or there. Facts are facts, and as Mrs. Hardinge and Mrs. Lillie truly say: "The halls are being emptied of candid, intelligent people who see much more in Spiritualism than the reading of a pellet or a handkerchief, and we cannot blame them that they seek other fields."

If there is not enough in Spiritualism so it may become self-supporting, stand on its own merit, the sooner we find it out the better. When such workers as Lyman C. Howe and many others who declare they must leave the field and find support elsewhere unless matters change, and the many who used to "be of us" are turning to the churches for what they sought for in Spiritualism, it is evident there is something wrong somewhere, and surely may we have cause to fear that the gifts may be withdrawn and given to a people who shall bring forth the fruits thereof."

MATTIE E. HULL.

Joys Beyond the Threshold

A SEQUEL TO

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH was writen to develop the idea of the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its reincarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of etherial space. "BEYOND THE THRESHOLD" continues on the same lines, enlarging and expanding the idea by reasons and considerations drawn from science and philosophy; claiming that the certainty of a new birth beyond our earthly end is the best means of arming ourselves against all weakness in the presence of death, and that the help offered by science and philosophy to that end is far superior to that of any of the existing religions. From beginning to end it is interesting, entertaining, instructive and fascinating, and whether one accepts it all or not, much will have been learned and much pleasure enjoyed in its perusal. Price $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN

—AND—

THE CONFESSIONAL.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

This is a most valuable book. It comes from an Ex-Priest, whose character is above reproach, and who knows what he is talking about. Everybody should read it. Price, $1.00. It contains the following chapters:

CHAPTER I.
The Struggle before the Surrender of Womanly Self-respect in the Confessional.

CHAPTER II.
Auricular Confession a Deep Pit of Perdition for the Priest.

CHAPTER III.
The Confessional is the Modern Sodom.

CHAPTER IV.
How the Vow of Celibacy of the Priests is made easy by Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER V.
The highly-educated and refined Woman in the Confessional—What becomes of her after unconditional surrender—Her Irreparable Ruin.

CHAPTER VI.
Auricular Confession destroys all the Sacred Ties of Marriage and Human Society.

CHAPTER VII.
Should Auricular Confession be tolerated among Civilized Nations?

CHAPTER VIII.
Does Auricular Confession bring Peace to the Soul?

CHAPTER IX.
The Dogma of Auricular Confession a Sacrilegious Imposture.

CHAPTER X.
God compels the Church of Rome to confess the Abominations of Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER XI.
Auricular Confession in Australia, America, and France.

CHAPTER XII.
A Chapter for the Consideration of Legislators, Husbands and Fathers—Some of the matters on which the Priest of Rome must Question his Penitent.

Sent Post-paid, Price, $1.00.

VOLNEY'S RUINS

—AND—

THE LAW OF NATURE,

∴ TO WHICH IS ADDED ∴

Volney's Answer to Dr. Priestly, a Biographical Notice by Count Daru, and the Zodiacal Signs and Constellations by the Editor;

Also, a Map of the Astrological Heavens o the Ancients.

Printed on heavy paper, from new plates, in large, clear type, with portrait and illustrations. One vol., post 8vo, 248 pages; paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

This is undoubtedly one of the best and most useful books ever published. It eloquently advocates the best interests of mankind, and clearly points out the sources of human ignorance and misery. The author is supposed to meet in the ruins of Palmyra an apparition or phantom, which explains the true principles of society, and the causes of both the prosperity and the ruin of ancient states. A general assembly of the nations is at length convened, a legislative body formed, the source and origin of religion, of government, and of laws discussed, and the Law of Nature—founded on justice and equity—is finally proclaimed to an expectant world.

THE VOICES.

By Warren Sumner Barlow. The Voices contain poems of remarkable beauty and force. They are most excellent. Price $1.00.

MARGUERITE HUNTER.

A Narrative Descriptive of Life in the Material and Spiritual Spheres,

Transcribed by a Co-operative Spirit Band, combined with chosen media of earth. It was given through independent slate-writing. The illustrations were given in oil paintings on porcelain plate by Spirit artists. It is not a fiction, but a narrative of real life, without a parallel in the literature of Spiritualism, being a clear and succinct exposition of the philosophy, religion and science of Spiritualism. The book contains 260 pages with six illustrations in half-tone, and twelve pages in original independent writing. It is beautifully bound in blue silk cloth, stamped in silver. Price, $1.25. For sale at this office.

IT IS INTERESTING.

LIFE AND LABOR IN THE SPIRIT-World: Being a description of Localities, Employments, Surroundings, and Conditions in the Spheres. By members of the Spirit-Band of Miss M. T. Shelhamer, medium of the Banner of Light Public Free Circle. Cloth $1.00. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ANTIQUITY UNVEILED.

The Most Important Revelations Concerning the True Origin of Christianity.

Reader, in bringing to your notice ANTIQUITY UNVEILED it is with the sincere hope that you are earnestly looking for the truth, regardless of any other consideration. If such is the case, this advertisement will deeply interest you, and after reading this brief description you will doubtless wish to give the work a careful perusal.

MISS JUDSON'S BOOKS.

WHY SHE BECAME A SPIRITUALIST,
264 pages. One copy, $1; six copies, $5.

FROM NIGHT TO MORN;
Or, An Appeal to the Baptist Church.
82 pages. One copy, 15 cents; ten copies, $1.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN TWO WORLDS.
209 pages. One copy, bound in cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this Office, 40 Loomis Street.

HYPNOTISM UP TO DATE

BY SYDNEY FLOWER.

An entertaining manual of hypnotism, useful to students of the subject. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cts. Sold at this office.

WAYSIDE JOTTINGS.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

SOCIAL UPBUILDING,

Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity. By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15c. For sale at this office.

JOAN, THE MEDIUM.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF HUMANITY.

PEACE--GOOD WILL.

Christianity and Spiritualism Panoramically Illustrated.

"Now Abideth Faith, Hope, Love; but the Greatest of These Is Love.

The genius of Christianity is "peace and good will to men," yet Jesus, by prescience, saw that coming in contact with ignorance, prejudice and want of spirituality it would for a time be the occasion of great trouble, domestic and otherwise. Matt. x:34-36.

In the book of Genesis it is said that "whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." This was taken as authority for capital punishment, whereas it meant what would be, but not what should be. So it was in the case of Christianity. Jesus never authorized or encouraged the cruelties perpetrated in his name. The selfish, ignorant, wicked abettors were responsible, and not Christianity as such.

Modern Spiritualism has from its first manifestation suffered from the same cause—unspiritual adherents—and true Spiritualists will find enough to do in their legitimate sphere without turning round to fight a dispensation which has had its day, done its work and is now in its decadence giving way to the light of a brighter day.

Spiritualism came as the religion of harmony, yet it does not always harmonize. This is not its own fault, but the fault of the soil on which it is sown.

I believe Spiritualism to be the second coming of the Christ or an evolution of Christianity, which is the same thing; therefore I cannot look on Christianity as some do. It and Spiritualism are not antagonistic, but one follows the other as incidents in evolutionary progress.

I have always thought that the Jews should have accepted Jesus as the Christ, and I think now that Christians ought to accept Spiritualism; and there is every reason to believe that the progressive element will do so, just as the progressive element of Judaism is now doing with Christianity.

What trouble it would have saved if this had been done, and what trouble it would save even now if all forms of religion would coalesce on the one broad platform of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, for then they might grow up into one harmonious body, though many members.

All the best mediums speak respectfully of Jesus the mediator or medium of the Christian dispensation and it will be a terrible backset to human progress if Spiritualists exaggerate the differences as sectarians do. Instead of endeavoring to promote that brotherhood which is the consummation of all religion. To my spiritual vision it appears like a great panorama, extending from the most ancient time down through the Mosaic, the Christian, and the Spiritual dispensations and away beyond to the time prefigured by Isaiah, when "the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun and the light of the sun sevenfold as the light of seven days."

That time is fast approaching, and as the panorama moves on the great discoveries of science brighten the scene and the dark spots caused by ignorance, prejudice and bigotry give way, and at last disappear before the light from the spiritual spheres designated by Paul as "the spirit of his (God's) mouth and the brightness of his coming." II. Thes., ii; 8.

This is the supreme motor in this grand scene. By it the great ecclesiastical hierarchies are consumed and fall to rise no more.

Now I see a new heaven and a new earth which I perceive to be an entire change in social conditions; for the former things—legalized monopolies of land and trade, etc.—have passed away and an entirely new system is inaugurated on the principles of justice and reciprocity.

The churches are transformed into temples of learning where all the faculties and attributes of the human organism are cultivated and trained to their proper use in the economy of life. The ubiquitous tramp, the burglar and murderer have disappeared because there is no soil to produce and nourish them, and the criminal lawyer's occupation is gone.

The clergy have been superseded by the students of nature, who have become the teachers of the world and rendered superstition impossible. The peace and good will of Christianity and the harmony and spirituality of the spiritual philosophy are now realities. Civil government is government no more, but civil service on strictly representative principles, doing the will of the people on a scale of economy so advantageous that it has become contagious and international, and has united all the countries of the world in one great republic and a oneness of interest has done away with civil war.

Previous to this grand finale I see a great commotion which has been going on for many centuries. No party, or creed, was ever willing to accept or cohere with any other. Even members of the same society, bound by the same creed, could not long agree, but were continually splitting up and separating. This divided their strength and in a great measure destroyed their influence. This went on from age to age to the closing of the scene, and sent many a true and loyal heart sorrowing to the grave.

The exclusive Jew, the dominant Christian, and the supercilious Spiritualist followed each other, maintaining their separate existence till they met in the final struggle, when all were conquered by the superior power of that "love" that "suffereth long and is kind, envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, rejoiceth not in iniquity but rejoiceth in the truth."

I hear no more argument now about theology and spiritual phenomena. These are regarded as childish things. But I see a large placard on which is inscribed in large letters these words:

"Now abideth Faith, Hope, Love; but the greatest of these is LOVE."

Since the above was written, some stinging references have appeared in The Progressive Thinker in regard to Christianity, Christian Spiritualism, etc., which caused me to hesitate about offering this article for publication lest it might be thought that I wanted to provoke discussion—which God knows I do not. My sole object is to find and maintain the truth by an exchange of view, which it is the privilege of every one to do.

I know by sweet experience that there is such a thing as speaking from the heart to the heart, and "speaking the truth in love." I know also that when that is done it seldom loses its effect, because the normal condition of human nature is spiritual, and even where that is not developed there is deep down in the soul a chord that vibrates to the words of love and truth, and my only regret, now in my advanced age is that I have not spoken them oftener.

But I meet everywhere with those who, Paul says, "Please not God and are contrary to all men." See I. Thes., ii:15. For this class my pearls are not intended. Yet even these I will: "In meekness instruct if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth." See II. Tim., ii:25.

But my greatest sympathy is with such suffering mothers and sisters as Mrs. Harriet Parker, who denied herself many personal rights through courtesy to others, yet never denied the truth, and gives her testimony to the Christ spirit in No. 373 of The Progressive Thinker. I have no objection to the pointing out of errors in the prevailing system of the Christian religion, when it is necessary to do so as a warning to those who do not think; but I do object to Spiritualists descending to the depths of intolerance which they condemn in Christians.

A friend of mine who, at one time, conducted one of the most orderly spiritual societies in this city, showed me a letter from a man asking an appointment to speak before the society and curse the d——d Christians—as if that was the proper work of a spiritual lecturer. My friend, I am happy to say, was too spiritual to hire a man to curse others for their opinions. If Christianity, in its present form, ever falls, it will be by the destructive elements systematically introduced into it by hieratic priestcraft to hold the masses in bondage; and if ever Spiritualism supersedes it, it will be through the practice of that brotherly love which is the very essence of the Christ-teaching and the only binding force in the universe worthy of the name of religion.

But some say religion hinders science, freedom and progress. Not so the religion we advocate; for:

"That law is love, and though it bind,
It gives full freedom to the mind,
For all that we do lovingly,
We do it also willingly."

The new thought admits that man is constitutionally a religious being, for there is no country or people in the world but has it in some form or other. Religion, pure and simple, is the aspiration of the soul to the source of its being, as the child to its parents, however crudely expressed, and the love element in it is what binds us to one another and to God.

While writing this (January 25, 1897), after a severe snowstorm the mercury has fallen from 35 degrees above zero to 20 below, the coldest in twenty years. This following a long season of hard times has made the misery of the poor and unemployed unprecedented in the history of Chicago.

Calls on their behalf from the Mayor, the pulpit and the press, are being responded to by donations of money, food, clothing and fuel, in sums from the smallest change up to a thousand dollars, which is being distributed to all sufferers that come, by benevolent individuals and societies, and immediate and substantial relief is being given.

That is what I call the religion of humanity, and I hope soon to see on the panorama of human progress such a change as will make such destitution impossible in a land like this where there is plenty for all.

Religion, in its last analysis, is a true life, embracing all that is good, pure, honest, just, moral and spiritual. Live this life with all its work, and call it what you please. "A rose by any other name smells as sweet." R. NEELY.

THE COMING CAMP.

I have been in Florida since January 1, 1897, part of the time at Lake Helen, where the camp-meeting known as Southern Cassadaga will shortly convene, and was much impressed with the many and substantial improvements made there since my last visit in 1896. Mrs. E. J. Huff, Geo. P. Colby and Mr. Chas. Purcell were to the front and made the air hum with their preparation for the feast of good things to come during the camp. The array of mediumistic talent is very fine indeed, and must of necessity, from its variety, please all who may come to Lake Helen this season.

I have been holding meetings and giving platform tests in Jacksonville and St. Nicholas (just across the St. John river) with much success; many hearts have been cheered and gladened by tender, loving words from those long believed dead, and especially at St. Nicholas, which is a very stronghold of the Episcopal church.

In Jacksonville, there is a resident medium, Mrs. Annie Buchanan, whose trumpet and writing manifestations are very good indeed, and as she is thoroughly conscientious in her work she will win and hold a high place in the ranks of workers ere long. Mrs. Carrie Twing, Henry Buddington and wife, Mrs. Sachett, and Capt. Smith; arrived yesterday on the good ship Comanche and proceeded to the camp to-day. One thing I don't like to confront in Jacksonville, and that is the dearth of spiritual papers; have not seen a copy of The Progressive Thinker since coming here and words cannot express how much I miss its budget of good things, but as I am constantly on the wing, it is impossible for me to get it regularly and that is a deprivation which is hard to bear.

When my visit here is ended I shall proceed to Tampa for a short while, and thence to Palmetto, one of the most beautiful spots in all Florida, and where the cruel Frost King has not yet paid more than just a touching visit. There are many Spiritualists in Florida, whose hearts are hungering after spiritual food, and many more mediums are needed here to minister to the wants of these. C. H. FIGUERS, M. D.

Jacksonville, Fla.

HYPNOTIZED CHILDREN.

Charles Welteroth, 16 years old, son of Sperry Welteroth, of 1034 Hepburn street, Williamsport, has been suspended from the public schools of that city for hypnotizing young schoolmates, says the New York Press. The boy's hypnotic power first attracted attention in the neighborhood in which he lived. The neighbors learned that he was having sport by putting his boy and girl playmates in a hypnotic state and then compelling them to do many ludicrous things, both in the schoolroom and on the streets.

He would make them crow like roosters, play leap-frog in the schoolroom and go through gymnastic performances. The larger pupils soon came under his powers, and it is said that even the teachers were not impervious to his most singular touch.

Soon the parents, alarmed at Welteroth's powers, threatened vengeance and hinted at bodily harm unless he ceased experimenting with their children. A month ago, when caught exercising his uncanny power over schoolmates, the teacher suspended him. Since then he has been practicing hypnotism with the idea of making it his vocation.

He is the talk of the city and last week he gave exhibitions in the rink before large crowds, amazing all.

AN EXPERIENCE.

James Duffie Joins the Theosophical Society.

HE ATTEMPTS TO HAVE HIS ASTRAL LEAVE HIS PHYSICAL BODY—HE RELATES HIS EXPERIMENT, AND WHAT CAME OF IT.

I have had an experience, and it is said experience is good for the soul. I have had an experience—I have joined the theosophs. Yes, of that occultist of occults I am now on the way to be a full-fledged pundit.

It came about this way. Miss Divina Higgins came to lecture at Bunkertown, where I live, and hold a private class in the occult mysteries. She was a wonderfully magnetic speaker. She said a mahatma stood behind her and spoke through her mouth. No one saw the mahatma, but such eloquence could only come from a mahatma. She had a dozen spiritual beings to run to her beck and call; she must have had.

She cured the sick by telling them that as a part of God they were not sick—could not be sick. She had old Daddy Fields, who had not walked without crutches for ten years, out playing ball with the boys, and Mother Grimes, bed-ridden for twenty years, up around the house. She said she could shake off the body and go out all over God's universe as an astral, even up to the steps of the throne. She said this was not peculiar to her, but was an art all could learn if they found entrance into the house of knowledge of the Orient. There, in the depth of the centuries, as it were at the bottom of an ocean of mud, was the pearl of great wisdom. By thus seeking the knowledge of those remote centuries which have gone into the waste-basket of oblivion, the ability to run about as an astral could be gained, and while one lived in this world, he could live above and out of it, pure and spotless as an Arctic snowbank. To do this would require that a few earnest souls should organize a lodge.

That suited me and I went home jubilant. "Mariah," says I to my wife, "We are going to found a Theosophical society."

"You are!" replied she, in surprise.

"Yes, and we have already the pledge of sufficient members. Daddy Fields, who was so miraculously cured, leads, and Jim Fry, Widow Slocum, both the Miss Billings and——"

"You?"

"Yes, you and me!"

"No, do not count me, James Duffie; I should think you already belonged to societies enough. You have been clambering up to the eighteenth degree of Masonry; you belong to the Odd Fellows, the Knights of Pythias, the Maccabees, the Red Men, the Elks, Sons of the North, the Blue Noses, the Owls, the Two Fists, and now the Theosophs! Why, you are away joining something every night in the week."

"I am after knowledge. Theosophy has the boiled down wisdom of the ages. The fakirs of India have bottled it up, and only through the inner gate of the Theosophical lodge can you get a taste of this divine beverage. It's a mystery how the Western world got on without this knowledge. A fakir, by looking straight at his abdomen, can learn more in a minute than a Western scientist can by a life-time of labor. I want you to join; to go hand in hand with me to drink at this fount of divine wisdom."

She looked at me a moment and then said: "James Duffie, my place is at home. You are getting daft."

"You won't think so when I am initiated and can shake off this body and roam over all God's kingdom as an astral."

"For heaven's sake, what is that?" she asked, sort of scared.

"Why—Divina Higgins says that when I have once entered the inner gate I can shake off the body, and as an astral go about invisible; walk into the house unseen; go into a bank and help myself, and know everything."

"Divina Higgins is a bold, impertinent hussy, and when you get quit of your body, you will have joined your last join."

Mariah is a practical woman. Not a bit of poetry in her nature, nor high fancies; this has annoyed me before.

I will not weary with particulars, suffice that the lodge was founded. Divina Higgins was their High-Mighty, and Most Worshipful Grand Rajahs from the neighboring city, where a Grand Lodge had been started. To Divina was given the keys of the inner chambers of mahatmic intelligence, and to me the keys of the gates of the temple. (We called the hall a temple, though in fact it was a little, stuffy room over a shoe-store.)

The officers in glittering regalia, were wondrous to behold, and in the initiatory ceremony with the high-monkeying we endured something to be remembered. But I swore on the Bible and the Books of Blavatsky, that my tongue should be torn out by the roots, and my liver extirpated if I ever told, and I will not go further.

I went home with my head bursting with the wisdom of the Orient. I had a mahatma—a genuine Brother of the Himalayah, assigned to me, and a Chela to call on for waiter. What was more to be prized, the power was conferred on me to get out of my body as an astral, and the very next day—I could not wait longer—I made this supreme test of my power. It would be a triumph over the sneers of Mariah, and I asked her if she would accompany me to the parlor and witness the vindication of the occult, and the illustration of the profundability of my learning of Eastern wisdom. I told her that when my body was apparently dead, to watch over and protect it from burial, and await the return of my astral. She was incredulous, and tartly said, it would be more appropriate for Divina Higgins to watch over the corpse.

"You will soon see your mistake, Mariah," I replied feelingly. "You ought to be proud that your husband has pulled the latch-string of wisdom, which Divina has placed in reach, and enabled him to walk in and surfeit on the accumulated knowledge of the Bushwanga, Kelospata, the Nirvanpana, and Rag-willangana, with a Chela of his own and a mahatma at his elbow, who in very fact is a Pundit!"

All she replied was, "A-h-e-m!" but there was a great deal implied in the way her voice slid up and down and drew out the final sound.

It hurt, yet I rose above the petty annoyance, as a Pundit should; seated myself according to the lesson given me by the High Mightyful and Most Adorable Rajah; inverted my internal consciousness into the recesses of my cerebellum; concentrated my psychic gaze into the back of my neck—as much as possible; called silently and prayerfully for my mahatma brother to come to my assistance and lead my astral out of the body.

I felt queer, but I felt no loosening of the hold. I shook myself, turned and twisted, yet it would not let go.

Mariah laughed, irritatingly. "It's no use, James," she said, with pitying softness, "no use. You are so used to joining that your 'astral' is joined to your body so tightly, your Oriental wisdom cannot break it away."

"I have forgotten something! Yes, that's it—I've left out important words."

"As for that, James," she said, still more softly, "you have forgotten what an egregious fool you have been made of."

This made me angry, and I thought if there was strength in me, the astral must come out, and I shook myself, gave a tremendous spring upwards, as a frog does when he attempts to jump out of his skin. I fell on my back and in attempting to save myself I clutched at a what-not, which came over, breaking into smithereens all the bric-a-brac of years.

Mariah cried and laughed, and then grew angry, all in half a minute. "I've borne enough of your foolishness, James Duffie! If you want to get away as an astral, I hope you will succeed, and mark you, if you do, I'll have an undertaker here in an hour to embalm your body!"

"No, no!" I cried; "you must not; it would kill me!"

"Oh, you'll be dead fast enough if your astral has gone. I didn't marry a mahatma nor an astral; I married a man—or supposed I did—quite willing to be a man and stay in his body and not go wandering around leaving me in doubt whether I am a widow with a funeral on my hands, or not. No, James, you have been nicely duped out of your money; I will not say sense, for you could not have had much to have gone off on this goose-chase for wisdom."

I felt mortified—deeply mortified; yet am I sure it all came from my forgetting some important word, thus incapacitating me to sufficiently introvert my subliminal consciousness. Or more probably, it was the psychic influence of Mariah, dragging me down to earth when I would soar to heaven! Her threat chilled me, especially when I thought of embalming, for we have in Bunkertown one of the promptest undertakers, always itching for business, and he would not even inquire whether my astral was at home or not.

JAMES DUFFIE.

EVERY-DAY HEROES.

There are heroes in battle, in camp, and in field,
Who stand in the carnage and din,
Who are fighting for right, and who flinch not nor yield,
Defying the legions of sin.

But the heroes I sing of are unknown to fame,
Remote and obscure do they dwell.
In the annals of honor, or annals of name
There is not a story to tell.

'Tis the every-day heroes, the heroes of home—
O, let us consider their deeds,
Though they may be but small, and are done all alone,
Far-reaching—eternal the seeds.

Here's a wife who is faithful, in want and disgrace,
Who faces the world in her pain—
Not one word of reproach—not a sign, or a trace,
But loyal, through stigma and stain.

There are mothers so patient, and steadfast, and true
To children they serve through long years,
And they guard them and guide them as mothers can do,
Through life, and its sunlight and tears.

There are sons, too, and daughters, who, loyal and leal,
Are true to the "Old Folks at Home;"
Who have put by ambitions and learned to conceal
Their crucified hopes all alone.

When temptations assail in this money-mad age,
And visions of bliss all allure,
They are heroes who turn from the sin and its wage,
And keep to the path that is pure.

'Tis the pricks of small trials that worry and fret—
That wear the deep lines in the face,
And the stinging of wrongs which we cannot forget,
That rob us of peace and its grace.

'Tis the every-day heroes who stand straight in line,
Who conquer small parts of the whole—
'Tis the every-day heroes whose courage sublime,
Illumines the life of the soul.

Oak Park, Ill. ELLA DARE.

THE HEART'S CALENDAR.

Do you feel, lone sleeper resting there
How the seasons change since you have gone?
How the springtime opened sweet and fair
And roses blushed at the peep of dawn?
When grain fell ripe in the reaper's glean
And the tasseled corn grew rank and green?

When clouds were white in the summer skies,
Like curtained windows framed in blue—
Could you look between with pitying eyes
Where I vainly wept my loss for you?
And heard the lovebird's plaintive moan,
Break the still air in answering tone,

Or know, when sear on your narrow bed
The green grass died; when autumn flowers
Were veiled in frost, and sad, instead,
The dead leaves whirled in gusty showers?
When birds flew far from shivering trees
To balmy isles in the Southern seas?

Ah, see, my own, how the winter's dread
With chilling blasts, has settled by—
And beneath its gray the snow-sheets spread
In heavy folds where you sleeping lie—
Be still, faint heart! Through death's sweet pain
Thy love, like flowers, shall live again! INDA BARTON HAYS.

In Bridgeport a league has been formed against Sunday counting. The Bachelors' club has issued a ukase to the effect, "Six days thou mayst keep 'steady company,' but on the seventh all manner of lovemaking must be abandoned."—Chronicle.

To-morrow I will live, the fool does say; to-day itself's too late; the wise lived yesterday.—Martial.

CONSUMPTION

TO THE EDITOR: I have an absolute Cure for CONSUMPTION and all Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles, and all conditions of Wasting Away. By its timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured. So proof-positive am I of its power to cure, I will send FREE to anyone afflicted, THREE BOTTLES of my Newly Discovered Remedies, upon receipt of Express and Postoffice address. Always sincerely yours,

T. A. SLOCUM, M.C., 183 Pearl St., New York.
When writing the Doctor, please mention this paper.

Studies in Spiritual Thought

THE LAW OF PROGRESS—FACTORS OF CIVILIZATION—CO-OPERATION AND CO-ORDINATION OF FORCES—UNIFYING PRINCIPLE—SPIRITUALIZATION.

The law of progress in civilization consists in the co-ordination and co-operation of forces. This is true in modern civilization as well in the past. But, along with the civilizing factors, have coexisted influences whose tendencies have resulted in certain stratified conditions of society—operating as a disorganizing force, preventing the proper operation of the law of progress. Between riches and poverty—or the rich and the poor—as found and conditioned in modern society, there exists too wide a discrepancy to fulfill that idea of co-ordination and co-operation of forces in which the law of progress in civilization consists.

If progress in civilization is to continue, there must of necessity be found a connecting link, a bridge of intercommunication—nay, more than these—a unifying principle or factor that shall establish not merely a bond of union between diverse and antagonistic elements, but a solidarity—a brotherhood in thought, in interests, in principle, in the deep and real facts of life and social being.

This unifying principle or factor—silently working the salvation of society—the leaven hidden in the meal, leavening the whole lump—is found in the spiritualizing forces working in the minds of all, high or lowly, under the direction and influence of the combined spirit powers of mortal and spirit-life. This it is, that is coming into the breach, for the uplifting and the salvation of society and humanity, joining into one the great family in heaven and on earth.

As a happy sign of the influences thus at work, Lilian Whiting presents some beautiful ideas in the Inter Ocean:

A REMARKABLE PERIOD.

It is believed that this year of grace, 1897, ushers in a remarkable period. Some one says: "Potencies within each of us only require stimulation to cause them to assert themselves. Will power and exercise will give the dormant forces vigor. Our spirit home is not 'away off' somewhere, but it is here; it encircles us and penetrates our whole being. Commune with your angel friends; they will hear and respond. Use your mental telephone, and then your powers will rapidly increase in force, quality, and quantity."

Certainly, closely interpenetrated with this world of the visible, the tangible, the world to be perceived with the senses, is the ethereal world; a finer counterpart of this; not dreamlike and shadowy, but more real, more potent, more significant; the world of higher and more intense forces, whose relation to this world is like that of the play to the rehearsal. Yet this, too, is our world by virtue of that divine nature which constitutes the real man, while the physical senses adapted to the external world are the attributes of the temporary life here in the body.

Now this divine nature in man is a spark of the Supreme Being, and it is in this that mankind are linked; this that constitutes the real brotherhood of humanity. The fuller perception of this brotherhood, which is now dawning upon the world, is the result of the higher development of humanity. Individuals in advance of their time have existed in every age; but the general advance has to be the race development on account of the inseparable way in which mankind are linked in the divine nature common to all. In some developed to a high degree; in some so undeveloped that it is hardly perceptible at all; yet the spark is latent, and links all mankind.

There is an experiment of marvelous interest and incalculable value open to any one for trial. It is this: By a system of study and concentration in any specific subject one can bring his mind en rapport with that subject. It may be music, science, invention, poetry, mathematics, medicine, finance—whatever is chosen. If the individual will for a period of perhaps three months fix his mind on the subject chosen; study it, read of it, think of it, and—what is far more potent than all—concentrate his thoughts on it at regular hours each day, he will find that he has tapped the reservoir, so to speak, and its results begin to set toward him in an increasing current. Concentration is not a mere wish, or desire, or feeble craving.

TRUE CONCENTRATION.

There may be a selfish craving for a desired end that can have no effect at all, and should not have. It is of the selfish, the material, and therefore establishes no potency. The true concentration is a spiritual uplifting. It is a devotional attitude as sacred as prayer. When it is not this it has no potency. The true concentration is in effect entering into the ethereal world. This is that realm of finer forces that lies all around us, that interpenetrates all space as the ether interpenetrates the atmosphere. It is the world which is the natural home of the higher self; the world to which the spirit belongs. Even while it still inhabits the physical body it can return into this ethereal world, which is its own world, its native atmosphere. True concentration is in entering this ethereal world. This is the plane of potencies. One prepares himself to receptivity by continuous and prolonged aspiration, study, and prayer. After this period, and by means of it as a spiritual preparation, he rises to that plane on which it is possible for him to practice real concentration. When he enters this realm he is in a new world. It is a world wherein are all the keys to all the problems of the lower life; wherein are all the motors, so to speak, that produce the effects on the plane below. It is the more real world. Here one may create his new environment.

It is this plane which is, in the words of Jesus, "the kingdom of righteousness." It is the plane which man is bidden to seek in the behest: "Seek ye first the kingdom of righteousness (or the kingdom of heaven), and all these things shall be added unto you." Seek that ethereal world of the finer forces first, and all these things shall be added unto you. In the ideal life man rules his circumstances, and is not ruined by them.

VICTIMS OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

When we are the victims of circumstances, as most of us are to a greater or less extent all the time, it is our own fault. It lies in our blindness. All forms of incident and circumstance are alive. They are pervaded, they are made up of a certain order of intelligence. To govern circumstances aright we have only to bring to bear on them our own intelligence, and a new combination is at once formed. It is an inevitable law. It is a part of psychic chemistry. The agencies of life are not beyond man's control; it is simply that he has not learned how to control them. He has not ascended high enough to catch the outlook.

Again, it is in success that one is strong. It is in failure that he is weak. Success is positive; failure is negative. Therefore, ignore failures and think on successes. Remorse and regret are destructive; conviction and recognition of the radiant and joyful successes are constructive and creative. Our environment is the direct and the inevitable result of our mental states. Therefore, to create new circumstances begin within.

Beginning within; that is, selecting the higher range of thought and concentrating on it; bringing our will into a perfect quiescence with the divine will—the structure of the mind itself is altered. New brain cells respond to the new and higher activities; those that correspond to the lower range of desire being no longer stimulated to activity, die out. Thus a new character is formed.

Life is never hopeless. It is full of the most wonderful and beautiful possibilities. One has only to enter into the realm of higher forces—the realm of radiant energy. The spirit-world, more accurately defined as the ethereal world, is all about us, encircling and interpenetrating. We can commune with our friends in this higher state of being. We can co-operate with them and they with us. Entering into this ethereal realm by the process of concentration—which is simply bringing ourselves into rapport with spiritual things—we enter into the very joy of the Lord.

This silent leavening work of spiritualization will not work a miracle, but, better than miracle, it will work its results by law—law working within the spiritual nature and effecting outward results in co-ordination and co-operation. It requires not the explosive upheaval of society; with social and business relations it does not conflict; nor does it interfere with religious belief or the affiliations of politics. As the leaven in the meal, the spiritual leaven works deep within the nature of man, silently effecting the grand result that makes for progress in civilization, and for the great culmination in a divine brotherhood including within its fold the whole family on earth and in heaven. J. C. UNDERHILL.

Hammond, Ind.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

I will live so as to leave the world better than I found it.

SUBJECT: DUTY AND OBLIGATION

For the older groups: If a man is led by his animal appetites and passions, we say he ought not thus to yield. That "ought" implies that he has higher faculties which should control the lower nature.

This embraces the first, fundamental duty—that which we owe to ourselves, as physical and as spiritual beings—obedience to the laws of health, and the cultivation of our spiritual natures.

As spiritual beings we must be spiritual, which implies intellectual and moral cultivation.

Our duty as spiritual beings is adhesion always to the highest spiritual motives. While necessitated as physical beings to comply with the conditions which surround us, our aim should constantly be for that which has eternal relations.

For the younger groups: As nearly all children have pets, draw them out to speak of them. Then often reminding the members how helpless and dependent these animals are, ask what is the duty of the owners to them.

Continuing, ask what they receive of their parents, and follow with the questions: What is the children's duty and obligations to their parents?

What do you receive from society and government?

What, then, are your obligations to the same? By honest effort and correct living, to become a worthy member of society and an efficient citizen.

How can this be accomplished? By being true in the smallest affairs, always speaking the truth, strict honesty, kindness, thoughtfulness of others, unselfishness, and the charity which is always loving even when it reproves.

MEMORY GEMS.

Rights presuppose duties, and freedom is overshadowed by obligations.

Duty and obligation to God or the gods has been the foundation of all religions. Christian, Jew and Pagan place the same great stress on these, and priests and clergy, interested parties, enforce acquiescence.

To obey God was the first requisite of a good man. As no one knew or could know what God's commands were, except as the priests declared them, to obey the priests was to obey God.

To obey God in Egypt meant to worship leeks and garlic; in Rome to sacrifice at the shrines of a multitude of gods or goddesses; in Turkey to believe in Mohammed; in Africa to knock out a tooth or disfigure the body, and in Christian lands to believe with some one of the countless sects.

Man must obey the laws of the physical world or suffer. He cannot swerve a hair's breadth without suffering. The laws of his spiritual being are equally exacting.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col, Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"Progression, or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-life." "The Evolution of Man." Two papers, given in the interest of spiritual science, by Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with conciseness and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French Original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 839 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton.

"THE DREAM CHILD,"

A FASCINATING ROMANCE of two worlds. By Florence Huntley. Price, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00. Books like "The Dream Child" spur humanity on to make more and more demands of this nature, and will open up new heights and depths of spiritual knowledge.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Will, I believe, take its place beside Bulwer's "Zanoni" and the "Seraphita" of Balzac.—"Daily Capital," Topeka, Kansas. Although simple and unvarnished with any inflammable descriptions, it enthralls the mind to the exclusion of other thought, until reluctantly the reader closes the last page.—Minneapolis "Sunday Times".

"THOMAS PAINE"

SOME OF HIS NOTED WORKS

Life of Thomas Paine,
By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

The Age of Reason;
Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Common Sense.
A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

The Rights of Man.
Parts I and II. Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 272 pages. Paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

Paine's Complete Theological Works.
Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 432 pages. Cloth, $1.00

Paine's Political Works.
Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc. Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 630 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

SPIRITUAL HARP.

A Collection of Vocal Music for the Choir, Congregation and Social Circles.

By J. M. Peebles and J. O. Barrett; E. H. Bailey, Musical Editor. New edition. Culled from a wide field of literature with the most critical care, free from all theological bias, throbbing with the soul of inspiration, embodying the principles and virtues of the spiritual philosophy, set to the most cheerful and popular music, (nearly all original), and adapted to all occasions, it is doubtless the most attractive work of the kind ever published. Its beautiful songs, duets and quartets, with piano, organ or melodeon accompaniment, adapted both to public meetings and the social circles. Cloth, $2.00. Postage 14 cents.

ANGEL WHISPERINGS

For the Searcher After Truth.

BY HATTIE J. RAY.

All who love genuine poetry, of excellent moral and spiritual quality, should read this book. This work is handsomely bound and is clearly printed on good paper. For sale at this office. Price $1.

THE DEAD MAN'S MESSAGE.

By Florence Marryat, author of "A Scarlet Sin," "How Like a Woman," "The Risen Dead," "There is No Death" etc. Cloth, $100.

The Religion of Humanity;

A Philosophy of Life. By J. Leon Benwell. A beautiful paper-bound pamphlet, with likeness of author. A most valuable publication to circulate among Christian people. Price 15 cents.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe; and the Law of Control. New edition, enlarged and revised, by M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

MEDIUMISTIC EXPERIENCES

OF JOHN BROWN,

The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

The Evolution of the Devil.

By Henry Frank, the independent preacher of New York City. The most learned, accurate, scientific and philosophical analysis of His Satanic Majesty ever published. The book contains 66 pages, and is beautifully bound, with likeness of author on title page. Price 25 cents.

IMMORTALITY.

A poem, in five cantos "If a man die, shall he live?" is fully answered. By W. S. Barlow, author of Voices. Price 60 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist Attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents. For sale at this office.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.

The Candle From Under the Bushel; or Thirteen Hundred and Six Questions to the Clergy. By Wm. Hart. Price 40 cents.

HOW TO MESMERIZE.

By Prof. J. W. Cadwell, one of the most successful mesmerists in America. Ancient and modern miracles explained by mesmerism. An invaluable work. Price, paper, 50 cents.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing.

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

POEMS.

By Edith Willis Linn. A volume of sweet outpourings of a gentle nature, who has no thought of the bitter cruelty of earth-life. These are sweet, winsome and restful. Price $100.

Fifty Years in the Church of Rome

By Rev. Chas. Chiniquy, ex-priest. A remarkable book. Pages, 632. Price $2.25.

THE GODS.

By Col. R. G. Ingersoll. A pamphlet of 40 pages. Worth its weight in gold Price 20 cents.

THOMAS PAINE.

Was He Junius?

By Wm. Henry Burr. Price 15 cents.

Paine's Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 432 pages. Cloth, $1.00

PAINE'S POLITICAL WORKS.

Common Sense, The Crisis, Rights of Man, etc. Illustrated edition. Post 8vo., 630 pages. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 20 cents.

POEMS OF PROGRESS.

By Lizzie Doten. They are really valuable. Price $1.00.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club)..... 7.50
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week; and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, FEB. 27, 1897.

ALL EUROPE INVOLVED.

Crete, which has assumed so great importance during the last few weeks, because of the attempt of the Christians to inaugurate a revolution, is an island in the Mediterranean south of Greece. It is a dependency of Turkey, 160 miles in length, varying from 10 to 35 miles in breadth. It is traversed its entire length by a chain of mountains, Mt. Ida, near the center, being the most prominent and famous in classical references. It rises 8,060 feet above the level of the sea. Canea is a fortified commercial seaport, and the present capital of the province. The population of the island is upward of 200,000, principally Greek Christians, though probably one-third of the inhabitants are Mohammedans.

Press dispatches from the Orient flowed in upon us quite recently, announcing that the Mussulmans were massacreing the Christians, and that the latter were arming for defense. Appeals were made to the allied powers, and especially to Greece, for help. The missionaries joined in robust statements telling of the terrible depredations the Turks were committing on the peaceable, lamb-like Christians. The blood almost froze in one's veins as he read of these atrocities; but remembering the multitude of exaggerated reports the same party had set on foot in regard to the troubles in Armenia, it was thought possible later advices would give a different understanding to the story.

A cablegram from London on the 9th instant to the American press is along that line. We copy headline and all:

CHRISTIANS THE AGGRESSORS.

London, Feb. 9.—Private and official advices and private letters from English officials show that the troubles in the Island of Crete are undoubtedly caused by Greek agitators and that the Christians are undoubtedly the aggressors. The Greek government, believing that the end of the Ottoman empire is near, thinks the time opportune to carry out the long cherished desire to annex the Island of Crete.

Public officials here and on the continent regard the situation as serious and as threatening the peace of the whole of Europe. In the event of a collision between Turkey and Greece it is doubtful whether the entente of the powers could be maintained. The papers everywhere urge the powers to bring pressure to bear on Greece in order to prevent her further aggravation of Turkey.

It is announced to-day that Turkey warships and a transport have left Constantinople for the Island of Crete, and that in spite of the advices of his ministers and of the ambassadors the Sultan favors the dispatch of troops and repressing the troubles by force.

On the 11th a cablegram from Canea said:

"The latest telegram from Sitia reports thirteen villages now in flames. The Christians are killing Mohammedan inhabitants. Those who succeeded in escaping from the scene of the massacres are flocking to Sitia, which is still in possession of the Turks."

From Vienna, of the same date with the last, came the report that the Russian fleet in the Black Sea was approaching the Bosphorus.

To conclude: It would seem from the conflicting reports at the present writing that Russia, Austria and France sympathize with Turkey in this new invasion of her rights, and Great Britain is disposed to co-operate with Greece. The reader will keep in mind that on the request of the powers the Sultan appointed a Christian to the office of governor. It now seems this governor is co-operating with the insurgents, and with Greece, in trying to wrest this island from the Porte with the view of attaching it to Greece, where a son-in-law of Queen Victoria is king.

Later advices from the seat of war will be watched with interest, but this much has been deemed proper to make the reader familiar with the motives which have lead up to the strife.

NO HELP THERE.

A man was found by the police a few days ago, at 14 Sherman street, this city, on his knees engaged in prayer. He had spent several hours in that attitude teasing God for employment. The poor fellow had been idle for near a year, and when all other hope failed he made a personal but ineffectual appeal to the higher powers. He was probably ignorant of the fact that the Creator of worlds has no jobs to let. The preachers had taught him falsely.

BUSINESS FAILURE.

The people of Boston don't scare worth a cent. The evangelist, Moody, hired Tremont Temple on his own account, then commenced his revival tactics, and took up collections at every service. Converts did not materialize, business was a failure and did not pay expenses. It seems he succeeded in making a few lunatics, as his pals are doing wherever they imitate Moody's example. And that is what they call "getting religion."

INFLUENCED BY DEMON SPIRITS.

It is rarely that the New York World alludes to anything of a spiritual nature, even on the lower brutal strata of society. A late article therein by Kate Swan intimates that certain well known pugilists may in a measure at times controlled by demons. She sets forth that when it is said that man was created in the image of the Deity, Bob Fitzsimmons's fighting face is not included. The faces of all pugilists undergo peculiar changes under the influence of the sawdust and the ring.

Men of nerve have said that they have grown absolutely faint, almost to unconsciousness, before the ugly glare on the face of the great ponderous Sullivan at the opposite side of the ring, a glare that seemed to be directed at each particular onlooker, while the champion saw none of them.

Corbett always looks like a man sick to the death. His face turns pallid. A bluish, livid line grows about the lips, and the eyes might be looking out from a bed of ice in the polar world, the features set in an iciness that is horrible in its strange whiteness.

Lavigne and Kid McCoy's faces look like Sullivan's, only not so intensely so.

But Bob Fitzsimmons's face! There are gods of mythology who struck dead those who in a moment of forgetfulness looked on their faces. When Fitzsimmons fights it might be the reincarnation of one of those old mythological gentlemen in the act of executing a death sentence.

It isn't necessary to see Fitzsimmons in the ring to see this face. It comes when he fights, no matter where or when, if he only forgets it is play. The first time Kate Swan saw Fitzsimmons in training he went to work in a merry vein. After a while something occurred to wake him up. Suddenly the space between the eyes seemed to widen. Both eyes became wild with a fierce light that seemed to grow and grow, until not even the eyes of the wildest beast could have been more terrible.

But not only in the eyes was the change. The very spirit of ferocity seemed to illuminate the face, to burn under all the freckled skin and possess every feature. It wasn't ugliness or anger merely. The entire face was transformed into so horrible, so savage a thing, fascinating in its incarnate monstrosity. Then, and not until it has been seen, is it possible to understand what a "born fighter" really is. When Bob Fitzsimmons fights he is the very spirit of the wild fighter. A man who has to face that might imagine the human being had vanished.

Fitzsimmons denied that it was acting. He had been told of it before, but he says he is quite unconscious of the awful transformation that always takes place in his appearance. Believers in the theories of reincarnation might study Fitzsimmons's fighting face for a strong argument in their behalf.

Once seen it can never be forgotten—the burning glare of the eyeballs that grows supernatural, the rigid, horrible mouth that might just have closed over its prey, and all the inexplicable change that transforms the individuality of the head as no mere acting ever could.

The fact that these disreputable pugilistic encounters receive in a measure the sanction of law, shows what a low plane a large mass of the people stand upon. Is it any wonder that the participants in these fierce struggles glare at each other like animals, indicating that they may be overshadowed by some demoniac influence that changes the appearance of their features throughout.

Such exhibitions of personal prowess are a disgrace to this the nineteenth century, and show conclusively that the millennial dawn is yet far away. It is well known that evil spirits hover over this earth, and they will visit Nevada in large numbers, when the brutal fight occurs there between Fitzsimmons and Corbett, and the legitimate result will be a stimulation of crime in every conceivable direction. For a time the pugilists will be more ferocious; the thug more daring; the footpad more bold; the highway robber more venturesome and all along the line villains will become more open in their work. The fact that crime is everywhere increasing, there being far more convicts in prisons at the present time in proportion to the population than ever before, shows conclusively that something must be done to avert the evil consequences that will follow, or this Nation will pass through an ordeal that will make the people tremble. Spirit demons should not be allowed an opportunity to witness such a brutal scene as will soon occur in Nevada.

WABBLING HELLWARD.

Mrs. Charlotte Smith has memorialized the Massachusetts legislature against the bicycle and the ladies who ride them. She says: "It is a sorrowful picture to witness women, large and small, fat and lean, mounted on and pedaling wheels, and intruding upon man's domain in their desire to wear breeches." She is very anxious that no embarrassing mistakes be made in distinguishing between the sexes, and seems to have a dreadful dislike to mannish women. Physicians and clergymen are charged with encouraging women and girls to ride "that they may inhale the pure air of heaven and enjoy the green grass." And then this good woman strikes right out from the shoulder in the following amusing way. Give her room:

"These quack doctors and quack preachers and their agents have prescribed bicycles as a cure for all ailments. In this way women who are lacking in modesty and who want medical advice and clerical authority are led to make indecent exhibitions of themselves on the plea of regaining their health. These degenerate creatures soon become bicycle fiends, pedaling perditionward, and are prominent factors in encouraging others to wabble hellbound with them."

ROUGH ON THE REVIVALIST.

They have a novel way in Oklahoma of dealing with preachers who meddle with their social customs. Rev. John Coggswell, an itinerant evangelist, of the Moody variety, who wanders over the new territory, holding revival meetings in school houses, in a sermon near Clifton, in Lincoln county, made a fierce attack on dancing, card-playing and other amusements. He declared literary societies institutions of the Devil, and denounced those who attended them, climaxing his vituperation by calling the women and girls who danced, "hell cats."

A committee of young men took him out of bed at night and rode him two miles on a rail, then instructed him to leave the county in twenty-four hours, else he would receive a coat of tar and feathers.

Poor compensation for trying to save souls, in obedience to Moody's earnest request for thirty days' labor in that direction.

"The Relation of Science to the Phenomena of Life." By Prof Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

TALMAGE ON JONAH.

Rev. Dr. Talmage lectured in Rockford, Ill., a few days ago. While there he was interviewed by a representative of the Morning Star, who inquired of the learned divine if he believed in Jonah. The question has become the leading one of the day since Dr. Lyman Abbott, of Plymouth church, treated this story in a mirthful way in his pulpit, and said this book is the Pickwick Papers of the Bible.

But Talmage: "I believe in the inspiration of every part of the Bible." Then the Doctor told his interlocutor that God would not have protected anything which was false, or which misrepresented him. "It has withstood the bombardment of the centuries, and not a splinter has been torn from it."

That settles the question with a zealot. The logic also proves the divinity of the Koran, the Vedas, and still more forcibly the Zend Avesta, for the two latter of these have an antiquity greater than any portion of the Bible.

Though the Bible was wrested from the hands of Catholics, who insisted they knew how the book was made, and declared it improper to be placed in the hands of laymen; and though the most learned scholars have shown it is of comparatively modern origin, with forged accessories to strengthen a belief in its antiquity, yet the book is clung to as a sacred fetich.

Talmage says he and Abbott were seated together for three years in school, and were for a time associated in the ministry. Dr. Abbott is deemed a level-headed man by all who know him. The other is simply Dr. Talmage, and that is all it is necessary to say of him; but it is wonderful to note how intimately he is associated with the Creator and Ruler of the universe, and how ready he is to tell "all about God," and of his plans in regard to man. The boy on the witness stand told what the hog thought on a certain occasion, and was as certain he was correct as is Talmage when he voices the will and counsel of God.

A FRUITFUL HARVEST.

"Why should not every church begin the season with a thirty-day series of Gospel meetings?" inquired Evangelist Moody, through the religious press at the close of the old year. There are near a hundred thousand organized churches in these United States, and multitudes of evangelists who responded to this piteous appeal for active proselyting labor for the upbuilding of decaying churches. The result: The daily press from all parts of the country come loaded with details of these highly sensational meetings, and of converted maniacs, made such by the frightful preaching, followed frequently by murders and suicides. Before the winter passes—for these religious revivals are the production of cold weather—thousands of mental wrecks will be made, and the State governments will be further called upon to make large appropriations for additional insane asylums.

Statistics show there is a constant increase in the pro rata of the insane to the same. The religious press ascribes this to the great strain of our civilization; but do not the facts demonstrate that the church furnishes the clue to this mournful condition of things? We have made recent clippings of these newspaper accounts, and it is simply frightful to note their number. To make room for all of them in these columns would prevent the publication of our usual variety of matter, so we are content to copy the following excerpt from the columns of the Chronicle, transmitted to that paper by the Associated press. It is given as it there appeared, headlines and all:

DRIVEN INSANE BY RELIGION.

Unfortunate Result of Evangelist Moody's Revival in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 8.—Harry Harvey, a watchman at Squires' pork packing establishment, went insane on religion to-day and three policemen were roughly handled before they overpowered him. Harvey lived with his wife on Prospect street, Cambridge, and their domestic life has till to-day been happy. He has been a constant attendant at Evangelist Moody's services at Tremont temple, and so enthusiastic did he become that he gave evidence of violence to-day. A physician at once ordered that he be removed to a padded cell, lest he should kill his wife and some of the neighbors, and it required the combined strength of five men to overpower him and place him in a patrol wagon.

If correct that the Christian religion—the only one that seems to devote its best energies to the multiplication of lunatics—is responsible for this unhappy condition, is it not about time legislative inquiries should be made on the subject, and possibly repressive laws enacted holding the Moodys, their aiders and abettors, responsible to offended justice, at the same time compelling their estates to pay the damages families and interested parties may sustain because of their hurtful acts?

GREAT GOD, HOW LONG?

Two weeks ago mention was made in these columns of the murder of Mrs. Rash and three children by the husband and father, G. K. Rash, at Wayne, Neb., and it was supposed he became unbalanced at a revival meeting. The murderer has subsequently been arrested, and talks freely of his crime. He says:

"I went from the church the night of the murder with the minister's farming stone in my hand [a large soapstone]. A vision said that must be the instrument of my family's execution. My wife met me at the door. I told her she must die. She said she was not ready to die yet, but I told her that God had ordered that her time had come. Then I hit her with the stone and it broke in two pieces, falling on the floor. My children were in bed, but my little boy and girl awakened and the boy came running out and called upon me not to hurt his mother.

"Having killed my wife I then killed the children, using the stone with which I had killed my wife."

If murders of such a character had not beeen common with Christian revivals for centuries it would be proper to call them Moodyisms, for that leading revivalist called for, and his voice set in motion the present series of these meetings many times more destructive to life and mentality than the most violent cyclones.

AN OBJECT LESSON.

Mrs. Fee, the wife of Rev. Wm. I. Fee, of Felicity, O., dropped dead a few evenings ago at the Methodist church. She had just prayed, sung, and made a little speech, when she fell to the floor of the pulpit and was dead. Would the moral suggest: Keep out of the pulpit?

The death of a man while playing cards might be used by the puritanical as an awful example if the same day an evangelist had not died in the pulpit.—Chronicle.

STILL AT IT.

A news dispatch to the Western press from New York, of February 7, reads as follows:

"A new church game called a 'Trilby party' was inaugurated last week in Bath Beach and promises to supplant 'Button, button; where's the button?' 'Authors' and other time-worn divertisements formerly so popular when the question of raising church funds was in consideration. The residence of Peter T. Moore was the scene of the party, which was for the benefit of the Bath Beach Methodist church.

"About two dozen young women of the flock sat concealed behind the screen in Mr. Moore's parlor. Under the screen was a space that allowed the hidden ones to display their bare feet. Young men of the congregation bid recklessly for the privilege of escorting owners of the feet they picked out to supper. Deacon Jacob Moore was the auctioneer.

"The highest price was obtained for a couple of pink 'tootsies,' the big toes of which were decorated with blue ribbons. The best Methodist society in Bath Beach attended the auction."

It is a pleasure to know this innovation on decency did not originate in Spiritual or agnostic circles. It is hoped the church alone will be allowed to monopolize the sale of ladies' ankles at auction, with special privileges. At one time it was very popular to raise money to pay the preacher by the sale of kisses, but this is a lower descent to vulgarity.

NOT INSANE—ONLY BELLIGERENT

Only the ransomed of the Lord claim exemption from sin. All the rest are necessarily vile, inheritors of the ills entailed on the race because of the disobedience of our first parents. It is sometimes difficult to recognize the difference between the regenerated and the natural man. Take the case in the Baptist church at Morgantown, Ind., a few days ago: The members of the church were trying to settle a pastor among them, instead, it seems from the press reports, they set about to settle each other. Says the dispatch:

"The argument waxed hot and when William Dill stepped forward to seat a speaker who had been ruled out of order but refused to sit down he was interrupted by a woman, and the war broke out. The men used fists while the women pulled hair and spat in one another's faces. One woman swung her crutch with disastrous effect and the trouble was general. The grand jury and officers are investigating the case, while the congregation continues the trouble on small provocation."

AN EARNEST APPEAL.

The Progressive Thinker has been reliably informed that, on New Years Day, Mrs. Rose C. Miller, Frank S. Boosinger and his wife and his brother-in-law, of Gillespie, Ill., went to St. Louis, to see a medium. Mrs. M. J. Roberts. Mrs. Miller is herself a trance, magnetic and writing medium. Mr. Boosinger comes of one of the best families, and his moral character has been above reproach. Mrs. Miller is of a very amiable, quiet disposition, and there has been no trouble between her and her husband. They have a large family of bright and healthy children. There is no known reason for her leaving her home; but she has not returned, and her husband and family are earnestly desirous and anxious that she should return to them.

We call upon any and all friends who may know the lady, or know where she is, to earnestly appeal to her to return to her family and husband, without delay. Mr. Miller, we are informed, is in a state bordering on distraction, on account of his wife's long absence, and the children need a mother's attention. We ask our friends who can do so, to act in this matter, for humanity's sake and for the welfare of all concerned.

A CHINESE MISSIONARY COME TO CHICAGO.

Wong Chin Foo, a "heathen Chinese" evangelist, has come to Chicago as an advance guard, a John the Baptist, to convert the almost hopeless devotees of Christianity to the true path marked out by Confucius. This is sending coals to Newcastle, giving a Roland for an Oliver, or turning the tables with a vengeance. The Christian missionaries have been near 2,000 years vainly attempting to convert China, and have not yet saved a soul to Jesus, and now the sleepy Celestials will try what can be done to win souls to Confucius and Buddha. There is no probability of anybody being brought over to the saving grace of Buddha, yet it must be confessed that Wong Chin Foo presents his case forcibly, as follows:

"You have taught Christianity for nineteen centuries, and with what result? You are a race of money-grabbers and traders. I admire American genius and thrift, but I deprecate American morals. Your jails are filled with criminals and your courts with divorce cases. Men rob in broad daylight on your streets; children knock their parents down, and people are committing suicide because they cannot find work. There are cities in China containing 200,000 inhabitants without a single policeman. In Chicago there are thousands of them, and yet people are not safe here in broad daylight. The trouble is not with Christianity, but with the horrible greed of the few. The doctrine of Christ could be preached with profit in heaven; while the principle of Plutocracy would demoralize hell itself."

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces, will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of information on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

INFALLIBLE BIBLE.

EDITOR OF NEW YORK CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE SAYS HE DOESN'T BELIEVE IN THE INFALLIBILITY OF THE ENGLISH VERSION OF THE BIBLE—STATEMENT MAKES OTHER MINISTERS EXCITED—TELL HIM THEY DON'T WANT HIM IF THAT IS TRUE—OTHER NEW YORK NEWS.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the New York Christian Advocate, the official organ of the Methodist Church, created a sensation at a meeting of Methodist ministers by asking the question: "Is the English version of the Bible Infallible?" and the answering it in the negative. The 300 clergymen present were indignant at his position and angered still more by his declaring the great majority of them agreed with him.

Dr. Buckley said: "I am sorry to disagree with my friend Curtis. I don't believe in the infallibility of the English version of the Bible, and I think there are scarcely four men in this meeting who do."

There were a gasp, a groan, a confused hum of voices and then a chorus of protest, but Dr. Buckley waited for quiet and then went on to point out what he declared to be the many glaring inconsistencies in the English translation even in its revised form. When he sat down the storm broke.

Clergyman after clergyman arose and in somewhat unclerical heat denounced the views of Dr. Buckley and Dr. Lyman Abbot. Dr. Shaffer of Newburg and Dr. Leonard of this city were the leaders in the discussion. Dr. Buckley declined fervent appeals to retract his words and demanded a vote on the question of the infallibility of the Bible.

"If you doubt the infallibility of the Bible," cried Dr. Shaffer, "we can very well get along without you and all like you."

"You're afraid to have a vote taken," retorted Dr. Buckley. "I do not pretend at this time to question the infallibility of the Bible as it was written in Hebrew and the Greek, but I do question parts of it as it is written in English, and I want a vote taken."

Those who believed in the infallibility of the English version of the Bible were to rise and be counted. Only one man arose, Dr. Shaffer. The other clergymen, however, said they did not consider such a vote authorized.

It may well be doubted whether there is a single intelligent, well-informed individual, minister or layman, who really believes in the infallibility of any English version of the Bible. The most they can aver is, like Dr. Buckley: "I do not pretend to question the infallibility of the Bible as it was written in Hebrew and the Greek."

But this leads to a peculiar predicament. Where will they find a copy of that "Bible as it was written in Hebrew and the Greek?" The books that have been copied and recopied, transcribed and retranscribed—and retranscriptions retranscribed, ad libitum, by careless or willfully erroneous copyists, who emended, revised, altered and interpolated, until nobody knows what remains as it was "originally written in Hebrew and the Greek"—are these to be taken, and believed in as infallible? But, if not, where is the infallible Bible to be found? Echo answers: Where?

There is no known infallible Bible in existence—whether Hebrew, Greek, English, or in any other language or tongue—and if the ministers were as honest and fearless as they are learned, they would admit the fact. Not even the famed Polychrome Bible, with all the trained and fearless scholarship engaged in its preparation, can claim to be infallible. Nor is there any Bible that is known to be "as it was originally written."

X-RAY.

NEW YORK STATE SPIRITUALISTS

The regular call for a convention to organize a State Association of Spiritualists will probably be ready to publish next week. The officers of most of the New York State societies have signed the call as have many other prominent Spiritualists; those who have not, can do so by writing at once to the undersigned, giving him authority to add their names. A great interest is being shown among the Spiritualists of New York, and they are getting aroused to the importance of organization. The mass-meeting held in Brooklyn was a grand success, the net proceeds of which will amount to over $600, all of which the N. S. A. turned over for State association.

Commencing March 1, Mr. E. W. Sprague will make a trip over the State, speaking wherever arrangements can be made, to awaken further interest in State association. All towns on railroads are urged to engage for a meeting if possible. Societies or places where there are none, desiring his services, are requested to write to the undersigned, giving their county, location and name of railroad, that arrangements and dates can be made to avoid extra travel. You will be expected to entertain him while in your community, pay traveling expenses from last stopping place, give him the privilege of soliciting donations and of receiving the proceeds of collection taken at the meeting. We wish to arrange for every Sunday and night during each week before convention.

For further information address the State Agent of the N. S. A.,

FRANK WALKER.

Hamburg, N. Y.

GRAND MASS-MEETING.

A grand mass-meeting under the auspices of the N. S. A., to be held in New Orleans, La., March 5, 6 and 7, 1897.

Eminent Spiritualistic talent will be present. One fare for the round trip on railroads from all points on account of the Mardi Gras festival; tickets good for fifteen days. This will be an excellent opportunity to visit the quaint old town of New Orleans, attend the Spiritualist mass-meeting and witness the Mardi Gras carnival.

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY.

THE FORTY-NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Thomas A. Black, of Cleveland, Ohio, sends the following:

The Spiritualists of Cleveland extend greetings, and cordially invite all Spiritualists of Northern Ohio to assemble with them on Sunday, March 28, in Army and Navy Hall, 426 Superior street, to commemorate and fittingly celebrate the Forty-ninth Anniversary of the advent of Modern Spiritualism. An event, though humble in origin, has cycled the globe; illumined the minds scientists; and revolutionized the religious thought of the civilized world. It is proposed to hold an all-day meeting of three sessions—morning, afternoon and evening—at each of which first-class addresses will be delivered by speakers with inspiration to illumine the minds, and uplift the souls of all listeners. Order of exercises: Sunday, March 28, 10:30 a. m., opening address by Thomas A. Black, chairman, followed by a general conference. Recess. 2:30 p. m., anniversary address, by Dr. F. Schermerhorn, of Akron, Ohio. 7:30 p. m., anniversary address, by Hon. O. P. Kellogg, of East Trumbull, Ohio. Admission to each session, ten cents.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER VII.

A VISIT TO THE SO-CALLED MOTHER OF GOD.

SOLON AND MARY VISIT JESUS AND MARY, HIS MOTHER, WITHIN THE HEAVENLY SPHERES.

Said Mary to me: "Dearest Solon, my sister Annie long since told me that I could visit the saints, or Jesus of Nazareth, if I so desired, and Mary his mother, who on earth is by all good Catholics called the Holy Virgin. Now that we have become a very angel in truth, I think we may venture."

"Well," I replied, "your desire is also mine; we have but to decide which one it shall be."

Mary hesitated a few moments, and then said:

"As I was once a sincere Catholic, and believed in and prayed to the Holy Virgin, as I at that time thought her to be, perhaps it is now time that the desire to see her should meet with its fulfillment."

And so, shortly after, we started on our way. Here let me say that every good Catholic on earth expects to see the Virgin Mary shortly after entering the place they call heaven; then, dear reader, think it not strange that Mary and I paid her a visit after being in the heavenly world for nearly fifty years, or that our desire was at all unnatural or the accomplishment of it improbable. I think your reply to this will be:

"No; the improbability, to us, is the fact that you are able to tell us who are yet on earth, about it."

My reply is that it is far easier to impress a mediumistic brain to write out the story of our visit to Mary the mother of Jesus, than it was to make that journey and pay that visit; but make the journey we did, traveling many thousands of miles, as they are counted on earth, for the purpose.

While floating gently and rapidly along our way, I asked Mary if she now desired, on seeing the blessed Virgin, so-called, to fall down, kiss the hem of her garment and worship her. A radiant smile passed over my darling's face as she answered:

"No; I would much rather be taught to fully and entirely comprehend truth, than to blindly fall down and worship error; while kissing the hem of her bedraggled garments is not now to my taste.

"No, Mary," I replied, "a wise and loving soul need never prostrate itself before any other soul that ever lived or ever will live, no matter who they were or are. To worship Mary, the mother of Jesus, is childish folly, not worthy a wise and progressed angel. Is there any good reason why one mother should worship another mother, both having had sons and daughters?"

"Certainly not," she answered sweetly, and as her thought was my thought—that is we did not need language to express our thoughts to each other—I knew her mind reverted to her own dear son, the only one of all her former earthly family left on that wearisome, plodding plane. A sigh escaped her lips, and tears, like jewels, glistened in her beautiful eyes.

"Ah!" she said, "my mother-love draws me forcibly toward Mary, the mother of Jesus. Let us hasten."

And shortly after we entered the town where Mary, the mother of Jesus, resided. The place did not differ materially from thousands of other towns and cities through which we had passed, on our way thither, and her place of abode, which was pointed out to us by one whom we asked, was not at all more glorious or beautiful than many others near it, neither was it more elegant than our own, but it was like thousands of others, the pure and beautiful abode of an angel.

A lovely garden of the most exquisite flowers attracted our attention. The blossoms were more beautiful than any we had before seen, and we involuntarily turned into the garden, without knocking for admission to the house. The place was a dream of beauty, and we wandered about for some time, bewildered by the loveliness and grandeur so lavishly displayed before our astonished gaze. At length we seated ourselves near a fountain which was throwing up an immense jet of water; so high, indeed, was the water thrown, that we could not discern where the force terminated. As we turned our eyes away from the fountain, we saw a lonely lady walking not many yards distant from where we sat; and we knew at once that this was Mary, the mother of Jesus.

There was not the slightest appearance of virginity about her, but we beheld a grand and beautiful woman—one whose very appearance indicated that she had lived on earth until old age, and that she had been the mother of many children. She was purely Oriental, not at all like the pictures which one sees of her on the earth. Her eyes were exceedingly large, dark, liquid and dreamy; her hair of a dun-black, long and heavy, sweeping around her like a dark, impenetrable cloud. She was not tall nor slender, but rather voluptuous in form; a perfect type of a fine, Jewish woman. She wore large hoops of gold in her ears, a corresponding band of gold, jeweled with garnets, encircled her brow, gleaming weirdly from among the thick black hair; her arms were large and fair, the wrists clasped by golden bands; her Jewish nose, ripe-red lips, olive-tinted complexion, and dark, liquid eyes, were so entirely different from our preconceived ideas of her, that we gazed wonderingly. Her trailing robe was of dusky garnet, which had the appearance of velvet, sweeping in heavy folds about her, although the front of the bodice and skirt seemed to be of cream-white satin. Truly a beautiful, voluptuous, Oriental, Jewish woman, in every look and motion.

My Mary's sweet eyes looked into mine the surprise she felt. Surely, my Mary looked more like the pictures of the Virgin Mary than did that person herself, and if I must worship any woman, as the Mother of God, certainly I should have fallen at the feet of my own beautiful, angelic Mary.

By this time the lady had drawn very near to us: we arose and saluted her. She gave one warm magnetic hand to Mary, the other to me.

"I am very glad," she said, with a smile, which showed dazzling white teeth, small and even as pearls, "that you have not come prepared to fall down and worship me, or even to kiss the hem of my garment:" this, with a meaning look at my Mary. "You may call me Marah," she continued, "for my name when on earth was not Mary, but Marah, and I was, when young, but a simple Jewish maiden of very humble parentage. My mother named me Marah, meaning bitter waters, because I was born amidst poverty, grief and bondage. I was not an exceedingly pure or good girl; on the contrary, I was rather passionate and willful, and murmured much at my hard fate. Like many other maidens, I hated poverty, and greatly desired wealth and distinction. As you can see by my present appearance, I was a dreamer. My mother's poverty compelled her to make of me a carrier of water and cleanser of pots and pans, and like your fabled Cinderella, I dreamed of marrying a prince.

"Well, it was the old, old story: A princely youth crossed my path. He was not a Jew, but of Corsica. Ah! how madly I loved him. He was as fair as fair could be, with long flaxen hair and eyes as blue as my dreams of Paradise. A Corsican prince; a son of the then reigning King of Corsica. Ah! how grand he looked to me, with his shining helmet of silver and his doublet of blue all decked with jewels and diamonds, his white satin breeches, and top boots with golden spurs, his shining blue cap all studded with diamonds and decked with long ostrich plumes. Ah! to feast my eyes upon him, was to me rapture; Paradise! and he loved me, the dark-eyed Jewish maiden—at least, he loved me as well as his colder nature would allow.

"The first time we met was by a well where I was drawing water. He was mounted on a snow-white steed, surrounded by a retinue of servants; his armor, shield and lance glittering in the bright sunlight. It was high noon and very hot; he was athirst.

"'Let the Jewish maiden give me to drink!' he cried to his followers.

"One of his servants essayed to take the vessel from my hand.

"'Not so—not so!' he cried; 'Peradventure, I will take it from her hands and no other.'

"I approached him with my vessel of water. He handed me a silver cup and I gave him to drink. Our eyes met. His lighted up, as I thought, with admiration, and my dreamy, passionate, Oriental soul thrilled rapturously. Poor, simple, foolish maiden that I was: I pressed my lips to the hem of his doublet. He leaped from his horse as he said:

"'Thou art a Jew, and with thee it is a blow for a blow, a tooth for a tooth; but with me, it is a kiss for a kiss!'

Thereupon he kissed me, mounted his horse, and with a laughing face and waving white hand on which glittered priceless jewels, he rode away. Mary, can you not guess the sequel?' and she seated herself by Mary's side, whose eyes were filled with curiosity and bewildered surprise.

"Do you now feel like falling down to worship me? and kissing the hem of my garment? and yet, I hope I am not unworthy of your love, and I hope you will feel pity and sympathy for the little, foolish maiden that I then was."

Mary raised the hand of Marah to her lips and kissed it, and I saw a tear of sympathy fall upon it, where it lay for a short time, like a sparkling jewel.

"Mary," she continued, "that was not the last time I met my prince. I saw him many, many times afterwards, and we often met by stealth. I loved him with all the ardor of my dreamy, passionate nature; and he was the father of my first born, whom I named Jesse, afterwards called Jesus the Christ. I was a poverty-stricken Jewish maiden, suffering under the yoke of a terrible bondage. He was a prince; his father a king over many distant provinces. He was a Gentile. A Jew could not marry a Gentile. A prince could not marry a slave. My condition soon became apparent to my mother. She questioned me. In tears of grief I confessed all. I was but a little more than a child. My mother did not beat and abuse me, as I expected she would, but cast about, in her mind, how to cover my sin, as she thought it to be. My mother was a shrewd and practical woman, immured to great hardships. The old man Joseph, had long been her friend and counselor, to him she opened her heart, and between them they planned to save me from exposure. He had already coveted me for his wife, and immediately they published abroad our espousals. I yielded to my fate, for there was nothing else which I could do. My prince had now returned to his father, the king; his country being so remote that to my youthful imagination it was as though he where dead and in Paradise. This impressed, or marked, my unborn babe for all future time.

"The Jewish nation were at this time suffering under the most cruel bondage; they were continually praying for a deliverer—one whom they believed would rise up to deliver them from their dreadful condition. It was not to deliver them from hell, and a devil, after the death of their bodies; of this they never thought; and my shrewd mother and her colleague, my espoused husband Joseph, adroitly turned this to account, intimating that my unborn babe was to be the future king, who would deliver them from their terrible fate. They were ready to grasp at a straw, in their misery; but my poor son was never king of the Jews; he lived with me and my husband, Joseph, in the utmost seclusion and poverty until he was nearly thirty years of age; but he was entirely different from my other children. The others were purely Jewish children; but, alas! for my fair-haired, blue-eyed, first-born; he was a dreamer as I had been; he also somewhat inherited his father's imperious nature; he believed that he should yet become king of the Jews; he yearned to save them from bondage; and at last he broke loose from my restraining influence and in his enthusiasm wandered away, gathering about him followers, or, as they then were called, disciples, and I readily foresaw what the end would be, but could no longer hinder him from his course or prevent his fate. I saw my precious boy after he was nailed to the cross, and wept as other mothers weep when their children suffer ignominious death. Other mothers' children have been hanged, burned at the stake, tortured, crucified, walled-up alive, smothered and trampled to death within feather-beds, cast into dens of wild beasts, drawn into quarters by horses, gored to death by bulls, thrust into burning hot ovens, shot, murdered by the aid of electricity.

"Ah!" she sighed, clasping her hands above her heart, "how many thousands have been beheaded, what horrors have been perpetrated in my name; what awful crimes are being committed at this present day, on earth, in my name!"

She turned her large liquid eyes upward, in anguish, as she continued:

"Oh! Marah—Marah! Oh! bitter—bitter waters! Thou hast, indeed, been a curse to thy people! A bitter—bitter curse to many millions of people, since the day thy princely lover kissed thy lips, all so thoughtlessly, and then left thee, as other lovers are wont to do, regardless of consequences: and you; O! Mary, my namesake, were also a worshiper at my shrine; you, too, worshiped the Virgin Mary; the immaculate one, as you supposed; wanted to fall at my feet and kiss the hem of my garment;" and saying this, she fell prostrate at the feet of my Mary, and passionately kissed the hem of her garment.

"Oh! Mary—Mary!" she cried in bitter anguish, "if you will help me to save the world, from the consequences of my folly, I will render unto you the homage which you supposed was due to me."

Tears were rolling down over my Mary's cheeks.

"Oh," she sighed, "how can I help you?"

"You have still a son on earth?"

"Yes," replied Mary. "One of my dear boys is still left."

"Then, you ask me, how you can help me. If the influence of my son can extend on the earth, for more than two thousand years, cannot the influence of your son be felt toward counteracting the errors which were generated, in a measure, by him? Yet, I will not throw the blame of my own folly on the head of my well-meaning child. Mary—sweet Mary! wife, mother, spirit, and now an angel, help me—help me. I implore you!" and again she threw herself, passionately, at Mary's feet. Mary bent down, raised up the head of Marah, and pressed her lips to those of the mother of the so-called Christ,

"Do not humble yourself thus," she said. "Are we not sisters? Are we not mothers? Have we not sons? Arise, O! Marah. Be comforted. A new light is dawning upon the world, and we can both work, by our love and wisdom, for suffering humanity."

Marah raised herself again to the side of Mary.

"Yes," she replied; "we can both work, but your influence, now, will be more powerful than mine, for my life on earth was so many, many years ago, that I feel very far removed from it; you, having ties still there can reach humanity much better."

"I will do all that lies in my power," said my darling, and I exclaimed, 'Amen!'

"Oh! what horrible agony I have suffered for my earthly folly," again went on Marah. "Ah! they preach hell-fire and eternal torment, and I have known something of it. They say that the Virgin Mary was lifted directly into the heights of glory; but rather I was, soon after my departure from earth, cast into the depths of hell; which simply means unhappiness."

"But why, dear Marah, have you been so unhappy?" asked my Mary. "Your error was not so very grave; tens of thousands of other young girls have made the same mistake."

"The error, pure and simple, was not so very great," replied Marah; "but the consequences which have followed have been most terrible indeed! Think what my sufferings have been when thousands were murdered on my account, when bloody wars have arisen in my name, when so-called apostates from the Church of Rome have been burned at the stake, cast into dungeons, heavily menaced; walled-up alive, smothered and trampled to death, and every conceivable torture and indignity heaped upon others; think, at the present time, what horrors are being perpetrated in the name of the Holy Virgin; millions are kept in ignorance and slavish bondage by the Roman Catholic church; thousands of priests are forbidden to marry; thereby transgressing natural law; think of the monks, cloisters and nuns; think of the awful wickedness and hidden crimes of the same; for no one can transgress natural laws without paying the penalty in some way; think of the countless pictures and images that are supposed to represent me and my poor son, which look not at all like me or him; see how entirely different I really am from what I am supposed to be."

"And, yet," replied Mary, "you certainly ought not to be held responsible for all this horror and wickedness."

"No," answered Marah; "there is no personal God to hold me responsible for all the innate ignorance and wickedness of mankind; but, O! think you that I can remain unmoved when such horrors are perpetrated in my name? Think of me being worshiped as the Mother of God!" and she clasped her hands together and raised them, as well as her streaming eyes, upward.

"Yes," she continued; "think of the millions of benighted souls who have come to this life fully expecting to see me as the sainted Mother of God! the Blessed Virgin! and so forth. For many years I was obliged to shut myself up, like a nun on earth, in order to escape the rush of souls who came here fully prepared to worship at the feet of the Mother of God. Poor, benighted wandering souls! how my heart bled for them; and even now I dare not go out far beyond this garden, else I should be beset by hundreds of others, who are arriving here continually. To be sure, there are legions of wise spirits, who make it their business to teach such, yet there are so many who have lived so long in error, it takes much time and patience to enlighten them. My dear son is also at work with all his power, to counteract the harm which he so unwittingly did, when on earth."

"Does your son often visit you here?" I asked.

"Very often, indeed," she replied; "and many are the bitter tears we shed together over the unhappy condition of earth's children, and when any benighted soul would fall down to worship him, he invariably says: 'See that thou do it not, for am I not thy brother? are we not both alike souls of the infinite? All souls are equal in the immensity of time. I may be farther along on the road toward the celestial, than thou art. I might, therefore, be thy teacher, but see to it that thou worship me not. One thing, only, shouldst thou adore, and that is the infinite.' Infinitude does not mean a personal male God, neither a person at all, but simply the eternal, the everlasting, that which has neither beginning nor end. My son is a teacher, a wise and good one. O! pity, that the words of his earthly life should be so misconstrued."

"We exceedingly desire to meet your son," I said. "Could you direct us on our way toward him?"

"If you will remain here, for a time," she answered, "I will send for him—that is, I will telegraph for him, otherwise earnestly desire his presence, and he will soon respond to my wishes."

I, Solon, would here like to say that no Christian should take umbrage at this, for do they not believe that if they pray to Jesus he will hear them and respond to their cries? How else could he hear them, unless by some telegraphic means? for, according to their belief, he dwells far—far beyond the stars, in a heaven where no soul can return to earth. If no soul can return, he cannot return; if he can return, other souls can also return; if he can hear their cries, other souls can also hear them, and, if a spirit or soul is far, far away, desires or prayers, must reach them by means of telegraphy, telepathy or the sending of a messenger direct: but telegraphy and telepathy are far easier and better modes of communication. You may call this, which Marah, the mother of Jesus, did, telepathy, or telegraphy, just as you please; but I prefer to call it telegraphy, for there must be a medium or means whereby thought is transferable. Now, the medium in the spiritual world is the ethereal atmosphere, and the thought or desire is real and tangible, and is propelled by the force of the will directly to its object, through this ethereal atmosphere, which is displaced, in order that the thought may be propelled through it. I will now try to make this plain to my readers.

A person on earth discharges a gun or pistol; the ball is a real object and is propelled by a force, through the earthly atmosphere, to the object aimed at, and strikes it powerfully or otherwise according to the propelling force and distance; the air is displaced that the ball may go through it, in fact, it creates a hollow tube through which it passes. If there were no air, force would not propel the ball. Now, Marah's thought, being real and tangible, was projected through the ethereal atmosphere, directly to her son; because she aimed it at him, and it was propelled by the force of her will, through this ethereal atmosphere, which was displaced that the thought might go through it—forming a hollow tube as the atmosphere of earth does—through which the thought passed; therefore, I shall call it telegraphy. Thus her thought reached him, and he at once responded: 'I will be with you, shortly.' Therefore we had not long to wait, and soon, this much-talked-of Christ, stood before us.

Let not my Christian readers be offended at this; according to their ideas we ought to have seen Jesus immediately after the death of the body; but we had been in the spiritual world very many years and had not, until this moment, beheld their Christ; but now he stood in all his beauty before us, and by his side the counterpart of himself. I ought not, really, to speak of Jesus as he, but must because of earthly inadequate language; for the angel which stood before me was male and female, he and she in one, although it bore two forms; yet, I must only speak of it as he, that I may be understood by men. Jesus saluted us, bowing low before us. We arose; our hands met in a brotherly and sisterly clasp. Marah, after embracing her son, left us, and entered her dwelling, and soon we were seated together with the Christian's Christ! His mild and beautiful eyes rested upon us. His sweet smile cheered us as he took a silver cup from the fountain, near by, and filling it with the sparkling water, gave us to drink, for we were conscious of being thirsty. Marah returned, bearing a dish on which rested bread and fruit.

Jesus brake the bread and gave us to eat, for we were an hungered after our long journey. We also partook of the fruit; and now we were prepared for an intellectual feast, or, rather, a feast of love and wisdom. Once more the beautiful eyes were bent upon us, intently.

"What wouldst thou of me?" he asked, a dazzling smile lighting up his perfect features.

"We would know of you," I answered, "that we may give it to the Christians of earth, whether or not you are the Savior of mankind."

"I tried, when on earth, to save men from error, which has been translated into the word sin, but the word, in the language used in my day on earth, simply meant wrong doing—wrong ways—not right."

"Then by the word Savior you did not mean that you were to save them after death from a burning hell?"

"I meant, if they listened to my voice or my words, it would save them from misery or unhappiness while on earth, and also after the death of the material body. I likened the torments of one who committed wrong acts, to those of hell, or hades; and, Daniel, the prophet, has already informed you what was in my day on earth meant by these words; for, I meant that the cruel rulers of those times would be as miserable after death, as the wretched victims of their tyranny and wrath were, whom they cast into the pits or hades."

"Did you believe yourself to be the only son of God, when on earth?"

"My illegitimate birth was often cast in my teeth, by those who professed to despise me, and I said, in self-defense, that I came from God! It mattered not about my earthly parentage—that my soul was from the Eternal—and to the Eternal I should return once more—and in that Eternity my wrongs would all be righted—that I should be found to be at the right hand, or in the right way, while they, my persecutors, would be found to be at the left, or wrong way, and would be unhappy in consequence."

"What did you understand, by wrong and right ways?"

"To love one's neighbors as one's self, to be just to all, to be envious of none, to give to the poor and needy, to bless and not curse, which simply means to love and not hate; to heal the sick, to cast out devils."

"Ah! yes!" I exclaimed. "What did you mean by that? for this is a great question at issue on earth at the present day."

"I meant," he answered, "unclean spirits, the spirits of those who led wrong lives on earth, who were still wicked and unclean in their desires, and consequently desired to continue in wrong ways and therefore attached themselves to mankind in order to gratify their unclean desires."

"Then you, at that time, believed in the presence of departed souls?".

"Yes," he answered, "and so did all the nations of the earth. There was not a human being on the earth, to my knowledge, who did not thus believe. I believed in the angels, or bright and good spirits; also devils, or unclean spirits, which were not called angels: but you must remember, Solon, there was no such word in our language as devil; the word used in our language meant filthy or unclean demons, or spirits, for it was believed then as now, on the earth, that each person was attended by a demon, otherwise a familiar spirit, and if a person's acts were pure and good the spirit was considered good, or an angel; but if they were bad, then the attending spirit was a bad demon; and this, as you now know, my dear Solon, is all true."

"It is said on earth that you raised the dead. Is it true that you did so?"

"I distinctly said, when on earth, that the persons thus restored to life were not dead but sleeping, or as they say at the present day, in a trance. I never raised anyone, who was actually dead, to life. Many people who are supposed to be dead, remain unconscious for days and even weeks at a time, and I was able, by my inner or spiritual sight, to discern who were dead, and who were but sleeping."

"Did you heal the sick by the laying on of hands?"

"Most assuredly I did," he replied; "and the law by which they were healed is in active operation at all times. One can impart health or disease to another. No one upon the earth, doubts the fact that disease can be imparted from one to another, and is not the law the same in both cases. A clean, pure, healthy person can, by the force of his will or desire, impart a portion of his virtue to another. This I did in many cases, providing they were willing to be healed; but all persons are not thus willing, and to one who will not accept this healing power, one whose soul wills or casts it from him, that one cannot be healed."

(To be Continued.)

SPIRITUALISM SCIENTIFICALLY DEMONSTRATED.

BY PROF. ROBERT HARE.

His Remarkable Researches Made in the Early Years of Spiritualism.

Directly Edited and Revised by Him, Now in Spirit-Life.

"Each one of us gave orders with equal success. Children were obeyed as well as grown persons.

"Still more: it was agreed that the requests should not be audible, but merely mental, and whispered to a neighbor. Still the table obeyed! There was in no instance the least error.

"Each person desired the table to rap the number of years of his age, and it gave our ages as indicated only in our mind, endeavoring in the most curious manner to hurry when the number was large. I must own, to my shame, that I was rebuked by it, for having unintentionally diminished my age; the table gave forty-three instead of forty-two, because my wife, with a better memory, had thought of the correct number.

"Finally, having continued these experiments more than an hour, at which the neighbors and the servants of the farm were present, I felt that it was time to stop. I requested the table to raise; to raise again, and turn over on my side, which it did.

"Accept, gentlemen, the assurance of my best consideration,

'A. DE GASPARIN.'"

SPIRITUALISM IN GREAT BRITAIN —ACCOUNT OF MR. ROBERT OWEN'S CONVERSION.

"While in doubt upon this subject, I heard of the media in this country, and was casually introduced to Mrs. Hayden, an American medium, without having any intention to ask a question respecting the spirits; my object being to purchase a book which Mrs. Hayden had for sale, written by a valued and most truthful friend of mine in America, Adin Ballou, who has written a plain, practical, common-sense history of this new revelation to the human race.

"While conversing with Mrs. Hayden, and while we were both standing before the fire, and talking of our mutual friends, suddenly raps were heard on a table at some distance from us, no one being near to it. I was surprised, and as the raps continued and appeared to indicate a strong desire to attract attention, I asked what was the meaning of the sounds? Mrs. Hayden said they were spirits anxious to communicate with some one, and she would inquire who they were. They replied to her, by the alphabet, that they were friends of mine who were desirous to communicate with me. Mrs. Hayden then gave me the alphabet and pencil, and I found, according to their own statements, that the spirits were those of my mother and father. I tested their truth by various questions, and their answers, all correct, surprised me exceedingly. I have since had twelve seances, some of long continuance, and during which, with one exception, I have had prompt and true answers so far as the past and present, and very rational replies as to the future; but these last have to be tested by time. The exception was my own afterward-discovered error."

"A Mr. Hume, a young Scotchman, who went to America to pursue his studies as a medical student, four or five years ago, became a medium, (he is now about twenty years of age,) and soon became a very superior one. He had engaged to accompany the Haydens and Miss Jay. He took his passage and came, but the others, for some cause, postponed their voyage, but may be daily expected. They arrived on the 22nd. I had heard on my arrival in London, from friends on whom I could depend, of the extraordinary results by his mediumship. I made arrangements to visit those friends and Mr. Hume when I finished my lecture, which I did, and found my two friends and Mr. Hume waiting my arrival. On being seated around a regular fullsized card table, there were raps immediately, and because I do not hear very well, the raps increased until they became very loud, but I heard the first raps distinctly. Many spirits were present; some, relatives of my friends, and others, my own relations. My wife and daughters, my son and brother, and also my father and mother, with all of whom I have had frequent delightful intercourse through various mediums. My two friends present are husband and wife; and the first new occurrence to me was, seeing the lady's silk apron untied by invisible means—a somewhat complicated operation—and taken from her and given to Mr. Hume, opposite to her. It was then conveyed backward and forward, from one to another, and it soon came to me. I held it with much force, but it was drawn from me with greater force, for I was afraid damage would be done to it. Next a flower was taken from the table, conveyed away by invisible means, and brought to me. The flower I kept for being so presented to me. Next I had my handkerchief out; it was taken from my hands, and in an instant thrown from the opposite side of the table, not as it was taken, but made into a large hat, which I also have as a curiosity. Then the spirits came and touched each of us. I was occasionally touched on one knee, then on the other, and afterward on both at once; and then one of them shook hands with me, and I most distinctly felt the fingers of them separately. An accordeon was then placed under the table, and soon the spirit of the daughter of the family played most beautifully several tunes and pieces of music. I asked for one of my favorite Scotch tunes, and it was immediately played. The instrument was then raised by invisible power, and given first to one, then another; it was thus brought to me. The table was then lifted from the floor; at first, about a foot, and immediately afterward, about three feet.

"After this the medium was put into a trance, during which he saw beautiful visions of spirits, and one of them spoke through him while in that state sentiments that went to the heart of each of us, giving us advice, invaluable in its import, and in language beautifully and eloquently expressed, and calculated to make the deepest impression on our memories. While reason remains I shall never forget it; and it was given with many encouraging words, to pursue my course in the measures in which I am engaged; to endeavor to introduce the millennium, but also stating the obstacles I should meet, and the great difficulties which were to be overcome.

SPIRITUAL ADVENT IN ENGLAND, TESTIMONY OF D. D. HUME.

"In London I found but a limited number, comparatively speaking, who possessed any intelligent or rational idea of the spiritual philosophy. The subject has not made any great advance here; but those who are investigating include in their number some of the best minds of England. The first call I received was from Sir Charles E. Isham, who has proved a most excellent friend to me. A day or two after this I received an invitation from Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton to visit him at his country-seat at Knebworth. I accepted his invitation, and had an interesting and delightful visit.

I was deeply interested in Sir Edward, who is, by birth, education, and mind, a most superior person. His love of the beautiful, in nature and art, but especially in nature, is manifested at every part of his wide domain. Knebworth was originally built by a follower of the Conqueror, and was, in the year of the Armada, occupied by Queen Elizabeth. The state-room contains the bed upon which her majesty slept. It has rich velvet hangings—the same which shaded the slumbers of Queen Bess. The room of the extensive library contains the oak table at which Cromwell, Pym & Co. sat while planning the rebellion. * * * We had some manifestations at our seances almost as good as those we had at ——'s in your place. The spirits showed their presence in the same palpable way, by presenting tangible hands, shaking hands, etc., and Sir Edward "acknowledges the corn," to use a Yankee vulgarism. He is much interested in the subject, and has bestowed no small share of thought upon the matter.

I have also had the pleasure of being presented to the Marchioness of H——s, Baroness G——y R——n. She is a highly intellectual and altogether charming lady, who possesses much native refinement and a fearless desire to learn and follow the truth. I met, too, the Earl of E——e and the Marquis of C——e, at one of our circles a few evenings since. A most kind friend I also found in the Vicomte de St. Amirro, Charge d'Affaires from Brazil, who has given me valuable letters to France. I am to meet him and his lady (both investigators) the coming autumn at the Neapolitan court.

I enclose a paragraph from one of the London journals, giving a sketch of an interview I had with Lord Brougham and Sir David Brewster. The latter, as you are well aware, wrote that article in the Edinburgh Review, some months ago, in which he argued against the existence of spirit agency in the production of the manifestations, and in which he denounced the whole matter, in the bitterest terms, as a delusion and an imposition. His article has been eagerly and widely quoted by the opponents of Spiritualism on both sides of the Atlantic, and its statements are doubtless believed by those who are incapable of appreciating or comprehending the truths which they assail.

Sir David, however, has for once met with a "stumper," for he has seen and felt such manifestations of his spirit friends as to completely upset his philosophy. He frankly confessed that he is "sorely puzzled" at what he has witnessed, and Lord Brougham acknowledges himself to be thoroughly nonplussed. Both of these noted men brought the whole force of their keen discernment to bear upon the solution of the phenomena; but the presence of substantial, actual hands, and the demonstrative strength of the spirits who thus clothed themselves for the time and moved material objects about the room, proved to be too much of a question for them to master.

Time will not allow me to mention the various interesting sittings I have had, nor the many distinguished personages who have been in our circles during my short stay in London. I am at present enjoying the quiet of an English country home. The gentleman with whom I am stopping (Mr. Rymer) is one of the most distinguished solicitors in London. He has been a materialist, or disbeliever in a future state, all his life previous to witnessing these demonstrations of spirit existence. He is now a believer (or rather a knower) of the future life. The manifestations, so often scoffed at by professing Christians, have done for him, as they have for upward of twenty-five thousand infidels and atheists in America, what no power of the pulpit or doctrine of evangelical religion could ever have effected.

Is not this one fact alone a sufficient reply to the oft-repeated question of "What good does it all do?" There is many a broad, loving soul that, failing in the effort to narrow itself down to the limits of a dogmatical creed, has ended in infidelity or blank atheism; but the number of these is becoming steadily less by the influence of the spirit manifestations, which are to them what the placing of the hand in the spear-wound was to Thomas. Mr. R., since his conversion, has given a lecture on the subject, and will give another.

One thing I will not omit. Mrs. Trollope, whom Americans will be apt to remember, came, with her son, from Florence to London for the express purpose of seeing the manifestations. They were accordingly invited to spend a few days with me at my village home; and, I must say, I was agreeably disappointed in her. My previous ideas of her had not been such as to prepossess me in her favor, but I have become an admirer of her private character. She has none of the stiffness of the author about her, nor any of the "blue-stocking." She enjoys the realities of existence more fully than any one I have ever met in a circle.

The seance with her was one of strange interest. Her son was an unbeliever, and his mother was very desirous that he should be "brought to a knowledge of the truth." When at length the light did beam upon his soul, and the chords of his spirit vibrated in unison with the celestial harmonies that ushered in the birth of faith through the shadows of his old unbelief, the result was too much for his stoicism, and the tears of holy joy coursed down his manly cheeks. Her joy was too great for utterance, and her rapturous emotions seemingly too great to be endured. It was an impressive scene, and an occasion of deep interest. There are many such in the life of a spirit medium.

In a few weeks I leave England for the Continent, in company with my friend, Mr. Rymer. We intend to reach Rome in November, where we propose to spend a few months, if his holiness will let us. You shall hear from me again. Yours truly, D. H. HUME.

The following is the article referred to as having appeared in the London Journal:

LORD BROUGHAM WITH THE SPIRITS.

"A circumstance which has excited the most extraordinary sensation among the privileged few who have been admitted within the sphere of its operations, has taken place at Ealing, a village on the Uxbridge road. A young gentleman, named Hume, a native of Scotland, but who has resided for many years in America, is now on a visit at the house of Mr. Rymer, a highly respected solicitor. Mr. Hume is what the Americans term a 'medium,' and through his instrumentality some extraordinary and, if true, miraculous, occurrences have taken place.

"The spirits of deceased persons have been heard and felt in Mr. Rymer's house, and a variety of circumstances have taken place, which the persons who were present affirm could not have been produced except by supernatural agency. One of the spirits is supposed to be that of a son of Mr. Rymer, a little boy about eleven or twelve years of age, who has been induced to write to his parents under the cover of the table, and the writing is, to all appearances, precisely similar to that of the child when alive. Mr. Rymer, who is thoroughly convinced of the bona fides of the affair, has invited several persons to witness the manifestations, and among them the Rev. Mr. Lambert, the incumbent, who has become a devout believer in the existence of these communicative spirits.

"Some rumors of the spirit manifestations having reached Lord Brougham, the medium had an interview with the noble and learned lord in the presence of Sir David Brewster, when several unaccountable revelations were made, and even Lord Brougham has confessed himself amazed and sorely bothered to comprehend the description of agency by which an accordeon is forced into his hands and made to play, or his watch taken out of his pocket and found in the hands of some other persons in the room; for such are among the vagaries performed by the Ealing spirits. The house of Mr. Rymer is, of course, besieged by persons anxious to witness the manifestations, and scarcely a night passes that some scoffer is not converted into a true believer in the mystery of spiritual manifestations."

(To be Continued.)

THE PAPAL ASSASSINS—SECOND MURDEROUS ATTACK ON EX-PRIEST SLATTERY IN PHILADELPHIA, THE "CITY OF BROTHERLY LOVE"—THE ROMAN OCTOPUS, IF IT HAD THE POWER, WOULD INTRODUCE THE INQUISITION, AND SUPPRESS FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

One Sunday lately, ex-priest Slattery and wife were attacked for the second time within a week in Philadelphia. Says the North American:

"Ex-priest Slattery was subjected to ill treatment again last night, and but for the presence of a goodly-sized squad of policemen he certainly would have been killed. As it was, a small riot occurred, and a number of shots were fired by the mob, one of these coming within an ace of seriously injuring one of the policemen who rode in the carriage with the ex-priest.

"Mr. Slattery was advertised to speak last night in Industrial Hall, Broad and Vine streets, and as usual a large crowd gathered to hear his address. All went well while the lecture continued, there being no attempt to interrupt him or in any way interfere with the ex-priest.

"The riot which had occurred last week put the police on their guard, and this time preparations had been made on a large scale to prevent a recurrence of such disgraceful conduct. The Twentieth, Eighth, and Sixth districts were called upon to detail men to keep order, and in all there were about twenty policemen stationed around or near the hall.

"The lecture was concluded shortly before 10 o'clock, and the ex-priest prepared to leave the hall, accompanied by policemen William Clements and Frank Dorris, of the Twelfth district. A carriage was waiting at the door, and into this Mr. Slattery and his wife were hurried.

"The news of the proposed lecture had been widely advertised, and had evidently come to the ears of his former assailants, and these were augmented by thousands of infuriated men and women, intent upon getting the scalp of the unfortunate ex-priest. The streets in all directions were filled with a howling mob, and for a while it looked doubtful whether the police would be able to get their charge safely to his hotel.

"As soon as Slattery and his wife had been placed in the carriage the two policemen entered, and a wild race began for the hotel. The exit from the hall had been so sudden that the mob was taken unawares, the police had formed behind the carriage, and the start had been made before the mob was prepared for action.

"When it was seen that their prey was escaping them, a shout went up, and a desperate charge was made upon the police, who formed the rear guard of the procession. For a moment they broke through, and the carriage was almost overturned by the shower of bricks and stones hurled into it. The police soon reformed, and with clubs in hand made a return charge, which drove back the assailants and permitted the carriage to gain on the main body of the mob.

"But the worst was yet to come. Just as the carriage reached the Hahnemann Hospital, someone stationed behind the steps of the institution fired a shot directly into it, with the evident intention of killing the ex-priest. Fortunately he was not injured, but the ball in its flight grazed the head of policeman Clements, who was in the carriage as a guard. The injury was little more than a scratch, and was fixed up at the Hahnemann Hospital later.

"This shot seemed to be the signal for a general fusilade from the mob, and for a time it looked as if a determined effort would be made to end the differences between the ex-priest and his opponents right there. In all about ten shots were fired from the crowd, while policeman Dorris, in an effort to intimidate the attacking party fired one shot into the air. With the exception of the ball that entered the carriage, and which was evidently fired from a shotgun, none of the bullets did any damage. The principal danger seemed to be from the hail of missiles in the shape of bricks and stones, which fell in a perfect storm around the heads of the guard and those in the carriage. The streets from the hall to the Bingham House, at Eleventh and Market streets, reminded one of the scenes during the great railway strike, bricks, stones and glass plainly indicating the line of retreat. Broad Street around Industrial Hall was especially well dotted with the debris of the conflict.

"The carriage kept on its way to the hotel, which was reached without any damage to the priest and his wife, other than a choice collection of bits of broken glass, which covered their clothes like small diamonds. The two policemen in the carriage also were well decorated with the same material, and presented a strange sight when they reached the station-house after their unpleasant ride. All the way to the hotel the mob followed close behind the carriage, but not quite near enough to do any damage. When Eleventh and Market was reached, Mr. Slattery and wife hurried to their rooms, and refused to leave them or be seen by anyone regarding the outrage. The crowd reached the hotel very shortly after the object of their hatred was safely tucked away in bed, and for some time Market Street from Eleventh to Twelfth was almost impassable. The police formed here again, and the mob was effectually dispersed and rapidly dissipated itself in various directions. The police remained around the hotel for a short time after this, but it was soon seen that nothing more would occur during the night, and they were withdrawn.

"Policemen Clements and Dorris of the Twentieth district, divided between themselves nearly all the injuries that were distributed. Clements had a long gash on the left side of his head, and Dorris had his finger severely cut by flying glass. At the Hahnemann Hospital the doctors stated there could be no doubt but that Clements' wound was inflicted by a shot, as it could have been caused neither by glass nor a flying stone. Both men have very slight injuries, and will be on duty as usual to-day."

And what freethinker will have the audacity to defend the Catholic church after such a diabolical outrage in this year of 1897.

Referring especially to the infamous attack of Slattery by the Roman Catholics, the North American continues:

"That anyone, whatever be his views, should be treated in such a cowardly and disgraceful manner as was the ex-priest Slattery in this city on Monday night, reflects no credit on the community. Rather does it hold Philadelphia to the scorn and contempt of her sister cities for her failure to uphold law and order and protect every person in his or her rights. There can be no excuse for such riotous scenes, and the police would have been justified in this case in using every means within their power to preserve order in the hall where Slattery spoke, and to afford him safe conduct to his hotel upon the conclusion of his lecture. It was in Philadelphia that the rights of personal freedom and free speech first found voice in the precious Declaration of Independence, and above all things, it should not be in Philadelphia, at least, and at this late day, that these rights should be allowed to be infringed on with impunity. Those to whom Slattery's opinions are distasteful are under no obligation to attend the meetings which he holds. His views are not forced upon any one's hearing. He does not proclaim them on the highway. This is a free country, and the right of free speech must be upheld. The occurrence of Monday night in a city of order and brotherly love was most discreditable, and for the sake of our fair name and credit, it must not occur again. Slattery must be protected to the utmost of our power."

PROFANITY.

A HOMELY ELUCIDATION OF A PRINCIPLE.

A clergyman out for a walk had his pious meditations disturbed by a ploughman who, oblivious of the good man's approach, "cussed a blue streak," as the saying is, at his horses. After the preacher, as in duty bound, had reproved him, he said: "Now, look it here, parson—don't be so hard on me. You pray a great deal, and I swear a good deal; but neither of us means anything by it."

I have seen one jolly, friendly man approach another, slap him soundly on the back and say: "I'm damn glad to see you." Now, if a pure spirit who had taken on the material—who never had been familiar with earthly conditions before, and was just learning to express ideas in our language—had heard this word used for the first time in this way, he would naturally conclude that the word "damn" was a synonym for "very," because the man evidently meant that he was very glad to see his friend. The earthly ignorant could not see any evil in its use. If it were always used in this sense, I am not ingenious enough to prove that it is evil. It is not in outward expression that evil exists, but in the condition of mind which labors to express itself in words and deeds. One only capable of judging by "outward appearances" would say the use of this word of violence betokens a corrupt mind, but nothing is plainer than that the condition of mind expressed in those words was that of pure affection. Whether it was expressed gracefully is another question.

But we cannot get around this, that these "cuss words" had their origin in the endeavor to express a violent, vicious, ungodly mental condition, and they are not well calculated to express any other. A man may use them innocently and with no evil intention, for good purposes, as one may chop wood with a battle axe which was invented for cutting off men's heads; but it is not well adapted for the purpose, and if one is diligent to give meet and fitting expression to a gentle mind he will avoid their use. The ungracefulness—the uncouthness—the clumsiness of profane expressions will jar on his nerves as the filing of a saw vexes the musician.

That these profane oaths are peculiarly adapted to express a vulgar mind is recognized universally, and if they be used on occasion to announce friendliness, as a general thing it is the vicious who is most prone to use them, and it is when in a vicious spasm that the ordinarily gentle man is disposed to their use.

Throwing over profanity the mantle of charity, we are yet compelled in reason to pay our tribute to the memory of Jesus who said: "Let your yea be yea, and your nay nay, for whatever is more than this is of evil."

J. T. MACDONALD.

San Francisco, Cal.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

"The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail $1. For sale at this office.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains helect ure by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

TO CONTRIBUTORS:—It is impossible to publish everything that comes to this office, however meritorious it may be, and no one should feel in the least offended because his (or her) article does not appear. Our space is limited, and we often deeply regret that certain articles are crowded out.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

C. E. Hubbard is puzzled to know why materializing mediums are "so backward about coming forward" to accept some of the published offers of large reward in money to any medium that will satisfactorily demonstrate materialization to be a fact.

Will C. Hodge, inspirational speaker, is open for engagement in any locality and on reasonable terms. Will assist in organizing societies and will attend funerals. Any parties or society desiring an advocate of practical Spiritualism can address him at No. 3 Elizabeth street, Chicago, Ill.

A. B. Miller writes from Canton, O.: "Mr. C. J. Barnes has just closed a successful week's engagement with us. Many have been convinced of the grand truth of immortality through the honest mediumship of Mr. Barnes, who is a gentleman in every respect. His address is 187 East Lynn street, Anderson, Ind. Mrs. Emma Archer follows Mr. Barnes this week—her fourth visit since Lake Brady Camp.

President H. D. Barrett passed through the city last week on his way to attend a meeting in St. Paul, Minn. On Tuesday of this week President Barrett and F. Corden White entertained the good Spiritualists of Rochester, Ind., the former with a lecture, and the latter with tests.

J. Brantley writes from Atlanta, Ga.: "I am a natural ward of the spirit-land, but have just lately awakened to a fuller knowledge than I ever had before. I have been living in the country, fifteen miles from the railroads, four years, and never read any works on Spiritualism in my life, but have been in positive communication and taught by mind and vision a great many mysteries of the spirit-life. Having been reared altogether in an orthodox environment, I tried to turn my experience into that channel, but could never do so. My friends in the world beyond only know what this great light and knowledge has cost me. I moved to this city several weeks ago and have attended two meetings of the society of Spiritualists. Imagine my surprise upon finding that I could harmonize every word and action of theirs much easier than I ever could the chantings of churchism. At the close of the meeting last night I asked for some printed theory of Spiritualism, and was given a copy of The Progressive Thinker. When I began reading it I was surprised to find in myself such a ready endorsement to its contents—especially the article on eating meats. I am a natural abstainer of meats, from infancy. It would give me more pleasure than anything in this world to have the full X-ray of the spirit-world shed its beaming light of joy and comfort into the hearts and minds of our unfortunate fellow-men, who are now groping in spiritual darkness the world over. I have the knowledge and when I get myself in better condition to obey I am sure that I can advance some facts that will greatly aid in spreading the light, especially as relates to communication with the 'Beautiful Beyond.'"

S. E. Panabaker writes from Payne, O.: "The list of officers of the First Spiritual Society of Payne, O.: O. E. Wineman, president; L. L. Bailey, vice-president; S. E. Panabaker, secretary; Mrs. S. E. Panabaker, treasurer; J. A. Ball, K. Vanderhoof, J. Evans, trustees. Mrs. J. A. Ball, W. Shields and John Venrick are good spiritual workers."

R. N. Wilcox writes from Avery, O.: "The interest in our lyceum continues unabated, and our members are rather on the increase. The Root Spiritual church has secured the services of our present pastor, Rev. F. D. Dunakin, for another year from the middle of April next. We had a deep and very interesting discourse on Occult Science, on Sunday, the 14th inst., 1:30 p. m., the time at which services will be conducted for the coming year. It is admitted by our church and many of the outsiders, that the longer he speaks to us, the deeper and more original are his discourses."

Moses Hull has, as yet, no appointments to take the place of his cancelled engagements for April and May. He talks some of going West and delivering a few courses of lectures in Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, during those months. Those in need of his services en route or in either of the above mentioned States, should address him at once at Stoneham, Mass.

W. Arlington writes in praise of the work of the Brockway family at Salt Lake City, Utah. Matters had come to a bad pass as a result of the doings of certain tricksters posing as mediums, gathering a harvest of shekels from silly dupes, and then slipping away to parts unknown, for fresh forage. The Brockways' good work has excited much interest, convinced unbelievers and doubters, and confirmed Spiritualists in their knowledge. They gave some most remarkable tests. Spiritualism is on the gain in Salt Lake City.

A. Y. Gordon, 120 E. Fremont street, Massillon, Ohio, is president of the First Spiritual and Religious Association of that city; Miss Vina Gordon, secretary; Mr. Hardgrove, treasurer.

Nicholas Roney, of Wichita, Kansas, is trying to awaken an interest there by extending the circulation of The Progressive Thinker. He sends in twenty-five additional subscribers.

Prof. C. L. Clark, platform test medium, can be addressed at 269 Fulton street.

Dr. P. S. George, secretary, writes from Lincoln, Neb.: "Mr. Amae Wheeler is again in our midst holding seances for trumpet manifestations, independent slate-writing and materialization, and is giving the very best satisfaction. Mr. Wheeler is a wonderful medium for physical manifestation and always leaves a good impression wherever he visits and holds seances. I wish that all searchers after truth could have the opportunity of witnessing some of the manifestations given by him. His address is General Delivery, Lincoln, Neb. Enclose stamp when writing. Mr. Wheeler will attend the Florida camp, and parties en route can engage him for one or two nights for seances."

Prof. Lockwood, whose lectures in the East upon "The Spiritual Forces of Nature," are making for him a national reputation, is also preparing the manuscript for a treatise to be called "The Infidelity of Modern Ecclesiasticism a Menace to the American Civilization." This pamphlet embodying a research into ancient mythologies from which, Prof. Lockwood claims, the Christian schism was forged; also the demonstrations of modern science which are antipodal to schisms predicated upon faith, will be arranged in that forcible way to attract the attention of the scholar and thinker. To those who believe in thinkable data, this treatise will be as a searchlight, and to supernaturalism, a thunderbolt. The pamphlet will be published in June next. No argument like it has ever before been offered to the reading public. The price will be 25 cents.

A. W. Belden writes from Lake Helen, Florida: "We are basking in the warm Southern sun. This camp is bound to be a success, facing a beautiful chain of lakes, high rolling land, lightly timbered with tall pines. Buildings are being built in a good and substantial manner, and for its age it is a good start. Quite an influx of people now from the Eastern States."

M. F. Hammond writes that there is now quite a revival of Spiritualism at Findlay, O., as a result of the vituperation, abuse and overdone sensationalism of one "Chaplain Bolles," who abuses every secret society and every church but his own, and especially the Spiritualists. As a result of his efforts, many who formerly spoke contemptuously of Spiritualism, now express contempt for him, and are inquiring about it in earnest.

A. S. G. writes: "Mr. W. H. Barrett, of Washington, D. C., lectured Friday night, February 12, in South Bend, Ind., and at the conclusion of the lecture an organization was effected under the name of the First Spiritualist Society of South Bend. The following officers were chosen: S. E. Snoke, president; Mrs. Hannah J. Van Liew, vice-president; Edward Jones, secretary; J. C. Knoblock, treasurer; John H. Leslie, O. D. Fellows, Mrs. G. W. Lee, Charles Gans and Mrs. Lobdell, trustees. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws and report at the next meeting. Soon as a permanent location can be secured regular meetings will be held. It is a wonder that such a large, thriving city as South Bend has not been awake to the importance of an organization before now. There are many good people of advanced thought in the place, and it seems that all that was wanting was some brave leader to make the first advance."

W. H. H. Tucker writes from Streator, Ill.: "I do not see how any true Spiritualist can do without The Progressive Thinker; it contains so much that the inner man craves, and opens up the way to higher and grander ideals. I hope you may succeed in reaching the 1,000,000 mark in your circulation. There is not a Spiritualist in the whole of America but what spends ten times the price of the year's subscription The Progressive Thinker would cost them for reading matter that never can fill the place of the golden gems of thought that are to be found in your paper each week. I look forward to its coming with delight. Long may it live."

Mrs. J. L. Biddle writes from Spring Valley, Wis., that owing to untoward circumstances, "until recently Spiritualism and Spiritualists were ridiculed and sneered at by both saint and sinner, the church especially rejoicing that it had forever crushed Spiritualism out of existence. The few survivors, not in the least daunted, waited; for well we knew, 'Truth crushed to earth shall rise again,' and so it has through the mediumship of Mrs. Catherine Woods, of Minneapolis, Minn. As a clairvoyant and test medium the writer believes she has no equal, and to a great many she has truly demonstrated the immortality of the soul. Mrs. Woods, when under control, gives names and description correctly in nearly every instance, giving as many as twenty names of departed friends to one person."

Mrs. J. C. English writes: "Prenatal conditions are the foundation of character, good or bad. That this law is understood is evinced by its application to the animal and vegetable kingdoms in which it has been thoroughly tested, and yet, strange to say, no attempt has been made to apply it to the human race. We want fewer and better children. We have too many unwelcome, come-by-chance children; here is where the crime commences—a great crime against the rising generation. Our girls and boys marry without any preparation whatever for this the most sacred act of their lives. Using the means and devising ways to destroy the new life is murder, whether they succeed or not, and this is implanted in the nature of the child, which is no more to blame for its moral defects than its physical. Our educational system is defective—we come out of school educated fools on many of the most important subjects. Parents and teachers should early teach children the laws of their own being, also laws of health. As it is, we do not know enough to enjoy good health. Temperance in all things should be taught and practiced. We must educate, educate, educate on this subject of right generation and right living. Our propensity of flesh-eating is a fruitful source of crime."

M. H. Wefel writes: "The Spiritualists of Ft. Wayne have just closed an engagement of two months with that eloquent trance and test medium, E. W. Sprague, and the result of his labors has been felt, not only in our society, but by the churches. Our society has grown wonderfully during his engagement, forty-five names having been added to our membership list and many have begun to think seriously on these spiritual things. E. W. Sprague and his good wife are tireless workers; his lectures are plain, logical and of the highest order. His tests are given to the point and very convincing. During the two months he has read some two hundred and fifty individuals and in all this work his failures were very few—not more than four complete failures. The First Spiritual Society has employed Brother Sprague three different times during the last fifteen months, and we all feel that we must have him come again. No society can make a mistake, in my judgment, in employing this grand worker, for he loves Spiritualism, and nothing seems too great a task. We have with us at present Geo. F. Perkins, of Chicago, and the society has been fortunate in securing his services."

A Spiritualist writes from Battle Creek, Mich., that that beautiful city of nearly 20,000 inhabitants "has no Spiritualist meetings at all this winter. We have one speaker, Dr. P. T. Johnson, who has lived here for a number of years, who has given us many beautiful and instructive lectures. Too much cannot be said of this good old Spiritualist worker, Dr. Johnson. While Dr. Johnson has done us a great deal of good, we would like to hear other speakers. We don't expect them to do like the Doctor—speak for nothing—but we do think they ought to speak for little less than some of them do. It would seem to some that it was the dollars they were after, instead of spreading the truth, which is true Spiritualism that is so much needed all over our land."

C. E. D. Staples writes from Biddeford, Me.: "Have seven other papers on Spiritualism every week, besides magazines of that nature from all over the world, so have a chance to judge of their merits but can conscientiously say I receive the most solid enjoyment from The Progressive Thinker, of all my reading matter."

Mrs. C. Sherer writes from Galion, Ohio: "Not too much stress can be urged for honest, truthful, pure and upright lives. Then, and not until then, will our cause prosper. Mediums should not be satisfied because they can give tests. It implies a sacred mission. It is true, exalted spirits sometimes come and use an imperfect instrument to convey messages to those on earth. It is also true that an instrument out of tune cannot bring forth a harmonious melody. It is necessary that mediums should live sober, temperate lives—pray much to attract harmonious influences."

Dr. J. M. Temple writes: "I have been on the sick list for the past three months, and was obliged to disappoint many societies, but now I am able to go to work again, and am now open to engagements all through the South. I am now located in New Orleans for this month or until after the Mardi Gras. The first day I arrived they had a small meeting owing to the weather, I suppose. I gave some tests, and I find that is what the people want. I am going to open a hall here and I am going to hold meetings because the people here want proof—the philosophy of Spiritualism is all right—the phenomena is all right, too—they go hand in hand. I would like to make engagements for the Eastern camps this summer. Address 834 Barrone street, New Orleans, La."

Enos Churchill writes from Hollister, Cal.: "I am a regular subscriber for The Progressive Thinker, and my wife calls it our Bible, and we take extra pains to lend it. Its results in part are demonstrated by six subscribers who will lend their papers as we have ours. We have an organized spiritual society here in Hollister, meeting every Sunday at 3 p. m. We were recently favored with a visit from Sister A. L. Miller, who gave us a good inspirational address; also her control gave good tests, that were recognized, each and every one of them, at both afternoon and evening meetings. Sister Miller's daughter, Mrs. E. M. Avery, came with her and gave us a grand exhibition of the powers of her controls upon the piano, which was highly enjoyed by the audience. Mrs. R. I. Johnson, the president of our society, is also a medium of no small merit. Our members are not afraid to advocate the truths of Spiritualism, and its influence is beginning to awaken quite an interest among agnostics and church members."

The Band of Harmony will meet on February 25, with Mrs. LeSeur, 1565 West Monroe street (instead of Mrs. Lewis, Ashland avenue, as previously announced). Take Madison street cable or Lake street elevated and get out at Homan avenue. On March 4, the Band of Harmony will be with Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, Rogers Park, as previously announced.

James M. Peet writes from Allegheny, Pa.: "The Allegheny Spiritual Society, South and East Diamond streets (Grand Army Hall), is certainly in a very prosperous condition. During December and January the membership increased more than thirty, mainly through the remarkable demonstrations of the truths of Spiritualism given through the mediumship of Mrs. J. Crilly, the well-known test medium. She is now in her third successive month and the interest is unabated."

W. E. Bonney writes: "Considerable interest has been manifested in the proposed missionary bureau, and I am in receipt of a number of letters favoring the plan. There is a great need of some such organization as hundreds of towns and villages never receive a visit from a spiritual worker, and yet good audiences might be obtained at any of them. All it needs is a little concerted effort on the part of workers and interested people, and a regular meeting might soon be arranged in each locality at least once a month. I have recently moved and my present address is 21 West Fifth street, Kansas City, Mo. Am open for engagements at very reasonable terms."

Dr. Jones will answer calls to lecture. Address him in care of Lock Box 345, Greenup, Ill.

B. F. Schmid writes: "The lyceum lessons are good, and I know we shall be greatly assisted and benefited by them."

Prof. W. M. Lockwood will lecture at New Bedford, Mass., during February. He goes from there to Norwich, Conn., where his address will be No. 21 Fairmount street. The Professor has been re-engaged in Boston for December next, and Philadelphia for January and February, 1898.

Theodore Kindlinger writes from Freeport, Ill., speaking well of Mrs. James Goff as a clairvoyant, psychometrist and test medium. She has awakened great interest among the best people.

Dr. Isaac S. Lee has established a new society at Little Rock, Arkansas.

Frank T. Ripley can be engaged for the Sundays of March. Address him at Marcellus, Mich., where he seems to be giving satisfaction.

H. Rice writes: "We would like to watch the history of the doctors who had the innocent Schlatter flogged; let them be listed. Christians (?) who scourged in jealousy a brother for more perfectly following their Christ! We predict that this crowning crime of the century will we wiped out with their blood, while Schlatter's name will glorify history."

W. E. Tobey writes: "The Progressive Thinker is certainly all its name implies—progressive in everything, and has doubtless led thousands to thinking a bit for themselves. We have with us at Little Rock, a noble worker, Dr. Isaac S. Lee, whose efforts I hope may result in the organization of our scattered forces."

John W. Ring writes from Galveston, Texas: "Our society here is pleasing us very much in its growth. Last month we added twelve to our membership. All hail the success of right and its advocate, The Progressive Thinker."

Mrs. L. Comers can be addressed at 79 Hammond street, Chicago, Ill.

(Continued on page 8.)

GLANCING OVER SPIRITUALIST EXCHANGES.

Mrs. M. T. Longley claims that despite its advantages of fine climate and fertile soil, it is hard for a man who has not already a competency to get a living in California. She is right. The great health resort of the future will not be confined to that section either. Several have returned from there to the East and regained their health.

Mrs. R. S. Lillie lately went for Dr. Farrand, who has not treated Spiritualism fairly in the pulpit. Of course she came out ahead, for she has truth on her side.

You need not be surprised if some of the new aspirants for honors among the Spiritualist papers, has an attack of "spasms" in the region of finances.

W. J. Colville said in his lecture in Brooklyn, N. Y., that the Zend Avesta, Vedas and Bible can well be studied together. He should have added thereto the principles of evolution by Darwin, and Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad." The middle of March Mr. Colville will resume his labors in Brooklyn.

Charles Dewbarn has had some interesting experiences with his unseen teachers. Mr. Dawbarn resides at San Leandro, Cal., and is the leading mind of that town; he keeps its morals in repair—we presume a difficult job.

Mrs. F. A. Logan, (reduced to prose) says: "Old, call me not old, though gray, and wrinkles on my face, hands thin, and eyes all dim, and shoulders out of place." She is only 73, and resides at Alameda, Cal.

Mrs. Elizabeth L. Watson, who is somewhat noted on the Pacific coast as a lecturer, was lately given a grand reception at the residence of G. M. Bernard, San Francisco, Cal.

Our readers seldom hear from Charles Dawbarn, on account of the fact that his time is almost solely occupied in keeping the California Spiritualists in the straight and narrow path, and when he gets through in instructing them in a measure, he will have something to say in this, the leading Spiritualist paper.

"It is our moral duty to convince ourselves and to teach our children that health and religion are at one," says Solon Lauer of San Diego, Cal. Right, brother; Religion is in harmony with truth, providing it, too, is true.

The trustees of the Veteran Spiritualists' Home, Waverly, Mass., hereby appeal to all benevolent Spiritualists to unite in furnishing the Home with appropriate furniture. There is most urgent need of crockery, chairs, tables, bedroom sets, etc. Any person or society having useful articles that they would like to donate to the Home for the worthy cause to which we hope to dedicate it, can communicate with either Simeon Snow, 17 Bigelow street, Cambridgeport, or N. P. Smith, 179 Tremont street, Boston, and the trustees will thankfully acknowledge all gifts.

Mrs. Lillie's lectures and Mr. Lillie's songs are creating a good deal of interest in California. They work well together in those two departments.

At Mrs. Tuley's materializing seance, though dressed throughout in black, spirits dressed in white came out. She has been holding seances in San Francisco, Cal.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lowe Watson is opposed to the wearing of "black" as a token of mourning. Why mourn at all when "death" is simply a change.

E. W. Gould says that "if Spiritualism is true, and as easily demonstrated as we claim, it is of too much value to the human family for its devotees to allow it to be left unprotected in the hands of the uneducated, the unprincipled, and those who would make merchandise of it."

At a seance held by Mrs. Dr. Fulton Tuley in San Francisco, Cal., forms came out with attending "stars of light."

The "test conditions" of the materializing circles are often no test conditions at all, but only safeguards to prevent the exposure of the tricksters.

Mrs. F. A. Logan is now in her 73rd year, and is ripe for the harvest. She has worked faithfully for Spiritualism.

Theo. F. Price is one of the pioneers of Spiritualism, though till within recent years his field of labor has been largely in the West, though he has spent some time in Canada and Old Mexico, working in his chosen field; though part of the time he filled the duties of correspondent for various newspapers. During the early years of his career as speaker and medium, while traveling over Missouri, Illinois and other Western States, the prairies of Kansas, the Rocky Mountain towns, as well as cities distributed along the shores of the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers, he was often brought into contact with Warren Chase, E. V. Wilson, "the old breaking plow," and others who have gone to reap the reward of their labors in the higher life.

Mrs. R. S. Lillie has been explaining the "Bible and Spiritualism" to a society in San Francisco, Cal.

This year is prolific in starting Spiritualist papers, notwithstanding the fact that even the old established ones have made no money. Those who have the money to spend will receive much added experience before the year closes, while the printer and paper dealer will get the money.

W. J. Colville took for the subject of one of his discourses, "Rays of Light from Zoroaster, Buddha and Christ." It was said to be highly interesting.

The spirits of ascended workers were present at a late reception given to Mrs. Elizabeth Lowe Watson in California. Of course they were there in force.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Newman, editor of the Philosophical Journal, lectured lately for the First Spiritual Union of San Diego, Cal. He is large on the rostrum even if he publishes a small paper. We have no doubt but what he was eloquent. If not, it was his own fault.

Mr. Frank Walker is State Agent of the N. S. A., in New York. His address is at Hamburg. He is an efficient worker.

Mrs. Dr. Fulton-Tuley is creating something of a stir in California as a materializing medium. A mother and her babe are said to have appeared.

John Brown, Sr., says "the sweetest sympathy in life, is to know there is no dead," and "no grander glory for us than to know that the so-called dead live."

E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of many excellent books, now residing at Los Angeles, Cal., says that "minds of a spiritual type read Swedenborg, Andrew Jackson Davis and others, and are able to see much that is true and good in them, although they may perceive many imperfections." Right, brother, perfection exists nowhere on this earth, among mortals, but imperfections exist everywhere. Col. Ingersoll even thinks that divine providence is imperfect.

During the month of March E. W. Sprague will labor as a missionary for the N. S. A. in New York. Other States can, if they desire, secure his services.

Spiritualism and Liberalism are not properly distinct; the two are better than one.

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

SPIRIT OF PERSECUTION.

Let us not forget, in the meanwhile, that the Protestant and Greek Churches have been, and the latter still is, animated by the same spirit of persecution as the Church of Rome. Organize a priesthood of any denomination and invest it with authority, and rule, and it forthwith becomes arbitrary, intolerant, oppressive and persecuting. The measure of its ferocity being everywhere and always the measure of its power.

SAVAGERY.

The savagery of the Protestant religionist, toward the close of the sixteenth century, was just as atrocious as that of the Roman Catholic at the same period; and the witch-persecutions in Scotland rivalled the worst excesses of the Inquisition in Germany and Spain.

SPIRITUAL MEDIUMS.

There can be very little doubt, I think, that the poor women who were so remorselessly tortured and murdered by the Presbyterian Church in Scotland, were spiritual mediums; some clairvoyant, some clairaudient, others endowed with the gift of healing, and others liable to fall into trance, and to be controlled by intelligences of various grades and qualities; some good and some evil.

FORMS OF MEDIUMSHIP.

Now all these forms of mediumship are carefully enumerated and defined in a Book, which Presbyterians, like other Christian denominations, profess to venerate; these being the words of the Apostle Paul, which I will quote from the Greek Testament: "The manifestation of the spirit has been given to each one for profit; for to the one the word of wisdom is given through the spirit, but to another the word of knowledge, according to the same spirit; and to another the gifts of healings, in the same spirit; and to another working of miracles; and to another prophecy; and to another discerning of spirits, and to another, kinds of tongues; and to another interpretation of tongues."

SPIRIT AND THE HOLY GHOST.

Now it is important to observe that the word employed to signify "spirit," in this exposition of mediumship, is pneuma only; whereas, when the Holy Ghost is spoken of, pneuma is spelt with a Capital P, and is qualified by the adjective Hagion. In the English version, however, spirit is erroneously spelt with a capital S, thus changing the whole purport of the passage; which is, really, as complete and admirable a recension of the different phases of mediumship, by one who was himself a remarkable medium, as could have been written even at the present hour.

WHAT THE CLERGY DID.

Well, with this Book in their hands—a Book containing such a prophecy as this: "I will pour out My spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy; your old men shall dream dreams; your young men shall see visions, and also upon the servants and upon the hand-maids in those days will I pour out My spirit:"—what did the Scottish clergy do? They laid violent hands upon every medium, and upon every person suspected of being a medium, and after subjecting them to the most fiendish tortures, they inflicted upon them an atrociously cruel death.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

HOMES IN THE FUTURE.

You speak sometimes of "The homes not made with hands," and therein touch one of the great powers possessed in part by you to-day, but consciously exercised much more wisely by those on the other side of life—the mighty force of will, the concentration, manifestation of energy!—and as you think of those homes not made with hands, so you may think of the beautiful pictures not made by brush and pigment; so you may see the great temples, the glorious superstructures with all the splendor of chiseling, of the music and poetry which are the living expression of the glorious thoughts which have dwelt in the minds of men; of the beauteous scenes which, by their power of spirit, men can make manifest, so that all who see can rejoice.

MUSICAL MANIFESTATIONS.

The soul which here, perchance, has been full of the power of musical manifestation can there delight in all varieties of instruments, if such instruments are desired, capable of producing music far surpassing anything that the most skillful or gifted players of earth can evoke. Sometimes those specially favored here, catch sweet echoes of these divine harmonies, and they can form some faint idea of the glorious music thus realized in the realms "beyond."

ON THE OTHER SIDE.

Looking at the scenes of to-day depicted by means of painting, you know that sometimes words have failed you—thoughts could not be expressed because the instrument at your command was inadequate; on that other side, if you will, you shall find the power to make these glorious paintings speak for you in living language, rousing response in the consciousness of those whom you would address, not simply falling upon dull ears, not simply scarcely touching the slightly awakened mind, but going with penetrating power to that inner chamber, and rousing there the living thought of conscious intelligence until you touch the real man and the real woman.

POOR, TIRED HOUSEWIFE.

Take the case of the poor, tired housewife, the homely mother whose time here has been filled with much care; she is taken to the "Home not made with hands," that home of hers which is in accordance with her ideal of what a place of rest should be, the house she has thought about in her moments snatched from labor, when her hands have been tired and her brain weary because of the doing of many deeds; she has had some ideal thought, some conception of a house which should be hers, of a home she should enter in that other life, and the angel messengers—they who welcome her on the other side—take her to just the place she has built up by her thought, built by the desire of her heart, built in accordance with what seemed to her truest and best, and if her thoughts find no large experience or consciousness, she can fill her time at first by the performance of some old accustomed duties; she can, if she will, do what she was wont to do on earth, until she is awakened to the deeper conviction and the truer aspiration.

"Mediumship and Its Development, and How to Mesmerize to Assist Development." By W. H. Bach. Especially useful to learners who seek to know and utilize the laws of mediumship and development, and avoid errors. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

From The Mystical World, London, England.

What is called Christian Science is the operation of a strong mind over a weaker one, by this means curing the patient of an imaginary sickness.

Nature always strips her foliage to prepare for the ice and snows of winter.

When the scientist tries to investigate spirit realm, he rises heavily, like the flying-fish, only to fall back to his native element.

In material life the lesser intellect always admires the greater, and is willing to follow like a lamb led to the slaughter.

Never put your own interpretation on occult writings, but try to understand them as written, for an Occultist never writes unless he has something to say.

When man finds contentment there is nothing on earth that man wants. Thus he is positively outside of all possible temptation.

Some men who intensely love a truth in which they are interested, do not hesitate to lie in confirmation of its wonders.

For what the world calls love, a man will shoot a rival and cut his own throat. Love never injured even a worm.

Property would seldom be destroyed by fire if insurance did not offer a premium on carelessness and dishonesty.

Few are seeking the true life. The many want popularity and the two never got together.

The wise make good use of to-day and keep an eye on the morrow, and rarely turn to the past.

From Light, London, Eng.

IS LIFE TRAGIC?

Perhaps it is the keen competition, or the demand for higher pressure and swifter speed, or the rise and spread of a spirit of doubt—or, pechance, all of these together; but, whatever the cause, it is certain that, in many directions, the feeling is creeping over us that life is deepening in seriousness, and is, to speak plainly, becoming tragic: and multitudes hear that as the dominant note, as the old year draws to a close.

ACCESSION OF SERIOUSNESS.

Perhaps it is so, and perhaps it is good for us that it should be so; for, really, if we glance over the whole field, it is obvious that, on the whole, we need a very considerable accession of seriousness. The frivolity and utter foolishness of multitudes, especially in great cities, no one can fail to bring into the great reckoning; and Dr. Parker may not be entirely wrong after all in saying that some such catastrophe and scourge as a tremendous war, with all its sorrow and suffering, may be necessary to pull us together and make us feel and think.

MISTS OF FOREBODINGS.

Many, over whose mind the mists of forebodings are gathering, perhaps unconsciously attract them as the result of their shrinking from the world's mad foolishness: or, keenly sensitive to the world's agony which looks so ghastly in folly's glaring light, exaggerate, as unconsciously, life's seemingly tragic side.

THE PROFESSIONAL PESSIMIST, who hugs to his bosom his gospel of despair as though it were the guarantee of a deathless hope, flourishes the black flag in our faces as though he loved it. He holds that we are all going to the bad, that life is an almost intolerable nuisance, and that an arrangement for securing a kind of co-operative suicide would be the best way to end the huge blunder and absurdity; and, not long ago, some zealous evangelists really began the campaign, after sufficiently dramatic fashion. But the human race, with very few exceptions, declines to follow: and the preachers of despair go on living—perhaps with a hidden ray of hope that something better may turn up after all—or perhaps out of curiosity, to see what really will become of them.

LONGFELLOW'S WORDS.

For instance; does not everything turn upon the question, 'What is a human life?' Or we might put our question in this form—'What is a human being here for?' That saying of Longfellow's may be hackneyed, but it is immensely true, and it seems increasingly true:

Not enjoyment and not sorrow
Is our destined end or way,
But to act, that each to-morrow
Find us further than to-day.

LIFE NOT WORTH LIVING.

Standing alone, apart from the uses of discipline and education and especially apart from life beyond, it may really be often doubtful whether life is worth living. There are some lives that are obviously not. It is useless to disguise it. The pain so far outdoes the pleasure, the burdens so far outweigh the blessings, that no one could mistake the reckoning.

LIFE RIGHTLY UNDERSTOOD.

But, in any case, life, rightly understood, may be worth having. If things go well, life is worth living for its delights. If things go ill, the wise and resolute spirit can nearly always turn the stones into bread. But if life be lifted up to a region where we talk neither of its going well nor going ill, but of a life ripening in experience and gaining force and endurance, or, higher still, of a life of simple service, then where can the doubt come in? Even on the pessimist's own showing—that life upon the earth is not a blessing but a curse—it is something to be thankful for, that one can spend a few years here in making the best of a bad business, in alleviating the inevitable misery, in saving some sources of happiness from the wreck.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

A new edition of "Three Sevens," by the Phelons, is just issued. The May Arena says: "The gist of such books as Dr. Phelon's 'Three Sevens,' and other works descriptive of or alluding to the various occult societies, which seem to have existed for ages, has never, until recently, been said so openly and plainly that 'he who runs may read.'" Cloth $1.25, postpaid. For sale at this office.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

FIFTY YEARS IN THE CHURCH OF ROME.

A Remarkable Book.

This is a remarkable work by FATHER CHINIQUY. It exposes even to the minutest details the corruption that exists in the Church of Rome. It is a work of 832 pages, and should be read as a matter of history by every Spiritualist. The following is a partial list of the table of contents:

CHAPTER I. The Bible and the Priest of Rome.

CHAPTER II. My first School-days at St. Thomas—The Monk and Celibacy.

CHAPTER III. The Confession of Children.

CHAPTER IV. The Shepherd whipped by his Sheep.

CHAPTER V. The Priest, Purgatory, and the poor Widow's Cow.

CHAPTER VI. Festivities in a Parsonage.

CHAPTER VII. Preparation for the First Communion—Initiation to Idolatry.

CHAPTER VIII. The First Communion.

CHAPTER IX. Intellectual Education in the Roman Catholic College.

CHAPTER X. Moral and [illegible] in the Roman Catholic College.

CHAPTER XI. Protestant Children in the Convents and Nunneries of Rome.

CHAPTER XII. Rome and Education—Why does the Church of Rome hate the Common Schools of the United States, and want to destroy them?—Why does she object to the reading of the Bible in the Schools?

CHAPTER XIII. Theology of the Church of Rome: its Anti-Social and Anti-Christian Character.

CHAPTER XIV. The Vow of Celibacy.

CHAPTER XV. The Impurities of the Theology of Rome.

CHAPTER XVI. The Priest of Rome and the Holy Fathers; or, how I swore to give up the Word of God to follow the word of Men.

CHAPTER XVII. The Roman Catholic Priesthood, or Ancient and Modern Idolatry.

CHAPTER XVIII. Nine Consequences of the Dogma of Transubstantiation—The old Paganism under a Christian name.

CHAPTER XIX. Vicarage, and Life at St. Charles, Rivierre Boyer.

CHAPTER XX. Papineau and the Patriots in 1833—The burning of "Le Canadien" by the Curate of St. Charles.

CHAPTER XXI. Grand Dinner of the Priests—The Maniac Sister of Rev. Mr. Perras.

CHAPTER XXII. I am appointed Vicar of the Curate of Charlesbourgh—The Piety, Lives and Deaths of Fathers Bedard and Perras.

CHAPTER XXIII. The Cholera Morbus of 1834—Admirable courage and self-denial of the Priests of Rome during the epidemic.

CHAPTER XXIV. I am named a Vicar of St. Roch, Quebec City—The Rev. Mr. Tetu—Tertullian—General Cargo—The Seal Skins.

CHAPTER XXV. Simony—Strange and sacrilegious traffic in the so called Body and Blood of Christ—Enormous sums of Money made by the sale of Masses—The Society of Three Masses abolished and the Society of one Mass established.

CHAPTER XXVI. Continuation of the trade in Masses.

CHAPTER XXVII. Quebec Marine Hospital—The first time I carried the "Bon Dieu" (the wafer god) in my vest pocket—The Grand Oyster Soiree at Mr. Buteau's—The Rev. L. Parent and the "Bon Dieu" at the Oyster Soiree.

☞ We have not space in this notice of Father Chiniquy's work to give the heads of all the Chapters. Those omitted are of especial value. The following, however, are of thrilling interest:

CHAPTER LIII. The Immaculate Conception of the Virgin Mary.

CHAPTER LIV. The Abomination of Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER LV. The Ecclesiastical Retreat—Conduct of the Priests—The Bishop Forbids Me to Distribute the Bible.

CHAPTER LVI. Public Acts of Simony—Thefts and Brigandage of Bishop O'Regan—General Cry of Indignation—I determine to resist him to his face—He employs Mr. Spink again to send me to Gaol, and he fails—Drags me as a Prisoner to Urbana in the Spring of 1856 and fails again—Abraham Lincoln defends me—My dear Bible becomes more than ever my Light and my Counselor.

CHAPTER LVII. Bishop O'Regan sells the Parsonage of the French Canadians of Chicago, pockets the money, and turns them out when they come to complain—He determines to turn me out of my Colony and send me to Kahokia—He forgets it next day and publishes that he has interdicted me—My People send a Deputation to the Bishop—His Answers—The Sham Excommunication by three drunken Priests.

CHAPTER LVIII. Address from my People, asking me to remain—I am again dragged as a prisoner by the Sheriff to Urbana—Abraham Lincoln's anxiety about the issue of the Prosecution—My Distress—The Rescue—Miss Philomena Moffat sent by God to save me—Le Belle's Confession and Distress—My Innocence acknowledged—Noble Words and Conduct of Abraham Lincoln—The Oath of Miss Philomena Moffat.

CHAPTER LIX. A moment of Interruption in the Thread of my "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," to see how my sad Previsions about my defender, Abraham Lincoln, were to be realized—Rome the Implacable Enemy of the United States.

CHAPTER LX. The Fundamental Principles of the Constitution of the United States drawn from the Gospel of Christ—My first visit to Abraham Lincoln to warn him of the Plots I knew against his Life—The Priests circulate the news that Lincoln was born in the Church of Rome—Letter of the Pope to Jeff Davis—My last visit to the President—His admirable reference to Moses—His willingness to die for his Nation's Sake.

CHAPTER LXI. Abraham Lincoln a true man of God, and a true Disciple of the Gospel—The Assassination by Booth—The tool of the Priests—John Surratt's house—The Rendezvous and Dwelling Place of the Priests—John Surratt Secreted by the Priests after the murder of Lincoln—The Assassination of Lincoln known and published in the town three hours before its occurrence.

CHAPTER LXII. Deputation of two Priests sent by the People and the Bishops of Canada to persuade us to submit to the will of the Bishop—The Deputies acknowledge publicly that the Bishop is wrong and that we are right—For peace sake, I consent to withdraw from the contest on certain conditions accepted by the Deputies—One of the Deputies turns false to his promise, and betrays us, to be put at the head of my Colony—My last Interview with him and Mr. Brassard.

CHAPTER LXIII. Mr. Desaulnier is named Vicar General of Chicago to crush us—Our People more united than ever to defend their rights—Letters of the Bishops of Montreal against me, and my answer—Mr. Brassard forced, against his conscience, to condemn us—My answer to Mr. Brassard—He writes to beg my pardon.

CHAPTER LXIV. I write to the Pope Pius IX, and to Napoleon, Emperor of France, and send them the Legal and Public Documents proving the bad conduct of Bishop O'Regan—Grand Vicar Dunn sent to tell me of my victory at Rome, and the end of our trouble—I go to Dubuque to offer my submission to the Bishop—The peace sealed and publicly proclaimed by Grand Vicar Dunn the 28th of March, 1858.

CHAPTER LXV. Excellent testimonial from my Bishop—My Retreat—Grand Vicar Saurin and his assistant, Rev. M. Granger—Grand Vicar Dunn writes me about the new storm prepared by the Jesuits—Vision—Christ offers Himself as a Gift—I am forgiven, rich, happy and saved—Back to my people.

CHAPTER LXVI. The Solemn Responsibilities of my New Position—We give up the name of Roman Catholic to call ourselves Christian Catholics—Dismay of the Roman Catholic Bishops—My Lord Duggan, Coadjutor of St. Louis, hurried to Chicago—He comes to St. Anne to persuade the People to submit to his Authority—He is ignominiously turned out, and runs away in the midst of the Cries of the People.

CHAPTER LXVII. Bird's-eye View of the Principal Events from my Conversion to this day—My Narrow Escapes—The end of the Voyage through the Desert to the Promised Land.

Price, $2.25, Post-paid.

PRINCIPLES — OF — LIGHT AND COLOR.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D.

A truly great work in which the author exhibits the results of years of research, of a mind devoted to science and truth, highly gifted with keen intuitive insight and the psychic faculty of clairvoyance, enabling him to discover and elucidate facts and principles not observable to ordinary ken. The book is of very great interest and importance, bringing to light many important points concerning light and color in their mental and physical effects and their practical application in the conservation of health and the cure of disease and sickness. Its medical value is beyond estimation, and its teachings should be known by all.

Finely illustrated with cuts and colored plates.

PRICE, $5.00. POSTAGE, 36c.

For Sale at The Progressive Thinker Office.

STARNOS.

By Dr. Della E. Davis. A rosary of pearls, culled from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. Intended for the light and solace of every sorrowing and stricken heart. Price 50 cents.

OBSESSION.

How evil spirits influence mortals. By M. Faraday. P. 23. Price 10 cents.

GOSPEL OF NATURE.

By M. L. Sherman and Wm. F. Lyon. A book replete with Spiritual truths. Price $1.00.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll

On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1888. Price, 4 cents.

THE RIGHTS OF MAN.

By Thomas Paine. Parts I and II. Being an answer to Mr. Burke's attack upon the French Revolution. Post 8vo., 279 pages. Paper, 30 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

T. A. Marvin: Q. Will you please give me your opinion of thermal electricity as a curative agent, and whether atmospheric oxygen can be extracted from the air, and the organs of the body be oxygenated by an appliance invented and in use claiming the same?

(2) Will you inform me where I can procure a treatise on electricity as a means of cure?

A. (1) Electricity has not escaped the hands of the busy quacks, who reap a harvest out of every discovery in science, available for curative purposes. Electricity and magnetism have furnished rich fields, because the mystery surrounding them has taken the fancy of the deluded patients. The various forms of "medical batteries" and machines, warranted to cure all diseases, are on the same plane as Brandeth's pills and sarsaparilla. Such nostrums and devices go, as long as advertised, and then sink into desuetude.

The oxygen cure, vital air, etc., are of the same quack family. That electricity can be so used as to extract oxygen from the air, is true; that it can be made to saturate the body with it is quite another statement. It would be extremely harmful if it could do so. The appliances claiming to do this, like the electric belts, electric soles, and batteries to wear suspended from the neck, are all made in defiance of every known law of electricity.

Granting that all that is claimed is accomplished, it does not follow that health can be restored by such means. The animal organism is perfectly adjusted to the diluted atmosphere of oxygen in which it is bathed, and if the proportion was much greater the substance of the body would be consumed as in a flame. There are cases where currents of electricity are serviceable, but there is no reason to suppose that this agent is of value in general forms of disease, and experience has shown it to be of no appreciable worth.

The inventor or maker of the instrument that proposes to saturate the system with oxygen, must have been ignorant of the laws of electricity, for his "invention" is a burlesque on electric science. What the purchaser really buys in one of these instruments is confidence and imagination, and a round stick with strings for wires would be just as well, if the same imagination could be equally aroused.

The presence of electricity in the body in every case is a result and not a cause. It is a result of chemical changes, vital processes, by which it is liberated in company with heat. The nerve force is distinct and cannot be replaced by the electric current. The liberated heat from the burning of carbon and hydrogen in the body has a use, that of preserving the temperature, but the body being surrounded by moist air and the feet connected with the ground, the electricity at once escapes, and is as much a waste product as the excretions. In fact, its free escape is essential to health, so much so that, rubber overshoes which partially insulate the body, are injurious if constantly worn, and to place the bare feet in contact with the earth has so beneficial an effect that it has been magnified into a means of cure of all diseases.

(2) There is no book on electricity as a therapeutic agent, of any scientific value.

L. Kramer, Cleveland: Q. I read the answers to questions with a great deal of pleasure and profit, and intrude with the inquiry: What is the meaning of the words, body, mind, soul, spirit, ego?

(2) If God is good, and everything is a part of God, how can wrong and evil come from the same source?

(1) The threefold division of body, soul and spirit is of very ancient date. Philo represents man as a threefold being having a rational soul, an animal soul, and a body.

"Soul" in the Bible is an ambiguous term, sometimes given the meaning spirit, at others the body, and again as both. It is a meaningless and unnecessary term. Man is dual—a spirit and a body blended into a unit; the body related to the external world by the senses; the spirit taking cognizance through its spiritual perceptions. The spirit is the companion of the body; and as long as the two remain united it perceives the relations of the external world, through and by the aid of the corporeal senses.

The spirit is so concealed by the physical body and intimately blended with it, that even its existence is perceived with difficulty.

Aside from its being employed to designate a factor in this classification, the word soul may be applied to the immortal or spiritual forms, with its conscious intelligence, meaning all that being which leaves the body at death. It is synonymous with spirit.

The physical body is the garment of the spiritual while in earth-life. Mind is more difficult to define. It is the conscious, reasoning, intelligent principle, and is related directly to the spiritual being. The "ego," the "I," is the same thinking, spiritual consciousness.

(2) This question opens up the interminable discussion of the origin of good and evil, already broadly treated in these columns. The views taken are from the side of the prevalent ideas of God, which came into existence in remote ages of the past. If a child could be reared without the knowledge of this theology, and educated in science, it would be impossible to make him accept it as more than a myth. God may rule the universe, but the first step beyond the visible substance of things brings us into the presence of laws; that is, modes of action by which all force runs to its effects. These never change, and are by the constitution of things, unchangeable. Every cause reaches its effect by law—an absolutely certain groove which the moving energy follows. The balancing of all the expressions of force in the universe, would be perfect harmony and to the human apprehension the absolutely good. But this balance has not been attained. There is conflict, as of the forces of death overcoming those of life; the storm beats down the harvest; the tornado crushes the forest; the animal nature in man dominates over the spiritual; the brutal over the angelic. Good or evil, as we may call it, is the method of progress from the imperfect and antagonistic to the perfect and harmonious, and under the given conditions could not have been, could not be, different.

As we imperfectly understand this first step in causation—law—it is in vain we attempt to penetrate into the fathomless beyond out of which laws seemingly reach as expressions of an intelligent purpose. It is in vain we conjecture of the nature of the source from which the moving energy which sustains all, flows forth in infinite tide. This we may not, cannot know, yet we do know that the little bargaining gods who listen to and are changed by prayers; who take direct and active part in the affairs of the world and the interests of men, are purely creations of childish fancy and ignorance. We know that there are no gods who command temples to be built for them; who love sacrifice. We know that all systems of theology and religion founded on the belief in such gods are a mockery and a cheat.

Dr. A. S. Hinkley: Q. (1) Why, when a medium seems to advance in a knowledge of Spiritualism, the same spirit continues in control, without seeming to progress, who has so little knowledge of our language, with such a paucity of words, and speaks so brokenly that it is difficult to understand?

(2) Why cannot a control, who claims to have been a professional gentleman in this life, and seems bright and intelligent, use grammatical language and pronounce correctly, even if the medium is deficient in those qualifications by lack of early schooling?

A. So many conditions enter into the control determining its character, that general statements have to be modified for each instance. A spirit having control of a medium may, by some unrecognized law of sympathy, hold its position, regardless of the advancement in knowledge of that medium. It may do this, without intending harm, or recognizing that it is not right. This spirit has not learned that it is more practicable to impress thoughts than words, and is vainly struggling to make his personality distinct by directly impressing the words which express his ideas. To do this successfully, the control must be nearly perfect, and this the spirit cannot attain.

The same explanation applies in the second instance. In the first, a spirit ignorant of the best method of communication is holding back the advance of the medium. In the second a spirit well-informed finds that the instrument is deficient, and his messages suffer in phraseology. If this spirit could have automatic control over the medium, the messages would be given by words, not thoughts, and their wording would be perfect.

In the first instance the spirit should impress the medium with ideas, allowing her mind to clothe them with words, and in the second case the spirit should gain such perfect control that it can impress words instead of thoughts which to embody, the medium being uncultured, has no alternative but to use the limited vocabulary at her command. Water no more certainly takes the form of the vessel into which it is poured, than a spirit communication formulates in the mind of the recipient. And here is illustrated the necessity of culture, of spiritual attainments, of purity of life in those who would transmit the thoughts of spirit intelligences.

R. M. Foster: Q. If one finds it difficult to control himself, would it not be better to retire from the world and live the life of a recluse?

A. There are two states in which all the virtues may exist—a passive and an active. A man may not do an unjust act; he may never utter a falsehood, he may not be cruel, yet he has small credit if he has not acted justly, truthfully, mercifully. He may exist in a passive state, and while doing nothing bad, do nothing good. The virtues exist, but in a latent form; they are asleep, and the individual is not bad, simply because his appetites and desires are asleep. The harmonious or ideal man is the reverse. A thousand desires, purposes and motives draw him diverse ways, but the conscious intellect and love impel him in the direction of truth and right.

Does he stumble? Does he at times go astray? Yes, but he arises and seeks the right path. He grows strong by experience, and his feet become sure. He cannot be always right, for he is fallible, but he is conscious that he must put forth his best endeavors. The young eagle that would cleave the empyrean, and soar above the clouds, at first may lose its balance on its untried wings. It is not by failure that it learns to soar, but by success. The child learns to walk, not by its falls, but by command acquired over its limbs by repeated efforts. We may not always be just, and while on earth man may never gain that high ideal, yet it is always before him as a possibility.

G. W. Ramsey: Q. Do departed spirits have desires which are never answered, the same as we have?

A. Every normal desire, that is, desire for that which is for the best interests, is answered. There are spirits who desire things that would be injurious, and such desires are not answered. Gratification is better provided for in earth-life.

J. M. Ray: Q. Why is it almost invariably the case that God is found on the side of tyranny and oppression?

A. The Jewish Jehovah, who is the model of the God in the Christian world, is the most tyrannical autocrat imagination can conceive.

The primitive idea of God, an absolute ruler of the universe, is of a tyrant, self-loving and remorseless when offended. The various theologies of mankind inculcate this conception of God, and as the priests were the first rulers, and the kings who came after, were upheld by the priests, the governments of theocrats and of autocrats backed by priests, would imitate the government of their God, or Gods. Hence tyranny was sustained by the example of God whom none might gainsay.

The government of the United States is founded, not on the right of God to govern the people through appointed priests and kings that he raises up, but on the people themselves. The government is by them, for their benefit and not for the maintenance of a God-ordained governing class who have clutched the scepter of power by ruffianly force or rule by inheritance from robber ancestors.

But there is now a movement actively pressed to take the government from the people, make the Bible its foundation, place God at its head with Christ as premier, and thus convert it into a tyranny as odious as the God-governments of the past. Only a short time ago an enormous number of blank petitions were sent out, and they have since been actively circulated, in favor of the "God-in-the-Constitution" amendment, and when these are returned it is expected to astonish Congress with their united magnitude. True the action of Congress is only preliminary to the measure going before the State legislatures, and it may be thought that these bodies will not concur, yet it must be held in mind that the ordinary State Representative, usually overwhelmed by the self-consciousness of his official position, wishes re-election above all things, and believes that catering to the church party brings more votes than holding to the liberal side. There is always that uncertainty of what a State legislature will do, that attaches to the verdict of a jury. It is the tiger step of theocratic despotism, softly, insidiously preparing for its final spring at the throat of Liberty.

WHAT WOMAN HAS DONE

ADDRESS BY L. K. WASHBURN BEFORE THE WOMAN'S CLUB OF REVERE, MASS.

It is but justice to pay woman the compliment of sex, and acknowledge our indebtedness to her as the mother of man.

The first government was matriarchal. Woman was the first ruler in church and State. Under some of the older civilizations women possessed equal liberty with men. In Athens, four hundred and fifty years before the beginning of the Christian era, Aspasia shared the throne with Pericles. Greece clothed all the virtues in female form and made her gods speak to man through the lips of woman. It is the glory of Paganism that it listened to the voice of genius in woman as well as in man.

Under Christian civilization what women have done for the world has been what men would allow them to do. In the sixth century of our era fifty-nine bishops solemnly discussed the question: "Does woman possess a soul?" It was contended for hundreds of years that woman was not a part of mankind, but an animal belonging somewhere between the human and brute creation. Until the time of Peter the Great, Russia, in taking the census, counted only the males, and reported so many souls in the empire. All this resulted from the authority of that infamous line, "The woman was created for the man."

When the Huguenots allowed women to sing in the churches the influence of Paul began to decline. And when in England the question was asked, "Shall woman be allowed to learn the alphabet?" and was answered in the affirmative, the golden gates of knowledge commenced to swing apart, and boundless possibilities were opened up for women.

The old notion, "woman the poem, man the poet," has been outgrown. It is at length seen that woman can earn her own bread, and that she was created for herself as well as for man. What she has already done shows that she can do more. To demand, as some do, that women shall accomplish what they are not fitted to undertake, is like asking a barefooted man to have his boots blacked. Give to women what has been denied them—opportunity—and they will do the rest.

Women have edited newspapers, navigated ships, managed extensive plantations, filled positions of trust in banks and counting-rooms. They have been lawyers, doctors, and ministers. They have written some of the brightest books in our libraries. The first to eat of the tree of knowledge, woman proved her right to teach, and our schools and colleges are to-day largely under the care of women.

If I were to try to tell all that women have done for the world, I should stand here until the sunset of the nineteenth century. But I may be pardoned for mentioning some names that stand for the attainments and achievements of woman. Annie Hutchinson, to whose brave words and deeds we all owe much of the freedom which we enjoy; Mary Somerville, who set new stars in the firmament of knowledge; Mary Wollstonecraft, a great and loyal heart that beat its life away for her sex; Frances Wright, peerless and fearless, upon whom nature lavished every gift, and who used them for the elevation of her race; Lucretia Mott, who gave her life to save human beings from wrongs; Margaret Fuller, who pleaded for her sex with the passion of a lover and the power of a prophet; Harriet Martineau, who easily ranks with the greatest minds of England; Mary Upton Ferrin, to whose persistent and untiring labors all married women in this State are indebted for the right to hold and dispose of their own property; George Eliot, who added flame to the torch of truth; Lydia Maria Child, who coined her brain and heart to enrich the world.

The women living and dead who have worked for the rights which belong to their sex are among the noblest minds of their race.

It was said not many decades ago that only those women talked about their rights who had nothing else to do, and that the proper place for woman was at home. I suppose that when Florence Nightingale went hundreds of miles from her home to nurse British soldiers with broken limbs and breaking hearts, she had nothing else to do. I suppose that when Madam Roland left her husband and child to go to quell a furious mob which men could no longer control, she had nothing else to do. I suppose that when Charlotte Corday went to do that terrible deed that no man dared attempt, which alone would give her country rest and peace, and which would bring death to herself, she had nothing else to do. I suppose that when Ida Lewis pulled her boat through the angry sea, and rescued men from drowning, she had nothing else to do. Well! Let us rejoice that there are some souls born with nothing else to do but to do great things.

A foreign artist was asked when the world would be better. He replied: When men subject themselves to the same laws they impose on women. The same laws, the same rights, and the same moral standard for both sexes. These are the demands of justice; these are what women are working for. But the hasty notion that reform can be wrought in a generation must not be relied upon. The Persians taught that the stairs to Heaven were built of purified souls. Must the way to justice for women be paved with their own heroic lives?

I sometimes think if the world is to be redeemed by suffering that women will be its saviors. Tears reveal as deep wounds as does blood. Many a woman has fought a braver battle with a needle than ever did man with a sword.

Take away what women have done for the world, and the world would be a mighty poor place for men.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Thomas Paine: Was He Junius?" An interesting pamphlet by Wm. H. Burr. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Hypnotism Up to Date." By Sidney Flower. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 25 cents. Sold at this office.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Angel Whisperings for the Searcher After Truth." By Hattie J. Ray. A volume of genuine poems, of such fine moral and spiritual tone that all will be pleased and benefited by it. For sale at this office. Price $1.

ORTHODOX MORALITY.

QUEER NOTIONS—DANCING A SIN—TOBACCO-USING A VIRTUE—WHISKEY A MEANS OF GRACE—NECESSARY TO ORTHODOX SALVATION.

To the Editor:—My last article, published in The Progressive Thinker of August 8, has called out from the orthodox, by private letter, the most bitter denunciation. No effort is made to disprove my statements, but they are denounced as malicious and uncalled for at this time. In other phrase the sins of the orthodox Christians are sanctified and above censure. As our Methodist brethren so often say in their love feasts. "If we do commit sin we have an advocate with the Father." I am rejoiced that the orthodox are reading your paper. It will do them good.

One poor clergy-deluded sister bitterly complains and pathetically informs me that I am "cruel and inhuman to knock the crutches from under the tottering forms of the infirm and helpless."

The truth of the matter is, the church has fed its devotees so long on stale, unhealthy Gospel hash that their spiritual natures have become so dwarfed, weak and infirm that they can only walk through the aid of orthodox crutches. If they will discard the soul-degrading errors of superstition hashed and served up to them by priest and clergy, and will accept and feed their spiritual natures on the beautiful truths of our philosophy, they will soon reach a state of spiritual health and vigor that will enable them to discard their crutches and walk in the strength and dignity of true spiritual manhood and womanhood.

ORTHODOX MORALITY.

The committee of the Methodist Book Concern, South, has just tried S. A. Steele—editor of the Epworth Era, for a long list of offenses. One of the charges against this religious editor was, that he failed to severely rebuke the "awful and soul-destroying sin of dancing and other sinful amusements." In charge No. 8 he was accused of "the setting forth of the doctrine that the use of tobacco is a sin, a doctrine not taught in the church or deducible from Scriptures."

This fact reveals the true status of church morality and decency here in the South, where the Bible is implicity believed and accepted as the true standard of human conduct. To innocently exercise the instincts of melody and harmony in the social dance is a crying sin to be rebuked; but to saturate the human physiology and befoul and poison its every tissue by the offensive, indecent and filthy use of tobacco, is a Christian virtue that must not be condemned, forsooth, because the doctrines of the church and Scriptures approve it.

Did not Jesus emphatically say that it was not that which entered into the body that defiled it?

The Baptist Free Press, of Murfreesboro, Tennessee, published the following editorial in advocacy of true Baptist church morality:

"The prohibition of liquor from the land is simply one step toward dethroning God and rendering the blood of Christ inefficacious. Prohibition will leave the world without sin, and all men would be alike—good. Hence will utterly destroy the power of Christ's blood to save any one."

From this statement we are led to believe that the permanency of God's throne and the efficacy of Christ's blood depend exclusively and solely on the perpetuity of the whiskey traffic. The intellectual and moral attitude of the church devotees who accept these offensive vagaries of the Bible as "inspired truth," calls loudly for a writ of Lunatico Inquirendo.

No person in whose mind lurks even a shadow of reason could honestly endorse the wild and inconsistent doctrines of the orthodox church, and the only practical method of breaking the power of the Christian religion and shielding the rising generation from its vitiating influences, is to expose the revolting and indecent errors of the Bible and church, and to encourage free-thought and self reliance. Man on account of his ignorance is constantly placing himself in a discordant relation to natural law, and is suffering the distressing consequences of his disobedience. He seeks a remedy for his ills by employing lawyers, doctors, priests and clergymen who fatten off of his ignorance. The true and only remedy lies in man's increased intelligence, and a return to a state of harmony with natural law. Man in his helpless ignorance has placed his liberties in the hands of the demagogue, his body in the hand of the doctors, and his soul in the hands of the preachers, and in the language of the prophets, he is in a hell of a fix, and growing more so every day.

To place ourselves in harmony with the perverted animality, would require a heart of granite and a hand of iron; an ear deaf to the cry of distress and an eye blind to scenes of pity. But man under the law of evolution will eventually grow tired of sinning and suffering, and will turn his face from the darkness of superstition's error, to the light of spiritual truth, and will seek the better way. Instead of seeking heaven in some far-off cloudland, he will strive to make a paradise on earth. Instead of prattling about and preparing for an Eternity in the future, he will seek to improve and enjoy the ever-present, eternal Now, and will hasten the milenial dawn when the principles of equality, liberty and fraternity, will be practically recognized.

WARREN SMITH.

Smith's Fork, Tenn.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

THE FISHERMAN AND THE PHANTOM BOAT.

Nestled along the shore of Lake Michigan, huddled closely together, one against the other, were the humble dwellings of men and women who kept the wolf from the door by fishing. Mostly the dwellers of these humble homes were servants of the priest, and every morning as the new day dawned and the sunlight peeped from behind the hill, heralding the birth of a new day, these humble folks might be seen going to or coming from mass.

In one of these rudely-constructed homes there dwelt a middle-aged man and woman. Their life was lonely, for no child had come to bless their union. But one day a tiny baby girl came fluttering into their home, bringing a rosy ray of golden sunlight into their hearts, painting the sky of their future with many beautiful colors of joy and expectation, making their lives more beautiful to anticipate.

The husband and father took the little bud in his arms and thanked God for so rich a gift. He went about his work with a lighter heart and more buoyant spirits, as he remembered the little one nestled snugly in the rude wooden cradle.

When the days grew warmer, and baby had grown stronger, he would wrap her and carry her off to his boat, cradle and all, and stow her safely away in the bow; and while he fished, baby would coo and crow and tug at her bottle and squint her eyes at the big white sails. Ah! those were indeed happy days to both father and baby, for sometimes she was out in the boat the better part of the day. The fisherman would often, while she slept, cross himself and thank God for his little charge.

One day he became absorbed in his work while baby slept, and he never noticed a storm gathering, till it burst in fury over them. Then he made all haste to cover baby and protect her from the elements; then he tried to turn the boat about and gain the shore, but alas, all efforts were futile, for do what he would, he could not turn his boat about in the strong breeze. Only a few moments did he struggle with the waves, for one big gust of wind lifted the boat like a feather and turned its contents into the pitiless deep.

When the storm first broke, the mother anxiously awaited her darling, but after a few anxious moments she seemed to sense something wrong, and hastened on the beach, which by this time was lined with anxious neighbors. They leveled their glasses, but no trace of the fated craft could be seen, and no sound floated back to them, save the deafening roar of the troubled deep.

The poor, frantic mother begged some one to go to their assistance, but no human aid was possible, for no soul could battle with the waves in such a storm. All the rest of the day they huddled on the beach, with pallid cheeks and bated breath, scanning the waters with glasses, vainly hoping to catch even a glimpse of the doomed boat, but the thick mist and raging billows gave back no response.—alas, none!

When the shadows of night began to gather and cast a dark mantle over the face of the deep, as well as over the shore, filling the hearts of those who anxiously waited with a still blacker terror and disappointment, one by one they left the beach and sought their own humble dwellings. Kindly hands of neighbors tried to lead the poor, heartbroken mother from the beach, but she seemed riveted to the spot, and would not leave till her darlings came back to her; so they wrapt her in stormcoats and left her for a while. All the time she would wring her hands and say: "I can see them out there in that white mist. Only a little longer and they will be here."

By and by they gently but firmly bore her by force from the beach, and carried her to her home and laid her on her bed, for she was ill. The mental shock and exposure had done its work, and prostrated her with brain fever. Only a few brief hours did the watchers gather around her bed to minister to her wants and soothe and comfort. But all the time she would point out at the sea and say, "Yes, there they are; can't you see that milk white sail in yonder mist? Only a little while longer now, and I shall clasp my darling baby in my arms, while Johnny will hold my poor tired aching head, for they are coming this way—they beckon me."

Then she sprang up and opened her arms and said: "There they are! I told you they would come;" then sank back upon the pillow dead.

All, who dare say they did not come, and lift her fleeting spirit into their boat as it sailed to the eternal shore? Who dare say she could not see their dear forms out in the thick mist?

For many years after, the hardy seamen who lived along the shore avowed they saw a Phantom ship with white sails, silently sailing in the vicinity where the fated boat went down. Some would cross themselves and pray to the Holy Virgin mother to protect them from the terrible vision, for wherever the mist hung heavy over the bosom of the lake, it would roll back (or seem to part) and reveal a Phantom ship, with a baby asleep in the bow, a man in the stern and a woman standing in the middle of the boat with her long hair flowing in the wind and falling over her thin white, fleecy robe.

Some shook their heads and said "Spooks!" others, "Stuff and nonsense!" while others were willing to swear to what they saw.

Many years after, and only a few years ago, a gentleman and clairvoyant, while walking along the beach at the foot of Erie street, professed to have seen the Phantom boat. He was a stranger and had never heard of the accident. Many hundreds lined the beach, hoping to get a glimpse of the specter, but only when the mist hung heavy and all was still could it be seen.

Who shall say those spirits did not take this way to convince their neighbors that they still lived, and not only lived but retained their own identity—for "they shall be ministering spirits unto us."

To those who have written me, both children and parents, each in turn will be promptly answered, as well as all questions. Brother Francis may well be proud of the army of little readers of his progressive paper.

MADAME PARCELLS.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"THE LIGHT OF EGYPT,"

OR THE SCIENCE OF THE SOUL AND THE STARS.

Finely Illustrated With Eight Full-Page Engravings,

BY AN INITIATE IN ESOTERIC MASONRY.

It is claimed that this book is not a mere compilation, but thoroughly original.

It is believed to contain information upon the most vital points of Occultism and Theosophy that cannot be obtained elsewhere.

It claims to fully reveal the most recondite mysteries of man upon every plane of his existence, both here and hereafter, in such plain, simple language that a child can almost understand it.

The secret and Occult mysteries of Astrology are revealed and explained for the first time, it is affirmed, since the days of Egyptian Hieroglyphics.

An effort is made to show that the Science of the Soul and the Science of the Stars are the twin mysteries which comprise THE ONE GRAND SCIENCE OF LIFE.

The following are among the claims made for the work by its friends:

To the Spiritual investigator this book is indispensable.

To the medium it reveals knowledge beyond all earthly price, and will prove in real truth "a guide, philosopher and friend."

To the Occult it will supply the mystic key for which he has been so long earnestly seeking.

To the Astrologer it will become a "divine revelation of Science."

OPINIONS OF PRESS AND PEOPLE.

"A noble, philosophical and instructive work."—Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten.

"A work of remarkable ability and interest."—Dr. J. R. Buchanan.

"A remarkably concise, clear and forcibly interesting work. * * * It is more clear and intelligible than any other work on like subjects."—Mr. J. J. Morse.

"A careful reading of THE LIGHT OF EGYPT discovers the beginning of a new sect in Occultism, which will oppose the grafting on Western Occultists the subtile delusive dogmas of Karma and Re-incarnation."—New York Times.

"It is a volume likely to attract wide attention from that class of scholars interested in mystical science and occult forces. But it is written in such plain and simple style as to be within the easy comprehension * * * of any cultivated, scholarly reader."—The Chicago Daily Inter Ocean.

"However recondite his book, the author certainly presents a theory of first causes which is well fitted to challenge the thoughtful readers' attention and to excite much reflection."—Hartford Daily Times.

"Considered as an exposition of Occultism, or the philosophy of the Orient from a Western standpoint, this is a remarkable production."—The Daily Tribune (Salt Lake City).

"This work, the result of years of research and study, will undoubtedly create a profound sensation throughout the philosophic world."—The Detroit Commercial Advertiser.

"It is an Occult work but not a Theosophical one. * * * It is a book entirely new in its scope and must excite wide attention."—The Kansas City Journal.

Beautifully printed and illustrated on paper manufactured for this special purpose, with illuminated and extra heavy cloth binding.

Price, Three Dollars. For Sale at This Office.

MOST WONDERFUL BOOKS.

The Warfare of Science With Theology.

A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom. By ANDREW D. WHITE, LL. D., late President and Professor of History at Cornell University. In Two Volumes. 8vo. Cloth, Five Dollars. For Sale at This Office.

In these two large volumes are combined information that the reader could not find in the libraries of the world in fifty years. It shows the constant and determined opposition of Theology to the advancement that has been made in every branch of Science. To the Student it is indispensible. Every Free Thought Speaker should have it. It should circulate in every community. It goes into minute details, citing in all cases the authority, showing the persistency of Theology in fighting new and advanced ideas in Science.

"The magnum opus of the eminent ex-President of Cornell plants a new and notable milestone along the highway of ever-advancing human thought. The work is the masterpiece of a mind as devoid of wanton iconoclasm as of moral cowardice. It is a definite statement of where the best thinkers of the world now stand in the religio-scientific conflict. It is clear, honest, brave, and must be given a place among the great books of the year."—Chicago Tribune.

"The most valuable contribution that has yet been made to the history of the conflict between the theologians and the scientists; struggles that have alarmed timid Christians, but, as Mr. White shows, there was no occasion for alarm. The several chapters are extremely interesting, and while President White never flinches in telling the whole truth, as he thinks science has ascertained it, he is nowhere irreverent. He confronts truth, takes its hand, and follows boldly wherever truth bids him come."—Buffalo Commercial.

"The book is written almost colloquially, and so interestingly as to enchain the attention at once, and keep it enchained. Concise as a history of the universe could be made, tabulated so that instant reference to a particular bit of history, theory, or biography may be had, it will be valuable as a lexicon relating to religious controversy. It is crammed with information, sorted, sifted, winnowed, and prepared for the consumer, as reading it is of an absorbing interest, and it will probably provoke answering arguments."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"Undoubtedly the most exhaustive treatise which has been written on this subject. It is able, scholarly, critical, and impartial in tone."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"A literary event of prime importance is the appearance of 'A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom.'"—Philadelphia Press.

These two large volumes, containing about 900 pages, will be sent to any address on the receipt of the price, Five Dollars.

A UNIQUE BIBLE PICTURE-BOOK.

OLD TESTAMENT STORIES

COMICALLY ILLUSTRATED.

By WATSON HESTON.

The Stories Humorously Told—And Hard Facts Given Concerning the Origin and Authenticity of the Old Testament—A Page of Text to Each Picture.

400 Pages. 200 Full-Page Pictures.

CONTENTS.

Sustaining a Theory,
Some Giants,
The Adventures and Work of Noah,
A Hunting Anecdote,
Abraham, Christ's Great Ancestor,
A Queer Family,
Isaac and His "Sister,"
One of Twins,
Jacob and Esau,
Joseph the Man of Dreams,
Holy Moses,
Balaam the Diviner,
Bloody Joshua,
The Campaign of Deborah and Barak Against Jabin and Sisera,
General Gideon,
Jephthah and His Human Sacrifice,
Samson the Strong,
Ruth and Boaz,
Unstable as Water, God Shall Not Excel,
David, God's Favorite,
Some Stories from the Book of Kings,
Adventures of the Prophets,
Jonah the Truthful Sailor.

(Cloth, gilt side stamp, $1.50; Boards, illuminated covers, $1.

Address THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

GENERAL SURVEY.

(Continued from page 6.)

Professor Geo. W. Walrond, clairvoyant and test medium, teaches a lyceum class and conducts a conference meeting every Sunday afternoon in Denver, Colo., where he is now permanently located. Address him, Granite Building, Denver, Colo.

Lyman C. Howe writes from Cleveland, Ohio: "I expect to exchange with Dr. Schermerhorn the 28th, and speak to his society in Akron. I am free to engage for March, April and May, except the last week of March, which I expect to use at Rochester, N. Y., at the three days' jubilee, 28, 29 and 30."

Mr. C. E. Winans, the materializing medium, is on his way West, and parties desiring his services will kindly address him with stamp for reply, at Edinburg, Ind.

Lyman C. Howe writes: "The Plain Dealer, Cleveland, Ohio, has been regarded as the most liberal secular paper in the city, and has been a favorite with many Spiritualists, who have patronized it, though at variance with its political creed; but it seems to be in new hands, and charges Spiritualists $1 for a notice which other papers insert for 25 cents, and the Plain Dealer thus discriminates against its friends, and will lose by the course it is taking."

A correspondent writes from Springfield, Mass.: "Both societies here appear to be prospering spiritually and financially. The First Spiritualist Ladies' Aid Society, which meets at the corner of Main and State streets, has Mr. W. H. Bach for pastor, who is giving very excellent satisfaction. He has organized a lyceum which is flourishing. Mr. Bach lectures to large and appreciative audiences. The Church of the Spirit, which commenced holding meetings last fall at the corner of Main street and Harrison avenue, had Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing for speaker during January, and her lectures were well-attended and appreciated. Mr. T. C. Budington is giving a course of scientific lectures this month which are very instructive; he is doing a good work. The society recently held a very successful two days' fair. Dr. Geo. A. Fuller and Mr. O. A. Edgerly are the speakers engaged for next month. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Budington left February 6, for Lake Helen, Fla. Mr. B. is one of the officers and a speaker for the Southern Cassadaga camp-meeting."

Lyman C. Howe writes: "Tuesday evening a select company met at the home of Thomas Lees, Cleveland, O., and exchanged sentiments, enjoyed social cheer and some exquisite music, and the hours went swiftly by. Thomas A. Black is the responsible mover in the course of lectures now in progress, and he expects to keep them up until June, with Hon. O. P. Kellogg, Dr. Schermerhorn and A. E. Sheets for the three months following February. Brother Black takes the whole responsibility of hiring the hall and engaging speakers, and if the Spiritualists of Cleveland have any interest in the cause and a sense of justice left, they will come forward and share the responsibility and stand by the man who has shown such generous interest in the dissemination of truth, and help to make his efforts a success."

Emma Humphrey writes from Buffalo, N. Y.: "Your correspondent had the pleasure of attending a public meeting held at the residence of Mrs. Atcheron, Monday evening last. She is an indefatigable worker in the cause of Spiritualism. I especially mention this meeting for there was present a representative of one of Buffalo's leading daily papers, who received tests which led him to ask how to sit for phenomena. Undeveloped minds need only to come in touch with truth revealed through a perfect instrument, attuned to respond to the vibratory touch of the higher spirit forces."

During the last four months Oscar A. Edgerly has filled successful engagements in the following named places: Philadelphia, Pa.; Willimantic, Conn.; Lynn, Salem, Newburyport and New Bedford, Mass, and Norwich, Conn. Mr. Edgerly's engagements for the near future are as follows: Last two Sundays of February, Bridgeport, Conn.; first two Sundays of March still open for engagement; last two Sundays of March engaged in Springfield, Mass; first two Sundays of April, Malden, Mass.; last two Sundays of April, Worcester, Mass.; first Sunday in May, Haden Row, Mass. Up to the present time Mr. Edgerly has made engagements with the following named camp-meetings for the season of 1897: Lake Pleasant, Mass.; Queen City Park, Vt.; Vicksburg, Mich.; Devils Lake, Mich. He has the first two Sundays of July open for camp-meeting engagements. He would like to hear from secretaries of societies who may desire the services of a trance speaker and test medium for the first two Sundays of March and the last three of May.

Southworth writes: "Your proof-reader made a senseless thing of the answer to Joseph Smith's sixth question in your issue of February 20. The answer should have read: 'Sixth. As the transformation is so subtile and imperceptible to the human eye, the grabber cannot be cognizant of the change taking place, which is nearly instantaneous. And the displacement of one particle and substitution of another precludes the idea of two solids occupying the same place at the same time.' As Mr. Smith asked an honest question honestly, I much desire that he shall receive an honest answer."

Dr. Budington writes from Lake Helen, Fla.: "Mr. George Webster and his son Richard, who is a graduate physician, are to erect a fine building for a sanitarium near the camp-ground. The laying of the corner pier was witnessed last Friday by a number of people, and a cordial endorsement of the project was voiced by many. The location is on a high pine land, in one of the healthiest regions of the State, and invalids will find the soft air and balm-laden pines a means of returning health."

Geo. F. Perkins is meeting with excellent success at Fort Wayne, Ind. He thinks the society there is conducted in the right manner. He writes: "E. G. Price is president; Wm. M. Wefel, corresponding secretary. Dr. Sweringen's entire family seem to be in the work. Last Sunday was a red letter day. Bro. H. D. Barrett, whom everyone knows, was here and spoke Saturday evening, Sunday morning and evening to crowded houses. Brother and Sister Sprague having preceded me with good, honest labors, have left behind a healthy atmosphere of independence and 'don't care whether you believe it or not; I do,' that gives the stranger a good foundation to work upon. Although I was entirely unknown, I feel it safe to say that I have many friends and ardent supporters who appreciate the earnest effort of honest workers. Brother Barrett is full of enthusiasm and brains, and it goes without saying that he delivered three of the ablest lectures that Fort Wayne has ever heard upon Spiritualism as applied to local, State and National organization. I advise that association to cling to him for they will never get his like again. Altogther this is a profitable week for Fort Wayne and the cause."

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D.,

AYER, MASS.

LAKE HELEN CAMP-MEETING.

The opening exercises of this rapidly growing camp of Spiritualists were witnessed by an appreciative audience February 14. Mr. Geo. Colby spoke in the morning. He treated largely of the prospects of the camp, congratulating the management on the rapid growth of the place and on the fulfillment of his predictions years ago.

C. Fanny Allyn delivered a pungent, witty and practical address from the subjects given by the audience. Following the address, Mrs. Concannon held a seance, describing with accuracy and touching pathos, several spirits who were fully recognized.

The lectures, seance and music were all well received, the audience evincing a deep, religious interest in the services.

The new auditorium, which will seat 700 people, was used for the first time. The rostrum—a broad and deep one—was prettily adorned with evergreens and flowers, and the flag of our country swung its bright folds from the staff above the murmuring pines.

The hotel is pretty well filled with guests, though there are a few more good rooms left. The apartment house of the association is nearly full, and Dr. Brigham's apartment house is now ready for tenants, and some of its neatly furnished rooms are already occupied. There have been a dozen or more cottages added since last year, and the whole grove echoes with the sound of the hammer as the finishing touches are being put upon the new homes for the people.

Mediums present: Mr. O. L. Concannon, materializing; Mrs. O. L. Concannon, platform and private test; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, lecturer and automatic writer; Mr. A. Campbell, independent slate-writer and spirit artist, one of the best; Mrs. D. N. Sackett, writing medium; Dr. F. J. Miller, psychic healer.

Among the arrivals expected next week are W. W. Tatum and Amae Wheeler, both slate-writers and trumpet mediums, and Mrs. Elsie Reynolds, materializing.

The dedication of the auditorium will take place on Sunday, March 7. On that day the full talent of the camp-meeting will be present and special exercises of universal interest will be given. H. A. BUDINGTON.

FOX MEMORIAL TEMPLE IN ROCHESTER, N. Y.

It has been a local desire here to build a meeting-place to be called the "Fox Memorial," as a tribute to the Fox Sisters, who in this city presented the raps that ushered in Modern Spiritualism. We think all Spiritualists, everywhere, should be interested to provide here a testimonial to the cause.

We have now an opportunity to purchase a magnificent edifice (a church) on a large lot, well situated, for $8,000—$3,000 cash payment and time for balance. The property is well built and in perfect order, and is actually worth about $20,000, and will sell for that amount soon as our country has a return of business prosperity.

The First Spiritual Church of Rochester desires to borrow the $3,000 at once, if possible, and they will soon raise the amount by contributions, meetings, etc. They ask for loans in sums of $100 or more, for one or two years, bearing interest—giving mortgage notes therefor. Who will help us to secure this great chance to make a public worthy presentation of Spiritualism in Rochester?

Donors of one dollar or more toward the Fox Memorial will be enrolled as honorary members, and given a beautiful certificate, with an engraving of the Temple, or of the Fox cottage.

Address G. W. Kates, chairman of committee, 97 Edinburgh street, Rochester, N. Y., who is also regular speaker of the church association; or address A. K. Sisson, president, 55 Comfort street. We need this temple for the great jubilee. Hoping to hear from our many earnest friends in the cause, I am, G. W. KATES.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS.

..SPECIALISTS..

In All Chronic Diseases.

Special attention to all Diseases peculiar to either sex. Advanced methods; best results.

CURE GUARANTEED IN ALL CASES TAKEN.

Correct Diagnosis Free

By enclosing name, age, sex, leading symptom, and stamp for reply.

Remember to address

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

P. O. Box 177.

THE ETHEREAL BODY.

Concluding Replies to Alcinous.

A few questions propounded by Alcinous in The Progressive Thinker of October 31, yet remain to be considered. The eleventh is: "Does man by his will create human, animal and vegetable thought-life forms, and if so, how long do they live?" To this Mrs. E. B. Duffy has since replied that such appearances if seen by any must be purely subjective and have no real existence. This implies that that only has reality which is objectified.

I should rather maintain that the subjective is real being, the objective the manifestation thereof to the senses. If we perceive the subjective, we perceive the truth and are exercising the perceptive power of the soul directly, without being subject to the hallucinations of our bodily organs. But this is rather an answer to an answer, than a reply to the original question.

Man cannot by will or otherwise create life forms or anything else in the sense of bringing them into existence out of nothing. But by the power of a sufficiently developed will and concentration of thought he may combine previously-existing matter into new forms. He frequently does thus recombine the atoms of his own physical body and attract other atoms into more harmonious relationship with each other and with the ego, thus producing healthier conditions, and in other cases by recombining these atoms inharmoniously he produces disease.

By the use of the same power upon his mentality or that of others, he causes mental effects. He can produce thought forms, and these forms live by virtue of the principle of life which is universal. How long they continue to live as such forms must depend upon the degree of vitality or thought force they received at their conception, the nutriment they subsequently receive from other thoughts and the nature of their environments. Actually they never perish, but evolute to higher thought forms, following, like all else, the law of eternal progression.

12. "Can an ego assume any form it wills when freed from its dense earth instrument?"

Not necessarily when so freed. It may still find itself under limitations preventing and yet encumbered by an instrument, which though called an ethereal body, is far too dense to admit of such transfiguration. As the will becomes strengthened by the exercise of its powers, and increased spirituality admits of a finer covering, this is no longer impossible. Spirits who have not yet attained this high development may project upon sensitives mental pictures which differ from their present condition. Of this we have constant experience in spirits who for the purpose of recognition represent themselves to clairvoyants as they were in earth-life—not as they now are.

13. "By what process, if any, does the animal ego reach the form of man on the earth-plane?"

In reply to this question I can do no better than endorse the answer given by Mrs. Duffy. "Evolution is a spiritual as well as a natural law. All life moves in an orderly procession."

14. "Does the mental evolution keep pace with the physical evolution of all life forms?"

The physical evolution is the result and external expression of the mental evolution. Not that the finest mind is always accompanied by the strongest or most beautiful body. The form and features represent the animal mind. The spirit that shines through those features pictures to us the higher mental developments. Thus we often see faces, the features of which, taken separately, are plain, but the expression of the whole wins our admiration.

15. "Is the ego or mind a substance, acting upon and reacted upon by its environment?"

The ego and the mind are essentially different from each other. The ego is the individual man; the mind a property of that ego, as much so as the body. It partakes of both the physical and spiritual, and exists by the action of spirit upon organized matter. This much is common to both ego and mind: That both are substantial entities, but not necessarily material, as we ordinarily understand materiality. The mind acts upon and is acted upon by its environments. The ego subjects its environments to its innate divine power.

I have endeavored to answer these fifteen questions in as clear and intelligible a manner as possible, according to the light given me. If no other good has been accomplished, I hope that at least they have been the means of setting a few other brains to work upon somewhat intricate but most important subjects. E. J. BOWTELL.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole, Clinton, Iowa—Dear Friend:—I have worn your Melted Pebble Spectacles for eight years. They were perfection. Have lost them; please send another pair. IRENE CHASE. Little Valley, N. Y., Feb. 8, 1897.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL! . . . . .

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach; but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly,
REBECCA LEVY.

8331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

Elnathan Judson, brother of Abby A. Judson, was born in Maulmain, Burmah, July 15, 1838. His parents were Rev. Adoniram Judson, D. D., and Mrs. Sarah Boardman Judson. He was brought to this country in 1845 by his father, his mother dying on the passage to the island of St. Helena. He lived six years with Dr. Calvin Newton in Worcester; fitted for college at Pierce Academy, Middleboro; was graduated from Brown University in 1859; and from Union Theological Seminary, New York City, in 1862. July 4, 1860, he received a sunstroke while rowing in a regatta in Providence, laying the foundation for subsequent poor health. After painful struggles and vicissitudes, he was placed in the Maclean hospital for the insane in Somerville, January 24, 1864. November 2, 1874, he was removed to the insane asylum, Worcester. In January, 1896, he had a second stroke of paralysis, implicating the left half of his body. He was removed to his sister's home in Worcester, and passed to spirit-life, February 8, 1897. After thirty-two years in insane hospitals, he had nearly one year of home life, cared for and comforted by his devoted sister. He became perfectly sane, and was conscious to the very last, the final cause of death being pneumonia. Almost his last words were: "You are very dear to me, my sister."

Many surviving friends in different parts of the country will recall his integrity, his purity, his sweet disposition, his polished manners, his bright intellect and his tender heart; and will rejoice to know that his sufferings are ended. The deserted house of clay was incinerated at Forest Hills, and his freed spirit has entered the home of the soul.

Miss Judson is now resting with friends in Worcester, Mass., and is rejoicing that the increasing trouble with her eyes cannot now prevent her from caring from this dear brother to the very end of his earth-life. Her work for him is now done, and he is in the embrace and charge of his angel parents. XX.

Mercia Boynton Lane left the mortal for the immortal life, January 30, 1897, at her home in Braceville, Ohio.

Mrs. Lane began reform work in her early youth, when she was one of the most beautiful and attractive young ladies we have ever met, and her ears were filled with flattery and adulation. While most girls, gifted with such rare and queenly comeliness, would have been frivolous and vain, she was never so, and gave her thoughts to reform in dress, woman's rights, and religion. She gave lectures on these subjects while yet young and was widely known to most of the lecturers and reformers in our ranks. Of late years her health has been unsound and she has not done much public work, but her presence at Maple Dell Camp nearly every season has been a delight to her friends and a help to the camp.

She has ever been one of my dearest, heaven-made friends, and I can truly say that our friendship was ideal. Never a shadow dimmed it for an hour; she never misunderstood me, was never uncharitable, envious, unsympathetic, jealous, nor in any way anything but the noblest and truest friend. There are few such, and she always seemed an angel when here on earth. She has joined a husband, Aurin Lane, who passed on some years ago, and many other kinsfolk, and in the meeting will be full of joy. She left two adult children, and two loving sisters to mourn her loss. May she return to visit us soon and often is the wish of her loving friend. EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Mrs. C. A. Meachem passed to a higher life, from her home in Battle Creek, Mich., January 17, 1897. She was a true Spiritualist and a grand medium, giving comfort to many sorrowing hearts. COR.

Mr. A. B. Coman, a prominent Spiritualist of the South Side, passed to spirit-life February 19, at his residence, 2936 Dearborn street. The funeral was held last Saturday. Mr. Coman was well and favorably known in Chicago, and had a large circle of friends.

NEW OCCASIONS

A Magazine of Social Progress.

EDITED BY FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

The world is on the threshold of vast social changes. Progress is about to sunder the chains which have bound it. The next forward step will be just that which the average intelligence of a nation makes possible. Revolutions are the pulse beats of progress. The coming revolution should be one of intelligence; it should be one of peace. In that hope and in that belief NEW OCCASIONS opens its pages to a discussion of live questions. It is bound by no creed, and desires only to reach nearer to the truth. MONTHLY, 64 PAGES with handsome cover.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION $1.00; SINGLE COPIES 10 CENTS.

Sold by all Progressive Newsdealers.

WANTED the address of every active reformer. We have thousands of pamphlets on free silver, direct legislation, government banks, etc., for distribution. Sample package mailed for six cents.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO., Pubs., 56 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

THE EVERLASTING GOSPEL.

A COMPILATION OF THE LECTURES given by the Spirit Band through the mediumship of Mrs. Magdalena Kline. This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems, written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. Their tone is excellent and their spirit good; and even though one may find some ideas that differ from those he has held, yet he will find much to please, benefit and instruct. The reverence with which Jesus is mentioned will please many, although the ideas advanced concerning Jesus and Christianity are not after the orthodox standard. The book contains 488 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

SPIRITUALIST BADGES.

EVERY . . . . SPIRITUALIST SHOULD WEAR THE SUNFLOWER JEWELRY.

As the Sunflower turns its face towards the sun, so Spiritualism turns the faces of humanity from darkness and superstition towards the Sunlight of Truth and Progression.

PRICES:

Rolled Plate Bar Pin	$2 25
Solid Gold Bar Pin	3 50
Electro-plate Badge	75
Rolled Plate Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 25
Solid Gold Badge, Scarf Pin or Lapel Button	1 75
Rolled Plate Maltese Watch Charm	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Watch Charm	5 00
Rolled Plate Maltese Pendant	3 00
Solid Gold Maltese Pendant	5 00

FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE,

40 LOOMIS STREET, CHICAGO

MADAME ANNA ALPLANALB, THE CELEBRATED Gypsy Palmist and Psychometric Reader, is well known throughout America, having been before the public twenty years. Send date of birth, sex and complexion, with a glove lately worn, and receive a life reading. Fee $1. 3044 So. Fremont ave., Minneapolis, Minn. 379

THOS. E. ADDY, 133 SOUTH BROADWAY, Aurora, Ill., trance, test and business medium. Sittings daily. Send 25 cents silver and 2-cent stamp for a recognized test from your spirit friends. 376tf

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causes and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

PUBLICATIONS —OF— HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.

Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.

The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.

English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.

This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.

A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 30 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.

By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

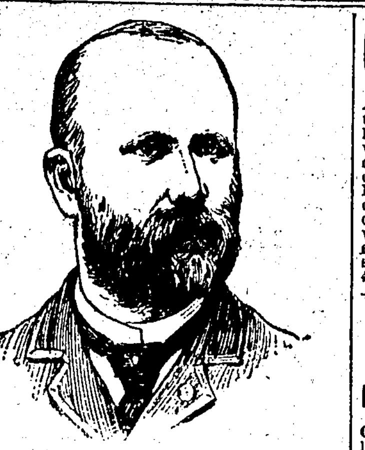
THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents. Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address



HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher. Berlin Heights, Ohio.

HEALTH AND POWER.

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

THOMAS PAINE'S Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.

FORSTER, DR. W. M,

THE NOTED MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street. - San Francisco, Cal. 383

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

HOW TO DRAW YOUR SPIRIT FRIENDS around you with talisman, ten cents silver and stamp. Prof. James Hilling, 1 Essex street, Somerville, Mass. 879

DIAGNOSES FREE. READINGS 25 CENTS. DR. S. Barney, 465 Jefferson ave., Grand Rapids, Mich. 379

YOUR FUTURE WELFARE BY THE STARS. Horoscopes, questions, opinions, advice, etc. Send date of birth to T. ARCHIBALD, Westside, Santa Clara, Cal. 380

READ WHAT MR. ARROWSMITH, OF LOUISville, Ky., says: "I had readings from all noted mediums, but St. Omer Briggs' readings surpasses them all. All her predictions came true." Consult the celebrated pyschometrist and seer, MARGUERITE ST. OMER BRIGGS, 783 Richmond St., Cincinnati, O. Readings $1 and $2, with stamps. 381

BLUE BIRD, ENGINEER OF NIGHT EXPRESS running between darkness and dawn, will teach wisdom not found in books, give names and poems of soul mate and guide, ring the bell by each blighted pine when storms are due, place signal lights in trails of bus'ness and pleasure that your soul may the sooner slow up to stations of health, wealth and prosperity. Enclose one dollar, name, age and address. Dr. Marion H. Bassette, Box 323, Henderson's Harbor, N.Y. 379

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 384

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

PSYCHOMETRY, CONSULT WITH Prof. A. B. Severance in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit-friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address, 710 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis. 378tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 3-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 378

MRS. B. HASENCLEVER, 684 MADISON STREET. Test and trumpet circle every Tuesday at 3 and 8 o'clock. 25 cents. Materializing seance Wednesdays and Saturdays at 8. Independent slate-writing daily. 381

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily. 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 380

Seership—Guide to Soul-Light.

Its art and culture, with rules for its attainment. Lucidity is no gift, but a universal possibility common to the human family. Price $2.

EULIS. The Third Revelation of Soul and Sex. A work containing many secret and inner doctrines of the Rosicrucians. In it and by it both man and woman have not merely the road to enormous power, both mental and individual, but the grand energy of effecting wished-for changes in others; also prolongation of life. Price $2.50. Address KATE C. RANDOLPH, 23 Melrose avenue, Toledo, O. 379

IF YOU ARE SICK

with any form of disease, send ten cents (silver or stamps) to Dr. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a trial treatment of a revealed vegetable tablet. They will positively cure any disease, including stomach, liver or kidney trouble; also rheumatism and diseases of the nervous system. Testimonials will be furnished from people who have been permanently cured with one trial treatment. 377

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 67 Thirty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, Ill. 377tf

MRS. S. F. DEWOLF—INDEPENDENT SLATE writing. 240 Winchester ave., near Van Buren. Madison street car; take transfer at Robey. Ladies' circle, Thursdays at 2:30. Chicago, Ill. 379

A GENEROUS OFFER.

Chronic Diseases a Specialty. Send five 2-cent stamps, age, sex, lock of hair, full name, State and county. You will get a correct diagnosis FREE, with advice and low terms for treatment. Thirty years in practice; nearly every patient cured. Also as a seer of marvelous power, he will answer six questions for 50 cents. Life reading one dollar,

DR. S. W. FISKE,

53 Oak Street. - - Norwich Conn. 380

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT, M. D. LL. D., Dean

A WONDERFUL OFFER ..BY... DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and band, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1910. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O. M.,

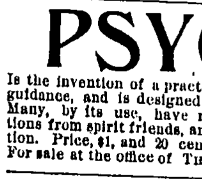
509 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.

Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney diseases, also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.



One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

ORDER OF THE MAGI.

A New Badge in solid gold with blue and black enamel, with the pyramids, obelisk and sun's rays in gold. Every Mystic should have one of these beautiful emblems. Price $2. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

CHRONIC DISEASES A SPECIALTY.

Send your age, name in full in your own handwriting, and I will diagnose your disease

FREE OF CHARGE!

Enclose three 2-cent stamps and address

J. S. COOPER, M. D.

Chillicothe, Mo. 384

MRS. EMMA D. BUSH,

PSYCHIC READER, CLAIRVOYANT AND CLAIRAUDIENT. Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. Room 1408 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill. 382

OCCULT FORCES.

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces. Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to [illegible]

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair. 82 Adams avenue, Detroit, Mich. 382

MANSILL'S ALMANAC —OF— PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

RUPTURE SURE CURE at home book free. Dr. W. S. Rice box 89, Smithville, N.Y. 367 13teow

TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED.

A POWERFUL HEALER AND PSYCHOMETRIST.

Send address, lock of hair and two leading symptoms for diagnosis and remit two 2-cent stamps for return.

DR. M. E. SELLEN,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 383tf

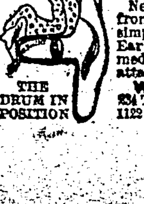
DR. JULIA A. YALE.

Twenty years practice of Medicine and Magnetics. Her band of spirit healers is unsurpassed. Cures when others fail. No case that cannot be relieved. Consultation free. 48 S. May street, Chicago, Ill. Letters inclosing stamps answered. 380

YOUR FUTURE prospects revealed by astral science. Good and bad days, months and years accurately calculated by Professor Geo. W. Walrond, Astrologer, Denver, Colo. 390

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, 809 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for terms, reading, circulars, for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration, healing. The inspirational teachings by correspondence are just what you need. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Psychiscopes $2. 379tf



A HOROSCOPE OF YOUR BIRTH AND ASTRAL reading of your life, with numerous suggestions pointing the way to success through the development of soul force; also a copy of "Sparks from the Infinite," and one private lesson in occultism. Send date of birth and 25 cents to URIEL BUCHANAN, PH. D., 34 Walton Place, Chicago, Ill. 379

WANTED—A MAN ABOUT FIFTY YEARS OLD, a good farmer, and a woman about forty, a good housekeeper and cook; both Spiritualists. Can find permanent employment and life home by addressing A. B. W., Los Angeles, Cal. Enclose stamp. 376

Clairvoyant Reading Free,

With each order for Petoskey Coral Charm, the most beautiful specimen in the world. Send name, age, sex and lock of hair, with P. O. or express money order for $1. Past, present and future. Address F. A. COLE, Box 329, Petoskey, Mich. 379

DEAFNESS

THE DRUM IN POSITION

and Head Noises relieved by using Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drums. New scientific invention; different from all other devices. The only safe, simple, comfortable and invisible Ear Drum in the world. Helps where medical skill fails. No wire or string attachment. Write for pamphlet. WILSON EAR DRUM CO., 324 Trust Bldg., Louisville, Ky. 1122 Broadway, [Room 250] New York.

SCIENCE, MORALITY, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1897, NO. 380.

FIDELITY.

ABSTRACT OF A LECTURE BY DR. DEAN CLARKE—AN ELOQUENT APPEAL TO LUKEWARM SPIRITUALISTS, AND TO DESERTERS TO THE RANKS OF "OUR FRIENDS, THE ENEMY," CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS AND THEOSOPHISTS.

Motto: Fidelity is one of the noblest of virtues.

It is already a trite saying that an important epoch has dawned in human affairs. It is an age of revolutions and of revelations. The struggles of all preceding ages have culminated in the changes and triumphs of the present hour. The labors and sacrifices of the by-gone millions have obtained the progress we now behold and glory in. The end is not yet. Still must the conflict between truth and error, justice and injustice, freedom and despotism continue

New issues arise, old things are passing away, and must be replaced by new and better conditions, relations, and institutions. The Kingdom of Heaven or World of Spirits, is again at hand. The resurrection trumpet is sounding, and its clarion tones are awakening the nations to new life and action. A new dispensation of "spiritual gifts" and spirit power is rousing the dormant world to a realization of impending crises in the dominion of old beliefs and dogmas. An irrepressible conflict between superstition and reason, idolatory and rationalism, bibliolatry and science, is raging. Greek has joined Greek, and the tug of war between facts and fictions, new truths and old opinions, stirs the mental world like an earthquake shock.

Mountainous waves of thought are dashing against the citadels of error, and these ancient strongholds of superstition are tottering to their fall "Principalities and powers," thrones and altars, are convulsed by the onset of awakened mentality, and the stricken hearts of tyrants, both political and ecclesiastical, "like muffled drums are beating funeral marches to their graves." The angels of deliverance have published their Emancipation Proclamation, and the oppressed are struggling to be free; superstitions are dying, bigotry is departing, conservatism is relaxing, reason is triumphing, science is advancing to new victories, and more and more light from on high is illuming "the wide, wide world!"

To live in an age so rife with grand and startling events is no ordinary privilege, and to be an actor in the grand drama of world-moving events is a privilege that heroic souls well might covet.

But are we who now occupy the stage, fully conscious of the mighty import of events now transpiring, and of our great responsibilities to act well our part in the drama? Do we vividly realize that we are making history for future generations to read with admiration, or disgust, and that not only are we shaping our own destiny by the part we are acting, but fashioning in a large degree that of millions yet to be? Such is indeed the momentous fact, and it behooves us each and all to ponder deeply upon the magnitude of our obligations, that we may not be held culpable for neglect of Duty!

This is emphatically "a time that tries men's souls." In the war of ideas already raging, all are enlisted by the powers above, and there is no evasion nor substitution; each must stand at his or her post of duty to defend it, or march on to new conquests. We repeat, ours is a revolutionary, as well as an evolutionary movement. The fundamental ideas and cardinal principles we cherish, are antagonistic to the popular orthodoxy of the age, and hence agitation and conflict are inevitable. "Men may cry 'peace, peace,' but there is no peace." Truth and error cannot dwell together in peace. The wrongs of ages must be righted, for the divine fiat has thus gone forth and there is no escape—we must meet the issue! Only devils and errors cry: "Let us alone!" There is no place for cowards nor laggards in our ranks. Whoever enlists in our cause must be prepared to "fight it out on that line" if it takes a lifetime, and must say to the enemies of truth with the heroism of Fitz James:

"Come one, come all—this rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I!"

Said the immortal and unconquerable Patrick Henry: "Victory comes not to the strong alone, but to the vigilant, the active, the brave"—and it is as true of the moral and spiritual battlefield as of the physical, and we must work unceasingly, sacrifice bountifully—pledge "our fortunes, our lives, and our sacred honor," if need be, to maintain the righteous cause we have espoused, else we are recreant to most sacred obligations, and will deserve the execration of those who follow us, and will have to fight our battles for us!

We need the heroic valor, the unflinching fortitude, and the sublime self-devotion of the old martyrs, and the godlike zeal of all the illustrious champions of human rights and liberty,

"Whose deeds crowd history's pages,
And Time's great volume make."

We have the noble examples of the good and great of all ages before us, who won renown by toiling and sacrificing for truth, and it behooves us to emulate their illustrious deeds. In our veins runs the blood of a heroic ancestry, whose proud fame we cherish with profound veneration, because won by devotion to great principles, at the sacrifice of personal ease and selfish interests. Is not our cause—the cause of truth, of humanity, liberty and progress, as worthy of our devotion? Has the old heroic fire gone out in our blood? Are we degenerate descendants of noble and valiant ancestors, who died that we might live in the enjoyment of civil and religious freedom?

Answer me, ye who profess to believe in the living truths and soul-inspiring ideas that come to-day from "loved ones gone before," yet lack the moral courage to face a frowning priesthood, and defy prejudiced public opinion!

Answer me, ye apathetic, lukewarm Spiritists who lie supinely on beds of ease, and do nothing (but find fault,) and hug your coffers like misers, while veterans are in the field calling for your aid in vain, and your neighbors are sitting in the darkness of old Night, because you hide your light under the bushel of self-interest, and lend no helping hand to spread the "glad tidings" which angels bring from heaven to-day!

Tell me, ye wealthy Spiritists who have means you do not use to spread this glorious gospel of Spiritual Dispensation, are you worthy sons of noble sires, and are you honoring the noble examples set before you by those who pledged their fortunes and their all, to gain the liberties you enjoy? Do you feel self-satisfied in the consciousness that they are hourly looking down upon you, to witness your selfish indifference, and miserly parsimony? If not, (and God help you if you do!) then listen to their stirring appeal as they come from their higher homes to rebuke their successors for the groveling thoughts, their sordid ambition, their craven spirit, and apathetic indolence; and as you hear their merited rebukes, arouse from your legarthy, awake to your duty and redeem yourselves ere you hear their deserved condemnation: "Inasmuch as ye have not done it (your duty) unto your neighbors, and unto their would-be teachers, (the poor mediums and lecturers sent unto them,) ye have dishonored us, your benefactors, and by your sordid, mercenary habits are so hardening your hearts and encrusting your souls with materiality, that we whom you profess to love are driven far from you! Verily you shall have your reward, but you will not have it in the approbation of your spirit friends, nor will you find it in happiness in the spirit-world, till by a long course of self-discipline, you 'work out your own salvation' from the spiritual degradation and degeneracy you are now bringing upon yourselves by Selfishness!"

Spiritualists, it is unbecoming, yea more, dishonorable and cowardly to shirk from duty we owe to humanity to let our light shine, and use every means in our power to spread abroad the benign principles of our philosophic religion. While we are permitted to enjoy privileges no other generation ever had; while blessed with all that science and art can add to the bounties of nature, we have superadded increasing communion with higher realms—beholding "what kings and prophets longed for but were not permitted to see;" while "reaping what others have sown," shall we refuse to sow in our turn, when we hear voices from above saying: "freely ye have received, freely give?"

With such inestimable blessings constantly showered upon us, will we prove recreant and refuse to share our abundance with our neighbors who are calling for the "Bread of Life" we possess? Shall we desert a sacred and holy cause because unclean hands have soiled its shrines, and covet "the fleshpots" of respectability and popular favor found in fashionable churches, which are really little better than "whited sepulchers?"

Because the name we bear has been too often disgraced by mountebanks, frauds, and moral lepers, that may be found among all classes, shall we forsake our post of duty, and call ourselves by some misnomer that may be a little more savory in the dilated nostrils of Mrs. Grundy?

Or, worse than that, shall we leave the ranks that Angels of Light are striving to lead "into green postures and beside still waters," where bloom fragrant flowers of love and truth, and give ear to the seductive platitudes of a mermaid siren miscalled "Christian Science," that entices its followers from the terra firma of solid facts and demonstrated truth, into the deep sea of mysticism and transcendentalism, where reason and common sense are wrecked? Or, what is worse yet, shall we (as hundreds of our former associates have foolishly done,) be enticed to desert the greatest and grandest truth this wonderful age of discovery and inspiration has evolved, by the blandishments of an Oriental Sibyl called Theosophy, who lures her victims into a labyrinthian mazes of dreamy speculations in this world, and then launches them into a still more dreamy heaven?

Nay! brethren, to use the inelegant, but very significant and appropriate language of "Holy Scripture," let us not forsake our scientific philosophy, demonstrated as truth by phenomenal facts such as no other cult possesses, to "go whoring after strange gods," whatever he their alluring claims and fascinations! Let us not forget that Recording Angels are taking note of our every thought and act, and that before their august tribunal we are arraigned every moment to answer for our "sins of omission, as well as commission; and let us vividly bear in mind that all the mighty heroes of the past, the great reformers of every clime, the noble martyrs of every age, uniting with the trusty godlike workers of to-day, will condemn and dishonor all who are unfaithful to their stewardship.

Spiritualists, remember your sacred trust. Great is our responsibility. The angelic host that draws near to bless us calls upon every one of us to arouse to duty, to "work while the day lasts," to act, speak, give for truth and humanity's sake; and with all the pathos of undying love, they beseech us by all that we hold dear; by the memory of the illustrious deeds of the mighty men of old; by the sacred recollections that we cherished for all the heroes who have died for us; by the tender love that we cherish for kindred and friends who from the spheres are gazing upon us; by our love of liberty, truth, justice and all that is exalting in our divine philosophy, that we "lay up treasures in heaven" by helping the poor of earth, who need the truth that shall break their bonds, that makes this world beautiful, joins earth to heaven, and brings peace and joy to aching hearts! Let us stand by our cause, firm and faithful, and honor it by Living its Principles.

Great memories, which retain all indifferently, are the mistresses of an inn, and not the mistresses of a house.—Mme. Necker.

The instinctive feeling of a great people is often wiser than the wisest man.—Kossuth.

WHAT IS SIN?

After examining the best authority we could obtain on the subject we believe that it is generally conceded, that sin is a transgression of what is known as the Mosaic Law. Now to simplify or make more plain, we will quote a few passages from the Bible:

1. "Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

2. "Thou shalt make no image like anything in heaven or earth, and bow down to it.

3. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain.

4. "Thou shalt not do any work on the Sabbath day, because the Lord blessed and hallowed it."

The above are quotations from the old Testament. To transgress any of the above laws was called sin. Any person who was guilty of the offence was condemned by and through the Law, and in the olden times, for a punishment, was cut off from among the people. Whole nations were sometimes ordered destroyed for refusing to conform to these commands.

Up to about the time Jesus came into the world, all who disregarded the law that had been given through Moses were removed from the earth as a punishment for the disobedience. We do not find that disobedience to laws given should affect any life beyond the present. Although we find there was a belief of a continued life and the departed could and did communicate with those on earth, yet it seemed to be generally accepted that any act of good or evil which was done in this world should receive its reward or punishment in this life.

We find commands in the same list that apply to the moral status of the human family, such as: "Thou shalt not kill, steal, nor bear false witness against a neighbor." The penalties attached to the latter commands are the same as those of the former.

This might be conceivable from the standpoint of a personal and jealous God. But as we are fully satisfied that there is no personal God, we know there can be no jealous God; therefore if we should disregard the former charges, it would not be sinning, for our great God of the universe would not care if we do make images out of gold to worship, or work on the Sabbath day. And as sin is the transgression of the Mossaic or Divine Law, and with a God who does not care for any transgression which does not affect Him, we have no offense that can be called sin. We have offences that we call crimes, such as thieving, and murder; to those we have a penalty attached, some of them similar to those of olden times.

The more modern definition of sin is: "Being ungrateful for gifts of Providence, by an ommission to fulfill a positive command given by God to man, to depart voluntarily from a path of duty prescribed by God, or any thought, word, or deed, against the law of God."

Now, without a personal God to receive gifts and adorations, how can we be ungrateful for gifts. We all know that we have never received any gifts from God, more than we naturally would in following closely to nature's laws. Nothing that we poor mortals can say, think or do, can add to, or detract one single iota from, the standing or glory of an infinite God. The laws we find recorded in the Bible were written by men under an inspiration similar to what speakers of our day have, and are colored more or less to conform with the times. Moses being a leader, and wishing to hold his people under subjection, turned every transgression of the law he made into sin, which was punishable with death.

And as we come down later, to the time of Christ and his disciples, we find they patterned after the olden laws. Paul was a great stickler for what he called divine law, and original sin. We have not been able to make original sin a tangible thing. With the best explanation we can find, it is entirely too metaphysical for the human mind to comprehend, and as sin is the omission or transgression of the Mosaic or Divine law, we do not sin when we refuse to follow a path which we cannot understand. Believing as we do, that if we should follow a course which the church fathers have lain down for us, we could add nothing to God's glory, and by refusing to follow we should take nothing away, therefore we have committed no sin when we refuse to accept that part of the law called divine as a guide to our actions.

The moral law should be followed, and every one should approach the teachings of the Golden rule, as near as possible, as well as the command to love one another; and the Higher law, do all for others. We do not say that the human family cannot commit wrongs, or crimes, but from our standpoint, we can see nothing we can do that would be a sin that should merit eternal punishment.

R. N. WILCOX.

Avery, Ohio.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

The New York Herald says: "Mrs. J. L. Treadwell, a society woman of Emporia, Kan., has sacrificed a pet poodle dog as a burnt offering, declaring she did so to propitiate an offended God, who had decreed the death of her two children. She says she saw the Lord face to face in a vision, and he told her to offer up a living sacrifice. The good woman has recently become deeply interested in religion."

That was pretty rough on the poodle, but a decided improvement over the sacrificing of children to appease God's anger. If acceptable to the Divine ruler—and it appears from the conversation between him and Mrs. T. it was so—then let the dogs suffer from this out, and spare the babies.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

SATAN IN FRANCE.

THE EXPOSURE OF SATANISM—GREATEST FARCE OF THE AGE—ROMISH DIGNITARIES IN A RIDICULOUS POSITION.

Much attention has been attracted lately in France by two books published in Paris entitled "The Devil in the XIXth Century" and the "Memoirs of Diana Vaughan," purporting to give descriptions of the supposed invocation and worship of satan by a secret body of Paladists or Luciferians, who were affirmed to have an organization which spread ramifications over the Old World and the New.

This organization was stated to be governed by a secret society existing among some of the highest officers in freemasonry, with the intention of seeking to dethrone the worship of the orthodox God and establish the cult of Lucifer as a God of light and freedom.

The first book included the most extraordinary gruesome tales, baited with the additional appeal to the public taste for sensationalism, of blood-curdling illustrations. The second book was presented as being the confession of an ex-high-priestess of Palladism, who had become converted to Catholicism. She was supposed to describe the evocations of Satan at which she had assisted, at which the arch-demon had appeared as a handsome, sad-eyed young man, in modern evening dress.

The church fell into the trap artfully laid for them by the editors, and gave their support to these works, quoting them in lectures, books and pulpit. A whole literature sprung up like fungi round the poisonous parent plants. The horned Devil of the dark Middle Ages walked forth revivified to conquer the world afresh in the XIXth Century.

Some wide-awake reporters, however, saw a fresh field for their enterprise in this new sensation, and pushed full tilt at the slimy monster with sharp pointed pens. The Verité, the Libre Parole, the Matin, the Univers, the Eclair, successively brought their detective ability to bear, and gradually the bubble collapsed in consecutive exposures.

M. Gastave Mery, of the Libre Parole, summed these up in a little pamphlet entitled the "Truth about Diana Vaugah." A series of interviews with one of the writers of the first book, by different journalists is included. This gentleman—Dr. Hacks by name—had contributed under the pseudonym of Dr. Bataille, as officer in a steamship line he had traveled in the East, and was thus able to contribute fantastic tales of Munchausen characteristics. He had been engaged as a journalist and had worked up second-hand matter to meet the requirements of the editor. He had always been a materialist, and absolute disbeliever in the supernatural. The whole enterprise was got up, he callously stated, to make money out of "the unfathomable stupidity of the Catholics, whose silliness is such that they would not now believe I had bamboozled them, were I to tell them so." He referred to his readers in good-humored chaff as "a few thousand imbeciles." He had, however, duly contributed to a part of the first book, and had withdrawn when he found that the public were taking his humbug seriously, and that personal questions were being entered into. He had made a good haul, anyway, as his share, and had subsequently purchased a restaurant, which he requested his interviewers to advertise.

The leading editor is stated to be a M. Jogand, who wrote under the name of Taxil. This man had at one time been a freemason, when he wrote some pornographic, antic-clerical works, "The Secrets of the Confessionals," the "Mistresses of Pope Pius IX." Being moved by grace, however, he became converted and went over to the church, which event was followed by the publication of some anti-masonic books, but these remained a drug in the market, so something fresh and more taking had to be discovered wherewith to draw money from his new surroundings, as Dr. Hacks stated above. The dose was made strong, but was swallowed, and the enterprise proved a big financial success: 20,000 subscribers took in the monthly publications at a franc a number, says Hacks. A writer to whom the Eclair gives prominence says: "To have created a new religion, to have described its ceremonial and rituals; to have named its priests and adepts; to have revivified the horned devil of the Middle Ages is no commonplace achievement. But when the author has had the satisfaction of seeing the whole Catholic world follow his lead and quote his tales as facts of truth, he may indeed be entitled to claim to rank as the King of Charlatans.

All this publicity, however, obliged the authorities of the Catholic church at last to examine into the basis on which the statements made in these books rests, to which they had, alas, too willingly and too easily lent their support. At an anti-masonic congress held, recently at Trent, reports the Catholic journal L' Univers, Taxil was called upon by leading ecclesiastics, to submit proofs of the existence of Diana Vaughan. This Taxil evaded as long as possible, but finally engaged to do so under the seal of the confessional to Bishop Lazzaresch, but failed to keep his appointment. A commission was subsequently constituted at Rome, before which he however again failed to appear.

Meanwhile another of his ex-partners, Margiotta, quarrelled and published an exposure in La Justice Libre, of Lyons, in which he withdrew his statement previously made, that he had met Diana Vaughan at Naples, and affirmed that it is Taxil's wife who is the real Diana, as Jogand is Taxil, and Hacks is Bataille. Madame Jogand, says: I Mery, not having been "converted" by grace like her husband, has continued to sell pornagraphic anti-clerical works from under the same roof, all the time that he was deluding the Catholic world with his "Diable" mystications. Whether Margiotta has himself been skillfully misled by Taxil, or whether his statement is made to throw the reporters off the track, is difficult to estimate. In any case he appears to be wrong. The writer in the Eclair already referred to states that the real holder of the role of Diana Vaughan has been discovered; that she is a woman in the employ of Taxil who acts as his secretary. All the letters which have been directed to Diana Vaughan and to which he has dictated the replies are in his possession. A part of the farce was kept up by making Diana Vaughan appear to be traveling all over the world, thus adding to the difficulty of laying hold of her. This was done by handing the replies to the letters addressed to her by the sympathetic believers in this skillfully-imagined personage, to an agency at 20th Passage, de l' Opera, Paris, who for a small fee undertake to post letters entrusted to them for that purpose, from any town in the world, according to instructions.

If it should happen that Taxil should become re-converted to some other belief, and should decide to publish this correspondence as a fitting conclusion to his colossal mystification and to exhibit the charming person who has played the part of Diana Vaughan and written the voluminous correspondence of the Passage de l' Opera at his dictation, the consequences would be unpleasant to many who have given their ardent support to this fictitious personification. It would be disagreeable for Cardinal Rampolla, who wrote to her that the Pope had shed tears on reading the edifying memoirs of the young convert; to Cardinal Parrochi, who wrote to her on December 16, 1895, that her conversion was one of the most magnificent acts of grace he had ever witnessed; to Bishop Villard, who as late as October 19, 1896, sent her a fresh letter of sympathetic encouragement; to Bishop Fava, Abbe Mustel and Abbe Bessonces who affirmed that they were convinced of her existence. Also to the Vicar of Saint Lucca, who has stated that he made a journey with her and to Mr. Lantier, president of the Order of Barristers of St. Peter, who has stated that he has lunched with her.

Taxil does not think that the time has yet come to show his own hand, to judge from an interview reported in the Matin, and still hopes to make bluff pay. But the writer in the Eclair appears to convey a veiled threat that if Taxil does not soon throw up the game, he may find himself forced to do so.

Paris. QUAESTOR VITAE.

A THEOSOPHIST PANTHEIST.

A very old woman had a very old cheese.
The age of this cheese still remains a great riddle;
In summer 'twould thaw, in winter 'twould freeze;
But a grub reincarnate once appeared in its middle.

When that cheese froze again, this grub was no more;
His soul, now decarnate, floated off in the cheese;
But this theosophic grub had left millions of spore;
So when this cheese thawed, many grubs came from these.

Thus, year after year, grubs went and grubs came;
Till tradition e'en failed to expain their beginning;
But a scientific grub, reincarnate, now came,
Born again in this cheese, to atone for old sinning.

For ages and ages he'd floated in space,
All through this great cheese—so surely 'twas old—
All the time looking out for a suitable place
In which to incarnate and further unfold.

Being now a wise grub, far wiser than others;
Like Blavatsky, or Olcott, he resolved to advise;
And the many wise doctrines he preached to his brothers
Where received with great joy, and with wide-open eyes.

So he called a convention, most solemn and odd;
Big grubs, little grubs, grubs of all age;
The question to discuss was: What, and where's God?
This question he answered—this scientific sage.

Quoth he: Silly grubs, in learning I'm skilled;
I've been born and have died many hundred times o'er.
Now to you I declare that all space is filled
With God—which is cheese—there can be nothing more.

There exists but one substance, and that is pure cheese;
As cheese you can see it, but as God it is smell.
(Just here this sage stopped until he could sneeze)
And they all said they knew about God, very well.

Now we're in the cheese, and the cheese is in us;
With cheese we are filled, and we fill the cheese;
I adjourn this convention, without further fuss.
Go—gnaw, and be happy—you are all God and cheese.

K. D. WISE.

The one prudence in life is concentration; the one evil is dissipation.—Emerson.

Bad habits are as infectious by example as the plague itself is by contact.—Fielding.

There was speech in their dumbness; language in their very gesture.—Shakspeare.

There is no gain so certain as that which arises from sparing what you have.—Publius Syrus.

There is nothing so likely to produce peace as to be well prepared to meet the enemy.—Washington.

The sure way to miss success is to miss the opportunity.—Chasles.

TEST EXACTIONS.

MEDIUMS AND THEIR TREATMENT—RESULTS OF IMPOSED CONDITIONS—EVILS FLOWING FROM PAINFUL TESTS, SUSPICION AND DISTRUST.

To the Editor:—I have been thinking—but this need not occasion you serious alarm nor surprise, while you are aware that I am a reader of your paper, whose weekly contents will awaken into healthy and progressive activity the mental digestive powers of the most phlegmatic temperament; and in consequence of such healthy stimulation, the writer's mental digestive powers have become so unexpectedly active, as already stated, thoughts have even been evolved by a due assimilation of the good things always found spread upon the pages of The Progressive Thinker.

May the philoxera of time deal gently with its guiding spirit, and preserve both from its dread ravishes until overripeness removes them from their earthly sphere of usefulness. The thoughts evolved, like the weekly menu of your paper, are somewhat of a mixed breed. They sometimes take on a complexion of sad soberness; but oftener are born with the bright wing of the oriole and hummingbird, and joyously flutter in, and make brighter the sometime eclipsed sunshine of my life.

Somber thoughts have always been to me an abomination. I never allow them houseroom longer than it may require to evict them from the mental premises. Yet they, too, are useful to man, when made to serve as the shadows and half-tones of the landscapes of human life; but when misplaced by the unskilled and unphilosophic artist, the picture is marred in its happiest and brightest coloring, and may prove disastrous to the most promising landscape of human existence.

While perusing and mentally digesting the varied contents of The Progressive Thinker, as well as the daily papers, the sad uncomfortable conviction forces itself upon my mind that "Humanity has lost entire confidence in itself." The integrity of its units is suspected by the whole, when such units attempt to present to the rest of humanity a new thought, or truth.

This distrust of humanity in itself, seems to have reached a greater intensity among Spiritualists than any other class of people. The great demand for crucial test conditions at seances, for so-called physical spiritual manifestations, furnishes but one of the many expressions of distrust; and it is this with which we intend to deal in this letter.

Mediumship at the present day—especially that of a physical character—seems to have become the synonym of rascality and inborn knavery. No sooner does the so-called spiritualistic world become informed of certain phenomenal developments through the mediumistic channel of some heretofore unknown unite of humanity, than the cry: Test! Test! Test! resounds through the land. Gyves, chains, ropes, ashes, flour, squirtguns, darklanterns, etc., are speedily prepared, and the "Tester" goes forth with the grand consciousness that on him alone depends the purity or impurity of the phenomenal atmosphere; and the unsuspecting, but honest sensitives, newly entering into the field of psychical labor, are at once made to feel the keen stings of the "Thorns of disappointment;" by having their best and holiest motives impugned. By being required to practice their particular phase of mediumship under conditions to which we subject only the most hardened criminals, the sensitives, if possessed of but a moiety of native pride, with consciousness of purity of motives, are driven from the field of spiritual activities.

Or, should the honesty of purpose and zeal in his labor overcome the scruples of inherent pride and the medium continue his or her medial service amid the atmosphere of distrust with which these so-called testers must necessarily surround them, and knowing themselves to be treated as criminals ready to defraud their fellow beings, such mediums must at last become callous to the welfare of such investigators whose relationship to them is a standing insinuation of guilt; the medium's sympathy for his fellowman must proportionately dry at its source, and mediumship becomes merely a means to supply the wants of the physical man. The result is easily foreseen. A short season will suffice, and the ending is a disgraceful exposure.

I do not wish to be understood as condoning the perpetration of fraud by so-called mediums at their seances; for I consider such a most cruel and reprehensible crime, for which punishment cannot be too severe; but let us not lay the whole blame upon the sensitive when deception is apparent unless proof positive, pointing to premeditation on the part of the medium, is found.

A medium, with manacled hands and feet, or wound about with cords, and tied to his seat; enclosed in a bag tied securely about the neck; or with bare feet in a pan of flour, and both hands filled with rice or fine ashes, does not make a picture to impress the investigator with the highest and noblest thoughts. It is a picture that must be causative of painful reflections in the minds of sensitives and noble minded sitters at such "Test seances," and must tend to lower the medium's personality, not only in his own mind, but also in the minds of those seeking his services.

As a medium, he becomes intensely sensitive to the thoughtworld of his surroundings and appreciates at their full value those acts or thoughts which in the least degree reflect upon the honesty of his motives. And feeling himself prejudged as guilty of crime because of his mediumship, and the honest desire to use the same in the interest of humanity; he soon awakens from the roseate dreams of the holiness of his mission, to the stern realities of his prosaic relationship as a unit, to the rest of mistrusting humanity. His mind once disenchanted; and the holiness of his mission fading into the uncertain mists of obscurity, every consecutive test seance will become a rung of the ladder adown which the sensitive is being thrust, until the lowest level of mediumship is reached, his powers becoming but a commodity to be bartered for a certain amount of lucre per hour; till at last—and worst of all!—his former spirit guides, finding their efforts fruitless to penetrate the dense atmosphere of mistrust surrounding their instrument with whom they had hoped to accomplish great and noble results, reluctantly abandon their charge for other fields of activities, and leave their medium to the mercies of less scrupulous spirit operators; and the result of all this is seen in the disgraceful exposures which are eagerly chronicled by the daily press over all the land.

My experiences of nearly twenty years with phenomenal phases of Spiritualism have convinced me that the mental status of the sitters at a seance, determines the purity or impurity of the manifestation, and have an influence on the moral or immoral tendency of the medium.

We do not ask crucial "test conditions" of mediums because of our overflowing and implicit confidence in their integrity; nor can it be said that we do so on account of a great respect we entertain for their person or powers The fact that we are willing, and even anxious, to subject a fellow being to self-debasing conditions in order to satisfy ourselves as to that person's honesty, which we have arbitrarily prejudged, precludes the possibility of respect, confidence, or even a care for the present welfare of such person, having any mental houseroom with the investigator.

Spiritual seances, my experience teaches me, do not always constitute the happiest hours of the medium officiating, even when no test conditions are required. Often these hours—which should be looked forward to by the medium as moments of holy and exquisite pleasure—become an eternity of torture mentally and physically. And when under such conditions the manifestations are not in accord with the expectations of the investigator, the sensitive is doubly punished, and to the tortures of the seance are added insinuations of fraud or immature mediumship; though under favorable conditions the manifestations may be of the best.

Nature expresses itself best when left untrammeled and free. Attempt to enforce "test conditions" on the varied avenues through which Nature seeks expression in myriad forms of beauty, and the results of such interference would be disastrous in the extreme. Malformations and imperfections of a multitudinous variety would result from such interference.

Man, in order to produce the highest and best possible results in the varied departments of human activities, cannot be fettered in his operations by so-called "test conditions" in order to prove his ability in a particular calling; as this would lessen the power of productiveness to the extent of such applied tests.

Had the "flour and rice tests" been applied to the mental and physical hands of Edison, Roentgen, or Tesla, would the useful inventions and discoveries, humanity enjoys to-day, have materialized in as perfect form as we know them? No! Nature, in all her operations will not be hampered. Should we attempt to do so, she promptly resents our presumption by refusing to accede to our demands.

Spiritual phenomena can occur only along lines of least resistance, and strictly within the realm of natural domain; and with any attempt on our part to abstruct the varied channels through which spiritual intelligences seek to express themselves with crucial test conditions and presume to enforce conditions other than those which these intelligencies find best adapted to their purpose, it seems to me that as intelligent and rational beings we ought not to expect any other result than utter failure, or, at best, but a poor travesty on the products of unshackled Nature.

If we are unwilling to entertain special considerations for our mediums, to which their great sensitiveness should entitle them; let us at least treat them with that respect we accord to all other members of our common brother and sisterhood, until by some volitional act of their own, uninfluenced by insinuations of guilt or mistrust on our part, they shall have forfeited our esteem as honorable units of the community.

Calcium, Pa. HERMAN DERSH.

A HELPER FOR THE OBSESSED.

To the Editor:—I am happy to lay before those readers of The Progressive Thinker who are suffering from the torment of evil spirits the following letter from a veteran medium, who has scaled the heights and has been invested with power to cast out demoniac spirits.

CHAS. BETTS.

"Brother Betts: Any person or persons, suffering from obsession, no matter if they have to be bound and shackled; no matter if they are in the coils of a legion of devils, if they will come to me I will cure them. I have been given the power to cast out devils, and in the future I intend to use it. I am too poor to go to the people; they must come to me.

Without money, and without price, shall these devils be cast out and sent to their reward. The power is with me. I cannot send it to relieve those obsessed, hence they must come to me.

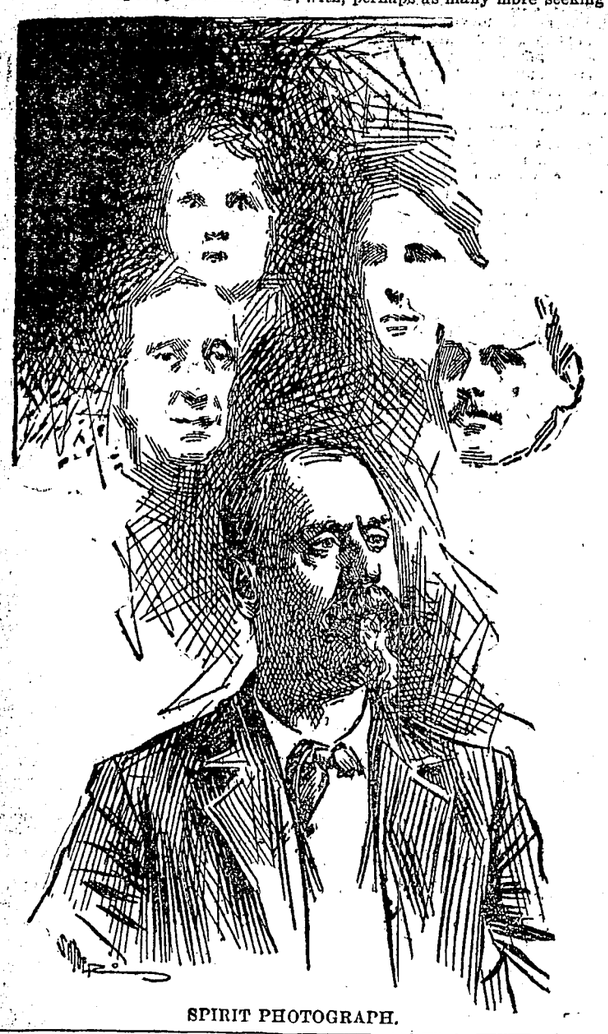
The more desperate the case the better. I say this, that the world may know that the power that Jesus possessed is again upon the earth, though the people know it not. Truth will again be offered to the inhabitants of earth, and well will it be if they accept it. Jesus is coming in Spirit and in Truth, to finish his work, and woe unto those who shall do violence under his name, or his truth." G. H. MILLER.

537 Monroe St., Springfield, Mo.

HIS IDEA OF HADES.

A Michigan evangelist is inspiring unwonted zeal for salvation among his multitude of hearers. He portrays hell as a large hall, at one end of which a walking match is going on, while at the other "Bob" Ingersoll is delivering a lecture on "Genesis."—New York Tribune.

SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPHY.



A CRITICAL EXAMINATION OF ONE OF THE MULTIFARIOUS PHASES OF SPIRIT PHENOMENA, ILLUSTRATING THE WONDERFUL VIBRATORY FORCES THAT PROJECT IMAGES ON THE PHOTOGRAPHER'S PLATE—EXPLORATION OF A DOMAIN THAT ENTERS THE SPIRITUAL.

Like the myriads of meteorolites that are drawn constantly to the earth's surface by its own magnetism, unobserved by mortal eyes, or like the multifarous atoms of animal life continually occurring which are so infinitesimally minute that they live and die unseen by man, are the metaphysical manifestations taking place everywhere and all the time (says the Chicago Inter-Ocean). One of the best illustrations of the foregoing is the phenomenon of spectral or spirit photography; also called psychic or anomalistic pictures.

While the devotees are many, those who practice it as a profession are few, for it requires one who is gifted with great magnetic properties to be reasonably sure of success.

Chicago can boast of perhaps ten experts capable of producing spirit photographs, and among them may be mentioned Mr. Chalmers Rose, Mrs. S. H. Tripp, Mr. M. M. Jackman, and Mr. W. Clark Wilson.

Mr. S. W. Fallis, engraver and photographer of this city, has devoted many years to spirit photography, and has the finest collection of images of these denizens of the occult world in Chicago. A curious and strange photograph produced by him shows the burning cold-storage warehouse at the World's Fair grounds on July 10, 1893. The picture was taken on the spot by Mr. Fallis. In the clouds of smoke and fire appear the apparitions of the fifteen who lost their lives in this disastrous fire. It will be remembered that many reliable witnesses claim to have distinctly seen in the somber ruins of the cold-storage warehouse the captain of the fire department, his twelve brave firemen, and three other men who lost their lives at the same time.

SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPH.

Spirit photography is an abnormal development in an otherwise ordinary photograph. Effects of various unknown—or, at least, unseen—forces are the direct cause of superstition. Usually seekers who set out to find the established principles underlying the long list of spiritualistic tests are skeptical, even to the extent of claiming for themselves non-convincing minds, holding all to be a sham. This is at the outset; but at the conclusion of their inquiries all agree that the phenomena are real, but many differ as to the source.

Spectral photography has claimed the attention, study and experimentation of the world's greatest scientists, who have reached their conclusions through the agency of the best mediums.

EMINENT INVESTIGATORS.

Among the former are such men as Professors Wallace and Crookes, the great physicists of England; Professor Varley, the famous electrician, who was associated with Cyrus Field in the laying of the Atlantic cable; Professor Aksakof, the well-known scientist of Russia; Professor Wagner an associate with Professor Zollern during the latter's remarkable experiments with Mr. Henry Slade, the American medium, and both scientific investigators of renown; Dr. Baraduc, the brilliant French scientist, who, through his experiments in spectral photography, has been able to demonstrate the practicability of photographing thought; W. T. Stead, the well-known newspaper man of London and editor of the Review of Reviews and Borderland; the dramatist, Victorien Sardou, who has written the play "Spiritisme" as his endorsement of the belief; and in our own country of Dr. Robert Hare, the eminent Philadelphia chemist; Mme. H. P. Blavatsky, author of "Isis Unveiled," and Colonel Olcott, the founder of the Theosophical Society and co-worker with "H. P. B."

Some of these have been carried over to the spiritualistic belief, classifying it with spirit power; others have explained it by the existence of a fourth dimension of space, and, again, others by animal magnetism; but many ascribe it to the combination of these two. This is probably the correct solution for all matter so transcendentally fine exists in the fourth dimension of space, as well as the co-related forces.

Like the hieroglyphics of the Egyptians that were conceded by antiquarians to be unsolvable, yet were suddenly made clear by the discovery of the Rosetti stone, which proved to be the key, so animal magnetism has been the index of occult manifestations. Many theorists want—aye, demand—the proof of "sense seeing;" that is, to perceive by one of the five physical senses the ultra-matter and forces that actuate it. They accept, however, the fact that oxygen is not an imaginary but a real matter; yet it is an impalpable, tasteless, odorless, colorless gas, which we pass through without difficulty. Cohesion holding its attenuated atoms together, they can be so acted upon as to draw them into a visible, tangible liquid, that can no longer oppose gravity, and form a barrier capable of resisting strength. This change is brought about by pressure. A second metamorphosis will result in a hard substance we call ice.

THE FIFTH VISUAL PHASE.

The fifth visual phase of Spiritualism, or spectral photography, depends upon a refined matter and forces not more wonderful than oxygen. The name, "fifth visual phase," is so-called by virtue of its being the fifth degree of metaphysics called spiritual that can be observed with the organs of sight. These pictures may be traced back to antiquity. Thus, at many feasts during the pristine reign of Rameses II. the Egyptian necromancers were animated by the god Apis. Archeology reveals to us the fact that ecclesiastics would gather in the temple of Apollo, at Delphi, and witness many wonders in picture seeing. With the advent of Christianity the prevailing notions that these pictures were the result of controlling influences of the gods ceased, and the sorcerers were regarded as being in direct contact with the evil one. The latter half of this century has again witnessed a remarkable change in public opinion, but there are as many creeds concerning the pictures to-day as there were during the reign of the Babylonian kings. Out of this ancient knowledge has evolved the doctrine of Spiritualism, with what results can be seen when it is stated that there are over 50,000 actual adherents in Chicago, with, perhaps as many more seeking to know positively if their spirit friends can really return to the earth sphere and can be seen, conversed with, manifest themselves in other ways, and be photographed.

As a religion, what does Spiritualism offer its devotees? It assures its followers, as does no other system of faith or philosophy, the continued life of the soul or spirit of man, capable of communicating with those dearest in earth life, with the everlasting punishment of hell left out. To a family bereft of a loved one the Spiritualist finds as much comfort in the thought that, though the body is gone, the spirit is ever near (and for this reason they speak of one dead as having "passed over") as a Christian does in the ultimate heaven or a Theosophist in a new reincarnated life.

I have known several families who have had the spirits of their dead photographed regularly.

Is it spirit power by which these spectral photographs are made, or is it due to other forces acting as mysteriously on a photographic plate as the cathode ray?

ANIMAL MAGNETISM THE FORCE.

We believe it due to that subtile vibration, animal magnetism, and claim these pictures are made by psychic forces that can be controlled by the correctly cultivated faculties incarnated in man. For every one cannot be the medium through which a spectral photograph can be made, but it is possible to develop the power to do so, which is accountable for its growing tendencies. Our object is to reasonably account for these pictures that both Spiritualists and Theosophists explain by methods equally convincing individually, the former by the very doctrine of the existence of the photographs themselves, the latter by the Buddhistic tenet of the linga sharira, the former empirical, the latter esoteric and indefinite.

The etheric vibrations employed in the night-born names of Spiritualism, hypnotism and theosophy, were the identical latent influence that during the last quarter of the seventeenth century was the witchcraft which stirred the fanatics into a barbarous frenzy. It is true, science has done and is doing much to clear away the mystery that has hung like an impenetrable veil over the true facts. It has condemned that which needed condemnation, admitting truth for truth's sake, until at last what was formerly and is sometimes now considered to exceed the laws of nature by the overzealous or superstitious is shown to be due to perfectly natural laws, though those laws deal with the interjacent medium of the ego and the material body. From a scientific standpoint the sensitives of to-day are far in advance of those of a century ago. Many of the mediums have made a study of the tests, with the result that instead of producing a fleeting image upon a brightened metal surface they employ the latest photographic instruments and appliances and obtain lasting silver prints of faces and forms whose etheric molecules are not compact enough to be visible to the naked eye but sufficiently so to act upon the light waves.

A spectral photograph is not different from an ordinary one, except for the vague images outlined around the material head that had been projected upon the plate in the camera and reproduced on albumen paper by the regular photographic process.

Before taking up the scientific side of the question it will be well to explain the spiritualistic theory of spectral photography. Briefly, it is this: We are constantly surrounded by spirit forms invisible to the eye, except under certain conditions, yet at times presumably real enough to change by some unknown chemical property the nature of a sensitized photographic plate, the medium bringing the shadowy visitant before the camera at the proper time. The photographs prove the forms exist, but science says the forms were etheric molecules compacted in human form, but through the agency of actinic light the chemical nature of the plate was changed.

Nearly every phase of Spiritualism has been explained away by the philosophy of hypnotism or the science of suggestion, but the spectral photograph does not affect the mind of the observer directly, but can alone cause an impression upon it by the sense of vision.

DAGUERRE'S DISCOVERIES.

Authentic memorials show that when M. Daguerre discovered the cunning process of fixing the image of the camera obscura in 1838 blotches frequently occurred, sometimes assuming the shape of a head. Like instances are recorded while the collodion process was still in vogue. From 1855, the time Dr. Taupenot introduced the first dry-plate process, the number of spirit photographs constantly increased, although but little was heard of them owing to the prejudice against Spiritualism.

Spirit photography was not known to England until 1872, when Mr. Hudson, who, by the way, was not a Spiritualist, succeeded in producing on the plate a tall shadowy figure, finely draped in white, gauzy robes. Therefore one does not need to be a Spiritualist to be a medium. As the following of the Fox sisters began to assume enormious proportions, and as no scientific conclusions were reached by those interested in this new wonder of photography, and as those of spiritualistic faith were ever on the alert for new phenomena in Spiritualism in what is now the fifth visual phase, they found a test exceptionally convincing, especially when the investigator uses his own plate and camera, and develops the sensitized plate in his own dark-room.

The spirit photograph seems to have no practical value, yet investigators continue to experiment in the hopes of making some important discovery. From a scientific standpoint it demonstrates the possibility in the future of wonderful achievements. More is known to-day, after sixty years of spirit photography, of the force and etheric matter employed than was known of electricity the first hundred years after its discovery by Thales. About twelve years ago Mr. Battle made a number of experiments in electro photography, using a static current of electricity of very high potential surrounding the camera box, but obtained no result other than some lateral markings on the negative. Mr. Battle's theory at the time was that the force which caused the duplicate or multiple heads or forms to surround the material head of the person whose photograph was to be taken was of a nature analogous to electricity, and he believed he could obtain photographs without the intermedium of a lens. The failure of Mr. Battle's experiment seems to me to be of sufficient evidence that an electrical current is too coarse a form of etheric vibration to get the fine results we see in spirit photography. Since the introduction of the cathode rays, which is a much finer degree of etheric manifestation, several wonderful photographs have been made, and had it been found possible to photograph through solid substances without a Crookes tube, but with a human radiator or sensitive instead, the photographs would have undoubtedly been known as the sixth visual phase in Spiritualism. The method of procedure in obtaining a multiple or spirit photograph by the cathode rays is being kept a secret by its two discoverers, who have been working on lines entirely different from other experimentalists, so far as the observations of those concerned are known. They believe they have nearly arrived at the final solution of natural-color photography, and also a new and quick way of duplicating photographs. If it fails the pictures will probably be known as the cathode spirit photographs; if found successful enough to become of commercial importance, this phase of Spiritualism will be lost in the depths of utility. Some day in the near future spirit photographs will have a practical value.

NO SPECIAL APPARATUS.

Ordinarily no apparatus is necessary to obtain a spectral picture other than the regular appliances to be found in any studio, although a good medium is required. Where the medium or sensitive is employed, the phase produced is termed intentional, but frequently, as before stated, the photographs are found with forms outlined upon them, while neither the photographer nor his patron was known to be mediumistic. This phase is called involuntary spirit photography.

When the spectral picture is desired, the medium takes his position at a distance of four or five feet from the person who wishes photographic proof of spirit life. It has been found that better results are obtained when the light falls upon the sitter directly from the top—due, in all probability, to the etheric lines of force coming in contact with the waves of light.

In a test seance that occurred on the afternoon of Oct. 25, 1896, at my residence, Englewood, and at which several prominent mediums were present, a number of spectral photographs were made by Dr. Daly, with the aid of the above-mentioned gentlemen. The sensitive did not go into a trance, but said he would concentrate his thoughts in the vicinity of myself. He was very negative in electrical action, while I, as a hypnotist, was the opposite, or positive, or both negative, no result will follow on the plate. An extreme concentrativeness of desire by a magnetically gifted person often causes the inert fluid to travel to the point thought of with marvelous velocity, for time and space control the living material body to an extreme measure, but have little effect on the magnetism of a being and absolutely none upon the soul. While a sensitive can traject the magnetism of his own body, he may not have a knowledge of how he accomplishes it. When the forces of the sensitive and the sitter come in contact, a reaction takes place which causes the etheric molecules to compact sufficiently to act upon the light waves. As the positive magnetism emerges from the sitter, it is not strange that the forms and faces should be recognized by him, although, of course, all of them are not. "Thoughts are things" as real on the plane of thought as matter is real on the physical plane, and undoubtedly thought is the motive power which shapes the outlines of the spirit photographs. Adepts can see this force as it comes from the bodies of sensitives, and Colonel Olcott mentions an instance where he had seen it "ooze out of the left side of the body."

During the seance above referred to, a large electro-magnet was suspended in the air, while the medium concentrated his thoughts on it. It was then photographed. In nearly every case faces and forms appeared, but always distorted in the direction of the magnet. In another experiment the magnet was drawn in a perpendicular line along the body of the sitter. After the exposure, which was of three minutes' duration, the lens was "stopped down," with the smallest diaphragm, to give the clearest definition. The plate was developed and found to be covered with peculiar markings. Again, the magnet was held near the sensitive, and no results were obtained. The magnetism emanating from his body was probably drawn into the vortex of the magnetic lines of force exerted by the electro-magnet. After this experiment the subject was so exhausted that it was fully forty minutes before he entirely recovered. This magnetic force, which every one possesses to a greater or less degree, is the medium, I believe, that connects the purely spiritual man to his material body. Animal magnetism is a force so infinitely much finer than electricity that a comparison could be made only as between electricity and water. We speak of electricity as a fluid, because its action resembles that of fluids to a considerable extent, yet, as we know, it has many properties which fluids do not have. For instance, it will travel in any direction with equal velocity, regardless of gravitation, its greatest retarding influence being an imperfect conductor. Animal magnetism travels with no other conductor than ether itself, always returning to the body that gave it forth, until death ensues, when it may or may not be immediately dissipated.

I have talked with many photographers in Chicago, and 50 per cent have declared that they have negatives spoiled or disfigured by "fogged" spots which they were unable to account for. Several mentioned the significant fact that these spots often took on the shape of a face or a head and were at times absolutely grotesque.

Spiritualism has its truths, as well as theosophy, and, if one is seeking that knowledge which is hidden from most people, let the student visit the seances of the sensitives and the somnambules, and the psychological research societies, and, with due study and patience, the knowledge of occultism will be revealed to the scholar when he is ready to receive it. A. FREDERICK COLLINS.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

Do all for others.

SUBJECT.

What is the highest rule of human conduct?

Leaders of the older groups: The Golden Rule is, Do unto others as ye would they shall do unto you. The Angelic Rule is, Do all for others.

All the heroes and martyrs for truth exemplify the practical application of the angelic; from Jesus murmuring on the cross through the ashen lips of death: "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do!" down the long line to the Howards, Nightingales and Clara Bartons. (Examples given by members, as of the sacrifice of the three hundred Greeks at Thermopylae; the pilot of the burning steamship standing at the wheel until the vessel touched the shore and the passengers were saved, and then fell back into the flames; the miners who go down into the shafts to rescue their fellow-workmen, etc.)

The highest aim should be to bestow legitimate pleasure, and contribute to the sum of happiness of all, and avoid giving pain; thereby do we reach the most perfect joy for ourselves; the sphere of heaven.

The veneration of the world is bestowed on those saviors, who by showing that they placed the welfare of others before their own, have pointed the way which when all follow, will usher in the reign of love—the millennium.

As we are not to become spiritual beings at our departure from the earthly body, but are spirits now, clad in flesh, spiritual beings now as much as we shall be in the future; walking in the courts of heaven, in the presence of God as much as we shall in any higher sphere, the angelic rule should be our ideal although we may not actualize it, in the antagonizing conditions which surround us.

Leaders of the younger groups: Illustrate these rules by examples and drawing out from the children stories of kindness to their pets and companions. All desire to become perfect and our ideal angel is free from selfishness and has love and charity.

Do unto another what you would have him do unto you, and do not unto another what you would not have him do unto you. You need this law alone; it is the foundation of all the rest.—Confucius, Chinese sage, B. C. 551.

We should conduct ourselves toward others as we would have them act towards us.—Aristotle, Greek philosopher, B. C. 385.

Avoid doing what you would blame others for doing.—Thales, Greek, B. C. 464.

Act towards others as you desire them to act toward you.—Isocrates, Greek, B. C. 338.

What you wish your neighbors to be to you, such be also to them.—Sextus, Greek, B. C. 406.

Do not to others what you would not like others to do to you.—Hillel, the great Jewish Rabbi, B. C. 75.

All nature cries aloud, shall man do less than heal the smiter, and the railer bless?—Hafiz, Mohammedan.

Bridle thine anger, and forgive thine enemy; give unto him who takes from thee.—Al Koran.

Acknowledge benefits, but never revenge injuries.—Confucius.

Return not evil for evil.—Socrates.

Speak evil of no one, not even of your enemies.—Epictetus.

He who gives to the needy loses nothing himself.—Hindoo.

We need a preaching of the gospel of self-conquest, of the positive power and supremacy of the soul over the senses, of the spirit power within over perverted appetite and passion.—G. B. Stebbins.

The search after truth should not be discouraged by consequences. Grumble not in the night of calamity, but remember the coming of joy.—Arranged by Hudson Tuttle.

The smaller the drink, the clearer the head and the cooler the blood, which are great benefits in temper and business.—William Penn.

I CURE FITS

When I say I cure I do not mean merely to stop them for a time and then have them return again. I mean a radical cure. I have made the disease of FITS, EPILEPSY or FALLING SICKNESS a lifelong study. I warrant my remedy to cure the worst cases. Because others have failed is no reason for not now receiving a cure. Send at once for a treatise and a Free Bottle of my Infallible remedy. Give Express and Postoffice address.

Prof. W. H. PEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York

Studies in Spiritual Thought

THE LIFE WITHIN AND THE LIFE WITHOUT—DUALITY OF CONSCIOUSNESS—EXEMPLIFIED IN THE CASE OF "BLIND TOM"—WIDE DIVERSITIES IN HIS MANNERS, ACTS AND SPEECH.

In preparing this series of studies, I have thought well to vary the method of presentation, by giving at this time a study of the thought and life of a singular and well-known character—Blind Tom.

If one could but enter—so to speak—into the inside of the being of this wonderful person, and see behind the scenes, the wonderful machinery and its movements, the operators and the playwrights behind and within the actor—what a world of wonder would be seen, bearing upon the rich field of spiritual study.

A well-known lady, of Washington presents some facts that will prove of much interest, concerning Blind Tom. She states, as given by a Washington paper:

Some years ago while on a visit in Virginia to Elway, the hospitable home or Gen. Bethune, the quondam owner of Blind Tom, I had an opportunity to closely observe off the stage that remarkable musical prodigy.

It was during the summer, and Tom was at the old home for his customary season of rest, play, and general self-indulgence. Being of such uncertain habits and disposition, it was thought best to give him a cabin all to himself, but within call of the family dwelling, and there, with his magnificent grand piano and small cot bed, the only furniture for which he had any use, he presented a very strange and incongruous picture. We were singularly permitted to visit Tom in this queer home of his, and in having him play for us his great and original piece de resistance, "The Battle of Manassas," with its wonderful story of war, its roll of drum, its boom of cannon, and rush of marching soldiery.

After one of his performances en famille I was presented to the great performer, who conversed as best he could with us, in his broken and half intelligent manner, and wishing to satisfy myself as to his blindness, a fact which, while enhancing the interest, added considerably to the mystery surrounding him, I asked him the color of different objects held up before him. To each of the queries he gave very correct replies, and, regarding, apparently, with great intentness one of the ladies present, he slowly said, "I should say her eyes are rather, rather blueish, her hair is rather, rather brownish," and so on, in halting, spasmodic manner, he continued to make invariably correct criticisms or most accurate guesses. If neither, then Tom must have been endowed with another sight, as unerring and inscrutable as his musical comprehension and wonderful execution, thus presenting an additional but no less interesting subject for scientific study and investigation.

LEFT HIS PIANO ABRUPTLY.

It was in August when I was permitted to see this prodigy so closely. The heavens then presented an unusually brilliant appearance, and one quiet, beautiful evening when Tom had been playing for us so divinely, so exquisitely, that every soul had become attuned to his more than earthly melodies, and was lost in the eloquence of the silence which followed, the unsightly performer abruptly arose from the piano and left the room. So accustomed were we to his vagaries his goin was unnoticed, and so intense the quiet that follows the enjoyment of music which appeals so strongly to the heart, no one seemed disposed to break the spell.

After awhile, walking to the low-railed balcony which surrounded the old country house and overlooked the flower-filled garden that lay below glistening with blossoms in the radiant glory of the full bright moon, we could plainly see, dancing in and out among the rose trees, a dark, grotesque figure, ill-formed like that of some evil gnome or wicked spirit. Leaping from bush to bush in perfect ecstacy and abandon, pausing an instant, with vacant orbs turned intently on the heavens, as if perforce to penetrate the mystery of blue and of stars, then hopping wildly about as if satisfied with what had been revealed to him, and to him alone, with both hands he pushed the enlarged eyes almost out on his cheeks (a habit he always had when moved by emotion), then again commenced the wild dance of exaltation, if not of genius, which compels to the performance of many wild, undreamed of possibilities and antics quite as untranslatable as those of this poor idiot.

PLAYED WHAT THE STARS TOLD HIM.

Knowing from past experience that Tom's inspiration was upon him, we waited his next move. In a little while as if he had absorbed all the feeling he could express from the heavens and melody from the moon, the Professor as he insisted upon being called, actually tumbled into the room; he did not walk nor run, but simply was there, all in a heap, a confused mass of head, hands, and feet. Only having partly regained his perpendicular, he announced: "I will now tell you—what—what the stars—have—said to me." Seating himself at the piano, with a prelude of most exquisite chords, he suddenly burst into such brilliant, such wildly gay, at one moment, and at the next such heartbreaking melodies as never before or since the days "when Music, heavenly maid, was young," was heard below the stars. It was as though his genius, for one night exalted from its poor miserable environment, had found its way back to its Creator—as if the then liberated soul on wing to heaven carried the enraptand wandering senses into the presence of God's "choir invincible."

He ceased as suddenly as he had begun and silently glided from the room, whether back to the customary darkness, or bearing into the night with him any rays of consciousness of the beauties he had seen and heard, whether into the region of the brute or the realm of spirit we knew not, nor could say.

Among the possessions which appealed to Tom's sense of pleasure, and which was apparently dear to him, was a very handsome silver-mounted crystal flute which had been given him by a musical celebrity of the old world. His great enjoyment seemed to concentrate in playing at midnight beneath the windows of the sleeping rooms and, when all the household was, or wanted to be, wrapped in slumber and sweet dreams, the wild weird strains from this crystal flute murdered sleep in the most shameless manner, until the very stars withdrew their light in kindly protest. But Tom needed little sleep and, with the disregard of genius for the desires of others, he continued his uncanny concert, for a most unwilling audience, until driven to his cabin by the breaking day.

DANCING ABOUT IN MOONLIGHT.

It was a very peculiar phase of his ever shifting moods, very different from the softer spells which were so often upon him, and while it lasted, he was terrible to look upon. In the ghastly exaggeration of the moonlight, his antics, as he jumped about among the flowers, and pushed those terrible eyeballs from their sockets, made a most direful setting for a most unusual scene, accompanied the while with indescribable strains from his flute, as though in protest against the deformities and limitations of his physical being, with notes rising into a shriek of agony against what he was and was not, then melting away into a wail as soft and full of sorrow as that of Orpheus for his lost Eurydice.

Another peculiarity of this strange character would induce the belief in his comprehension of a dual state of existence, as the following incident will illustrate. It was his fancy, during his vacation, to give music lessons to one of the young ladies of the house, and every morning, promptly at 11 o'clock, he would make his appearance in the parlor or sitting-room, with much gravity, announce: "Mrs. Flaherty has come for the music lesson." Having been previously coached by the hostess, we were not surprised at what followed, which was the invariable dialogue. The "professor," who was also "Mrs. Flaherty," asked: "Do you know your lesson; are you ready?" to which was replied as usual; "Good morning, Mrs. Flaherty, how are you to-day, and how are the children and your husband?"

After having been presented formally to all present, Mrs. Flaherty would give such detailed account of the sufferings and wants of the Flaherty family as would do credit to a professional and long-suffering mendicant.

MRS. FLAHERTY AS MUSIC TEACHER.

These preliminaries observed, the music lesson proceeded, during which "Mrs. Flaherty" was quick to detect errors, and rather impatient with them and, upon the conclusion of this part of the program, this individual, in Tom's discarded identity, took her leave. Very shortly thereafter the "professor," with his accustomed leaps, antics, and other gymnastics, precipitated himself into the room, saying as he did so, in his usual sharp, jerky manner: "I saw Mrs. Flaherty driving over the hill; has she been here?" Then followed an account of the visit, he intently listening, as if for the first time hearing of it, and asking all sorts of questions in regard to it. This performance, in its entirety, was repeated each day verbatim, and had one present addressed him out of time or place, great would have been his indignation. While "Mrs. Flaherty," no one dared to mention "Tom" or the "professor," and vice versa, and no smile or suggestion of improbability was tolerated.

The professor at the table was a most unsightly spectacle, not to be desired of gods or men. He was there to eat and for nothing more, and his methods were more those of a wild and ravenous animal than of anything human. In fact, his habits were so repulsive in this respect that meals were always served to him apart from every one else. The presence of food affected him so much as the smell of blood does a savage brute. It was an instinct to be gratified as swiftly as both hands could convey to his mouth the food, which was swallowed with avidity of a starving, savage beast, and at the conclusion of each exhibition of gluttony the leaping and dancing invariably followed, accompanied with the protruding of the exaggerated eyeballs.

Poor Tom! From his birth blind to so much that we see and know and label pleasure, who can see the visions of his soul? Who can interpret the message of the stars as they reveal to him their wondrous story? The voices which whispered in the long ago to the maid of France her instigation to great deeds of valor and of fame perchance may, in another tone and time, have ministered in happiness and music-compelling power to this poor idiot boy, conveying solace for the woes he knew and in his great magnetic genius compensation for the joys he missed. Perhaps, being only a human phonograph, who can tell whether the angels themselves had not whispered into his ear their melodies divine, which at the Master touch will find voice again in the echo of the songs Blind Tom may sing with knowledge and with power, with sweetness and triumphant joy so far exceeding aught of ours?

What a world of strange wonder and mystery is wrapped up in the spiritual and mental nature of Blind Tom. Physically blind, mentally idiotic, yet with a spiritual nature that senses the color of a lady's eyes, and listens to the music of the heavens and with deft fingers translates what the stars tell him into such instrumental strains as inspire cultured listeners with awe and admiration they cannot describe.

This case seems to illustrate and prove the power of spirit to rise above its earthly embodiment, and soar away to fields untrod by purely mortal feet, and receive inspiration not vouchsafed to ordinary mortal ken.

In the midst of the physical and mental darkness the soul sees a light and hears a voice that others, gifted with physical sight and mental power, know not nor can comprehend.

Genius! Well—what is genius?

Is it the embodiment of spiritual thought? JAS. C. UNDERHILL.

Hammond, Ind.

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

THE ELIMINATOR

—OR—

Skeleton Keys to Sacerdotal Secrets.

BY DR. R. B. WESTBROOK.

Profoundly reverent, but thoroughly radical; exposing the fabulous claims of ancient Judaism and dogmatic Christianity, containing many startling conclusions never before published, showing clearly the mythical character of most of the Old and New Testament stories, and proving that Jesus was an impersonation and not a person. A genuine sensation.

Price $1.50. For Sale at this Office.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the Home, the Lyceum and Societies.

A Manual of Physical, Intellectual and Spiritual Culture.

COMPILED BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

A COLLECTION OF MUSIC AND Songs; Golden Chain Recitations, Memory Gems, Choral Responses, Funeral Services, Programs for sessions, Parliamentary Rules. Instructions for Organizing and conducting Lyceums, Instructions for Physical Culture, Calisthenics and Marching; Banners, Standards, the Band of Mercy, etc.; a book by the aid of which a Progressive Lyceum, a Spiritual or Liberal Society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. It supplies the wants of Spiritual Societies for fresh Spiritual songs, with music free from the dismal tone of the old hymnology. It furnishes a unique selection of choice readings and responses such as no other selection contains. It gives a practical system of graceful calisthenics, every step of which is made plain by engravings. It gives instructions how to make the badges and banners and instructs in marching. It shows how to establish a Band of Mercy as auxiliary to the Lyceum, and has all the most beautiful songs which have been gathered up by that movement.

The author and compiler of this Guide is eminently prepared for the task by years of devoted labor in the Lyceum. The book is the result of practical work and tested by the interest awakened in the actual session of the Lyceum.

While intended for the working Lyceum, the guide is admirably adapted to the needs of the family, supplying 76 pages of new spiritual music and words found nowhere else, except in sheet form at many times the cost. The book has been placed at the remarkably low price of 50 cents, sent postpaid.

For Sale by The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis St., Chicago. Also by Hudson Tuttle, Berlin Heights, Ohio.

GLEANINGS FROM THE ROSTRUM.

BY A. B. FRENCH.

This work is one that every one should read. It beams throughout with rare gems of thought, practical as well as profound. There is sunshine and beauty in every sentence uttered. The work is dedicated to the author's favorite sister, Sarah French Farr, now passed to Spirit-life. Hudson Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio, gives an interesting sketch of the author's life.

CONTENTS:

Dedication.
Sketch of the Life of A. B. French.
William Denton.
Legends of the Buddha.
Mohammed, or the Faith and Wars of Islam.
Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon
Conflicts of Life.
The Power and Permanency of Ideas.
The Unknown.
Probability of a Future Life.
Anniversary Address.
The Egotism of Our Age.
What Is Truth?
Decoration Address.

PRICE, $1.00, POSTPAID.

THE TEACHINGS OF JESUS

Not Adapted to Modern Civilization, with the True Character of Mary Magdalene. By Geo. W. Brown, M. D. Price, 15 cents.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This little book will be read with intense interest by thousands. Price 25 cents.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.

This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. Price 10 cents.

THE SOUL,

Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogma of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

BIBLE MARVEL WORKERS,

AND THE WONDROUS POWER which helped or made them perform mighty works and utter inspired words, together with some Personal Traits and Characteristics of Prophets, Apostles, and Jesus, or New Readings of "The Miracles," by ALLEN PUTNAM. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Occult Forces of Sex

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This admirable work consists of three pamphlets embodied in one volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

A SEX REVOLUTION,

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER,

Author of "Helen Harlow's Vow," "The Occult Forces of Sex," "Perfect Motherhood," and many other works. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

Outside the Gates, and Other Tales

and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price $1.25.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents.

HISTORY OF THE INQUISITION

Just the book for those seeking information concerning that most damnable institution known in history—the Roman Catholic Inquisition. Every American citizen should become acquainted with the facts so succinctly stated in this valuable record. It shows the methods used by the Romish Church to exterminate those who reject its beliefs and claims. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE.

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

LIFE, A NOVEL.

It beams with advanced thought, and is fascinating. Price, 50 cents.

ANIMALS IN SPIRIT-LIFE.

ANIMAL IMMORTALITY.

THE SOUL OF A DOG—JEFF.

I say "the soul of a dog," because I had not been able to draw the dividing line in Jeff's case, between reason and instinct at the time I was in his surroundings, nor have I since he passed out of my life.

Jeff was a little dog, a cur, about the size of a good big fox; a sort of sandy color, with stiff, bristly hair. Where he came from no one seemed to have any very clear idea, but that he was there, especially at meal time, no one could deny.

Jeff lived on the plantation of a friend whom I was visiting; that was his home. The plantation was in Louisiana, not far from Baton Rouge. There were two dogs on this plantation; one, Jeff; the other, a big, playful but watchful Newfoundland dog, vicious only where food was concerned; then very vicious. Jeff was the best coon and 'possum dog in all that country; and could run a wildcat keener and quicker than a hound. One day, along towards night, he treed a wildcat, when a full pack of hounds had lost the scent, and that after a six hours' chase. The cat, in his death-throes, had torn Jeff's scalp off as slick as any Indian could have done, leaving it hanging only by a shred. The surgical operation that restored Jeff's scalp to its place had not been skillfully performed, which left the hairy covering askew, giving the dog a sort of rakish air.

When he was coaxed on a coon or 'possum hunt, at night, against his inclination, he would start off through the canebrake into the woods with every token of joy. In a little while his well known howl would be heard a half mile off in the wood. Off! pell mell, we go in the direction of the sound, tearing through the brake and mire and brush; then a halt, and silence. Then as far again, in another direction came the familiar howl. Off again, and again, as the howl sounded near or far. Finally, when ready to drop from fatigue, would come a succession of short barks that sounded like "ha, ha, ha," and were so in fact, for they reached our ears just as Jeff crawled under the veranda. This was one of Jeff's blind, revengeful leads to avoid an unpleasant task.

I had not thought much of Jeff's soul till one Sunday after dinner his master and I were seated on the shady veranda listening to a mocking bird that filled the air with melody from the top of a leafy magnolia, a bird, by-the-by, that often caused Jeff no end of uneasiness by whistling him from one end of the plantation to the other.

The conversation drifted in a lazy no-account manner, for it was a lazy day. Rover, the Newfoundland, was chained to his kennel, and in its shade was dreaming away the time. Over by the fence, whose growing shadows just suited him, half lying and half leaning against the lower board, in a sort of idle, brown study was Jeff; when the cook, having cleared away the things, came out with a big meaty bone which she threw within easy reach of the now thoroughly awakened Rover, Jeff rushed for "first base" as it were, but he was too late; Rover had the bone between his paws, and was on the defensive, showing the full armament of his jaws. Jeff sat down to think. Then he walked unconcernedly off around the house leaving Rover in apparently undisturbed possession.

"What do you reckon he's up to now?" asked my host.

"To get out of temptation," I answered. "Not he, suh! He's placed his heart on that, an' I reckon"——

Just then we heard a growl and a yelp. Jeff had gone clear around the house to steal up behind Rover, who was too quick for him, and Jeff sat down to think again. Then with a yelp of disgust he turned away, walked quietly and dejectedly to the fence against which he had been leaning, and, as if completely disgusted, crawled through into a cornfield which divided a neighboring plantation from my friends, and disappeared like a shadow. and Rover gnawed at his bone in a nervous uncertain way, as one that watches for an attack that is sure to come, yet knows not in which direction to expect it.

"That's the fust time, suh, I evah saw Jeff done foh!" said my friend, "I reckon he's gone oveh t' th' neighbors foh consolation. Roveh, yo' stingy brute, yo' ought t' lose yo' dinch!"

Now the neighbor referred to was the owner of a little, undersized Dalmatian hound; that was like one of the seven lean kine of Egypt; the more he ate the leaner he grew, till he looked like a shingle with four clothes pins for legs.

He was totally devoid of anything but appetite, and that served, when glutted, to give him the appearance of great distress.

"It do beat all! I gave that Jeff credit foh—why that ugly lookin' cur 'd fight a b'ar!" my host began apologizing for Jeff's lack of grit in this particular instance, when the most dismal discordant howling and yelping came from the direction of our neighbor's

"Jeff," continued my friend, "an' he's pesterin' that poo' little houn' out o' spite!" As he was speaking the sounds of the dogs grew nearer and louder, and even Rover, who, in the interim, had recovered his nerve and had settled down to full enjoyment of the bone, stopped gnawing to listen.

In a moment, through the fence crawled Jeff followed by his inoffensive friend the hound, and trotting to within easy distance of Rover, sat down, and turning to the little hound, began licking his chops as contentedly as you please, (as one would say "that's a lovely bone.") The hound, who had taken his position within still easier distance of the bone seemed to be trying to think over what Jeff had been saying to him before they arrived on the battle field. Jeff then rubbed his nose against the Dalmatian and licked his chops and the hound's as well, as much to say, "You doubt me, your friend. I tell you I've eaten to repletion."

This was too much for the poor, forlorn and ever-hungry hound, which walked deliberately up to Rover and seized the bone in his teeth; Rover in turn seized him in his teeth, and, both being occupied, Jeff seized the bone and was under the veranda in a wink.

Was it instinct or reason? If reason, is not that an attribute of soul? I am contending neither way, I am relating.

THE SOUL OF A DOG—PRINNEY.

I will let a friend tell the story of Prinney, a friend, whose veracity I have every reason to trust:

"It is some years since the simple events I am about to relate happened, and most of those, directly concerned have passed away.

"We were a superlatively happy family in those days; father, mother, and the little one—my little one;" and her eyes filled as she mentioned the "little one," and me: for I was a widow then.

"When grandpa brought Prinney to be an animated toy for Sarah, he was a fluffy little ball of white, which in after years turned to a silky flax; for Prinney was a Scotch terrier. He was a good playfellow for Sarah, and a good ratter for himself. He was useful without being particularly ornamental to any eyes but hers.

"Prinney formed habits that were not to be broken when he reached middle "dog" life. He had a habit of following grandpa's buggy to the office each morning, playing about the office for about an hour, and then trotting off home alone, by which time Sarah would be up and ready for a romp. His office inspecting habit did not hold good on Sunday, for on that day he was as orthodox as any of the family. Yet on week days no amount of coaxing or threatening could dissuade him from that regularity of action. His other habits were those of blind devotion and unexcelled affection for Sarah, and that of barking like a maniac at nothing.

"When Sarah was taken sick for the last time, Prinney knew it though we did not. For, from the day she took to her bed he forgot to bark, would not bark; no amount of coaxing could get him to leave his tender vigil just outside her bedroom door, not even to go to the office; nor to partake of food enough to keep a little kitten alive. Every time any one of us tiptoed into her bedroom to give her medicine or smooth her fevered forehead or her pillow, or to give to her any of those countless attentions that are the prerogatives of the sick, Prinney would come in quietly, put his little paws up softly on the edge of the bed, look so sadly into her dear face a moment, drop back to the floor, with a sigh and going as softly out as he came in, would take up his vigil just outside the door.

"Though suffering from inflammation of the membranous covering of the brain, and only nine years old when she passed out, 'her mind was as clear' our physician said, 'and her diagnoses of her pains as correct,' as he could have given of his own physical condition.

"Yet she saw and spoke of so many who had preceded her to the other side. She passed away in the early morning when the snow was falling and the wind was calling, and whining and shaking the windows, into a region of eternal summer. "Into the Summerland," as she afterwards wrote through a strange medium and in a distant town.

"The night before she passed away she said quietly, tho' she had not closed her eyes for nine long days and nights: "Mamma, who are those at the foot of the bed that keep beckoning to me all the time? I tell them I cannot go to-night, I cannot leave you to-night, I'll go in the morning." And in the morning she was gone.

"Prinney would not, could not eat nor sleep; he could only cry. The day of the funeral we supposed we had fastened him up in the house, but when we got home from the cemetery he was gone. We went back to the cemetery; we searched everywhere; we advertised in all the local papers offering a reward tempting enough to any one that might have stolen or coaxed him away, but all to no purpose; we never saw him after. My Sarah's departure from earth was my entrance into Spiritualism, and I was led there by her dear little soul—in what way, I will reserve for another time.

One evening while sitting in a circle with strangers and a strange medium, the medium said: "There is a little girl who comes to you; she says her name is Sarah and you are her mamma. Following her closely is a little, shaggy poodle dog. They both jump into your lap, and the dog, who seems as wild as can be with joy, the little one says to tell you it is Prinney." Was it—the soul of a Dog? CHAS. NEVINS.

TWO SIDES GIVEN.

A PONTIAC MAN VIGOROUSLY ATTACKS THE CLAIMS OF SPIRITUALISTS.

Pontiac, Ill.,—I have been a constant reader of The Chronicle from the first year of its publication and if that entitles a man to any claim upon your columns I would like to pay my compliments to the man in Streator who defends Spiritualism. He has not yet discovered that exposing a fraud is one thing and "persecution" another. I am now nearly seventy years of age. I lived near and well remember the Fox girls, who produced the first sensation, known as "spirit rappings," and for a long time the whole community was in a state of confusion. I caught the fever and made a journey to a place where the chosen ones were prepared for spiritual communications. I was one of the chosen. I visited the medium in charge and sat there for one solid hour keeping a solemn face and receiving communications from "father," "mother," one "uncle" and one "sister," all of whom were alive and in good health.

Since that time—the summer of 1854—I have been a constant watcher of the stupendous humbug known as Spiritualism, and the number of times mediums have been exposed ought to be enough for sensible people. The number of weak-minded people or those in trouble who have been led into this death trap and driven insane is the only thing that makes the subject worthy of any attention whatever.—TRAVELER, in Chicago Chronicle, Feb. 1.

W. H. H. TUCKER OF STREATOR, ILL., EXTENDS SYMPATHY TO "TRAVELER."

Streator, Ill.,—I want to thank Mr. Knisely of Benton Harbor, Mich., for his timely article in The Chronicle of February 5, in which he refers to that "70-year-old child of ignorance at Pontiac, Ill., who did not dare to sign his name to his article in The Chronicle of February 2, in which he attacks my claims to the truth and reality of Spiritualism, and gives his experience." "Traveler" admits his ignorance of the true philosophy when he states he has "spent but one solid hour" in the investigation of a phenomenon that has required years' hard study and research of the master minds of all nations to solve, and yet there remains learning deep and grand.

What would Edison say were I to tell him I had studied the science of electricity for "one solid hour;" that I had watched him in all his new discoveries and appliances, and because I could not comprehend the magnitude of the wonderful science called him "weak-minded." I surmise he would look upon me in pity as I do "Traveler."

You will find more in our philosophy than you have even dreamed of. There are fraudulent human vampires seeking to make money out of Spiritualism under the sacred name of media, but are all men frauds and fools because a few are? I am surprised that "Traveler" should so expose his ignorance by telling us that he had solved the philosophy of psychic phenomena in one hour, when many of the brightest intellects of earth have spent years delving deep into the mysteries and yet find thought worthy of consideration.

Every age has produced its wise men (?) and I am not surprised that one exists at Pontiac, Ill., in the nineteenth century, but I am a little surprised that one hour's investigation forty years ago should sour my complimentary friend forever against wisdom and truth.—W. H. H. TUCKER, in Chicago Chronicle.

WHAT IS RELIGION?

THE QUESTION ANALYZED FROM VARIOUS STANDPOINTS.

To the Editor:—While the discussion, "Is Spiritualism a Religion?" seems a waste of words, yet like Banquo's ghost, or Barleycorn, it refuses to be buried. I beg to suggest that nothing is a religion by itself. It strikes me that this is very similar to the "sound" question. Since sound is made dependent upon a tympanum for its existence, so religion could not exist without the presence of certain emotional feelings in the minds of those using it as such. Were there none but atheists in the world, could any one conceive of that miserable wreck of superstition, called Christianity, as a religion? Could a collection of the thumbscrews and machines of torture, together with memories of a fictitious Jesus, be construed into a religion? The milkman calls the three-legged thing upon which he sits "a stool." The savage who might use it as a weapon would speak of it as a club; while the shepherd who should use it as kindling-wood at night might speak of it as fuel. If I cut a stick from the thicket to aid me in walking I may call it "a walking stick." The urchin that finds it next day and uses it as a horse would no doubt speak of it as his "horse." If I think it a duty imposed by Deity to get up in the morning and strike my head three times against the wall, and bow towards the rising sun—then, if I really do this, I am making it a religion.

The philosopher who experiments with our sublime facts, and finds truly that the so-called dead do live and return to us with love, and then turns to other matters, is not making Spiritualism a religion.

But if we believe it a duty to make the grand teachings of Spiritualism a life code, and live up to them, thereby purifying our lives—then, to us, is Spiritualism a religion.

The conclusion, then, is that nothing is a religion by itself—that anything may be such, if we make it so.

B. R. ANDERSON.

Concordia, Kan.

SPIRIT TELEGRAPHY.

To the Editor:—By your kind indulgence, I will offer a few facts and comments of and on phenomena witnessed with the medium, John H. Disler, of Carthage, Mo., something of which I published in this city, which was copied, by my request, in the Thinker a few weeks ago. I will say at first that the phenomena occur in almost total darkness but under perfect test conditions. The medium is always held between two persons in the circle and joins in the singing and often plays a mouth-harp whilst some of the performances are being had, and does a great deal of talking, so that we always know where he is and what he is doing. He does not always give successful seances, which is the case with all honest mediums, but sometimes is bathed in perspiration when others in the room are comfortable, yet the spirits are unable to produce results. This is when his mind is perturbed by some personal matter. I have sat with him some ten or twelve evenings and once or twice there have been almost complete failures. The passing of musical instruments and other ponderous articles round the room and over the heads of the sitters I deem the smallest part of the performances. It is intelligence that we most desire in our communications with the denizens of the unseen spheres. The giving of messages by the use of the bare telegraph key and sounding board by an unseen hand, writing the words in the operator's (telegraph) letters, dots and dashes, is one of the most beautiful and striking methods of communication that has been introduced by the spirits. I have heard long sentences and a series of them given on the little machine flying round over our heads going tick, tick, tick, as fast as we ever hear those marvelous sounds by a railroad office when I had my hand on the medium and there were two other operators in the circle whom I knew to be as honest and anxious investigators as myself, and who were reading the spirit writing.

At one seance held at the house of a Mr. Shade, of this city, the table on which sat the machine was moved from the center of the room to a point where I could reach it, and farther from the medium, who on this occasion sat opposite me and across the table from me. We had just stopped singing. My mother who died in '73 expressed a desire to communicate with me. After some expressions of affection, I asked her if she could give me a test which I could send to my brother in Boston, Dr. J. W. Daily. She had the operator write on the telegraph machine the following: "Ask him if he remembers the time when you two were little boys playing with switches and that you put one in the fire and held it there till there was a coal on the end, when you punched it against his flesh and burned him, and that I (mother) took it away from you and chastised you with it." This was a fact of long ago. She gave two other beautiful tests of identity.

At Stiles' residence, on last Sunday evening, there was held a family seance, myself and two or three outsiders being present. The writing was first-class and most of the sitters got unmistakable messages from friends. Mr. Stiles received a message from his father who had been gone for fifty years, giving his name. Several spirits talked through the trumpet, and one spoke on the mouth-harp. On one occasion a spirit held the harp for nearly half an hour and spoke very plainly, giving somewhat lengthy and intelligent messages to friends, and giving their names.

This talking on the mouth-harp is both weird and charming. There is a spirit comes to these seances who gives his name as George Monk. When he comes he announces his presence by rapping on the table like chickens pecking in the bread tray. Have heard him dance to the tune of that name, played by the medium, so loud that you would think it was a regular negro clog on the table. Your readers must know that these occasions are interesting, when I tell them we sometimes sit for four hours. Mr. Disler has had materializations, but has never sat for such phenomena as a specialty. Hoping all who read what I have here written will banish any idea of deception from their minds as connected with the medium or any of his friends and associates, we being intimately acquainted with him and his kind and estimable wife, we beg to say that all the phenomena, but most the clear and cheering messages from our loved ones bid us tally one more victorious home run for our beloved cause that is soon to enter the prison city of Babylonish orthodoxy to free the captive race and place their feet on the solid land.

SAMUEL JOSEPH DAILY.

Joplin, Mo.

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

A CRITICAL ANALYSIS OF THE BRAIN.

WONDERS OF THE BRAIN—REMARKABLE STATEMENT RECENTLY MADE BY AN ENGLISH SCIENTIST—ARE THERE BRAIN WAVES?—FORMS, IDEAS AND ABSTRACT SENTENCES READILY TRANSFERRED BY THOUGHT—SOME QUEER IMPRESSIONS—EXPERIMENTS SHOWING THAT PSYCHOMETRY IS A FACT, IN SPITE OF SCIENTIFIC DISBELIEF.

Professor Crookes has startled London with some strange and wonderful theories. Although the eminent Professor has not, to the best of my knowledge and belief, been absent from this terrestrial sphere since his birth, he makes a statement that should properly come from the ghost of Newton or Huxley, after passing many years in the upper ether.

In short, Professor Crookes says that if a man, presumably a theosophist, could lift himself above the influence of terrestrial gravitation he could precipitate his thoughts through space to another man on any given star with force, accuracy and many times the speed of light.

Of course, this cannot be contradicted, as no material body has yet lifted itself from the earth's surface to heights beyond earthly gravitation. If Professor Crookes has been there, he has concealed the trip from his friends, and has brought back a mere notebook full of deductions with which to support his views.

Well, it may be so. Who knows. If, according to Professor Crookes, a man in order to project his thoughts with any degree of speed, or to any distance, should be beyond the attraction of the earth's surface, he would be compelled to visit the cold, dark and dismal mid regions of ether, beyond the orbit of the moon.

It is really not worth the while. Why not stay right here on earth, fast and deny yourself, train your mind as a pugilist trains his muscles, refine your thoughts, keep them above the earth, earthy, and then sit right down and commune through space with kindred minds by means of your aura, or trained mental atmosphere?

It can be done. At least, this is what theosophists and learned men say. Gross minded men of science have tried it and failed. Then they have sat down and have written pamphlets on the impossibility of the thing.

SOME QUEER THEORIES.

Bah! They were mental blacksmiths, fit only to hammer cold and arithmetical facts into visibility for the masses. There is that within the brain which cannot be mastered by strength of scientific intellect. Let Sandow, the strong man, sit down at the piano where Chopin has played. The chords are dead, the dreamy interludes are not awakened, the beautiful soul of harmony still sleeps—and Sandow pounds and smashes and fumes and pronounces the thing a failure.

Why should Professor Crookes get beyond earthly gravitation to precipitate his thoughts? It can be done right here on the earth—it is done every day, and ninety-nine one-hundredths of thought transference is done without conscious volition on the part of either agent or percipient. You think intently of a far away friend. If that friend's mind be utterly passive and unoccupied the chances are that he will respond and think of you.

How this transference takes place has never been ascertained. Neither has the physical reality which underlies the terms mind, consciousness and impression ever been fathomed. No authoritative theory has ever been postulated as to the nature of thought transference, although many and varied have been the theories relating to nervous induction, muscle reading, brain waves, etc.

Muscle reading is easy and requires no explanation, but nervous induction and brain waves are things which science has never been able to master. And they exist. The air is as full of brain waves as it is of sunbeams and starlight. They are sent abroad unconsciously and with varying force. They are received unconsciously, as I have said, ninety-nine times in a hundred.

The mental apparatus for sending out brain waves is all right. The mental apparatus for receiving them is as crude as the present feeble flying machines, the first telegraph, or the first locomotive. They beat unheeded upon the shores of a dull and neglected eighth sense, which in the slow work of evolution has not kept pace with the grosser physical senses that nature has kept alive.

In the interior economy of man there is a dead organ called the vermiform appendix. It is a useless reminder of those prehistoric times when we slid and crawled through the mud of the early world. Is there a sort of vermiform appendix in the brain—the dead cell of a lost sense? Or is the sense just beginning to develop? One thing is certain—if Nature finds that mankind needs the sense, she will provide him with it.

I have said that no authoritative theory of the nature of brain waves, or thought transference, has ever been postulated. All analogies have been rough and crude. It is known, of course, that the brain is the organ of consciousness, but is consciousness located in the brain? Ay, there is the rub.

The energy of an electric current, though apparently in the wire, is certainly not altogether in it. So it may be that the sensory consciousness of a person, though apparently located in the brain, may be also conceived of as existing like a faint echo, in space, or in other brains, though these are ordinarily too busy and preoccupied to notice it.

Thought transference is a study and a development. As practised by theosophists, two persons are necessary for its successful accomplishment. One is called the agent; the other the percipient. The former concentrates his mind upon a figure, number, color or anything he may select, and forms his visual image of it, generally, at a short distance from his face. Then by volition he drives it to the percipient, in whose aura the impression is received.

Professor A. M. Creery, of London, was very successful in his experiments in thought transference with his four children. Their ages ranged from ten to sixteen years. Each, in turn, went out of the room, while Professor Creery fixed his mind upon some object which they were to name on returning to the room. The other children knew nothing of the object upon which their father had fixed his thoughts.

At first his success was very indifferent. After keeping it up, night after night, for months, success began to predominate over failure. At first the simplest objects in the room were selected. Then the names of towns, the names of people, dates of months, cards from a pack and lines from different poems.

The children, after once getting the hang of the mental requisites, seldom made a mistake. One of the girls named seventeen cards from a pack in succession. A good deal seemed to depend on the steadiness with which ideas were kept before the thinker.

After a month of experiments the neighbors' children were called in. On the first evening they failed. They improved on succeeding evenings until they, too, became adepts in the art of reading brain waves. All these experiments were conducted without physical contact.

TRIED IN YALE.

No less wonderful were the experiments conducted in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale College in 1874 by Professor W. H. Brewer and his colleagues. On this occasion the participant was Mr. J. R. Brown, a student. Professor Porter, the agent, was placed in a cellar beneath the school amphitheatre, which was three floors above. In this amphitheatre sat Mr. Brown, facing a small disk of copper which was connected by a wire with the cellar below.

Professor Porter had told two of his colleagues who were with him that he intended to fix his mind upon ordering Mr. Brown to go to the chalk box at the blackboard, get a piece of chalk and place it on his desk.

In the amphitheatre Mr. Brown, after sitting with his eyes closed in front of the disk for fully ten minutes, arose slowly, walked to the blackboard, picked up a piece of chalk and placed it on the Professor's desk. He did not act as if hypnotized, or as if he were obliged to perform an order, but as if he had received a strange mental impression and was carrying it out.

When Professor Porter and his colleagues entered the room and the result was announced all Yale was astounded. Could this have been done without a wire? As easily as with one, say the theosophists. This experiment was in the very simplest class of psychometry, however. The transferrence of directions is regarded as far easier than the transferrence of mind impressions, sensations, words, names or abstract thoughts.

The instances of involuntary thought transference are innumerable, and it is strange in the face of all this indubitable evidence that scientists in general still rail at the impossibility of it. Some years ago, at four o'clock in the morning, a young man in Texas, in attempting to get off a moving train, had his left leg cut off below the knee.

At almost the same moment his brother in Chicago, a thousand miles away, aroused his wife and told her that he had had a terrible dream. "I dreamed," said he, "that my brother fell under a train and had his leg cut off." He was bathed in cold perspiration and was very much excited.

At noon he was in his office, when the telegraph operator came in with an open message in his hand. "Mr. S——," said he, "I have bad news for you."

"I thought so," said Mr. S——; "my brother is injured." Both brothers are still alive, and one of them is stumping about on a wooden leg.

On another occasion a man named Sanford had left his house, ten miles from London, in the morning, and was on his way from Victoria street, Westminster. In attempting to cross the road near Buckingham Palace he fell and narrowly escaped being run over by a carriage coming in the opposite direction.

At his residence his wife was at that moment drinking a glass of water. Suddenly she dropped the glass on the floor and exclaimed, "My God, he's hurt!" The servant heard her cry out, and saw the woman's fright. When Mr. Sanford came home that evening he was told of the circumstance, and, remembering his own narrow escape, became an immediate convert to the theory of thought transferrence. And still the scientists who admit the possibility of such a thing are few and far between.

The above from the New York Herald should be read by every Spiritualist, mystic or thinking mind.

New York. LUCRETIUS.

NO ORTHODOXY.

DOES NOT WANT IT MIXED WITH HIS SPIRITUALISM.

To the Editor:—I have just been reading your paper, and it seems to me that it grows better and is truly what it claims to be, a "Progressive Thinker." The articles in a late issue by Dr. Conger, Clara Watson, and our Sister across the Ocean, Emma Hardinge Britten are to my mind most excellent, and I feel like exclaiming "Those are my sentiments."

I have thought for a long time, the way our meetings are conducted, that Spiritualism was tending towards orthodoxy more and more, adopting all its forms and ceremonies, and I am glad that there are those that do speak boldly and bravely against it.

To me the forms and ceremonies of the church are in line with their teachings—are a part of their worship of an unknown God—which to me is all a superstition, and to see the Spiritualists drifting that way seems deplorable. The first twenty-five years of modern Spiritualism, as Dr. Conger says, we did not have anything of the kind. And why should we now? The more they pray and sing "Nearer, my God, to Thee," the more orthodox spirits they draw around them, and that is the kind of inspiration they give us in their meetings.

In Mattie Hull's write-up of the Baxter funeral, she says that Mr. Baxter ignored all old orthodox customs; and then she got up herself and made a prayer or an invocation, as she called it. Now it is a "custom" with orthodox people to have prayers at their funerals, and seems our good friend was inconsistent in her statement. Mattie I consider is one of my best friends, but I think she is slightly orthodox. I recognize everybody's right to pray—do not question the right, but like to see them consistent. To me prayers made by Spiritualists are quite as orthodox as those made by the orthodox themselves.

PROF. A. B. SEVERANCE.

WHY REMAIN IN IGNORANCE.

You should read Col. Ingersoll's masterly address. You should read Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond's two lectures on "Spiritual Unfoldment" and "The Dwellings of the Dead." You should read about the Roman Octopus and "The Night the Light Went Out," and above all you should read President Barrett's Address before the National Convention of Spiritualists.

For full particulars read the announcement on the 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

"Progression, or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-life." "The Evolution of Man." Two papers, given in the interest of spiritual science, by Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Ancient India; Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

MIND GROWTH.

PROGRESSION OF INDIVIDUAL LIFE—OR WHERE REINCARNATION ENDS.

I have never heard a good reason for the belief in reincarnation in matter, for the progress of the individual spirit after it has grown to the state of consciousness and thought—which state of thought is the result of breathing in the elements of space, outside of our individual being—which chemical affinity with our individual spirit produces or sets up this force in mind, of consciousness and thought. It seems to me that this has been the ultimate design of nature in the development and progression of the atoms reincarnated and making up all physical forms below us, to progressively reach that state of spirit quickening, when its individuality would awaken into personal growth of a larger form and individual unfoldment; that would make consciousness the end sought for with nature, in union with matter; and matter would be no longer necessary to our being after this new force in mind, of thinking, had been attained. For it seems to me that it is by the union of mind with something outside of us, that we inhale from the air that is a property in space, that by inhaling it responds to the activity of thought by this chemical union produced by so doing.

For all life that breathes seems to possess thought. You might say trees breathe through their leaves. But they live without breathing after dropping their leaves—hibernating life is as natural to vegetation as breathing life. So we are, and all animal life is higher developed in spiritual consciousness, than vegetable organization.

I am only after truth. And I have never yet seen as good reason, to me, of future advancement of mind, again to be reincarnated in matter as many think; as by going out into the realms of space and spirit worlds in nature's laboratory of quickening spirit where thought is gained, and where God's mind is universal in substance everywhere creative with life in which we live; where we can continue to breathe in its elements, producing thought more easily than now; for breath is the motion of life, moving within us responsive to that motion. Breath is simply a mode of expansion and contraction; this is a life motion we must take with us to leave the body breathless at our departure from the physical body at death.

There should be a reason that some believe in reincarnation in matter again, after consciousness has been attained in mind, that they can express, aside from feeling it. For how do we know but what we sometimes become so in at-one-ment with our spirit guardians that we feel their memories as a part of our own, seemingly; or that we may have some thrill of places and forms we have been in before in our atom existence.

We certainly often think so extremely that the atoms of our physical construction thrill in responsive unison to the exhilaration of that thought. If so, a sense of that emotion must afterward be a part or attainment of their atom existence; to feel and respond to the same again in a higher call when touched by the law of love for the same emotion in some stronger force or mode of attraction calling it into formation of life in some other physical body.

In this way atoms progress by repeated reincarnations in matter until it becomes next to thought itself or the formation of thought substance, when it is able in the next condition to thrill with the emotion of personal life and attract by the creative power natural to thought in fetal conditions a physical body, through which involuntary force of activity it next attains personal growth in the realms of silence and security, and mind emotion, when farther advancement calls for something more to feed the mind activity. Having attained personal growth, the force of mind is still persisting, onward beyond this hibernating or subconscious condition of life, and when it can no longer find that for the needs it has developed personally and has not attained, its higher call seeks the birth into the realms of air, where through the same law of expansion and contraction, the lungs inflate that have been developed by the expansion of the spiritual lungs in the life-ego: the material lungs inflate with breath, take in something new it finds in the elements of surrounding space, and a new force and impetus to life motion has persisted into consciousness and power of living life and thinking is its product.

Then why should we need longer the environment of matter to subvert the power of mind and hold it in check of security until it had reached personal growth; personal unfoldment to consciousness?

It seems to me that we have then outgrown the uses of matter, for mind is fed with thinking from the air of space and is now free to choose and learn through pain and pleasure what before nature had protected carefully with the shell of material, as she binds her seeds in the shells of security until personal growth is attained.

Now this state of conscious earth-life seems to me to be the border land of the two eternities—subconscious life, before this in atom existence, and continued conscious existence, hereafter in personal depths of mind growth, for mind is never filled as to room and space, its nature is eternity. And we stand here upon the borderland, from subconsciousness, to the hereafter of consciousness.

L. A. SUNDERLIN NOURSE.

Moline, Ill.

MARRIED

VARNEY—FROST.

Monday evening February 15th, a quiet and very enjoyable wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Vogel, 5034 Cottage Grove Avenue, Mrs. Edith Nickless officiating in uniting in holy wedlock, Mr. Merritt F. Varney and Miss Lola Frost, sister of Mrs. Emma Vogel. The guests consisted mostly of the near relatives of the family. The presents were quite numerous.

Upon the conclusion of the ceremony, a short musical program was rendered by the home talent of the participants and a tasty lunch enjoyed by all, after which Mrs. Nickless gave a very interesting address upon the subject of Spiritualism, which fairly sparkled with gems of truth and many wonderful tests, and was greatly enjoyed by all. All present joined in best wishes for their welfare.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

Bottlebinding.

You can't judge of the quality of a book by the binding, nor tell the contents by the title. You look for the name of the author before you buy the book. The name of Robert Louis Stevenson (for instance) on the back guarantees the inside of the book, whatever the outside may be.

There's a parallel between books and bottles. The binding, or wrapper, of a bottle is no guide to the quality of the medicine the bottle contains. The title on the bottle is no warrant for confidence in the contents. It all depends on the author's name. Never mind who made the bottle. Who made the medicine? That's the question.

Think of this when buying Sarsaparilla. It isn't the binding of the bottle or the name of the medicine that you're to go by. That's only printer's ink and paper! The question is, who made the medicine? What's the author's name? When you see Ayer's name on a Sarsaparilla bottle, that's enough. The name Ayer guarantees the best, and has done so for 50 years.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD;

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve.

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER. THIS IS a novel written with a purpose, and that purpose is not merely to enable an unthinking, idle mind to while away the time in a state of idle blessedness, devoid of earnest thought or care for either self-improvement or the good of humanity. It is a book designed especially primarily, for mothers and those who are to be mothers; and secondly, through the mothers, to effect the well-being and happiness of the race. It brings strongly and clearly to view the result upon the child of proper surroundings and influences bearing upon the mother previous to maternity. Incidentally the author touches upon various things in modern social and business life, which are unjust, and fix unequal burdens upon the individuals composing society as a whole. The book is trenchant, instructive and very interesting, even when regarded merely as a novel, and is especially commended to "women everywhere," to whom it is dedicated. It also thoroughly shows the beautiful spirit of the Catholic Church; advanced ideas relating to the Spiritual philosophy are introduced. It contains a fine likeness of the author. It contains 345 pages, neatly bound in cloth. Price by mail, prepaid, $1.

MAN

—IN THE—

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF

Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind. From the German of

DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,

Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.

"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable. When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children, in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of nature in general."—Buechner.

Two vols., royal 8vo., about 350 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

SPIRITUAL HARP.

A Collection of Vocal Music for the Choir, Congregation and Social Circles.

By J. M. Peebles and J. O. Barrett; E. H. Bailey, Musical Editor. New edition. Culled from a wide field of literature with the most critical care, free from all theological bias, throbbing with the soul of inspiration, embodying the principles and virtues of the spiritual philosophy, set to the most cheerful and popular music, (nearly all original), and adapted to all occasions, it is doubtless the most attractive work of the kind ever published. Its beautiful songs, duets and quartettes, with piano, organ or melodeon accompaniment, adapted both to public meetings and the social circles. Cloth, $2.00. Postage 14 cents.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS

Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 12 pages, beautifully printed. Price 6 cents; ten copies, 50 cents.

THE TALMUD.

Selections from the contents of that ancient book, its commentaries, teachings, poetry, and legends. Also brief sketches of the men who made and commented upon it. By H. Polano. 359 pp. Price, cloth, $1.00.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT

— AND —

THE SPIRIT WORLD.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Its value is recognized and acknowledged all over the world. Price, cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

Mahomet, the Illustrious.

BY GODFREY HIGGINS, ESQ.

This work is one of the Library of Liberal Classics. No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbon's work. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

THE REAL ISSUE.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have. For sale at this office.

The To-Morrow of Death.

---OR THE---

Future Life According to Science.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY S. R. CROCKER.

A VERY FASCINATING WORK.

This fine volume might well have been entitled Spiritualism Demonstrated by Science. It is written in that peculiar interesting style in which French writers excel when they would popularize scientific subjects in adaptation to the needs of the general reader. The author is not a Spiritualist—he even mentions Spiritualists as "devotees of a new superstition," etc., etc., in which he manifests the usual animus of the "scientific class," yet he says again: "There is a true and respectable idea in Spiritualism," and regards as proved "the fact of communication between superhumans and the inhabitants of Earth," and he goes on to relate instances of fact in evidence. There is, to a Spiritualist, a manifest discrepancy in the author's ideas, but the well-read mind will readily select and arrange the pros and cons, and out of the whole will find not only good mental culture, but much valuable information. The author holds the theory of reincarnation. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Evolution of the Devil.

By Henry Frank, the Independent preacher of New York City. The most learned, accurate, scientific and philosophical analysis of His Satanic Majesty ever published. The book contains 66 pages, and is beautifully bound, with likeness of author on title page. Price 25 cents.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

E. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year $1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club) 7.50
Thirteen weeks ..... 25 cts
Single copy ..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to buy without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1897.

A GRAND HEARING.

Instead of silencing Col. Ingersoll, as the Catholics hoped, by tearing down his posters, he had such a welcome at the peculiarly advertised meeting as was never given him before in New York. The audience was simply immense. Among the other things he discussed, says the report, he said:

"The Halls and Buckleys, the Eatons and Abbotts and all who have been called to preach the gospel should throw all the miracles away. They ought to know that this is a natural world; that the endless chain of cause and effect has never been broken. They ought to know that all the miracles are the children of ignorance, cunning and mendacity. These ministers ought to know that there are many interpretations of the New Testament. When they find a passage inconsistent with the character of Christ they ought to denounce it as a mistake, an interpolation. Some of the ministers are advancing—are really thinking. The Dr. Halls, the Talmages, the Moodys, the Bishop Doanes and Corrigans are several centuries in the rear. They all love the absurd and glory in believing the impossible. They are also as conservative as though they were dead—good people—the leaders of those who are going backward. In a few years the really intelligent will give up the idea that the Bible is an inspired book; will deny the existence of the supernatural. Then the pulpits will be filled with teachers instead of preachers, with thoughtful, brave and honest men. Science is the only possible savior of the human race."

NOT INFALLIBLE.

Rev. Dr. Jas. M. Buckley, editor of that influential Methodist organ, the Christian Advocate, at a meeting of his fellow clergymen, held at the Methodist book-house in New York, a few days ago, advanced the opinion that the English version of the Bible is not infallible. A press dispatch says:

"Strange to say, he is unanimously supported in this belief by the ministers who so far have talked on the subject." Some of the opinions expressed were as follows:

"Bishop John Fletcher Hurst—Dr. Buckley is unquestionably in accord with the advanced thought of the Christian church to-day. No advanced theologian admits to-day that the Bible, as translated into English, is infallible.

"Rev. Robert Collyer, Unitarian—It is true there are not now as many thinking people as formerly who hold to the old dogma of the church that the Bible is infallible. It has never been claimed that the Bible is infallible, except as a dogma of the church.

"Dr. J. H. Rylance, St. Mark's Episcopal church—It is absurd to talk of the infallibility of an imperfectly translated Bible.

"Dr. Lyman Abbott, of Plymouth church, Brooklyn—The action of the Methodist ministers in disavowing belief in the infallibility of the Bible as it stands in the English version does not surprise me. It would surprise me to find a single one believing in it."

FALSE PROPHETS.

Is it not barely possible that it would be better for Spiritualism, better for truth, better for the nerves of the credulous and the sympathetic, and better for the fame of the mediums who have wakeful visions of impending calamities, if they would withhold their direful forebodings from the public until the awful events transpire which they claim to see in prospective? The modern Jeremiahs, with their lugubrious predictions, lack the coveted "head of waters" and the "fountain of tears" of the ancient prophet, to give even the semblance of sincerity to their doleful lamentations.

Predictions of earthquakes, the submergence at the same time of widely-separated continents, or parts of the same, are neither philosophical nor probable. It was once taught that a great giant had his home under the earth, and when he rolled over he produced terrible consequences to those who dwell on the surface; but we are happy to announce the monster is dead! And so are those who invented him.

Does anyone believe Christianity was the gainer by the prediction that Jesus was to come in the clouds in great glory, and all the holy angels with him? True, it has been the capital for revivals, but every time the prediction failed a new stock of infidels were generated. Let us leave these scare-crows to the churches. They have need of them, but we have not.

DESERVE PITY.

Michigan will be a good State to avoid and flee from, if the medical bill, now pending in its legislature, shall become a law. If the medical profession has need of such a law for its protection, or if the people have become so servile to that profession as to need it for their protection, they deserve the pity, rather than the contempt of all the outside world.

CHRISTIAN CIVILIZATION.

No doubt some of the readers of The Progressive Thinker were almost shocked some four weeks ago with the statement that the Crusades paved the way to our present civilization. We are told almost continually that ours is a Christian civilization; that it is the result of the teachings of Jesus, and but for them the world would still be groveling in barbarism. The subject is a fruitful one, and volumes could be devoted to the question without its exhaustion.

We don't live many years in this world without learning that sectaries, with all their fine-spun theories of superior morals, are frequently guilty of gross exaggerations. Perchance this claim is one of them.

Take any good history of the Middle Ages and inquire as to the condition of Europe prior to the Crusades, and what do we find? A people ignorant, brutal, vicious, pillaging and plundering each other, constantly engaged in strife and violence, the nobility without education or refinement, while most of the priesthood were unable to read or write. The homes of the masses were caves, or the rudest huts, while the castles of the great were merely fortresses, destitute of all modern comforts, built by forced labor for the protection of the chief and his clan against the raids of neighboring clans. Might made right, and the principle was enforced to the letter. Buck's Theological Dictionary, article Croisade, gives a very correct representation of the condition of things at that period:

"At this time [1096] Europe was sunk in the most profound ignorance and superstition. The ecclesiastics had gained the greatest ascendancy over the human mind; and the people, who committed the most horrid crimes and disorders, knew of no other expiation than the observances imposed on them by their spiritual pastors. But amidst the abject superstition which now prevailed, the military spirit had also universally diffused itself; and, though not supported by art or discipline, was become the general passion of the nations governed by feudal law. All the great lords possessed the right of peace and war. They were engaged in continual hostilities with one another; the open country was become a scene of outrage and disorder; the cities, still mean and poor, were neither guarded by walls nor protected by privileges. Every man was obliged to depend for safety on his own force, or his private alliances; and valor was the only excellence which was held in esteem, or gave one man the pre-eminence above another."

And who were they who were precipitated on the East at that time, and what were their motives? Let Buck answer:

"Nobles, artisans, peasants, even priests, enrolled their names; and to decline this service, was branded with the reproach of impiety or cowardice. The nobles were moved by the romantic spirit of the age, to hope for opulent establishments in the East, the chief seat of arts and commerce at that time..... Even women, concealing their sex under the disguise of armor, attended the camp; and often forgot their duty still more by prostituting themselves to the army. The greatest criminals were forward in a service which they considered as an expiation for all crimes; and the most enormous disorders were during the course of these expeditions, committed by men inured to wickedness, encouraged by example, and impelled by necessity."

Still copying from Buck:

"Though these Crusades were effects of most absurd superstition, they tended greatly to promote the good of Europe. Multitudes, indeed, were destroyed. M. Voltaire computes the people who perished in the different expeditions at upwards of two millions. Many there were, however, who returned; and these having conversed so long with people who lived in a much more magnificent way than themselves, began to entertain some taste for a refined and polished way of life. Thus the BARBARISM in which Europe had been so long immersed, began to wear off soon after."

Further down the page, after telling of the horrid cruelties committed by these ruthless savages, Rev. Mr. Buck says: "They were such as could have been committed only by barbarians inflamed with the most bigoted enthusiasm."

This article is already too long, but it is well to place in contrast the difference between Christian savageism, and the civilization it attempted to efface. We copy from Draper's Intellectual Development of Europe, Vol. 2, p. 136:

"But what a scene awaited the zealous, the religious BARBARIANS—for such they truly were—when Constantinople, with its matchless splendors, came in view! What a scene when they had passed into Asia Minor, that garden of the world, presenting city after city, with palaces and edifices, the pride of twenty centuries! How unexpected the character of those Saracens, whom they had been taught, by those who had incited them to their enterprise, to regard as no better than bloodthirsty fiends, but whom they found valiant, merciful, just! When Richard, the Lion-hearted King of England, lay in his tent consumed by a fever, there came into camp camels laden with snow, sent by his enemy, the Sultan Saladin, to assuage his disease, the homage of one brave soldier to another. But when Richard was returning to England, it was by a Christian prince that he was treacherously seized and secretly confined. Even down to the meanest camp-follower, everyone must have recognized the difference between what they had anticipated and what they had found. They had seen undaunted courage, chivalrous bearing, intellectual culture far higher than their own. They had been in a land filled with the prodigies of human skill. They did not melt down into the populations to whom they returned without imparting to them a profound impression destined to make itself felt in the course of time."

It was felt in giving to the Western nations what churchmen now falsely term a Christian civilization.

A SPECIES OF INSANITY.

President Jordan, of Stanford University, California, in an address in one of the churches of Berkeley, is reported to have said:

"Stimulants produce temporary insanity. Whiskey, cocaine, and alcohol bring temporary insanity, and so does a revival of religion, one of those religious revivals in which men lose all their reason and self-control. This is simply a form of drunkenness no more worthy of respect than the drunkenness which lies in the gutter."

The position of the learned lecturer is hardly correct. The victims of those revivals are as effectually hypnotized as are those manipulated by a professional mesmerist. It would be just to pronounce such cases a species of insanity, but unjust to call it drunkenness.

AYER'S TEMPLE CASE.

Decision That the Raiders at the Temple Were Right.

END OF THE TRIAL OF THE AYER'S TEMPLE CASE—ACTION OF THE SIX YOUNG MEN WHO BROKE UP A MEETING IN THE SPIRITUAL TEMPLE, BOSTON, MASS., WAS JUSTIFIED, ACCORDING TO JURY, BY THE RESULT—FRAUD PROVEN—LESSON OF THE EPISODE—LETTER FROM A PROMINENT MEDIUM AND SPIRITUALIST OF CHELSEA, MASS.

For several months, Marcellus Ayer, who built with his own money, and several thousands donated by Spiritualists, the Temple on the Back Bay, has been giving materializing seances on the show basis, at this edifice, charging twenty-five cents at the box office. Many intelligent Spiritualists were scandalized at having what they deemed the highest and holiest functions of their religion being dragged before the public and peddled out to the madding crowd at the low rate of twenty-five cents—cheap enough! But in spite of censure Mr. Ayer ran his show and gathered in many shekels, a noisy and promiscuous crowd attending each Sunday. Before each seance, he made a set speech assuring the audience of the genuineness of the spirits and inviting persons to come up on the platform and examine the cabinet, either before or after a seance.

On November 29, six young men in the audience who noticed that a wig on a supposed female spirit, did not adjust itself properly, thus showing the black hair of the male medium, and knowing that they were being defrauded of their money under the false pretense of beholding genuine spirits, rushed upon the platform, pulled aside the curtain, and exposed the male medium naked to the waist, as he was peeling off his white robe. The raiders did not lay hands on the medium; they simply seized the paraphernalia and fled with it to the police station. Hundreds of people saw the medium naked and testified to it in court and some of the Directors and Trustees of the Temple were obliged to acknowledge on the witness stand, that they were in disfavor of Ayer's proceedings at the Temple.

Mr. Ayer sued the raiders, and won his case before Judge Forsaith, on the grounds of disturbing a religious meeting held for the worship of God, as many Spiritualists took the stand and testified that, on the day of the raid, they had gone to the Temple to worship God. This would be laughable, were it not ridiculous; every sensible Spiritualist knows the feeling or emotion which impels him to attend a seance. With some, it is curiosity; some, a hope of seeing a loved one; with others, wonder and amazment that spirits can materialize, and still others feel overwhelmed with gratitude towards the medium and her band of operating intelligences. But no enlightened Spiritualist would claim that they attended a seance for the worship of God, as God does not produce the materializing. In fact, Mr. Ayer testified on the stand, that King Agrippe who died four thousand years ago, produced the spirit forms. When the Judge asked him if it was usual for mediums to be naked in the cabinet, Mr. Ayer unblushingly replied that he had often seen the spirits disrobe a medium to nakedness!!! When asked if he had literally beheld the spirits who performed the operation, he was obliged to confess no.

The raiders, who were backed by several wealthy Spiritualists of Boston, appealed to the highest tribunal, and those back of them, paid the costs of a trial by jury, as they did not wish the religion of Spiritualism to be gauged by the indecent materializations at the Temple, which cast discredit upon it.

The twelve jurymen were evidently men of intelligence and well advanced in years as well as mental development, and they listened intently to all the evidence.

Judge Fessenden said, "The statute relating to the worship of God, means what it says; it does not mean the worship of phenomena substituted for God. It means reverence, worship, the paying of divine honors to the supreme being. As to the other count for which these defendents were prosecuted, namely the disturbing of a lawful assembly, people have a right to assemble for the purpose of listening to addresses, or for amusement and entertainment. The defense says this was not a meeting for amusement, but to give assistance to a fraud. There has been a great deal of testimony and all is to be considered by you."

The trial was conducted with great fairness and deference to Spiritualists, and it is ridiculous for anyone to declare that Spiritualists can never get a fair hearing or justice in a court of law, for if we respect the religion of Spiritualism and do not make a farce of it ourselves by placing it on the level of a show, we will find that the public will respect it also.

The jury acquited the young men on both counts, that of disturbing a religious meeting for the worship of God, and, second, for disturbing a lawful assembly. The male and female mediums were absolutely proven cheats of the deepest dye. The public theatre is no place for the phenomena of materialization, which requires subtile laws and the privacy of the home circle for its best and truest development, and the sooner we understand this, the better for our faith.

Materialization is not the thing itself, Spiritualism—heaven help us if it is; Spiritualism is a belief in the continuity of the life beyond and embodies a study of the souls' progress through the different paths leading up to infinity. There are thousands of Spiritualists who do not believe in materialization, and for that reason, it cannot be said that materialization constitutes Spiritualism. The fact that materialization is possible induces hundreds of charlatans to adopt it for a livelihood and the spirit world stands aghast with horror at the ready acceptance of these frauds by the Spiritualists themselves. Some of the spiritual avenues have been closed by sorrowing intelligences—who, rather than stay in an atmosphere reeking with the grossness of such deceit, have wended their way far above it, there to wait until the people of earth shall acquire wisdom and drop their gullibility. If Spiritualists only knew the extent to which materialization has been adopted as a livelihood, they would recoil in horror; if they only knew the frauds which exist in their very midst, posing as mediums for this phenomena, they would be overwhelmed with the ease with which these charlatans carry on their trade. And even we Spiritualists aid and abet them by believing and declaring that test conditions, or an investigation into the genuineness of our mediums, will "disturb the conditions," etc. If we stop to think a moment, we will realize that the spirit world do not require blindness and credulity in us, when investigating phenomena. If they desire us to profit and learn by their teachings and phenomena, they will give us every chance to investigate and thus prove that our spiritual teachers are above reproach. Whenever mediums, loud-mouthed, cry out against a proper investigation of their phenomena, I know they are fraudulent. Honesty of purpose and a desire for truth, when putting a materialization medium under test conditions, will never disturb any conditions, excepting the conditions of fraud the medium is seeking to conceal. It is an insult to our intelligence, for such medium to produce so-called spirit forms, and expect us to believe it without giving us ample opportunity to prove their statement. As persons of intellect and common sense, we should resent the idea put forth by these mediums and their guides, namely, that we are fools and must accept blindly as the truth, whatever comes forth from their cabinet in the guise of a spirit. As persons of logic and reason, we have a right to expect and demand from the spirit world, that they shall give us the proper conditions for examining into the truth of these manifestations. Instead of mortals "disturbing the conditions," by investigation, it more often is the spirits who refuse to allow that investigation, and thus "disturb the conditions" necessary for we mortals to prove or disprove their phenomena. After a constant investigation of materialization, at the hot-bed of Spiritualism, Onset Bay, for the past fifteen years, I am convinced that two-thirds of it is fraud, and that we help along that fraud by our silly and credulous conduct in accepting phenomena without proper investigation.

Chelsea, Mass. EVA A. CASSELL.

Several weeks ago, as is well known, six young men made a dash for medium Concannon at Ayer's Temple, Boston, and caught him as they affirmed, in the act of perpetrating a fraud. They were arrested, the trial held with the result as given above by Mrs. Cassell, who is a prominent Spiritualist and medium of Chelsea, Mass. We give simply the result of the trial, as a matter of news, over which the readers of The Progressive Thinker can reflect. It is due them to know what is going on, and each one can believe or reject, as they may deem proper. Spiritualists as a mass in a great measure have ceased to be babes, and want to know what is going on in this great movement. We published Mr. Ayer's letter shortly after the raid occurred, and now we give the following from the Boston Herald:

"Not guilty" is the verdict of the 12 good men and true in the noted case of the government, on complaint of Marcellus S. Ayer, proprietor of the First Spiritual Temple, against George B. Gates, Clifford S. Estes, Edmund C. Wood, Dudley G. Kimball, Robert Rigby and Robert Harley.

When Judge Fessenden came in at 9:30 o'clock this morning the seal of the envelope delivered by the foreman of the jury last night, after he and his fellows had deliberated for 1½ hours, was broken by the clerk, and the verdict was read.

Only a few Spiritualists were present to hear the judgment, interest in the case having waned since the trial in the lower coure. Mr. Ayer was absent, but he learned the verdict in the corridor on his arrival five minutes later. The Spiritualists left the court house quickly.

There was one Spiritualist on the jury, but he was quickly convinced by the evidence of fraud at the Temple. The jury deliberated most of the time on the second count of the complaint, alleging that the young men had disturbed a lawful assembly without lawful excuse. They decided that the fact of fraud and the invitation of Mr. Ayer to investigate were lawful excuses.

The first count charged that the defendants wilfully disturbed a religious meeting. The jurors did not consider this worth discussion.

This case has been widely quoted all over the country, and the matters involved were of great importance. Nice questions as to religious worship were considered, and much light was shed on the proper course to be pursued at meetings of the nature of those at the First Spiritual Temple.

In his charge, Judge Fessenden very clearly noted two questions for the judgment of the jurors to settle. One was as to whether the religious character of the exercises had ceased when the demonstrations of the existence of a future life began—and the other, as to whether the young men were justified in acting as they did in the light of the more or less cordial invitation to investigate which Mr. Ayer gave.

Spiritualists will be interested now to know if they can conduct their demonstrations by alleged spirits without fear of the more or less athletic attentions of credulous spectators. They do not appear to be safe from investigation when they employ common and notorious frauds as mediums.

A great deal with regard to this case has been printed, but some of the facts have been kept in the background when their publication might have set at rest widely-circulated gossip that the young men were a band of irresponsible mischief makers. Mr. Gates, the principal defendant, is a student of phrenology and occult science, and first went to the temple for the innocent purpose of studying the heads of the regular attendants there. He and Mr. Wood, another of the defendants, strolled over to the temple one Sunday morning, at a time when Mr. and Mrs. Concannon had been flaunting their trickery in the eyes of great gatherings for six weeks.

Concannon, as the impersonator of full form ghosts, was exceedingly bold then, walking from the cabinet to the edge of the platform and occasionally stepping down the short flight of stairs leading to one of the aisles. The intelligence and shrewdness of Gates and Wood received a rude shock by such an exhibition, and they made up their minds to expose the fraud which, after more thorough investigation, they had no doubt existed.

The exercises at the temple are peculiar in that the conductor of them vouches for the true worth of the ghosts, rappings and other manifestations. The purpose, it is stated, is to convince skeptics by indisputable evidence. Nevertheless, the ordinary, common sense precautions to prevent fraud that occur to the average man are not taken. Every fraudulent medium has his program of so-called "test conditions," but when these conditions are analyzed they are found not to constitute a true test. Mr. Concannon adopted "conditions" which when looked into, were found to aid rather than to obstruct his trickery.

A great show of appointing an investigating committee was made every Sunday, but it was very evident that Concannon would not invite a committee of strangers to the platform without leaving a loophole for his trickery to escape, and this loophole consisted wholly in the aid which he received from his wife. It was plain to Mr. Gates that the problem could not be solved without seizing Concannon in his white robes, and the only way to do this lay in a sudden rush to the platform.

Mr. Gates found eight or ten young men among his fellow-workmen and other acquaintances who, after attending the Concannon exhibition, were as strongly convinced of fraud and as eager to put an end to it. On the Sunday, two weeks before the exposure, they were in their seats ready to act, but Concannon had grown wary, and did not give an opportunity. When they did make their exposure, it was complete. Some of the spectators who were, and still are, true Spiritualists, saw Concannon pull off his white robes, revealing his naked form, and watched him pull on the clothing which he had discarded before donning the white garments. Mr. Gates captured a white robe, whiskers, wig and rubber mask. Mrs. Concannon ran into the cabinet, scooped off the floor the lace which Gates failed to get, and, going behind the organ, tucked it up under her dress.

In spite of this disclosure, which was so plain and convincing that only a handful of the temple Spiritualists remain under the temple standard, Mr. Ayer stuck to the Concannons and kept them at the temple three weeks after the exposure. If he had renounced them, he would have retained the support of his right hand man, Mr. Fred O. Emery, and others of the believers, not to speak of the hundreds who were attending the temple, anxious to hear from their departed relatives and friends, if it were possible to receive such tidings. His prosecution of the six young men attempted to prove that Gates took the robe and other articles into the cabinet and threw them over Concannon.

In the lower court, Mr. Ayer, aided by the skill and decided cleverness of Lawyer Charles W. Bartlett, secured a conviction of all six of the defendants on both counts. Judge Forsaith ruled that it was a religious meeting, and also a lawful assembly, and imposed fines of $25 on each count on each of the defendants.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

Judge Fessenden, in charging the jury, talked for half an hour, his singularly clear array of the law and the evidence being followed with close attention. In beginning, he explained that the charges must be proved beyond reasonable doubt, or the defendants acquitted. He directed the jurors' attention next to the first count in the complaint, alleging the wilful disturbance of an assembly of people for the worship of God.

"There is no controversy," he went on, "as to there having been an assembly of people. They met, but it is a question whether they met for the worship of God. The burden is upon the government to prove that they so met. The statue means what it says. It doesn't mean the worship of a substituted God. It means reverence, worship, the paying of divine honors to the supreme being.

"The worship must have been in progress at the specified time of the disturbance. If the worship had ceased at the time the disturbance took place, there was no disturbance of a religious meeting. It is for you to decide what God or divine being is. The courts are not competent to give instruction in that particular. The particular form of worship is left to the conscience of the one who worships. If you find there was no worship of God, the defendants must be acquitted.

"The second count is based on another clause, namely, that a lawful assembly of people was disturbed. People have a right to assemble in a peaceable manner, according to the Constitution, for the purpose of listening to addresses or witnessing certain forms and ceremonies. The government claims that it was a lawful assembly, but the defence says it was an assembly for witnessing bogus acts.

"The people have a right to assemble for amusement or entertainment. The defence says this was not a meeting for amusement, but to give assistance to the carrying out of a fraud. What the assembly and not the performers or lecturers had in mind is the question. There has been a great deal of testimony, and all is to be considered by you. No one has a right to interfere because he disagrees with the reader or lecturer. If you are left in doubt on this complaint, the defendants should be acquitted.

"You have next to consider if the assembly was wilfully interrupted. This does not mean necessarily that the sole purpose of the defendants was to create riot. Was the disturbance by making loud and indecent noises and without lawful excuse? The phrase 'without lawful excuse' is in both counts. Try to get at the situation. The government claims that nothing was said or done to lead any one to feel that he was invited to investigate in the manner complained of. The defence says there was such an invitation. The suggestion was made that investigation was courted. If persons had a right to act under the invitation, there would not be a disturbance, but one of the things which the director of the exercises had suggested. This is a battle of evidence, and it is for you to say if the invitation was extended to the spectators.

"The case is of some consequence. It is a question as to the disturbance of a lawful meeting, and also as to whether persons asked to perform acts should be allowed to do so. It is not proper to convict on both counts, and therefore you are to inquire as to each count, also to each defendant."

Now, Spiritualists, you have Mrs. Cassell's statement, the judge's charge, and the decision of the jury, and the whole matter is left with you for your consideration. We published Mr. Ayer's statement long ago, and it due our readers to now have the other side.

TO BE REMEMBERED.

We are glad to note that the people of Kansas have determined to secure a marble statue of the late Charles Robinson, the first governor of Kansas under the State organization. It is proposed to place it in the chapel of the State University at Lawrence. Governor Robinson was one of the most influential leaders of the Free State party in its arduous struggle to wrest Kansas from the pro-slavery usurpers who flocked over by thousands from Missouri, and for a time did its voting. He was an earnest believer in the teachings of Spiritualism, and a gentleman commanding ability, and great moral and social worth.

MASS MEETINGS.

Grand mass-meetings under auspices of the N. S. A., will be held in Buffalo, New York, March 19th and 20th. President, H. D. Barrett, Mrs. C. L. V. Richmond, Hon. L. V. Moulton, Mr. Homer Altemus and other eminent talent will be in attendance.

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY,
Secretary.

"Poems of Progress." By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1.

"The Prophets of Ismel." By Prof. C. H. Cornill, of the University of Koenigsberg. A scholarly and appreciative historical review of the prophets of Israel and their works. For sale at this office. Paper covers, 25c.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

A VISIT TO THE SO-CALLED MOTHER OF GOD.

SOLON AND MARY VISIT JESUS AND MARY, HIS MOTHER, WITHIN THE HEAVENLY SPHERES.

"It is my intention, I said, "to write a book by the aid of an earthly medium, to the men and women of earth; will you impart some of your wisodm to me that I may give to those of earth and are you willing that I should say, that such messages are from Jesus of Nazareth direct?"

"Perfectly willing," he replied. He then bowed his head thoughtfully, for a short time, and raising it, he said:

"I do not know that I can say anything better than I did say when on the earth. I will repeat some of those sayings and give you their meaning; for, oftentimes my true meaning has been perverted. 'I would gather thee, as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, but ye would not.' A hen gathers her chickens under her wings that she may warm and protect them from all harm, also impart a large portion of her own magnetic life to them. I desired to gather all nations and tribes together in one common belief; that which I knew to be wisdom, love, and truth, that they might love one another in brotherly love, and not war, slay, and plunder each other. I desired that all men should be free and equal. I would that they were so, on the earth to-day. I was nailed to the cross because I freely expressed my views, and when they mocked and spat upon me, saying, 'Art thou the king of the Jews? if so, come down and save thyself,' I answered: 'Thou sayest it; not I. They supposed that I meant to be a king or ruler of the Jews, who were then held in bondage, lead them out of their bondage and make war with Pilate, to destroy his kingdom; but this I had never thought of doing. I said to those who were crucified with me: 'This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise,' and most assuredly they were. They had called to me, saying: 'If thou art, indeed, the king of the Jews, or a messiah'—which means one who would save them from their bondage—'save us and thyself, from this terrible death.' But they had spoken mockingly, or in a sarcastic manner, and I meant them to understand that a better fate awaited them than they supposed; that the spiritual life would be a Paradise, compared with the earthly one, and we three would soon be there; and now I would like to reason with those on the earth. 'Come, let us reason together!' Was it any worse for me to be crucified, than for those who were crucified with me? Did I suffer more than they? No; not a whit, and yet, my image hanging on the cross, is all over the earth to-day, and that image, alone, is the cause of thousands upon thousands having been tortured, burned hanged, walled-up alive, broken on the wheel, smothere and trampled to death, and a thousand other horrors too dreadful to mention. It has caused wars, plunder, rapine, and murder. Where I would have all men love one another, they have instead, in my name, committed all these fearful crimes; and when any would have fallen at my feet and called me master, I said unto them: 'See that thou do it not. Am I not thy brother, like unto thyself?'

"O! I want none to worship me," he continued, covering his face with his hand. "I would that I could destroy all such images and paintings from off the face of the earth; they lead to guilt and crime of the most fearful description. Was my death more than another man's? Were my sufferings more than millions of others? No; my sufferings were light compared with those who have suffered on my account. O! mistaken world. How long—how long shall such things be? Write my brother! Write, Solon! I would control the aforesaid medium direct, but at once the cry would be: Fraud! Delusion! Trickery! and so I desist: but do thou write, and tell the people the words which I have said unto thee," and he arose weeping! weeping for the sins of the world, as he had done when in the body. Beautiful, loving, wise soul. I felt almost like falling down at his feet myself; but his stern; 'See that thou do it not. Am I not thy brother?' Still rung in my ears, and I embraced him, instead; he kissed my lips as he said:

"Solon, thou canst do more for mankind now, than I can; for many will receive thee, who would not receive me; for; the very ones who call themselves Christians, or my followers, would not believe me if I were to stand in their midst to-day; for where is the rich man who will sell all that he has and give it to the poor? Where is the man who who will love all other men as he loves himself? Where is he who will bless and not curse? When on earth I desired to bless all mankind, to remove all suffering: Who could have dreamed that I would have any cast into hell, because they could or would not, believe me to have been miraculously conceived by God himself. I never even dreamed that my birth was any different from other men; yet, I had supposed Joseph to be my father; my mother, at that time, not being willing to make it known to me who my real father was.

"Solon, go thou, together with thy Mary, forth, and sow the seeds of truth wheresoever thou canst find ground that will receive it. Peradventure, a new harvest of greater value may arise, and my bleeding heart thereby soothed. My heart bled on earth for the woes and sufferings of my kind, and for many centuries my heart has bled for the woes and sufferings inflicted upon mankind in my name. O! when will men perceive the truth as it is?"

"Can you not tell me," I asked, "the best way to reach mankind? for you have been in this world many hundred years longer than I have, consequently, your wisdom must be many, very many degrees more than mine."

Upon this he stooped down, and wrote upon the ground, the following words:

"How is it possible that an all-wise God, who can see the end from the beginning, if he were as good, perfect and merciful as wise—how is it possible, we ask, that he should create man for the express purpose of torturing him everlastingly? How is it possible for earthly fathers and mothers to willfully beget children, if they fully believe that, perhaps all, or a number of them will be consigned to everlasting torment? How is it possible to conceive of even one creature burning in flames forever? Would not man, woman or child relieve even the lowest animal from such a fate? But fire cannot hurt a spirit under any circumstances. Fire has no effect upon a spiritual being in any way, except as a spirit feels joy and pleasure because of its purifying properties: Yea; a spirit sings for joy at sight of the grand work which heat and fire perform. But for the fiery rays of the sun, which in and of themselves are fire, not a green thing would be upon the face of the earth; man nor beast would have any existence whatever; there would be no spiritual spheres about the earth, and you and I, my dear Solon, would never have had life; in fact, as you well know, magnetic flame, or elementary fire, is the vehicle in which our souls ride; magnetic flame is the covering of our souls—its clothing—in other words, our spiritual bodies; as matter on earth is the covering of spirit and soul."

He arose, and spreading forth his hands toward all the beautiful verdure around, he said:

"Heat or fire alone brings all this here from the earth to us. Heat is the only vehicle that fetches us anything whatsoever. A beautiful flower withers on earth; heat at once takes the essence or spirit of that flower and brings it here, and leaves it, a beautiful, imperishable thing. God or wisdom has created all things that they might live in joy and gladness forevermore; and if through earthly bad conditions or ignorance men and women commit that which is called sin, how glorious and worthy of all wisdom is it, that in a few months or years at most, they will outgrow such conditions, and as immortal beings, go on with joy and gladness forever and forever; and that all souls are marching straight on into greater joy and brightness at every step they take. Ah! they do not go downward into hell, but straight onward into heaven. And now, my Solon, thou canst go thy way. I can say no more."

Marah and Jesus embraced us, and we went forth from the garden.

My Mary had now visited the so-called Virgin and the so-called Savior of mankind. O! how different were they from what she had expected to see; but, my dear reader, is not the truth a thousand times better than the old error?

CHAPTER VIII.

A VISIT TO THE SO-CALLED ST. PETER.

SOLON AND MARY PAY A VISIT TO ST. PETER WITHIN THE HEAVENLY SPHERES.

Now it is supposed by many Catholics on earth, also within the spiritual spheres, that St. Peter holds the keys of heaven. We shall not here discuss the question learnedly; enough for our present purpose to say that my Mary had been taught this in her youth, and firmly believed it, together with thousands of others, therefore we desired to pay St. Peter a visit; but now fully understanding the art of soul telegraphy, we sent word to him of our great wish to see him and would he meet us on the way? He replied that he would be most happy to do so; and joyfully winging our way, we met him shortly, and were surprised beyond measure as we perceived a large bunch of keys hanging from his girdle, and certainly he looked somewhat as he is represented to look in pictures on earth.

His form was majestic, his features noble and generous in their expression. He wore a flowing robe of cream-white, faced deeply all around with opals changing tints. He wore a crown of gold upon his head, all studded with jewels of opal. His girdle, together with the bunch of keys, were of shining gold. His eyes were really the color of the changing opal, and were shifting from one tint to another with every motion. He approached and gave us each a hand. His hands were large and warm, and his clasp was most friendly and affectionate.

Mary, on perceiving the bunch of keys, looked utterly amazed; whereupon, Peter smiled:

"Ah!" said he, "your earthly teaching is not entirely without foundation, as we hope to prove to you presently."

Saying this, he selected a key from the bunch, and held it up between his thumb and finger.

"Will you accompany me a short distance?" he asked; and we followed him. He soon paused before what appeared to be prison walls, and we gazed in astonishment at a door set therein which seemed to be of iron; and to look at these walls and at this door, one would think that from this apparent prison none who were once incarcerated there could ever escape. Really we were at a loss to at once comprehend the meaning of what we were gazing at.

Peter smiled benignly at our puzzled looks, when there flashed out above the door, in letters of fire, the following words:

"Strong walls of prejudice, surrounding the city of obsolete ideas."

"If I have not the keys of heaven," said Peter, with a smile, "I hold many keys wherewith to unlock the gates of error and allow some of the captives to go free."

Whereupon he inserted the key within the lock and threw wide the great iron door, that we might enter.

"Wherever there is prejudice, and false ideas," he said, "there is unhappiness, whether on earth or within the spheres. We are now within a city of prisons wherein are incarcerated thousands of souls, and yet we are not on earth, but within the heavens, and these souls do not desire to be free; on the contrary they would that the walls were higher and stronger, without doors or entrance of any kind, and if they could rob me of my keys and destroy them they would only be too glad."

We had not advanced more than a few yards when other great walls obstructed our way; but St. Peter took another key from his bunch, and unlocked this door as well; and thus we with difficulty pressed on, every few yards coming in contact with huge, strong walls, and St. Peter's golden keys were always called into requisition.

At length we seemed to have gained the interior of this vast inclosure. We were exceedingly weary, feeling as people on earth do when exhausted and perspiration breaking from every pore. We sank down on some hard stone benches near us, and gazed curiously over this vast prison. Truly, no modern improvements ever found their way into this place, or improvements of any kind whatsoever.

Ah! we began to understand the meaning of the words: "Spirits in Prison! Souls in Prison"—needlessly there, as we were soon to understand.

As our eyes swept over this vast assembly of many thousand souls, we uttered groans of sympathy for these benighted prisoners. All around, like an amphitheatre, were cells, barely large enough to hold a single spirit, for of course no angel dwelt here, and there were cells, and cells after cells, rows upon rows, each one containing a human spirit. Really the place reminded me of the honey-comb of bees—walls upon walls, cells upon cells. The center of this vast circle was somewhat like a vast arena wherein moved the forms of hundreds of human spirits; these appeared to move about within this enclosed space freely; but the floor was of iron, solid and strong.

In the center of the arena was, what appeared to be, a large well with a thick stone curbing, and many spirits were huddled about this well, gazing down into it, and as they looked some would turn away shuddering, others would laugh and jeer, while others yet would continually push back within its depths spirits who appeared to rise up out of it as though desiring to escape from the depths of its darkness and despair. Occasionally we observed that a spirit would rise, and after a short struggle with someone who would try to hold it down, emerge from the pit and leap into the arena, free, so far as the dark depths were concerned.

Now within the arena we saw women bowed nearly to the ground under the weight of enormous burdens; men who appeared to be toiling in misery, drunkenness and filth; little children were wallowing like pigs in a sty. O! the sight was too dreadful, and we covered our eyes with our hands. Peter looked at us with a smile, and I said:

"How can you smile with such dreadful sights before your eyes?"

He answered not, but shook and jingled his keys merrily. Most of the spirits within the cells appeared to be scourging and torturing themselves in every conceivable way. Huge, brutal-looking keepers, went from cell to cell with scourge and whip-cords; others with all manner of curious contrivances to strangle, behead, burn, sock out eyeballs—O! there was no end to the dreadful sights and sounds. Around, within the arena, were standing a number of guillotines, worked by monstrous spirits, and a writhing victim, at every one, undergoing torture; then there were many gallows with struggling victims hanging from each. O! dreadful—dreadful sight! and, lastly, a chair wherein was strapped a struggling wretch, undergoing the tortures of electrocution.

"You perceive," said St. Peter, "we have it all here. Earth does not hold all sin, all error, all misery, but it is perpetuated within the spiritual spheres; for this is one of the prisonhouses of hell, and there are many such within the heavens; but, as you can readily see, death cannot ensue from any of these horrible instruments of torture, neither can the spirit be actually hurt by them; they are but suffering the tortures of preconceived ideas or prejudices."

And now we observed that the guillotined spirits rose up from being apparently beheaded, carrying their heads on their shoulders as before; those from the gallows, after being cut down were precisely as they were before; yet, some bore a scarlet mark about the throat; those whose eyes were apparently gouged out, still retained their eyes.

Ah! this was the most awful pandemonium that our eyes ever rested upon! but Peter jingled his keys lustily and called out with a loud voice:

"Let all those who have ears, hear; and all those who have eyes, see;" and he held aloft the golden keys, ringing an alarm with them.

"If there is a man, woman, or child, who desires to escape from this hellish city of prejudices, let him follow the sound of the golden keys!" and he rang them one against the other louder than before. A number of the inmates of the city raised their heads and looked in our direction, and then stolidly returned to their former ways.

"Not one of these prisoners need remain here," said Peter. "No one compels them to. These walls are erected by themselves from their own prejudices. Their agonizing tortures are inflicted on themselves by themselves. They cannot or will not see the light of truth, and they will not accept the golden keys to heaven, even when offered to them. Every day I visit this place and try to liberate these spirits in prison, and if I get one to go hence, I feel amply repaid for my trouble. I delight in setting prisoners free. It has been my work for many hundred years. I hope it will be my work for many more."

Saying this, he again rang his keys and called out loudly:

"If any man have ears to hear, let him hear; and eyes to see, let him not be blind. Come forth from your cells and be free men!"

Whereupon a wretched-looking man, crawled forth from his cell and slowly approached us. He was emaciated, pale, abject and despairing. He stood before us with clasped hands and downcast eyes, mean in spirit and filthy to look upon.

"Wouldst thou be free from this bondage?" asked Peter.

"I would be free from the bondage of sin," answered the man; "therefore do I scourge myself day and night, praying unceasingly."

"How long hast thou been here?" again questioned Peter.

"It may have been an hundred years, more or less," replied the man.

"Have you gained in knowledge, happiness and holiness, in all those years? You look exceedingly meager and filthy."

"I cannot say that I have gained," answered the man. "I am becoming weary of this life, and would fain escape from it."

"What, pray tell us, has kept you here so long?"

"I was a monk when on earth, and was taught that to scourge and crucify myself was the sure road to holiness, and most acceptable to God and his son Jesus the Christ—the savior of mankind."

"And are you saved? Do you find yourself acceptable to God?"

A wretched sigh escaped from the benighted soul.

"I have not found my God, nor yet my Savior; and so for all these long weary years, I have kept on, hoping thereby to gain admittance to his presence."

"And, thereby, sinking your soul deeper and deeper into hell!" said Peter, with great solemnity.

"What shall I do to be saved?" asked the man, wringing his hands, the tears streaming from his upturned eyes.

"Beat down the walls of your foolish prejudices or beliefs, and come forth manfully into the light of truth. Here: take this golden key wherewith to unlock the storehouses of wisdom, and follow me—yet, tarry here a little, that I may find others to keep you company."

The spirit appeared exceedingly weak, and sank down on the hard stone bench, burying his face in his hands. Mary's eyes wore an expression of pity, and I asked:

"Sir, being a spirit, why have you remained within a cell, scourging and mortifying yourself? On leaving your mortal body, you must at once have perceived that your ideas of the future life had been incorrect."

"I knew that a mistake had been made somewhere," he replied, "but it was not clear to me where; and I concluded that my sins were not yet forgiven—that I had not sufficiently mortified the flesh and the devil—that being the reason why I did not at once behold the beatific vision. I am, by nature, a very determined person, and I said to myself that I would get into heaven although I were a thousand years in gaining it; therefore I continued my orisons, alternating prayer with severe scourging, but days, months, and years have passed on, and my condition has not changed for the better."

"But have not bright angels visited you here, in this prisonhouse, and tried to enlighten your soul with rays of truth?"

"Oh! many, very many!" he answered, "but when I asked them if they had seen God, their answers were evasive and not to the point. Some said there was no personal God, but God dwelt within all things. Such, although they looked bright and comparatively happy, I have thus far considered damned atheists, accursed of God and all good men, thinking their brightness was an alluring light to drag me into the depths of hell, and I have turned away from them, thinking that my God was trying me, to see if I were worthy, withstanding all temptations; therefore, thus far, I have never yielded, no matter how bright or shining they may have been, but have renewed my orisons with greater fervor than before."

"Have none of your relatives visited you, desiring to release you from this bondage?"

"O, yes;" he replied, "my mother and sister have been here many times, desiring to lead me forth; but, when I questioned them closely, they admitted that they were not in heaven. "Then," said I, "join me here, and together, with humiliation and prayer, we will yet attain heaven." But to this they would not consent, saying they preferred to take their chances as they were. Of late St. Peter, has passed by my cell many times, but, when I questioned him, asking if he held the keys of heaven, his replies, also, have not been to the point; he would not admit that he had seen God in the glory of his person, and said that the keys which he carried were, rather, to unlock the gates of prejudice and loose the spirits in prison; therefore I have considered him one of the arch fiends, in the guise of St. Peter, and, thus far, he has had no power to tempt me."

"Well," I asked, "what has changed your mind to-day, that you thus come forth to join us?" Tears trickled through the worn and emaciated fingers which covered his eyes.

"The sight of this beautiful being by your side," he replied with a sob, "and, as I beheld her, there rushed over me the memory of what I once was, before I became a monk."

(To be Continued.)

MEDICAL LIBERTY.

A LEAGUE TO WITHSTAND MEDICAL TYRANNY—COMBINATION AGAINST MONOPOLISTIC MEDICAL FRAUDS.

To the Editor:—By your kind permission I will briefly state for the benefit of your readers the object of the United States Medical Liberty League.

1. The League recognizes every person's right to his own body. This involves the right to care for the same in whatever way seems best to the individual.

It also involves the right to use such food, drink, clothing and treatment for the body as the person deems best for him or herself. Such freedom has never been directly denied any citizen of this country; but, through a conspiracy of the regular medical allopathic physicians, this right has been indirectly confiscated in many States by corrupt and unconstitutional legislation—by way of medical laws, fraudulently entered on the statutes under the false pretense of protecting the public against frauds. The facts, however, are these: Statistics prove that the class of physicians who have combined to secure such unconstitutional laws consists of those who are the least successful in relieving humanity. In Boston they are exposed by statistics as being 400 per cent inferior to the irregulars. Futhermore, investigation in several States has disclosed the horrible facts that people who employed regular physicians for a period of seven years or more have 92 per cent suffering from paralysis, nervous prostration, rheumatism or neuralgia, while among such people, who had for seven years or longer employed irregular physicians or none at all, only twelve per cent of such people suffered from the above named diseases; thus clearly illustrating that if this country had any right to interfere with the individual, personal, right of choice in regard to medical treatment of his own body, the regular drug doctor is the proper physician to outlaw.

2. The League realizes that it is utterly impossible for people single-handed to maintain their God-given rights over and against medical organizations who through such laws rob the public annually of something like $50,000,000, and can by combined money and political influence not only corrupt the legislatures of the land, but also the superior courts, as long as there is no powerful organization able to exert a political influence in the interest of the outraged public. Feeble efforts have been made during these last fifteen years which cover the period of class legislation in this half century; but the money and spoils on the side of the medical oppressors have steadily gained in power in spite of all such effort to maintain American constitutional liberty over and against such combines of legalized frauds. Hence, it is of the greatest importance, in order to save the drug and blood-poisoned Caucasian race, that it organize itself into a protective combine over and against its medicine men whose treatment degenerates the race so fast that if not checked soon they will only be known in history and museums as a race exterminated by the superstition or fraud of their physicians. The first half of this century experienced medical tyranny and suffered so greatly under it that the New England States (then representing the civilized centers of this country) had to make medical legislation a specialty and this brought about the happy result of a new Declaration of Independence in the form of a complete repeal of all medical class legislation.

This League will aim to accomplish the same needed result at the present time, and is already doing a grand work. We appeal earnestly to all liberty-loving citizens to become members at once and thus help on this good work so ably begun.

DR. MARY E. SELLEN, PH.D., M.D.
Corresponding secretary, People's Institute.
Chicago, Ill.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col, Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

SPIRITUALISM SCIENTIFICALLY DEMONSTRATED.

BY PROF. ROBERT HARE.

His Remarkable Researches Made in the Early Years of Spiritualism.

Directly Edited and Revised by Him, Now in Spirit-Life.

PARAGRAPHS WORTHY OF PRESERVATION—WORLD LEAST MORAL WHEN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH HAD MOST SWAY—HONOR AND MERCANTILE CREDIT MORE TRUSTED THAN RELIGION—VIRTUE DUE MORE TO THE HEART THAN TO SECTARIANISM BIGOTRY ACTS LIKE AN EVIL SPIRIT.

It will be perceived, that when the church had the world most completely under its sway, there was the least morality; but as the arts and sciences grew up, in despite of religious intolerance, morality improved. Thus a system has been established, which while violating, more especially the most emphatic monitions of Christ, tends to enforce those rules of conduct which are necessary to the welfare of society. But an auxiliary principle—honor—has come into operation, which often restrains those who are not influenced by religion, nor by pure morality. Honor, like the fear of hell, may make a man act more nobly, or more honestly, without improving his religious principles or his heart. Hence the saying, "Honor among thieves," and likewise among unprincipled gamblers.

That religion has actually very little to do with mercantile morals, must be evident, since it is never, on change, an object of inquiry. When men are about to trust large sums, they do not inquire how often the other party goes to church, nor to what church he goes. It has never been my lot to know any one whom I thought better for his religion. I have known many whom I thought better through native goodness of heart than they would have been if left to the influence of their bigoted opinions alone. I heard a clergyman, distinguished for his amiability and liberality in social intercourse, speak from the pulpit of infidelity as "the work of the devil."

IMPROPER USE OF THE EPITHET INFIDEL, AS USED IN THE PARODIED QUOTATION FROM THE CLERGYMAN'S LETTER.

If a man cannot be guilty of infidelity to another man's wife, how can he be guilty of infidelity to another man's religion? The Mohammedan wrongfully calls the Christian "infidel," because he does not believe in Mohammed; and as wrongfully is the epithet retorted, because the Mohammedan does not believe in Christ. The epithet can only be truly applicable to those who, while professing a religion, do not act up to their professions. In this sense, Christendom, so-called, teems with infidels to Christianity.

A DANGEROUS GOD.

The bigot's god is a dangerous idol, although he be not represented by an image; and no less dangerous is any book which owes authority to hereditary, intolerant dictation and servile devotion.

The fear of public opinion, or a desire to do what is deemed right among men, seems to be the principal motive for religious professions and church-going in the great mass of society. The prevailing morality being, as already noticed, not only neglectful of Christ's precepts, but absolutely the inverse of them—not only permitting, but calling for a course diametrically opposite, as respects the acquisition of wealth and submission to wrongs—shows that it is not generally founded on a desire to cultivate the good will of Christ, but to square with sectarian opinion. I hold that one cause of this is, that the conviction of a future state, in which happiness is in proportion to our deportment here, is not so deep as that which I now have. Under the conviction which I have, nothing could tempt me to act in such way as to produce a retrograde influence on my pretentions as a spirit.

It seems to me, as urged by me before, that no one believing the language of Abraham, as narrated and sanctioned by Christ, to have come authenticated direct from the Son of God, and consequently expecting it to be verified, would render himself liable to the punishment of Dives for the sake of enjoying the good things of this world.

The idea that souls are to remain in the grave till the "last day," the procrastination of that day and geological knowledge being inconsistent with the belief that any such day will arrive, makes the sinner less fearful, the good less hopeful, and diminishes the number of those who are actually, in their worldly conduct, influenced by their hopes or fear of future rewards or punishments.

The expectation of washing away sin through the merit of a bigoted belief in Christ, co-operating with the vague, contradictory, and irrational idea of heaven and hell recorded in Scripture, seems to be the reason why Christians act so inconsistently with the precepts of Him whom they professedly adore.

Nothing can be more inconsistent with the religion inculated by my spirit friends, than the idea of atonement for sin by faith in any religion, true or false.

INSPIRATION CAN HAVE NO HIGHER AUTHORITY, THAN THE HUMAN TESTIMONY ON WHICH ITS EXISTENCE IS ARROGATED.

Is it not a mistake to suppose that any doctrine gains any validity by claiming inspiration as its source, when there is nothing but human testimony to advance in support of that claim? For if in the instance of Spiritualism, human testimony is deemed to be unavailable, how comes it to avail when adduced in support of this arrogant claim of inspiration? As well might a man expect to cure the defect of a marshy foundation by substituting columns of iron for wooden posts, or that, while resting on wood, the support could be made firmer by introducing iron into the superstructure.

As the introduction of the iron would diminish the competency of the foundation in proportion to the augmentation of weight, so the claim to inspiration lessens the competency of the testimony upon which it is advanced, proportionally as the incredibility is increased.

But as respects the ancient witnesses, their own statements make them out unworthy of confidence. Facts or circumstances are stated which are manifestly blasphemous, inconsistent, and absurd, if not impossible. Thus a want of veracity or of dicretion being demonstrated in some points, is sufficient to destroy validity in all.

Revelation assumes God to be omnipotent, prescient, and all good, yet represents him as under the necessity of subjecting his creatures to probation, to find out what, by the premises, he must foresee. It represents him while wishing his creatures to know him and his attributes, as not teaching them that which he wishes them to learn, yet punishing them and their posterity for ignorance arising from his own omission.

OF MEDIUMSHIP.

The facts which I have noticed in relation to mediumship, are certainly among the most inexplicable in nature.

There are two modes in which spiritual manifestations are made through the influence or sub-agency of media. In the one mode, they employ the tongue to speak, the fingers to write, or the hands to actuate tables or instruments for communication; in the other, they act upon ponderable matter directly, through a halo or aura appertaining to media; so that although the muscular power may be incapacitated for aiding them, they will cause a body to move, or produce raps intelligently so as to select letters conveying their ideas, uninfluenced by those of the medium.

As there is an ethereal medium by means of which light moves through space from the remotest visible fixed star to the eye, at the rate of two hundren thousand miles per second; as through an affection of the same ether frictional electricity moves, according to Wheatstone's estimate, with a velocity exceeding that of light—so may we not infer that the instrument of Divine will acts with still greater velocity, and that in making man in this respect after his own image, so far as necessary to an available existence, gives him one degree of power over the same element while in the mortal state, and another higher degree of power in the spiritual state. But if there be an element through which a spirit within his mortal frame is capable of actuating that frame, may not this element of actuation be susceptible of becoming an instrument to the will of another spirit in the immortal state?

The aura of a medium which thus enables an immortal spirit to do within its scope things which it cannot do otherwise, appears to vary with the human being resorted to; so that only a few are so endowed with this aura as to be competent as media. Moreover, in those who are so constituted as to be competent instruments of spiritual actuation, this competency is various. There is a gradation of competency, by which the nature of the instrumentality varies from that which empowers violent loud knocking and the moving of ponderable bodies without actual contact, to the grade which confers power to make intellectual communications of the higher order without that of audible knocking. Further, the power to employ these grades of mediumship varies as the sphere of the spirit waves.

It has been stated that mortals have each a halo perceptible to spirits, by which they are enabled to determine the sphere to which any individual will go on passing death's portal. Spirits cannot approach effectively a medium of a sphere much above, or below that to which they belong.

As media, in proportion as they are more capable of serving for the higher intellectual communication, are less capable of serving for mechanical demonstration, and as they are more capable of the latter are less competent for the former, spirits likewise have a higher or lower capacity to employ media. It has been mentioned that having made a test apparatus, my spirit sister alleged that it could not be actuated by her without assistance of spirits from a lower sphere. I inquired whether she could not meet me again, accompanied by the requisite aid. The reply was in the affirmative, and accordingly she met me at an appointed hour, and my apparatus was actuated effectually under test conditions.

Evidently, the ponderable elements recognized by mundane chemists cannot contribute to any of the bodies of the spirit world, since their gravity must disqualify them for use in a world where every thing is, in comparison with them, weightless. Accordingly, one of the queries put by me to the convocation of spirits was, whether any of our elements, being ponderable, could act as such in the imponderable spiritual creation. The reply was, Not without undergoing a transformation. This would be equivalent to annihilating them first, and recreating them afterward, when the process of creating alone would be sufficient. But manifestly it is of no importance, whether their adaption to the spirit world be the result of creation or of transformation.

Concerned in the processes of mediumship, it is manifest that there is none of the kind of electricity or magnetism of which the laws and phenomena have been the subject of Faraday's researches, and which are treated of in books, under the heads of frictional or mechanical electricity, galvanism, or electro-magnetism.

Frictional electricity, such as produced usually by the friction of glass in an electrical machine, or of aqueous globules generated by steam escaping from a boiler, is always to be detected by electrometers, or the spark given to a conducting body when in communication with the earth; the human knuckle, for instance. When not sufficiently accumulated to produce these evidences of its presence, it must be in a very feeble state of excitment. But even in the highest accummulation by human means, as in the discharge of a powerfully charged Leyden battery, it only acts for a time inconceivably brief, and does not move ponderable masses as they are moved in the instance of spiritual manifestation. It is only in transita, that frictional electricity displays much power, and then its path is extremely narrow, and the duration of its influence inconceivably minute. According to Wheatstone's experiments and calculations, it would go round the earth in the tenth part of a second.

It has appeared to me a great error on the part of spirits, as well as mortals, that they should make efforts to explain the phenomena of the spirit world by the ponderable, or imponderable agents of the temporal world. The fact that the rays of our sun do not effect the spirit world, and that there is for that region an appropriate luminary whose rays we do not perceive, must demonstrate that the imponderable element to which they owe their peculiar light differs from the ethereal fluid which, according to the undulatroy theory, is the means of producing light in the terrestrial creation.

ON THE INFLUENCE OF THE ILL-TREATMENT OF MEDIA, ON SPIRITUAL MANIFESTATIONS — OF COUNTER-MEDIUMSHIP.

Allusion has been above made to the unfavorable influence upon manifestations of the demeanor and incredulity of the investigator, displayed in suspicious, cold, scrutinizing looks, such as would be merited only by a cheat or pickpocket. All this has a deteriorating influence upon mediumship, and likewise repels the spirits. While communicating through a medium, a near blood relative, much beloved by the communicating spirit while in this world, coming into the circle, an immediate departure of the spirit was the consequence. It was subsequently alleged in explanation that there existed a repulsiveness between him and the spirit, founded on the idea that his opinions were under the influence of worldly considerations, whence a predetermination to disbelieve, as far as possible, by an unfavorable view of the evidence.

An incredulity liable to be overcome by the reason by which it has been created does not form a bar; but when an impregnable bigotry has been introduced merely by education, so that the person under its influence would have been a Catholic, Calvinist, Unitarian, Jew, or Mohammedan by a change of parentage, cannot usually be changed by any evidence or argument. Spirits will not spend their time subjecting their manifestations to such impregnable bigotry, or to predetermined malevolence.

On this account such persons find it hard to obtain the manifestations which they seek with ill-will to Spiritualism, and a predisposition to ridicule and pervert it.

Besides this difficulty, there is no doubt a constitutional state, the inverse of that which creates a medium. The atmosphere of persons so constituted, neutralizes that of those who are endowed with that of mediumship.

THE AUTHOR'S DISCOVERY OF HIS POWERS AS A MEDIUM.

It occurred to me to try how far the interposition of my hand would interfere with the powers of the medium to whom I resorted. To my surprise, it seemed very little to impair the actuation of the index by the officiating spirit. It next occurred to me to ascertain how far a diminution of contact, between the hand of the medium and mine, would impair the power exercised under these conditions. In pursuance of my request, the contact was diminished by successively lifting the fingers of the medium and the rest of the hand from mine, until only one finger was left. Finally, this finger was removed, and yet the power of actuation still continued to exist, though enfeebled. The officiating spirit, my friend W. W., now was made a party to this investigation, being requested to estimate the effects as well as myself.

I requested the medium to pick up a pair of scissors which lay on the table, and, while holding the blades between the finger and thumb, to lay the rings upon the back of my hand. An increase of power was manifested to my observation and that of W. W.

At a subsequent sitting, having made due preparation, a strip of sheet tin about two inches wide, and about fifteen inches in length, being applied to the back of my hand while resting on the base board of the spiritoscope, the medium held it successively at various distances. Under these circumstances, the facilitation was greater as the distance between her hand and mine was diminished.

A plate of glass of about four inches square, interposed between the palm of the hand of the medium and the back of mine, interrupted the power entirely; but neither cork nor a metallic plate of a similar size much reduced the power.

The frame being in situ, as described, paragraph kk of the description, under these circumstances the removal of the serrated strips diminished the power more and more as removed.

Thus it appears that there is a mesmeric electricity, or spiritual electricity, which may be considered as appropriate to the spirit world as their vital air is; but which like that air, may influence our spiritual bodies while in their mundane tenement. It may, as well as the vital air of the spirit world, belong in common to the inhabitants of that world and to us as spirits, being a polarizing affection of the spiritual ethereal medium, of which the undulations constitute the peculiar rays of their spiritual sun.

That this spiritual or mesmeric electricity should be auxiliary to the efficacy of the magic will power, of spirits, is of course one of those mysteries which, like that of gravitation, may be ascertained to prevail, and yet be to spirits as well as mortals inexplicable.

(To be Continued.)

LYING SPIRITS.

To the Editor:—It has been said by ministers from the pulpits, and church members too, in my hearing, that spirits through our mediums, utter falsehoods, lie, deceive the people. There may be lying spirits in the other world. It is recorded in the Bible that there were, when evil spirits from 400 prophets, sent by the Lord, did deceive Ahab. Some mediums may be liars; some Christians maybe, also. But what is that compared to the Lord sending out lying spirits into the mouth of 400 prophets, for the purpose of deceiving Ahab, King of Israel, and Ahab lost his life by being deceived by evil spirits from the Lord. So recorded.

Read the 18th chapter of 2nd Chronicles, and you will find the following passages:

And Ahab, king of Israel said unto Jehosaphat, king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-Gilead? and he said he would.

And Jehosaphat said unto the king of Israel, Enquire, I pray thee, at the word of the Lord. Therefore the king of Israel gathered of prophets 400 men, and said to them, Shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, Go up, for God will deliver it into the king's hands.

And the Lord said, Who shall entice Ahab, king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead? And one spoke, saying, after this manner, and another after that manner.

Then there came out a spirit and stood before the Lord, and said, I will entice him. And the Lord said unto him, Wherewith?

And he said, I will go out and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the Lord said, Thou shalt entice him, and thou shalt also prevail; go out and do even so.

Now therefore behold the Lord hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets, and the Lord hath spoken evil against thee.

O, Christians! ponder, on this chapter, of evil spirits from the Lord, and never again accuse our spiritual mediums of being liars. S. N. BLAKELEY.
Boston, N. Y.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

"Woman, Church and State." By Matilda Joslyn Gage. A royal volume, of more than common intrinsic value. The subject is treated with masterly ability; showing what the church has and has not done for woman. It is full of information on the subject, and should be read by every one. Price $2, postpaid.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

ITS FAMOUS MEDIUMS AND THE GRAND WORK THEY ARE DOING.

It will interest many to know of the present-day workers in this city, especially persons scattered over a large section tributary, who sometimes in case of funerals and other occasions need information. I desire to briefly mention such as come to mind at this writing, well knowing that to make a complete list would require long time preparation. Some well known will doubtless escape my memory, and very many outside the lines of acquaintances be omitted.

Jennie B. Hagan Jackson's reputation is world-famed as an improvisatrice. As a speaker she clothes with the choicest language the most practical views and elevating sentiment.

L. V. Moulton, as a philosopher, from a scientific standpoint, has a lecturer's national fame. He has the rare faculty of rendering simple and clear the most abstruse problems in material and psychical science.

Dr. J. C. Batdorf is widely known through his clairvoyant diagnosis of disease. At home we know him as an able speaker who can interestingly lead the investigator onward as very few can do.

C. A. Andrus is a speaker of great force and power, and interests all in his explorations of the psychic world.

Weston O. Knowles is always able to say the right thing in the right place. He is very magnetic, carrying his audience completely with him, whether in oral effort or in public test work.

C. C. Howell is widely known as a writer on finance and the labor problem, as well as on spiritual themes. As a speaker he is logical and incisive, with a philosophy most profoundly spiritual.

Samuel Smith as a trance speaker and medium, is deeply interesting in the philosophy of spiritual things as viewed from the beyond. Very strongly individualized are the decarnated who manifest through his organism.

John Lindsay is a man of very superior thought. As a chairman he is unexcelled. His magnetic wife, a medium long in the field, is his active helper.

R. Bonfoey is a gentleman, well fitted for a public speaker. His utterances always command the closest attention.

Samuel Marvin is the most original of thinkers; and when he speaks, we always expect, and we get, that of interest.

Mrs Coffman and Mrs. F. V. Jackson are both so well known as speakers, public test mediums and mediums for private sittings, as to need here but passing mention.

Mrs. Hinkley is a lady of culture and great intellectual ability, widely known as a writer. Her verse is very fine. The lectures she has given have been marked by their excellence.

Dr. Phippen has phenomenal success as a magnetic healer as well as a physician; and in clairvoyant diagnosis is second to none.

Mrs. Hendeson is a medium for public tests as well as for private sittings. Her work is characterized by a pleasing rendering and gives great satisfaction.

Mrs. Devine is second to none as a psychometric reader.

Melissia Roe, quiet and retiring, seemingly trying to hide her work, is yet a long-time busy worker in giving satisfactory sittings.

Mrs. Payne has also been long in the field. Her work is both in public seance and in sittings. Forceful and earnest, she interests all.

Mrs. Winch is the pioneer medium for sittings in this city; with a reputation for work, some of which has justly become historical, giving the evidence which has helped to build up our cause here to where it stands to-day.

Mrs. Pickle is a medium for sittings; widely known as a business medium. While not always making this a business, she has nevertheless given sittings to a great many people.

I would be glad to make this list more complete, but must stop; closing with the remark that could Spiritualists throughout this section know the present ability of these workers, they would be kept constantly busy; for they could mostly be secured at a very moderate cost, and I know some are inactive because not called to the work.

H. W. BOOZER.

NEW BOOKS.

The New and True Religion. By Charles M. Stebbins. Boston: Publishers' Printing Co.

One who glances into this volume will soon discover that the author entertains many striking and peculiar ideas—whether wise or otherwise, each must decide from his own standpoint.

Though quite given to the use of "orthodox" language, the author is decidedly unorthodox in his views, and is not afraid to express the same, even in the clothing of keen sarcasm and terms that tend to make orthodox views appear ridiculous.

Speaking of man, he says: "The greater number find the struggle for existence sufficient for them, consequently the germ within them dies out, from lack of cultivation, and their life ends with the death of their bodies. When, however, the germ is properly cultivated, it lives on after the death of the body in which it was born, takes its position, without visible form, in the invisible ether, makes suggestions and arranges minor events for the benefit of those still on earth, who have sense enough to heed their counsels."

His rendering of the Bible history of the Creation, is thoroughly amusing and revels in subtile sarcasm, thinly veiled, that would supply subjects for the cartoon pencil of Watson Heston, of the Truth Seeker, to suitably illustrate.

His "New Religion" seems to be fashioned rather in accord with modern radical freethought ideas, and is epitomized in his "Golden Rule of the New Religion" thus: "Enjoy life all you can without abridging the right of another to his enjoyment."

The volume includes a readable autobiography, and concludes with about a hundred pages devoted to "The Body Politic: Some of Its Ills, and the Remedies Therefor," embodying ideas worthy of serious study by politicians and statesmen.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"Atlantis: The Antediluvian World." By Ignatius Donnelly. Sums up all information relative to the lost continent of Atlantis. He regards the description of it given by Plato as veritable history. It is intensely interesting. Price, $2.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M.D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains helect ure by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

TO CONTRIBUTORS:—It is impossible to publish everything that comes to this office, however meritorious it may be, and no one should feel in the least offended because his (or her) article does not appear. Our space is limited, and we often deeply regret that certain articles are crowded out.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

J. C. F. Grumbine has all of July open and August (first Sunday) for Western camp-meetings. He goes again to Mt. Pleasant Park Camp, Clinton, Iowa (third regular engagement), and Chesterfield, Ind. He expects to spend a portion of July in Minneapolis. Address him at once for open dates, 309 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., (during February and March), or 7820 Hawthorn avenue, Chicago, permanent address.

L. H. Warren writes from Albany, Wis.: "I heartily concur with Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten in your issue of February 15, and wish we had more of that kind of Spiritualism. I believe that if Spiritualists would do more to spiritualize humanity and less to materialize spirits, our cause would advance much faster and better than it now does."

R. E. Webster writes from Atlanta, Ga.: "The Society of Spiritual Science, which has been organized about a year, is now progressing very nicely, holding lectures every Sunday in the K. of P. hall, which is a well-furnished hall, holding about 400 to 500 people. We have an attendance of about 300, and Mrs. Loe F. Prior, who is now lecturing for us, has given the work a great impetus, with her good lectures and tests; she has also started a lyceum, which is well-attended, and we are very sorry that she will have to leave us after the mass-meetings that are to be held on the 13th and 14th of March, but will stay with us till the end of the month. We wish to engage a lecturer and test medium for April and the balance of the year, and shall be pleased to hear from anyone in the work who would like to come South, but they must be good, and willing to work to help build up the society. Anyone writing us will please state phases and salary expected; also references. We also wish to remember the kind assistance and good work of Mrs. Ella R. Williams, who came with Mrs. Prior, for she has assisted us very materially with our choir, and given tests and was also an active helper in our first entertainment and social which was held last Wednesday, and was a grand success."

Justus Chapman writes: "I have been a reader of The Progressive Thinker for several years, having changed papers with friends for mutual benefit. I was a subscriber to the Religio-Philosophical Journal almost from the commencement of its publication till after B. F. Underwood took charge of it. I was much interested in the series of papers entitled 'A Search After God,' which I had no doubt at the time emanated from your pen. The Progressive Thinker ought to open the eyes of the sleeping world; it really is doing fine work. The orthodox are holding revivals all through our portion of the country, and there are few, if any, Spiritualists to counteract their influence. I must have The Progressive Thinker in my family during the short stay allotted to me in the flesh. I am 77 years of age."

Dwight E. Young writes from Union City, Mich.: "During the month of January Frank T. Ripley was with us, speaking four Sundays in this place, and the last Sunday of the month at Batavia Centre, where reside quite a number of members of our society. On the evening of February 10, we had the great pleasure of listening to an address delivered by H. D. Barrett, president of the N. S. A., this being one of the three places where he spoke in Michigan on his Western trip this month. To say that all were greatly pleased with his grand and scholarly address, would be to state it very mildly. He expects to be with us again the 3rd, 4th and 5th of September, the anniversary of our organization, when, if the weather is favorable, an out-of-door meeting will be required to accommodate those who express a desire to hear him at that time. Dr. H. C. Andrews, of Riverside, Berrien county, Mich., has been with us two Sundays, the 14th and 21st, speaking and giving tests to crowded houses morning and evening."

Frank Whiting writes from York, Mich.: "A short time since there were two mediums at my home, who produced some fine manifestations, and I would be glad to make a note of them in your valuable paper. One is Charles E. Riley, of Ridgeway, Lenawee county, Mich., a brother of the famous materializing medium, James Riley. He is a trance, clairvoyant, and test medium; he does some very fine work, and societies needing such help will find in him a medium of merit, giving both names and facts to corroborate the identity of spirits wishing to be recognized; also gives business and life readings. The other is Mrs. Moulton, of Blissfield, Lenawee county, Mich. She gives independent slate-writing and trumpet work. She is a woman of rare merit, and whatever you get from her mediumship will be genuine. She is also a clairvoyant."

Mrs. F. A. Logan writes from Alameda, Cal.: "I have suspended the Circle of Harmony for a season, which was under my supervision for about eight years in San Francisco. Not because I was tired of the work, but my guides saw, as I now see, that I had been putting others forward to the neglect of my own spiritual gifts, namely, speaking, healing and writing communications, not only in prose, but in poetry, which has since proved a solace to human hearts. As one instance, Dr. M. A. Hunter, who several years ago used to talk grandly in our circle while entranced, but destiny removed him to another county in the State, and after a brief illness the angels bore his spirit from the mortal to their beautiful home in the spheres. A letter from his widow seemed to bring his spirit en rapport with me, and after writing a letter of condolence, it was closed with a few stanzas so characteristic of the Doctor that it gave the recipient to feel that he was near, and the loneliness which had seemed unbearable, passed away. My Circle of Harmony was as free as water, and many were too poor to give anything. I held the meetings as long as my purse held out. The fact is, I have earned thousands lecturing and healing, and it has gone to the poor and needy." Kindly disposed friends will aid a good cause by contributing to Mrs. Logan's support. Her address is 1218 Railroad avenue, Alameda, Cal.

Mrs. J. R. Nagell, of the State of Washington, sending us twenty-four subscribers, writes: "I think you must have realized the starving condition of the people for spiritual food when you made that generous offer, and in my labors I find many who are anxious to take the paper but cannot afford it. This may seem strange, but the hard times have been more than distressing to the people of the far West, and the floods have destroyed stock, feed, etc., and left many in destitute circumstances. If your generous offer holds good a few weeks longer, I will try and get up another club, for your valuable paper is a blessing to mankind. May the good work go on and our glorious cause gladden the hearts of every individual in the land. May The Progressive Thinker prosper is my earnest prayer. I think all mediums and Spiritualists should work for the paper and thereby spread the light."

Mrs. C. S. Stevens writes: "The First Church of Spiritualists of Pittsburgh, Pa., has had Mr. F. A. Wiggin, of Salem, Mass., during the month of February. We had many grand lectures, and his delineations with the ballot were wonderful. We hope to have him with us again soon. We will have Mr. J. Frank Baxter with us in March."

Isaac S. Lee writes from Little Rock, Ark.: "After several weeks of persistent, patient labor here, in lecturing, giving tests, etc., we have at last succeeded in organizing a society with thirty-six members. The old societies had ceased to exist, and apathy and indifference held nearly all in fetters hard to break. But not all: Brothers Benj. F. Campbell, Moune Campbell, Seymour Tobey, the ministering spirit Sister Ella Campbell, and the wives of each of the others named, and one other Spiritualist, were ready and willing to work when opportunity offered. Indeed it would be hard to find anywhere better informed, better willing and noble Spiritualists than Brother Ben and Sister Ella Campbell. Ever, each month, sending for Spiritualist books and loaning or giving them to others, a cabinet and weekly circles in their pretty little cottage home—we found in them ready co-operators in the holy work of the angel world. Brother Tobey, while not making any outward show, has aided the work privately, as has Judge Duball, of Argenta. Many of the members are converts from the orthodox churches. The officers elected are persons whose standing and personale Spiritualists may well be proud of as representative Spiritualists. Officers of First Spiritualist Society of Little Rock: President, Benj. F. Campbell; first vice-president, Judge Duball; corresponding secretary, Morene Campbell; treasurer, Mrs. Curtis; janitors, Chas. Campbell, J. Voskey; committee to draft by-laws: Judge Duball, Judge Sibee, Mr. Houch. Next Sunday the lyceum will be organized, and steps taken to form a grand library, superior to any other Spiritualist library in the West. Next week reorganization of the State Society."

John E. Hanson, secretary, writes from St. Paul, Minn.: "A Swedish Spiritualist Society was organized here in St. Paul, February 10, by Rev. C. F. Warn, the well-known trance lecturer in the Swedish language, and founder of Spiritualist societies in the same language. These societies are also incorporated and filed on record. The president of this society is August Akeson; vice-president, C. F. Warn; secretary, John Hanson; treasurer, Nels Hanson. The name of this society will be The First Swedish Spiritualist Church of St. Paul, and will hold regular meetings twice a week in their hall, 660 Jenks street, St. Paul, which will be under the lead of the society's chosen pastor, Rev. C. F. Warn. We have also developing circles in the society, which are well visited, and the Swedish people are coming to the front in the philosophy of Spiritualism. This society and the one organized a little over a year ago in Minneapolis, are the first Spiritualist societies in the Swedish language ever organized in Minneapolis or St. Paul, and were both organized by the Rev. C. F. Warn. I hope that this news will come gladly to all who read it, and especially to those who are in favor of organizing Spiritualist societies, so that all local societies some time in the future can become one body and spread the truth to our fellow-beings, which truth and religion cannot be spread without true workers and mediums in the spiritual field."

Lilias Thomson, corresponding secretary, writes that Mrs. Easter Thomas, of Seattle, who has been laboring for the past two months for the First Spiritual Society of Portland, Ore., as an inspirational trance speaker, was ordained on Sunday, February 14, as a minister of the Gospel of Spiritualism. Mrs. Addie R. Smith officiated at the ordination service.

W. McConnell writes from Montreal, Canada: "Your paper certainly excels all other Spiritualist papers that I have seen, in its quantity of useful matter."

Mrs. Mary E. Rathbun writes from Rahway, N. J.: "As a Spiritualist and medium I have been seeking the light and truth for over forty years, and have taken many spiritual papers, and none comes out so clear and outspoken, seeking to please or gain favor from none, but giving the truth to shine in its own glory—and those unselfish can find much to admire and praise in The Progressive Thinker."

Geo. F. Perkins, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "The article by Mrs. Mattie Hull, 'Boston Work,' should be read by every Spiritualist a sufficient number of times to awaken his mind to the needs of the hour; also 'Curious Incidents in Obsession.' I am more and more impressed that Spiritualists need to be reconverted and shaken until they see the danger signals ahead, and become aroused even as much as they are enthused over a presidential inauguration."

Indicator writes: "I wish to tell you about a thriving society of Spiritualists at Kensington, Ill. On Sunday, February 21, I heard that Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond was to address a society at that place at 2:30 p. m., and went out to attend the services. These are usually held in Thorp's Hall, but on this particular occasion the Methodists opened their house of worship to the society, as the hall was being enlarged to meet the needs of the growing band. Duly impressed with the growth of liberal sentiments in the church, as evidenced by this generous hospitality on the part of the Methodists, I listened with rapt attention as the guides of Mrs. Richmond explained in graphic language the real meaning of what we call death. The flock in Kensington is at present without a shepherd, and Mrs. Richmond is helping them until a suitable one can be obtained. Let us hope that so promising an opening will soon be filled by one who can minister to these seekers after truth as their spiritual needs demand. Mrs. Richmond will address them next Sunday, but it is to be hoped their want will soon be supplied permanently."

Dr. T. Wilkins, the magnetic healer, is stopping temporarily at Sterling, Ill.

Dr. D. P. Kayner will lecture during the month of March at SanJose, Cal. He can be addressed there in care of postoffice box 16.

James Riley writes from Marcellus, Mich.: "My visit to Monroe, Wis., was very successful, and I trust much good will come from it. I will say I never met better treatment than I received there, and it will always be a great pleasure to me when I think of the kind reception I received."

I. R. Sanford writes from New York City: "The New York Spiritual Temple Society Society were compelled to give up their original hall because of imperfect heating, and for two weeks no meetings were held. On February 14, meetings were resumed in Adelphi Hall for Sunday afternoons only, as the Spiritual and Ethical Society, with Mrs. H. T. Brigham for speaker, occupies the same hall morning and evening. On February 14, Dr. Wm. Franks and Miss Nellie Barnes did excellent test work, and February 21, Prof. Dexter Davis, with inspirational music and speaking, and Mrs. Dr. Martin, of Newark, N. J., and Brother John Moorey, the well-known psychometrist and test medium of this city, filled the platform most satisfactorily. I believe more people are attending spiritual meetings here than for some time past. Instead of only two meetings, there are at least five, beside the evening parlor meetings by different mediums. New York certainly ought to sustain a dozen spiritual meetings of a decent and truly representative character."

The Students of Nature, Mrs. Summers, pastor, have started a meeting at 2:30 p. m., at 151 Randolph street, near Hooley's Theatre.

J. Rosenberg writes: "February 24 was a gala day for the First Spiritualist church of Rochester, Ind., as we had with us President Barrett, of the National Association, and F. Corden White, of Chicago. Services were held in the morning, afternoon and evening, and while the attendance in the morning was fair, yet in the afternoon and evening the church was filled to overflowing. The lectures given by Mr. Barrett were highly instructive. The tests given were readily recognized and accepted by all. We are doing a good work here in the cause, and hope to have many accessions before the expiration of the present year."

T. S. Kiser writes from Decatur, Ill.: "The Pettibones, who have been giving seances here for the last five weeks, were completely taken by surprise at the reception given in their honor at Mrs. Harworth's, on Monday evening. The company was entertained by instrumental and vocal selections by Mr. Pettibone, Mrs. Frank Beall and Mr. Chilson. Mrs. Pettibone gave some fine tests. Mr. and Mrs. Pettibone were the recipients of some fine presents, among them a gold-lined silver spoon, silver mounted clothes brush, gold tooth-pick, suitably inscribed. Mrs. Whitney made the presentation speech, and Mr. Pettibone responded with a few well-chosen remarks. Mrs. Field made the farewell address. An elegant lunch was served at a late hour. The company dispersed, all wishing the Pettibones happiness and prosperity and a speedy return to us."

S. J. Rosenheim writes from Memphis, Tenn.: "The Memphis society is going right straight on to success, since the departure of Dr. Jas. H. Magoon and wife. We have conducted our services regularly every Sunday afternoon, attracting good attendance. If we had gifted mediums and speakers from abroad, it would give our society a greater impetus. There are many in this city eager to learn and obtain proof of the spiritual philosophy, hence this would prove a good field for a first-class test medium. Our society has been chartered under the laws of the State. Our next step will be to unite and become a branch of the N. S. A. Our permanent officers are: S. J. Rosenheim, president; Mrs. Mary Wolf, vice-president; Mrs. Matilda R. Talbott, secretary and treasurer."

Lyman C. Howe writes from Cleveland, Ohio: "I have a very congenial home and resting-place here, with S. H. Powell, who is the working head of the park police, honored and esteemed by men of all parties. My hostess, Mrs. Henderson, is a fine medium and superior woman. Such a home for a speaker is of so much importance that it cannot be overstated. No climate is so frigid and miasmatic as an evil, sour, selfish human climate. No climate is so helpful, health-giving and important to a sensitive as a warm, generous, cheery, sympathetic, humane atmosphere, and the summer soil and bloom of spiritual affections in the glow and gladness of truth."

Thomas A. Black, of Cleveland, Ohio, sends the following: "The Spiritualists of Cleveland extend greetings, and cordially invite all Spiritualists of Northern Ohio to assemble with them on Sunday, March 28, in Army and Navy Hall, 426 Superior street, to commemorate and fittingly celebrate the Forty-ninth Anniversary of the advent of Modern Spiritualism. An event, though humble in origin, has cycled the globe illumined the minds of scientists; and revolutionized the religious thought of the civilized world. It is proposed to hold an all-day meeting of three sessions—morning, afternoon and evening—at each of which first-class addresses will be delivered by speakers with inspiration to illumine the minds, and uplift the souls of all listeners. Order of exercises: Sunday, March 28, 10:30 a. m., opening address by Thomas A. Black, chairman, followed by a general conference. Recess. 2:30 p. m., anniversary address, by Dr. F. Schermerhorn, of Akron, O. 7:30 p. m., anniversary address, by Hon. O. P. Kellogg, of East Trumbull, Ohio. Admission to each session, ten cents."

Lyman C. Howe writes from Cleveland, O.: "The cause in Cleveland seems to be coming to the front, and apparently more general interest than ever before is in the air; but the spiritual meetings are not yet back to where they were before the cyclone struck them six years ago. Thomas A. Black is the one live man who is willing to take responsibility and stand forth for the cause in the full light of day. He engaged a hall on his own responsibility for four consecutive months and engaged speakers, commencing with myself for February, to be followed by Hon. O. P. Kellogg in March, and Mrs. A. E. Sheets in May, and he has arranged for a big time for Anniversary, and his devotion and generosity ought to inspire hundreds to join him and co-operate and make it easy for all. Cleveland is the exception, perhaps not the only one, in keeping up the work for the young. The lyceum choir sing for us at the lectures and make fine music. I have spoken two Sundays on the West Side, 483 Pearl street, and find a vigorous band of workers there, and a lyceum running at full tide. Next Sunday I enchange pulpits with Dr. Schermerhorn, of Akron. This week, Thursday, the 25th, I speak in Chagrin Falls. Next Tuesday evening, March 2, I hold forth in Painesville, Ohio. Last Wednesday evening, February 17, a select few met to pay their compliments to Thomas and Tillie Lees, at 11 Lodge avenue, and the hours flew by on golden wings, with music and mirth, logic and light talk, and social magnetism reciprocating with mutual helpfulness, and health-giving. Thomas and Tillie have done great service in the lyceum cause for twenty or thirty years."

Mattie E. Hull speaks for the Philadelphia Spiritualist Society March 7 and 14. She can be addressed at 520 Chatham St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Moses Hull begins his work in Berkeley Hall, Boston, on Sunday, March 7. His first subject will be "Biblical Prophets and Mediums." The second will be, "A Journey from Orthodoxy via Adventism, to Spiritualism; or Why Am I a Spiritualist?" Address him at Stoneham, Mass.

GLANCING OVER OUR SPIRITUAL EXCHANGES.

No! There are not 1200 lyceums in the United States, nor are there one-tenth of that number.

The great divine, M. J. Savage, of Boston, asks: "Suppose a full-grown and intelligent man were placed suddenly upon this planet for the first time. He wishes to find out what is true in regard to matters of religion. What will he do?" That is a very simple question. He will proceed at once to the office of the leading Spiritualist paper, The Progressive Thinker, and there will be started on the right path. We hope this gifted man will ask something harder next time.

One Spiritualist has said that he had rather stand at the head of The Progressive Thinker than be the President of the United States. Sensible he was.

Lillian Whiting says that there can be little question that the higher self, one's real self, dwells perpetually in the unseen and in more direct communion with the divine forces. Lillian writes beautifully, but does not openly confess that she is a Spiritualist. She don't wish to drift completely away from a certain popular current.

Descartes was sensible when he said: "When anyone has offended me, I try to raise my soul so high that the offense cannot reach it."

Dr. Fred. L. H. Willis has made a sworn statement that certain remarkable spiritual manifestations occurred near his summer residence at Glenora, on Seneca Lake. A foolish waste of time, Doctor, to make affidavit to that effect, when your bare word would inspire confidence. Don't do it again.

Judge Dearbond, Congressman, in his eulogistic remarks on the late ex-Speaker Crisp, said: "His spirit, where? Has its existence terminated with the existence of the body? Whatever philosophers may say, man rebels at the thought. The hope—sometimes clung to in desperation, sometimes clung to in brightest anticipations—that there is a hereafter and that men live in that hereafter, no one of us will give up. The philosophy of ages of calm reasoning cannot banish it. It springs as an inheritance of humanity, as an instinct in the soul of every being that breathes. We believe—our hopes, our affections, all that we hold near and dear in life admonish us to believe and constrain us to believe—that our friend has not perished, but that in a higher and nobler sphere this great intellect, this great, loving spirit, will flourish and expand and achieve new triumphs and perform new acts of glory and of grace." Thus it is that Spiritualism is permeating our statesmen, and by and by it will have leavened the whole lump.

"Divinity exists everywhere," says one who thinks himself learned. We, too, have thought so, but lately have had reason to doubt it in view of the fact that three thugs held up and robbed a friend of ours. If Divinity had been there, we are sure he would have done some excellent work in defeating the thugs in their efforts.

The bill of the American Health Club, introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature by Representative Douglass, the operation of which will be, if it should pass, to restore medical freedom to the people of the State, has also been introduced into the Congress of the United States, with a view to restoring medical freedom to the people of the District of Columbia.

Dr. Peebles in his pamphlet, "Christ the Corner Stone of Spiritualism," mixes Jesus and Christ in such a way that one can hardly tell which is uppermost! He says: "Christ is, then, synonymous with the inmost or divine spirit of man, and Jesus is that spirit ultimated in human life, by the welling over from within of its holy power," etc. The doctor is splendid in his explanation of the dismal pages of "sacred" history.

Mrs. Annie Lord Chamberlain's address is 648 Logan Ave., San Diego, Cal.

James G. Clark, the poet, is said to be dangerously ill in California. His spiritual songs will remain as immortal as his spirit. He has not lived in vain, but has sung his way to the hearts of thousands of people.

President Barrett asserts that the decline of the Lyceum is largely due to the lack of spiritual instruction. Perhaps. But to what does he assign the fact that there is a less number of Spiritualist papers taken to-day than twenty-five years ago?

Dr. J. M. Peebles says: "I lectured in Melbourne, Australia, nineteen years ago. Old friends gave me a big reception; hall packed. The mayor of the city, Judge Casey and other distinguished persons were present. * * * I shall find friends and acquaintances everywhere, except in Thibet and Persia. Am in good health and spirits." The doctor will return with a vast fund of information on occult subjects.

"We are on the close of two great cycles, one 2,500 and the other 5,000 years long. Every cycle brings with it its army of forces and influences. The 2,500-year cycle brings us to the period of Egyptian civilization and splendor before its corruption. These influences are even now at our doors and will entirely change the current of thought of the last twenty-five years." So says the President of the Theosophical Society of Denver, Col.

Mrs. Annie Lord Chamberlain is in San Diego, Cal. She is holding musical circles there. Her health is improving. She attributes her recovery to Mrs. R. C. Clark.

President H. D. Barrett states that in many of the Lyceums visited by him, "Spiritualism has never been mentioned during the entire session." It seemed in some cases to be the desire to make the lyceum a sort of "side show."

The Lyceum Banner published by J. J. Morse is most excellent. The lyceums in this country should take it. It is full of excellent stories and suggestions. Price per year fifty cents, U. S. postage stamps taken. Address Mr. Morse as follows: 26 Osnaburgh street, Eusten Road, London, N. W. Eng. Our lyceums should subscribe for a copy for each of the members. Try it.

From Light, London, Eng.

MATTER THROUGH MATTER.

The following is taken from the "Standard's" report of the address by the President to the Royal Society on November 30th. Sir Joseph Lister said: "Professor Roberts-Austen, in the Bakerian lecture, brought before them astonishing evidence that metals are capable of diffusing into each other, not only when one of them is in the state of fusion, but when both are solid. They learned that if clean surfaces of lead and gold were held together in vacuo at a temperature of only 40 deg. for four days, they would unite firmly, and could only be separated by a force equal to one-third of the breaking strain of lead itself. And gold placed at the bottom of a cylinder of lead 70mm. long thus united with it would have diffused to the top in notable quantities at the end of three days. Such facts tended to modify our views concerning the mutual relations of the liquid and solid states of matter." How often have we been laughed at by scientists for asserting the fact of the passage of "matter through matter!" Yet now they acknowledge the very thing they declared ridiculous to have been scientifically observed.

A DUBLIN GHOST STORY.

An extraordinary story is going the rounds of the Dublin clergy. It is stated that a lady, who is in the habit of attending one of the cathedrals, has lately seen the figure of a deceased member of the chapter sitting in his place in the choir. To add to the mystery, one of the members of the staff of the cathedral has asserted that a similar appearance of the same person has occurred to him. The story is told by a dignitary of the city, who himself is regarded as no mean authority on such spiritualistic mysteries.

TEST CONDITIONS.

I am also strongly of the opinion that most of our so-called "tests and tyings" are absolutely useless. We know that the medium is not in a normal state, and cannot be held responsible for what occurs, and that among the things that are very likely to occur is the control of the medium, who then walks about and talks like the person represented.

LACK OF BRAINS.

If any stupid person mistakes the medium under control for a materialized form, as has, I am sure, often happened, it only proves that the observer has not the necessary experience or brains to observe without making an ass of himself. We should not follow the example of the examiner who tries to bring out what the student does not know, instead of what he does; we should give the spirits every latitude, and help instead of hampering and disabling the medium. We are likely to learn much more by trying to increase the power, and then calmly observing whatever spontaneously occurs.

EMOTIONAL INTERCOURSES.

I think that the indulgence of emotional intercourse with the departed is liable to abuse. It is quite remarkable how exceedingly fond some people get of even their most distant relatives as soon as they are dead. Most of the trouble with mediums comes from the people who consider "their most sacred feelings outraged" when the phenomena are not satisfactory, and those, too, are generally the persons who complain about "not getting their money's worth," while at the same time mediumship is such a holy gift that mediums ought to exercise it for their benefit free, gratis, and for nothing.

SURVIVAL OF GRIEF.

It is natural to keenly feel the death of relations and friends, but most of our grief is a survival from the times when it was believed that the Lord and the Devil were lying in wait for us over there to pay us out, and that our lost darlings were likely to be having a very bad time. A Spiritualist has no right to grievously lament the dead; it is selfish, and he should leave it to the good Christians who believe in Hell.

THE SCIENTIFIC MAN.

As to being anxious that scientific men should sit in judgment on Spiritualism, I think it a great mistake, and a reversal of the proper order of things, for it much more behooves Spiritualism now to sit in judgment upon men of science. There is no one more unscientific than the scientific man when he ventures beyond his speciality. The man of science does not disbelieve in Spiritualism because he is exceptionally stupid, but because he knows nothing about it, and won't learn; and when shamed into examining he only pretends to do so.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

THAT MIGHTY FORCE.

The mighty force on the other side is love, that love which finds entrance into the hardest heart. And ofttimes the little children, there, are ministers of God, who go to the spirits in darkness and lead them to a knowledge of the truth. Think, then, you mothers, whose little ones have seemingly gone too soon over to the other side, think, that perhaps they may now be doing God's service, carrying the light of truth into the darkest corners, and softening the hardest hearts, for they can go there and be undefiled, and from their teaching sometimes those who were in darkness climb to the glorious consciousness of spiritual development.

GOLDEN PROSPECTS.

All heights are open to man, if he can reach them, and he can and will if he is persevering and faithful; all power of expression his if he can gain it, but he himself must, by the performance of good actions, break the bond of evil and gain everlasting freedom, the light of truth, the power of ensuring man's salvation, and the glorious experience of the spirit, teaching him what life can be, until he feels as thousands have felt already—that the glorious round of eternity is not too long to devote his life to the worship of God by living thought and living act.

THE SPIRIT WORLD, THEN, IS REAL; life there is sequential; you have to go on living, to find in it perchance, at first, if you will, accustomed occupations, to meet your own dear ones, to recognize that love lives and reigns forever, to have the glad conviction that life there is bright and beautiful, and this is to be your comfort now—your friends still live and love you, and that you cannot think of God as too great, too good, too wise, but the grandest ideal which you can imagine in the realm of spirit shall be made a grand reality.

DECEIVE AND LIE.

Dr. Mosheim, the ecclesiastical historian, declares in Vol. i. p. 198, that "It was an almost universally adopted maxim that it was an act of virtue to deceive and lie, when by such means the interests of the church might be promoted."

EXERCISE OF FRAUD.

As regards the fifth century, Mr. Mosheim says: "The simplicity and ignorance of the generality in those times furnished the most favorable occasion for the exercise of frauds, and the impudence of impostors in contriving false miracles, was artfully proportioned to the credulity of the vulgar, while the sagacious and wise who perceived these cheats, were awed into silence by the dangers which threatened their lives and fortunes if they should expose the artifice.

THERE IS NO DEATH.

There is no death! An angel form
 Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
He bears our best-loved friends away,
 And then we call them "dead."
He leaves our hearts all desolate,
 He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers—
Transplanted into bliss, they now
 Adorn immortal bowers.
Born into that undying life,
 They leave us but to come again;
With joy we welcome them—the same,
 Except in sin and pain.
And ever near us, though unseen,
 The dear, immortal spirits tread;
For all the boundless universe
 Is life—there is no Dead.

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

PUNISHMENT IN ANCIENT TIMES.

If a "witch" refused to confess, she was treated in this wise: "An iron bridle or hoop was bound across her face with four prongs, which was thrust into her mouth. It was fastened behind to the wall by a chain, in such a manner that the victim was unable to lie down; and in this position she was sometimes kept for several days, while men were constantly with her to prevent her from closing her eyes for a moment in sleep." This was done, by thrusting long pins into her body. "Boxes were placed in the churches for the express purpose of receiving accusations of witchcraft; and when a woman had fallen under suspicion, the minister from the pulpit denounced her by name, exhorted his parishioners to give evidence against her, and prohibited anyone from sheltering her. A jealous or resentful man or woman had only to denounce a female as a witch, in order to compass her destruction.

THOUSANDS PUT TO DEATH.

We have it on the authority of Sir Walter Scott, that "many hundreds, perhaps thousands" were put to death, in Scotland, on a charge of witchcraft, during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries; the last murder of this kind having been perpetrated at Leith, as recently as 1722, when a poor insane old woman was burnt to death, because her daughter was lame both of hands and feet, and her mother was suspected of having transformed her into a pony, and having her shod by the Devil!

IS THE PERSECUTING SPIRIT

dead, think you? Not in the least. It has been merely reduced to impotence, by the growth of intelligence among the more civilized races of mankind, and by the contemptuous estimate in which the creeds and dogmas of the dominant churches are held, by the educated laity.

SACERDOTALISM

is as intolerant as ever; but the rack, the dungeon, the stake, the gibbet, and the torture chamber have had to be abandoned. It is reduced to the employment of two weapons only—the tongue and pen. It can traduce and malign, lie and sneer, scoff and snarl, slander and defame; but there its power for evil ends.

BURNED ALIVE AS HERETICS.

Three centuries ago, Spiritualists would have been burned alive as heretics. To-day, they are merely reviled as lunatics, or "classed with savages who hold incantations over a sore toe, or frighten the sun away from the moon with tom-toms.

SPIRITUALISM IS IN THE WORLD, and it has come to stay. It is the latest, and yet the greatest, of all the experimental sciences. It is the newest and yet the oldest of sublime philosophies. It existed long before "the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy," and it will witness the overthrow of all the churches, the crumbling into dust and ashes of all the creeds; and the passing into oblivion of all the religions which have divided and distracted the people of this poor little planet of ours. For, unlike them, its foundations are laid upon the Rock of Ages. It rests upon three eternal truths—the Fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and the immortality of the soul.

From The Freethinker, London, England.

FINE DISTINCTION.

Jesus Christ plucked corn on the Sabbath, but a South Moulton miller, his name too being Miller, has been fined for grinding corn on that day. It is a remarkably fine distinction.

MURDER AND PERSECUTION.

The Catholic Truth Society (what a curious name!) has been holding a Conference at Hanley, and among the papers read was one by the Rev. J. Gerrard on "The Church and Science." The reverend gentleman said nothing about his church's persecution of Galileo or its murder of Bruno.

MEDALS TO THE VIRGIN.

The revival of mysticism and spiritual nonsense in France tells in favor of Catholicism. Despite the spread of Freethought, priests are still found who recommend medals of the Virgin to be placed in the vintages as a cure against blight. Shade of Voltaire! Is this the end of the nineteenth century?

FAMOUS BULLS.

Pope Clement XII. issued a bull against the Freemasons on April 28, 1738, wherein he excummunicated all who joined the order. On May 18, 1751, Pope Benedict XIV. renewed the bull of Clement XII. by another, beginning with these words: "Providas Romanorum Pontificum." In consequence of these tales, Masonry was declared to be high treason in Spain, and many members of the order were sent to the galleys.

MRS. CLAUDE FALLS WRIGHT,

the American Theosophist, who, after waiting some millions of eons, was at length united to her affinity, is now said to understand the reason. She is seriously said to be producing a re-incarnation of the late-lamented Mahatma wire-puller, W. Q. Judge. The babe may turn out a girl, but that will not be more wonderful than Judge's own assertion, that Madame Blavatsky's next incarnation would be as a man. Some think that she is re-incarnated in the person of Mr. Ernest Hargrove. Why not?

A lie that is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies.—Tennyson.

ONE MILLION! ONE MILLION!

We want to reach 1,000,000 new readers. We want to illuminate the minds of those Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper. We will send all new subscribers The Progressive Thinker three months for fifteen cents. Read the article on fifth page headed "Fifteen Cents." It will give full particulars.

HUMAN CULTURE AND CURE

MARRIAGE, SEXUAL DEVELOPMENT, AND SOCIAL UPBUILDING.

BY E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D.

A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc.

Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

— BY —

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—Thomas Starr King.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Staff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a careful comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments cannot do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.

Address

EMMA ROOD TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

JESUS AND THE MEDIUMS,
—OR—
CHRIST AND MEDIUMSHIP.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By Moses Hull. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. You will not become weary while reading this excellent book. Price 75 cents.

WHAT WOULD FOLLOW

The Effacement of Christianity? By George Jacob Holyoake. This is a most valuable contribution to Freethought literature. Bound in paper with good likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

CHRISTIANITY A FICTION.

The astronomical and astrological origins of all religions. A poem by Dr. J. H. Mendenhall. Price 50 cents.

The Myth of the Great Deluge.

By James M. McCann. A complete and overwhelming refutation of the Bible story of the Deluge. Price 15 cents.

A VALUABLE WORK.

Researches in Oriental History,

Embracing the Origin of the Jews, the Rise and Development of Zoroastrianism and the Derivation of Christianity; to which is added: Whence Our Aryan Ancestors? By G. W. Brown, M. D. One of the most valuable works ever published. Price $1.50.

APOLLONIUS OF TYANA.

Identified as the Christian Jesus.

A wonderful communication, explaining how his life and teachings were utilized to formulate Christianity. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"THE WATSEKA WONDER."

To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum, of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds, of Venango county, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

NEW THOUGHT.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. By Moses Hull. Price only $1.50. For sale at this office.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

R. M. M., Maple Creek, Cal.: Q. I am deeply interested in the query column, and would like an answer to the following which perplexes me: What is the difference between dependent and independent clairvoyance?

A. Independent clairvoyance is the freedom of the spirit from physical restraint, to that degree that it has the use of its spiritual senses and perceptions. Of course the only absolutely independent clairvoyance is that of the freed spirit. Dependent clairvoyance is the lower form of this state, when the physical body, the surroundings, and the persons near exert an influence more or less perceptible. A magnetizer finds that he is able to control his subject. He makes that subject see and hear whatever he pleases. The subject is in a dependent magnetic or clairvoyant state. If instead of a magnetist, a spirit operated, the subject would depend for his knowledge on the spirit. He could know no more than the spirit impressed on his mind. This is passive or dependent sensitiveness. As this state deepens, a manifestation every experimenter has observed, the subject passes from control, and his perceptions are quickened. He no longer depends on anyone for his knowledge. His spiritual faculties are alert. He sees to great distances, gains knowledge by observation, and this grows stronger, clearer, until the separation from the physical body is completed. This is the independent state. It is a very sensitive condition, and often the subject freely converses with the departed, whom he sees and hears as he would were he like them detached from the body.

There is no arbitrary line between these two states, and to properly place any manifestation that may arise may appear difficult. It is yet more difficult for even the clairvoyant to distinguish what is observed by himself from what is impressed or given to him by spirit intelligences.

A. M. M. Davis: Q. Is there any other Bible than the Christian Bible?

A. It is difficult to determine exactly when the Christian Bible took the permanent form it has since retained, but not certainly until the reign of Constantine, called the Great. No one can claim that it existed before Christ. There are three Bibles that date not less than 500 years previous to that era, and by some authors estimated at ten thousand. The Zend Avesta contains the doctrines of the founder of the ancient religions of the Persians, and his birth has been placed 6,000 years before Plato by some critics, and by others a more recent date is ascribed. The Zend Avesta, like the Old Testament, is made up of fragments of various ages, but the oldest portions are in the Vedic form of the Sanskrit language, and hence are specimens of the oldest known writings.

It has not been determined which is the older the "Old Bactrian" of the Zend Avesta, or the Sanskrit, and it is unessential to this question.

The vast antiquity of the sacred Vedas; the voluminous Bible of the Hindoos, is undisputed; 1,600 years before Christ is among the lowest estimates. The exactitude of historical dates did not concern the Hindoo and hence there is great confusion.

Confucius, who formulated the religion of China, lived about 500 years before Christ. The sacred writings existing before his time were glossed with his sayings, and the Books of Kings, the Bible of the Chinese, was fully formed at least four hundred years before Christ. Thus, then, there are three Bibles—the Zend Avesta, the Vedas, the Book of Kings, all of them vastly older than the Christian Bible, each teaching a cosmology and a scheme of religion.

Aside from this, if by the Christian Bible is meant the Protestant Bible, there is a much older Bible right by its side—the Catholic Bible. They were once the same, but are now quite distinct, and if "new and revised" translations are allowed, they will become yet more separated.

"Student," Milan, O.: Q. If a spirit has an individualized identity, eternal in the future, must it not have had in the past? If it has a beginning, as you advocate, with the physical body, must it not have an end?

A. Since the first statement of this fundamental principle of the New Spiritualism, this has been a point of attack by critics, who reason from the old standpoint. The old metaphysical reasoning says: Whatever has a beginning must have an end; therefore when it is asserted that the spirit of man is immortal, it follows that he has always existed; that he has had an endless past. This is held to be unanswerable, except by the hypothesis of pre-existence and reincarnation, which maintains that the spirit is an indestructible entity, constantly rehabilitating itself in forms of flesh; but this hypothesis is only a supposition made in the childhood of the race to solve the problem. In an age of accurate thought it seems an anachronism. If we accept the doctrine of evolution—and, as the immediate explanation of the phenomena of living beings it is the only and complete explanation—then we must receive as true the corollary that instinct and intelligence are evolved out of the transformations of living beings, and that individualized spirit, if there be such an entity, must be the last link in the vast organic series from which it has sprung into being. In other words, with an indeterminate future it has a determinate past.

If the spirit has existed for infinite time before its incarnation in this life, it has had infinite opportunities for progress, and logically should have attained perfection. The fact of its imperfection necessitates a beginning, and the degree of imperfection shows the nearness or remoteness of the starting point.

If it be held that this apparent imperfection is the result of the spirit's connection with matter, it must be remembered that the theory of pre-existence has for its object to account for the evils of this life, and perfected spiritual beings, such as all would be after an infinite past, would have no need of incarnation to attain the purity and excellence already theirs. With the physical form given to offspring by their parents is also given a spiritual entity which is capable of existence after the death of that body, as an independent being, the center of multitudinous forces.

In the first place we must accept the facts and affirm that the spirit begins its existence with that of the body. If this is not true, the whole fabric of the New Spiritualism falls. It is accurate in knowledge, that is scientific, or it is no better than the mythical systems of the past. The problem is for its solution, and its value as a system of philosophy depends thereon.

It is impossible to more than passingly review the arguments in support of the origin and evolution of spirit, for the historical part requires the whole volume of the "Arcana of Nature," and the spiritual the two volumes, "Psychic Science" and "Philosophy of Spirit." Therein is shown how, as matter is individualized in a mortal body, force may be through higher forms of matter individualized in an immortal.

B. F. N., Costigan, Me: Q. What is the significance of seeing lights—white, golden, pink, blue, red and violet appear upon walls and window glass in bright daylight?

A. Taken by itself the question would lead to the inference that the cause was some disturbance of the organs of vision, but in an explanation accompanying it the writer says that the seeing of colored lights has been in connection with various forms of spirit control. Hence the probability that it is a part of such influence. The first intimation of the clairvoyant state is the coming of iridescent lights that flash in continuous waves.

E. Summers, Chicago: Q. If human spirits are the size of their fleshly bodies, and there are many thousand millions of them, even billions would they not be in spiritual life numerous enough to be packed "like sardines" a mile high or more all over the earth? and if so, how could any one of them travel very fast without plunging through the others?

A. The vast zones which extend around the earth which we are taught are the spirit spheres, provide ample room without crowding, and beyond are other zones surrounding the solar system. The immortal race of men have not comparatively a long reign on this earth, and as has been stated, the earth is the only one of the planets capable of sustaining a being in any way comparable with man, we can speculate on the possible inhabitants of Venus, Mars or Jupiter, but the conditions prevailing on these planets are so entirely different from those on the earth that its inhabitants could not exist in any of them. It has been a prevalent idea that the ultimate use and purpose of the planets was the turning out of human beings. If so, there has been failure. The purposes of the planets may be important, and perhaps the conditions on earth are sustained by there being planets which are not productive. There is no more crowding of spiritual beings than of physical bodies, and there are vast and long solitudes.

S. Thompson, Boston, Mass.: Q. What is the explanation of the contradiction in the writings of Petersilea, who states that there are lions and tigers in the spirit-world, and of Dr. Peebles, who claims that there are not? (2) What is the condition of spirits who were false and deceptive in earth-life?

A. (1) This question has been repeatedly discussed in these columns and nothing more conclusive can be added. The question of what different ones affirm is resolved into that of possibility. Is it possible that all living beings are immortal; all down to the germs of the pestilential diseases? If so, then there is consumption in spirit-life, or the germs of tuberculosis could not exist; there is typhoid and malarial fevers for the spirit-germs of these diseases to feed upon. The herbivorous animal having had its body torn by the fangs of the tiger, must again as a spirit submit to the claws of the spirit tiger! Such are the inferences from the proposition that animals exist as spirits, and its absurdity is its refutation.

(2) Spirits who while in the mortal form, deceived and were untrustworthy, will remain the same until they advance in knowledge. Regrets over the wrongs done and the pain and antagonism caused may cause them to be exceedingly unhappy. They may become under such influence what has been called earth-bound spirits, and linger continually near those they have wronged.

Chas. P. Ketchum: Q. Please explain what is a human soul.

(2) Why was not Spiritualism represented at the Religious Congress at the World's Fair?

A. It was represented in a way by a Psychic assembly at which some very excellent papers were read, but no adequate effort was made. If the facts were known, it would be found that no opposition was thrown in the way by the management, the suppression came from the hands of supposed friends. One paper was sent in, however, by the determination to have some representation.

IN NEW ORLEANS.

PUSHING THE GOOD WORK FORWARD.

To the Editor:—"Way down in Louisiana," we are adding our mite, we hope, to the unit of progress, steadily pushing our glorious philosophy forward.

In this city we note the significance of the increasing demand by the army of thinkers in our ranks, for pure, true spiritual philosophy, and food for thought, in the interest exhibited in the large and steadily increasing crowds attendant at the lectures. Mrs. Hiligoss, inspirational speaker, has been the leader in this great step forward, and will, I believe, be an instrument of grand success in establishing our noble Spiritualism, in this city, New Orleans, on an intelligent, healthy mental and spiritual basis.

A Ladies' Aid adjunct to the society, of which good Sister Paterson—who, with her husband, are bright lights in home work in our ranks—is the presiding officer, has been recently organized, with good prospects for future success and growth. I would say right here that we who travel can see many things we would wish to see growing faster and more frequent among home workers, (for to these we look for the universal foundation for success,) and that least among these, is the quiet and effectual work of an auxiliary or "Aid." Every society should institute one, and the younger and more struggling the society, the more need of social push and energy among its members.

Slowly but surely there is growing a spirit—the spirit of elimination—which is a good one. The Spiritualists of this country throughout are growing into two distinct classes: The class that desires the best there is in the suggestion of unfoldment presented by our knowledge of the immortality of the soul, and the class that desires nothing but the manifestation of decarnate presences—the true Spiritualist, and the Spiritist! The latter class abounds, but there will come a great division, out of which like a very Phoenix the grand precepts of true, tried Spiritualism will arise like an oasis to the weary soul.

ELLA GIBSON MAGOON.

"ALGINOUS" ON THE ASTRAL BODY.

THOSE QUESTIONS.

Relation Between Ethereal and Earth Body.

CAUSES OF OBSESSION—MESMERISM A DANGEROUS THING—OBJECTS OF THE FIVE SENSES.

To the Editor:—The representatives of ideas are often very difficult to get placed properly in type. The first question should read as follows: What is the relation existing between the more ethereal body (called astral body by some) and the earth body?

The ego of man presents two marked and well-defined expressions, besides thought objective creations, quite as tangible for a time as either the earth body or the astral body.

The earth may be used as an illustration of what we mean by two bodies to one ego, or personality. The earth will represent our denser physical body, and air, light, ether, etc., the astral body of man. Air, light, ether, etc., are the more subtile and active life energies that surround the earth and penetrate it; just so with the relations between the earth body and the astral body that compose the little world called man.

The astral substance envelopes the earth body to an average depth of three feet, and like the atmosphere of the earth is constantly changing from the extremes of passions to the quietude of repose. At the change called death there is a complete separation of the earth body from the astral body, which serves as a body in the astral life. When the astral body leaves the earth body in health, or while united to each other, there is sufficient astral substance remaining with the earth body to keep it functionating; also a thought current that connects the two bodies, no matter how far separated from each other.

An ego who has dreamed the sweet dream called death controls the ego of one in the earth body, can do so by standing a little distance behind the person being controlled, and holding the hand on a level, or a little above the head, a current of thought passes directly to the head, and if successful, inspirational thinking or speaking is the result, by the control of the brain and vocal organs of the sensitive.

Obsession is the result of a disembodied earth ego getting in the astral bodies' aura, and controlling the earth body, causing much suffering until the victim is aided by some outside power. This obsessing ego is stronger than the sensitive it has taken possession of, and can retain possession as long as it chooses, unless forced to cease the imprisonment of another.

Mesmerism produces somewhat similar results and is a dangerous power in the hands of the ignorant.

The objects of the five senses of the earth body take notice of, cause sensations that result in the various thought-expressions of the individual, and the astral body has all these avenues for gaining knowledge in a far more acute sense, which vibrate to the objects and sensations in the substance of the astral ocean of thought-life. This double means of education is not generally understood at the present time. When properly comprehended by man, he will give the bodily senses rest for a time each day, that proper mental digestion may take place by the harmonious action of all the forces of his being, especially the astral force, which is capable of a much larger survey of nature. The stomach usually receives the proper physiological consideration after a meal. Mental indigestion is a much more frequent disorder than gastric indigestion, and is thought to be cured by death; but not so, as they are kept in nature's astral sterilizer for a long, long time.

The earth body's five little imperfect means for gaining knowledge alone can only produce a dwarf or half-self that is foolish enough to think is its complete self, and under the delusion says "Life is not worth living; it is mean; very unfortunate to be born," and all such like foolish things. With the partial separation of the full powers of man's being it is easy to account for the many diseases and misfortunes that man inflicts upon himself and upon others. What dire changes would take place in this earth if the most essential portion of its ethereal body was shut off from its normal relations to the earth! Doubtless erring man disturbs the divine relations of the astral ether of the earth to the earth as well as himself.

The first truth to be learned is how to keep spiritual harmony between the earth body and the astral body, and all things will be added unto you.

A normal spiritual and physiological expression of man would predicate harmony of all the avenues for the acquirement of knowledge as well as the proper application of it. Those who attain this balance have no fear of the ills that afflict ignorant mankind. The earth body serves as an anchor or base, from which it directs the astral body through the dark oceans of acute sensations and passions of ignorant man to nature's light, tranquil ocean of spirit, unity or wisdom. If this goal of bliss is not attained by the ego before the dissolution of the earth body (called death), the ego is lost in the regions of dire passions until it finds the proper law of its being. O, the agony of the delay! The harvest of errors! The law of being knows no pity, but acts with unfailing uniformity. Either your conduct was wise or unwise. Man is no automaton, but decides to do good or pervert the good, as he chooses—and reap the harvest he must. This is nature's gentle, patient manner of waiting on her erring offspring.

Take a rubber tree as an illustration of what we mean by an anchor for the ego. The five senses are the roots, the body the trunk, and the leaves the astral body. The roots (five senses) come in contact with dense, slow vibrating matter that suggests thought and ideas from study and experience; these assist the astral body, and in turn the leaves (the astral body) come in contact with subtile, active vibrating matter and absorb ideas from the thoughts zone and conduct them to the earth body. Strip a tree constantly of its leaves and it suffers; also disturb its roots and it withers in time. Were it not for the trunk of the tree, the leaves would be tossed upon the storm waves of the air, etc., and no more absorb the sunlight, dew, gases, etc. The same is true of the astral body if not held fast in its turbulent elements of thought atmosphere, or it would be tossed on the waves of perverted nature.

These principles being true, how essential for us while in our earth bodies to spiritually educate our ego, that when the normal time of separation comes, and the earth balance no longer is useful, the astral body takes its flight beyond the turbulent plain of unripened egos of man.

The conditions essential to produce a healthy tree or plant, with beautiful foliage and flowers, is pretty well understood by the florist. A stockman is well versed in the law that will produce fine stock. Pride and money join in the stimulus to such productions. Should property interest be of more value than a healthy body and mind in men and women? Which had better have the most attention, your transitory property, or your body and mind? One is with you for eternity, the other for a day. Will man learn now that he is in the school of nature? If he does not realize the truth, will he take the message of those who do? The only personality you will have to reckon with is your own. You will be your own accuser and judge, and that will occur when your infinite self can illuminate your erring self. Waste not the present earth advantages.

If the earth body with associates in the earth bodies disobeys any or all of the ten commandments, their astral bodies will continually repeat the acts with each other in their astral bodies, in all places and at all times. You may be with your family at the fireside, or asleep, while your astral body is away with associates in vice, or with angels of light and truth.

Your company is reinforced by those of its kind, who have dreamed the dream called death by us.

Words cannot picture humanity's cesspool of misdirected thought and energy. The wail of lost souls is lost in darkness of their own aura; a cumuli of dark life forms resembling their dark, naked appearance. There is no soul so bold, after seeing the inferno of delay would pass one minute in it and do the self-imprisoning. That which man calls space is one dense ocean of living forms from the size of an atom to that of man and animal forms. Fluids and organic solids are made up of life entities in greater or lesser activity. More can be said on this topic at some future time.

Those who are in the earth body little suspect that babies and children may be observing them in their astral bodies committing the old sins over and over. Should they not be able to see them as they would see any piece of furniture in the room, they will impress thoughts on their negative minds for good or for evil.

O, could the white-robed priests and priestesses of nature only visit budding humanity and plant pure thoughts and life-giving ether of the pure in spirit. Dark would be the night for humanity if these messengers could not come to us at all times if we desire them, or they could do any good. It is worth the wealth of the world to behold these messengers of God to man. They put the inhabitants of darkness to flight by this wonderful, white, luminous aura that surrounds them, which presses upon their columns as they flee before it. It is an aura of great force in lifting or severing objects, and think it not beyond the possibility of man to use it to some extent.

"O ye, who seek to solve the knot;
Ye live in God, yet ye know Him not.
Ye sit upon the river's brink,
Yet crave in vain a drop to drink.
Ye dwell beside a countless store,
Yet perish hungry at the door."

The thought will come to many: Can it be proven? Yes! To those who have some knowledge of the astral stuff and life forms.

Many people in observing a passing railroad engine and train, will inform you the character of the fuel used, by the smoke which escapes from the smokestack of the engine, and also the character of the coaches, and to some extent, their load of freight.

To some people it is quite as easy for them to judge the character of thought fuel used by a person passing them, from the color and density as it rises up from the head, and also judge the character of the astral coaches and freight their human thought engines carry.

Are you acquainted with railroad traffic? You answer, No! Have you observed phenomena in the astral world? I know nothing about it. Is it possible to demonstrate facts to people who know nothing about the subject under consideration? ALGINOUS.

COMING TO THE FRONT.

NEW MEDIUMS IN TOPEKA, KAN.

To the Editor:—I am tempted to tell the readers of the Thinker of the grand developments going on in this city, Topeka, Kan.

One of our sisters, a Mrs. Stowe, has in the last year developed the phase of materializations. In her seances, spirit forms come out and walk about the room and converse with the sitters. She sits under strict test conditions, is tied in the chair, and during the seance people are called into the cabinet, to show that she is tied.

We also have another sister, a Miss L. D. Dilly, who has developed into a very fine slate-writer. She gave several seances at my house—she had only sat three times before coming to us. At the first sitting she had three slates—one lay on the floor, the other two were on the table, all in broad daylight, with the curtains drawn. All three slates were written full on both sides. The second sitting, one slate was thrown on the floor; the second slate was under one of the sitters' feet, and the third slate was held under the table by two of the sitters, while two others held the hands of the medium. All three slates were written full. We had four sittings of this kind, and sometimes we had five slates, and they were always full. At each sitting the slates were handled in a different manner; once they were tied together and hung on the wall, and as usual the slates were full.

On the evening of February 3, Miss Dilly gave us a seance for physical manifestations, which was her second sitting. It was simply grand. She sat outside of the cabinet and had only a chair, four slates and a writing tablet in the cabinet. She sat tied in the chair, and two of the audience sat beside her. At intervals she would change those that sat beside her. While the writer was sitting by the side of the medium, he got several pokes in the ribs and a pull of the hair which made him think of the good old times, and the familiar ways of his better half. Every one was delighted. The spirits would open the curtain and pat their friends on the cheek and seem to be more than glad to get to touch their friends on earth again. And the friends on the material side were glad to be caressed by the spiritual. One little spirit came to his grandpa and took his handkerchief out of his pocket and threw it on the floor. One spirit would open the cabinet curtains so as to form a triangle or a Pyramid and gave the sign of distress of the Order of Pyramids, as one of the sitters belonged to that order.

The result of the seance was, all the slates were full and there were four messages written on the tablet and torn off and thrown into the room. As they finished writing on the slate, they would pass that out and repeat the operation until they passed in all the slates. All the friends present received a message from some loved one. They all went home feeling quite happy, and were fully persuaded that the dead are not asleep.

Miss Dilly is a very fine platform test medium, as well as a very beautiful singer. C. H. G.

ORTHODOX AMENITIES.

INGERSOLL CALLED "A HEAP OF DIRT"—REFUSE TO SPEAK IN ANY BUILDING RENTED TO HIM—INGERSOLL IS REASONABLY ANGRY AT THE CLERICAL ABUSE HEAPED UPON HIM.

The opponents of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll have gone about on another tack, so it is alleged, and it may come to pass that certain evangelists will refuse in the future to speak in public buildings which have been or are to be rented to Colonel Ingersoll.

Although he will not admit it, there seems to be a suspicion that the Rev. A. C. Dixon, the well-known and eloquent Baptist revivalist of Brooklyn, is at the bottom of this alleged plan. There are circumstances which seem to lend color to the rumor.

For the last six weeks Mr. Dixon has been holding services each Sunday afternoon in the Academy of Music, this city. He had a contract with the management of the academy for six weeks, and, so it is said, was about to renew the lease last Thursday, when he chanced to see an announcement to the effect that Colonel Ingersoll was to deliver a lecture at the academy on the evening of Sunday, February 14.

"What is this?" he is said to have exclaimed to Manager Van Dusen. "You rent your house to a Christian minister for the afternoon, and then turn it over to an infidel like Ingersoll for the evening?"

The manager responded that that was about the size of the matter.

Mr. Dixon is careful not to admit that he refused the Academy because of the Colonel, yet does not hesitate to say some severe things about the noted agnostic as follows:

"I have no enmity for Colonel Ingersoll. Neither have I respect. He is a heap of dirt, and yet I feel for him a certain compassion; that is all.

"Some time ago I spoke into a phonograph and said that he was 'paid to pollute the morals of the rising generation.'

"This remark of mine was printed, and Colonel Ingersoll brought a $5,000 libel suit against me. I went to an expense of over $1,000 to thoroughly investigate the man's character, and I think I know all about him from his boyhood up to the present time. That is why I say that he is a heap of dirt. I might say more, only what is the use?

Colonel Ingersoll was a little more moderate in his expressions regarding the matter. He had been informed of Mr. Dixon's alleged refusal to rent the Academy on account of his (Colonel Ingersoll's) coming lecture, and when asked to reply he sat down in his drawing room and wrote the following:

I do not wonder that Mr. Dixon objects to speaking in a theatre in which I am to speak. He is probably afraid that good sense is catching. An idea might force its way into his brain, and then he might stop preaching and go to thinking. His refusal to make his customary noise in the Academy because I am to speak there is laughable. The poor man has to live in the same city that I do, in the same world, breathe the same air, feel the same cold and see the same snow. How he must suffer.

A WORLD FOR HIMSELF.

His God ought to give him a little world just for himself. Now he is in danger of meeting other men—in danger of being corrupted by reason, by logic and demonstration. I am willing to speak in a building that he has preached in. I am not afraid. I have no pious malice, no saintly hatred, no Christian spite. But then I have never been converted, never lost my love for fairness or my natural generosity.

Poor Dixon! I pity him. He has plenty of pity, but he lacks good sense, good manners. R. G. INGERSOLL.

Replying to Mr. Dixon's other remarks, Mr. Ingersoll said:

"The good gentleman need not fear that I am about to join his church. When he says that I am edging toward the church because of certain statements attributed to me regarding a church in Michigan he gives himself unnecessary alarm. The church to which he probably refers is in Kalamazoo, and it has no creed other than 'Love your fellow men.' I did say that I would willingly join such a church, and I repeat the statement. As to his personalities, I have nothing whatever to say."

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of infomation on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here garnered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"The Religion of the Future." By S. Weil. This is a work of far more than ordinary power and value, by a bold, untrammeled thinker. Spiritualists who love deep, clear thought, reverent for truth alone, will be pleased with it, and well repaid by its perusal. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.25; paper, 50 cents.

"THE LIGHT OF EGYPT,"

OR THE SCIENCE OF THE SOUL AND THE STARS.

Finely Illustrated With Eight Full-Page Engravings.

BY AN INITIATE IN ESOTERIC MASONRY.

It is claimed that this book is not a mere compilation, but thoroughly original.

It is believed to contain information upon the most vital points of Occultism and Theosophy that cannot be obtained elsewhere.

It claims to fully reveal the most recondite mysteries of man upon every plane of his existence, both here and hereafter, in such plain, simple language that a child can almost understand it.

The secret and Occult mysteries of Astrology are revealed and explained for the first time, it is affirmed, since the days of Egyptian Hieroglyphics.

An effort is made to show that the Science of the Soul and the Science of the Stars are the twin mysteries which comprise THE ONE GRAND SCIENCE OF LIFE.

The following are among the claims made for the work by its friends:

To the Spiritual investigator this book is indispensable.

To the medium it reveals knowledge beyond all earthly price, and will prove in real truth "a guide, philosopher and friend."

To the Occult it will supply the mystic key for which he has been so long earnestly seeking.

To the Astrologer it will become a "divine revelation of Science."

OPINIONS OF PRESS AND PEOPLE.

"A noble, philosophical and instructive work."—Mrs. Emma Hardinge Britten.

"A work of remarkable ability and interest."—Dr. J. R. Buchanan.

"A remarkably concise, clear and forcibly interesting work. * * * It is more clear and intelligible than any other work on like subjects."—Mr. J. J. Morse.

"A careful reading of THE LIGHT OF EGYPT discovers the beginning of a new sect in Occultism, which will oppose the grafting on Western Occultists the subtile delusive dogmas of Karma and Re-incarnation."—New York Times.

"It is a volume likely to attract wide attention from that class of scholars interested in mystical science and occult forces. But it is suspicion in such plain and simple style as to be within the easy comprehension * * * of any cultivated, scholarly reader."—The Chicago Daily Inter Ocean.

"However recondite his book, the author certainly presents a theory of first causes which is well fitted to challenge the thoughtful readers' attention and to excite much reflection."—Hartford Daily Times.

"Considered as an exposition of Occultism, or the philosophy of the Orient from a Western standpoint, this is a remarkable production."—The Daily Tribune (Salt Lake City).

"This work, the result of years of research and study, will undoubtedly create a profound sensation throughout the philosophic world."—The Detroit Commercial Advertiser.

"It is an Occult work but not a Theosophical one. * * * It is a book entirely new in its scope and must excite wide attention."—The Kansas City Journal.

Beautifully printed and illustrated on paper manufactured for this special purpose, with illuminated and extra heavy cloth binding.

Price, Three Dollars. For Sale at This Office.

MOST WONDERFUL BOOKS.

The Warfare of Science With Theology.

A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom. By ANDREW D. WHITE, LL. D., late President and Professor of History at Cornell University. In Two Volumes. 8vo. Cloth, Five Dollars. For Sale at This Office.

In these two large volumes are combined information that the reader could not find in the libraries of the world in fifty years. It shows the constant and determined opposition of Theology to the advancement that has been made in every branch of Science. To the Student it is indispensible. Every Free Thought Speaker should have it. It should circulate in every community. It goes into minute details, citing in all cases the authority, showing the persistency of Theology in fighting new and advanced ideas in Science.

"The magnum opus of the eminent ex-President of Cornell plants a new and notable milestone along the highway of ever-advancing human thought. The work is the masterpiece of a mind as devoid of wanton iconoclasm as of moral cowardice. It is a definite statement of where the best thinkers of the world now stand in the religio-scientific conflict. It is clear, honest, brave, and must be given a place among the great books of the year."—Chicago Tribune.

"The most valuable contribution that has yet been made to the history of the conflict between the theologians and the scientists; struggles that have alarmed timid Christians, but, as Mr. White shows, there was no occasion for alarm. The several chapters are extremely interesting, and while President White never flinches in telling the whole truth, as he thinks science has ascertained it, he is nowhere irreverent. He confronts truth, takes its hand, and follows boldly wherever truth bids him come."—Buffalo Commercial.

"The book is written almost colloquially, and so interestingly as to enchain the attention at once, and keep it enchained. Concise as a history of the universe could be made, tabulated so that instant reference to a particular bit of history, theory, or biography may be had, it will be valuable as a lexicon relating to religious controversy. It is crammed with information, sorted, sifted, winnowed, and prepared for the consumer, as reading it is of an absorbing interest, and it will probably provoke answering arguments."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"Undoubtedly the most exhaustive treatise which has been written on this subject. It is able, scholarly, critical, and impartial in tone."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

"A literary event of prime importance is the appearance of 'A History of the Warfare of Science with Theology in Christendom.'"—Philadelphia Press.

These two large volumes, containing about 900 pages, will be sent to any address on the receipt of the price, Five Dollars.

A UNIQUE BIBLE PICTURE-BOOK.

OLD TESTAMENT STORIES

COMICALLY ILLUSTRATED.

Exposure by Ridicule.

Exposure by Facts.

By WATSON HESTON.

The Stories Humorously Told—And Hard Facts Given Concerning the Origin and Authenticity of the Old Testament—A Page of Text to Each Picture.

400 Pages. 200 Full-Page Pictures.

CONTENTS.

Sustaining a Theory,
Some Giants,
The Adventures and Work of Noah,
A Hunting Anecdote,
Abraham, Christ's Great Ancestor,
A Queer Family,
Isaac and His "Sister,"
One of Twins,
Jacob and Esau,
Joseph the Man of Dreams,
Holy Moses,
Balaam the Diviner,
Bloody Joshua,
The Campaign of Deborah and Barak Against Jabin and Sisera,
General Gideon,
Jephthah and His Human Sacrifice,
Samson the Strong,
Ruth and Boaz,
Unstable as Water, God Shall Not Excel,
David, God's Favorite,
Some Stories from the Book of Kings,
Adventures of the Prophets,
Jonah the Truthful Sailor.

(Both, gilt side stamp, $1.50; Boards, illuminated covers, $1.

Address THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

CONVENTION OF NEW YORK STATE SPIRITUALISTS.

A delegate convention of Spiritualists of the State of New York, will be held at Syracuse, N. Y., April 13, 14 and 15, 1897, for the purpose of organizing a State Association of a permanent character, to be auxiliary to the National Spiritualists' Association. In connection therewith during the last day and evenings of every day mass-meetings will be held to promote the interests of the State Association. Every Spiritualist society in the State, whether chartered or not, is urged to elect delegates.

Spiritualists in any community or section that are not members of a local society, can call a meeting and elect delegates, and are requested to do so. Every society or meeting will be entitled to one delegate for every fifty members or portion thereof. It is hoped that action will be taken at once by all concerned, as it is of great importance that all sections be represented. Unity of action is needed, and the best thinkers among our people should be present not only to assist in the organization, but to see that the convention does not enact unwise measures. When delegates have been chosen, their names, addresses, and the society or persons they are to represent should be sent at once to the undersigned.

An excellent hall has been engaged for the convention. Good speakers and mediums, and first-class music will be engaged for the mass-meetings.

One and a third rates for the round trip on the certificate plan, will be secured on all railroads.

Last year the writer attempted to organize the State at the request of the Board of Trustees of the Spiritual, Educational and Protective Union, and societies were invited to send delegates to meet at Lily Dale at the time of the annual meeting of the S. E. P U., and organize; it being so late in the season before the call was made, many of the societies had adjourned for the summer and could not elect delegates; for that reason it was thought best to postpone action, and the following resolution was adopted by the S. E. & P. Union:

Resolved, That the Board of Trustees of the S. E. & P. Union be empowered to use the general funds of the Union for the purpose of creating an interest in organizing a State Association, by circulating literature and paying the expenses of a missionary to be appointed by it, to visit the New York, Brooklyn, and other societies in the State for that purpose."

Having been appointed as said missionary, and at the request of the officers of the N. S. A., the above arrangements have been made and this call is now issued.

In order, however, that no one might think this movement to organize the State was too limited in its support, other societies and individuals have been asked to join in this call.

The following list of persons representing themselves or their societies, have signed or authorized their names to be signed to this call:

H. D. Barrett, Pres. N. S. A., Lily Dale; Hon. A. H. Dailey, Pres. Ch. New Spir. Dispensation; Mrs. Elizabeth F. Kurth, Pres. Wom. Prog. Union; W. Wines Sargent, Pres. Chris. Ev. Soc.; E. W. Barber, Pres.; Annie Rhodes Palmer, Vice-pres.; W. F. Palmer, Sec, Frat Spir. Soc.; Herbert L. Whitney, Pres.; Mrs. F. M. Holmes, Sec. Adv. Conf.; Mrs. M. E. Cutting, Manager Med. Meeting, Mrs. Laura A. Olmstead, Miss. Minnie Terry, Dr. John C. Wyman, Col. J. D. Graham, Charles Barmore, Brooklyn; Alfred Andrews, Pres.; Titus Merritt, Sec., Soc. of Spir., Yonkers; Mrs. Mary A. Newton, Pres.; Mrs. Harriet M. Rathbun, Cor. Sec. of First Soc. of Spir. of New York City, I. R. Sanford, Pres. N. Y. Spir. Temple; E. W. Sprague, Jamestown; Carrie E. S. Twing, Westfield; Mrs. Tillie U. Reynolds, Troy; Dr. Fred L. H. Willis, Rochester; Lyman C. Howe, Fredonia; John D. Chism, John Chism, Jr., Albany; Elisha Waters, Pres. First Soc. of Spir., Troy; E. F. Butterfield, M. D. Mrs. M. H. Cowan, Syracuse; Hon. W. D. Shuart, Elon C. Galusha, J. W. Moore, A. S. Clackner, Mary B. Bingham, Stephen H. Barnesdale, Rochester; H. W. Richardson, Pres. Psychic Res. Soc., East Aurora; Mrs. J. H. R. Matteson, E. Musselman, Pres.; Mrs. A. Atcheson, Vice-pres; J. Donovan, Treas.; Mrs. L. H. Eggleston, Fin. Sec., First Spir. Ch.; A. S. Hinkley, M. D.; Wm. F. Pfeiffer, S. H. Wortman, Buffalo; John Racklyeft, Pres.; Mrs. S. L. Sec. of the Prog. Sp. Association, Waverly; Sarah A. Walters, Auburn; Anna B. Taylor, Lawton Sta.; B. R. Train, Emma Train, Levi Brown, David Sherman, Wesley Ford, Ellen Ford, George Sucher, North Collins; Myra F. Paine, Sec. S. E. & P. Union; E. A. and Isabella K. Doty, Robert and Sarah Morland, M. S. and Emma Dutter, Lockport; Francis Rice, Greigsville; L. O. Preston, Avon; Elnora M. Babcock, Dunkirk; Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, Miss Libbie J. Clough, Baldwinville; D. B. Merritt, Linden; N. G. Upson, Oswego; H. C. Sessions, Cortland; A. A. Adams, Pres.; F. E. Anderson, Sec.; Clara Watson, Cor. Sec.; A. C. Adams, Treas., First Sp. Soc., Jamestown; Mrs. J. M. Curtis, Mrs. E. J. Evans, Bolivar, G. W. Kates also writes that he wishes to join the call.

In addition to the $600 raised at Brooklyn, to assist State Association, $100 have been subscribed by one gentleman at Syracuse.

FRANK WALKER.
Hamburg, N. Y.

MY MOTHER'S HAND.

There lies before me on the bed
A souvenir white and grand,
That beckons back that snow-white head
And touch of mother's hand.
In every thread
That beautiful spread
Still speaks of mother's hand.

And here's a handsome crazy-quilt,
With flowers and leaves stitched o'er,
That never die—that neither wilt,
Each brings her back once more.
From every stitch
There comes that rich,
Sweet thought from spirit-shore.

And there's a tidy—"Robert Burns"—
"Should auld acquaintance be"—
Again that dear old face returns
To say: "Remember me."
In every part
My mother's heart
Implanted there I see.

There hangs a plaque upon the wall—
A parrot worked on black—
That speaks the plainest of them all
In calling mother back.
The dear old Polly
That kept her jolly
With his "cracker to crack."

And many things are stored away,
I prize so very high,
For in each one there seems to stay
My mother's dear old eye,
That from above
Still views with love
These things that never die.

DR. T. WILKINS.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole, Clinton, Iowa—Dear Friend:—I have worn your Melted Pebble Spectacles for eight years. They were perfection. Have lost them; please send another pair. IRENE CHASE. Little Valley, N. Y., Feb. 8, 1897.

IMPORTANT!

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

—THE—

FAMOUS CHRONIST,

OF AYER, MASS.

QUICK CURES! SMALL DOSES!

Send age, name in full and two 2-cent stamps and leading symptom, and we will send you a diagnosis of your case FREE, and we will try and make the price of treatment right to you. Remember, please, that we do not wish to take your case unless you are dissatisfied with your present treatment. Do not ask OUR opinion of this doctor or that one, because we never express an opinion, nor have we any one connected with us that is allowed to speak ill of any one or even to express an opinion. We know some doctors do so, but we do not.

The day of shot-gun prescription is past; drastic drugs in large doses will not be given ten years from now. We believe in the certainty of medicine and in specific medication, but specific medication requires specific diagnosis. He who understands the action of drugs, and who is gifted with the power of correctly diagnosing, is the successful physician to-day.

SPECIFIC MEDICINE! NO DRASTIC DRUGS!

A Book on "Chronic Disease" Sent for 2-cent Stamp.

G. E. WATKINS, M. D.,

AYER, MASS.

THE STORY OF THE SOUL.

I have something I would tell you,
It's no secret you need keep,
But forever speed it onward
Free as the wild winds sweep.

Oh, I wish you to reveal it,
Wide as the heavens spread,
Broad as the continents unroll,
Where human footsteps tread.

Go, whisper to the fountain source
Where gathering waters run
In mighty rivers through all lands
Beneath the glinting sun!

Go, shout it from the mountain crest,
Repeat it on the plain,
And send it forth where billows roll
O'er ocean's grand domain.

From the Orient to the Occident,
In every clime and tongue,
Proclaim it to the aged and Impress it on the young.

Fear not, oh lips, or falter,
For all nature loves the theme;
'Tis the ecstacy of sweetness,
The fruition of each dream!

And this something sweet I bring you
Is the story of the soul—
Of the mystery of Being
And the spirit's final goal!

It was there amid the chaos
Of creation's early morn,
When the star worlds sang together,
And the infant earth was born.

It was pulsing through the riftings
Of the granite's flinty breast
And was lifted into being
By the hands that never rest.

And the roses in their blooming,
With each petal's fragrant breath,
Have proclaimed that grand old story,
There is change, but never death.

E'en the infant in its cradle,
While its cheeks grow cold and pale,
Has lifted hands of greeting,
When it heard the angels' hail;

And the gray-haired sire and matron,
And the strong man and the youth,
And the bonny fair-haired maiden,
Have witnessed to its truth!

From the lichens and the mosses
Of far north Labrador,
To the fadeless greens and fruitage
Of the tropic's golden shore!

From the lowest depths of being
To the heights of mortal ken,
Anxious hearts are eager asking—
Dying, shall we live again?

And the Lord has winged His message
Like a pure white Dove of Peace,
And sent it forth to answer
As these questionings increase.

And the something sweet I bring you,
Is that message to the soul,
That, passing, leaves its dust at last,
To seek Life's shining goal.

'Tis the anchor of the spirit
With its faith serene and sweet,
Holding fast the barque of Life amid
The breakers' trampling feet.

'Tis past the reef of death at last,
The seas roll calm and grand
Where thousands wait the landing on
The silver shining strand.

But better far than all before,
To those who wait in tears,
The Lord set wide the golden door,
Of the Celestial years;

And to and fro, in shining garb,
The risen may return,
And God permits poor human Thought,
Their presence to discern.

MRS. S. B. KUTZ.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

Each generation lives in a different world.—Anon.

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS.

. . SPECIALISTS . .

In All Chronic Diseases.

Special attention to all Diseases peculiar to either sex. Advanced methods; best results.

CURE GUARANTEED, IN ALL CASES TAKEN.

Correct Diagnosis Free

By enclosing name, age, sex, leading symptom, and stamp for reply.

Remember to address

DRS. PEEBLES & BURROUGHS,

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

P. O. Box 177.

PASSED TO SPIRIT-LIFE.

Samuel Byron Kutz, of Rockford, Mich., passed to higher life on Sunday, February 14, 1897. Deceased leaves wife, one son, five grand-children, two brothers and a sister to mourn his departure.

Samuel Byron Kutz was born on the 11th day of March, 1823, in Schuylkill county, Penn., of German descent, his forefathers being among the first to seek a home in the wilds of this new world. His great-grandfather was in the old French and Indian war, and was shot down by the Indians while at work in his fields. The grandfather, then a little boy of six years, who was with his father when he was killed, was taken prisoner and held by the Indians a captive for seven years, when he returned to his people.

When about four years of age he came to Western New York with his father's family, and after a few years' pioneering amid the mountainous scenes of that locality, he moved again, this time to Jackson, Mich., then literally a howling wilderness.

On the 7th day of November, 1847, he was married to Miss Minerva J. Chapman, and one year from the next April they landed on an Indian trail on a wild one-quarter section of land near the beautiful Bostwick Lake; he raised his little log home and commenced to make the wilderness blossom as the rose in very deed, as anyone can testify who has seen his flower garden and partaken of the luscious fruits of his orchard, and there in the morning of his life his mission began to the sick and needy.

He was among the first to embrace Spiritualism, and just a few hours before death his eyes flew wide open with a beautiful light and a far-away gaze, and when asked if he saw something, he whispered, "Yes." "Do you see daughter?" "I guess I do." "Will you tell the children when you get over there how much we love them?" "Yes, I will"—and the light faded and the eyes closed at last to open never more on earth. D. V. E.

Passed to spirit-life, from Parks, Mich., January 23, 1897, Mr. Corbett, aged 76 years. He was born at Augusta, Me. Mr. Corbett was the father of Judge Roscoe L. Corbett, of Grand Traverse, Mich., who was his only son. He also has two daughters. He was a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker for about three years, and was an attentive reader of its pages, which thoroughly convinced him of the truth of the spiritual philosophy, as he frequently stated to the undersigned.

JUSTUS CHAPMAN.

Passed to spirit-life, February 18, 1897, Mr. Hamilton R. Barnes, at his late residence, 406 Neville street. He was a prominent member of the First Church of Spiritualists of Pittsburgh; he was also a Mason. He served through the Civil war and was a member of Post 3, G. A. R. He leaves a wife and two children. Funeral services conducted by Mrs. C. L. Stevens, of Pittsburgh, Pa. COR.

I have to record for you the transition of one of your subscribers and a devoted friend of our cause in the person of Daniel R. Holmes, of this city. The call came to him on the last night of the old year, just in its last hour. A serious fall while at Mt. Pleasant Park Camp-meeting last summer, had laid him on a sick-bed most of the time since his return home. His funeral services were conducted by Elder Slade, a retired Universalist minister, who gave a most beautiful discourse.

Mr. Holmes was a few months past 80 years of age, and had long been a Spiritualist. He possessed a keen, philosophical mind, was a great thinker and reader when in health, and to his last conscious hour could reason and discuss though troubled with shortness of breath, and memory did not hold as well as before his fall. We shall miss him for he had been identified with our work here for some time. In his will he bequeathed to the Spiritual society here $1,000, provided that it raises $500 more, to build a small temple for our meetings, and whatever interest may accrue from that before it is used to supplying the rostrum with speakers. MRS. M. A. CONGDON.

Elgin, Ill.

Passed to spirit-life, at Elgin, Ill., February 24, 1897, Elliott Bruce Scovell, aged 5 years. Little Bruce was the youngest child of Hannibal Scovell and Mrs. S. C. Scovell, the well-known test medium. Mrs. Scovell was in Galena, Kansas, having just finished a three weeks' engagement in Kansas City. She visited her parents en route for home, and was called to Elgin by a telegram, announcing the serious illness of her two youngest children. Arriving home she found the little ones in the deadly embrace of membraneous croup, death coming to the youngest at 10:20 a. m., Wednesday, the 24th.

A. B. Coman, of 2936 Dearborn street, Chicago, on the 11th inst., laid down the burden of this lower life and took on the song of the higher. Thus passeth another pioneer worker. Dr. J. E. De Wolf, of Chicago, officiated at the funeral; the Babcock Sisters furnishing the music. The three sisters, sweet singers, have been prominent musicians in the Chicago Spiritualist societies for over twenty years.

Mr. Coman had gone South on account of rheumatism, to spend the winter, when being attacked with pneumonia, he hastened home, to live only four days after his return. His remains will be cremated at Graceland, in accordance with his expressed wish.

Mr. Coman had started many societies, some of which are still living. He started the first one on the South Side. There was never any sacrifice of money or service, for the cause, too great for him to make. He was a medium, but the most of his work seemingly, was done independently of the mediumship. His wife also has been and is a medium, and both have had integrity of the highest order. He labored successfully to lift humanity to greater heights of light and understanding. He died in the full knowledge of whither he was going, and was happy.

E. W. BALDWIN.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

AS A SPIRITUAL HEALER HAS NO EQUAL!

Rejoice and Be Glad! Herald Forth the Tidings of Good Health!

DR. A. B. DOBSON'S

Healing powers are being repeated over and over again through the mediumship of MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER, who, for the past year and a half has

SUCCESSFULLY TREATED OVER ONE THOUSAND PATIENTS

of all diseases that flesh is heir to, and will give you proof of her powers, by sending requirements as per small advertisement for diagnosis of your case. Here is one of her many cures:

St. Louis, June 21, 1896.

MY DEAR MRS. DOBSON:—I herewith enclose $1.15 for another month's remedies for my sister Emma. I can't tell you how much good these medicines do her and how thankful and grateful we are for having applied for them. When she began taking this last medicine, she had considerable distress in the bowels and stomach, but after a week she was relieved and we are convinced if she had not the medicine she would have had a serious sick spell as liver, stomach and bowels were in a bad condition. Now everything seems in good order; still we feel as if more medicine will eventually cure all her ailments. We thank you sincerely for prompt reply, and wish you all the success you so well merit.

With affectionate regards, very truly, REBECCA LEVY.

3331 Laclede ave., St. Louis Mo.

OLD WOMAN'S CURSE FULFILLED

Hagerstown, Ind., Feb. 23.—The grave of Thomas Watt, at Bryant's chapel, near Centerville, this county, has been burrowed into by ground hogs and several bones dragged to the surface. The discovery of the above facts makes interesting a prophecy uttered years ago.

Thomas Watt was the neighborhood drunkard. His children ran wild as colts and but little more clothed. His worthlessness and depravity aroused the indignation of his neighbors, and particularly of an old woman who it was said, had the gift of divination.

She remonstrated with him, and upon his failure to heed her advice pronounced a curse upon him. She prophesied he would die of violence and his bones would not find repose in the grave. Thomas Watt was drowned while in an intoxicated condition in attempting to cross a swollen stream.

Now this latter part of the dismal prophecy has received literal fulfillment the old woman, who is yet alive and in the divination business, is greatly feared and her power as a fortune teller receives much credence.

A SURPRISE.

Last evening, February 23, a large delegation of the Cleveland Progressive Lyceum convened at Dr. Bodifield's, and from there marched in a body to the home of Thomas A. Black, 319 Huntington street, and took possession of him and his household. He was completely surprised, but Mrs. Black had known of it for a week or more. Whoever said a woman could not keep a secret? The surprise was increased when Mr. Bellows, leader of the lyceum, attacked the host with a presentation speech, and tendered him, in behalf of his many friends, an elegant new smoking coat (albeit he does not smoke) as a slight token of their appreciation of his faithful and generous devotion to the cause, and his courage manifest in the effort to reinstate the society work and lecture course in the city. Next Mrs. Cogswell presented to Mrs. Black, in behalf of the lyceum, a beautiful, artistically decorated cushion and little speeches and big ideas were exchanged, social hilarity and prophetic impressions of the work to be done, all sweetened with fruit and nut candy, music and warblings by Mr. Weimar, and "something sweet to think of" fixed in each memory. Thomas Lees read a letter from the advertising agent of the Plain Dealer, which satisfactorily reconciled the matter of which I wrote last week. It was, they say, a misapprehension on their part, in classing the meetings with the sensational advertising of so-called clairvoyant mediums, which they considered improper to associate in the church column. And who can blame them? The business of finding out domestic secrets, lost lovers, how to win the affections of the opposite sex, charm away enemies, draw lottery prizes, etc., does not belong with the educational work of Spiritualism any more than it does to the church.

LYMAN C. HOWE.

JOINED THE CATHOLICS.

To the Editor:—I see in your paper of February 6th, 1897, a short article in regard to Dr. T. L. Nichols, and knowing there is much interest in both the Doctor and his good wife, I write you.

Dr. Nichols and wife came here to my home on a visit of some six weeks, from New York. They were very fine and intelligent people, in fact much more so, than the common stock that goes to make up the world, both being clever writers, and good reasoners, and kind, generous, whole-souled people. Their visit was received with delight.

The writer was then ten years old, and is now fifty-two years. I have never forgotten the old friends. We had one letter from them after they went to London, England, and have never heard from them since. We knew they had joined the Catholics. It was their final destruction. It was brought about by lying spirits.

They did not know their guides would lie. It is the same old story over again. I have the pictures of both in a good state of preservation, taken in New York. Copies could be taken of them if anyone so desired. Trusting this will reach other friends through your excellent paper. WM. C. ADAMS.

Rochester, Mich.

FANATICISM.

Submitted to The Progressive Thinker as an example of the fanaticism toward which Christianity is tending, even in this age of the advancement and freedom of thought:

"The Bible to be used at McKinley's inaugural will be the gift of the African Methodist Episcopal church. It is now being printed in Cincinnati by the Methodist book publishing house. It will be bound and lined with silk with a dedicatory inscription on the inside. On the outside there will be a gold plate in the form of a shield on which the name of the president, the date, the name of the donors, etc., will be engraved. The Bible will be enclosed in a box made of native Ohio wood and gold mounted."

SPECIAL READING NOTICES.

Mothers will find "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" the best to use for children while teething. An old and well tried remedy.

Valuable Books and Pamphlets.

We have on hand a limited number of copies of the various writings and lectures of Mrs. Maria M. King, whose name ranks high in the list of Spiritualist authors, for profundity in philosophic thought. Her elucidations of various questions pertaining to the science and philosophy of Spiritualism, as well as the related field of natural science, are truly remarkable for their depth and clearness. These books and pamphlets constitute of themselves a noble Spiritual library, of sufficient intrinsic value to worthily engage the study and thought of the wisest students in spiritual science.

Although slightly shop-worn, they are in good condition, and we offer them at reduced rates, as follows:

The Principles of Nature, as Discovered in the Development and Structure of the Universe. Material and Spiritual Magnetic Forces. Laws of Spiritual Manifestations and Mediumship. Spiritual Planes and Spheres. Given inspirationally, by Mrs. Maria M. King. In three volumes, 8vo. A remarkable work; among the greatest in the literature of Spiritualism. Price reduced from $1.75 to $1.25 per volume. Postage 12 cents.

PAMPHLETS.

The Spiritual Philosophy versus Diabolism. Two lectures by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Mediumship. A chapter of Experiences. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10 cents.

God the Father, and the Man the Image of God. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

What Is Spiritualism? and Shall Spiritualists Have a Creed? Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

Social Evils: Their Causes and Cure. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

The Brotherhood of Man, and What Follows from It. Two lectures. By Mrs. Maria M. King. Price reduced from 25 cents to 20 cents.

PUBLICATIONS

— OF —

HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.

This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.

Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.

The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.

English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

Containing the latest investigations and discoveries and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.

This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.

A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 30 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.

By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.

For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents, Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.

For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

NEW OCCASIONS

A Magazine of Social Progress.

EDITED BY FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS.

The world is on the threshold of vast social changes. Progress is about to sunder the chains which have bound it. The next forward step will be just that which the average intelligence of a nation makes possible. Revolutions are the pulse beats of progress. The coming revolution should be one of intelligence; it should be one of peace. In that hope and in that belief NEW OCCASIONS opens its pages to a discussion of live questions. It is bound by no creed, and desires only to reach nearer to the truth. MONTHLY, 64 PAGES with handsome cover.

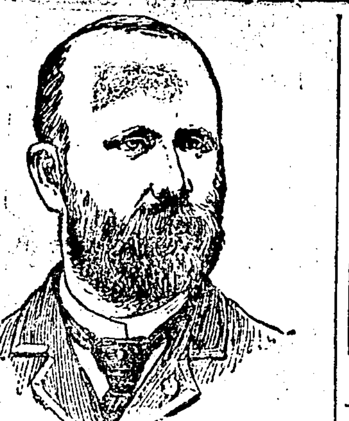
ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION $1.00: SINGLE COPIES 10 CENTS.

Sold by all Progressive Newsdealers.

WANTED the address of every active reformer. We have thousands of pamphlets on free silver, direct legislation, government banks, etc., for distribution. Sample package mailed for six cents.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO., Pubs., 56 Fifth Avenue, Chicago.

HEALTH AND POWER.



A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

THE EVERLASTING GOSPEL.

A COMPILATION OF THE LECTURES given by the Spirit Band through the mediumship of Mrs. Magdalena Kline. This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems, written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. Their tone is excellent and their spirit good; and even though one may find some ideas that differ from those he has held, yet he will find much to please, benefit and instruct. The reverence with which Jesus is mentioned will please many, although the ideas advanced concerning Jesus and Christianity are not after the orthodox standard. The book contains 488 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

BEYOND THE GATES.

By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps. A highly entertaining work. Price $1.00.

FORSTER, DR. W. M.

THE NOTED

MEDICAL CLAIRVOYANT

OF THE PACIFIC COAST,

Will send a free diagnosis and terms for treatment to all who will send their name and address—in their own handwriting—with postage stamp for reply.

"The Pacific Coast Spiritualist" of Dec. 30, 1893, says of Dr. Forster:—

"Since his coming here he has made himself highly respected and beloved for his benevolent work, his humanitarian ideas and practices, and his straightforward course of integrity and honor."

"Dr. W. M. Forster, California's noted clairvoyant physician, is receiving commendations from far and near over his remarkable success as a healer."—Philosophical Journal.

Address,

DR. W. M. FORSTER,

1059 Market Street, - San Francisco, Cal. 333

A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR.

If SICK or AILING, send a lock of your hair, name, age, sex, leading symptom, four cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address

DR. J. C. BATDORF,

Dept. F., Grand Rapids, Mich. 358tf

ASTONISHING OFFER.

Send three two-cent stamps, lock of hair, name, age, sex, one leading symptom, and your disease will be diagnosed free by spirit power.

MRS. DR. DOBSON-BARKER,

SAN JOSE, CAL., Box 132 346tf

THOS. E. ADDY, 133 SOUTH BROADWAY, Aurora, Ill., trance, test and business medium. Sittings daily. Send 25 cents silver and 2-cent stamp for a recognized test from your spirit friends. 376tf

YOUR FUTURE WELFARE BY THE STARS. Horoscopes, questions, opinions, advice, etc. Send date of birth to T. ARCHIBALD, Westside, Santa Clara, Cal. 380

READ WHAT MR. ARROWSMITH, OF LOUISville, Ky., says: "I had readings from all noted mediums, but St. Omer Briggs' readings surpasses them all. All her predictions came true." Consult the celebrated psychometrist and seer, MARGUERITE ST. OMER BRIGGS, 738 Richmond St., Cincinnati, O. Readings $1 and $2, with stamps. 381

MRS. CAROLINE DREWS, GERMAN TRANCE and healing medium, has removed to 671 N. Leavitt street. Services 2:30 p. m., Sundays. 381 0

$1 Pays You a Big $50 Doctor Bill.

Dr. C. D. Farmer, clairvoyant healer through the power of Jesus and our God. Send $1, your name and date of birth for five weeks' treatment. For this small sum, can you afford to pass it by? Write and send a 2-cent stamp. Address Dr. C. D. Farmer, Petoskey, Mich. No. 39 West Mitchell street. 380

DR. J. S. LOUCKS,

Of Shirleyville, Mass., and his band of powerful ancient spirits are effecting the most wonderful cures that have been recorded and are so acknowledged. By his clear knowledge of your diseases, aided by his marvelous spirit forces combined with his magnetic remedies, will convince the most skeptical of his wonderful power to heal the sick. Try him. Send him sex, age, name, lock of hair, and four 2-cent stamps, and he will send a diagnosis of your case free. He doesn't want any leading symptoms. Address DR. J. S. LOUCKS, Shirleyville, Massachusetts. 384

INVALIDS

WHO WILL SEND FOUR CENTS IN stamps, their disease, or symptoms, will receive pamphlet and advice FREE to cure themselves without drugs. The THOMAS BATTERY COMPANY, Cardington, Ohio tf

PSYCHOMETRY, CONSULT WITH Prof. A. B. Severance in all matters pertaining to practical life, and your spirit-friends. Send lock of hair, or handwriting, and one dollar. Will answer three questions free of charge. Send for circulars. Address, 710 Prairie street, Milwaukee, Wis. 382tf

MRS. ELLA M. DOLE.

This medium, who is clairvoyant, clairaudient, psychometric and prophetic, can be consulted at No. 1680 North Clark street. Engagements can be made by letter. 340tf

UP TO DATE CHEMISTRY OF LIFE AND GOOD HEALTH.

A powerful and well-educated intuitional healer, who teaches and cures the sick.

Send address, lock of hair, sex, age, whether married or single, location of two leading pains, and two 3-cent stamps for free diagnosis to

DR. J. H. RANDALL,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 378

MRS. D. HASENCLEVER, 684 MADISON STREET. Test and trumpet circle every Tuesday at 3 and 8 o'clock. 25 cents. Materializing seance Wednesdays and Saturdays at 8. Independent slate-writing daily. 381

F. CORDEN WHITE,

Trance, Test and Business Medium. Sittings daily, 3058 Calumet avenue, corner Thirty-first street. Flat 9. Chicago, Ill. 371tf

MRS. L. PACKER, 750 W. VAN BUREN. CLAIRvoyant, psychometry, business medium. Three reasonable questions answered by mail, with stamp, 25 cents. 380

IF YOU ARE SICK

with any form of disease, send ten cents (silver or stamps) to Dr. Craig, 1346 Market street, San Francisco, Cal., and he will send you a trial treatment of a revealed vegetable tablet. They will positively cure any disease, including stomach, liver or kidney trouble; also rheumatism and diseases of the nervous system. Testimonials will be furnished from people who have been permanently cured with one trial treatment. 377

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

The well-known Psychometrist and Business Medium. Readings personally or by letter $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered by mail for 25 cents. Magnetic treatment given at her residence, or at home of the patient. 67 Thirty-third street, near Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, Ill. 377tf

A GENEROUS OFFER.

Chronic Diseases a Specialty. Send five 2-cent stamps, age, sex, lock of hair, full name, State and county. You will get a correct diagnosis FREE, with advice and low terms for treatment. Thirty years in practice; nearly every patient cured. Also as a seer of marvelous power, he will answer six questions for 50 cents. Life reading one dollar,

DR. S. W. FISKE,

53 Oak Street. - - Norwich Conn. 380

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents.

THOMAS PAINE'S Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old, and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cents.

MIND READING AND BEYOND.

By Wm. A. Hovey. 200 pages, with illustrations of the subjects treated upon. Price $1.25.

INTERVIEWS WITH SPIRITS.

By Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. Price 50 cents.

Self-Contradictions of the Bible.

One hundred and forty-four propositions, theological, moral, historical and speculative; each proved affirmatively and negatively by quotations from Scripture, without comment. Price 15 cents.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.

Have you promised yourself the rare pleasure of reading this beautiful work by the good, old-time writer, Hudson Tuttle? Price, 50 cents. Contains a fine portrait of the author. For sale at this office.

ASTROPATHY

THE ART OF HEALING UNDER PLANETARY LAW.

Something new and startling. This knowledge is from a higher source and is fully explained in the "ASTRAL GUIDE," which will be sent FREE to any address upon receipt of a two cent stamp for postage. Astrological students, Physicians, Healers, Nurses, Everybody MUST have the "Guide."

L. J. SHAFER, Chemist,

31 Calkins Ave., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

AN INSTITUTE OF REFINED THERAPEUTICS, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 253 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Diplomas granted under either the New Jersey or California charter. Send stamp for catalogue to

422 E. D. BABBITT. M. D. LL.D., Dean

A WONDERFUL OFFER

. . BY . . .

DR. W. F. LAY, Clairvoyant,

One of the most successful healers and diagnosticians living. The doctor has letters from all over the United States, Canada, Australia and Europe, telling of the marvelous results, after all hope in other sources have been given up, being speedily cured under his treatment. Nervous and chronic diseases of every character, peculiar to both men and women, are, by the aid of his wonderful and extraordinary power, cured.

The doctor has never failed in a correct diagnosis of any case, many times it being causes that had baffled the most renowned physicians, but was readily explained through his wonderful clairvoyant and clairaudient powers.

Each case receives the attention of himself and band, also remedies for individual case. Send three 2-cent stamps, lock of hair, age, sex, and one symptom, and by return mail you will receive a full and accurate description of your case and any advice regarding it. Through persecution on account of his marvelous success the doctor graduated in a regular school, therefore being an M. D.

Sufferers, you that have failed to find relief, try once more and be convinced of Dr. Lay's powers and ability. Address

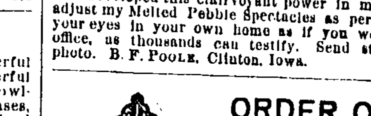
342tf DR. W. F. LAY, Box 918, Chicago, Ill.

HELIOCENTRIC ASTROLOGY.

A book containing instructions for making a heliocentric horoscope, together with a chart which gives the position of the planets from 1825 to 1916. The most complete work on this system ever published. Adapted for beginners or professors. One can cast and read a horoscope in half an hour. For sale by

FREDERICK WHITE, O. O.M.,

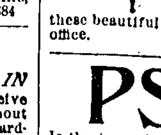
502 Fifth Ave., S. - Minneapolis, Minn.



Send the date of your birth and $1 and receive book and chart with your horoscope ready to read. Mention this paper when writing. 344tf

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two



Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease, also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles.

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE, Clinton, Iowa.

ORDER OF THE MAGI.

A New Badge in solid gold with blue and black enamel, with the pyramids, obelisk and sun's rays in gold. Every Mystic should have one of these beautiful emblems. Price $2. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

CHRONIC DISEASES

A SPECIALTY.

Send your age, name in full in your own handwriting, and I will diagnose your disease

FREE OF CHARGE!

Enclose three 2-cent stamps and address

J. S. COOPER, M. D

Chillicothe, Mo. 384

MRS. EMMA D. BUSH,

PSYCHIC READER, CLAIRVOYANT AND CLAIRAUDIENT. Hours: 9 to 12 a. m. Room 1408 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill. 382

OCCULT FORCES!

A wonderful book containing valuable matter of intense interest to all who desire in any way to benefit their condition in life, a marvel of condensed thought and brilliant ideas pointing a new way to success in all undertakings through the mastery of subtile forces.

Develop your latent powers and accomplish what would otherwise be impossible. This knowledge not only increases personal influence but fortifies one against designing and unprincipled persons. Price of book 30c. or sent free for addresses of friends likely to [illegible] in it and 10c in stamps. [illegible] free.

OCCULT PUB. CO., 3574 Vincennes Avenue, P. T., Chicago, Ill. 410

The Blind Medium

Will send by letter life reading of past and future, with dates. Mail lock of hair and one dollar. Prof. H. W. Sinclair. 82 Adams avenue, Detroit, Mich. 382

MANSILL'S ALMANAC

— OF —

PLANETARY METEOROLOGY.

Weather Forecasters' Guide and New System of Science for 1897. It contains a planetary chart of each month, showing the position of the planets in the different houses in the Zodiac.

BY RICHARD MANSILL,

Author of "Geology and Microscopy Illustrated," "Cohesive Attraction and the Formation of World," "Universal Change in Natural Elements," etc. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED.

A POWERFUL HEALER AND PSYCHOMETRIST.

Send address, lock of hair and two leading symptoms for diagnosis and remit two 2-cent stamps for return.

DR. M. E. SELLEN,

Independent Medical College, People's Institute, Chicago, Ill. 383tf

DR. JULIA A. YALE.

Twenty years practice of Medicine and Magnetics. Her band of spirit healers is unsurpassed. Cures when others fail. No case that cannot be relieved. Consultation free. 48 S. May street, Chicago, Ill. Letters inclosing stamps answered. 380

YOUR FUTURE prospects revealed by astral science. Good and bad days, months and years accurately calculated by Professor Geo. W. Walrond, Astrologer, Denver, Colo. 390

Permanent Medial Development.

Send a stamped, addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, 339 Greene avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for terms, reading, circulars, for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration, healing. The inspirational teachings by correspondence are just what you need. Endorsed by hundreds of students. Psychiscopes $2. 379tf

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS AND HOW WE ASCEND THEM.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

THE AGE OF REASON.

By Thomas Paine. Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.

VOL. 15. CHICAGO, ILL., SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1897. NO. 381.

A CRITICAL STUDY OF OBSESSION.

DELIRIUM ENCOURAGED BY FIENDS—SOME OF ITS EXTRAVAGANCES ARE FAIRLY ACCOUNTED FOR — TREMENS TREATED SPIRITUALLY AND BY HYPNOTISM, RESULTING IN A SALUTARY AND PERMANENT CURE — EXPERIMENTS WITH SUBMERGED CONSCIOUSNESS—MAN A PSYCHIC TRINITY.

"One of the most interesting patients I have had—I mean from a purely scientific view—was a victim of delirium tremens," continued Dr. Grace, in the Cincinnati Enquirer. "He was a large, strong, determined man, stubborn and intractable; and without the aid of hypnotism I could have done nothing for him. He uttered bloody threats against everybody and would have inflicted bodily harm upon some people had he been left without restraint. Especially fierce was he in denunciation of his wife, whom he fondly loved when mentally healthful. In his deranged state he charged her with every crime denounced in the decalogue, and with conspiracy to deprive him of life for the sake of enjoying his property without impediment; and he threatened her with death at the first opportunity he might obtain for dispatching her. Nobody believed that under any conditions would he do her harm, but one day, when she inconsiderately entered the room, he drew a revolver from beneath the mattress and fired point blank at her head. The ball just grazed her scalp, leaving a welt as large as a man's finger, whereupon she was seized by friends and bundled out of the room, and she did not return to the presence of her lord and master till he was declared less dangerous.

"In one of his worst paroxysms I took control of this man, Luke Hasewell, and threw him into a trance, and while he held such connection with his normal state as to mentally continue his fight with enemies innumerable I employed his secondary self at reading and discussing the news of the day as sanely and systematically as the most thorough digester of newspapers. It was a curious medley of insane acts and sane conversation, the hands and feet doing that of which the psychic tone of the person took no cognizance."

"Do you think the acts were as independent of each other as those performed by two different individuals?" I asked.

"Yes, quite so; and that one was the normal man and the other the secondary, or submerged, man, always ready to come to the surface when summoned by the proper means. I found the experiment so interesting that when the normal mood changed to something of the comic order I forced by suggestion the secondary self into a serious vein, and the man was laughing boisterously and weeping as if in the very depths of sadness at the same time. I readily discovered the dividing line between the two moods, but it is difficult to describe, just as it is difficult to comprehend it. The two degrees of mental apprehension are as distinct as they could be in any two persons, and they remind the observer of a beckoning motion with one hand, while the other menaces with blows those who approach; or the complaisance of a mood co-ordinate with another which opposes everything and everybody. You say these conditions are unnatural, and I reply that they grow out of a law of nature heretofore neglected, but now found to be of great moment. In the new psychology they are set down as of the first importance, and I feel assured that their cultivation will develop features of still greater and probably unanticipated value.

"At my third interview with Hasewell I sought to throw him into the deeper trance, but without success. The effort, however, was not barren of good, for it led me to a discovery, to wit: That the influence opposing my ministrations was the enemy of Hasewell's wife and longed for her destruction. Words were dropped which forced this conclusion, and I resolved to dislodge the enemy. It was a long and difficult job, made so because the opposing spirit was strongly intrenched and able

TO POSSESS THE MAN AT WILL.

I could hear the threats of this demon, like an echo in the brain of the victim, who was startled for a time and then made unmanageable by them. When this condition supervened I was compelled to desist and awaken the patient, otherwise he would do things unimaginable. His tertiary familiar was not simply indecent; he was gross, foul, abominable. Of his words I shrink from the recitation of a single example, but I may venture Hasewell's reply to one of his propositions. In effect it was in these words:

"Surrender to you my wife! You have lied about her, I find, and now you want her damned in your company. No, no, no! All hell shall not make me think wrongful of her again.'

"These words were interspersed with horrible expletives, and supplemented by a fight for mastery, compelling me to close the interview. The idea came to me slowly that in this third estate Hasewell was comparatively sane; first, on account of his radical change of views regarding his wife; secondly, because his conversations with me were more connected and sensible than on any other occasion; thirdly, for an hour succeeding the deep trance he was quiet, and apparently thoughtful, as if striving to recall his wandering wits. I worked under the impression made by these incidents, and called in the kind of help they evidently suggested. A spirit medium in whom I had strong faith was brought to my assistance for the purpose of discovering the various powers that held Hasewell in control, and we set at the task of this investigation systematically and laboriously.

"It was found that in his normal state he was surrounded by epileptic friends ruined by strong drink while in the mortal form, and their craving for intoxicants was made the occasion of fierce assaults upon our maniac, because he refused or was unable to appease their thirst throught his organism. They were attracted into his aura by the alcoholic fumes permeating it, and they drank the breath of their victim with an avidity only equaled by the toper in partaking of a long-deferred dram. But it was not exceeded by the ecstacy of such inferior devils as took it at second, third, fourth and fifth hand—the stronger infernals taking it from the fountain head and imparting it to the next, who, in turn, after enjoying the momentary sensation breathed it into his neighbor, and so on the flavor of whisky was extracted from a mortal and diffused through its slaves in hades.

"Can imagination picture anything more repulsive? Here was a man in the prime of life, strong, hearty and capable of much good work, compelled to entertain friends of the lowest order to make recompense for his voluntary self-abasement. Black spirits and white, so withered and wan and wild of mien as to libel the merest semblance of things in human shape—this is the report of the medium—hovered about Hasewell like vultures in search of carrion, and fought each other for a draught of the poison which ladened his breath. They beset him on every side, intent upon that which fed their demoralized appetites when in mortal form, and now craved with an intensity infinitely multiplied. I subsequently learned that the root of Hasewell's paroxysms was the constant irritation inflicted by these demon topers, who as a penance were compelled to unceasingly long for the stimulus to which they were accustomed through habit; and his inattention to matters and things in his visible surroundings was forced by the persistent annoyance of these invisible pests.

"I destroyed the power of the entire hosts through hypnotic and other psychic appliances by the adoption of a heroic method. It occurred one day when the medium informed me that the whiskey fiends were unusually numerous and persistent, and all of Hasewell's strength was employed in the attempt to drive them away. By the exercise of all my power I threw the man into the deeper trance, and then I said:

"'Luke, you are followed everywhere by fiends who inhabit the earth, the air and the sea, and they seem to be among the choicest denizens of hell. They seek your life.'

"'Yes; and do you see them, too, Doc? Nobody would believe me before, but here they are now, five of 'em come to give me a fight,' and a fierce struggle began. I did not permit it to continue, but called the man back to his elementary state with all speed.

"'Did you run from those devils?' I asked.

"'It seems so, but I didn't mean to do it. Something forced me away from 'em.'

"'Against your will?'

"'Shure's you live. Why Doc, I've thrashed a dozen at a time."

"Never before had I been able to connect the man's waking and hypnotic consciousness, and here was an important point gained by quick action.

"'I see none of the devils,' said I, 'but have positive evidence that they are there, and that you see them. A friend in whom I have unbounded confidence also sees them, and we have found a plan to drive them all away.'

"'Then do it, for God's sake. At times I've felt like lying down and letting 'em kill me, they're such a pester.'

"'Will you obey my directions strictly in every particular if I do this for you?'

"Yes, but act quickly, for more of them critters than I've ever seen are jumping on me now.' The medium confirmed this statement.

"I threw the man into an ordinary trance, suggesting pleasant surroundings and refined society. Immediately he was at peace.

"'What do you see now?' I asked.

"'Things are strange,' said he. 'There are many people here, ladies and gentlemen, that I don't know; perhaps friends of my wife; but where is Ruth?' meaning Mrs. Hasewell.

"Never before during his attack had he taken an interest in her whereabouts. We were gaining ground, especially as his tone was kindly.

A RIFT IN THE CLOUD.

"'Mrs. Hasewell is near at hand. Shall I call her?'

"'Yes.'

"The woman came with fear. She had not recovered from the shock of the pistol charge. Tremulously she pronounced the man's name:

"'Luke.'

"'Yes, Ruth.'

"'Are you better?'

"'Indeed I am. Doc. has found the devils nobody else could see, and he's driving 'em off.'

"'That's fortunate. So you do not see any more of them?'

"'Only one, and he don't come forward. Oh, I see; he's afraid of you.'

"'Of me?'

"'Yes, he's been lying about you, and is afraid he'll be punished. And he will be,' shouted the man, just ready to lapse into another paroxysm.

"I threw him into the deeper trance with little effort, and by suggestions induced him to beg his wife's pardon for shooting at her. Mrs. Hasewell was inclined to retire before his approaches, but I assured her there was no danger of a boisterous manifestation. He threw his arms around the woman's neck and cried bitterly.

"'It was not your husband that shot at you, Ruthy,' he shouted, 'but that devil, Wistar. You remember him, dear?'

"'But he is dead.'

"So he is. How could I make such a mistake? Oh, he said it was him, Wistar, and there's no doubt. He must have known who he was.'

"But they finally left the matter in uncertainty and recalled Hasewell back to elementary principles.

"'You've had a busy day,' I remarked, when he was fully awake.

"'Very,' he assented.

"You have been in a great many places and seen numerous people, most of them strange. You have effected a reconciliation with your wife, made necessary by the attempt of a devil guiding you to take her life. But you were the responsible person in this deed. You have also made me an important promise. Do you recall it?'

"Yes, to obey your directions when you drive all the devils off.'

"'In every particular?'

"'Yes.'

"'Do you see any devils now?'

"'No, but I hear 'em.'

"'What are they doing?'

"'Cursing you.' The medium confirmed this report.

"'Why cursing me?'

"'For getting Luke Hasewell out of their clutches. They're the worst drunkards you ever knew, and they sucked me dry every day and then threatened me with death if I didn't fill up again. I had to fill.'

"'Where did you get it?' Strict directions had been given against letting the man have a drop, yet it was known he was constantly under the influence of ardent—as well as other—spirits, and there was a problem involved. He glanced toward the window in one corner of his second floor room, and thither I went. Hanging outside, well secured from observation, was a basket painted to correspond with the color of the residence, and it contained three whisky bottles, one of which, holding two quarts, was full.

"'How have they been replenished from time to time?' I asked.

"'Ask me when and I can give a straight answer—in the night. If asked how and by whom, I can't answer, for I didn't see.'

"The insane inebriate I believe to be the most cunning person on earth. Hasewell felt the premonitions of his attack, knew from former experience that whisky would be denied him, and, as it afterward transpired, made arrangements with a dealer to keep a supply of full bottles in his basket till further orders. They were carried there in the night, and a ladder in the rear yard of the Hasewell place enabled the bearer to reach the place of deposit. The man had been soaked with whisky from the beginning, the fumes of the bottle imp always accompanied him, and 'how?' had mystified me and his attendants. He visited the window frequently in quest of 'fresh air,' and would allow no one to go with him on these occasions. Thus the riddle was out. Thus an unwitted sick man outwitted those who were supposed to have their wits about them and their bodies in health.

"'This is a very wrongful act,' said I with a show of offense. 'Had you striven in every way to defeat the work of your physician, you could not have done worse, and had I learned what you were at earlier in the case I would have abandoned it. You have done that which destroys my sympathy with you in your deplorable condition.'

"'Hold on, Doc,' he implored; 'don't make me feel any worse. There's no use of more whisky unless the devils come back, and you've driven 'em away, haven't you?

I'D HAVE BEEN DEAD

long ago if I'd had nothing for them, for they always said, "Whisky or death," and whisky it was, every time. D'ye suppose these critters came out of hell? I expect hell's just plumb full of drunken cusses that want nothing but whisky and fighting. Why, I've had regular knock-downs with more than a thousand of 'em, but I went under one day when old Mr. Beelzebub called. He took me by the nose and chin as slick as I'd handle a chicken, and sucked all the breath I'd oughter had to breathe with for the next two hours. Then he grumbled about the "weak drain" and hit me a thundering kick. I feel the remains of it sore'res round here now,' he concluded, rubbing his back.

"This statement regarding Beelzebub—if it really was that august person—was quite consistent with facts. I was hastily summoned to Hasewell's bedside one night, and upon arriving was informed that he had not breathed for near an hour. I discovered a slight respiration, but the condition was bad, indeed. Artificial means to inflate the lungs were adopted, and after long waiting they were successful. Upon regaining consciousness the man spoke of a pain in his back, and complained of it for several days afterward, averring that he had been brutally kicked. This claim was set down as a figment of a mind diseased.

"'You have had all the use and abuse of whisky you can have from this time forth forever,' said I. 'It has almost murdered you and your wife, made you the sport and tool of fiends, and a burden to yourself. No wonder the devil kicked you. He found you too servile. He is said to despise fools. No regrets would have been expressed if he had cropped your ears, for they are ridiculously long and cumbersome. In other words, you have been an incorrigible ass through all this sickness, and it is a miracle you are not dead.'

"'Hold on, Doc!' he interrupted; 'no game man fights a sick fellow, even with foul wind. I've promised to do as you say, and I reckon you know I'll mind pretty well. But fix things up in a little smoother talk.'

"I drew up a temperance pledge, which was signed by Hasewell and witnessed by three persons there present. The man was truthful, although rough, and I knew he would abide by this written undertaking, if he understood it.

"'Never under any conditions are you to take another drink of whisky or other ardent spirits,' said I, in explanation.

"'That's what the paper says,' he answered, 'and nobody can put his finger on a thing to show that Luke Hasewell ever went back on his own name. He won't begin any such trick now. But, Doc, one thing must be understood: The fellow that put the whisky in the basket mustn't be molested.'

"'He ought to be hung.'

"'Oh, no; he did that in friendship, and I needed the stuff more than you can think.'

"Hasewell sent back the full bottle to the purveyor, with word to supply no more. He recovered slowly, for the attack was severe, but he saw no more devils. Their temptation to visit him had been removed, and where there is no opportunity for either whisky or blood is not a congenial place for the arch fiend or his imps. Hasewell is today a sober, staid, prosperous citizen, and no one will be more surprised than he to find that his case has been referred to in this gathering as an illustration of that wonderful combination, Spiritualism and Hypnotism. T. P.

DEATH BEAUTIFUL.

ANOTHER EXPERIENCE OF A TRAVELER RETURNED FROM THE BORDERLAND—WELCOMED BY LOVED ONES WHO HAD GONE BEFORE.

In The Progressive Thinker of February 20, I read with great interest Rose Eva Angel's account of her experience, with her conditionat the end of a severe and dangerous illness.' I had read William Gray's article upon the same subject and had said to myself that it was a dark picture, and I thought how different his experience had been from mine when a loving and weeping wife had stood over me and asked me if I knew that I was dying, for my experience was that death out of earth life meant all that was beautiful.

My disease was of a nervous nature, and every nerve was held taut as a bowstring until tired nature gave out and a relaxation took place and I dropped into a condition of utter repose that was a heaven to my wornout body. Not a nerve quivered with pain, earth was lost to me, and the joys of another and a higher life were mine. I had found rest at last. A bright, supernal light surrounded me, that was glorious, the wife of my youth was with me, with a smile upon her angel face that told me of the joys of spirit life. Father and mother were there and they welcomed me to the home of the soul. My little ones were there, all in a spirit sense.

I suffered no more—I had passed that point and the peace that enveloped my soul was the peace that "passeth all understanding." I dwelt in a fairyland. Not a chill came over my body or my soul, but a heavenly warmth filled my whole being that came from a heaven of rest and quiet peace in the realms of a tropical summerland.

This taste of what my earthly friends called death was to me really a beautiful condition. No trouble, no care—nothing but rest—holy, quiet rest, wherein my very soul bathed in the light of the loved ones that had gone on before me.

So I can really say: "Oh Death, where is thy sting? Oh grave, where is thy victory?" To me, death out of earth life is only a birth from out of this old tired and wornout body, into joys and beauties of that better life one step nearer the realm of eternal light, and life, one step nearer the divine source of all life.

So we will be born from one spirit life up into the higher lines of soul life, and at each birth we will drop a portion of matter until at last man's soul will mingle with the ethereal soul life of the universe, and his soul will lose its individuality forever and in this manner all nature does its ceaseless work of one continued round. As the fog rises from old ocean and drifts to the mountain top and there falls in refreshing rain, and then starts back to the ocean again, so shall man's soul drift, and this eternal replenishing of the universal life-forces must go on forever and forever.

The Brahmin's trust in the great Father Spirit or the Great Oversoul is really inspiringly beautiful and grand to contemplate. It is as follows:

(Gunga is the sacred river, the Ganges and Kilatza is a sacred mountain in India.)

The snowflake that glistens at dawn on Kilatza,
Dissolved by the sunbeams descends to the plain,
There mingling with Gunga it flows to the ocean,
And lost in its waters returns not again—
It comes not, it goes not,
It comes not again.

On the rose leaf at dawning a dew-drop is shining,
Which later exhaled falls in nourishing rain,
Then rills back to Gunga through green fields meander
Till onward it flows to the ocean again—
It comes not, it goes not,
It comes not again.

A snowflake still whitens the peak of Kilatza,
But the snowflake of yesterday flows to the main,
At dawn on the rose leaf still glistens a dewdrop,
But the dewdrop of yesterday comes not again—
It comes not, it goes not,
It comes not again.

So the soul that is freed from the bondage of nature
Escapes from illusions of joy and of pain,
And pure as the flame that is lost in the sunbeam,
Ascends unto God and comes not again—
It comes not, it goes not,
It comes not again.

Buffalo, N. Y. J. W. DENNIS.

A STARTLING FACT.

The Progressive Thinker was the only Spiritualist paper that had the enterprise to publish Prof. Barrett's address before the National Association Convention of Spiritualists. We have his address, covering three pages, and five other fine addresses and articles, one by Col. Ingersoll, grouped in one paper, and we want to send out 1,000,000 of them. It is worth ten times its weight in gold.

Read the article on 5th page headed "Fifteen Cents."

Every one of his opinions appears to himself to be written with sunbeams. —Watts.

Passion is the drunkenness of the mind.—South.

POWER OF THOUGHT.

ITS POTENCY FOR GOOD OR ILL CLEARLY SET FORTH—RELATION OF THOUGHT TO SPIRITUAL GROWTH—AND TO HEALTH AND DISEASE.

One of the most powerful agencies in the universe that wields an influence for both good and evil, is thought—a something which the physical senses cannot perceive but which has a marvelous effect upon the physical body, inasmuch as mind affects matter, and thought is the production of the mind. The mind is the machine which does the thinking, the thought the work which the machine turns out, and the individual that can operate this machine for himself will produce a much better class of work than the one who depends upon others to run it for him.

That is the difference between those we term strong-minded and weak-minded. The one guides his machine with a practical hand, allowing no one to tamper with it; while the other allows his machine (or mind) to be governed largely by those with whom he comes in contact. Backward and forward—swayed by this one and that one—he is indeed to be pitied; but he need not remain in this wavering mental condition if he chooses to outgrow it.

You can train your mind to do your own thinking if you will, instead of depending upon some one else to do it for you. Take some of the problems of the day—some special study—then set the mind to work upon it and begin to think. Exercise the mind as you would any part of the body that you wished to develop, for unless it is cultivated and forced to work, the productions of it will be weak.

When you can once guide this wonderful machine, see that it runs in the right direction and turns out a class of work that can be utilized. It has been said that we will be called upon to give an account for every idle thought, and while that is not literally true, yet there is more of truth in it than many suppose. Idle, useless thoughts are a positive hindrance to mental growth. They take up the time that should be devoted to the formulation of thoughts that would be a benefit to the thinker as well as to others.

I am well aware that the mind requires at times rest and recreation from sober, serious study; but there are too many that leave it in a state of continual rest, and I wish to urge upon those the necessity of giving it some healthy, beneficial work to do. The mind that is filled with frivolous thoughts is like a garden overrun with weeds; instead of cultivating these useless weeds, tear them out and cultivate plants that will yield a harvest of knowledge and wisdom. Branch out in different directions and learn to think, and also learn to control your thoughts.

Kind, loving, charitable thoughts are like beautiful, fragrant flowers that send out their perfume to refresh and cheer the weary passer-by; while harsh, bitter thoughts—thoughts full of revenge and passion—go swiftly on their unjust missions and oftimes crush the poor victim towards whom they are directed; but they rebound with added force and strike the one that sent them out. Those that are in the habit of giving way to feelings of rage and sending out thoughts of bitterness and hatred would do well to remember the old adage: "Curses, like chickens, come home to roost;" for it is an actual truth that, if you send out an evil, unjust thought, it will return to you again and add one more link to the chain that binds you in a state of mental servitude. If mortals could but witness the baneful effects of evil thoughts, they would stand aghast, appalled, and it would surely teach them a needed lesson—one that would cause them in future to refrain from sending them out. Many times you condemn some poor, weak soul that is mentally unbalanced, for giving way to temptation, especially if you dislike him, and no doubt you would be greatly astonished were you told that you had partly caused his downfall by making him a target for your unjust thoughts, and thus weakening his already weak mentality. But such is often the case, and more than that—many a young and once innocent girl, if she but knew it, could trace the very beginning of her downward career to the evil effect upon her sensitive nature of the base, seething thoughts of passion that were directed towards her.

I would that every human soul could realize the damnable effect of these thoughts. That is a strong expression to use, but it needs a strong term to express the evil that is being wrought by sending out broadcast over the land vicious, impure thoughts. It not only harms others, but it attracts to yourself low, degraded, earthbound spirits, that take the same delight in causing misery and shame that they did when they walked the earth in mortal form, and ere you know it they will obtain such a hold upon you that you cannot escape from them, and after you pass to the other side it may take years before you can outgrow their influence and begin to progress.

If you would be surrounded by pure influences, think pure thoughts; but as you value your happiness either in this life or the life to come, do not allow an evil thought to gain a foot-hold within your mind. If such a thought comes, crush it out instantly and exert every power you possess to think only such thoughts as you would be willing to have the world read and see.

Do not imagine for one moment that thoughts will remain unseen. Many clairvoyants have their spiritual sight so quickened that they can readily perceive the aura that surrounds each person, and by the color of it determine upon the nature of the thoughts. Thus, white denotes thoughts of purity, spirituality; a beautiful blue, thoughts of a truthful and devotional nature; pink or a faint rose-red indicates pure love, pure affection; the deep red, tinged with brown, shows passion and brutal anger; a pale yellow denotes thoughts on the intellectual plane, knowledge, wisdom; and the deep orange indicates selfishness and greed. Thus will your thoughts color the aura—the mist-like cloud that surrounds you, and by that color will you be judged and known for just what you are. The nature of the thoughts determines the character every time, and you cannot make a practice of entertaining low, degraded thoughts without your nature becoming correspondingly low and degraded.

In just the same proportion that evil thoughts produce harm, so will good pure thoughts go out on missions of love and mercy, strengthening the weak, uplifting the fallen, and acting as a tonic for all humanity.

It has been proved that thought will create as well as destroy disease. Bad thoughts vitiate the blood and the entire system, and a person cannot be well that continually fills the mind with low, vicious thoughts. Sooner or later he must pay the penalty.

The subject of thought opens up before us a broad field in which we can wander at will. There is no limitation to be placed upon it. You can imprison the body but you cannot confine a thought; it will go out on its errand of good or evil. And the nature of it will determine whether it will return a blessing or a curse to the one that sent it out. When people come to understand the importance of right thinking, we will have a healthier and better class in every respect. "As a man thinketh, so is he." MRS. IRENE GAY.

Flint, Mich.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

SPIRITUALISTS' MASS-MEETING AND CONVENTION AT MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Mass-Meeting and Convention called by President Aspinwall and the directors of the Northwestern Camp Association was a decided success from beginning to end. All meetings and societies united in one grand, harmonious gathering, except Mrs. Pruden, and the president and board of directors desire to sincerely thank all those noble, disinterested workers who could for the sake of harmony and the general good, lay aside personal interests and minister to the hungry souls seeking for a knowledge of the life immortal.

Professor H. D. Barrett—that noble, generous soul—was with us during the entire three days, taking part in all meetings and dispensing the bread of life, which was received by the multitudes with great joy. In thanking him we also desire to thank his uncle, J. O. Barrett, for his assistance in giving out words of wisdom and knowledge from his storehouse of accumulated thought through many years of experience as teacher, thinker and philosopher.

Those veteran workers Mrs. Lepper and Mrs. Lowell, were active and always ready to aid and assist wherever and whenever called upon. If it is not trespassing too much upon your space, I wish to add to those mentioned the names of the gallant band of speakers and mediums who took part in the exercises, and who are competent to conduct services and give test of the immortality of life, in any section or locality where they may be called as public workers—Mrs. E. Brauer, Mrs. Bessie Aspinwall, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Tryon, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Vaughn, Mrs. Shaft, Misses Victoria and Minnie Sunberg, Mrs. Knudson, Mrs. Miner, Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Gould, all taking part in the grand test seance of Sunday afternoon.

The Washington Hall was crowded, and I do not exaggerate when I say that hundreds were turned away unable to find standing room. In the evening an overflow meeting was organized in another hall in the same building capable of seating about 150, but both halls failed to accommodate the anxious ones desiring to gain admission, and we were forced to turn many away; and we have decided to either build or engage some hall that will hereafter accommodate those seeking to gain a knowledge of the continuity of life, which Spiritualists only are able to give.

I do not want to forget to mention the soul-inspiring words from Professor Caton which electrified the audience, from which the applause was loud and long continued. We feel that much good has been done, and that it will advance our cause to hold these united mass-meetings as often as once in three months. We shall soon open the campaign for our summer camp, and we are assured of a half-fare rate. Would like to hear from all phenomenal mediums who desire or are expecting to be with us. S. N. ASPINWALL.

NEXT WORLD INTERVIEWED.

To the Editor:—Many thanks for your promptness in sending me the "Next World Interviewed." In less than forty-eight hours after I sent in my renewal for The Progressive Thinker, I received the book, and to say that we are pleased with it would be expressing it very mildly. It is a work that should be in every family; not only should it be read by Spiritualists, but by all who aspire to a higher and better life. I am glad that it is so easily within the power of all, rich or poor, who are anxious to become acquainted with the grand philosophy of Spiritualism. There is no work that has come within my knowledge, that contains a higher conception of our philosophy than the Next World Interviewed, and for so small amount of money. It would be very cheap at $1.

Our little society is still holding its own. We meet the 1st and 3rd Sundays of each month. Our Young Folks progressive Lyceum is the most interesting feature of our work. We are yet encumbered with a small amount of debt on our hall; soon as that is free, we will then apply our energies towards getting good speakers to help out the cause. Dr. D. D. Clark and wife, are now laboring with the friends in Metropolis, Ill. We expect them here within a few days to assist us. The doctor is an eloquent speaker and is very earnest in the work, and Mrs. Clark is a very highly and finely developed psychometrist. Both have done noble work in this end of this State, for our cause. Their field of labor is largely in the Southern States. Long may they both live to continue the good work.

Villa Ridge, Ill. W. H. LEIDIGH.

INSTRUCTIVE.

EXPERIENCES OF A CLAIRVOYANT—LESSONS DEDUCED THEREFROM—ANIMAL AND MIDGET PRESENTATIONS — THEIR SIGNIFICANCE.

For the last two years, through the kindness of my spirit friends, I have been going through a course of development as clairvoyant and some other mental phases.

Wonderful things have been presented to my spirit eye. I have seen many forms of animals—elephants, lions, tigers, bears, dogs, cats, etc., also those midgets—miniature human and animal forms—talked about by Alcinous, E. J. Bowtell and others.

It strikes me that great minds may sometimes get erroneous ideas and silly notions in their heads.

From my own experience, mostly, I think that the fact of clairvoyants' seeing forms of animals is no proof that the lower animals are immortal, and those midget forms appearing to clairvoyants are no proof that such beings exist. The idea that they may be souls waiting for fleshly embodiment seems preposterous.

It is not probable that the power of seeing with the spirit eye, of any two persons, has been unfolded exactly in the same way. At a certain stage of my unfoldment, representations of animals, fully formed, apparently, as natural as life, were presented. That stage having passed, I have not seen them since.

I have seen those forms created gradually, but quickly, made up from cloud-like appearances, and sometimes the heads only were shown. Heads and faces of animals were pictured upon every object my eyes rested upon—not exactly pictured, either, because they were not surface representations.

Those forms would change position, eyes would move naturally, and show prominently and brilliantly, and to all appearance were real living animals.

Heads of animals would often change to human, and heads and faces of persons would change to animals, and all appear as real and natural as life itself.

Sometimes a large eye, only, would be sent up to my face, and the eye would expand, and appear like a large mirror; by looking into or through this transparency I would see an indescribably wonderful panorama. In this manner I have been shown representations of the spirit-world, and the condition of different races and nationalities of people. That I might know what nationality of people was to be represented, the animals of the country would first be shown.

Faces of persons often changed to represent other persons, and sometimes there would be many faces having the same likeness. At first faces were seen only in the dark, or by closing the eyes; afterward, in the light, pictured on walls, windows and other objects.

Sometimes a lone eye would be visible, which would creep along the wall; after awhile that lone eye, enveloped partially in a cloud, would leave the wall and traverse space, all the time gazing fixedly into my eyes and would approach nearly to my face.

As sight progressed a large, brilliant face would be fixed upon the wall or other object, and a mirror-like appearance spread before my eyes, and a miniature likeness of the face on the wall, partially enveloped in clouds which varied in color and brilliancy, like gold dust, diamond dust or smoke more or less dense. These forms would float around, approach and recede, and perform many gyrations.

Sometimes many faces would be stationed on the wall as a background or base, and their miniature counterparts form a sea of faces, all with bright eyes gazing into mine.

Looking off at a distance, across the street, or at the clouds, faces would correspond in size to the distance. Looking into space away off, I would see hundreds of faces with bright eyes sailing towards me. I have been taught many lessons by seeing the panorama produced, and often I am not able to interpret, the scenes produced being entirely beyond my comprehension.

I do not pose as a medium. I am not yet prepared, and may never be. I sometimes see real faces and recognize them. It is clear to me that clairvoyants may see many things that are produced by their controls simply for the purpose of unfolding sight, or to teach them valuable lessons.

I seldom attempt to tell what I see. It cannot be told. I can say only, it is wonderful. I am never unconscious. I can carry on conversation and at the same time be viewing scenes produced by spirits, far too grand to describe.

While I claim that the fact of clairvoyants' seeing animals is no proof that animals are immortal, yet I think they may be. If they are, it does not follow as a matter of course, that spirits should see them. There may be an animal plane or sphere. Those diminutive forms which clairvoyants sometimes see—the supposed souls anxiously waiting for a chance body to creep into—I think are only appearances adapted to certain stages of development, and are used as a means of unfolding the powers of seeing with the spirit eyes, that the eyes may be opened and the scales removed. J. R. CUSHMAN.

THE WAR IN CRETE.

To even make a note of the daily-changing condition of affairs in Crete would only confuse the general reader, without being instructive. The Christian element on the island wish to be united with Greece, and that little kingdom accepts the situation. She sent a strong naval force to the island, and the allied powers protest. The Sultan leaves the matter with those powers to settle. What the final outcome will be no man can tell. The probabilities at the present writing are that Greece will be the victor. It is the first step in a concerted movement to blot Turkey from the map of Europe, and divide its territory among the rival powers. To-morrow may change the outlook.

SPIRITUALISM.

IS SPIRITUALISM A RELIGION?—DISCUSSED BY A JUDICIAL MIND.

Over the doors of an ancient temple is this inscription: "There is no religion higher than truth." Many Spiritualists have adopted the motto, but I think we should go a little further and inscribe over the gates of our temples another motto: "There is no religion so high as truth."

That divine seer, foolishly termed by a wit, "the inspired lunatic of Patmos," beheld in his symbolic vision the New Jerusalem, and he "saw no temple therein." He that proceeds to develop his own psychic powers becomes an inhabitant of the New Jerusalem. By doing this he enters the subliminal sphere of existence—the kingdom of God within him. Spiritualism invites all aspiring souls to do this regardless of any former condition of servitude. There are gates on all sides, "and they shall not be shut at all."

What is the essential difference, if any, between primitive Christianity and Modern Spiritualism? It may be tersely expressed by saying we have "method in our madness." We are more rational or scientific in the manner of unfoldment. We go about in a systematic and logical way to provide the physical and mental conditions that prove favorable to the manifestation of decarnate spirits. The early Christians by accident assumed and furnished conditions that we deliberately seek to promote. It is true that they were given manifestations superior to modern ones in many aspects. It would appear that the angel world treated them as babes, while they recognize our ability to walk. The experiences of truth-seekers in the last eighteen centuries have not been useless. Certain traits of character distinctive of this generation are the result. Being able to walk, or at least to toddle, the angels treat us not as if we were babes on the breast.

In dealing with the spirit-world, what is required of mortals corresponds to what is given. I have little doubt that Paul's method of trying the spirits, by asking them to confess that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, was effective in protecting the early Christians from imposition, but it does not follow that it would operate satisfactorily now. It is easy for a designing spirit to confess that, as any other formula, unless the superior ones interfered. And while I thus assert a superiority of the modern over the ancient believer, I would always recognize humility as the mother virtue, depending infinitely more upon the grace of God to protect me from the foes within and without than upon my own reason, but this humbleness does not require that I stultify or forfeit rational consideration of things in any case, until the utter ineffectiveness of reason be manifest or its temporary suspension as in hypnotic control be accomplished by the spirits I in a pure motive have enticed. I shall be thankful if such control be found unnecessary in my unfoldment, but I shall not presumptuously resist, for I am certain we will find it true that "whoso receiveth the kingdom as a little child, the same is greatest therein."

ANCIENT AND MODERN SPIRITUALISM.

Corresponding to the change in methods of thought, to the increased capacity of applying reason to occult mysteries, and in accordance with the requirements of modern psychics, we find the supreme distinction between ancient and Modern Spiritualism in the nature of their revelations regarding the higher life. From one point of view our mediums compared with those of other days seem as hens aside eagles. But—and this is the important idea—modern revelations are literal representations of the spirit-life, and clearly show what we may expect beyond Jordan, while scriptural visions were symbolic and illusory. They "saw as through a glass darkly—but now face to face." They "beheld truths afar off and embraced them." As the Galilean teacher said: "I have many more things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." The average man of his day would despise these literal pictures. It required phantasmal visions of the great white throne, of the streets of burnished gold, of the beasts with eyes before and behind; even of the lake of fire and brimstone, to arouse his interest in that remote spiritual world.

SWEDENBORG THE CONNECTING LINK.

In Swedenborg we find the connecting link between the old and new mediumship. He was the prophet of the new dispensation. Some of his revelations are purely symbolical. Others are literal. This is true to an extent of other mediums, like A. J. Davis, but the literal aspect of communications is fast superseding the mystical. We have settled our minds to build upon the rock of plain, unvarnished truth, if the higher powers allow it. In the New Jerusalem they "had no need of a candle nor of the sun." Perhaps the candle refers to the Mosaic authorities, and the sun to the apostolic ones. Surely we can benefit by a calm consideration of their experiences and instructions, but only by that which appears reasonable to us as individuals. The authority is thus transferred from the fathers to the divinity within ourselves. We thus practically—instead of theoretically, as orthodox people—become sons of God, using boldly if humbly the freedom of a son. He that dare not apply his rational faculties to the interpretation of Scripture, approaches God as a slave and not as a son.

But to establish a religion we must have organization and authorities able to enforce obedience regarding psychic methods and forms of action on the spiritual plane. It is obvious from a glance at the conflicting revelations of sensitives and the irreconcilable opinions founded upon individual experiences that no external system can rise on such a foundation. There is no religion so high as truth. Religious systems depending on mysticism to a great degree, and expressed through forms and ceremonies, are ladders devised that the "natural man" should ascend to the realms of truth. If we mean anything it is that we are on the threshold of plain, eternal truth—we have reached the stage of individual liberty.

SPIRITUALISM THE RESULT OF ALL RELIGIONS.

Spiritualism is not a religion. It is the result of all religions. Other men labored and we have entered into their labor. Whatever misconceptions our ancestors had of the character of Jesus or the truths shadowed forth in his parables, the effect of the Biblical literature has been to produce a race of sensitives who must now in obedience to their own inner promptings and according to the requirements of natural desires become mediums. We discern that the purpose of religion was to sensitize or refine the physical man, and the particular result of trying to fathom the mind of Jesus and to follow him has been to develop a race of moderately well-balanced or rational sensitives. In many cases physical comfort, the ancient and persistent foe of spiritual aspiration, imperatively demands the exercise of psychic powers. "The spirit and the bride say come."

SPIRITUALISM A SCIENCE.

Spiritualism is rather a science, but liberal enough to embrace the devotional and emotional elements of a hopeful religion. It urges every observer to develop his Christlike powers, and in giving the physical-mental conditions requisite, he must exercise the saving qualities of the saint. While merely the faculty of conveying the thoughts of supernal beings to mortals does not imply perfection of the medium's character, yet the persistent endeavor to see, hear, feel spirits, and to estimate their advancement forms the truly natural exercise that strengthens the medium's own soul. He is watching and praying—toiling and enduring—believing, hoping, aspiring.

THE GREAT, SUPREME TEST.

Is there not a chance, by a clear understanding of the conditions required of us, to codify and dictate rules to the aspirant and thus found a system and establish authority and give the dogmatist suitable opportunity to display his self-esteem? A little observation will show that beyond the most general instructions such as "whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things," the requirements vary with the individual. "Know thyself" is the first duty of each and every one. Unto thyself be true—which is impossible if you are under bonds to another. Listening to advice is courteous and wise if you only accept what commends itself to your own mind. "I will put my laws in their minds, and in their hearts will I write them. They shall not teach every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord, for they all shall know me, from the least to the greatest."

The two great Hebrew prophets, in divining future methods of communication between the physical and spiritual planes, declared: "A way shall be built there and a way of holiness. No unclean thing shall pass over it." Will Spiritualism stand this test?

WHO MAY FEAR OBSESSION.

The careful observation of thinking men, with the experiences of physicians, demonstrate that there yet exist malicious, revengeful spirits, desiring to obsess weak souls. Such cases are perhaps rare in this day but the evidence is as clear on that point as on the elevated character of other spirits. In all cases of which I am informed, the victim was one who neglected the cultivation of his or her psychic talents. The natural sensitive who violates his nature by refusing to exercise those inherited gifts thus weakening his own soul by inertia, is the one who may fear obsession. He hides the talent in a napkin and is liable to experience the despair of outer darkness. It is that he should enjoy these powers, that his ancestors wandered in deserts and in mountains and in dens and caves of the earth. "They builded better than they knew."

Evidence is clear that vicious spirits have on some occasions taken advantage of physical conditions furnished by mediums to declare themselves—as in that case of obscene slate-writing recorded in a late issue of The Progressive Thinker. But in the very manifestation they "expose their hand" and forfeit their chance of obsession. True we must depend primarily for safety on exalted spirits, but we can always be sure of their co-operation, and in whatever depends on my own effort I am better able to defend myself when the veil is lifted from my eyes. The obscene writing referred to was in reality a confession of despair at being unable to injure his intended victim.

JUDGING THE SPIRITS.

We judge men by motives. It is the rational way of judging spirits. The explanation of that parable, "He that would be clean need only to wash his feet and is then clean every whit," is that the pure desire is the foundation of purity. Now in the guides or companions of modern mediums I have discerned ignorance and imperfections in the manner of expression, but so far I have at a glance perceived love for that medium and for humanity—a desire to encourage all men to aspire and to hope for a higher life than even such spirit had yet attained. The most favorable conditions for general manifestations are such as a malicious spirit must abhor "as the Devil hates holy water." If a spirit does not inculcate vicious principles nor implant malice in the medium's mind, it is evidence clear as daylight of that spirit's character. We meet them as friends and scholars in the school of divine wisdom like ourselves. They second our efforts to rise above the environments which render us miserable.

Much of the talk among partially developed mediums regarding the evil spirits who almost obsessed them appears irrational. They were like children excited by weird stories, who in the twilight discern dragons and monsters in every harmless stump or bush about them. Fear may distort their vision, and a cherub appear to be a demon. If an Adventist saw the spirit of his grandmother, he would conclude it was Satan in a new guise. There are severe trials to be endured in unfoldment but trust is what saves in darkness. "He that putteth his trust in God (not the ogre of irrational theology) shall not be ashamed."

This is clear, that what comes in response to mortals' request from the spirit-life is and always has been in correspondence with our aspirations and ability to naturally entertain such visitors and revelations. What you may find there in the corner of this great universe to which your aspirations carry you may be very unlike what I find. But always you will find what you are now capable of appreciating. There is no chance of founding an external religious system while this remains so. All we can do is, encourage one another to soar higher, granting each to all full liberty in every sense of the word. The cause depends on this. You sing alto and I'll sing bass, everyone according to his light.

That designing and despairing spirits yet exist and wander to and fro in the earth may be conceded, but they come by another road than that of Modern Spiritualism. The circles and seances in which they feel most at home are not the quiet, devotional, sympathetic circles favorable to the cause of Spiritualism.

In all this I "speak as a man," not as an exalted authority. Wherein I err, I desire to know. I am only consistent in a search for light. I am not bound to the defense of opinion because the "great I" once announced it. I submit this as the highest, truest view of the subject of which I am now capable.

J. T. MACDONALD.

San Francisco, Cal.

CONSUMPTION

TO THE EDITOR: I have an absolute Cure for CONSUMPTION and all Bronchial, Throat and Lung Troubles, and all conditions of Wasting Away. By its timely use thousands of apparently hopeless cases have been permanently cured. So proof-positive am I of its power to cure, I will send FREE to anyone afflicted, THREE BOTTLES of my Newly Discovered Remedies, upon receipt of Express and Postoffice address. Always sincerely yours,

T. A. SLOCUM, M.C., 183 Pearl St., New York.

When writing the Doctor, please mention this paper.

DIFFERENT POINTS OF VIEW ON THE SAME QUESTION.

ROSTRUM WORK.

DR. WILKINS HAS A FEW WELL CHOSEN REMARKS TO MAKE IN REFERENCE TO THE HIGHER SPIRITUALISM LECTURERS AND PLATFORM TESTS—THE HIGHER SPIRITUALISM, ETC.

To the Editor:—I must have overlooked the articles written by Mrs. Britten and Mrs. Lillie, but can feel, in reading the one in a recent issue by Mattie E. Hull, under the heading this bears the ideas expressed by them.

In most part Mrs. Hull hits the nail on the head. No old Spiritualist is foolish enough to contend that we do not need a higher grade of intellect on the rostrum in many instances, but if those who are upon the rostrum are to be teachers they should have some way to demonstrate this knotty problem, or they are but preachers.

The only method the orthodox people, who are but slightly removed from Catholicism, have ever possessed for advancing their doctrines, was in instructing by interpretation, giving the old, old story in their own language, of the miracles recorded of a superstitious age; indoctrinating the people by dramatical recitations of the awful promises, and shockingly brutal punishments inflicted upon unbelievers—thinkers—and by telling how a Christ was so miraculously placed upon the earth to live a spiritual life, be a great reformer and a martyr to the cause of the common, liberty-loving people. In fact, by working upon their fear and sympathy; by showing them what terrible sinners they were (according to the word of God), and the plan of salvation (according to the word of God), and in the use of all the psychological possessions of voice and physique, they were enabled to bring to repentance all who where susceptible. They imitated the voice of God in giving His mighty commands, and the voice of the "meek and lowly Jesus" (God in the flesh) when he said: "I come not to destroy but to save," or words to that effect, and they caught the ignorant, the thoughtless and sometimes the automatically instructed.

In fact, the people have been talked to and preached to until theology is talked to death and the public weary with too much talk, and are seeking other channels of investigation. I do not mean that theology is yet a corpse, but that old orthodoxy, the religion of our forefathers, is now a thing of the past, and a more modern and more spiritual religion is being advocated from almost every pulpit in the land, but it is only talk, talk, talk, without a single authentic presentation.

"We need a higher Spiritualism," say some of our most prominent lecturers. Well, let us see if we do. Moses Hull, than whom there are no harder, nor more effectual workers in the field, going from city to village and camp-meeting, often making the trip across the continent at one jump, capturing the guns of the enemy and turning them against the owners, scattering the new gospel of the three blessed little children, through a spiritual interpretation of the ancient scriptures, etc., and who has been more maligned and abused than he? and from co-workers on the rostrum—and in some instances his dear, sweet-spirited wife, has been a target for the same guns. They have gone right on in the even tenor of their way, broad-minded, sympathetic, forgiving, "preaching the gospel to every creature," drawing as good houses as any lecturers now before the public. Yes, we do "need a higher Spiritualism."

This grand and noble pair is not the only target of these guns—and when I say guns I do not single out any individual, or number of them—simply whomsoever the opprobrium fits.

We all have our faults, we preach and teach Spiritualism from our own standpoints, and our preaching and teaching may be faulty in the minds of a few others, but the world will pass on our individual peculiarities and continue to drink at our various fountains of knowledge through the phenomenal and philosophical channels, and be quenched of thirst.

We also have great need of reform in the phenomenal part of our science, but who can be the great high judge? Who can say to a medium: You shall not go on the rostrum and give tests to the hungry horde; you are a fraud; you belong to the "gang"—the "Pointer's Exchange Association"—and not to be boycotted by Spiritualists?

The rostrum means much for the cause of Spiritualism, and the fact that good platform test mediums have made it possible to get out a full house shows that the public want more than they can get from a mere explanation of the philosophy, and they must have it, and that demand makes the supply. It also makes a good field for the charlatan, who, under the present organized system, is enabled to perform more wonderful things than the genuine medium; and this not only brings a stigma upon the fair name of Spiritualism, but brings the phenomena into disrepute, and when discovered, leads the investigator into a state of uncertainty and prejudice.

Yes, we "need a higher Spiritualism" in this connection. But we can only get it by each one creating an aura for those with whom they come in contact, by right thoughts, right words and right deeds, and by burying petty jealousies, envy, selfishness and scandal; by kindly, but firmly refusing to become a party to any kind of fraud, deception or untruthfulness. Because there have been frauds exposed in our ranks does not prove that the genuine does not exist. The facts are valuable, or they would not be imitated for a ransome.

Because I can present to the public only the philosophy, and can get but a few out to hear me, is no sign that I am not telling the truth or preaching the "higher Spiritualism" nor is it any proof that the highest Spiritualism doesn't come through the genuine phenomena; and for one, I am in favor of the presentation of our science through every possible phase and avenue the world over. through the genuine phenomena; and

Is it not as "high" and as promotive of truth and morality to have a proof of eternal life, and the consequent possibilities of the spirit, as it is to advocate in the most eloquent language the good effects, on the spiritual nature of man, of right living?

The phenomena but proves the assertions of the philosophy, and when possible they should work hand in hand toward the enlightenment and betterment of a hungry, groping people.

This is an age of phenomena, of reason, of progression, and because there are charlatans, falsifiers, scandalmongers, selfish schemers, and jealous barnacles hanging on, will not greatly impede the onward march of a science, a religion, or an index to a future life. While in our moments of conceit, we must not forget that we have not reached the acme of progression, and that there is more to follow, as generation succeeds generation, and new conditions are created through the knowledge that our experiences have made possible.

I do not wish in this to discourage education, in fact it is a very proper thing to educate our lecturers and our mediums, but because the phenomena don't contribute to the upbuilding of societies is not proof that the public presentation of it does not tend to spread the truth as much as the lecturers, and when they come straight and go straight they are a lasting argument.

"Those who go to the meetings for the purpose of getting a test and nothing more have no conception of the magnitude of Spiritualism," says Mrs. Hull. That may all be true, and still that test serves its purpose in the extension of the truth of Spiritualism. Then let the broad-minded lecturer instruct, so far as possible, these people and make it more important for the two to go hand in hand.

With all due respect to all our grand and noble workers, we have only to add that, the "highest Spiritualism" is that which is untarnished by jealousy, envy and selfishness; that makes people larger-hearted, broader and more forgiving, whether taught by the eloquent inspiration from the rostrum, in the cabinet, at the home of the clairvoyant, or upon the platform; and in this direction Spiritualism needs retouching and repairing more than in any other.

The A, B, C's must be taught the new student, and how better can we teach them than by object lessons? I know these active, educated public workers see much to disgust them, much that tends to bring a blush of shame to their sensitive cheeks, but that which is mere dust to one may be pearls to another, and so it goes. There is room for all and work for all, each in his respective station and her respective phase.

DR. T. WILKINS.

A CLARION CRY!

SPIRITUALISM ON THE DOWN GRADE—MINGLING ANGELS AND FILTH—BOOMING A MEDIUM—MURDERING THE KING'S ENGLISH—ADVERTISING A LIE—OBTANING MONEY UNDER FALSE PRETENSES—TIME TO PUT ON THE BRAKES.

To the Editor:—In your issuse of February 13, I read with much satisfaction Emma Hardinge Britten's article on "The Desecration of the Sabbath." We look to the New York Herald, for the best that is to be had in modern journalism, and to The Progressive Thinker for the best that is to be had in all that pertains to the cause it represents.

I am not a pessimist, but I want to say right here and now that Spiritualists are on the down grade, and not one to cry "put on the brakes!" I want to talk right along the lines laid down by those noble workers, Emma Hardinge Britten, and Mrs. R. S. Lillie, for seek as I may, I cannot follow in better footsteps.

OUR MEETINGS! OUR METTINGS!

Our meetings! Our meetings! let The Progressive Thinker cry from its mountain top and with its strongest lung power; for our meetings need a renovating in toto. Not our meetings where we listen to some inspired teacher, but our meetings where the suppositious "test medium" reigns as do our rarer monsters in menageries for the open-mouthed wonder of the rabble, and the heart-aches of those who attend to pray and depart to scoff. I tell you, Mr. Editor, if we do not call a halt, our best people will desert us, and our cause will suffer a retrogression from which a re-advance will be slow and painful.

TEST MEDIUMS—AND TEST MEDIUMS.

I have heard "test mediums" who came after the speaker and drew us nearer heaven, and I have heard test mediums (?) who came after the speaker and made God and the angels weep.

Not long ago in our city I heard one of our most wonderful instruments at a public meeting, give test after test, every one of which, so far as I could see, was genuine and recognized by its recipient. When leaving the hall, to my utter disgust and awakened disbelief in the medium's truth, I was shocked by these exact words, omitting only the medium's name, spoken by her advance agent, press agent or manager, and in a tone borrowed from some blower of a side-show: "Here you are! last week of ——! last week of ——! Only one more week! Here's ——'s cards."

Think of it! The pity of it! The shame of it! Booming a medium as one might a brainless ape of Borneo. The diamonds worn by the medium were ample proof of the efficacy of this disgusting method of mingling angels and filth.

If this keeps on, Lyman C. Howe will soon have company, "who have worn out their time much like their master's ass, for naught but provender; and when they're old cashiered." Some time since I attended a meeting where spoke Mr. —— I won't mention his name, out of shame for the society he lectured before. He electrified me; not with rhetorical pyrotechnics, but with corruscations of divine fire. One of our oldest and most honored workers. "But," said a friend, "he won't get before our society again; he's not sensational enough!" Libera nos a malo! The pity, the shame of it!

Not long after I attended again in the same place. The speaker was sensational enough. He was followed by a "test medium" who, God save the mark, knew no more of "King's English" than a pig knows about the decalogue; and less about the giving of tests.

ADVERTISING A LIE.

Most of our societies live and advertise a lie. It's plain, but it's truth! Anything under heaven to draw a crowd. Several times I have gone to meetings where "tests and full names of spirits" was advertised, and not one full name was given. And, mind you, as I have said before, after advertising to give full names of spirits out of the form etc. The medium got up and the first thing told the anxious audience that she didn't know whether she could get anything or not; she wasn't well etc. Deliver us from evil. These people had paid their money to hear full names as advertised, and not one name did they get. Is or is this not obtaining money under false pretense? Should such mediums be protected by the N. S. A. from the just wrath of an outraged public? There is no difference between a bogus materializing medium and a bogus test medium.

De we need money so badly that we must resort to such despicable means to get it? Do we need phenomena-chasing converts so badly that we must lose the best of our adherents to secure them? Do we need sensation in our rostrum as employed in the pulpit to call in the degenerate; and must we cashier our old and faithful servants to starve, while we become merely money-grabbers? There are test mediums who are an honor to the cause, an honor to themselves and an honor to heaven; and there are others "that do strut and bellow and play such antic" (yes, and antique) "tricks before high heaven" etc.

Now again, in a later issue of The Progressive Thinker, Mattie E. Hull cries out against this growing ill that "smells to heaven."

The first excuse for platform phenomena, and plenty of it fraudulent, is "We cannot pay expenses without it"—which should have been, "We cannot make our society a paying, a lucrative one, without it." Unhappily mankind, like children, follow the band. I know a society whose meetings were select, without being in any sense exclusive. A reasonable admission was charged, and a refined audience assembled every Sunday to drink the truth. Expenses were assured, for I know, although the hall was not crowded, that there was a large surplus in the treasury. A so-called "test medium" was engaged, the admission fee was merely nominal and the hall was so packed that standing-room was at a premium. And by whom? A mass of phenomena-hunters that must eventually drive intellectuality to the wall or to the church. Man has spiritual as well as physical hunger, and that hunger must be fed. And the cravings of an earnest, hungry soul cannot be satisfied with husks.

SARDOU'S "SPIRITISME."

Sardou's "Spiritisme" has been weighed in the balance since I began this article and found sadly wanting. The opportunity was so great, the time so ripe, I thought the foremost dramatic author of his day, and a professed Spiritualist at that, would have availed himself of it to better purpose; for himself and for the cause he was supposed to be man enough to uphold. He has made "Spiritualism" simply a vehicle for the introduction of a dirty, dirty play. Why playwrights and those with the divine instinct cannot write a play of public and heart interest without its motive power being a besmirched woman I cannot conjecture. The play is a bitter disappointment to me and to every honest, earnest Spiritualist. Let us hope that here in America, the cradle of our cause, some one may rise having the courage of his convictions and from the intricate meshes of a psychologized brain evolve a drama for Spiritualism, and not use the name to drag before the public a play utterly unfit for girlhood or budding womanhood to witness. Sardou could have hit hard: he struck, not with a sledge, but with a feather.

CHARLES NEVINS.

TEST MEDIUMS ON THE ROSTRUM

To the Editor:—I earnestly protest against the plot now on foot to put off of the public rostrum, clairvoyant and clairaudient mediumship. It is the same old plot that certain speakers in our ranks tried to form several years ago, that they alone should use the public rostrum; that all mediumship which is the cornerstone and the demonstrator of the proof of immortality should be kept from the public rostrum, and they alone should give their philosophy, without demonstration.

While we need the philosophy on the public rostrum, we more especially need the demonstration on the rostrum. Mrs. Hull is right when she quotes from a gentleman, "The so-called inspirational lecturers will not draw a corporal's guard." Now this is true: At a certain camp-meeting where one of the plotters or so-called "inspirational speakers" addressed an audience, when it was known that he objected to a test medium in the same meeting with himself, and that the medium would give tests at the pavilion on the grounds, instead of at the auditorium where the lecture was to be given, an immense audience of over 2,000 people went to the pavilion to listen to the tests while this speaker had about forty-two people in the auditorium to listen to the lecture. The spirit-world is standing at the back of this honest mediumship.

Emman Hardinge Britten admits that she was converted to Spiritualism by the phenomena, tests, etc. She and others who have never made a convert with lectures that cannot demonstrate, demand that they alone shall control the spirit-world and its inhabitants and all true mediumship.

For one, I most earnestly protest against any such action on the part of these ladies and gentlemen, and demand that as much justice be given the test medium, the materializing medium, the slate-writer, etc., as is given all trance lecturers and inspirational speakers. And I know that thousands in this State do most earnestly protest against all injustice to true mediumship. All managers of spiritual camp-meetings in the United States, if they want to draw large audiences, let them see to it that they have a demonstration of mediumship on the public platform at the close of each meeting.

FRANK TALTON.

LAKE HELEN CAMP-MEETING, FLORIDA.

The third week of this camp finds an increased attendance and very interesting meetings. The speakers, Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, Mrs. C. Fanny Allyn, and Mr. W. P. Colby, are kept busy, while conference meetings fill up the days when no regular meetings are held.

The Concannons are busy with seances and platform tests. Mrs. Concannon is very popular as a platform test medium, and Mr. Concannon has resumed his materializing seances, having sufficiently recovered from the brutal attack made on him at Ayer's Temple, in Boston, last winter.

Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing is in great demand as an automatic writer for spirit friends, and as a lecturer.

Mrs. C. Fanny Allyn is drawing much praise from many who admire her wit, sarcasm and quick answers to questions, as well as her ready ability to jingle rhymes.

Mrs. D. N. Sackett, of Springfield, Mass., a new medium, is finding an unexpected demand for her gift as a writing medium.

Mrs. Walcott and daughter, from New York City, are both voicing messages from spirit friends, and leading unfortunate spirits to the light.

Mr. A. Campbell, the spirit artist, is also an excellent platform test medium, and has given great satisfaction in every phase of his mediumship.

Prof. Arthur, of Galveston, Texas, is here and will show the people what he can do as a hypnotist and healer.

W. F. Peck lead in the services for the dedication of the auditorium, Sunday, the 7th of March, at which time Mrs. Allyn, Mr. Colby, Mrs. Twing and Mrs. Concannon all took part.

The meeting will continue all this month.

The hotel is nearly filled, but there is ample room in the cottages and apartment houses yet.

H. A. BUDINGTON.

VERY SIGNIFICANT.

The Progressive Thinker leads. It publishes more reading matter than any other dollar Spiritualist paper on this green earth. It was the only Spiritualist paper that had enterprise enough to publish President Barrett's address before the National Convention at Washington. It covered three pages of the paper. It now proposes to send out 1,000,000 copies of the paper containing his address.

Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," for particulars.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

PLEA FOR A RELIGIOUS CONGRESS AT PARIS IN 1900—ABBE VICTOR CHARBONNEL'S BOOK GIVING THE HISTORY OF HIS STRUGGLES TO REPEAT THE CHICAGO PARLIAMENT OF RELIGIONS AT THE COMING EXPOSITION — BITTER OPPOSITION FROM THE PARIS ARCHBISHOPRIC—HIGH PRAISE FOR DR. BARROWS AND FOR CHICAGO.

Is Paris to have a congress of religions, like Chicago's, in 1900? This is a question that is stirring up a fierce controversy in the Old World metropolis, says the Chicago Tribune. To us it seems a simple question, but to Catholic Paris it is nothing short of sacrilege. The dispute over the mere proposition has already echoed from Paris to the Vatican, all over Western Europe, and even to America. And now we have a book on the subject.

From the Paris publishing house of Armand Colin et Cie. comes a volume of 300 pages—in French, of course—by Abbe Victor Charbonnel, the man who has for over a year been leading the movement for a parliament of religions in connection with the coming exposition. It is entitled "Congres Universel des Religions," and relates the exciting history of this idea since M. Charbonnel first horrified the Paris clergy by proposing it.

The Abbe Charbonnel is one of the few really liberal Roman Catholics in France—a man after the style of our Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland. He has set his heart on having a congress of religions at Paris and on having his church at the head of the movement. But it is putting it mildly to say that he has a hard row to hoe in his self-appointed task. His bitterest opposition comes from the archbishopric of Paris itself, and Cardinal Richard has threatened to silence the liberal-minded Abbe by summary means. But, as M. Charbonnel happens not to belong to the Cardinal's diocese, he is boldly continuing his efforts by means of the platform and the press. Hence his book. Speaking of the hostile archbishopric the Abbe says:

"One of my friends called there on behalf of a leading newspaper and obtained responses which were absolutely stupefying and which he even did not dare to print. Never would Cardinal Richard suffer the repetition in Paris, in his diocese, of the practical heresy and eccentricity of Chicago. The Bishops of America were ruining the church. As for the French priests who had put forth the fanciful idea of a congress of religions, and especially the author of the article in the Revue de Paris (M. Charbonnel), these were only agitators whom an interdict would soon reduce to silence."

The boldness of the Abbe may be imagined from the fact that he forthwith published an open letter to the Cardinal pointing out the narrowness of his policy, declaring that the parliament of religions would be held in any case, and that the only question was whether the Catholic church should be at the head or the tail of the procession, and pleading for an adoption of the wider views of men like Cardinal Gibbons and Archbishop Ireland. But the only result seems to have been that of getting the matter into a worse snarl than ever.

The Abbe Chardonnel speaks in the highest terms of President Bonney of Chicago and of "that bold, brave man, full of faith, the Rev. John Henry Barrows." He points with pride to the fact that the name of Archbishop Feehan of Chicago was the second on the list of Mr. Barrows' committee, and in the course of his chapter on the Chicago parliament he gives this interesting bit of history, showing how the Catholic Church came to take part in it:

At last the question was submitted to the annual assembly of the Archbishops of the United States, which was held at New York in October, 1892. Objections of principle were at first raised. "The Church," said the opponents, "cannot put itself on a footing of equality with Protestants, and, worse still, with pagans." But an old Archbishop, who until then had kept silence, cried: "Saint Paul was a great fool. What did he want to do in the midst of pagans? Why didn't he act like a good, respectable Catholic, and stay at home?" That speech carried the day. The assembly of Archbishops unanimously pronounced for the participation of the Catholic Church in the Chicago Parliament of Religions. The project was saved.

The eloquent abbe closes by declaring:

"The first congress of religions was one of those sublime acts by which nations allow oblivion to close over the dead years, with their errors, divisions, and outworn hatreds, in order to march on to the new life of the future." He also quotes an article by Prof. Bonet-Maury of the University of France, in which that writer declared of the Chicago parliament: "It is, in my opinion, the greatest event, in its moral influence upon humanity, that has appeared since the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen, in 1789, and a fact which answers to the aspirations of the religious elite of all civilized races."

When Dr. Barrows passed through Paris on his way to India he not only met and encouraged the Abbe Charbonnel in his project for a second parliament of religions, but he made enthusiastic public addresses on the subject. Dr. Barrows believes, with M. Charbonnel, that if the project is to be successful, it must be under Catholic auspices, for the same reasons that it was under Protestant management in Chicago. The author reproduces the Chicagoan's conversations and speeches with much pride and enthusiasm.

Unfortunately, one's strongest impression, after reading through the interminable controversial contents of this volume, is that Paris can never have as successful a religious congress as Chicago's. This is just the opposite of what the author wishes to show, but he has himself furnished the data for that conclusion. He has shown that the movement must be Catholic in its origin, and he has revealed the bitter and narrow nature of the reigning French ecclesiastics. Even if Pope Leo lets things take their course, as he did in America. The few liberal priests who have ventured to group themselves about the Abbe Charbonnel are likely to be powerless against the formidable machine of the Cardinal Archbishop of Paris.

It needs but to be added that Americans of every creed will wish well to the plucky abbe in his laudable enterprise.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS.

A List of His Noted Works.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Jottings.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hull's best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 384 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

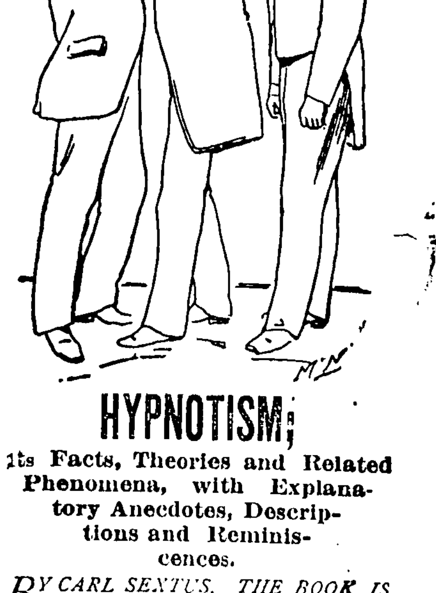
The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

Spiritual Songster.

By MATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $6 per hundred.

The Mediumistic Experience of John Brown.



The Medium of the Rockies, with introduction by J. S. Loveland. This is the history of one of the most wonderful mediums that ever lived. 167 large pages. Price, 50 cents.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By MOSES HULL. Price, 5 cents.

Was John Calvin a Murderer?

Price, 5 cents.

HYPNOTISM;

Its Facts, Theories and Related Phenomena, with Explanatory Anecdotes, Descriptions and Reminiscences.

BY CARL SEXTUS. THE BOOK IS largely a record of the facts and demonstrations which the author has seen, heard of or presented in his own experiments. The history of the various phases of the science is succinctly presented, and the various theories clearly stated. Many of the experiments described occurred in Chicago. The pictorial illustrations add much to the interest and value of the book, which will be found very interesting to the general reader, as well as helpful and instructive to the student. The work is a handsome volume of 300 pages, bound in cloth. Price, $2.00. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though it escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 82 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 75 cents.

Researches in Oriental History.

BY G. W. BROWN, M. D.

One Vol. 12mo, 407 Pages, Cloth, $1.50.

GENERAL DIVISION.

1. RESEARCHES IN JEWISH HISTORY.
2. RESEARCHES IN ZOROASTRIANISM.
3. DERIVATION OF CHRISTIANITY.
4. WHENCE OUR ARYAN ANCESTORS?

The whole comprises an earnest but fruitless search for a Historical Jesus.

In this volume the Jews are clearly shown not to have been the holy and favored people they claim to have been. The Messianic idea is traced to the Bactrian Philosopher, 2350 years B. C., and its history is outlined, following the waves of emigration, until it is fully developed into Christianity, with a mythical hero, at Alexandria, in Egypt, soon after the commencement of the Christian era.

The book demonstrates that Christianity and its central hero are mythical; that the whole system is based on fraud, falsehood, forgery, fear and force; and that its rites, ceremonials, dogmas and superstitions are but survivals of so-called paganism. It shows vast research among the records of the past; its facts are mostly gleaned from Christian authority; and no person can read it without instruction and profit, whether he reaches the same conclusions with the author or otherwise. For sale at this office.

THE KORAN.

Commonly called the "Alkoran of Mohammed." Translated into English from the original Arabic, with explanatory notes taken from the most approved commentators. With a preliminary discourse by Geo. Sale. Price, cloth, $1.00. For sale at this office.

TREE AND SERPENT WORSHIP

By A. S. Hudson, M.D. Price, 15 cents.

THE LORD TOLD HIM.

INTERESTING RECOLLECTIONS—HIS SPIRIT GUIDE, HIS LORD OR GOD—WHY THE PREACHER KNEW GOD SO WELL.

To the Editor:—During thirty years' study of human character, there have been many incidents recorded upon the tablet of my memory, some in large capitals, a few of which you may deem of interest to your many readers.

I was, at it were, raised in the Methodist church—my father being a class leader, and sometimes preacher of that denomination, most thoroughly orthodox, believing firmly in the Bible doctrine of punishment, that to spare the rod would spoil the child, etc., and allowing of no deviation from his instructions without severe punishment. Father spent much time in hard study, not of other religions, or the teaching of science and philosophy; or to learn if some Brother Adam, or Sister Eve had by their power of intuition discovered that the "forbidden fruit" was of superior quality, and had opened their eyes spiritually, and the way to higher planes of thought, but to overcome what he considered to be the temptation of the Devil, who was constantly whispering things in his ear decidedly unorthodox, (father being a very strong impressional and clairaudient medium, which however he never understood,)—and to strengthen his creedal fort, and himself therein. This he succeeded in doing, spurning the kind efforts of spirit friends to liberate him; he imprisoned his mind in his creed fort, refusing to learn anything outside or beyond, with the result that he ever grew less spiritual and more material, until he actually knows less to-day than he did half a century ago. Yet he is only one of many thousands who in like manner have rejected the ever fresh bread of life, and existed on dry crumbs, thus "hiding their light under a bushel."

VISITED BY—"THE LORD."

When about fifteen years old, I was one day at work with my father in the field, when a spirit came and requested me to go to another part of the field, and work alone, as he wished to talk with me, telling me father would not object. This I did not think possible, but impelled by a force I could not resist or understand (this being my first experience as a clairaudient medium) I went, trembling with fear of, and without a word to my father. After some three hours' work, and conversation with the spirit, I rejoined my father, when he at once informed me that he was cognizant of all that had transpired—that the Lord told him He wished to talk with me alone, and consequently he had not called me back when I went away without permission or explanation; and that it was God who had been talking with me, and that he had been praying for me, and knew the moment I consented to submit to the Lord's request. Misconstruction on his part, and obedience on my part, to a promise then made, has resulted in placing us where we are to-day spiritually.

HIS SPIRIT GUIDE, HIS LORD OR GOD.

One winter's day, my father says, the Lord came to him while he was at work in the woods, and informed him that he must preach at the school-house near by, the following Sunday—this being about Tuesday or Wednesday. Father being quite familiar with God, dared to doubt the truth of God's words, and replied; "Oh, I guess not; I think the elder will be over," (referring to the regular preacher.) But God said no, there would be a thaw, Black Creek would be overflowed and impassable, so he could not get there." "Well then," said father, "give me a text." One was at once given, and from which he preached the following Sunday, all things occurring as God had said unto him.

A VAST DIFFERENCE IN THEIR CONCEPTIONS OF DEITY.

Being at the Reed City, Mich., Methodist camp-meeting in 1895, I heard one preacher say during his sermon: "Why, brethren, I am better acquainted with God than with any man." Col. Ingersoll says "Man creates his own God;" probably this preacher did, he knew him so well. Another, a Dr. Pope, from Ohio, who I was informed was the president of a Theological College, in preaching from the same platform, advocated the duality of man's nature, saying that he was a soul created in image of God, inhabiting the material body before them; that he, the real man, or soul, was invisible to their mortal eyes, and could be known only by his expression through the material instrument; that while they within the sound of his voice understood, (by the vibrations produced upon the drum of the ear, and by the sensory nerve, carried to the brain) the thought expressed, science had demonstrated the possibility of thought being sent, and understood, beyond the reach of human voice. This being true, the expression of thought was not entirely dependent upon the material form, and hence could be accomplished by the soul, after its separation from the body. This, the Doctor believed, was being done, and that, "thousands of our old preachers, Father Wesley among the rest, are inspiring our preachers in the pulpit to-day." Cut a big notch in your stick, for Dr. Pope.

Let me say in conclusion, that there are but very few individuals past the age of maturity, possessed of ordinary intelligence, who have not received more indisputable evidence from the spirit-world, to establish in their minds the grand truths of Spiritualism, than they ever have received or ever will receive to establish them in any other religious belief. Spiritualism alone possesses the means of proving its teachings. CARLOS WRIGHT.

COLORADO STATE ASSOCIATION.

We have to report from Denver the first meeting of the Colorado State Association of Occult Science since its organization November 13. A good audience of cultured people assembled at the First Spiritual Church on Sunday afternoon, February 23rd. The pastor and president of the association, Dr. G. C. Beckwith Ewell, ably presented the aims and scope of the same, and reported the formation of a new society in Leadville of over thirty members under the leadership of 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Agnes L. Moulton, which had applied for a charter from this association.

Addresses on this occasion were made by Mrs. M. A. Gridley, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Louise Teed, secretary; and Mrs. A. Brockway, recently arrived from the Pacific Coast.

Arrangements were made to hold meetings two Sunday afternoons in each month, 1st and 3rd.

Investigators in this city are highly favored at present, for beside the permanent mediums of a high order of talent, we have the Brockway family in independent slate-writing, the Campbell brothers, from Boston, and John Slater. S. L. HARD.

Secretary, First Spiritual Church.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding. 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE CHAURAPANCHASIKA.

An Indian Love-Lament Translated from the Sanskrit.

Sir Edwin Arnold has translated and Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co. of London have published a love poem believed to date from about the beginning of the Christian era and still greatly admired in India. The legend runs that a young and accomplished Brahman, Chauras, fell in love with the beautiful daughter of a Maharajah. His flame was returned, the affair discovered, and Chauras condemned to death. He passed his last hours in the composition of the poem, consisting of fifty stanzas, each beginning with the word "adyapi" —the word of reminiscence. The story lives that the Maharajah forgave the offence of the lover on account of the skill of the poet. We subjoin a selection of the stanzas that illustrates this ingenuity of construction and their characteristic as a melodious and ingenious monotone of fanciful passion:

I.

I am to die, yet I remember, dying,
My soul's delight—my sweet, unequaled love,
Like fresh champak's golden blossom lying,
Her smile its opening leaves; and bright above,
Over her sleepful brow those lustrous tresses
Dark winding down, tingled with love's caresses.

II.

I die, but I remember! How it thrilled me.
The first glad seeing of her glorious face
Clear-carven like the moon; and how it filled me
With tremors, drinking in the tender grace
Which, like a fine air, clothed her; and the rise
Of her twinned breast-hills, and the strange surprise.

III.

Of love's new rapture! Dying I recall
Each marvel of her beauty in its blossom;
The large deep lotus eyes, whence dew did fall
Of jewelled tears; the swelling maiden bosom
Heavy to bear—the long, smooth arms; the lips
Where, like th' bee, Desire still clings and sips.

IX.

And sometimes I remember when we dipped
Our joys in wine, how her fine blood would flush
Ruddier to mouth and limb; and how she tripped
With livelier steps, while saffron-flowers blush
And Kashmir gums, and hill-deer's bag, made sweeting
For breath too sweet, and pearl teeth—lidly eating.

XIV.

Goodly thou wert then, moving like a Swan
With henna-reddened fingers like pink sprays
On the Asoka bush. The beauty wan
Of thy deep bosom took a gleaming grace
From the stringed pearls that hung within its vale,
Down from thy crown, and temples pure and pale.

XVIII.

For, in her white pavilion, where the pall
Of purple midnight was by glow dispelled
Of countless flaming cressets—ranged on wall
Like burning rubies—she when Love impelled,
Would whisper "I am wearied—sleep is best!"
But the dropped face, and hand touch did the rest.

XXIV.

Ah, too, her gentle talk! melodious most
When love's soft tremors sank it to a tone
Of low caressing murmurs, laughters lost
In little wishful sighs, words used alone
For my most blessed ears, when secret speech
Melted to babble, understood of each.

XXVII.

And even now, when any dawn may bring
Such as shall slay me to the prison gate,
Upon those days divine still pondering
I do not forget the Gods, the King, my fate.
Oh, thou Delight! that wast the world to me,
World, Heaven and All, I find only in thee!

XXX.

Thou wast my Worship, thou my shrine, my home,
My Faith, dear lady of the magic mouth!
Never elsewhere, where'er my foot had come,
Viewed I so noble Presence—north or south—
As thine, which was all mine; and never shall See moon-like beauty so majestical.

XLIII.

But now I die, with spirit discontented,
Since none can know as I do how to paint
That rare, surpassing finished form, invented
To be the gem of Women, in all days
Chief Pearl of Virgins, and all the lands
Queen-maid of all the queenliest maiden-band.

XLVIII.

Infinite ecstacy of nameless bliss!
Dear combat, where to lose was victory,
Hands knit with hands, like flower stems twisted! Kiss
That would find close, but could not end, till we Hurt one another in the ache of Love!
Ah, how in dying doth such memory move.

L.

Fast lover to the last I die. My faith
Is kept as true hearts use. So Shiva's neck
The wave-blue poison's mark forever hath.
And ever doth the monstrous Tortoise-Back
Sustain the Earth; and ever the strong Sea
Quenches the Nether Fires, as Death doth me.

"The Philosophy of Spirit, and the Spirit-World." By Hudson Tuttle. A most able and interesting presentation of a most important subject. Every Spiritualist and every inquirer into the proofs and philosophy of Spiritualism should have this excellent book. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"The Universe." What Force Is. The Beginning of Creation. What Matter Is. The Creation of the Earth. The Beginning of Life. Immortality. The Substance of Its Environments. Psychic Science. What the "Soul of Things" Is. Song of Psyche. A pamphlet by L. M. Rose. Contains 71 pages of interesting matter. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

SPIRITUALISM PURE.

CHURCH, PASTOR AND SERVICES NOT WANTED—SOCIETY, LECTURER, LECTURES, ARE GOOD ENOUGH.

To the Editor:—During the past year while I have been trying in this homelike "Sanitarium" to so far recover from my disabled condition (caused by an accident) as to be able to again, by voice and pen, herald the news of the Gospel of reform, I have anxiously watched the movements of others. Being isolated here from those of my views, I have had only The Progressive Thinker to bring me tidings of the trend of the spiritual movement, which to me looks not very promising.

In the list of Spiritualist meetings in Chicago I find six "Churches," eight "pastors" and "services" held at different places. I am glad to see there are still a few Spiritualist Societies without "pastors" or "services" but lectures by lecturers. Dr. Conger in his article just read has most ably expressed my thoughts and feelings on these matters, as has also Sister Watson. Thanks to them. Just so soon as any movement begins to cater to the old forms and preceding ceremonials, just so soon it ceases to be of use to the world and begins to relnsh the old ideas that its founders started out to overthrow by teaching right reason and common sense.

To impress an individual or society, you must take the positive position—an audacious, persistent, courageous defense of your principles. That position impresses. The negative, catering condition never commands respect, and the usefulness of those assuming it is gone the moment they make a move in that direction. The moment a person cares less for his own respect than he does for the whole world beside, that moment as a reformer he is dead—he is a negative, instead of a positive force.

In the churches the "pastor" is generally someone possessing some supposed superior qualification so far as culture is concerned at least, if not natural ability, but some of our "pastors" —"Oh, ye gods!" If they could only use the English language correctly!

On the whole I think the world moves nevertheless, and I hope that there are enough Spiritualists who are beyond the growth requiring ecclesiastical swaddling clothes, to take up the grand work of helping humanity grow to a higher condition here and now.

Every yoke, whether imposed by church or State, must be broken; every disinherited son or daughter of earth must be established in his or her rightful inheritance; peace take the place of war, and bloodshed cease in all the land. When these conditions obtain in this earth life, those passing to the next department of their existence will be far better qualified for rapid progress, and our messages from "over there" will be far more satisfactory because given by a higher developed grade of beings. Yours for an all round Spiritualism with no orthodox drugging.

JULIET H. SEVERANCE, M. D.
Galesburg, Ill.

SPIRITUALISTIC FRAUDS.

An article has been going the rounds of the papers which appears to be an interview with a retired Spiritualist medium. He frankly admits that he went into the business in chase of the elusive dollar, and that he has retired because the medium business is played out and there is no money in it. He is perfectly willing to tell how he operated; and he explains some of the peculiar effects of cabinet and materializing seances, slate-writing, private clairvoyance, and so on, with the utmost nonchalance, naivete and sang froid. Somehow cockney French comes easily to mind in dealing with this fraud—he probably used much of it himself. He is, in short, turning state's evidence just as completely as he knows how.

All this, however, does not affect the real Spiritualists. They will not be turned from their belief by any amount of confession. There is probably not a Spiritualist anywhere who has not had some personal evidences which he feels to be conclusive. When a man believes with all his heart that he has seen and talked with the spirit of his departed wife, or mother, or child, nothing short of an entire change of identity will interfere with that belief. And why, indeed, should anybody want to interfere with it? Comfort isn't so plenty in this world, and especially in the lives of some of the believers, that they should be robbed of all that they can get.

As to the truth or falsehood of the system, that was treated scientifically by one Browning some years ago, in his poem about "Sludge, the Medium." There are some natural laws that haven't yet been thoroughly investigated, and the workings of these may produce some of the spiritualistic phenomena. The mediumistic powers, if they exist, come under these laws, and the tremendous difficulty in the way of investigation, so far, has been the performances of people like this retired fraud who has been talking about himself so glibly. They have an unparalleled chance to victimize, and an almost certain immunity from punishment. The tricks of a conjuror are complicated affairs compared with most phenomena given at public seances, and Hermann could doubtless have made for himself a great name in that line if he had chosen. So could Kellar. So could almost any legerdemain artist.

If with all this fraud there is some truth mixed, it is to the interest of the Spiritualists themselves that the frauds be exposed, and the truth sifted out. Perhaps the retired spook gentleman may have done his country a great service without very much meaning to accomplish that end.

The above from the Daily Times published at Washington, D. C., is remarkably fair to the Spiritualistic belief in true phenomena; and a terrible excoriation of the fake wretches, and an invitation to investigation, and the exposure of frauds, and sifting the truth mixed with it.

WHAT WE WANT TO DO.

We desire to illuminate the minds of every Spiritualist. We will therefore send The Progressive Thinker to new subscribers for three months for fifteen cents, and hope by so doing to reach 1,000,000 of Spiritualists. For full particulars in reference to this remarkable offer read the communication headed "Fifteen Cents," on our fifth page.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Studies in Spiritual Thought

THE SPIRITUAL WORLD LIES CLOSE AROUND US—INSPIRATION AND ITS SPIRITUAL POTENCY — SPIRITUAL EXALTATION — THE HIGHLANDS OF HEAVEN.

One of the greatest and truest lessons we can learn is that we are living in the unseen world now—that it lies closely all around us, environing and touching us at every point. In our veritable entity of being and selfhood we are associated with the spiritual and unseen world, nor is it possible—without falling into non-existence, or a condition that, for the time, is equivalent thereto—to disassociate our life and being from this world of spiritual life and thought that surrounds us and dwells as an immanence within us.

How much our thoughts and life are fashioned by this unseen spiritual world, we shall never know; the life and thought that belong to our own proper selves are so interblended with the life and thought of the world unseen, that the twain are unified in our conscious individuality, forming one character, one life, one being.

Inspiration! How much of our thought-life—our mental and spiritual development and growth we owe thereto, it is impossible to know; but this much I think, may be safely set down as true: Without inspiration man would be and would ever remain in a state of mental and spiritual childhood, undeveloped, never attaining the full and rounded growth of manhood.

For, inspiration comprises all thought, all knowledge, that "comes to us" from without, and that does not spontaneously arise from within. Whatever thought, whatever knowledge, is imparted to us—does not have its genesis within and of ourselves—is of the nature of inspiration, whether it comes from mortal or unseen intelligences. Without inspiration, how narrow and circumscribed would be the field traversed by human thought! how limited man's area of knowledge!

How much, then, we owe to inspiration for mental and spiritual development.

The silent, unseen forces are the strongest—they possess the long, long strength of eternal persistency. The silent voices from the unseen touch more deftly the chords of the soul, and quietly mould with infinite patience the heart and will, bringing forth spiritual music and beauty.

SPIRITUALITY A CREATIVE FORCE

The supreme lesson of spirituality as a creative force to make the world better, is apprehended by instructed minds of finer perceptions, but by none has it been set forth with finer thought and force than by Lilian Whiting, who says there are certain temperaments essentially adapted to act as magnets to attract and formulate nebulous circumstances. Wherever such a one goes he becomes the center of a life into which he enters as a controlling or, at least, a determining factor. He brings a new force to bear on conditions, and they rearrange themselves, forming new combinations. The truth is that each person makes his life and is not made by it. His present is simply the product of all that he has ever been; it is the sum total of the materialization of all that he has ever thought, felt, and done. It is a result to be measured, however, by spiritual and not by worldly standards. One's true life is not to be registered, or judged, or measured, by external environment. It is to be measured by his habitual attitude of mind toward humanity and toward the ideals of social and spiritual progress. It is his character that all his mental and spiritual life has produced. Spiritual riches and outward poverty not unfrequently go closely companioned, as do the reverse. But poverty of the purse is little where there is no poverty of the spirit.

A NEW AND DEEPER TRUTH.

Still there comes, in this new era in which we are living, a new and deeper truth; that spiritual riches and energy can, by working in harmony with spiritual laws, create for itself the environment it desires, if these desires are noble and exalted, and not merely the desires of self-indulgence. It may do this by entering into magnetic union with this "encircling spirit-world," in whose invisible realm lie the causes of our most potent deeds. To enter into this magnetic union, to come into the condition of swift receptivity to its forces, and to a knowledge of its laws, is to achieve the true success of life.

Spiritual force is the supreme potency—a force as much greater than electricity in its creative power as electricity is more potent than the dullest clod; and out of the life of Bishop Brooks was struck the electric spark that lighted a thousand watchfires.

"When in human experience the psychic life is wholly given up to its supreme office of suggestion and radiation," says Professor John H. Denison in his recent remarkable work on "Christ's Idea of the Supernatural," "it not only feeds the spirit with visions, but exalted in turn by the spirit and surcharged with spirit force, it acts upon matter in a direct, causative way; it radiates the creative causative spirit." All the great work of humanity is an example of this truth, that spiritual energy creates its visible expressions. The entire environment of the universe is calculated in unerring correspondence with moral perfection. To the degree in which this truth is realized, life is successful and happy; and he who thus lives is upborne by invincible powers. The stars in their courses fight for him. The winds are his messengers, and the clouds his chariot. To the degree in which he falls below the moral standard, he encounters friction and trial. We talk of this life and the next, but there is only one life; and, as Bishop Brooks once said, "Death is not the end of life, but an event in life." There is every reason that the name of Philips Brooks should be invested with moral magic, as it stands pre-eminently for the practical power of ideal purposes.

For spirituality is a condition, not a creed; a service, and not a spectacle; a life, and not a litany. The great problem of life is to us all: How shall one grow in sympathy, and tenderness, and generosity, and consideration? How shall he feed on high thought and noble aims? How shall he be swift to discern and to avail himself of those opportunities for usefulness to others which are the best channels of his own growth? How shall he hold clear and close relation with the divine energy?

"Be one of the conquerors!" said Balzac. "The universe belongs to him who wills and loves and prays; but he must will, he must love, he must pray—in a word he must possess wisdom, force, and faith!"

The great factor in the cultivation and development of spirituality is inspiration—inspiration that is fragrant with the essence of spiritual thought; and the sweetest and most potent inspiration is that which comes to us within the silent depths of our own being, from the blessed spirits of the world beyond and above us in spirituality, yet within which we truly ever "live and have our being."

Let our minds be keyed aright, in harmonious accord with the symphonies of the angel spheres, and the music of heaven will thrill our souls with spiritual exaltation as with innersense we listen to the divine voice of silent inspiration, and feel our souls uplifted to the highlands of heaven.

The Highlands of Heaven! here fain would I stay,
Nor earthly allurements can win me away;
For I see the pure spirits, their voices I hear,
And the music of angels enraptures my ear,
O, sweet the communion with loved ones so dear,
But sweeter the moments when angels are near!
Their love and their goodness uplift and control,
And the Highlands of Heaven I find in my soul.

JAS. C. UNDERHILL.
Hammond, Ind.

SPIRITUAL LEAVEN.

BARRETT AND PERKINS AT FORT WAYNE, IND.

To the Editor:—The cause of Spiritualism in Fort Wayne is still evoluting. It is by no means on the wane. At least you would not have thought it was, had you observed the crowds that came to hear Brother H. D. Barrett deliver three splendid lectures on the 13th and 14th ult. On the evening of the 14th, standing room in our large hall was at a premium and many were obliged to turn away. Nor were the audiences such as we could be ashamed of. They were composed of the most intelligent people in the city—many of the members of the different churches being present. Mr. Barrett's lectures were of the very highest order, and we feel that he has done the cause much good here. No small part of his success in our midst, particularly the financial part of it, was due to that prince of workers in the field, who was filling an engagement with us for the month of February, Brother G. F. Perkins of the Beacon Light Spiritual Church of Chicago.

Brother Perkins is a host within himself. He reminds me very much, in appearance, address and demeanor, of Chaplain (now Bishop) McCabe of the M. E. Church, and is equally as good a singer and "beggar" for the cause. He gets the audience in a good humor, and then goes for their pocketbooks in great shape. I think the N. S. A. would do well to engage him to accompany Brother Barrett on his missionary tours. His tests also are splendid, and are given with a simplicity and honesty of purpose which carry conviction of their genuineness to those even who do not get them. His lectures are solid, substantial, good, honest talks, without any effort at oratory or eloquence, and yet they are characterized by both.

Aside from his spiritual ministrations, he is an elocutionist of no mean order, and an all-round entertainer at socials, parties, lyceums, seances, etc., of the highest character. He endeared himself to our society to such an extent that at his last meeting a vote of thanks was tendered him, which was unanimous, for his work among us.

Brother Perkins' methods are somewhat similar to those of Brother J. Frank Baxter whom our society has engaged for three months—those of October, November, December, 1897, I believe. We hope to have Brother Perkins with us again and repeatedly. The harvest is ripe for just such workers, but unfortunately the right kind of laborers are yet too few.

What we need in all our societies, as much as anything else, is music, music, music, and the very best, vocal and instrumental. Spiritualism means flowers, poetry and music, or rather music, poetry and flowers. It is difficult for me to determine which of the three is the most important; they are all equally so. Any one of the trio or trinity is wonderfully helpful in establishing a communication with the world of spirits.

That the rise of Spiritualism in this city has been of marked benefit to the churches here is proven by the fact that they have taken on more life and vigor, built new and remodeled several old edifices, and raised the salaries of their preachers. All this enterprise is due to the fact that Spiritualism has demonstrated to them that death does not end all—that there is verily a future state of existence, and that their 'faith' and 'hope' may now be lost in knowledge of immortality.

I tell you, Brother Francis, the churches are feeling the influence of Spiritualism, whether or not they give Spiritualism the credit thereof. But no matter. Spiritualism is magnanimous, and is willing to forego the credit of stimulating the churches.

One of our Spiritualists this very morning, March 2d, got into a conversation with a minister of the Christian church (President Garfield's church), in the course of which the said minister indirectly acknowledged the influence of Spiritualism in this city, by the statement that most of the members of the First Presbyterian Church of this city were Spiritualists. And thus the good work goes on. When the churches become enabled to demonstrate the truth of a future existence—when knowledge and fact shall displace their "hope" and "faith," we can then be certain of a more rapid advance of our beautiful science, philosophy and religion.

H. V. SWERINGEN.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75c. For sale at this office.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Voltaire's Romances." translated from the French. With numerous illustrations. These lighter works of the brilliant Frenchman, and invincible enemy of the Catholic Church, are worthy of wide reading. Wit, philosophy and romance are combined, with the skill of a master mind. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango County, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15c.

CHURCH ACTIVITY.

A LESSON FOR SPIRITUALISTS—IT IS COMMENDED TO THEIR SPECIAL ATTENTION.

To the Editor:—Some time ago I happened to pick up a newspaper containing an account of the Baptist State Association for Oregon, for the year 1896, and from it I take the following figures showing the activity of a single orthodox denomination in this State:

"Nineteen missionaries have been under appointment during the year and have served twenty-five churches and seventeen out stations; they gave 954 weeks of labor, preached 2,747 sermons, conducted 1,204 prayer-meetings and made 5,352 religious visits. They received over 400 members into the churches, organized seven churches and four Sunday-schools, distributed forty-eight bibles and 22,149 pages of tracts. All this at a total cost of $8,389.30. The missionaries were paid $6,149.43. Within the territory covered by the convention there are 97 churches with an approximate membership of 6,321."

The field of operation covers a large area, our total population is comparatively small and scattered, and yet this one denomination has secured in this field from its members and sympathizers more money than the reputed millions of Spiritualists contributed to sustain the work of the National Spiritualists' Association during the same time. It seems to me every report of this character contains lessons for us Spiritualists. Evidently the orthodox people are more zealous in spreading their doctrines than are we. Why do the people accept these teachings? Because they know nothing better. The majority of them are entirely ignorant of the spiritual philosophy.

How can the work be hastened? I see but one way, and that is by doing as the churches do—utilize organization. Scattered forces are powerless; united, all-powerful. We are convinced we have something that is better for the individual and the world than the churches possess. Every incentive that should appeal to a philanthropic soul importunes us to spread the truth which has brightened our lives. Selfishness alone would indicate another course.

We already have a representative organization that has done good work as far as it has been able, and the National Spiritualists' Association can be made to represent the strength of Spiritualism in this great nation, if every individual will stand by and lend what assistance he may. It will bring out latent forces, dormant energies, the united strength of which will astonish the world.

We have an organization, and what shall we do? Shall we stand back, and, because our individual ideas have not been adopted in every instance, criticise and condemn all that is done? Or shall we lay hold with a hearty good will, cast prejudice, selfishness, personal likes and dislikes aside and labor for the good of all? If we do our best to help the work along, we at once step into a position where criticism is our individual right and duty if it be honestly made with right motives: to correct an evil, or to point out better methods in order that the work may be made more effective.

If every Spiritualist who reads this article will constitute himself or herself a committee on ways and means and proceed at once to interest a few friends in the noble work of the Association, and induce them to join together in making a contribution toward its encouragement, and send the result to the secretary at Washington, Mr. F. B. Woodbury, you will be surprised and delighted at the activity which will ensue in association work. The mere thought that the Association may be crippled for want of funds is unpleasant, and need never be entertained if those claiming to be Spiritualists only have a mind that it shall not be so.

I have not read, or heard a single argument as yet against a national association, or against the organization of Spiritualists, and the support of such organization, that did not appeal, either directly or by implication, to selfish motives.

Having at one time been an orthodox preacher myself, and accustomed to the exercise, I expect to "take a collection" for the N. S. A. next Sunday.

WALTER P. WILLIAMS.

SOUND — VIBRATION — THE EAR.

To the Editor:—Weekly when I receive the Thinker my first impulse is to turn to the questions, and the replies thereto by our worthy Brother Hudson Tuttle. Many of his answers are discreet, noble and grand. I have often wished I could be placed in a position where I could do a tithe of the good done by those noble workers Hudson and Emma Rood Tuttle.

In answer to a question by A. O. Brown in the Thinker of January 2nd, I think our good brother must in haste have overlooked the exact measure of the question. The statement by Mr. Savage, which Mr. B. impugns, is almost axiomatic; his misunderstanding must surely arise from malremembrance of the definition of sound. After stating that Mr. S. said there would be no such thing as sound if there were no ears, Mr. B. paralyzes us by saying "This is equivalent to saying if there were no ears there would be no vibrations; and if no vibrations no life!" No such inference can possibly be legitimate. By mutual consent sound is defined to be that impression which is made on the tympanum by vibrations; not the vibrations per se. Surely one ought not to say that because the object moved by these vibrations is absent, the virbrations could not exist. Must be borne in mind that the vibrations which produce sound are vastly different from the sound itself. The sound is that which produces a certain effect on the auditory nerve, while the vibrations above would produce sensations entirely different. To illustrate; suppose as you are standing at the side of a mighty cataract the tympanum were utterly paralyzed; surely to you there would be no sound; yet the vibrations would produce a certain effect on the nervous system. Here, then we easily discriminate between the sound and the vibrations, and if there is no ear in the vicinity there could not possibly be any sound by reason of the definition.

I hardly think the subject in demand of further elucidation, yet pardon me for introducing just a single illustration. When small particles are set free from the petals and stamens of the fragrant rose, no one would think of calling them —smell or odor; for odor is the name applied to the effect produced on the refined mesh of the olfactory nerve.

Furthermore our inquiring brother in some way inclines to the opinion (seemingly) that the statement of Mr. Savage would lead to the conclusion that is there were no ear there would be no life! Surely it is only a limited number of vibrations producing life that affect the ear. B. R. ANDERSON.

"Mediumship and Its Development, and How to Mesmerize to Assist Development." By W. H. Bach. Especially useful to learners who seek to know and utilize the laws of mediumship and development, and avoid errors. Price, cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents.

HERESY,
... OR ...
LED TO THE LIGHT.

A Thrilling, Psychological Story of Evangelization and Free Thought. It is to Protestantism what the "Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism.

BY HUDSON TUTTLE.

The distinguished author, Hudson Tuttle, requires no introduction to the readers of The Progressive Thinker, but the following headings of chapters will show them what they may expect from the book:

CONTENTS:—An Idyl — Fordham — Building the Church—The Evangelist—Blood—The Saloon—The Lost Daughter—Law—The Harvest of Souls—Jane Grey—The Mother of Cain—Evolution—Stella—The Cell—Death—A Step Forward—The Home Circle—The Double Role—Heresy—Annette—The Bank Robbery—All Is Well That Ends Well—The New Church—The New Way; Led to the Light.

Every chapter is devoted to one idea, and the whole presents so many tableaux moving onward to the climax. The lavish career of the revivalist is contrasted with the character of the honest minister and the thinking agnostic. The steps by which a preacher emerges from the church, and the difficulties he meets are graphically presented. The new church and progressive lyceum evolved out of the old, form an interesting study to those seeking new methods.

It is a beautiful volume of 223 pages, and the price in accordance with our new departure, is 80 cents, postpaid, or five copies for $1.25. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

THE MEDIUMISTIC
Experiences of John Brown,
The Medium of the Rockies, with an Introduction by
PROF. J. S. LOVELAND.

This book should be in the hands of every one interested in Spiritualism.

Chapter 1, Notoriety; Early Mediumship. Chapter 2, The Heavenly Mansion. Chapter 3, Removal to California; Return of His Guide. Chapter 4, Remarkable Tests. Chapter 5, His Work as a Healer. Chapter 6, Leaves the Body. Chapter 7, Visit to the Spirit-Land. Chapter 8, Methods Used by Spirits to Communicate; How to Conduct a Circle. Chapter 9, Miscellaneous Articles. Chapter 10, A Strange Experience. Chapter 11, Remarkable Manifestation of Spirit Power. Chapter 12, New Experiences—Illustrative of Prophetic Visions. Chapter 13, The First Break in the Atlantic Cable Shown to John Brown. Chapter 14, Unseen Opposition. Chapter 15, Ole-podrida.

For sale at this office. Heavy paper cover, price 50 cents.

THE UNKNOWN LIFE
—OF—
Jesus Christ
—BY—
NICOLAS NOTOVITCH.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

Since the writing of the New Testament no book has appeared of as great importance to Christianity as the Unknown Life of Jesus Christ.

This volume, written by the discoverer of the manuscript, contains a thrilling account of the privations and perils encountered in his search for it, a literal translation of the original manuscript, and lastly a critical analysis of what it contains.

This work contains 185 neatly printed pages, and is published on the beds of combining cheapness and excellence. Price, neatly bound, one dollar. Paper cover, price 25 cents, postage 5 cents.

Address this office, 40 Loomis St., Chicago, Ill.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.
A Fascinating Work.

The readers of The Progressive Thinker will remember the story under the above title, by Hudson Tuttle, which was published in its columns. At the time, constant inquiries were made as to its appearing in book form. This wish has now been gratified. It makes a volume of 243 pages, in style and form like the "Convent of the Sacred Heart," with a finely-engraved likeness of the author on the cover. The scenes of the story alternately shift from earth to the spirit spheres, and the philosophy of Spiritualism, the occupation and modes of life of spiritual beings, are presented in the pleasing form of narrative.

The following are the chapter-titles: Introduction; The House of the Sage; Home of the Miser; The Low Societies; Hades; Christmastide in the Spheres of Light; Christmastide and the Golden Gate; The Unhappy Marriage; Easter Day in Heaven; A Visit to the Earth; The Change Called Death; Coming to the Knowledge of the Light; The Society Again Visits Earth; The Forsaken and Despised; Discussion; A Visit to a Distant Globe; Reunion in the Spirit-world; Contentedness Not Goodness; Address of the Sage.

It is a book the Spiritualist will be delighted with; a book in which the investigator will find answers to ever-recurring questions; a book which will interest the church member, nor repel the most prejudiced. The price in paper is 50 cents; muslin $1; postpaid.

ENCYCLOPEDIA
... OF ...
BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM
... OR ...
A CONCORDANCE

To the principal passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism;

Together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible.

BY MOSES HULL.

Much that is in this book appeared in an abridged form in a series of nine full pages of The Progressive Thinker. These articles were prepared at the call of hundreds of Spiritualists who felt the need of some kind of document for ready reference. They only seemed to whet the appetite for more; hence the publication of this work.

The author, Moses Hull, has written many volumes on Spiritualististic and other themes and each one is full of careful study on the subject chosen. Mr. Hull, in his introduction of this work says:

"Hoping that this book will serve to lead the people out of the wilderness of doubt and despair; and that when Spiritualism shall have wrested the Bible from its 'sanctified' enemies, it will not 'spike' it, but will use it to batter down the walls of Christian superstition and ignorance, I send it out on its errand of enlightenment with the humble prayer that it will prove a divine benediction to every reader."

The Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism contains 385 pages, beautifully printed on good paper, contains a full-page portrait of the author and is handsomely bound in cloth. Every Spiritualist should have this work.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Molecular Hypothesis
OF NATURE.

BY PROF. W. M. LOCKWOOD.

The only treatise ever offered the reading and thinking public in the interest of modern Spiritualism, that is absolutely free from the theories of superstition, and which

Demonstrates continuity of life and our environment of spiritual influences, from the data of modern physical and physiological science.

To the Spiritualist, an impregnable foundation of scientific data and verified facts.

To the materialist and skeptic, a revelation of the invisible energies operative in Nature's formula of evolution.

To the ecclesiastic, a new heaven and a new earth. A book to read, to study and think about. A condensed volume of scientific information for 25 cents. Address your orders to

The Progressive Thinker, 40 Loomis street, Chicago, Ill.

THE COMING
AMERICAN CIVIL WAR.

BY BURTON AMES HUNTINGTON.

This excellent book is written in the interest of humanity, of liberty, and of patriotism—a book written for the purpose of calling attention to the deadly dangers that beset us on every side, and more especially to the hostile attitude and the insidious wiles of an ever-present, though secret, unscrupulous foe—the Catholics. Washington's words of warning, Lincoln's apprehension and the prophecy of General Grant are all included in the volume. Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, in a recent sermon said: "The church tolerates heretics where she is obliged to do so, but she hates them with a deadly hatred, and uses all her power to annihilate them. Our enemies know how she treated heretics in the Middle Ages, and how she treats them today where she has the power. We no more think of denying these historic facts than we do of blaming the Holy Ghost and the princes of the church for what they have thought fit to do." Every one should read this work. Paper, 300 pages. It will be sent, postpaid, for fifty cents. For sale at this office.

COSMIAN HYMN BOOK.
A COLLECTION OF
Original and Selected Hymns

For Liberal and Ethical Societies, for Schools and the Home.

COMPILED BY L. K. WASHBURN.

This volume meets a public want. It comprises 288 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. Sold at this office.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year.....$1.00
Clubs of ten (a copy to the one getting up the club).....7.50
Thirteen weeks.....25cts
Single copy.....5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1897.

WARNING FROM MRS. RICHMOND.

Spiritualists and mediums, arouse! Now is the time to defeat this measure of oppression, and to show that the "gifts of the spirit" are not to be classed with fortune-telling and conjuring. See your alderman at once.

CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

AN UNFORTUNATE CONCESSION.

An Agnostic suicided in New York the other day, and the news was flashed over the country that "a student of the writings of Robert G. Ingersoll has put into practice the Colonel's oft-repeated theory that a man is justified in taking his own life under certain circumstances." Though many thousands of deaths occur annually in this country by self-inflicted causes, embracing multitudes of persons holding every form of religious belief, including large numbers of preachers in high standing in the churches, yet because an old recluse, wholly alone, decrepit and subsisting on the charity of those who knew his moral worth sees proper to "shuffle off this mortal coil," Col. Ingersoll must be held up to public derision as responsible for the sacrifice of a human life. The Progressive Thinker has no desire to say one word in defense of Col. Ingersoll, or his position, that those afflicted with incurable diseases, or whose sufferings are greater than the pleasures of life, have a right to do as they please with the brief term left them, yet it may be permitted to say that it has no sympathy with those who single out the Agnostic for censure, and pass by silently the legions of deaths by churchmen who take their own lives because ashamed to face the world for the crimes they have committed, or the friends they have deceived.

It is to be regretted the Colonel saw fit to make the concessions he did, as it was apparent from the first his motive would be impugned. It would have been better if Christians were not able to cite Agnostic authority in justification of suicide when they wished to rush unbidden into the spiritual world.

HANDS OFF.

Forty-eight German societies held a sort of convention in this city recently, and discussed the pending proposition for the State to furnish free school books for the children. They favored the measure, but put on record the following, which, if carried into practical operation, will rob the measure of its real object, which was to advance the interests of sectarianism, by instilling into the minds of youth while yet in its plastic state, the narrow creeds of bigots:

"Resolved, That in the books to be given to the school children for free use the principle of separating church and State, acknowledged by our Constitution, must remain intact, and that said books must also abstain from any allusions to religion and teachings of the church, and that the infamous law of 1889, which allows school teachers to agitate for the cause of the Prohibitionists by lectures about the influence of alcoholic drinks upon the health and to ridicule and attack the reasonable German style of living, shall have no echo in those school books."

The position is a correct one. The State, representing every form of religion and no-religion, must keep its hands off from religious matters, else the country is soon involved in interminable strife.

WAS HE INSANE?

A great reformer who has spent the best years of his life in doing good, must feel extremely mortified to have his motives misrepresented, and his friends alienated from him without cause. Of course we can't know all the facts, but it seems contemptibly mean to have "the friends" of our Lord, while he was on earth, and actively engaged in forwarding his mission, charge him with insanity. It seems the severest blow of all. Death at the hands of enemies would not be so crushing as such a terrible charge—the wreck of the mind. Very few, perhaps none of our readers, will recall this humiliating charge made against the dear Savior by his disciples, but turn to Mark iii:21, and read:

"And when his friends heard of it, they went out to lay hold of him, for they said, he is beside himself."

What had the friends of the dear Jesus "heard of" that produced such action and expression on their part? Simply, the multitudes had followed and pressed so sorely on his friends that they could not eat bread. This is the way Mark told it; but we strongly suspicion that there was more to it than the romancer recorded. We wish Matthew, Luke or John had made some mention of the event; they, probably, would have been more explicit had the incident come under their observation.

AHEAD OF US.

The Russians are colonizing the whole of their vast Asian possessions and carrying with them everywhere the "mir" or self-governing village, wherein women who are heads of households are permitted to vote.

A BRAZEN INSULT

TO THE FORTY THOUSAND SPIRITUALISTS IN THE CITY OF CHICAGO.

An Alderman Wants to Impose a Heavy License on the Mediums of this City, and thus Close the Many Meetings and Churches Controlled by the Spiritualists.

The Alderman Does Not Know, Probably, that Many of the Mediums of Chicago Are Regularly Ordained Ministers of the Gospel, and the Peers, in the Eyes of the Law, of any Catholic, Presbyterian or Christian Minister, Pastor or Bishop.

The Chicago Record of March 2, contained the following:

"Ald. Gazzolo believes that persons who gain a livelihood by dealing in things mysterious should divide their professional fees with the city. In accordance with this belief he introduced an ordinance obliging any person engaged in the business of fortune teller, by card or otherwise, clairvoyant, astrologer, palmist, Spiritualistic mediums, trance mediums, occultist, phrenologist, or hypnotist, shall pay a quarterly license of $50, or an annual license of $200. The measure was referred to the license committee."

WORDS ADDRESSED TO THE ALDERMEN OF CHICAGO, WHO WILL BE CALLED UPON TO CONSIDER THE MEASURE INTRODUCED BY MR. GAZZOLO, WHICH PROPOSES THAT ALL MEDIUMS SHALL PAY AN EXORBITANT LICENSE—A MEASURE THAT RESTRICTS RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, AND IS AN OPEN INSULT TO THE 10,000,000 OF SPIRITUALISTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Without launching out into an exhaustive and tiresome definition of the word "religion" as per Webster, suffice it to mean, practically, "a system of divine worship." Some authorities use the expression: "faith and worship."

FORMS OF WORSHIP.

We have little regard, in this enlightened age, for the set definition, or skeleton meaning of ancient words or terms, and as regards the worship of a God, every man and woman in this and every other age has some form of worship or something they admire; something they adore; something their soul reaches out to with a love that is true and divine, whether they recognize the existence of soul or not; those aspirations are a birthright and it only needs the proper conditions, the proper elements to uplift the ever-yearning soul or internal divine center of man.

'Tis said religion means "a system of divine faith and worship;" not a "certain system," but any system, and as it is not our purpose here to criticise any of the former or the present systems, pardon this one general allusion.

BLIND FAITH—EVOLUTION.

The religions of the past nineteen hundred years have based their entire various systems on mere faith, without one iota of living tangible proof of even the authenticity of the record of supposed occurrences. Faith must have something essentially substantial preceding it nowadays—blind faith is fast losing its hold upon the mind of man; mere assertions seem to have fed the hungry hordes for hundreds upon hundreds of years ere the spiritual began to be allowed to manifest, before love of power, that great ambition to rule, would or could give way to reason and equality; but in this nineteenth century, in this age of reason, in this period of progress and evolution, this thinking, this experimenting, this busy, hustling era, there must be something to show that is reliable; something we can see; something we can feel with our fingers, something we can hear with our ears; something provable to some of the senses of man, or there can be but little faith.

MODERN SPIRITUALISM AND ITS GRANDEUR.

Never, until the advent of modern Spiritualism, has there been anything but the outcroppings of the imagination of some one, some mind that had reached a little higher unfoldment of the spirit, to base any system of religion upon. There are few people who pause to reflect upon their final day upon the earth plane, who do not either believe in or hope for an existence beyond the grave To such Spiritualism stands ever ready, with her multifarious avenues for investigation, her great variety of manifestations to demonstrate the immortality of the soul of man, the retention of an identity after what is called death, and the possibility of communication with the loved ones still in the mortal form; ready with proof too palpable to be ignored by the greatest minds in the world; ready with a truth that is plausible and within easy reach of every thinking, reasoning, inquiring man and woman; to the children who can only see and hear; to the unlearned in philosophy, to the student and the learned. In its upreaching arms there lies the babe of the sorrowing mother who mourned because no evidence could be adduced elsewhere that her darling still lived; the infant speaks and tells her when it was born and where; and when, where and how it passed out, and tells her, as it wipes away her scalding tears, to weep no more; that life is real over there as well as here, and it has been to school and is unfolding into maturity the same as it would here with every advantage fitted to its desire and receptivity, and the mother is pacified. In its down-reaching hand it grasps the dirty palm of a gutter victim, and bids him shake off his coat of slime and filth, and see that there is a spark divine within that is as pure as others less enslaved and encumbered with earth conditions, and he finds consolation and encouragement to stimulate the little aspiration left from the wreck, and starts onward and upward; if only to stumble and fall, he is again and again hoisted and given strength in words of hope and cheer and all that is for him upon this plane and in the great beyond.

Then is there anything in Spiritualism that is high and grand: buoyant, succoring, sublime or divine?

THE SOUL ANSWERS YES,

no odds how low and heedless of the fact has been its life; no matter how selfish and encrusted has been its only motive. There can be no need of system nor of creed in true religion, and when one is formulated it is ever found too small and narrow for so voluminous and expansive an article.

Nature and natural phenomena are the divine and the effects of divinity, and Spiritualism recognizes therein as great and mighty, as good and true a God as has ever been imagined in the past and there held, or carved in stone, or wood, or made of brass, or shining gold, and her devotees are sincere in their worship.

THIS PHILOSOPHY.

If there is not in this philosophy of life something above and beyond anything else in the world to appease that craving in man to know the future, to see what is beyond the mystic veil for him, a hope that is full of fruition, why all this investigation and tenacity to what he finds? Had we nothing tangible to cling to and absorb; nothing to supply the demands of natural aspirations; nothing to arouse the admiration or adoration of man; nothing but a stone to cast when the cry is for bread; nothing but belief without evidence, we might need a creed to unite us; but as a whole we are united through the evidence already obtained upon the one plank or corner stone: "The eternity of life."

IMPORTANT DEDUCTIONS.

There are many other points quite universally held beneath the broad canopy of Spiritualism, viz.:

That death is the separation of the spirit—the ego and its spiritual form—from the physical body, and does not in the least affect the attainments, feelings, emotions or faculties; that man is a spirit, flesh-clad, and as such walks the courts of heaven and stands in the presence of the universal spirit, God, in earth-life as much as he will after death. Hence, the knowledge, attainments and experience of that earth-life form the character of his future existence, bring his just award. That the departed or disembodied spirit can, under favorable conditions communicate with remaining friends.

FORGIVENESS—REFORMATION.

We believe there is no arbitrary decree, final judgment-day or atonement for wrong, or forgiveness except through the reformation of the wrong-doer, by suffering the just penalty and gaining a spiritual culture and growth; that the individualized spirit is the reality and highest type of creative energy; it is divine and endowed with infinite possibilities and capabilities, and thereby all mankind are united in brotherhood, with a common destiny.

OUR OBJECT AND PHENOMENA.

Our object is the highest cultivation of the physical, intellectual, moral and spiritual possibilities in man by the presentation to his reason of the most exalted motives, thereby encouraging the loftiest aspirations, prompting the highest endeavor and inculcating self-reliance, and where the environments of the flesh do not predominate too strongly, so much as to smother and subdue all aspiration, we find the results are purity, nobility and magnanimity of life; constant striving to actualize an ideal to perfect life in this world preparatory for that in the next; living to live instead of to die; living to aid some one in need that they may rise; working for some one else's pleasure; envying no one a great gain nor rivaling in an attainment for vain-glory. In our phenomena we are not only proving what we preach, but we are presenting to the world the only proof of the possibility of the many wonders and so-called miracles recorded in the Bible. For instance, our independent slate-writing is proof that such a man as Moses might have received and much more valuable information on tablets of stone. We have, at any first-class seance for that purpose, ample proof, under strict test conditions, of the transfiguration phenomena, also the materialization phase recorded in ancient history. The clairvoyance of past ages is one of the most common phases of modern mediumship. The fire-test mediumship of to-day is very good substantiation of the possibility that Moses saw a flame of fire around a burning bush that remained unscorched," or that Abraham might have seen a smoking furnace and "lamp of fire," or that a "pillar of fire" might have guided the Israelites out of Egypt, and that "cloven tongues of fire" might have sat upon the Apostles. In fact, there is but little recorded in the Bible as miraculous that has not been performed since the advent of modern Spiritualism, by or through the mediums, and although some of the means by which many of these phenomena are performed are unsolvable by man, either from lack of perception or sentiency, or that the means, though governed by natural law, are too high and spiritual for the present growth, there is but one conclusion that as yet has been arrived at, and that is: "If the phenomena actually occurred in the past as recorded, where is there any more tangible proof of it than is presented through the various mediums of to-day? And can their evidence not be taken as prima facie when they, with their living, positive proof, can be consulted and their reliability placed beyond question, as mediums, along with the mere history that has no proof aside from these phenomena?

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

SPIRITUALISM IS A RELIGION,

if ever there was a religion founded. Many think there must be a creed or there can be no religion, but our standard authors claim there is no real, fixed definition to the word, and that matter is regulated, as it were, by the drift of the tide. The last, from the late Century Dictionary, reads thus: "The healthful development and right life of the spiritual nature as contrasted with that of the more intellectual and social powers." Also: "A conscientious scruple," and if there are no worshipful qualities, no divine inspiration, no touch of heaven's sweetest sacredness, no healthful development and right life taught, no conscientious scruples to be garnered and possessed in the philosophy and phenomena of true Spiritualism, there is nothing to be gained from any religion, and the inroads it is making into the pulpits and literature of all other religions to-day give evidence of its rapid acceptance by a hungry people.

SPIRITUALISM HAS COME QUIETLY and unorganized into the home, into the pulpit, into the scientific world, unostentatiously, unawed by hoots and jeers, undaunted by the deep-dyed prejudice of superstition, unangered and undisturbed by bitterest opposition. The fact that we have now a membership up in the millions within forty-nine years, is an evidence of substantiality worthy of note, and Spiritualism now ranks among other religions in the land as a power for good, and in twenty years, judging of the future by the past, our present numbers will be doubled.

The immortal Thomas Paine just about spoke our creed in the words: "The world is my country and to do good my religion."

A WIDELY KNOWN MEDIUM.

The above constitutes only a brief exposition of Spiritualism and its grand philosophy. There are about twenty societies in Chicago, the pastor of one being vice-president of the National Association of Spiritualists, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. She is a regularly ordained Minister of the Gospel, and pastor of the Church of the Soul which has had large congregations during the past two years at the Schiller Theatre. She is a medium and if the above odious measure introduced by Alderman Gazzolo becomes a law, she will have to take out a license in order to officiate as minister of the gospel. She has a reputation that is world wide, and her lectures and sermons have attracted the attention of some of the ablest minds of London, Eng., as well as those of this country. She is the author of several volumes which have circulated widely in this country and Europe. Think of a Chicago Alderman desiring to impose a license on her! What consummate folly!

PRESIDENT McKINLEY.

Only a few years ago he was Governor of Ohio, and he did one act for which he will always receive the thanks and careful consideration of Spiritualists. Take note of it, Aldermen of Chicago: A bill was pending in the Legislature of Ohio, during the spring of 1893, which, like the plan of Alderman Gazzolo was calculated to abridge the rights of clairvoyants and seers (who are also mediums), and make their lives intolerable in Ohio. At the time we received the following letter:

To the Editor:—The enclosed letter from the Governor of Ohio, Major McKinley, explains itself. You are at liberty to make such use of it as the situation may suggest, and then return to me, with the other letter sent a few days since. It seems to indicate that my letter to the Governor, and the clipping from The Progressive Thinker, have done their work.

C. H. MATHEWS.

New Philadelphia, Ohio.

STATE OF OHIO.

Executive Department.

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR.

Columbus, April 6, 1893.

C. H. Mathews, Esq., New Philadelphia, Ohio.

My Dear Sir:—Referring to your letter of the 31st of March, complaining of a certain section in what is known as the Bruck law, I am directed by the Governor to say that he has given consideration to the matter complained of, and begs to inform you that to-day an amendment was passed in the Senate expunging from the Bruck law the words "clairvoyants" and "seers." This amendment was offered by Senator Lampson.

Very respectfully,
JAMES BOYLE,
Private Secretary.

JUST THINK OF IT,

Aldermen of Chicago, Governor McKinley would not allow the rights of the humblest citizen of Ohio to be trampled on, and when the efforts were made to practically banish mediums from Ohio by an odious discriminating law, he promptly gave the legislature to understand that he would not be a party to any such infamous measure. It has been left for an Alderman of Chicago to try to abridge religious freedom, for many of the mediums of Chicago are regularly ordained ministers of the gospel, in good standing, and are doing a grand work for humanity. Through the heroic instrumentality of the then Governor McKinley, Ohio now stands forth redeemed and every medium should extend to him their heart-felt thanks. It now remains for Chicago Aldermen to defeat the measure introduced by Mr. Gazzolo.

SPIRITUALISM IS A RELIGION—THE VIEWS OF AN EMINENT LAWYER.

The following from Francis J. Lippitt, eminent as a jurist, and residing in Washington, D. C., speaks for itself. We call the attention of the friends of the Gazzolo measure to it.

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS, WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA:

Gentlemen:—The evening News of March 9, 1893 announced that you are called upon to impose a license tax on "spirit seances," as being entertainments or exhibitions at which an admission fee is charged at the door. I respectfully ask your attention to the following suggestion:

1. Those who want these meetings suppressed believe (honestly, no doubt) that the manifestations occurring at them are fraudulent. But if this be true (even had you legal authority to decide them to be so), you cannot impose a tax upon them at all. Swindling, like any other crime, cannot be licensed, but must be left to be punished by the law of the land.

2. In this District no license tax can be imposed on an entertainment or meeting for a religious or a charitable purpose; and the sole question is whether the meetings or seances you are called upon to tax are either for a religious or a charitable purpose.

The character of a public entertainment depends, of course, on its object or subject-matter. Now, the sole object of these seances is well known to be the demonstration of the great and solemn truth of a life after death; a truth which is the most important of all religious tenets, because it constitutes the very foundation of all religious teachings; a truth that until lately had no stronger evidence to support it than argument and reasonings more or less probable.

Now, will it be pretended that meetings for the sole purpose of unanswerably proving to all the truth of a future state of existence through the actual return of those who have passed through the change called death, are not meetings or entertainments for a religious purpose?

3. The fact of a charge being usually made for admission is wholly immaterial. No religious meetings can be kept up without money contributions, either by a charge for admission or in the form of pew rents. Indeed, it is for this reason that throughout our land the great masses of the poor are excluded from attendance at any religious services whatever. And if spirit mediums devote their whole lives to "bringing life and immortality to light," they are as much entitled to eat and to be clothed as church rectors with salaries of thousands of dollars. Respectfully,

FRANCIS J. LIPPITT.

Washington, March 13.

It is needless to say that the proposition to license or tax mediums in the District of Columbia was defeated. The movement to accomplish this nefarious purpose was a relic of barbarism, and the law-makers there so regarded it.

HORRIBLE RECORDS

The honorable members of the City Council of Chicago are requested to consider the above. Don't, for God's sake, have your honorable names connected in any way with restricting religious freedom in any manner whatever. In the early days of this republic you remember how supposed witches were treated at Salem, Mass. You remember how Mary Dyer was tortured to death for entertaining views opposed to existing religions. Roger Williams was banished because he was considered a heretic. Look back in the past, as detailed by Dr. Arter:

"In the expatriation of the Moorish nation from Spain, about one million human beings were hunted down like wild beasts and murdered. The loss of human life by the crusades was not less than five millions, when the earth was reddened with blood, and strewn with human skulls. How many thousand Jews were murdered by religious sects opposed to them can never be told or known. They have been robbed, plundered, hanged head downwards, and torn to pieces by dogs. They have been impaled and burned by thousands; hundreds of thousands were expelled by Queen Isabella; tens of thousands perished from hunger, while tens of thousands were murdered. Many made their escape into Portugal, having their children under fourteen years of age taken from them, to be educated in the Christian faith. The schism of Huss cost one hundred and fifty thousand lives. Queen Mary, of England, burned two hundred and eighty persons at the stake, because of their religious views.

"In the Netherlands, in the time of King Charles V., it is estimated that one hundred thousand were put to death for their faith, and thousands more during the reign of his heartless son. The ferocity may be inferred from the fact that a sentence of holy office was passed, dated February 16, 1568, condemning all the inhabitants of the Netherlands to death, as heretics. A proclamation of the king confirmed the decree, and ordered their execution, under which 300,000 people were sentenced to the scaffold.

"In Spain alone 31,000 were burned, and 290,000 condemned to other kinds of punishment.

"How many have been destroyed for the supposed crime of witchcraft, can never be computed; 7,000 were burned in Treves by one bishop alone. Nine thousand were burned in Wartsburgh, one thousand in the province of Como, in Italy. One bishop alone condemned 8,000 to be executed as witches. In New England, our own country, thirteen women and six men were hanged as witches, and they were as innocent of any wrong, as is now admitted, as the angels of heaven; whilst others perished by different methods. An old man of eighty years was crushed to death under a board loaded with stone. Multitudes were thrown into prison, and puritanical teachings encouraged superstition. In condemning two women, as witches, to be hanged, Sir Matthew Hale said there was no doubt as to the reality of witchcraft, for the Scriptures affirmed it. John Wesley was very sorry that there was so little belief in witchcraft; giving up witchcraft was like giving up the Bible.

"'The history of witchcraft in Scotland is terrible. The clergy had almost absolute control, which they used to convict men and women for imaginary crimes, because their Bible commanded: "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live."

We ask you, honorable members of the Chicago City Council, to consider the above facts, and not to enact any law that shall in any manner restrict religious freedom. To do so would establish a sort of kinship with the religious persecutions of the past. Expurge from Alderman Gazzolo's measure anything and every thing that relates to mediums.

POINTS IN SPIRITUALISM.

Spiritualists generally entertain in common the following:

1. One overruling power, termed God, or Law.
2. A knowledge that the spirit or soul survives the death of the body.
3. That spirits can and do return and communicate with mortals.
4. Spirits return to earth and communicate through clairvoyants, through those who are clairaudient, through materializations, independent slate-writing, trance mediumship, and many other processes.
5. Trance mediumship is common in Spiritualism. There are at least 250 trance mediums in this State alone.
6. Spiritualism is a religion and philosophy. The forecasting of future events by a medium is merely the expression of an opinion, the same as is uttered from the pulpits everywhere. When a trance medium forecasts the future, it is only the humble opinion of the controlling spirit, who judges from appearances, surroundings and circumstances, that in a certain undertaking, Mr. A or B will have a pleasant and profitable time, etc., etc. When Dr. Thomas or any other minister of the gospel forecasts the trend of public opinion, and says that our city will, at the next election, elect the Republican ticket, or the Citizen ticket, or the Democratic ticket, they are forecasting the future, and should they be licensed as fortune tellers, in common with mediums?

There are 40,000 Spiritualists in Chicago alone, and perhaps 50,000 in other parts of the State. There are none in our asylums for the insane; none of them keep grog-shops; none of them are in the Joliet penitentiary, Madame Ava, who was sent to Joliet, being a member of the Catholic church.

Spiritualists as a class are the most orderly and moral people on this earth, as is shown by well-authenticated statistics.

BLACK SHEEP — THEY ARE FOUND IN THE CHURCH—THEY ARE FOUND IN SPIRITUALISM.

It is the great misfortune of every religious sect to have some notorious barnacles associated with it. There seems to be a Judas connected with every important reformatory movement. That Spiritualism has its share of disreputable members no one will for a moment doubt. The fact, however, that there are, comparatively speaking, no Spiritualists in our penitentiaries, no Spiritualists in the asylums for the insane, and no Spiritualists engaged in retailing intoxicants, should have great weight with the honorable Aldermen of Chicago. We believe it will. We compiled in a few days from the Chicago daily papers about thirty cases of disreputable conduct of ministers of the gospel and church members. The following are the heads of some of them: "Many Serious Charges against the Rev. Mr. Bayliss!" "A Colored Preacher Fired!" "A Rev. Horse-thief!" "A Clergyman Charged with Abduction!" "Arresting a Preacher!" "A Preacher Deposed!" "A Preacher Found Guilty of Immorality!" "A Pugilistic Pastor!" Death of Rev. Robt. T. Peson from Remorse!" "Charges Against a Preacher Result in the Disbanding of his Congregation!" "A Nebraska Minister on Trial for Improper Conduct in the Pulpit!" "A Pastor's Disgrace!" "A Pastor Punished!"

Now, we could go on culling the heads from daily papers throughout the country showing that every religion has its many black sheep, far more than Spiritualism. But we do not wish to throw mud; it is ungentlemanly; but if one asserts that Spiritualism should be suppressed, and its ministers of the gospel be compelled to pay a license, what else can we do but show facts? There has been among the 10,000,000 Spiritualists but one murder during its existence of forty-nine years. They are the most moral people as a class on this earth today.

No one has a greater admiration for pure and undefiled religion than we have, No one has a greater appreciation of the magnificent results flowing from charity in the church than we have. Through the instrumentality of its benevolent institutions what a grand and beneficent work is accomplished for humanity; but while such is the case there are hundreds of disreputable persons who attach themselves to the churches and to Spiritualism, without having in their hearts the essence of religion. They, however, can be punished by laws now in existence, and no special legislation is required.

SPIRITUALISM AS REPRESENTED IN THE UNITED STATES—IT HAS 50 CAMP-MEETINGS.

The growth of modern Spiritualism has been phenomenal; it is nothing short of amazing when we consider the nature of the opposition it has had to contend with and overcome. Scientists flouted it; learned doctors, Ph. Ds. and M. Ds. combined to deride and expose it; D. D's condemned it; not many of the learned and wise of this world believed in it; but like the gospel of the Nazarene it found its way into the hearts and homes of the lowly, and won the credence and love of those who were not too proud to own and accept truth even when clad in the garb of an outcast. The little rap at Hydesville reverberated around the world; it found an interpreter; it proved its origin in an individual, intelligent spirit entity; and so proved its claim to recognition and to the homage of human hearts pining for satisfactory knowledge of a future life where the loved and lost should be found and loved again.

And so it has spread, far and wide over the world, until it has ramified all classes of society. From peasant cots to kingly thrones, from beggars to millionaires, and from lowly artisans to kings, queens and emperors, extends an unbroken chain of believers in this philosophy, this faith, this religion of Spiritualism. And yet there are those who sneer at it—and would legislate it out of existence.

Abraham Lincoln, our martyr President, believed in Spiritualism, and consulted mediums; is it possible that there are Aldermen who would persecute him if alive and fine, imprison or license the mediums whose services he sought?

From the three little Fox girls—mere children—the ever-widening wave has spread until now the open adherents of Spiritualism number millions upon millions,

Learned judges on the bench; men renowned in literature and in science; cultured professors and artists; strong professional and business men, have investigated and been confounded and convinced—even against their will, many of them,

It is possible that some of the enemies of Spiritualism, besides being in the dark as to what Spiritualism really is, are also not well informed concerning its standing and strength. There are probably in the United States not less than ten millions of people who believe in the present reality and genuineness of spirit return and manifestation. Many of these quietly hold membership in the various churches, orthodox and unorthodox; but they are believers in Spiritualism all the same. Some of these are mediums, too; in a quiet way making converts among their own friends and in their own churches, and should they be licensed?.

Even one million, or a much smaller number of votes, is a factor not to be sneered at—as any political party, or would-be politician—may find to his or its cost. Spiritualists will not vote for their persecutors.

The Spiritualists of the United States maintain some fifty camp-grounds where camp-meetings are held at some time during the year; and the attendance in many cases runs up into the thousands.

Haslett Park Camp, Mich., has eighteen acres of land, and scores of cottages.

Vicksburg Camp, Mich., occupies a beautiful grove of forty acres. The association has a fine auditorium, a hotel, cottages, lodging-house.

Onset Bay Camp, Mass., has a temple that will seat 1,500 people. There are 500 cottages on the camp proper.

In California, Summerland Camp is regularly organized; and many others are held in different places in the State.

Parkland Camp, Pa., contains 150 acres, with a number of fine cottages, hotel, restaurant, pavilion, etc.

At Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass., there are about 500 cottages built, and more contemplated.

Clinton Camp, Iowa, own nineteen acres of land, and has a pavilion seating about 1,800 people. It is a village in itself.

Delphos Camp, Kansas, besides its present location, owns the most beautiful natural oak grove in the State.

Lily Dale Camp, at Cassadaga, N. Y., has forty acres of finely-wooded land, splendidly located. It is a city in itself, and is widely known and visited.

Anderson Camp, Ind., has 34 acres of land, many cottages, dining-hall lodging-house, and an auditorium seating 1,500 persons.

Lake Brady Camp, Ohio, has nearly 300 acres of land, including a sheet of water occupying about 100 acres.

At Maple Dell and at Ashley, Ohio, are incorporated camps under the auspices of the National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association.

Devil's Lake Camp, Mich., takes its name from the beautiful lake on whose shore it is located.

There are many other camps, not included in this list. These camp-meetings are attended by large numbers; some receive from 5,000 to 7000 visitors, and some even have 20,000 enter their gates on Sunday.

Is it to be supposed that Spiritualism, with its millions of adherents, can be put down and snuffed out by legislation and laws framed for the purpose of persecution, or to impose a license on its mediums, its ministers of the gospel.

It cannot be; it is folly to think it. Not even though the persecutors were armed with the powers and implements of the Inquisition, could it be done.

A few poor mediums may be made to suffer, by oppressing them with a large license fee, but the great cause will move on without halt or momentary rest until the odious measure is repealed.

Consider the above facts, Aldermen of Chicago, and when the measure proposed by Gazzolo comes up, table it, or so modify it that it will in no way be inimical to Spiritualism, or its ministers of the gospel—mediums.

Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

We would call the attention of the aldermen of Chicago, to the following list of meetings held in this city. These meetings are conducted by mediums who are regularly ordained ministers of the gospel, and you might as well impose a license on every pastor of the other churches in the city, whether Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist or any other so-called Christian denomination, as to inflict the burden on mediums, and thus restrict religious freedom.

The Church of the Soul, at Room 412, Masonic Temple, at 8 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, pastor.

The First Spiritual Society of the South Side, New Masonic Temple, 3120 Forest avenue. Services at 2:30 and 7:30. Mrs. Ada Foye lectures and gives tests.

Beacon Light Church, 617 North Clark street, near Burton Place. Services at 2:30 and 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Perkins.

German Spiritualist Society, Gartelman's Hall, 13th street and Ashland avenue. Services at 3 and 8 p. m.

The Spiritual Endeavor Society meets at 1 South Hoyne avenue, 7:45 p. m. Mrs. Sarah E. Bromwell, pastor.

Spiritual Gospel Temple, Hygeia Hall, Washington boulevard and Paulina street. Services at 2.30 and 7:30 p. m.

Home Spiritualist Society, 11 Ada street, at 3 and 8 p. m.

People's Home Association, Bricklayer's Hall 93 South Peoria street. Services at 7.30 p. m.

Brown's Hall, Forty-seventh and State streets. Services at 8 p. m. Lecture and tests by Dr. Harry Abbott, of California.

Society of Spiritual Truth, 887 West Monroe street. Services at 8 p. m.

The First Society of Spiritual Unity will meet Sundays at 11 a. m., 3 and 7:30 p. m., in Washington Hall, 490 Washington boulevard, corner of Ogden avenue. Mrs. Mary C. Lyman, speaker.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, Lakeside Hall, southeast corner Indiana avenue and Thirty-first street, G. V. Cordingley, pastor. Services at 3 and 7.30 p. m. Harry W. Miller, soloist. Children's lyceum at 1:30; Bible class at 2:30.

German Spiritual Society, Hanshman's Hall, 384 W. Division street. Services at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Caroline Drews, medium.

The Church of the Star of Truth meets every Sunday evening, at Wicker Park Building, in the large lodge hall, on North avenue, near corner Milwaukee avenue, North avenue and Robey street. Services at 7:30 p. m. Easily reached from all parts of the city. Max Hoffman, pastor.

Spiritual Church of Love, Faskin's Hall, 3012 Archer avenue. Mrs. E. J. Hanson. Children's lyceum, 2 p. m., followed by developing circle. Spiritual science at 7:30 p. m. Tests at all meetings.

Spiritual meeting every Sunday evening at 7:30, at 2970 Indiana avenue. Conducted by Mrs. Edith E. R. Nickless.

The First Spiritual Society of Kensington holds meetings every Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Lee Norie Claman, pastor.

The Society of Spirit meets every Sunday at Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue. Mrs. Lee Norie Claman, pastor. Sunday-school, 2 p. m., conference, 3 p. m. Lecture, 8 p. m., each meeting followed by messages from loved ones. Good music. All welcome.

The Spiritualist Society, Students of Nature, meet every Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, at the first door from Hooley's Theatre, 151 Randolph street. Mrs. Summers, pastor.

WHAT THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER HAS DONE.

It has been mainly instrumental in defeating two bills introduced into the legislature at Springfield—bills, which, if they had become laws, would have suppressed nearly every form of mediumship in this State. It has also done efficient work in other States—especially Ohio—where like measures were pending. When Gazzolo's plan to license mediums first became known, it at once secured the valuable services of Mr. Jenifer, who visited various parts of the city, sounding the alarm! The Spiritualists and mediums of Chicago owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Jenifer for his efficient services in the past as well as the present. And Spiritualists of Chicago and elsewhere had better commence asking: "What could we do without The Progressive Thinker?" It is always at the front in its efforts to defeat any measure tending to oppress the honest medium. No other dollar Spiritualist paper published in the United States has done one-tenth as much in that direction.

PROMINENT SPIRITUALISTS.

Dr. Thomas, of the People's Church; Rev. M. J. Savage; Geo. H. Hepworth, editor of the New York Herald, and hundreds of others, of equal prominence, are believers in the fundamental principles of Spiritualism. The wife of one of the leading ministers in this city is a medium. Queen Victoria, like President Lincoln, is a Spiritualist. Judge Edmunds, the great jurist, was a Spiritualist. Col. Van Horn, in Congress for the fourth time, and editor of the leading daily paper in Kansas City, Mo., is a pronounced Spiritualist, and takes great pleasure in stating the fact when questioned. Flammarion, the French astronomer, of world-wide reputation, and Prof. Crookes, the great English scientist, are Spiritualists. Did space permit we could give a list of thousands. Yet in face of these facts, an alderman of Chicago would like to suppress Spiritualism, by imposing a heavy license upon its mediums, its ministers of the gospel.

"Arcana of Nature; or the History and Laws of Creation." By Hudson Tuttle. A well-known and most profound treatise. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

SOLON AND MARY.

A SEQUEL TO "Mary Anne Carew," Wife, Mother, Spirit, Angel.

BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA,

AUTHOR OF "THE DISCOVERED COUNTRY," "MARY ANNE CAREW," "PHILIP CARLISLIE," "OCEANIDES," ETC.

COPYRIGHTED BY CARLYLE PETERSILEA.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

A VISIT TO THE SO-CALLED ST. PETER.

SOLON AND MARY PAY A VISIT TO ST. PETER WITHIN THE HEAVENLY SPHERES.

"Tell us about it," I said.

"I was a young man at the time of which I speak, and deeply in love with one far above me in station; but whether she returned my love, or not I never knew, for she was soon married to one in her own rank. This event changed the whole course of my life. The intensity of my love nearly maddened me, and I sought refuge from my grief within the cell of a monk; thus my earthly life passed on and you know the rest; but the sight of this lovely lady by your side seemed to touch some hidden spring, the waters of feeling and memory gushed forth and overwhelmed me. I felt like a drowning wretch and gasped for breath. This it is which has caused me to come forth, and even the love of God cannot keep me longer in that cell."

"But you have seen other ladies since you have been here?"

"Yes, very many," he replied, "yet the secret spring was not touched. I cannot tell why."

"I can," said Peter, turning toward us. "Most of those, who have visited here, have looked at you more in horror than in grief; have said within their souls, if these spirits will remain here and refuse the light of truth, why, let them remain; we do not perceive how it can be helped; they will not believe what we tell them—and so have left you. Not so with this lady; for she said within herself, if I can release but one of these souls from the prison of this death, I would even bear all these tortures myself; and, thus, with her soul melted in grief and sympathy for your dreadful state—for it was upon you her eyes happened to rest at the time—the secret spring of your better nature was touched, and from this time forth you are a free man. Natural law has given to man woman, to be loved and adored, not an unseen male God, sitting as a stern judge, within a golden heaven. Thy prison doors are open. Go thou hence. Become like a little child in spirit, and as natural and teachable. You have no more right to scourge another. You have no more right to shut yourself up in this cell of ignorance and filth, than you have to compell another man to remain here. All the wrong which you have done to yourself, you have done to another, and that other the better part of yourself; for desolation, misery and despair, has been the outgrowth of all this folly, and this enormous burden you have heaped upon the shoulders of one whom you call the weaker vessel: Behold her."

And he pointed toward a woman who was slowly approaching: A sorrowful, wild-eyed, despairing creature, gaunt and famished like a wolf, bearing upon her shoulders a huge burden which bowed her nearly to the ground.

"Throw down your burden!" commanded Peter, "and come near, for hope may now lighten you of your despair."

The woman, with one gleam of brightness, threw down her load, sank on the ground at our feet, and there she crouched with her face hidden by her hands.

"Tell us, if you please," said Peter, "why you are in this horrible city of prisons; what has kept you here so long?"

"Ah!" sighed the woman, "I was a hardened sinner. When on earth, I would not accept God, the Savior, nor the holy mother church, neither communion with the saints. I went down—down—down! into the lowest depths of vice and crime. I steeped my despairing soul and body in liquors of all kinds which I was able to get. I murdered my own offspring as soon as they saw the light. But soon I became too foul even to bear children, and lastly too foul and loathsome to retain my body, and so found my self free of it; but my desires had not changed in the least; my wretchedness I cannot describe. I still felt a burning thirst for the intoxicating cup, and all my vicious instincts were as clamorous as ever. It has not been ignorance which has kept me down. I dimly comprehended, when on earth, when I allowed myself to think at all on such subjects, that I, and not God, was making my own hell, and that there was no worse devil than a degraded human being, and yet I wantonly went down into my own perdition. I knew that I might rise from it by struggling hard with my evil tendencies and habits; but I would not!" she wailed, "and after I left my body I became one of the most fearful of fearful harpies: I attached myself to many a besotted drunkard, delighting to imbibe from his foul breath, whirling madly with his besotted, mad soul, oftentimes inciting him to commit the most awful brutalities and crimes; then, when he was imprisoned, or hanged, leave him for another, and in this way live over and over again my horrible life."

She pointed to the huge burden which she had cast upon the ground.

"Behold the horrible burden of my sins!" she cried. "It has at last become too heavy for even an immortal soul to bear, and that burden is composed of the memories of my awful sins and crimes. I can bear it no longer: its weight has at last crushed, even the soul and spirit asunder. Look at its horrible shape!" she muttered, rising and standing upright. "Ah!" she breathed, "this is the first time I have stood upright since I was a little child within my human body."

We all looked at the horrible, writhing burden, for it was filled with life. O! dreadful sight! It was the spirit of that vile woman sundered at last from her soul, but still a fearful living creature, past all human form; a great, bloated, hideous monster, crawling and writhing on the ground before us, with bloodshot, leering eyes—the eyes of a devil—its breath a fiery flame. Oh, most awful sight!

Peter rose to his feet: Mary and I were benumbed with horror: the soul of the woman stood upright with dishevelled hair and streaming eyes, hands and arms upraised.

"I call upon you all to help me!" she cried. "It is the first time my soul has ever asked for aid to sever itself from that vile monster which you see before you—the body of my sins!"

The horrible, crawling monster was striving with all its might to reach the soul of the woman once more, and if allowed to do so would immediately attach itself to her, although it had become so ponderous that she could no longer have moved about with it. But was useless. The burden of her sins had become too heavy, and the time for separation had come. Peter gave the horrible creature a kick, when it immediately parted into a thousand objects, each more horrible than the other. The woman trembled and screamed.

"Take this key," said Peter, "and go forth from this prison of your bondage in dreadful deeds of sin and crime, else, some of these creatures will again fasten themselves to your soul: And thou," he said to the man, "take her by the hand, and go forth with her, for I know of a surety that she belongs to thee. Whilst thou hast been scourging thy back, doing penance, and shutting thyself from the face of day, mumbling useless prayers, neglecting every natural duty, thy soul's counterpart has been breeding sins; not having her natural rights, she has bred and fostered the most unnatural sins. Thou sayest thou hast been a very determined man. Lo! thy counterpart has been a very determined woman. She does not yet understand why she has been such a hardened and determined sinner. You cannot transgress natural laws, else, they rebound to your own disgrace and ruin. What natural right hadst thou, to shut thyself within a cell? Thou art not one, but two in one. Thou canst not separate thyself from the half of thyself, for whatever thou doest to one half rebounds upon the other half. Thou hast been robbing Peter and paying Paul. And now let thy soul drink in wisdom. Thou didst put aside the natural law of marriage, therefore thou didst rob the female half of thyself, which was her natural right. Thy natural, manly strength thou didst waste on the desert air, while she, not receiving what was hers by natural right, through weakness for want of it, fell into iniquity; the magnetic love within thy soul, which by natural law belonged to her, thou didst turn into prisons to an imaginary male personality thou didst call God; therefore her soul, although she understood it not, didst hate this imaginary male personality, whom she also called God. Thou shouldst have conjoined thyself to woman, in natural and holy marriage, and given thy natural and manly strength to her, and she in return wouldst have given thee natural and beautiful children which thou shouldst have provided for. But, look thou at thine increase!" and he pointed at the horrible crawling things before us that had composed the burden which the woman had borne.

"Thou didst rob her of all natural love, whereupon she craved strong drink, not knowing wherefore; and then, when thou didst leave thy body, thou wouldst not see the light, being a very determined man, so she, thine other self, not having thee, her natural right, kept on in her vile and sinful course—thou in the bondage of error, she in the bondage of sin. Truly error and sin are twin souls; for, if one half is in error, the other half is in sin, and, vice versa: whilst there is error there will be sin, and be sure where you find one you will find the other. I have given you the keys wherewith to unlock the doors of heaven, and now, hand in hand, like this beautiful pair before you, whom I have brought hither that thou mightest look upon, go forth from this prison of your bondage into the light of truth, and when thou art united in the bonds of wisdom and love instead of error and sin, then, and not until then, wilt thou be fitted to do good and not evil."

Mary and I arose hand in hand; the guilty pair also joined their hands as they looked at us, both ashamed of the nakedness of their souls, which meaneth, the want of true knowledge that would have led them within the portals of heaven or happiness, long before this time, if they had diligently sought for it.

Man's error causes woman's sin, and vice versa. One cannot sink and the other rise; they are twin souls, or, rather, one soul in two halves instead of master and slave or superior and inferior.

"Solon, wilt thou and Mary go forth with these blind ones, whilst I remain, that I may gather a few more into the fold of the redeemer? All are redeemers who work for the good of other souls."

We gladly assented, and went forth from this dreadful place; the man and woman following us ashamedly. Once outside the walls, the man sank down on a rock, for all was sterile here, unable to bear the light of truth; covering his face with his hands, he moaned forth:

"Can it be possible, after all these years of sorrow, self-denial, prayer, and penance, that it has not taken me one step nearer to God and heaven?"

"You are not a step nearer to them than I am with all my sins," said the woman a little roughly.

"You are both equally sinful in the sight of heaven," said a voice near by, and looking up we beheld a beautiful being, another angel, and we knew at once that we were looking at the soul of St. Paul. Thereupon he stretched forth his hands and blessed us.

"Come with me," he said, "and I will show you the New Jerusalem."

The man started up with alacrity, a bright light shining in his eyes.

"The New Jerusalem!" he exclaimed: "yes, yes; that is just what I most desire to see. The New Jerusalem," he again murmured. "Shall I see it at last?"

"Thou mightest have seen it many—many years ago, hadst thou so willed it. But come; better late than not at all."

Mary and I followed closely by the side of the radiant Paul, but to the man and woman it was more difficult. They often stumbled and fell, when we would turn and assist them.

"Solon," asked Paul, turning to me, "hast thou seen the New Jerusalem, yet?"

"No;" I replied, "not yet."

"Didst thou, when on earth, clothe the naked, feed the hungry, give blessings for curses, look upon every man as thy brother and love thy neighbor as thyself? didst heal the sick and cast out evil spirits? Didst visit those who were in prison? Didst make thy soul as receptive as that of a little child and as humble? Didst thou deal justly with all men? Didst visit the fatherless and the widow, and give to them all thou wert able? And if they needed not money, give to them from the storehouse of wisdom and love?"

"Paul," I replied, "I did all those things to the best of my knowledge and ability, at that time; but I see now that I left many things undone that I ought to have done, and did many things which it would have been better not to have done."

"Therefore thou hast not yet seen the New Jerusalem," he replied. "And thou," he said, addressing the man and woman, "hast thou done all these things? A monk, and his sinful counterpart! Didst thou follow in the footsteps of him whom thou didst call master? Did that master bid thee shut thyself within a cell and scourge thy back with thongs? Did that master bid thee kneel, until thy knees were callous, and mumble prayers to him? Go to, thou wicked one! When didst thou feed the hungry and clothe the naked, visit the sick and in prison, and cast out evil spirits?"

The man again sank down and covered his face with his hands.

"Thou wilt never see the New Jerusalem in that position," said Paul, "Arise, thou, and when thou hast done all these things then shalt thou enter into the joys of thy Lord, and in what, dost thou suppose, those joys consist? Is it to walk golden streets and forever bow gefore a great white throne? Yes; in one sense it is. The great white throne is within thine own soul, and the God seated thereon, is the God within thee, and thy lower self is the son of this God. Male and female art thou, and when thy lower self hast become purged from all iniquity and uncleanness, then shalt thou walk with God in holiness; and now behold the New Jerusalem afar off."

And he pointed toward a glorious and shining city which, just then, burst upon our sight like a blazing sun in all its splendor. Oh! glorious, enrapturing vision! Its magnificence and blazing beauty was more than our eyes could well bear, but there lay between us and it a great lake. We paused on an eminence overlooking this lake. Mary's hand tightened its clasp on mine. The glorious light of her eyes fairly bewildered me.

"Ah!" she sighed, "we thought the City of the Angels beautiful and glorious beyond all things, but the New Jerusalem, is a thousand times more entrancingly lovely and to be desired. O! my Solon! I wish to enter yonder glorious city as much, and more, than you desired to enter the Angelic City."

"Your wish is mine, sweet Mary," I said, "and now, Paul," turning to him, "how shall we reach that glorious New Jerusalem?"

"Look again," he replied, "and the way shall be made plain to thee."

We obeyed. The large expanse of water was dotted here and there with islands, somewhat as the lake between the Spiritual and the Angelic cities had been; on one, of which I had spent so many years of my spiritual life, or, rather, my life as a medium between the two states,

"Solon," said Paul, "art thou willing to take up thine abode on one of these Islands, for a space of time, and work with all the might of thy love and wisdom combined for the welfare of humanity? Wilt thou be a teacher or medium to the vast multitudes on this side of the lake which lies between us and yonder city? Until thou wert an angel, thou couldst not do this especial work, for nothing short of love and wisdom combined and equally balanced could accomplish anything here."

He now turned to the man and woman following us, saying:

"Go, thou, and do all that I have said. Thou shalt see us again after many days. If thou fallest by the wayside there shall be some who will also assist thee. And now, Solon and Mary, follow me."

And we followed, our souls filled with joy and gladness. We went down to the shore, and here a great multitude were gathered, gazing at the glorious city—the New Jerusalem—all eager to reach it. Many were on their knees with hands stretched toward it imploringly, others were seated despairingly, their faces buried within their hands; men and women were pressing forward with little children clinging to their skirts; but the vast expanse of water lay between them and their desire, and none were able to cross over. Paul pointed to a lovely island midway between the shore and the glorious city, saying:

"I have offered that beautiful home to many, but as yet none have accepted my gift; they prefer, as they say, to go directly into the New Jerusalem, as they feel certain their Savior, the Christ or Jesus of Nazareth, will shortly hear their supplications and come to ferry them directly over to the shining city. If thou art willing to save a multitude of souls before entering that glorious rest, thou canst, with me, walk on those waters until we reach yon Isle of the blessed: for it is more blessed to give than to receive; but the more thou givest to others, the more shalt thou receive. Thou mayest not yet enter the New Jerusalem, but its inhabitants shall visit thee; from them shalt thou receive the everlasting bread of life wherewithal thou shalt feed this vast multitude gathered here Solon. Thou and thy Mary shall be of those who dwell on the blessed Isles which lie between the shores of folly and the glorious City of Wisdom, Love and Truth. That island is exceedingly large, and when thou hast restored, and brought into thine own estate, as many as it will hold comfortably, thou shalt be removed to another and larger one nearer the city; and when the archangels within that city find thee worthy to enter it with them, then shalt thou go and take up thine abode within its shining temples; then shalt thou have reached the holy of holies within the New Jerusalem."

"And do you live there, Paul?" I asked.

"Yea, verily;" he answered. Whereupon he walked forth upon the surface of the shining water and Mary and I followed.

"All who are worthy may walk on these waters," said Paul; "but all who are not worthy soon sink and are carried back to the shore from whence they started." At this I looked back and saw many who were starting after us, thinking that they should gain the city, and I saw them one after another sink, and then reappear at the place from whence they started.

"If they were willing to take on the yoke and labor with all their might for the good of the multitude, and dwell for an indefinite period on one of these isles, they would easily follow us," said Paul.

And thus conversing we reached the island and glided onward toward a shining edifice, which we entered. The place actually reminded me of the one in which I had passed so long a time before meeting my Mary, yet it was very many degrees more beautiful, nearer perfection, nearer heaven, and within sight of the New Jerusalem; and he, who on earth had been called St. Paul, was bearing us company.

We entered an exceedingly spacious and lofty apartment, and one with shining raiment rose up to met us.

"Allow me," said Paul, "to introduce you and Mary to a mystic; one who on earth was called St. John, the revelator."

Greetings were exchanged.

"I have tarried here to meet you," said John with a smile, "for nothing is hidden from the sight of one who earnestly desires that all mysteries may be revealed. This place may be to you, my Solon, a Spiritual Isle of Patmos. I understand that you desire to give to those dwelling within the rudimentary sphere a correct idea of me as I am, also, that I may explain somewhat of my meaning about the visions which I saw when on earth:"

" 'And I, John, saw a new heaven and a new earth. And the heavens opened, and I saw the New Jerusalem. I also saw a woman clothed with the sun.' "

"Many of the visions which I saw, when on the earth, appertained to the earth, or that part of it with which I was familiar, and to those whom I called my people, and to the seven Christian Churches. As I was then a mystic, and a prophet, so I remain to this day; but old things have passed away, and lo! all things have become new. I now clearly comprehend that which when on earth was to me most mysterious."

(Concluded next week.)

HONEST THOUGHTS.

THEY ARE PROPOUNDED FOR EARNEST MEN TO CONSIDER—TRUTH IS TRUTH, WHEREVER FOUND.

When all time shall have served its full purpose, when material life shall have ceased, then, from the standpoint of life as the spirit knows it, shall be measured the results, the fruits of life upon this sphere. Man has vaguely tried to solve the problem of destiny, and has only, thus far, sagely concluded that he does not know, that he does not understand, what we are, or whither we are tending. His trying has mostly been in vain; his finite mind cannot comprehend, except very faintly, the reason that lies behind all the varied phenomena we call life.

If he could see as clearly as he will, some sweet day, he would know that certain causes are infinite, certain effects are without end, and when we begin to inquire, we enter an ocean of speculation, without even a compass to guide these finite minds of ours to even a reasonable conclusion, and we might as well not attempt to comprehend infinity. But there are things that may be learned by even the humblest souls, be learned by even the humblest soul, satisfy himself as to what we are, and he may learn to know what we may be.

It really seems as if every system of religious teaching only added more mystery to this subject, and not only did not satisfactorily answer one honest inquiry, but satisfied itself by adding myth, legend, varied imaginings, and anything but a literal explanation. You may receive almost any account you may please to hear. Our future home may be gorgeously pictured as a city whose streets are paved with pure gold, or it may be called a place of nonentity where we in some way continue to live only to endure the most intense suffering. But whether this future state be named heaven or nirvana, whether only the good, or rather the recipients of certain teachings, are blessed with the smile of the particular deity who is supposed to preside over his own system, to the utter exclusion of all else. There is one and the same condition. You must believe our system and be assured of reward and a paradise, or if you reject, you shall be punished eternally. We only need ask, to be assured by some devotee, who has learned well his catechism, and is in a position to mete out reward or punishment in advance to all those who doubt or reject. We have already learned that only those who live in accordance with certain teaching have any certainty of what is ahead.

Now, we just feel like asking each system a few plain questions, and if we are clearly answered and not called heretics, it will be a mark of the civilization of this present time; for "the divine command is not to be questioned,' say they all.

In the first place, may we ask: Why do all men live here upon earth only to be destroyed? What is the reason that men live at all? Why is birth an accident, as it is in the majority of cases? Why are men given such varied portions of time, and what will be done with those who cannot honestly believe all the teaching of any given system?

Now, all these are not really leading questions.

How came this earth to be the abode of man? How was it created? when? and what may be expected to happen, in course of time, to the earth and those living upon it?

We are only wanting to know what these various systems have to say about the formation of this planet and their reason for its existence, as well as their manner of accounting for the presence of man upon it.

The Christian system has the most graphic explanation, by whom it was spoken, no man knows—that "in six days God created the earth and every living thing, and upon the seventh rested." We should think he would need to rest for an indefinite period, after such a week of work. Then, "He made man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and then borrowed a spare rib of Adam and made out of it a companion for him"—a remarkably good creation, considering the material at hand.

The Buddhist system is a little older in its chronology but not nearly so explicit, still the manner of creating a world is about as well told; also the subsequent life of this first couple is not so intensely interesting, for the man tempted the woman to be disobedient, she parleyed but finally yielded, and thus, because they ate an apple that they were ordered not to eat, came the curse upon us all, of banishment from the smile and presence of the Divinity who created every thing that was made.

These two accounts are quite similar in general plan, and execution, and prescribe a life of conciliation for us, that we may, by being real good, find favor after a time with our heavenly Father, who was mortally angry with Adam and Eve, and so caused us all to share in their punishment "because He was infinitely just and righteous."

For several hundreds or thousands of years, the time is not exactly stated, men multiplied and traveled and lived, as best they could, we presume; then there must be a way to redeem the race from Adam's fall, so this wondrous, just and pure powerisent His son down here to live and die and bear the sins of the whole race. "He died that we might live" is the account, but certainly about the same kind of a man continued to live and has ever since, with only the additional fortune "of his sins being forgiven him," and someone else to suffer the penalty. How did the people fare who lived between the time of the creation and the year of our Lord 1? How will it be with them in the hereafter?

Oh, stupendous farce! Is it possible for one man to live for another. Can one man, however good and great, bear the result of his brother's crime? Can a pure woman life and suffer the penalty for the reckless conduct of her husband or her son, or can she stand between her daughter and the consequences of her evil life?

Oh, my gentle reader, where is the justice, the reason, in all this? If the ten commandments for the guidance of the Israelites, given amid fire and smoke, were divine, they, at least, bear the stamp of right because it is right, and the commands were just and true and prescribed a life of straight, upright living. Whether they originated in the divine mind or were an emanation from that theological enigma called Moses, they are good and true, and we will accept them as such, and considering those ancient, ignorant people and the legends surrounding their reception, they teach no error and are right altogether as a guide and a law.

We must learn to know truth wherever seen, for the stamp of right upon its luminous face, and we say that whether that man Moses, or whoever else, (whatever way), saw the tables, the teaching was all right and as such we receive it, with the additional fact that several far older systems taught substantially the same thing.

We say older, for in point of age the Christian system is a few hunderd years younger than any other. These older systems, then, had what corresponded to a Christ, in the Christian system, and the Jews had learned to expect such an one; so in obedience to the general expectations came a humble reformer, making large pretensions, performing miracles to prove his divine character to teach an improvement upon the old system, to be a sort of second edition and instead of the "thou shalt, or thou shalt not" he proposed to take upon his individual shoulders, the sins of the race and take a penitent thief home to paradise the same day, with only the condition of repentance and belief in His personality to pay for the very kind act of the intercessor.

We have seen how in the nearly two thousand years that have followed, these teachings of Christ have become encased in almost anything in the shape of a story that was then current, and we have seen how Christ was crucified, dead and buried and rose again the third day and ascended into heaven, where he will become the judge of the quick and the dead.

We have seen the teaching of this reformer incorporated after lapses of time, with the old teaching of Moses, or rather added thereto, and we have seen that for about fourteen hundred years there was only one church, that grew wealthy and powerful, and then its abuses caused a revolution in its midst and the ecclesiastical schism widened and finally a revolt, a breaking way—men were just beginning to think.

Thus has it continued to this day and now we can climb a little eminence and get a bird's-eye-view of the whole religious life of this world, and we are willing to leave it to you, each individual reader, how much of the imprint of divine authority does the very best of these systems show? How much inspiration is there in each system, how much? We will not attempt to trace it at this time, but in the future we will look earnestly for the finger of Divine Providence, and search carefully for any light He has given to his earnest, honest son, who is patiently trying to find what he may to enlighten him, while he gropes along among the mazes of superstition and error that have been so many centuries gathering to themselves the strength of warp and woof that make up the fabric of this particular structure religious, whose foundations we would so much like to find, to see if the rocky walls are built upon anything resembling a command from Him who formed the heavens, the earth, or the waters under the earth, that we may learn whether the only intelligent emanations from Deity are stored in monasteries, or are the property of any church or ecclesiastical school only, and not eligible to those of a different faith.

We would like to learn for our own satisfaction whether the "Word of God" is only to be read and known from the canonized teaching of the Orient, or if it may not as well be read in the face of the lily whose beauty of form would almost cause a polluted soul to stand away as unfit to touch so fair a creation, unfit to handle spotless purity.

We would only ask: Where is wisdom to be learned, and what is the way of understanding? We would earnestly strive to be worthy to find and preserve one gem of priceless, beautiful truth.

A PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

MISSOURI CAMP ASSOCIATION.

Permanent organization of the Missouri Camp Association was effected at the meeting of the shareholders held at Springfield, Mo., February 17. The attendance was good, with members present in person and by proxy from Texas, Arkansas, Kansas and Mississippi, as well as from the various sections of Missouri. It is intended to make this a permanent camp, for the accommodation of the Spiritualists of Missouri and neighboring States at and near this geographical center of the Union.

The permanent camp will be located as near the center of Missouri as natural advantages, railroad facilities and circumstances may permit. Temporary headquarters are at Springfield.

Following is the list of official agents, comprising the Executive Board: J. Madison Allen, Springfield, Mo., president; M. Theresa Allen, corresponding secretary; E. R. Huxley, recording secretary; Isaac D. Sperry, St. Louis, treasurer; Cora M. Carpenter, Hannibal, Mo., 1st vice-president; Allen F. Brown, San Atonio, Tex., 2nd vice-president; E. P. Helms, Lockwood, Mo., 3rd vice-president.

The constitution and by-laws adopted at the meeting will soon be in print, ready for distribution. The organization will be chartered or incorporated as a religious, educational and benevolent association.

All persons having knowledge of locations deemed suitable for the camp home are requested to write at once to the chairman of the locating committee, Mr. Isaac D. Sperry, 310 Odd Fellows Building, St. Louis, Mo., with full particulars of information; and let each and every Spiritualist within the circle embraced in the plan of the association step forward promptly and identify himself or herself with this much-needed work by becoming a shareholder and proprietor, and in the spirit of unity, peace, purity and progress, all join hands in a common cause: the discovery and promulgation of truth and the upbuilding of our common humanity. Remember that the shares in this association have been placed at one dollar only, and that each member has one vote regardless of number of shares taken. This is your camp—the people's camp. J. Madison Allen, President. M. Theresa Allen, Secretary. Address 1004 W. Chase St. Springfield, Mo.

MASS MEETINGS.

Grand mass-meetings under auspices of the N. S. A., will be held in Buffalo, New York, March 19th and 20th. President, H. D. Barrett, Mrs. C. L. V. Richmond, Hon. L. V. Moulton, Mr. Homer Altemus and other eminent talent will be in attendance.

FRANCIS B. WOODBURY,
Secretary.

"Bible and Church Degrade Woman." By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three brief essays, on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion; The Degraded Status of Woman in the Bible; The Christian Church and Woman; written in Mrs. Stanton's usual trenchant style. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"Origin and Antiquity of Man." By Hudson Tuttle. A masterly philosophical work. English edition, nicely bound in cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

"Ancient India: Its Language and Religions." By Prof. H. Oldenberg. The subject is of unusual interest at the present time, and it is here treated in a way to interest and instruct all readers. For sale at this office. Paper, price 25c.

OCCULT WISDOM.

MRS. A. H. LUTHER SENDS GREETING—SPIRITUAL PHILOSOPHY AND OCCULTISM—WISDOM OF THE AGES.

To the Editor:—With my recent accumulation of mental and physical strength, I find myself reaching toward my many friends. Knowing much of their silent, as well as expressed anxiety regarding my most unfortunate condition, and wishing to express my gratitude to them, and in part reply to the many unanswered letters, as well as to say something of the now and the to-morrow, is my only apology for asking space in your most valuable columns.

For nearly forty years (as the public know) I have been upon the political and spiritual rostrum, in the front ranks of radicalism, never faltering, no matter what obstacles to be overcome, begging the citizens of our nation to keep its liberties from "the valley and shadows of death," and the Spiritualists to become a power through organization, able to defend truth and justice against any encroachments. How well the originators of, and friends to this grand republic (with me as their instrument) have acquitted themselves, must be answered by those who know them best. To my mind it is a failure, and only an infinite God can resurrect and protect our nation's liberties under its present system of wholesale slaughter of every clause of its Constitution, which alone freed us from imperial and priestly bondage, and in spirit for all times made us a secular nation. But Spiritualism has become so degenerate through its materialistic mediumship, instead of a true and reliable spiritual mediumship, that scarcely a society in the entire country can retain a position of influence, because of the contentions and turmoil manifested among its members.

Three years ago I was told by my spirit friends that my work would change to another line of thought, and fifteen months ago, when I was stricken with nervous prostration, which for more than a year was a continuous torture, I concluded my line of work was across the threshold into a realm of demands superior to this. But, instead, I find myself regaining a better condition of life. My physicians would each take me up-grade, more or less, then I would drop back.

Last December, Dr. C. E. McCollester and wife, of Chicago, who had previously known me, came to our city. The Doctor is an able occult teacher and healer of wonderful power. He soon commenced his class work, at which time I was in a very feeble and critical condition, but by the assistance of friends I became a patient of the Doctor. From the first treatment, there was a marvelous change, doubtless because he recognized my condition of mind, as well as body, which had become much exhausted. The Doctor unlocked the chamber of his soul, and silently asked my weary, distressed and unhappy life to come and rest and talk with God, for a little while, and God would give me strength and restore me. Not the non-understandable, non-come-at-able God of Theology, but the God of Being, the God of the Universe, the God of my soul, through whose spirit I am that I am. Such tenderness cannot be purchased with money, neither lost. The same artistic power that colors the rainbow and clouds, and tints the vegetable kingdom, and beautifies the rocky world, has photographed this, and now it is a picture within the gallery of memory, throwing off a sunlight whose vibrations come in touch with my consciousness, and determine me to recognize the God within me, and be again myself, and when I go beyond earth's broken time, I will take it with me. Whatever Dr. McCollester may be in coming time, his tender sympathy and strong faith will hold a sacred place in my life, for through it there has been wrought a wonderful change in both my life and person.

At the commencement of his second class, I was able to attend nightly, walking the distance of nine blocks. I have attended twelve meetings of the class, double that number of private lessons, which opened to me a new line of thought, and after much deliberation, must say occultism is spiritual philosophy put into everyday practical life, which means a harmonious blending of our lives with such as study and accept the truth along these lines, leaving out the eternal bickering and discontent which has characterized and so destroyed our entire organization. Occultism is rapidly coming to the front and must attract the attention of the wisdom of this and future ages. And, should I again go upon the public rostrum, it must be along the lines of the most advanced thought, always in keeping with the everpresent.

Spiritualism, with its wonderful power of demonstration, has failed to reach the goal we hoped, hence the wisdom of the ages (before civilization came under the control of priesthood, which from then till now has denounced and cursed every underlying principle of the vastness of life, making God a tyrant, and man a cowardly slave) must now come to us leading us into the fields of a spirituality, in which lies the inexhaustible fountain of human unfoldment to meet the demands of the thinkers of this age, and the scientific investigations of the ages to be. If the study of occultism is necessary to open the storehouse of wisdom, that we may better understand the unknown of the past, and the now, let us welcome its general introduction into our lives and environments. We may be Spiritualists and occupy positions of influence, as such, with the mere knowledge of continued life. But, to be an occultist one must possess some knowledge of the wisdom of the ancient sage and thinker, and be able to apply the same to everyday, practical life. You, who know me best, will not think strange of this position. My motto ever having been: "More light, with a greater knowledge of all things." And now, before my unfolding vision lies the magic sea of unexplored knowledge, its shores made brilliant with the gems of thought dropped from the mental world of the ancient thinker and philosopher. A little further in the distance is the mountain of Wisdom towering toward the Heaven. Don't stand still, fearing motion may crush an idol, but come with me—let us learn something of these fields of untrodden worlds, for in them new revelations are ever to be gleaned. Let us climb the mountain—the route will lead us to the temple of Reason; there we will tarry and rest with America's grandest patriot, and one of humanity's noblest friends—he whose country was the world, and to do good his religion.

Dr. McCollester and wife are temporarily located with us, holding a third course of lectures, hence I anticipate greater strength, and hope to be able to answer letters from my friends.

As ever, in the defense of a higher, spiritual life and human liberty in its completeness. I am truly, etc.,

MRS. A. H. LUTHER.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

FIFTEEN CENTS!

PROF. BARRETT'S ADDRESS.

Other Subjects Treated of Especial Interest.

The Progressive Thinker is to be sent three months for 15 cents to all New subscribers.

Spiritualists, keep posted in current Spiritual events.

Why remain in ignorance? Why don't you keep posted in regard to the great Spiritualistic movement? Prof. Barrett delivered an address before the National Association of Spiritualists. It was an important one, and should be read by every Spiritualist in this broad land. We have had his address (which covers three pages of The Progressive Thinker) and five other important lectures and articles embodied in one paper, which we propose to send forth to illuminate the minds of those who have not had an opportunity to read them.

The first page of this paper contains a lecture by Col. Ingersoll, given in a Chicago pulpit. It scintillates throughout.

The second page contains a highly interesting lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on the "Dwellings of the Dead."

The third page has a splendid article on "Science versus Theology," in review of Andrew D. White's two superb volumes.

The fourth page has another excellent lecture by Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, on "Spiritual Unfoldment."

The fifth page is very suggestive throughout, and is devoted to the "Hindoo Teachers—They Will Try to Capture the United States."

On the sixth page commences Prof. Barrett's admirable address, occupying three pages.

We will also, in connection with this paper, send out another equally as valuable. The first page contains an excellent lecture by Virchand R. Gandhi, a learned Hindoo. The remaining seven pages contain the wonderfully thrilling narrative (founded on facts) entitled, "The Night the Light Went Out," exhibiting many of the inside workings of the Catholic Church. Besides the address by Mr. Ghandi and the remarkable narrative, "The Night the Light Went Out," the first page has an excellent communication obtained through Ouija. The second page has a startling statement in reference to the "Romish Octopus—It Is Winding Its Poisonous Coils Around Washington." The poem on the same page, "The Sad Picture of a Wrecked Human Life," is wonderfully suggestive. The third page has a striking illustration showing how the Romish Church treats heretics. This page and the fourth also have a continuation of the "Romish Octopus." The fifth page has that remarkable poem, "St. Peter At the Gate." Every freethinker should read it. It is full of excellent "points." It also contains interesting facts in reference to the Romish Church and offices. The sixth, seventh and eighth pages have the following: "Monasteries and Convents—Where Those Alive Are Entombed." "Rider Haggard and the Immuring of Nuns." This paper alone is well worth the price of a year's subscription.

Every Spiritualist in this broad land should have these two papers. Our regular subscribers have already read their contents. For Fifteen cents we will send the Progressive Thinker for three months to all New trial subscribers and also send these two valuable papers.

Bear in mind that by New subscriber we mean one who has not been on our list for at least three months. Those of our present subscribers who wish to buy, these two papers can have them both now for five cents. All of our regular subscribers have read their contents.

Send The Progressive Thinker three months to some friend, and thus get him interested in the cause. Stamps taken on small orders.

We sincerely hope that no Spiritualist will be dishonest enough, or so dishonorable, as to take advantage of this offer, by continuing his paper when the time expires, in the name of some member of his family (or some one else) in order to get the benefit of this 15 cent offer, on which the publisher does not make a cent.

VERILY, WHAT NEXT?

Under the head of "A New Programme," we announced a radical new departure from the general routine of work assumed by the average Spiritualist paper. We do not follow old established usages unless we are thoroughly convinced that they are the best, which is very rarely the case. We established the original dollar Spiritualist paper, and introduced a new era in the line of Spiritualistic journalism. Others have followed after us, but in all candor the only thing in which they have equalled us, is in the price of the paper—one dollar.

We now have three books which we send out at a nominal cost to our subscribers: The two volumes of the Encyclopaedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit-World, and The Next World Interviewed. The three volumes will be sent out to those who remit a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker on the following terms:

The Encyclopaedia of Death and Life in the Spirit-World, when ordered singly, will be sold at 50 cents per copy. The Next World Interviewed at 35 cts. Those who order the three books at one time will get them as follows:

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	$ .45
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	.45
The Next World Interviewed	.35
Total	$1.25

NO. OF PAGES IN EACH BOOK.

Vol. I. of the Encyclopaedia	400
Vol. II. of the Encyclopaedia	400
The Next World Interviewed	250

Each of these books is neatly and substantially bound in cloth, and printed on fine paper, and as prices go, are well worth one dollar per volume.

Bear in mind that this Library is being formed for the exclusive benefit of our subscribers, and all orders for one or more of these books must be accompanied with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. To all others the price will be one dollar per copy.

Just think of the great good that will be accomplished by this plan which we have outlined. Tell your neighbors about it, and get them to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker.

Remember, please, that in order to obtain these three books for $1.25, you must send along a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker; the paper one year, and the three books costing $2.25. It is the subscription to the paper that enables us to send you these three books at cost.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

TO CONTRIBUTORS:—It is impossible to publish everything that comes to this office, however meritorious it may be, and no one should feel in the least offended because his (or her) article does not appear. Our space is limited, and we often deeply regret that certain articles are crowded out.

Bear in mind, please, that we cannot publish weekly reports of meetings. Whenever a change is made in speakers, or anything of special interest, send us a brief item, please. A great deal can be expressed in a dozen lines; but long reports will not be used. Meetings are of local interest only. We extend a cordial invitation to all speakers to send in their appointments to lecture, and general movements, which will be read by at least 40,000. We go to press early Monday morning, and items must reach us as early as Friday or Saturday in order to have immediate insertion.

Communications must always be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer, or no attention will be paid to them.

Annie Lord Chamberlain writes from San Diego, Cal.: "Mrs. Mary P. Morrill is a pleasing speaker, and is now filling a two-months' engagement with the National Avenue Spiritualist Association. Mrs. Maude Freitag is astonishing the skeptics and delighting her many friends with the wonderful ballot tests this month for the First Society. Mr. Ben Barney, the well-known test medium, is doing a good work for the Advance Guards. There are many good healers in San Diego, but I have not space to mention only Mrs. R. C. Clark, with whom I am now stopping, and she is truly one of the most wonderful women of the age. Mrs. Clark has done wonders for me. I can now walk without a crutch and part of the time without help from a cane, and my head, from which I have suffered so much since the Herdic accident in Boston, has been greatly benefited and I have no doubt will be entirely cured through her powers. Is unconscious when doing her work, and has made many converts to Spiritualism."

Mrs. Willa R. Carriken writes from Nebraska City, Neb., of her interest in Spiritualism and of her experiences in connection therewith. She affirms "there is everything to substantiate the theory, that our dear departed in spirit-land are enjoying a conscious existence and are God's messengers of peace and warning to us."

Arrangements have been made for Anniversary celebration in the First Spiritual Church, Denver, Colo., March 28, 29 and 30. March 31st Dr. G. C. B. Ewell has accepted a call to Leadville to conduct Anniversary exercises, and will spend a week or more in a series of meetings, and respond to calls connected with the work.

Theodore F. Price commences a two-months' engagement at Grand Rapids, Mich., the first Sunday in March, and will be in Buffalo, N. Y., for the First Society of Spiritualists, during May.

G. H. Brooks closed his second engagement for this season with the Unity Spiritual Society, of Milwaukee, Wis., the last Sunday in February. The engagement was very successful indeed. The society was never more prosperous than now, and there is perfect harmony through it all. Mr. Brooks goes to St. Joseph, Mo., for the month of March, and his address will be 417 South 9th street, St. Joseph, Mo. He will respond to calls for funerals, or week-night meetings. Send telegrams to the above number. His three night meetings in Leon, Wis., were successful. Much interest seemed to be made manifest.

Geo. F. Perkins writes: "I have returned to Chicago, and am more than pleased with the attention and appreciation of my work at Fort Wayne, Ind."

G. W. B. writes from Hebo, Oregon: "I live almost on the shores of the old Pacific Ocean, but I do not live so far away that The Progressive Thinker does not reach me once a week, freighted with the grand thoughts of Modern Spiritualism. We have quite a number of Spiritualists here, and some home talent, and quite a number of mediums just developing. Some of our mediums and home talent expect to visit the camp at New Era, Clackamas county, Oregon, the coming summer."

Mrs. Caroline Doolittle writes from Cottage Grove, Oregon, to voice her disappointment in finding that Mrs. Myra F. Paine's "Easy Lessons in Spiritual Science" teaches the doctrine of reincarnation as proved beyond doubt; and she says: "I find all the good and proper teaching of this otherwise truly spiritual book contradicted and rendered useless by this—to me (and I believe the majority of Spiritualists)—unscientific, useless assertion, that is utterly incapable of verification."

Sarah Stone Rockhill writes from Alliance, Ohio: "We are having meetings in the Independent church here. Mr. Dell Herrick, of Akron, speaks next Sunday, and the following Sunday Mr. J. R. Beilhert, of Battle Creek, Mich., lectures on the law of vibration. His lecture last Sunday on the above subject was favorably received. His brother, Mr. W. L. Beilhert, pleased the audience immensely by his characteristic rendition of Rubenstein and other humorous selections."

Mrs. P. W. Clark writes: "I have a young daughter whose mediumistic powers commenced to develop about one year ago. She will give inspirational singing and speaking. Her controls are fourteen, male and female. No two voices sound alike. At present all her work is in foreign languages that I do not understand. She will enact plays—take the parts of seven different characters. Her gestures are grand, her action powerful. When she commits to memory any piece, she will ask her controls to teach her how to speak, and they will teach her."

E. W. Sprague, missionary of the N. S. A., is now laboring under their auspices to organize a State Association in New York. He has open dates, and can be secured to lecture and give platform tests at camp-meetings for the season of 1897. He also has open time for the lecture season of 1897 and 1898, and solicits correspondence with societies relative to engagements. Address him at 965 Grove street, Meadville, Pa.

J. O. R. writes from Woodstock, Ill.: "C. E. de Ricard, pastor of the First Spiritual Temple at Fort Wayne, Ind., has been holding a series of meetings in Woodstock and surrounding towns. He lectured here in the City Hall last evening to quite an audience, that was perfectly satisfied with the lecture and tests given. I am a stranger in this part of the county, and attended the meeting out of curiosity, and was dumbfounded to have this medium describe my mother as perfectly as I could myself, telling her full name. He wanted someone to recognize it. But I could not have spoken to save my life. I hope you will print this, so that it will meet the eye of Mr. de Ricard, and he will understand why I did not speak. I also am told of the wonderful cures he has and is effecting by his magnetic powers. But then after hearing him lecture and hearing his tests, one would cease to wonder, and accept it as a matter of course. Well, you see I am getting enthusiastic over the matter. I am fully satisfied there is something in Spiritualism after all."

F. M. H. writes from Skagit City, Washington: "I know for a fact that animals do exist in spirit-life, for I have both seen and heard them, and they are an honor and blessing to the particular sphere that they occupy. Man is considerable of an animal himself, and some men are very thoughtless and thick-headed, and never find out for certain that they are animals. Some men can't see or think of more than one thing at a time, and when their gaze or thought passes from the one thing to another they forget that they ever saw anything else beside the thing they are looking at. Shall we call such a man broad-minded? Is he capable of taking a birdseye mind view of the great ocean of life and the universe? Is he qualified to teach divine lessons, and analyze God's mysteries and explain them to the world?"

In reply to those who deny the fact of materializations, Mrs. Rebecca R. Maxey writes that some years ago, while sitting with her sister and her sister's two daughters, with the light of two lamps, all at once her right arm began to revolve—"like a whirl, but it did not hurt me, neither could I have moved it like that. It whirled awhile, and then took to waving back and forth. I was talking, looking to the girls. Sister was watching my hand. All at once she exclaimed: 'Rebecca, there are two hands.' I said, 'Nonsense.' Immediately my hand came swinging up between me and the light, and I heard a voice saying: 'I shall keep it there till you acknowledge it is a hand.' The hand seemed to grow out of my wrist; it was larger than my hand. Sister remarked: 'It is just like mother's hand,'—when it vanished and I then recovered the use of my arm and hand. We did not know anything about materializations at that time. Who made that hand?"

C. M. Hovey, president, writes: "The annual meeting of the Flint Spiritual Society, of Flint, Mich., was held at their hall last evening, February 25, at which there was a large attendance of members. By the reports of the officers a very satisfactory and prosperous condition of the society was shown, a considerable number of members have been added to the society. The society is very harmonious and progressive; continuous meetings have been held from the beginning of the season. Mrs. Abbie E. Sheets is at the present time serving the society, very acceptably. She has a wonderful power to reach the very souls of her hearers, especially the young people. It is the desire of the society to retain her services continually if possible. The election resulted in the re-election of C. M. Hovey as president; Mrs. Pluma Brotherton, first vice-president; Dr. Sarah Allen, second vice-president; Mrs. Effie Post, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jennie Draper, recording secretary; Burt Porter, treasurer; Irene Gay, musical director; Allen Jones, J. A. Martin, and Essie Dotey, advisory committee."

The following comes from an admirer of the work of Dr. Adah Sheehan, at Lima, Ohio: "Dr. Adah Sheehan, of Cincinnati, Ohio, has served the Philosophical Society of Lima, Ohio, two months of the past season, closing the month of February by perfecting the organization here, and it is highly probable that she will serve us for the month of March as well. She will if we can get her. The Doctor's lectures are away above the average, and have made a deep and lasting impression on people of the highest culture. She is grandly eloquent, and above all, a clear, logical reasoner, presenting indubitable proofs of the soundness of her philosophy. Possessed by nature with a sympathetic voice, and fine presence, she dignifies the rostrum, and should be kept continuously busy. We hope to have the grand old veteran Moses Hull with us for April." Mrs. Sheehan is open for camp engagements, and also for the fall and winter months of 1897 and 1898.

James R. L. writes from Leonidas, Mich.: "Dr. H. C. Andrews, of Saginaw, Mich., was with us March 2nd and 3rd, and delivered two very fine lectures. He gave entire satisfaction to those that heard him. Any spiritual association that wants a first-class lecturer will be satisfied and will get value received, should it secure the services of Dr. Andrews."

"J. C. F. Grumbine will open a summer school for development in psychometry, clairvoyance, inspiration and psychopathy, in June and July. There will be three sessions a week under the personal inspiration of Mr. Grumbine. The school will convene at Auburn Park, a delightful suburb of Chicago, in the city limits, and on a beautiful inland lake. For terms, send a stamped and addressed envelope to J. C. F. Grumbine, Station P. Chicago."

Willis Edwards writes: "There will be a grand anniversary celebration on the 28th of this month, at 620 North Clark street. Services at 11 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. The phenomena and philosophy of Spiritualism will be demonstrated by noted mediums. All phases will be presented. Local mediums and those from adjoining towns are cordially invited to participate. We also extend an invitation to presidents of societies or others specially interested in the cause. We have engaged an orchestra for the day, and intend having the finest anniversary services that have been given in this city."

M. Bitters writes from Rochester, Ind., "President Barrett's all-day meeting at this place was a grand success and he delighted the people. Temple Hall would not accommodate the Spiritualists, church members and citizens who thronged to hear him. Glory to God; we are on top in Rochester."

The Band of Harmony will meet with Mrs. Scott, 1009 West Congress street, (instead of Mrs. Cutter) Thursday, March 11th.

"Geo. F. Perkins extends platform courtesies to all speakers and mediums that may visit the services of Beacon Light Spiritual Church, 617 N. Clark street, during the month of March. Thanks to Brother Hodge, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. Lamon, Miss Taylor and others for assisting during February."

March 2, Lyman C. Howe lectured at Painsville, Ohio. Last Sunday he spoke at Chagrin Falls. He is free to respond to calls March 14 and 21, and for all of April and May."

S. P. Davidson writes from St. Joe, Mo.: "We had a splendid meeting last

(Continued on page 8.)

GLANCING AT SPIRITUALIST EXCHANGES.

A new Spiritualist Society has been tsarted at Levorna, Italy.

There are to-day in the various penitentiaries one criminal to every 750 inhabitants—showing a vast increase in crime. Spiritualists, see to it that all fraud is stamped out of our glorious cause.

There are 163 societies that have joined the National Association.

"Spiritualism," Mrs. Lillie claims, "may now be classed among the religions,"—"sustained," she should have added, "by science and philosophy."

The Lyceum Banner, by J. J. Morse, is a general favorite in England. It is published monthly. Write to him, each lyceum, and see what he will furnish it for by the dozen. Address as follows: J. J. Morse, 26 Osnaburgh St, Euston Road, London, N. W. Eng.

Mrs. Lillie recommends the home circle as the most satisfactory way to investigate Spiritualism.

Mr. Elworthy, the author of The Evil Eye, gives some instances of superstition still existing in the west country. A young Exeter shopkeeper of the same name has herself been an example. Emily Lee, a hawker from Plymouth, told Mrs. Elworthy she was looking ill, and was bewitched by a former sweetheart of her husband's, and would pine away and die, and her husband would marry the other girl, unless the planets were ruled—a feat she offered to perform for a consideration. To rule the planets for this purpose, and also to bring wealth from Australia, needed a lot of money, and altogether Mrs. Elworthy was weedel out of £64.

South America, it is claimed, has fourteen periodicals devoted to Spiritualism.

It is claimed that not one-half of the officers of the camp-meetings take any Spiritualist paper. Yet they seek in every possible way for gratuitous advertising.

It is claimed that wrong belief has a deleterious effect on the spirit, dwarfing it.

Mind is a fulcrum for producing thought, says the Melbourne editor.

The Freeville Camp will have a hall seating about 600.

Priestcraft is beginning to be hated in Brazil. A paper published there bears the curious title, "Twenty Second of September." It glories in the fact that the temporal power of the pope has been destroyed in Brazil.

All the churches affirm that Jesus is the only son of God, when every little "Arab" on the streets can claim a relationship with the Divine Spirit. The only begotten-son-business is played out in this the nineteenth century.

Richard Harte thinks that the attempt to command the spirits is an exaggeration in one direction which is watched in another direction by voluntary submission to them.

There are about forty Spiritualist societies in the Argentine Republic.

A little camp "Leaflet" starts out with—"We do not expect to ridicule any any of the Spiritualist papers." This lifts a great load from the Spiritualistic press, and sleep in the future will be more calm and refreshing in each sanctum. This Leaflet is published in the interest of the Freeville camp, N. Y. The camp certainly ought to prove a success after its "Leaflets" intimation that it will not ridicule the Spiritualist papres, which will enable them to survive another year at least.

The Singapore Free Press spoke out pretty plainly on the Christian missionary dodge of getting money from the Chinese for schools on the pretence that they will teach only secular education, and then using the schools as agencies to bring heathen souls to Jesus. In ascertaining our relation to the Spirit World the old ideas constantly act as an impediment to the reception of spiritual truth.

When Dr. Henry Slade was in Europe many years ago, a child was brought to him who was clairvoyant. A sitting for slate-writing was being held. The slate was suspended from a gas lamp above the table. Those in attendance obtained some writing. While the writing was going on the child looking attentively at the slate exclaimed: "Oh! papa, what beautiful white hands I see above the slate, and what a beautiful light!"

One advanced thinker entertains the idea that the whole creation is psychic and not material.

Ernest S. Green says that the late Prof. Wm. Denton, a noted geologist, obtained an aerolitic rock, and without stating its nature, sent or took it personally to 30 psychometrists, most, if not all of whom, being ignorant of geology and consequently unacquainted with the fact that they had an aerolite until apprised of it by their psychometric power; yet all gave corroborative descriptions to the effect that it was from an extinct planet.

Geo. A. Fuller says: "I am a believer in each and every phase of mediumship, but I am sorry to be obliged to stand upon a Spiritual platform and make the confession that there have been and still are many who, under the sacred name of Spiritualism, are polluting, degrading the cause." Right, Doctor, and some of the Spiritualist papers are promoting the same by trying to cover up the "pollution."

Spiritualism has proven the fact that the Scriptures were at best but an "incomplete history of a dead and gone people," yet they maintain a superstitious sway over a vast number of people.

Augusta Frances Tripp says that "we learn of the All Truth that we are divine, filled with undeveloped possibilities."

Last Sunday Moses Hull lectured at Berkley Hall, Boston. He is a favorite there.

Prof. Lockwood is with the Norwich Spiritualist Society, Ct. Mrs. Loring speaks highly of the good work he is doing.

Carrie F. Loring, of East Braintree, Vt., is doing an excellent work. Mrs. J. A. Chapman speaks of one of her lectures: "Many thought-gems were left with her conditions for better modes of living here and now."

Isabella Beecher Hooker says that Spiritualism goes far ahead of "orthodox Christianity" "as a deterrent from vice, and an encouragement of all that is good." Right, sister.

T. C. Jefferson, of 421 South Ninth street, St. Joseph, Mo., is a medium; speaks several Oriental languages, under spirit control, and is a fine soprano singer. He would like to live in New York City, and desires someone to get him a situation there.

W. J. Colville says: "The Bible teaches that prophets and apostles who have healed the sick did not perform a vicarious work on behalf of the afflicted, but they helped those who were in bondage to error to get free from its control." Elisha, who told Naaman to wash seven times in Jordan, is a sample prophet of the highest rank, for whatever interpretation be put upon the letter of the narrative, the spirit of it is unmistakably a teaching that man must so change his mode of life from wrong to right that, whereas he formerly suffered (through ignorance perchance) the effects of wrongful action, he may henceforth enjoy the fruits of wise and righteous conduct."

From Harbinger of Light, Melbourne, Australia.

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND.

Although it may not generally be known, there are a great many Spiritualists in Glasgow, and also a society known as the Glasgow Spiritualists' Society. Private seances take place in the houses of members, while on Sundays meetings are held, forenoon and evening, in a hall in Carlton-place on the south side of the City. A correspondent of the "Weekly Scotsman" attended a seance in the house of Mr. Duguid, of Devon street, South Side, on a Wednesday the other week.

PAINTING SEANCES.

It is said for Mr. Duguid that for the past twenty-five years, without fee or reward of any kind, he has devoted the first evening of each month to a painting seance, for the benefit of investigators or incredulous persons, and upwards of six thousand visitors, from all parts of the world, have witnessed the production of beautiful spirit paintings, about one thousand eight hundred of which are now widely distributed. Besides these painting seances, however, some wonderful physical manifestations also occur, and our representative was fortunate in being present when a number of well-known clairvoyants from London helped to make up the circle, and by their knowledge of the spirit world were able—so they said—to see many shadowy figures flitting about the room.

A SEANCE WITH THIS GREAT MEDIUM.

The circle was soon formed, a lady and gentleman being placed beside each other as far as the numbers allowed. Then the door was opened, and the medium, Mr. Duguid, quietly bowed to the company. There were not a few present who were well known to Mr. Duguid, while others saw him for the first time. This was my own case, and I must confess that his personality impressed me not a little. Somewhat above the medium height, his strong, determined-looking face gave one the idea that, having formed an opinion, he could not be easily turned from it. His hair is long and inclined to be curly, while his benevolent-looking and furrowed face, albeit strong and determined jaw, made one feel kindly towards him.

PREPARES FOR WORK.

He brought into the room a palette containing brushes and various colors in oil, and these he arranged to his liking. Two musical boxes were then exhibited to the company with their keys firmly sealed, and after a few minutes spent in pleasant conversation, Mr. Duguid, who had been a silent onlooker, was seen to have passed into what is termed a Spiritualistic trance. Quite unconscious of his surroundings, he rocked to and fro in his chair, his eyes rolling about in his head in a wild-like fashion. Then the pupils disappeared, nothing but the white of the eyes being seen. I should say he sat in this state for a couple of minutes, and then his hand groped its way to the palette. All this was done with the gas fully turned up. Having found a pencil, his other hand sought and grasped a large piece of prepared cardboard.

WORKS WITH EYES CLOSED.

On this he rapidly pencilled out a sketch, his eyes, however, which were close shut, never once resting on the quickly-forming sketch. After having completed a rough draft brushes were next applied. With deft fingers each individual oil was visited and duly prepared on the palette. Not once did the eyes open; not once did the medium exhibit any signs of consciousness; he sat quietly on his chair, his eyes, in which there was not light, looking everywhere but on the picture. In eighteen minutes he laid the brushes down and pushed across the table a beautiful representation in oils of Portincross Castle on the Clyde. The sea piece was especially fine; the coloring showing careful manipulation and fine discernment.

THE LIGHTS LOWERED.

Hastily two small pieces of card, the size of a carte-de-visite, were pushed forward to Mr. Duguid. Corners from each were cut off, so as to provide against any possible deception, while all present had an opportunity of inspecting them. Then for the first time the lights were lowered, and the windows being shuttered the company was enveloped in the darkness of night. Hands were linked, and everyone waited impatiently—some with considerable dread—for what was to come. All at once the table evinced signs of life, and rocked to and fro. Then from the key-locked music boxes issued forth a delightful dreamy sort of music, and a purplish colored mist seemed to rise from the table. Only four minutes elapsed before the lights were again turned up, and then, to the wonder of many present, two miniature paintings in oil had been completed. The cards, still wet, were handed round, and the corners fitted in exactly. One painting was a replica of the large one, while the other was a fine bit of landscape.

DIRECT PAINTINGS

These last two pictures were said to be performed by no earthly hand, being the work of spirits, while Mr. Duguid's picture was also completed by spirits, although he was the medium in their hands. The small pictures were, therefore, called "direct paintings." Whether the work of mortals or of those who know the mysteries of the border world, they showed considerable skill, and the spirits were really smart and lost no time. The spirits of Jan Steen and Ruysdael, two Dutch painters of the sixteenth century, are said by Mr. Duguid to guide his hand, and while he can use a brush a little when not under their spell, his work is nothing when compared to that done unconsciously by him.

A BEAUTIFUL LIGHT.

"Oh, I see such a beautiful light right above the table," said one lady. "It is standing with quite a halo round it." This, I thought, was getting quite interesting, and I was about to have a look round for some of my lost kin, when, as if resenting my low-born curiosity, the table raised itself on end, and became a barrier; a black wall shut out the light the lady spoke of, while on the other side, the fair one went into ecstacy over the beautiful form. I was enshrouded in darkness: she was basking in light.

FLOODED WITH MUSIC.

Again the room was flooded with music, while I even could make out, or at least thought I did, several lights which evolved themselves into shape akin to human. Becoming a little excited with my glimpse of the Unseen, I pushed a rather large note-book off my knee in the darkness, and in the silence which prevailed it made a startling sound. "What was that?" asked one. "Did you hear that noise?" said another; and as there was likely to be some dubiety about its origin, I mumbled out from my corner that my book had fallen. Whether this had a disturbing element in it I know not, but certainly the lights vanished for a time. But the spell was not broken. Again the clairvoyants began to tell what they saw, and this time a tall spirit was said to be standing at my shoulder, with her hand resting lovingly on mine. The London clairvoyant began to describe her appearance, and I was startled to find her giving a most minute personal description of an aunt of mine who had died in the north country more than eighteen years ago. Her hair, eyes, features, and height were all given, and that quite accurately. I slyly put up my hand in the dark, and touched the shoulder her spirit hand was said to be resting on, but I felt only my rough Harris tweed, and nothing else. In reply to a question of mine as to whether her visit boded good or evil to me, I was told that it was a goodsign. I was not the only person singled out. One lady was told of a sister who had gone out of her sight for many years, and was comforted by the thought that she might see her again soon; while another lady—a married one—was advised never to enter a circle again, as it did not suit her. The medium who delivered this judgment said she could feel a current of pain coming from her, and the lady admitted that she was terribly troubled with headaches. Several other persons had knowledge from the spirit world imparted to them, and one young fellow got so enraptured that it was found that he had gone off on a visit to spirit-land himself, having fallen into a trance. All this time, Mr. Duguid, the real medium, was breathing heavily, and still in a trance, and to prevent further exhaustion the lights were raised, and in five minutes or so he was back again to the matter-of-fact world, where spirits are at a discount.

From Two Worlds, London, England.

STRINGENT TEST CONDITIONS.

At the present time the subject of materialization phenomena has again cropped up, and the old and vexed question of "test conditions" is being thrashed out as vigorously as ever. Let us look backwards a little; possibly we may find some facts to guide us. Elsewhere in this issue Mr. Smedley deals with phenomena under strict test conditions, through the mediumship of Miss Wood, and we invite those who plead for "faith" and protest against the "indignity" that is put upon the medium to consider the very important question: What is it that gives to the experiments conducted and reported by Mr. Crookes the permanency and value they possess, but the fact that he instituted careful test conditions and employed rigid methods of observation, so as to exclude the medium as a possible factor in the results which were produced? We point with confidence to the unassailable testimony of Mr. Crookes, because he bears testimony to the fact that mediums cheerfully assented to the test conditions he desired to impose, and because those conditions were thorough.

MANY LIVING FORMS.

Mr. Barkas, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, bears equally emphatic testimony to the really wonderful manifestations which were produced through the mediumship of Miss Wood. He says: "I have seen, through the mediumship of Miss Wood, in a private house, living forms walk from the curtain recess, which it was utterly impossible for her to simulate. I have seen children, women and men of various ages, walk forth under her mediumship. I have seen a materialized form and the medium at the same time. I have had through her mediumship a child-like form standing beside me for about half an hour together; the child has placed its arms around my neck, and permitted me at the same time to place my arm around her neck, and has laid its cheek against mine, breathed upon my face, and, in fact, caressed me precisely as a child would do its parent or guardian. This was not in darkness, but in light, and in the presence of professors and fellows of one of the leading universities in the kingdom. I have, under these conditions, and after having handled the psychic form, seen it gradually vanish or dematerialize, and become invisible in the middle of the room."

A WIRE CAGE.

Miss Wood held six seances, during which she was secured in a strongly-made wirework cage. Miss Wood was firmly and securely fastened to her chair with tapes, and tapes put around her wrists and stitched, and then put inside the cage and the door closed and screwed up, and yet "Benny" and "Poka" both materialized, the former going out into the circle and kissing a lady and shaking hands with Mr. Adshead and Mr. A. Smedley; and at subsequent seances, while the medium was secured, taped, and stitched, and screwed up in the cage, the spirits materialized and dipped their feet into warm paraffin wax, and then dematerialized, leaving the wax moulds behind them, one mould evidently being that of a male and the other a female.

TRICKY SPIRITS.

Now, however remarkable and genuine the phenomena might have been, the testimony to them would have been valueless as evidence but for the strict test conditions under which they occurred. The phenomena reported to have transpired in Mr. Craddock's seances, however satisfactory to those who witnessed them, are valueless for scientific and evidential purposes. The sitters may be morally certain that Mr. Craddock would not, and did not practice any fraud or produce the results, but since no tests were employed to put it beyond his power to trick, they laid him open to temptation and suspicion and, worse than all, to the possibility of being impelled unconsciously (by tricky spirits) to play the part of ghost.

A PLEA FOR BETTER LIGHT.

On all counts, and for the medium's own sake, we plead for better light, and test conditions which will banish mistrust, give scientific and evidential value to the results and, by inspiring confidence in the sitters, as well as protecting the medium, improve conditions, and thus lead to more successful results. That these manifestations can occur under fraud proof conditions is proved by the fact that they have occurred with Home, Eglington, Misses Cook, Wood, and Fairland (now Mrs. Mellon), and it were better that fewer manifestations were given under satisfactory and convincing surroundings than that a host of inconclusive phenomena should occur under conditions that leave the sitters in doubt, and a prey to suspicion and fear lest they have been deceived.

From Light, London, Eng.

EUSAPIA PALADINO.

In previous investigations it had been noticed that a change of personality accompanied Eusapia's entranced or secondary state. At L'Agnelas, this phenomenon had for purposes of simplification been systematically ignored. The former restrictions no longer applying, "John King" was now questioned. In his replies he was found to be unreliable: He showed himself to be a Reincarnationist, claiming that Eusapia had been an over-proud daughter of his when he lived as a man in ancient Egypt.

NOT CORNERED.

He was not "cornered," unfortunately, as to why his daughter should have to re-incarnate here, while, under the same laws, he remained in the astral plane working as operating manager of seances for the manifestation of physical phenomena, for the instruction of embodied men; which fate has not even yet terminated apparently, as he speaks of his intention to use one of Eusapia's children as his medium, after his death. He also claimed to be the brother of the "Kate King" who appeared to Mr. W. Crookes, but did not show himself to be acquainted with the other "John Kings" who have acted as the familiars of Madame Blavatsky, of the medium Husk, and others.

THE SPIRIT KING OPEN TO CRITICISM.

Other statements which he made are equally open to criticism. He referred to his control of Eusapia as being incarnated in her, though he was seen by a clairvoyant to be standing behind her and to be acting upon her through her vital radiation (as will be shown further on). He affirmed that in that condition he understood all languages, but could only speak Italian through her because of her limited intelligence. Yet when Mr. Maxwell tried him in several different languages consecutively, "John" did not show that he understood, and could only answer "Si," as again occurred when General Thomassin subsequently spoke to him in Arabic.

FLUIDIC EMANATION.

Questioned as to how he produced the phenomena, "John" stated that he condensed the fluidic emanation thrown off by the assistants and medium in the objects he intended to move, thereby constituting a connecting link through which he could act. This fluid can be condensed behind a protecting curtain into a nebulous body, by means of which the curtain can be pushed out and the sensation conveyed to the investigators of being touched by a solid but elastic body. This emanation can be further condensed, and hands, with distinct fingers, formed therewith, by means of which he can seize the objects he wished to act upon and impart the desired movements thereto.

CONFIRMATORY OF THE ABOVE.

An interesting description of "John," confirmatory of the above, was given by a clairvoyant who was invited to one of the seances and carried on a mental (i.e., spiritual) conversation with him.

ASTRAL HANDS.

The official report, in referring to these astral hands, states that their formation begins by an elastic but resisting ball being formed behind the curtain, pushing it out and thereby touching the sitters. This is followed by the making of an invisible hand, of which the fingers are felt by pinches, touches, etc., through the curtain. This hand begins in a small feminine shape, but grows into the form of a large masculine hand. This is then sufficiently materialized to be projected forward, appended to an arm, from behind the curtain to touch the sitters, move objects, or strike the table, etc. (while both the medium's hands were securely held). "Such hands were seen between ourselves and the cabinet by all the committee, and felt by us repeatedly, thus enabling us to affirm their existence." "We, therefore, declare in the most definite manner" (says the official report), "that this phenomenon, together with that of the movement of objects without contact, must be considered as definitively added to positive science." "General Thomassin, Baron Brincart, and Mr. Bechade, who assisted at the later seances, unreservedly add their testimony to ours."

From The Spiritual Review, London, Eng.

SPIRITUAL LAWS.

Right internal conditions are primal to all heavenly delights. Spiritual laws are omnipresent—operative everywhere; and as we are actually now living in the spiritual world, we are amenable to its laws. Magnificent surroundings will not produce happiness unless there is perfect harmony within the soul. Beauty must first exist in the mind before its outward presence can be enjoyed. The sentences quoted above by Swedenborg and Davis bear upon them the insigna of reason. They are their own authority. We do not accept their truth merely because these seers uttered them, but because our intuition discerns their validity.

PARALYSIS OF THE SOUL.

True Spiritualism teaches to rely implicity on principles, and principles only. It is by acting on principles—on the laws of spirit—that the soul is elevated and unfolded. The outward doings of men are but their inward thoughts made visible, real, tangible. All history is thus essentially spiritual. According to the light which men have, so will be the manifestations of their life in the world. If they earnestly struggle to realize the Divine life, then we shall see these aims exemplified; if, on the other hand, men have no perception of these things, have no God, and no heaven to love—no aim, in short, but the base aim of gold, and no life but that of an animal, we shall discover their woeful paralysis of soul by corresponding outward and unmistakable signs.

MECHANICAL RELIGION.

In our days we see the central thought of the nation in our mills, factories and enginery. That culture is not religious but mechanical. Mechanism is the moving idea, the life of English society. All our aims have an outward and material, not an inward and spiritual tendency. Even religion has become merely mechanical; consisting of forms and ceremonies, of creeds, beliefs and observances.

THE TRIUMPH SPIRITUALLY.

It is natural that men should triumph physically and intellectually before they triumph spiritually. For how else can we interpret the utter absorption of individuals in those mighty natural creations, which they have conjured up from the empire of matter? The life they live is not life, but drudgery and emptiness. They have no root in the eternal, but only in temporal verities.

THE COMPENSATION.

It is an old law that man's compensations for living shall come alone out of the sphere of his being. If he lives for the intellect, he shall have the pay of the intellect; if for the spirit, he shall have spiritual satisfaction; but if he be a true man and fill all his spheres with divine life, he shall realize the gains and blessedness of that life. The building up of fortunes in order to obtain material comforts is not the true aim of man's life. No earthly consummation, however beautiful, can satisfy the longings and infinite yearnings of the soul.

WE WANT TO DO MORE GOOD.

And in order to do it, we should reach 1,000,000 new readers. Help us to do it. Let each subscriber get an additional subscriber. Read the announcement on fifth page, headed "Fifteen Cents," and then act in our behalf.

LIFE WORK
—OF—
CORA L. V. RICHMOND.

COMPILED AND EDITED BY HARRISON D. BARRETT.

With portraits representing Mrs. Richmond in 1857, in 1876, and in 1894.

OUTLINE OF CONTENTS:

INTRODUCTION.
CHAPTER I. Parentage—Place of Birth—Childhood—School Experiences—First Mediumistic Work, etc.
CHAPTER II. Hopedale—Mr. Scott in Massachusetts—Removal to Wisconsin—The Ballou Family—Adin Ballou's Work—Work of Spirit Adin Augustus Ballou.
CHAPTER III. Ouina—Her Earthly Life and Tragic Death—Her Mission in Spirit-Life.
CHAPTER IV. Other Controls—The Guides.
CHAPTER V. Work in Cuba, N. Y.—Buffalo Pastorate—Workers in Buffalo—Thomas Gales Forster—Sarah Brooks—Horace H. Day—Removal to New York City, 1856—Philadelphia—Boston—Baltimore.
CHAPTER VI. Work in New York City.
CHAPTER VII. New York City (continued). Prof. J. J. Mapes—Hon. J. W. Edmonds—Dr. Gray—New York Editors and Clergy—Other Places in the East—Meadville, Pa., 1864—Hon. A. B. Richmond.
CHAPTER VIII. Washington, D. C.—Reconstruction—Senator J. M. Howard—George J. W. Julien—Gen. N. P. Banks—Nettie Colbern Maynard—Statement of Geo. A. Bacon.
CHAPTER IX. England—Robert Dale Owen—George Thompson—Countess of Caithness—Mrs. Strawbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Tebb—Mrs. Nosworthy—J. C. Ward—Mrs. Slater—Andrew Cross.
CHAPTER X. Work in England (Continued in Three Subsequent Visits.)
CHAPTER XI. California Work, 1875—Other Visits—Letter of C. M. Plumb—Letter of Mrs. John A. Wilson.
CHAPTER XII. Chicago Work, 1876 to 1895—First Society Chartered, 1869—Complete Account of Work in Letters and Statements of Members of the Society.
CHAPTER XIII. Camp Meeting Work—Cassadaga—Lake Pleasant—Onset Bay—Lake Brady—Lookout Mountain, etc.
CHAPTER XIV. Literary Work—Hesperia—Volumes of Discourses and Lectures—Psychopathy; Soul Teachings—Poems—Other Literary Work.
CHAPTER XV. Literary Work (continued)—Lecture on Gyroscope, 1858—"The Shadow of a Great Rock in a Weary Land," 1887—Poems—Choice Selections in Prose and Verse—Work of William Richmond.
CHAPTER XVI. Letters from Personal Friends; from Orpha E. Tousey; from Lady Caithness, and others—Appreciation of the Work from Those Best Qualified to Judge—Frederick F. Cook—Wendell C. Warner—Drs. Emmett and Helen Dinsmore.
CHAPTER XVII. Mrs Richmond's Experiences While in the Trance State, Written by Herself.

Price $2, Postpaid. For Sale at this office.

AN EXCELLENT WORK.

DEATH AND THE AFTER-LIFE.
The "Stellar Key" is the philosophical introduction to the revelations contained in this book. Some idea of this little volume may be gained from the following table of contents: 1—Death and the After-Life; 2—Scenes in the Summer-Land; 3—Society in the Summer-Land; 4—Social Centres in the Summer-Land; 5—Winter-Land and Summer Land; 6—Language and Life in Summer-Land; 7—Material Work for Spiritual Workers; 8—Ultimates in the Summer-Land; 9—Voice from James Victor Wilson. This enlarged edition contains more than double the amount of matter in former editions, and is enriched by a beautiful frontispiece, illustrating the "formation of the Spiritual Body." Cloth 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

THE HISTORICAL JESUS
And Mythical Christ. By Gerald Massey. 130 pages, 12mo. Price 50 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.
A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

E. V. WILSON'S BOOK.

The Truths of Spiritualism

E. V. Wilson was one of the pioneers of Spiritualism, and was noted as a speaker and test medium. He did a grand work for the cause, and this book narrates many of his striking experiences during his labors.
Purchasers will find it intensely interesting, and will render kindly service to his widow who was left in straitened circumstances.
The book contains 400 pages, and is sold for $1. Address MRS. E. V. WILSON, 91 South Locust street, Valparaiso, Ind.

THE World's Sixteen Saviors,
—OR—
CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.

BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter-heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go, like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 380 pages. New edition, revised and corrected, with portrait of author.
Price $1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Soul of Things; or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries.

BY WM. AND ELIZABETH M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text-book, it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this newly-discovered power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make Geology as plain as day, and throw light on all the grand subjects now obscured by time.

Soul or Things—Vol. I.
Cloth $1.50
Postage 10 cents.
Soul of Things—Vol II.
Illustrated. 450 pp. Cloth $1.50
Postage 10 cents.
Soul of Things—Vol. III.
Illustrated. 362 pp. Cloth $1.50
Postage 10 cents.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA,
According to Old Records.

BY DR. PAUL CARUS.

A translation from Japanese, made under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was lately published in Japan. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Barr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

THE DIAKKA.

THE DIAKKA AND THEIR EARTHLY Victims, by the Seer, A. J. Davis, is a very interesting and suggestive work. It is an explanation of much that is false and repulsive in Spiritualism, embodying a most important recent interview with James Victor Wilson, a resident of the Summer-Land. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

Origin, Development and Destiny of Man.

A Scientific and Philosophical Treatise, by Thos. P. Fletcher.

CONTENTS: The Beginnings; Fundamental Principles; Formation of Constellations, Systems, Suns, Planets and Satellites. The Origin of Meteors and Comets; The Organic Kingdom; The Origin of Man; Man—His Attributes and Powers; The Soul—How It Receives and Imparts Knowledge; How the Soul Receives Its Highest Impressions; The Record Book, or The Heavenly Ether; How to Cultivate the Sixth Sense; The Finer or Spiritual Body; Growth and Degeneration; Morally, Spiritualism Proved by the Bible; The Bible and Christ; The Summary: "What Must We Do to Be Saved." For sale at this office.
Price, Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50c.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of the distinguished author, speaker and medium,

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin Heights, Ohio.

H. W. Ricker: As disease was considered by savage man to be inflicted by the wrath of God, or by evil spirits, there was little use of attempting a cure, except by appeasing the vengeful deities. Hence medicine in the earliest times fell into the hands of the priests—the most artful and cunning of their tribe or clan, and consisted almost entirely of exorcism, beseeching prayers and sacrifices. The first noted physician was Esculapius, whose birth is so remote that its date is lost in myths. He, however, lived before Homer, who alludes to him, and Herodotus places Homer 850 B. C. He was the son of Apollo, God of Light, according to mythology, and was so successful in treating the diseased that it is said he derived his knowledge from Chiron, the fabled Centaur, and so displeased Pluto that Jove struck him with a thunderbolt. He became the god of medicine. Temples were erected where he was worshiped. His sons were immortalized in the verse of Homer. The temples were located in healthy places and were purified by burning incense and remedies. The sick were brought for treatment, as to sanitariums at present. Baths were used, mineral waters, unctions and rubbing. Prescriptions were made by the oracle and by the priests.

Hippocrates was born 460 years before Christ, and is known as the "father of medicine." He founded the first medical school, and taught the beginnings of medical knowledge by observation and dissection of animals. He relied on diet and vegetable remedies.

The priests serving in the Temple of Esculapius, introduced medicine into Rome about 200 years before Christ.

In the year A. C. 130 Galen was born at Pergamus, and when of age came to Rome and practiced medicine, and such was the fame and authority he acquired that for twelve centuries he was regarded as infallible. He studied at the famous Alexandrian school, by observation and dissection of animals, yet the ignorance of the best informed "doctors" of that day, after so many centuries of study and pretension, is shown by his fanciful division of the causes of disease into blood, phlegm, and black bile. There was a better knowledge of the virtues of plants than of the causes of disease, and the followers of Galen performed wonderful cures.

This is reversed at the present time, for the diagnosis of disease is more perfect than the knowledge of the means of cure. The benefit of this accrues to the doctors, for the masses strangely conclude that if a doctor can tell what ails a patient, he can cure him.

The practice of medicine, during the Dark Ages was taken out of the hands of the doctors by the priests, who claimed that it was defying God's designs to help the suffering. Even so late as the introduction of anesthetics, the preachers denounced their use, especially in the palliation of woman's sufferings, as the instigation of the Devil, to prevent her from receiving the just reward for yielding to the temptation in the Garden of Eden.

Prayer was the panacea for all ills. This belief has descended to our own day, and appears in its strength in the "faith cure," "prayer cure," etc. Some susceptible cases of nervous suffering may be assisted or cured, but for broken bone, or any case of organic change, or surgery, such cure is a fraud and pretense.

Prof. James Monroe: Q. The Monroe Interpreter, in its application to the mysteries of the Books of Daniel or Revelations, predicts that all governments will become republican, and universal peace be established by an international tribunal.

Also that creeds and dogmas will be destroyed and religion established on a scientific basis by the investigation of psychic phenomena, and that the present system of labor and capital will be supplanted by a system of nationalism, in which individuality will be surrendered for the good of all, and the least labor provide the essentials of comfort and happiness. Is this interpretation true?

A. The Monroe Interpreter of the nightmare-like dreams of Daniel the prophet, and Revelations, is among the most marvelous works of Bible interpretation. Aside from any belief in these prophecies as being genuine or valuable, the method pursued by Mr. Monroe is as interesting as a novel, and ingenious as the cryptogramic dissections of Shakspearean writings. That all that is prophesied will come true there can be no doubt, for the current is setting swiftly in that direction. A long step has been taken to maintain the peace of the world by arbitration. Dogmatism and creeds are vanishing in the light of knowledge. The troublous problem of capital and labor must be settled in favor of right and justice, and equal distribution of the products of labor will yield universal plenty and happiness. This will all come, and Mr. Monroe most ingeniously makes the Prophet Daniel and the Revelator tell the story. The Bible is a peculiar book; the tune it will play depends on the skill of the player. Other expounders, starting with other data of interpretation, reach conclusions utterly at variance, yet equally plausible.

Asteria: Q. Is the prediction of the failure of the light and heat of the sun true?

A. We presume this question refers to the prediction of Prof. Blake, of the Kansas University, by which he has gained momentary notoriety. This professor has startled people who fancy that a college professor knows what he is talking about, by informing them that from accurate computations the sun has existed twenty millions of years, and will last only five millions longer. It is daily giving off into space from every square foot of its surface 12,000 horse-power, and when it is gone the earth will be in darkness and the temperature will be so far below zero that the mercury will have shrunk out of sight. As all the coal will have been used, and all the oil and gas, there will be no alternative but death to the belated inhabitants. The amount of light and heat caught by the surfaces of the planets, as these forces escape from the sun, is as a drop in the ocean. There is infinite waste of energy into space. The only salvation for the future beyond the allotted five million years, is for a syndicate to bottle up this heat and light, now that it is plentiful, and when the sun goes out, they will have a corner on the market. Well the age and duration of the sun is not an open book to this Kansas professor. There is no means of determining the age of the sun, and the wisest astronomers can only guess, and his opinion is of little more weight than that of a clown.

From the time accurate observations began to be made, until the present, there has been not the least measurable change, and only by changes can such problems be solved. It is well the finale is put off five millions of years. The prophet and his predictions will have been forgotten.

J. D. Y., Bartlett, O.: Q. In our intercourse with mortals our unspoken thoughts are private property. Thoughts will at times unwittingly come to the front, which may be as void of any immoral taint, and yet prudence dictates we had better keep them to ourselves; but according to some of our teachers, when we get on the other side, our thoughts are public property; we can be read as easily as an open book. If this is so, is not all privacy ruled out of our future homes?

A. It is a mistake that the minds of spirits are as an open book to each other. In fact only those who are in unison of thought, who are attuned in harmony, are able to read each other's thoughts "as in an open book," and in such there is no desire for concealment. In all other cases, the will of the spirit determines whether its thoughts be known or not, and to whom.

W. J. B.: Q. Some time ago I purchased a psychograph; some influence talked through it with me, one acquainted with my family history, and said it was my control and a good one. After awhile it began to tell falsehoods, and now I discover this influence to be nothing but evil. In sincerity, is there any good back of it? Now I get the same results when I visit other mediums.

A. An earnest, inquiring soul has met with bitter disappointment, and although at fault, cannot be held blamable. His experience has been that of a great many, and all comes from misunderstanding and erroneous methods. Usually when communications are easily received, the spirits are consulted on any and all occasions. The controlling or friendly spirits cannot always be in attendance, and some stranger takes their place. He would not be listened to if he did not claim that he was the favorite control. Having done this he is forced to give such answers as he is able to gather from the minds of those present. Having once gained control, it may be difficult for the spirit to be persuaded to relinquish it.

The doubts which come from having falsehoods told, the distrust, increases the difficulty, for while it repels the friends, it delightfully attracts those who communicate as a pastime, and amuse themselves with the disappointment and dissatisfaction they cause.

With such a strong feeling of outraged confidence as this correspondent now has, he would necessarily receive more and more unsatisfactory messages. He must go back and begin again, first fully understanding that spiritual beings are not infallible, and of all degrees of intelligence and morality. He must accept messages for their intrinsic worth, not because of the high source they claim. He must not make the seance a pastime, or consult the spirits on affairs of which he is the better judge. If he confines his demands to spiritual knowledge, those able to give such knowledge only will come.

There are a few rules which must be observed, and these this correspondent has broken, and reaps the reward. That he receives the same results through other mediums, shows that he carries his distrust with him and is followed by the same spirit or spirits. The circles should be held under the best conditions and then if these spirits continue to converse, receive their messages for just what they are; impartially criticise all they reveal, and for a time at least be interested in instruction in spiritual things, and not wish for material tests, which should be allowed to come spontaneously.

The medium stands in front of a door on the other side of which are good and bad, truthful and false, intellectual and ignorant spirits, all wishing to communicate. The means of communication may be compared with an electric wire, only one can control it at the same time, and few fully understand the method. The medium may be defective as a receiving instrument. Often a spirit who best succeeds holds the place of operator, sending the messages of others. At times a mischievous or false spirit takes control and retains it.

What is then to be done? Unless there be something in harmony between the spirit and the medium, messages cannot be received. It is because distrust and skepticism make the mind antagonistic and unspiritual that these adverse influences are fostered and continue to control.

EXCELLENT ADVICE.

BALL MUST BE KEPT ROLLING.

To the Editor:—The ball must be kept rolling, or the wheels of bigotry, superstition and priestcraft will rob us of our God-given right to worship at any shrine except the cross. None but those who are keeping an eye upon the creed worshipers, and the huge tiger better known under the name of the Roman Church, have any idea of the pressure that is now being exerted in our legislative halls to unite church and State. It is idle folly to say this cannot be done. The Roman Church is only sleeping with one eye closed. This monster once in power, and we will again suffer a more terrible inquisition than did the heretics of the twelfth and fifteenth centuries when the Roman Catholic princes and the priests subjects were ordered to extirpate all the heretics. Woe be unto the intelligent thinkers and the men or women who attempt to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience, when Rome howls once again.

My brother Spiritualists, you who love liberty, free thought, and progression, bestir yourselves and help Brother Francis to place The Progressive Thinker into the 1,000,000 families, and thereby scatter the glad tidings of great joy broadcast over our land.

We are being legislated against everywhere; the first hard blow is being struck at our noble mediums, especially our "healers," and if these bills pass, our magnetic healers will be crushed out by the jealous and bigoted M. D.s. Then, in the name of justice and love of truth, take The Progressive Thinker yourselves and induce all your friends to subscribe; if you can not prevail on them to suscribe for one year, you can get them to try a three months subscription, under the offer of 15 cents, with other exceeding valuable numbers. No true, progressive brother in the cause and battle for truth and liberty can afford to be without The Progressive Thinker. It sparkles with living gems of thought. It carries its readers away from the earth plane and places them in communion with seers of ages. I tell my friends that it is the cream of literature. I have been a lover of its truth for years, and long may this bright jeweled teacher of higher life, live.

W. H. H. TUCKER.

"The Relation of the Spiritual to the Material Universe. The Law of Spirit Control." By Michael Faraday. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

LYCEUM LESSONS

As Presented by Hudson Tuttle.

GOLDEN THOUGHT.

The Thinker is the world's savior.

SUBJECT FOR DISCUSSION.

The right to reason on all subjects.

For the older groups; The possession of lungs proves the right to breathe the air; thirst the right to water; wings have the right of use; hunger to food; the brain to think, that is, to reason.

In morals and religion this has been denied from remotest times. The priests invested themselves with the right to think for mankind, and proved their right by revelations which they claimed were from the gods or God. Catholicism denies this right absolutely in morals and religion. The priest stands between the laity and reason.

The reformation of Luther was a revolt against this assumption. Protestantism grants the right to think and reason; but the conclusions must be in accordance with its dogmas.

The most horrible tortures and fiendish cruelty have been invented to repress thinking.

Luther was mercilessly pursued, and had he not had protection by a sheltering protectorate, would have been burned.

Galileo was imprisoned in a loathsome dungeon because he taught that the earth revolved around the sun, contrary to the Bible, and would have been burned had he not recanted.

Calvin burned the most learned Servetus, because the latter saw clearly the errors of the founder of Presbyterianism.

The church has fought every new thought to the death. It has opposed of necessity, because it claimed infallibility, and infallibility is unchangeable. Leaders by referring to cyclopedias, may gather the particulars from the lives of noted reformers, for instruction. The lyceum ought to become well informed as to the character and teachings of these "saints" and sages of Liberal thought. Example: Servetus—born in 1509, in Spain—proficient in law and medicine, a scholar of renown. Became attracted to the doctrines of the Reformers. Unfortunately engaged in a theological dispute with Calvin, who was so bitter at his defeat that he furnished evidence against him to the Inquisition, and he was burned alive on a hill near Geneva, Switzerland, 1553.

Thomas Paine—Born in England in 1737, of Quaker parentage—acquired his education by self-instruction—preached as a dissenting minister—was a grocer and excise man, falsely accused of smuggling he was disgusted and came to America, 1774; published "Common Sense," which advocated independence and republican form of government. Published "Rights of Man" in 1792; and the "Age of Reason" in 1795. Was active in the formation of the Constitution, the government owing its form more to him perhaps than any other man. Lived the last years of his life at New Rochelle, N. Y. Died in New York in 1809.

For the younger groups: Leader—If I should tell you that I had seen a herd of cattle with large bushes growing out of their backs, would you believe me? (No.)

Leader—You could not believe, for it is impossible for bushes to so grow. You might say I thought I saw them, but was mistaken. You cannot believe what you know to be impossible. You have the right to reason and to stand by your conclusions.

Leader—If I should tell you that you were utterly bad, and that there was no good in you, would you believe me? (No.)

Leader—You would not because you know that you are constantly prompted to do good and be good. (Illustrate by stories from the children of what they have done—care for their pets, assisting suffering animals, or poor, helpless people.)

Leader—Yes, you must be good to do these kind deeds. To say that you are otherwise is false, and like all falsehoods, harmful.

MEMORY GEMS.

To be happy we must be good. To be beautiful we must be happy.

We have the right to reason. We have the right to stand by our conclusions.

The thinkers of the world are all nailed to the cross of public opinion. The thinkers of the world are always a forlorn hope and minority.

In freedom of thought there is salvation.

Liberty must not be confounded with license, which is its selfish exercise at the expense of others.

The correctness of thinking depends on the education, as well as the inherent capabilities of the mind.

The ignorant man is a slave of his ignorance.

There can be granted the right to perfect freedom of thought, because thinking does not interfere with the rights of others.

The thinker may be crucified, tortured or burned, but his thoughts are the immortal heritage of mankind.

When a thinker comes into the world old forms are in danger.

SILVER CHAIN READING—GIORDANO BRUNO.

